College Honors Excellence at '81 Commencement

Commencement weekend is for the most part a familiar pattern, but each year the participants put their own particular stamp on it and it becomes a special time. Commencement '81 was no exception.

At a black-tie dinner Saturday evening at the Williamsburg Lodge, honoring the honorary degree recipients, a portrait of J. Wilfred Lambert by David Silvette was unveiled by his son and daughter, Charles F. Lambert and Mrs. Wilford Kale. Thus began a unique tribute to an educator and administrator who has been a vital part of the life of the College since he joined the faculty as an instructor psychology in 1931. Dean Lambert officially retired in 1973 as Vice President for Student Affairs, but he continued to serve as a consultant and was instrumental in the successful completion of the Campaign for the College, a three-year drive which raised $19 million in private support for the College.

The introduction to the unveiling was presented by General Arthur B. Hanson '39, who headed the volunteer committee which raised funds for the portrait. The committee is also seeking to establish an endowment to support Lambert Scholars, professors at the College who demonstrate the same high degree of dedication and caring for their profession and the College that Lambert did during his career here.

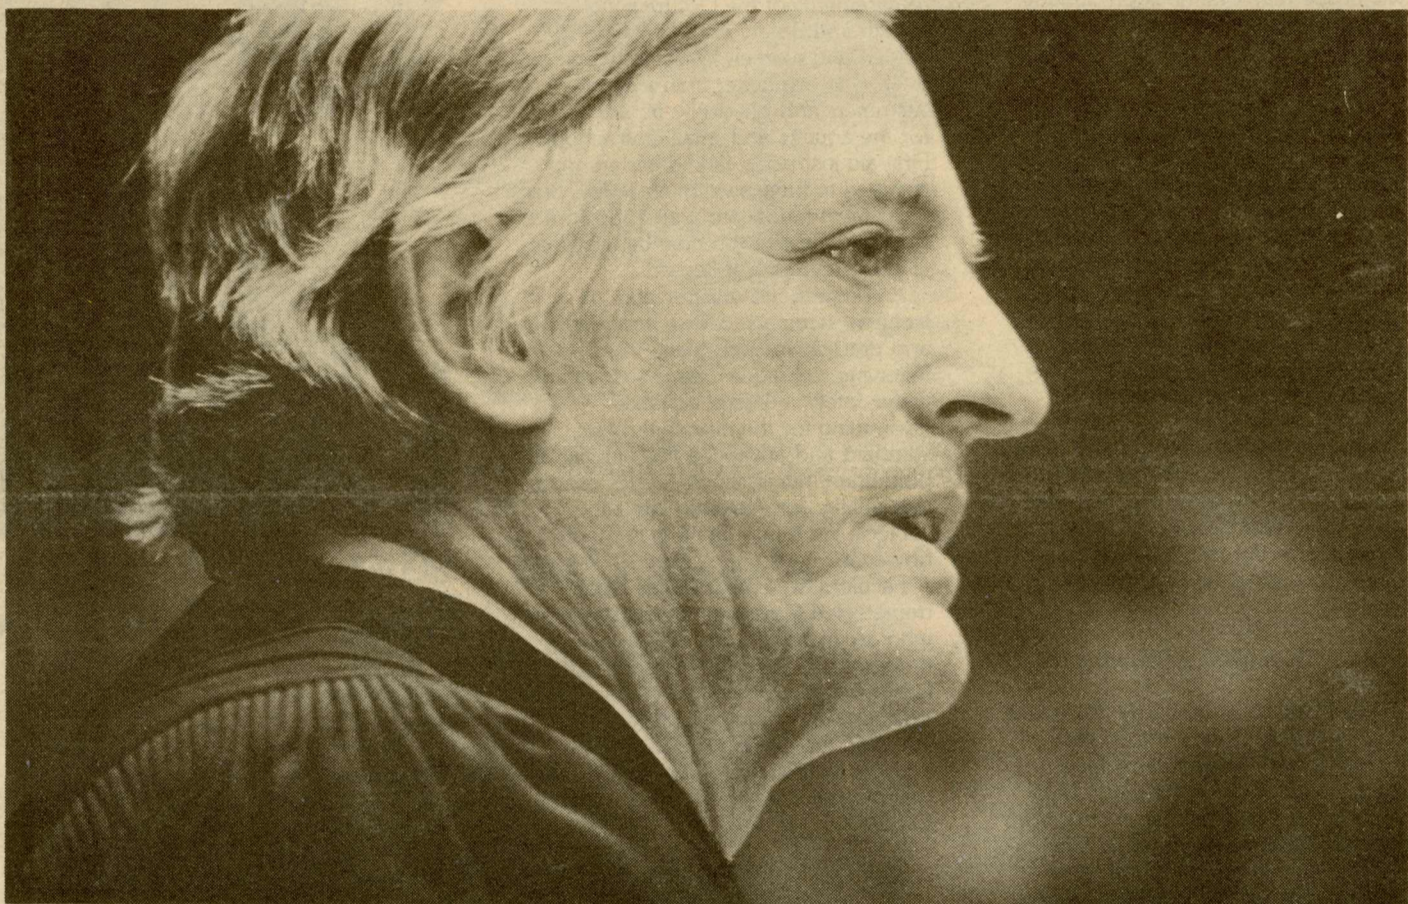

The first Lady of the American Theater, Miss Helen Hayes, brought her own special kind of magic to commencement weekend. She charmed everyone with her graciousness and her apparent joy at being here.

She said that while the College was making the presentation of an honorary degree to her, she had loved the College for a long time and felt that it was perhaps the power of her wishing that had brought about the occasion.

At a reception in her honor Sunday morning in the Great Hall of the Wren Building, she became honorary chairman of the Lord Chamberlain Society of the Virginia Shakespeare Festival. She received a pendant from Robert Hornsby, a member of the Board of Visitors who with his wife Lois is co-chairman of the Society.

From Howard Scammon '34, professor of theatre and speech emeritus and a former department chairman, she received two books on the history of the William and Mary Theatre. One book was edited by Althea Hunt, who established the theatre in 1926, and the other by Scammon.

"This is such a lovely occasion," beamed Miss Hayes. Later that day the 11,000 plus audience in William and Mary Hall rose to give her a standing ovation as she received her honorary degree.

