President Graves presents a certificate to Mrs. Mary Wallace at the annual Adult Skills spring ceremony which was held this year in the Dodge Room of Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. It was standing room only for the presentation of attendance certificates, the audience composed of students, tutors, families and well-wishers. In the background Mrs. Rita Welsh and Don Lashinger, co-directors of the program help President Graves with the presentations.

Many Gain from Program

Once the formal part of the ceremony was over, it was time for tutors and students to talk over the year. Mrs. Wallace enjoys refreshments with her tutor, Pam Kopelove.

Tyler Hall Given Retirement

Old age and the high cost of renovation have caught up with Tyler Hall.

For the first time in the fall, Tyler will not be used for student housing.

John D. Morgan, associate dean of students for residence hall life, says that the basic structure of the building does not lend itself to renovation within the constraints of current budgets. Tyler Hall will be used for general storage initially and will probably be razed at some time in the future.

Residents of Tyler under the leadership of Cindy Derisio, area coordinator and Debbie Lowry and Denise Savino, RA's, gathered all alumni residents on campus together Saturday for a farewell party.

Tyler Hall opened in 1915 and was named for President John Tyler, alumnus and Lyon G. Tyler, President of the College. Construction began only after a long controversy between the student, the alumni and the building committee over the building site.

The building committee wanted Tyler located where it is today because it

Plans Set for Royal Visit

When His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales, accepts an Honorary Fellowship from the College on May 2, he will become the first member of the Royal Family to receive this honor from an American College.

An Honorary Fellowship is the highest honor that a College of Royal Charter can confer on persons of the greatest personal and familial distinction. The award makes the person so honored a member of the College for life.

"In conferring an Honorary Fellowship on the Prince of Wales, we are following the custom of the institutions in England that are comparable to the College of William and Mary--the ancient colleges of Royal foundation in Oxford and Cambridge," said Clifford Currie, William and Mary's Librarian and former Librarian of the Ashmolean Library at Oxford University.

"In language and in form of grant, William and Mary's charter is precisely the same as those of Oxford and Cambridge," said Currie.

Several colleges were established in Colonial America under Royal Charter, including Harvard, King's College in New York, and the College of William and Mary.

With the coming of the American Revolution, most of these institutions abandoned their British charters, including King's College, which changed its name to Columbia University. But the College of William and Mary retained its charter and its name, making it the only American institution of higher education that still possesses a Royal Charter from the English Crown and the only college in the United States that carries the name of members of the Royal Family.

In retaining its charter, the College of William and Mary has always had the authority to present an Honorary Fellowship, but the award on May 2 to the Prince of Wales will be the first such honor presented by the College in its 288-year old history. It will also be the first Fellowship ever conferred by an American college upon a member of the Royal Family.

"The British Embassy couldn't think of any precedent for it, and neither can I," said Currie.

Best Sites

The prediction is that some 30,000 people will be on hand to see Prince Charles when he visits the campus. The best location to catch a glimpse of the royal visitor will be at the helicopter landing at Barksdale Field at approximately 12:30 p.m., Saturday, May 2.

Prince Charles will be arriving at Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall for the convocation at approximately 1:30 p.m. and will be touring Williamsburg briefly at approximately 3 p.m.

Coif Selects Marshall-Wythe

The Marshall-Wythe School of Law has been approved for membership in the Order of the Coif, the law school equivalent of Phi Beta Kappa, to which only 56 other law schools belong.

Dean William B. Spong, Jr., learned Monday by telephone of the approval of the law school's application, filed nearly two and one-half years ago in December 1978.

Other Coif chapters concluded their favorable vote on the application last week. That followed a unanimous recommendation for approval by the Coif's executive board after an inspection team visited the Marshall-Wythe School of Law in October of 1980.

Students from this year's graduating class will be eligible for membership in the Order of the Coif and Dean Spong estimated that approximately 10 per cent will be chosen based on academic standing and other considerations.

In its report, the inspection team, comprised of Dean James Freedman of the University of Pennsylvania School of Law, Professor Mary Oiver of the University of North Carolina, and Duane Vieth, Esq., of the firm of Arnold and Porter, Washington, D.C., said:

"The inspection team found the law school to be worthy of its heritage as part of the second oldest institution of higher learning in America. The law school now has a momentum that has enlarged the vision of its students, enriched the quality of its intellectual life, and is bringing national recognition to many members of its faculty. The challenge that the law school faces in the years ahead is to maintain that momentum, but the present stature of the law school as a scholarly institution providing legal education of a high and exciting quality is not in doubt."

