Harem Surgeon To Speak Here October 23

William M. Bickers, M.D., noted Richmond physician and surgeon, who has spent much time over the past 30 years working in the Middle East, will give a public lecture at 8 p.m., Thursday, October 23 in Millington Auditorium of the College of William and Mary.

Author of the book "Harem Surgeon," Bickers will talk on "Adventures in Arabian Gynecology." He was professor and chairman of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the American University of Beirut in Lebanon from 1955-74. A professor emeritus of the University of Beirut, he now resides in Richmond but returns to the Arabian peninsula every two months to perform surgery. He will return from one of these trips just a few days before his lecture in Williamsburg.

An alumnus of the College of William and Mary, Dr. Bickers received an undergraduate degree in physics in 1929. He received his M.D. degree from the Medical College of Virginia in 1933 and went on for his graduate work in obstetrics and gynecology at the Harvard Hospitals in Boston. He was a member of the MCV faculty from 1940-55.

Dr. Bickers went to Arabia as a medical volunteer, one of those recruited by the U.S. Surgeon General to staff institutions abroad under the Marshall Plan following World War II. He was appointed a visiting professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the University of Beirut.

While in the Middle East, Dr. Bickers became a fascinated participant in the changing lifestyles there and chronicler of the evolving patterns that have reshaped the Arab world. One reviewer of his book said that the author had become "in a way almost an Arab."

Dr. Bickers has delivered some 10,000 babies, including two of Anwar Sadat's children, but medicine has not been his only interest. He is an archaeologist of no mean distinction and a philosopher, observer of the past and curious about a dubious future in that part of the world.

Dr. Bickers has received Lebanon's highest honor, the Order of the Cedars, for his work there and both the University of Dublin and Oxford University have honored him. He is particularly proud of the medical men he has

Randolph Residences Dedicated

Edward E. Brickell, Jr., of Virginia Beach, Rector of the College, speaks at the dedication of the Randolph Residences, Saturday afternoon. Sharing the platform with him are President Graves, members of the Board of Visitors, administrators and special guests. At left is the Rev. Carter Harrison, an alumnus and descendent of Governor Benjamin Harrison (1726-1791) for whom one of the residences is named. Mr. Carter gave the invocation and benediction for the dedication ceremony.

Part of the Parents Weekend program, the dedication celebration included a student art exhibit in Tazwell Hall. Marsha Vayvada won best in show for a painting "Reclining Nude." She also won a merit award for another painting. Ann Marie Gray won three merit awards for work in pencil, etching and aquatint and charcoal. Anne Mellinger won a merit award for water color still life.

Music for visitors to the exhibit was provided by three members of a recorder consort, Cheryl Friedman, Neal Battaler and Debbie Harder. A spirited musical introduction to the dedication program was provided by the Colonial Williamsburg Fifes and Drums. A reception and tours of the buildings were held during the afternoon.

Players Readying 'God's Favorite'

Neil Simon's comedy "God's Favorite" will be presented by the Covenant Players Oct. 23, 24, 25, 26, 30, 31, and Nov. 1 and 2, at the Campus Center Little Theatre.

Tickets are $2.50 in advance or $3.00 at the door and may be obtained between 4 and 7 p.m. at the Commons and Campus Center Lobby.

Howard Scammon, professor emeritus of William and Mary will direct "God's Favorite" which is Neil Simon's contemporary version of the biblical Book of Job. Simon's action centers on Joe Benjamin, a cardboard-box magnate who finds his faith tested by God. This is first time a Neil Simon play has been presented on campus.

Peter King stars as Joe Benjamin, God's favorite, who is visited by an angel from God who tells Joe that he is the stakes in an extra-terrestrial bet between God and Satan. James A. Martin plays the angel, Sidney Lipton.

Joe's regal Long Island, North Shore mansion provides the locale of the action, as God replaces the grandeur of the mansion with gloom, a jealous, avaricious family of drunks and dreamers to provide the laughs.

"God's Favorite" is essentially a contemporary account of the Book of Job, replete with Simon's hilarious one-liners. Meanwhile, Joe Benjamin tries to hold on to his staunch faith while his family urges and begs him to renounce

God.

Playing Joe's relatives are Walter Blotkamp as Ben, Deborah Niezgodah as Sarah, Marie Buchwalter as Rose, and John P. Fitzgerald as David Benjamin. Also appearing as house-servants are Lisa Middleton as Mady and Christian Andree as Morris.

The Covenant Players, presenting its third production in two years, is a joint drama ministry of the Catholic Student and the Canterbury Student Associations of William and Mary. Previous shows have been "Godspell" and "Saint Joan." The Covenant Players was formed with the intent to bring to the college community the force and fervor of drama with a religious impact.