The commencement audience also gave a warm reception to commencement speaker William F. Buckley, Jr. He was invited by members of the senior class to join their Candlelight ceremony Saturday evening. He and Mrs. Buckley interrupted their dinner to participate. Buckley said he was touched that the students had invited him to participate in a part of the commencement proceedings reserved particularly for seniors.

Other speakers that evening were Robert Wagner, president of the senior class; Ellen T. King '31, chairman of the 50th reunion class celebration; Molly F. Ashby, a member of the graduating class; Elizabeth B. Wright, vice president of the class of '81; Terry L. Meyers, associate professor of English; and Dean Sam Sadler.

At commencement, Buckley gave his audience a generous portion of his wit, which they obviously enjoyed, but he had a serious message too. He contrasted the restrictions on personages in a democratic and a totalitarian state to convey his message that the freedom of choice which the students enjoyed in coming to William and Mary was perhaps more precious than they realized.

"These simple freedoms—to come and go at will, to read what we wish, to enter and depart our homes or dormitories freely—are not shared by a majority of the world's people," he said.

"I do believe that you owe America something, that what you owe is to mediate on your blessings—or our blessings."

For Edmund S. Morgan, Sterling Professor of History at Yale University and a Research Fellow at the Huntington Library, and recipient of the Doctor of Literature degree from the College, it was an opportunity to renew old ties. He was one of the principal speakers at the 1971 conference on the American Revolution sponsored by the Institute of Early American History and Culture at the College and recipient of the first Douglass Adair Memorial Award given by the Institute for an outstanding article published in the William and Mary Quarterly. Morgan is a leading Early American scholar whose subjects have spanned puritanism in New England to plantation life.

Commencement '81 was a special one for Leonard G. Schiffrin, professor of economics; it was the first he has attended. Selected as one of the honorary marshals by the class of 1981 to lead the seniors across campus to the ceremonies in William and Mary Hall, Schiffrin broke a long-standing tradition to receive this honor. The class also selected James C. Livingston, professor of religion, and Cam Walker, associate professor of history as honorary marshals.