Dean Spong called the Coif membership "a significant achievement in which our students, faculty, and alumni may take pride." He added that the financial support of alumni to the

In 1947 he was selected by the New York basketball writers as Coach of the Year and among his many honors are membership on the United States Olympic Basketball Committee, serving as chairman for four years; trustee of the Basketball Hall of Fame; and election to the Helms Basketball Hall of Fame. Mr. Carnevale's professional competency is recognized by his peers and they have elected him to serve in several positions of executive leadership within the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Ben Carnevale is known across this nation as Mr. Basketball, but at William and Mary he is respected and will be remembered for developing a splendid athletic program which has been described recently as one of the best in the East. He has been dedicated to the College of William and Mary, to the College's high expectations for its students, and to the development of an athletic program which reflects the quality and bespeaks the pride we strive for in all undertakings.

NANCY GRIESENAUER
Earl Gregg Swem Library

Forty-four years ago, in February 1937, Nancy Griesenauer joined the staff of the College Library. Mrs. Griesenauer served her apprenticeship under the watchful eye of her mentor, the late Earl Gregg Swem.

Although she has aptly served in several departments of the library, she has spent most of her career as a cataloger. A self-taught expert on Virginia, Mrs. Griesenauer spent the last twelve years in the position of rare books cataloger, which has afforded her the rare opportunity of handling many of the College's most treasured books.

She is also the author of "A List of Master's Theses, 1920-1962," issued by the Library, which at the time of its appearance provided the only in-depth access to these important materials.

DONALD J. HERRMANN
School of Education

Dr. Donald J. Herrmann has been associated with the College of William and Mary since 1951. His extended term of service embraced several major fields of responsibility including classroom instruction, program development, institutional research, dean of continuing studies, coordinator of branch colleges, and director of graduate study in education. His service has reached beyond the immediate campus and college community and extended to local school districts, state agencies of education and professional organizations.

Dr. Herrmann's work has reflected his abiding respect for the College and his unwavering allegiance to the ideals, the mission and the heritage of this ancient university. In all areas his service has been performed in a thoroughly competent, dependable, and responsible manner; and has been characterized by his individual interest in the welfare of students, their personal and academic well-being as well as their career development. His leadership, his concern for others, his vision of the unique role of the college and his personal associations have influenced the lives of students and professional colleagues alike.

The Board of Visitors approved, with deep gratitude for his 30 years of devoted service to the University, a change in status for Dr. Herrmann from Professor Education to Professor of Education, Emeritus.

ELIZABETH S. REED
Department of Philosophy

Elizabeth S. Reed received her A.B. from Butler University, M.A. from Florida State University, and Ph.D. from Duke University. She taught at Butler and the University of Minnesota before joining our Department of Philosophy in 1955. She has taught continuously at the College since that time.

A specialist in the theory of knowledge, she has written on the problem of perception. She was promoted to the rank of Associate Professor in 1968 and Professor in 1979. In addition to teaching a wide variety of philosophy courses, she has been a member of several major faculty committees as well as a member of numerous regional and national professional organizations.

A person of unflinching good spirit in the face of adversity, she ends her teaching career prematurely with the good wishes of her students and colleagues.

The Board of Visitors acknowledged with deep regret the retirement of Elizabeth S. Reed and approved a change of her status from Professor of Philosophy to Professor of Philosophy, Emeritus.

ROBERT C. STEVICK
Earl Gregg Swem Library

Robert C. Stevick joined the staff of the Earl Gregg Swem Library in 1971 following many years in various executive positions in the steel industry. His undergraduate degree is from Washington and Jefferson College and he earned his master's degree in library science from the University of Pittsburgh.

For the past decade, as a member of the library's Reference Department, he has assisted countless number of students and faculty in the course of their studies and research. Scholars have acknowledged his help in the prefaces to their books. College faculty members have thanked him for introducing their students to the intricacies of a large academic library, and local citizens have praised him in the press.