Notebook

A Reminder

President Graves will have office hours for students this afternoon from 4 - 5 p.m., also Wednesday, Oct. 22 and Tuesday, Oct. 28 at the same hour. No appointment is necessary.

Faculty Performers

The International Circle is sponsoring a Faculty Cultural Show, at 7:30 p.m., Monday, Oct. 27 in the Campus Center Ballroom.

The program is still being planned but so far organizers have lined up singers Vincent Sutlive and Mario Zamora, John Lavach and Stephen Clement, banjo and guitar and Howard Fraser, piano. Faculty recruitment is still underway.

The group SOMA will perform and there will be representatives of a Philippine dance group who will participate.

Admission is $1.

Further details may be obtained from Majidulla Zain of the International Circle, ext. 4365.

Graduate Fellowships

For the 1981-82 academic year the National Council of Alpha Lambda Delta will award twelve fellowships for graduate study. The amount of each fellowship is $2,500.

Any member of Alpha Lambda Delta who was graduated with a cumulative average of Alpha Lambda Delta initiation standard is eligible. Graduating seniors may apply if they have achieved this average to the end of the first semester (or first quarter) of this year.

Applicants will be judged on scholastic record, recommendations, the soundness of their stated project and purpose, and need.

Application blanks and information may be obtained from Dean Worthington, James Blair 210.

The application form must be completed by the applicant and received at the National Headquarters of Alpha Lambda Delta, Box 279, Lewisburg, Pa., 17837, by January 3, 1981.

MBA Party

Arthur Young will host a wine and cheese party for MBAs, accounting students and faculty at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 21 in Andrews foyer.

Students planning to attend, please notify the Office of Placement, 104 Morton Hall.

Cinema Directors

Dave Kuracofe, Angela Gendron, Jim Hurt, Ken Wolfe and Mrs. William J. Massey have been elected to the board of directors of the Cinema Classics Society.

Pre-Registration

Pre-registration for the spring semester for undergraduates and for graduate students in Arts and Sciences will take place between October 16 and 30. Undergraduate students should pick up their materials on October 16 at Andrews Hall between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Graduate students should contact their advisors between October 16 and 30.

Compulsive Eating

Kay Domine, College Archivist, will lead a discussion on compulsive eating as described in Susie Orbach's book, "Fat is a Feminist Issue," at a brown bag lunch, at noon, Friday, Oct. 17, at the Women's Center in the basement of St. Stephen's Lutheran Church at 612 Jamestown Road. She will talk about ways in which the socialization of women has affected their eating patterns and will suggest ways of coping with the problem of compulsive eating.

Fall Festival

The Williamsburg Area Women's Center and the Women's Forum at the College will jointly sponsor "Fall Festival," Sunday, October 26, at the Lake Matoaka Shelter as a showcase for art, music and crafts by area women.

The program opens at 2 p.m. and will continue until dusk. Exhibits will include calligraphy, painting, needlework, photography, quilting, pottery, drawing, paper mache, sculpture, stained glass, jewelry, and weaving.

There will be games and activities especially planned for children; also there will be refreshments for sale and grills and tables available for family picnics.

Poetry, music and a one-act play will all be part of the festival program.

Women who would like to participate in the festival, either as entertainers or exhibitors, should contact Sandy Seidel, coordinator, ext. 4631. Exhibitors may display and sell their work at the festival.

Caterpillar Internship

The Caterpillar Tractor Company is offering an intern program designed to provide a college student with an interest in the business community an opportunity to get a first-hand look at the way a corporate governmental affairs office works in Washington.

The student intern works directly with the Washington manager of the Governmental Affairs Division who is responsible for monitoring and lobbying on legislation at the federal level that impacts Caterpillar's operations, both domestically and internationally. The intern will cover Congressional hearings and markup sessions, attend meetings of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and of other major business organizations and make Congressional contacts, among other responsibilities.

The major qualification is that the student have a high degree of motivation and an eventual interest in joining the business community. The internship is for the spring semester. William and Mary will select one candidate who will then be competing with two or three other candidates, from University of Maryland and University of Virginia. If you are interested, please contact the Office of Extramural Programs, 3rd Floor Brafferton, ext. 4354, and provide a letter detailing your background, career interests and reasons for interest in the program, along with a letter of recommendation from a faculty member or former employer, by October 28.

Wednesday Film

The Arts and Sciences Graduate Student Association will show the spy thriller "39 Steps," at 8 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 22 in Andrews Hall. There is no admission charge. Everyone is invited.