The Hon. Lawrence W. T'Anson '28, retired Chief Justice of the Virginia Supreme Court, was speaker for the Marshall-Wythe School of Law's diploma presentation ceremony following commencement.

Among the prizes awarded on that occasion were the first memberships in the Order of the Coif, since the school was approved for membership earlier this spring. New members are Albert P. Barker, Brownley L. Curtis, William L. Carey, James S. Crockett, Robert B. Delano, Jr., Pamela Gersh, Stephen M. Griffith, Jr., Michael W. Hassell, James G. Humphries, John A. Libby, Carolyn G. Mann, John M. Martin, III, Edith D. Newsom, Jane F. Vehko and Kevin R. Vienna.

The Rev. John G.B. Andrew, rector of St. Thomas Church, New York City,

The Red Cross schools nearest to Williamsburg are Florence, S.C., St. Mary's City, MD, and Rising Sun, MD.

These schools are scheduled in June to allow aquatic and boating instructor candidates to take training before starting summer activities. These Red Cross schools also offer a unique opportunity to train first aid instructors to conduct in-plant courses for their employers to help businesses comply with the requirements of the Occupational Health and Safety Act of 1970.

Men and women 17 years of age or over, who are better than average swimmers and physically fit, are eligible for the aquatic and small craft schools. First aid instructor candidates are not required to have swimming ability, but must meet fitness requirements. Some swimming instruction may be available to these students, if desired.

Ruth Ashby Wins Housekeeping Award

Ruth L. Ashby has a working day that starts at 5 a.m. and isn't over until after 10 p.m. - but she likes it that way.

Winner of the Outstanding Housekeeping Employee of the Month award for April, Mrs. Ashby manages two jobs each day, by choice.

From 5 a.m. until 1 p.m. she works at the College and in the evening she works as a food services supervisor at the Williamsburg Lodge.

"Although she has two jobs, she doesn't let one interfere with the other," said her College supervisor, Raymond Wallace, who was with Mrs. Ashby at the presentation ceremony in the office of William J. Carter, vice president for business affairs, Friday morning. Mrs. Ashby received a framed certificate. Carter said he hoped she would be back again and would be a candidate for the Employee of the Year award which in addition to a certificate, includes a Savings Bond.

Carter also congratulated Mrs. Ashby for her fine attendance record of 99 percent which is one of the best among college employees.

"She's worth it all right," said Wallace following the ceremony. "She gets along well with people and she gets the job done, you can always count on her."

Born in Bird's Nest, a small town on the Eastern Shore of Virginia, Mrs. Ashby graduated from Northampton High School and moved to Williamsburg in 1966 after her graduation.

She is married to Robert Ashby, a waiter at the Cascades. They have three children, Troy, Marcelle and Terry, all at home.

Her work at Colonial Williamsburg includes supervision of salad and canape preparation and the special dressings used in the dining room.

Mrs. Ruth Ashby and her supervisor Raymond Wallace are pictured with Vice President for Business Affairs, William J. Carter. Presentation ceremonies were held in Carter's office Friday morning.

Governor, Legislators Tour College/VIMS Facilities

Gov. John Dalton, members of the state's Senate Finance Committee, the House Appropriations Committee and other state officials stopped at the Virginia Institute of Marine Science and William and Mary's Williamsburg campus Thursday, May 14 to review the College's capital outlay requests for the 1982-84 biennium.

President Graves and other College officials guided the Governor and his group through several top priority buildings at both locations which have been assigned top priorities by the College in the 1982-84 capital outlay budget requests.

The VIMS tour began with an after lunch walkthrough of the overcrowded buildings and facilities including the cramped library and the salt water demonstration laboratory. The College is requesting $2.2 million for a new Marine Science Service Center and another $314,000 for two flow-through salt water pumping systems to culture oysters and other shellfish.

Later that afternoon, the group took a 40-minute tour of the Williamsburg campus, stopping at Ewell and Washington Halls, respectively the number-one and number-two priority sites for renovation.

President Graves spoke briefly to the group at Ewell, explaining that except for repairs when the building was damaged by fire in 1953, Ewell has not had extensive renovation since its construction in 1926. The College is requesting slightly over $1 million to complete the project.