Upon recommendation of the President, the Board of Visitors approved the appointment of the following individuals to fill the existing vacancies. Unless otherwise indicated, appointments for 1981-82 are effective August 16.

Budget Picture Gets Gloomier

George R. Healy, vice president for academic affairs, reported more belt tightening to come in a report of budget projects for the 1982-84 biennium to the Board of Visitors on Friday.

He told the Visitors he did not foresee any retrenchments of the traumatic magnitude that some institutions of higher education in the country had experienced recently but he did emphasize that there are tough decisions to be made and he did not rule out the elimination of some faculty positions.

Dr. Healy said he felt the coming budget targets from the State Office of Planning and Budget, "will be rather severely lowered," and that "we will have a much more severe budget problem."

William and Mary is in a position of slow or no growth at a time when financial resources are dwindling, Healy told the Board.

Healy earlier in the week had told faculty that the anticipated salary increases of 9 percent for 1981-82, had been trimmed to 8 percent. Staff and faculty salary is the only really significant area where major budget savings can be made, said Healy. He added that the college is currently carrying some heavier personnel costs that strains state funding but, he said "we are well within the staffing guidelines authorized by the State Council of Higher Education."

"We will hope for and continue to plan for, a 'best case' resolution of our problem," said Healy "but we must plan for enough flexibility to implement on reasonably short notice, a 'worst-case possibility . . ."

Gift of Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation

Floristic Study by Alumnus Gains Collection

The College's herbarium has received from the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation in Charlottesville one of two sets of 700 voucher specimens of vascular plants collected on the tract of land surrounding Monticello.

A duplicate set of collections will go to the herbarium at the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences in Philadelphia.

The floristic study which resulted in this collection was carried out by Thomas F. Wieboldt, a 1970 graduate of the College and among the most active field botanists in Virginia. He is currently a staff botanist with the Virginia Nature Conservancy.

Wieboldt's study at Monticello involved a thorough inventory of all native, naturalized, and cultivated plants occurring on this 651 acre tract of land in the central Piedmont of Albemarle Co. The collections include specimens of species that Jefferson himself probably introduced into the flora at Monticello, such as Scotch broom, sugar maple, and Seneca snakeroot. The report resulting from the study lists over 650 species.

Through gifts such as the Monticello collection, plus an exchange program with other herbaria and the deposit of voucher collections from studies carried out by honors students, graduate students, and the staff, the College herbarium now houses a significant collection of Virginian plants.

The herbarium was founded in 1969 and is registered in Index Herbariorum, an international guide to the location and contents of the world's public herbaria. The holdings of the facility now total approximately 36,000 specimens, the third largest collection in the state. In addition to the museum function of documenting the flora, the specimens serve as a reference source to aid in the identification of unknown plants, and as a source of raw data on the physical characteristics, geographic distribution, and habitat preferences of individual species for use in studies carried out both by botanists at William and Mary and by botanists at other institutions who consult our material.

ADMISSIONS OFFICE ROADRUNNER

Undergraduate Application Undergoes a Facelift

The undergraduate application is about to take on a new look. The present form, which has served both the Admissions staff and the college community for the past sixteen years, will complete its thorough re-evaluation by mid-summer. Dean Gary Ripple, working with Associate Dean Rex Tillotson, has organized a committee to undertake the task. They are Peter Atwater '83, Betsy Frick '81, Matt Hogendobler '82, Martin Lopez '81, and Laurie McAvoy '82. The group has sought input from students, faculty, campus departments, administrators and various high school guidance departments across the State. In addition, upon request, more than 40 colleges and universities have submitted application materials from their institutions to aid the committee in the revision process.

The response has been both helpful and supportive. All recommendations and suggestions received by the committee were considered in light of its overall objective: to create an application which would reflect the admissions staff's concern for a more thorough evaluation of the individual applicant. A number of concerns prevailed throughout the revision process. Noteworthy among them was the interest in preserving the application's unique aesthetic appeal, while restructuring it to provide a more efficient and less repetitive method of collecting information.

The student committee worked around class schedules and activities in order to compile all recommendations received and to incorporate them into some final form. A number of significant changes are reflected in the proposed form: it will be six pages in length, due in part to the addition of two essay questions; it will contain a Secondary School Report Form to be completed by the high school guidance counselor and attached to the applicant's transcript. In lieu of the traditional recommendation form which was completed by anyone within the school, the guidance counselor will be invited to submit a letter describing the applicant.