History Lecture

The department of history is sponsoring a public lecture by Michael Kammen, Newton C. Farr Professor of American History and Director of the Society for the Humanities at Cornell at 7:30 p.m., on Wednesday, October 15, in the Botetourt Theatre of Swem Library.

Dr. Kammen will take as the topic of his lecture "The Problem of Tradition in American Culture." He is author of several books and in 1973 won the Pulitzer Prize for History with his book "People of Paradox: An Inquiry Concerning the Origins of American Civilization." His most recent edited work is "The Past Before Us: Contemporary Historical Writing in the United States."

Later this year Dr. Kammen will leave for Paris where he will occupy the Chair of American Civilization on an appointment from the French government.

Spotswood Cook Wins

Kent Locklear won the "bake-off" with Fauquier Hall Saturday for the best dessert served at the after-game reception for parents. His entry was a cake.

Chris Durham and his ASP student, Hazel Johnson, take a tour of the Williamsburg Regional Library with Mrs. Robbie McGaughran, reference librarian.

ASP Helps Tutors, Students

One of the agencies served by the United Way Fund currently underway, is the Adult Skills Program which is located in the basement of Camm Hall in the Bryan Residence Hall complex.

The program helps citizens of the community who have not graduated from high school, the opportunity to improve their literacy skills and provide instruction to adults studying English as a second language.

There are approximately 100 students enrolled in the program for this semester. Experience has shown that this number will grow as the year progresses. Some 84 percent of the students in the program are employed, primarily in low level, low paying positions. The adult student population is 60 percent female, 40 percent male and ages range from 17 to 75. There are 28 employers represented.

Current staffing includes a full-time co-director, a part time administrative assistant, two one-quarter time teacher aides and 55 William and Mary students and community volunteers and tutors.

Chris Durham a business major from Prince George County is a tutor as part of a course in elementary reading taught by Donald R. Lashinger.

Teaching and tutoring has been a part of Durham's life for some time, a former AAU and high school swimmer he has taught swimming at day camps and he enjoys it. How is elementary reading going to help in his projected career in business? It's all part of learning to relate to people, explains Durham and that he feels is a valuable tool he can use in business. He is a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity, active in intramural sports. "She teaches me as much as I teach her," he says of his sessions with his pupil Hazel Johnson. She comes to tutoring sessions four days a week, hopes to pass the GED next year and would like to sell real estate.

Personnel Notice

"Women In Management I"

This is a reminder to all employees interested in the "Women In Management I" seminar to be conducted here on Oct. 30-31. All applications must be received in the Personnel Office no later than Friday, Oct. 17. Cancellations must also be received by that date, otherwise your department will be billed for registration. Substitutions may be made when prior notification is given.

"Women In Management I" is designed for women in or expected in the future to be in management positions. Areas to be covered include decision making, planning, organizing and leadership. There are no prerequisites for participating in this seminar.

If you have further questions or need an application, please contact Charla Cordle in the Personnel Office. The interest and participation exhibited for this program will determine future offerings of this nature.

The Ethics Of In Vitro Fertilization

Public Information Forum To Be Held Oct. 23

A public forum on the ethics of in vitro fertilization (IVF), funded by a grant from the Virginia Foundation for the Humanities and Public Policy, will be held at 2 p.m., Thursday, October 23 in Millington auditorium.

Speakers will be Dr. Jack M. Rary, director of the Medical Genetics Program, Eastern Virginia Medical School; Walter Wadlington of the University of Virginia School of Law; and Hans O. Tiefel, professor of religion. Alan E. Fuchs, professor of philosophy, will serve as moderator.

Human in vitro (literally: in glass) fertilization of a woman's egg in the laboratory and the subsequent reimplantation, are procedures which have aroused considerable public interest and controversy over "test tube babies," says Tiefel, who is planning the forum program. Tiefel teaches a course in medicine and ethics and is a regular participant in programs of the Bio-Ethics Medical Committee at Eastern Virginia Medical School where the clinical aspect of the IVF program is currently carried on.

The forum, says Tiefel, is an attempt to inform the public and respond to misconceptions about IVF, and discuss issues, but not to endorse or condemn. There will be printed informational material available at the forum.

The forum can be expected to discuss the role of the parents-to-be, the child-to-be, third parties such as surrogate parents and the medical community and the implications of the ethics involved with their participation in the IVF program.