"This is the most crowded instructional facility at William and Mary," said President Graves to the group. "The department has 28 full-time and part-time faculty members and only 16 offices, many of which are totally inadequate." He called the group's attention to the tiny faculty office at the top of the stairs--in reality a converted closet.

The President also called attention to the building's lack of soundproofing, making it hard for faculty and students to practice concentrate, and the lack of humidity controls which causes harm to some musical instruments.

After a brief tour of Ewell, the President led the Governor and officials outside the building to show the site of the proposed expansion.

Officials next visited Washington Hall, the number-two priority for renovation on campus. The $700,000 requested to renovate the hall would represent the first major expenditure on the building since its construction in 1928, said Graves.

Although the structure of the building is sound, said Graves, much work is needed to correct exposed wiring in classrooms and hallways, fix antiquated plumbing and install a heating system that is energy efficient. With renovation, said the President, "we would be in the position to keep the building for another 40 years."

Ash Lawn Celebrates July 4th

Admission to the day's activities is $3 for adults, $1.50 for students (through high school), and $1 for children (6-11). Senior citizens admitted free.

The Summer Festival will continue through August 16 with theatrical presentations such as Gay and Pepusch's THE BEGGAR OPERA and AN EVENING OF CHAMBER MUSIC to name a few. Puppet shows and mime performances will also be presented on Saturday afternoons during the Festival, and all are advised to call Ash Lawn for more information. The performances will be held out of doors at Ash Lawn and in case of rain, an indoor location will be available.