The new application will be presented quite differently, combining all Admissions material as application form, instructions, Secondary School Report Form, response cards, and stamped return envelope in one viewbooklet. Ultimate approval for such a revision depends upon the availability of funds; however, the proposed idea remains mechanically efficient and economically feasible.

A Student's View on Recruiting by SA President

Ed. note: The President's Aides were invited to visit their former high schools at the end of the first semester (1980-81) for the expressed purpose of talking with students on the advantages of pursuing higher education at William and Mary. A personal account of one of those experiences follows:

During Christmas I had the privilege of representing the Office of Admissions as one of its new student recruiters. I was involved in a new program set up by the Admissions Office for students to go back to their old high schools and talk about William and Mary.

Having received some good pointers from Dean Gary Ripple, I struck out with enthusiasm and a little anxiety--this was my first trip of this sort to attempt to convert all the top students at Bluestone High School in Mecklenburg County, Virginia into true Indians. My old friend, Mrs. Alice Sutton, the head guidance counselor at Bluestone, and I talked about the best day for me to come. Having agreed on the date, I arrived to find that not only would I get to talk with all the honor students, but also my senior English teacher had agreed to give up her class period for me to speak to her honors English class. In the talk I had with them, I gave a general overview of the College--academically, socially, environmentally and historically--and then proceeded to tell about some of the various funny tales that have happened to me since I have been a student here. There was a great deal of give-and-take here--especially about the girl who ran by my tour group in a skimpy wet towel when I, as a prospective freshman, took my first tour of a freshman dorm. The general consensus was that it was probably staged by the Admissions Office. (Funny that all of the guys in my tour group did end up here!)

On a more serious note, I emphasized the incredible number of opportunities William and Mary offers in

The Admissions staff has deliberated with the committee on the final structure of the application. Pending the approval of the Admissions Policy Committee, the new application for admission should be ready for printing at an early date. If all goes as planned, the Office of Admissions will have it ready for mailing by mid-summer, thus concluding a three-month process of revision - a new generation of applications beginning.

academics, in athletics, in the special environment of Colonial Williamsburg and the nation's second oldest college and oldest university; and just in the incredible number of close friendships they will make with all the congenial people here. My talk, the "give-and-take" session, and the subsequent question-and-answer time went very well. I had several more requests for applications at the end, and a number of students asked to meet with me in a small group on a more private basis during the next class period to ask more questions about William and Mary. This worked out well as my old

Counselors Set Meeting May 3-5

The Potomac and Chesapeake Chapter of the Association of College Admissions Counselors plans to enjoy springtime in Williamsburg as it kicks off its annual meeting on professional development, May 3-5. The conference committee has a full package of events, beginning with sports competition followed by a reception on the lawn of the Alumni House on Sunday afternoon.

The financial scene, exploitation of the gifted, the college preparatory curriculum are among the many concerns to be explored by high school counselors and college admissions officers from Delaware, Maryland, D.C., Virginia and West Virginia. Father Regis Duffey, a nationally known speaker, will address the assembly of nearly 200 on "Cycles of Life." Father Duffey holds seven academic degrees among which is a terminal degree from the Institut de Liturgie, Paris. He is an Associate Professor at Washington Theological Union; he has been a visiting professor at Princeton Theological Seminary; he is involved in re-education and pastoral workshops here and abroad. Father Duffey is nationally known in the geometry teacher let them out of his class when he found out it was "long, lost" Randolph they wanted to talk with about William and Mary.

The reception that I-and William and Mary-got at this high school, which sends few students here (about one per year with last year's three being an almost extraordinary exception) makes me believe that this new program of using present William and Mary students to go back to their old schools and plug for their new one is a great idea. Not only do the students know who you are and, therefore, listen more closely to you, the teachers and administration are much more willing to accommodate you and make it easy for you to recruit their best students. In addition, it gets present William and Mary students involved in helping the College (to which we owe so much) a relationship they are more likely, therefore, to continue in their many coming years as alumni.