One of the strongest arguments for IVF is the obligation to fulfill the desire of infertile couples for children of their own, explains Tiefel. Innovative medical technology now offers such couples -- or seems to offer them -- the freedom from physical incapacity. But we must also look at other issues involved he adds: Why is it so important to have offspring, to have children which are one's own biologically? Is there a moral obligation to have such children? To have children at all? Does being a woman or wife, a man or husband, call for fulfillment through children? Do these roles demand the bearing of children? And might reform or change in such roles as those envisioned in the liberation movement, bring less insistence on child-bearing for all couples, including those who are infertile?

Because of the experimental nature of the present program as a therapy for infertile couples, there must be honesty and full information supplied about the program, says Tiefel. He also points to the ethical tensions between the roles of the researcher and the physician as area for forum discussion. Researchers are obligated to inquiry, to science, he explains, while physicians are responsible primarily to actual patients.

IVF is a medical procedure which involves some risk to the woman who donates the egg, since the process involves general anesthesia and surgery. Moreover, this process may have to be repeated a number of times, since even in normal pregnancy a high percentage of ova fail to be fertilized, to implant, or to mature to term.

Possible risk to the child-to-be is even more important according to Tiefel. "For in effect, the unborn becomes an experimental subject. For even though babies conceived and born by this method seem so far to be normal, it is too early to tell if their development will be normal as well. And a great number of IVF children would be needed to know statistically whether this method is as safe to the child as normal fertilization. Thus we may be risking the health of a child in order to fulfill the wishes of couples to be parents."

"Our Society is now making decisions about the worth and legality of IVF research and clinical application," says Tiefel. "IVF is already certified by public health agencies and is a new competitor for federal funds. That puts this society into the awkward position of allowing and supporting the distribution of millions of children-to-be through abortion, and abortion is an unavoidable topic in the ethics of IVF, while at the same time, endorsing a costly program of creating children-to-be."

Newsmakers

Virgil McKenna, professor of psychology, presented a colloquium, "On Poetry and Psychology" to the faculty and graduate students of the department of psychology on Sept. 26.

He presented a colloquium to the faculty and students of the psychology department at Norfolk State University on the topic, "Modernity and the Family," on Oct. 2. He drew on work done in collaboration with Larry Ventis and Cynthia Null on the subject of family structure and modernity. He also referred to the work of his students: Nora Cassai '76, on modernity in college women; Alison Le Master '80, on modernity, style of loving, and familiar expectations; and Kay Phillips '70 (philosophy), M.A. '80 on loose coupling and parallel interactions in family systems.

Robert Bloom, associate professor of business administration, has finished co-editing (with Pieter T. Elgers) Accounting Theory and Policy: A Reader, to be published by Harcourt Brace Jovanovich. This text provides an up-to-date and comprehensive set of articles for advanced undergraduate and graduate accounting students, designed to acquaint them with the wealth of analytical research on accounting theory and policy that has appeared in prominent journals within recent years. The articles selected are conceptual and pragmatic in nature, many of which emphasize the interface between accounting and other disciplines such as economics and law.

Edgar Warren Williams, assistant professor in the department of music, was named one of the four winners of the international East West Artists Composition Award this week. His winning composition, along with the three other winning compositions, will be presented on a concert in Carnegie Recital Hall, New York City, on the 14th of December. The winning composition, Amoretti, for viola and piano, was premiered in August at the Composers Conference, Johnson, Vermont.

On Oct. 2-3 in St. Louis Lynn Z. Bloom, English department, presented a paper on "Place as Protagonist in the Western Writings of John Nichols" at the Western Literature Association Meeting.

She also delivered invited lectures at Webster College: "Autobiographers in Their Own Rite: Substante, Style and Structure in Men's and Women's Autobiographies" (Oct. 3) and St. Louis Community College, "Heritages: Mother-Daughter Relationships in Women's Autobiographies." (Oct. 2)

During the past year, Rolf G. Winter gave two lecture series on intermediate energy physics at the University of Zurich in Switzerland. The series dealt primarily with exotic atoms and with the properties of neutrinos.

R. T. Siegel attended the Alpine Medium Energy Workshop at Arolla, Switzerland on September 8-16, 1980 and gave a talk on "Radiative Muon Capture in Hydrogen and Helium-3."

Carl Roseberg, fine art department, was a co-judge with Barclay Sheaks, artist from Newport News, to jury the Hilltop North shopping center outdoor arts and crafts exhibition in Virginia Beach which was held on October 2. Over one hundred and fifty artists and craftsmen participated in the exhibition.

Ronald Rapoport, assistant professor of government, presented a paper on "Sex and the Survey Respondent: Toward a Substantive Interpretation of 'Don't Know' Responses" at the 1980 annual meeting of the American Political Science Association, which was held at the Washington Hilton in Washington, D. C., from August 28-31.