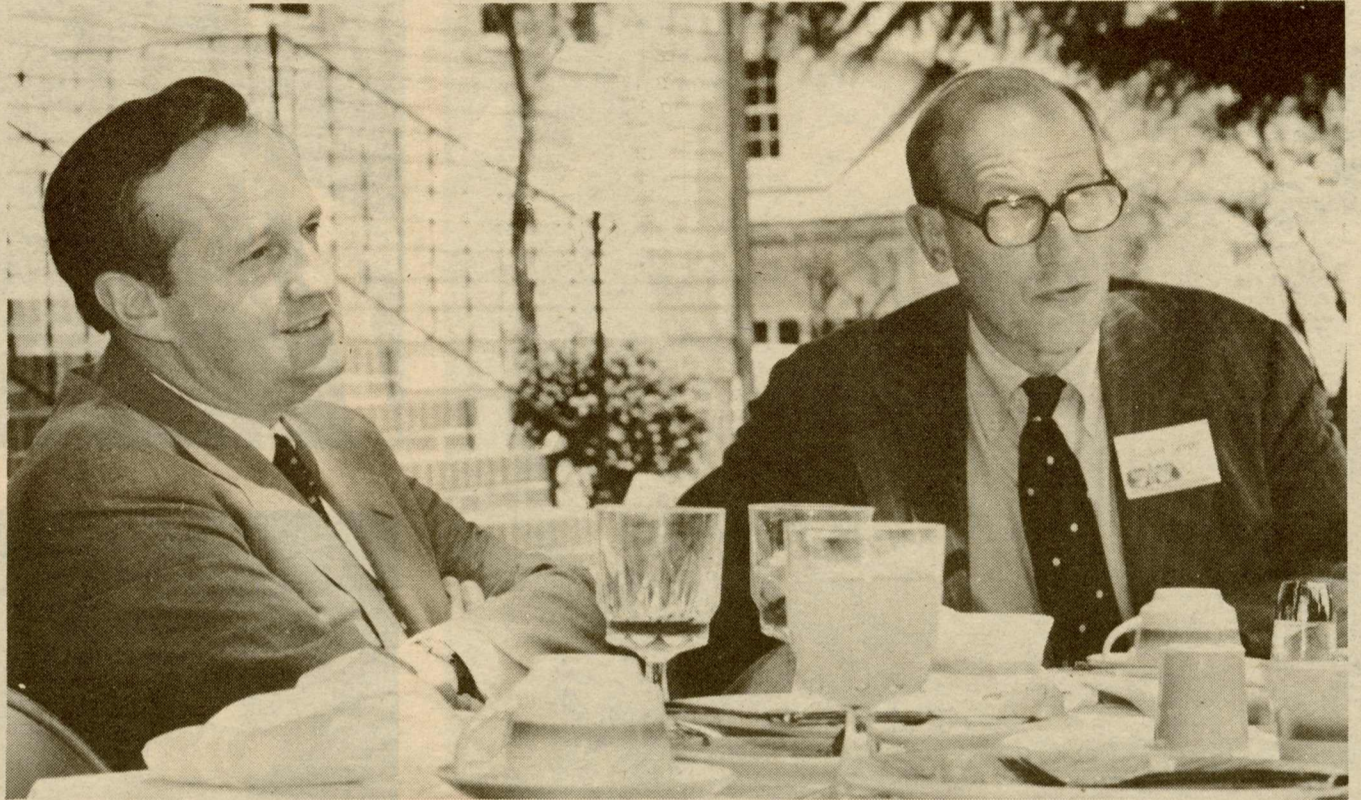

The third stop on the tour, Trinkle Hall, was shortened to a few minutes of explanations outside the building, because the Governor requested the group to take a quick look at the asbestos problem in classroom buildings on the new campus.

The group made its final stop at Morton Hall, where ceiling tiles were removed to reveal asbestos fibers sifting down from beams overhead. James Connolly, director of facilities, planning and construction, explained that much of the asbestos sprayed on the framework of the building for fireproofing is beginning to flake off and fall on dropped ceiling tiles below the framework.

Some asbestos, he said, is inadvertently sucked into the buildings' air circulation systems and blown out heating and cooling ducts throughout classrooms and hallways.

Dalton said the state would do what it could to rectify the problem, "but there is now way we can take care of everything at one time." The state has made available about $1 million for asbestos removal at several state institutions this year. The inspection by Dalton and the budget group Thursday will help officials allocate money available for asbestos removal.

President Graves enjoys lunch with Governor John Dalton during the recent visit of the Senate Finance Committee and the House Appropriations Committee and other state officials to William and Mary facilities both here and at VIMS.

Graduate Finds Roots at College

Rebecca Blair Young

When Rebecca Blair Young came to the College four years ago as a freshman, she knew she was returning to her roots. What she didn't know was that one of her ancestors, the Rev. James Blair, was the founder and first president of the College.

"James Blair is actually my great, great--I forgot how many--great uncle," said the senior from Burnsville, Minn., a suburb of Minneapolis. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip H. Young, Miss Young said her grandmother, Mrs. William P. Gilmer, first told her of her many ancestors in Virginia.

"I took a class in geneology in high school and found out something about my family history," explained Miss Young. "My grandmother knew about our relationship to James Blair, but I didn't know he founded the College until I came here."