Faculty Members Get Involved

A new program in the Admissions Office has proved to be tremendously popular with prospective students and their parents. Since February, a group of faculty members has been interviewing students who have applied to and are interested in William and Mary. This feature has provided many advantages: the students are pleased to have an opportunity to present themselves in a personal way and to learn more about William and Mary, and the Admissions staff has found that additional input from our interviewers has enabled them to make more informed decisions in the selection process.

Those members of the faculty who have served as a part of the interviewing team this semester are: Fred Adair, Education; David Aday, Sociology; Charles Davidson, English; Fred Harris, Economics; Martin Mathes, Biology; Carl Vermuelen, Biology; Cam Walker, History; Amy Worthington, Student Development; Jean Wyer, Business Administration; Brad Coursen, Biology; Alex Kallos, Modern Languages and Literature (Emeritus); and Fraser Neiman, English (Emeritus).

The success of the program has led the Admissions staff to build into the appointment book a fall semester interviewing schedule for any faculty members who are interested in assisting in this effort. Anyone having questions about the program is encouraged to contact Dean Gary Ripple for more information.

Society of the Alumni Helps with Network

In an effort to provide more personal services to students interested in William and Mary, the Admissions Office is teaming with the Society of the Alumni to develop a network of alumni committees throughout the State and nation. The purposes of the committees will be to provide the applicant an opportunity for an individual interview and, through the interview, aid the Admissions officers in the difficult process of evaluation of personal qualities. In addition, the committee members will be available as a source of information and support to the student during the application process.

Four committees will be operating during the 81-82 school year: Roanoke, Virginia Beach, Westchester County, New York, and Baltimore, Maryland. (More than 400 applications were received from these areas this year.) Many more areas will be included in coming years, with a likelihood of some personal contact provided to the majority of applicants.

Members of the committees were selected following extensive meetings with alumni, faculty, and staff. To insure that Network members are "up-to-date" on William and Mary and its programs, a two-day training workshop will be conducted in September.

This program promises many exciting new possibilities. The Office of Admissions is especially fortunate to have the help and support of the talented and energetic William and Mary alumni.

The dedication of the William G. Guy lecture hall at Rogers Hall Friday afternoon was a happy occasion. Mrs. Gladys Guy enjoys a light moment with Alfred R. Armstrong, professor of chemistry emeritus, Dr. George Sands and President Graves.

New Lecture Hall at Rogers Honors Dr. Guy

Every student deserves at least one Mr. Chips. Dr. George Sands told the audience that had come to participate in the dedication of the William G. Guy lecture hall at the William Barton Rogers chemistry hall Friday afternoon.

For Sands, Dr. William G. Guy was his Mr. Chips.

A student and later a member of the chemistry faculty, Sands, a former scientist with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, recalled the career of Dr. Guy whom he described a fair but uncompromising teacher who always found time to discuss both chemical and personal problems with his students.

"He had a genuine concern for each student," said Sands. "He would agonize before turning in a failing grade - always seeking the extenuating circumstance to pass a student, but no one ever accused him of being an easy grader.

Dr. Guy taught elementary chemistry and felt it was important that students understand the important contributions of chemistry to society. He was always well prepared for his classes, said Sands. "And he believed in the importance of what he was teaching."

One alumnus wrote from Texas. "He tweaked my interest and encouraged me constantly."

During the round of congratulations and handshaking after the formal program, Mrs. Guy was asked if she didn't think that the entire chemistry building should have been named for her husband. Her reaction was immediate. There was no hesitation in her response. "Oh no," she said. "William Barton Rogers was his hero. I think he would be very happy to know

Swim Through Exams

Those who find comfort and relief from tension in a good swim can enjoy one at Adair, Mary 4, through May 8 from 3:30-4:45 p.m. Swimmers must be out of the building by 5 p.m.

Adair will be closed May 9 and will reopen May 21 under a summer schedule which will be posted.

that his name was side by side with Rogers' in this building."

Unveiled at the ceremonies were two plaques which will be placed in the new lecture hall. One, a bronze plaque with a likeness of Guy, was moved from another part of the building. It was suggested that the shiny nose on the plaque was the result of students rubbing the plaque for good luck on the way to exams.