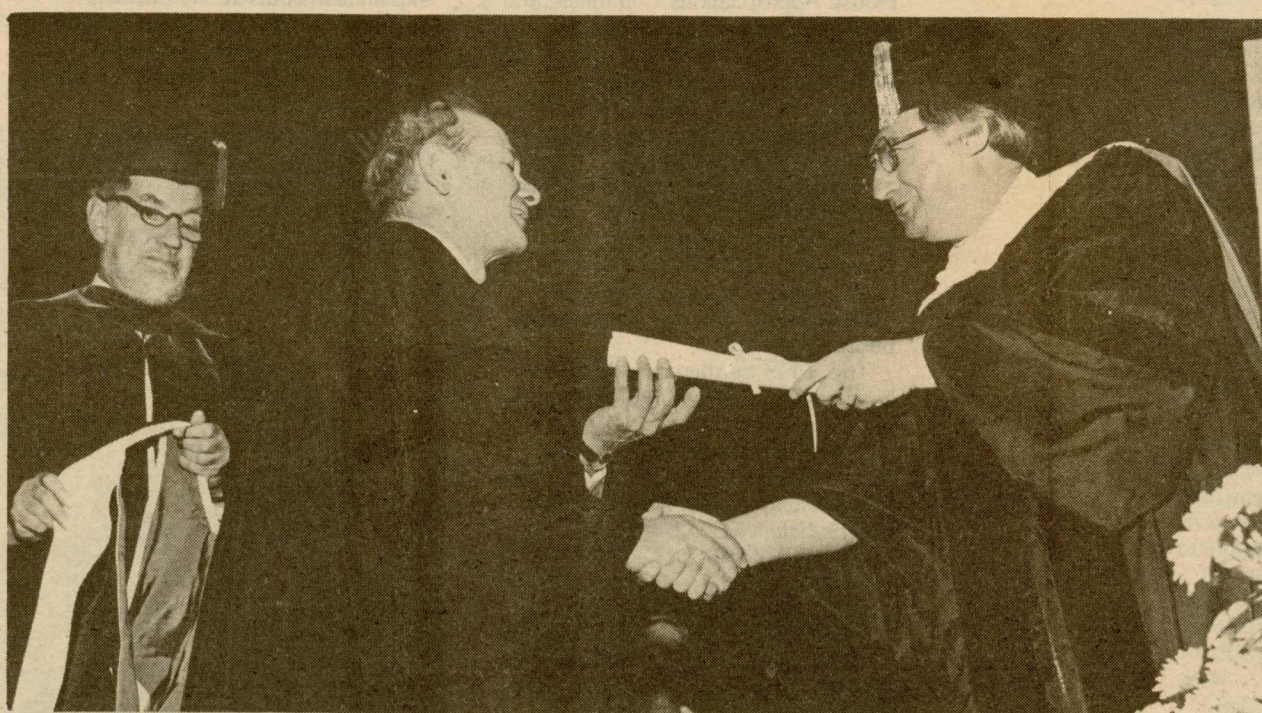

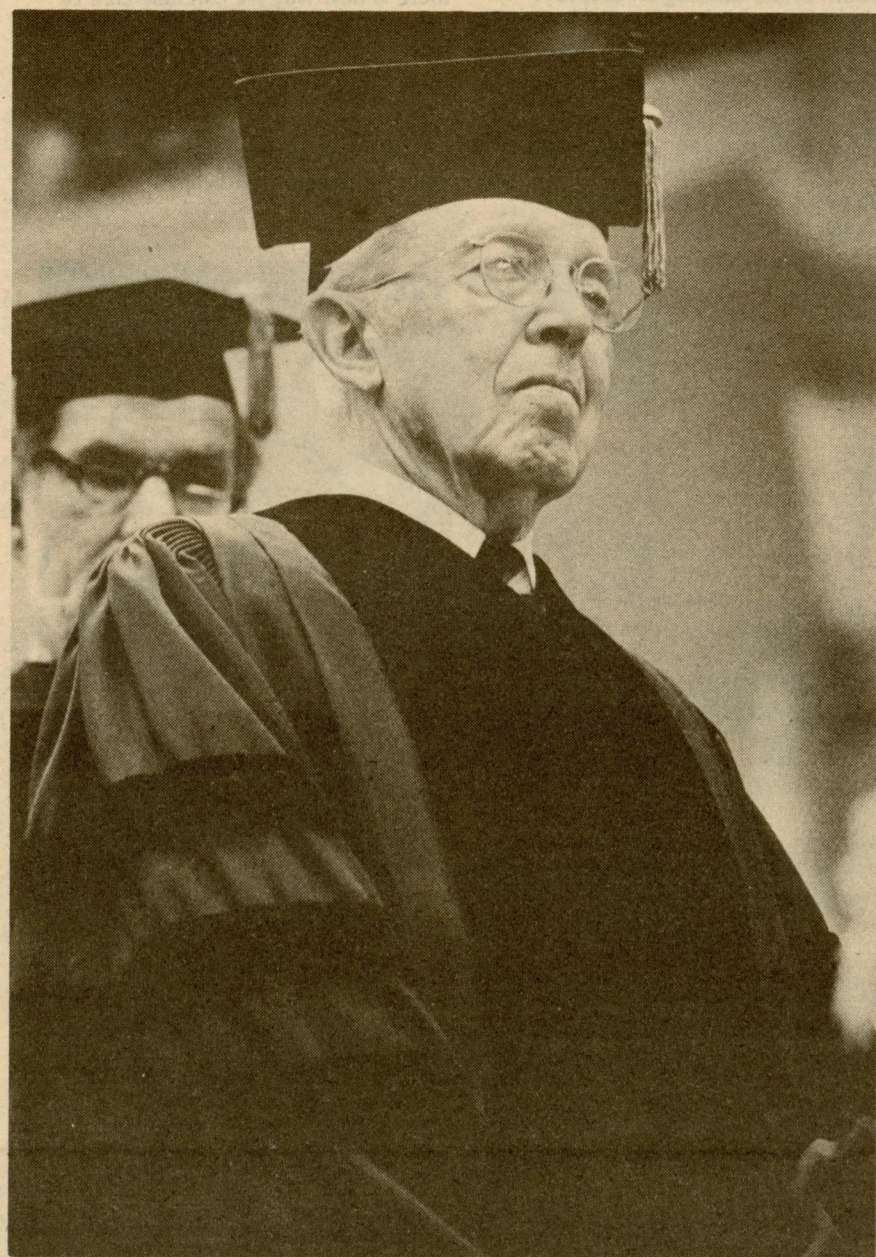

"My grandmother said to look for his grave. It was then I found out who he was," she said. The Rev. and Mrs. Blair are buried side-by-side at Jamestown.

Since Blair and his wife Sarah had no children, it was Blair's nephew, George Gilmer, a physician in Williamsburg and mayor of the city in 1754 who continued the family line.

About three generations later, said Miss Young, Thomas Walker Gilmer also achieved prominence as the Secretary of the Navy under his cousin, William and Mary alumnus President John Tyler.

"I took Dr. (W. Boyd) Coyner's course called The Old South and found out that Tom Walker Gilmer was a governor during the Civil War and that Francis Walker Gilmer helped Thomas Jefferson set up the University of Virginia," she said. "The course was really fun when I realized Dr. Coyner was talking about my ancestors."

Commencement '81, A Special Occasion That Leaves Many Memories

Barnhill Appointed Lacrosse Coach

Ethel Barnhill has been appointed the new women's varsity lacrosse coach and junior varsity field hockey coach.

Jean Stettler, the lacrosse coach for the past two years, will become the head women's field hockey coach and junior varsity lacrosse coach.

The changes were made following the resignation earlier this year of Nancy Porter-Engman who had been the field hockey coach for six seasons. Mrs. Porter-Engman left to join her husband, sculptor Robert Engman, professor at the University of Pennsylvania and a former visiting professor in fine arts at the College.