The Botetourt Singers of the choir, under the direction of Rank T. Lendrim, presented a musical number

Dr. Guy came to William and Mary as an assistant professor of chemistry in 1925 and was promoted to the rank of professor within five years. He was appointed one of the original Chancellor Professors of the College in 1945. He was head of the chemistry department from 1946 until his retirement in 1968. He died in Jacksonville Beach, Fla., June 14, 1969. In 1920 he was a Rhodes Scholar from Newfoundland.

Board Approves Budgets

The Board approved a 1981-82 educational and general maintenance and operating budget of $27,014,690.

Other 1981-82 budgets approved include the following: men's athletic association, $1,831,298; Women's Athletic Association, $625,000; VIMS, current fund operating budget for higher education instruction, marine life management and administrative and support services, $10,280,290; VARC, educational and general maintenance and operating budget, $876,220; Richard Bland maintenance and operating budget, $2,227,498.

The Board received a six-year review of operations at Ash Lawn, home of President James Monroe near Charlottesville which was given to the College in a bequest from Jay W. Johns of Charlottesville and reopened to the public under College auspices on April 1, 1976.

Overall the report showed, Ash Lawn continues to prove itself a financially viable entity. Consistently profitable - $10,571 in 1978-79; $27,526 in 1979-80; and $27,500 projected for 1980-81.

Ash Lawn recently received a grant of $2m781 from the Virginia Foundation for the Humanities and Public Policy for a current lecture series on "James Monroe and the Emerging American Culture." Carolyn C. Holmes is resident manager at Ash Lawn.

would be closer to the center of the campus and the dining hall so students "could avoid the muddy road." Students and alumni wanted Tyler built near the academic buildings.

The hall was originally units A and B. It had 28 rooms, some of these had separate study and sleeping apartments and hall baths. Hall baths were preferred because they provided more space for actual rooms.

The first year that Tyler was open there was a problem with plumbing and most of the year residents had to go to another residence hall or the gymnasium in order to take a shower.

Tyler Annex was added around 1920-21. It was a temporary dormitory for women and was moved from Penniman Road which at that time was an Army Camp.

Tyler Conservatory is actually named the Mariam Robinson Memorial Conservatory. It was added in 1926.

Debaters Win Fordham Prize

(The following information was excerpted from an article in the Marshall-Wythe School of Law "Advocate" written by Peter Stephens, Ed.)

For the second year in a row, a team of debaters from the Marshall-Wythe School of Law have won the prestigious Fordham moot court tournament.

The team of Scott Caulkins, Robbie Colton and Jack Sharpe won the tournament and team's "swing member, Robbie Colton, won the best speaker award and tied for the competition's best brief.

The team of John Nevin, Kevin O'Mahoney and Karen Russel turned in the tournament's fourth best brief but was eliminated after one win and one loss in the two-day event.

Caulkins, Colton and Sharpe defeated Indiana in the finals before a panel of six federal judges, including Second Circuit Judge Thomas J. Meskill. The team also defeated Loyola-Chicago, St. John's Fordham and Benjamin Cardozo.

A crowd of happy supporters met the teams at the Williamsburg train station on the night of the victory. Colton recalled. "It was a big reception. There was a tuba, and a clarinet . . . Dean Spong was there with a sign . . . and Mrs. Forbes was there. It was a surprise; it was really nice."

Eleanor Bradley, Mary Jane Morrison and Cheryl Short won the tenth annual Marshall-Wythe tournament this year, defeating the University of Richmond in the finals. The team won the award for the best brief and Morrison was awarded best speaker award.

Moot Court Board members Rick Mann and Elva Mapp were largely responsible for putting the tournament together.

The Moot Court Board recently chose its successors for the coming year. They are: Larry Case, chief justice; Allen Grossman, tournament justice; Ray King, research justice; Jeff Nelson, administrative justice, and Kathy Derr, business justice.

Next year's Board will decide which invitational tournaments Marshall-Wythe will enter. Already the Board has selected 12 second-year students to compete in next year's invitational tournaments and the students will decide among themselves the makeup of each competing team.

The Board's invitational selection will depend on how much money we have," Estes said. The Board of Visitors approved an increase in the Moot Court's allocation from $1,100 this year to $3,195 for next year, along with another $1,000 if a team goes to the National Competition.

library, for faculty research, to the placement office and for scholarship aid "has enabled William and Mary to become competitive with the better law schools and merited favorable consideration by Coif."