Stettler's lacrosse teams established an 18-11-1 record over her two seasons and finished in sixth place at the AIAW Division I Nationals last year. This year her team finished second at the state tournament and is ranked tenth in the latest AIAW Coaches Lacrosse Poll. A graduate of Ursinus College with a B.A. in Health and Physical Education, Stettler played varsity lacrosse four years.

Stettler received her masters degree in Secondary Guidance and Counseling from Villanova and coached hockey and lacrosse at Germantown Academy in Fort Washington, Pa., before coming to William and Mary.

Ethel Barnhill has been a teacher at St. Catherine's School in Richmond since 1975. She was the varsity lacrosse coach from 1975-78 and field hockey coach from 1978-81 at St. Catherine's. Barnhill is a rated umpire in lacrosse and has served as a selector for three years at the Virginia State Tournament.

Barnhill has been selected to coach the South 1 team in the USWLA this year and has also coached the Virginia 1 team. Both are all star teams selected by position.

A graduate of Ursinus College where she received her bachelors in Health and Physical Education, Barnhill played four years of field hockey and lacrosse. She has also played with the Tidewater Field Hockey club and Virginia Club lacrosse teams.

Duke of Norfolk to Give Choir Tour of Arundel Castle

Some 59 members of the College of William and Mary choir will leave this evening from New York for Paris on the first leg of their second European tour.

Through donations and fund-raising projects the choir has raised approximately $16,400 for the trip which has been divided among those participating.

Nearly $3,000 was raised at a benefit concert at the Williamsburg Lodge which was arranged by Mrs. Mary Gonzales, who entertained patrons at her home following the program.