Spong also noted that the faculty contributed to the successful application through their significant increase in publications. He also credited the accomplishments of the William and Mary Law Review staff and the Moot Court teams.

William and Mary had been turned down for membership in the Order of the Coif in 1972. The successful application this time, said Spong, is "a fine way to end our first academic year in the new (law school) building."

Change in Health Care Coverage for Employees

First-Day Coverage

Effective July 1, 1981 employees who begin work on the first day of the month will have health care coverage effective on the first of the month. If the first falls on a Saturday, Sunday, or a holiday and the employee begins work the next work day, coverage will be effective the first of the month.

Employees who transfer between state agencies on the first of the month will be handled in the same way as new employees.

Employees who begin work later in the month will have coverage effective the first day of the month following employment.

Health Coverage for Certain Faculty Members

Effective immediately all faculty members who work under a 9, 10, or 11 month teaching contract and who are eligible for the state health care program during the school year are eligible for twelve months of coverage, regardless of the actual dates the school year commences or ends.

The following guidelines must be followed to administer this new policy:

1. All faculty members who are eligible for the group health care plan during the school year are eligible for twelve months of coverage -- beginning September 1 and ending August 31 -- unless coverage is waived.
2. If a faculty member terminates employment before completing the school year, coverage ceases at the end of the month that employment terminates.

3. Coverage during the summer months is based on whether the person was a permanent, full-time, salaried faculty member during the preceding school year -- It is not contingent upon signing a contract for the following academic year. Summer school teaching will not be a basis for eligibility for health care coverage.

4. If a faculty member is on a leave without pay, coverage may continue through the summer months and the State's contribution will be in effect during the summer months if the faculty member had maintained health care coverage in the college's group in the last month of the academic year. If coverage in the college's group was not in effect in the last month of the academic year, the faculty member is treated as a new hire, with coverage effective September 1. Coverage elected through the three-month extension (offered to people who are no longer eligible for the group) is not considered as coverage in the college's group.

STATEMENT ON FACULTY TENURE AND LEAVE

The College of William and Mary is a State institution and under the law of the Commonwealth is not permitted to grant a contract of unlimited duration. The College, however, accepts the principle of tenure and adheres to it as a moral and professional obligation. An appointment with tenure is defined as an appointment which may be terminated by the College only for adequate cause, or by retirement.

Permanent tenure will be granted to a full-time faculty member who has attained the rank of assistant professor or higher, upon the member's continuation beyond seven years (including authorized leaves of absence) as a full-time faculty member of any accredited institution of higher learning or in a professional position relevant to his academic appointment at the College; provided that if part of the seven years is represented by service other than at the College, he may be required to serve a probationary period of as much as four years at the College immediately before tenure is granted, even if the total full-time service thereby exceeds seven years. The terms of such a probationary period will be stated at the time of initial appointment both in the letter of intent and the final written contract.

The seven-year term specified above represents the normal tenure standard of the College. In special circumstances, a reduction in time may be made with the concurrence of the Vice President for Academic Affairs.

All teaching and research faculty members whose service and rank at the College of William and Mary do not entitle them to the status of permanent tenure, as defined above, are considered to be on probationary appointments which may be terminated by the College at the end of the stated contract period, without required ascription of cause but with written due notice of termination as defined in the Handbook section on "Contracts and Notice," and according to procedures described in the section, "Termination and Dismissal Procedures."

Deans, department chairmen, directors, and other persons holding teaching or research faculty appointments who are assigned to administrative offices or duties shall not acquire tenure as administrative officers; nor shall relief from such offices or duties, per se, affect the teaching status and tenure of these persons.

Plan for Faculty on 12-Month Appointments

In the case of faculty members under twelve-month contracts, annual leave is extended at a rate of 1.67 days per month and up to ten days of such leave, is not exhausted at the end of the year, may be accumulated and carried forward; the total aggregate leave so accumulated not exceeding ten days. Such faculty members are expected to be available for duty during academic holiday periods and no leave is assured during such times. Sick leave for faculty members under twelve-month contracts is extended on essentially the same basis as applies to ten-month positions; it may not exceed a semester's equivalent, and it does not accumulate.