When the choir made its first trip to Europe Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gonzales suggested that the choir decorate their home for Christmas and hopefully win prize money from the annual door decoration contest held by Colonial Williamsburg. The choir members showed they were as good at decorating as they are at singing - they won.

Mr. and Mrs. J.B. Hickman, owners of Binns Fashion Shop made a $1,000 donation to the choir and the Wednesday Morning Music Club also gave a $400 donation to the choir.

Close to $10,000 has been raised by choir members through the sale of cards, through the College bookstore and by mail.

One of the heartwarming aspects of the tour so far, said Frank L. Lendrim, is the response from members who went on the previous trip who have written. The bulletin board in the music department is covered with cards of good wishes and notes that contained donations.

"All year we have been hearing from members who went on the last trip," said Lendrim. They have bought notecards, put in extra money for the choir and said how much the tour meant to them."

The generous outpouring of support for the choir is being returned by its members who send personalized thank you notes to all their patrons and will continue to show their appreciation to their European hosts in this manner.

Because all but one member of the choir, Steven Monson, will be making the European trip for the first time, Martin Keck, the outgoing president of the choir and Douglas Wingo, the incoming president have drawn up a check list of travel tips and answers to such questions as "What the heck am I supposed to wear?" and reminders - "Don't pack your passport." Things will probably go awry at times predict Keck and Wingo but they advise "Be flexible. Remember we have to live with each other for 26 days." "May I please see your magazines?" - Mailing labels on magazines can be a tremendous help when the memory fails explain Keck and Wingo.

The tour plan worked out by Lendrim includes an exciting mix of work and play.

After a morning arrival in Paris the choir has a chance to get settled in before an evening concert at the American School May 20. The next day the choir sings at Notre Dame Cathedral and leaves at 6:30 p.m. for an early evening cruise on the Seine.

Friday, May 22 the choir will spend at Versailles and leave Saturday morning for Geneva.

Sunday, May 24 there are three performances scheduled. The choir will sing for morning service at Emmanuel Church with a short concert following the service. They will give a full concert at the church that evening.

After a short stop in Basel, Switzerland, the choir will leave for Frankfurt where they will give an evening concert at Christ the King Church.

On Wednesday, May 27 the choir will take a steamer cruise on the Rhine, landing at Koblenz, then on to Cologne for a visit and possibly a concert at the Cathedral.

Choir members who are enroute to Europe pose on the back portico of the Wren Building. The choir will be directed by Frank Lendrim.

Thursday the choir leaves for The Hague and an evening concert at the American Protestant Church. Friday they will leave for England via the ferry from the Hook of Holland to Harwich.

After stops at Ely Cathedral and the American Century in Cambridge, the choir will give an evening concert at Christ College. Sunday, May 31, the itinerary includes a noon cruise on Thames, a tour of the Tower of London, a concert in the afternoon at St. Bride's Church off Fleet Street and an evening concert at Westminster Abbey.

Monday the choir will go to London House to see the portrait of Bishop Compton, first Chancellor of the College. They will then go to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre to visit the burial spot of Captain John Smith of Jamestown. Governor John Dalton will go to London later in June to open an exhibit based on the life and work of Smith and the early Virginia colonists. Following that visit the choir will leave for St. Martin-in-the-Fields, the historic church in Trafalgar Square for an afternoon concert.

June 4 the choir will visit Stowe School in Buckingham, Stratford-on-Avon, Wells Cathedral and Glastonbury Abbey and the Parish Church at Bruton for which the Williamsburg church is named.

Salisbury and Canterbury Cathedrals are on the tour list with the choir singing in Canterbury on Monday, June 8.

Tuesday, June 9, the choir will give a concert at Leeds Castle in Maidstone, Kent, one of the most picturesque castles in England. From there they will go to Sissinghurst Castle where the English critic and writer, Nigel Nicolson, will show the visitors where he presently lives and Knole, where he lived as a boy.

The choir will spend the night of June 10 at Horsham and leave the next morning for Arundel Castle where they will be given a tour by the Duke of Norfolk. Hurstpoint College, Hassocks, is the next stop and June 12 the choir will be at St. Peter's Church, Staines.

To complete the full schedule the choir will make a short stop at Runnymede, site of the Magna Carta and then go to Windsor Castle before departing from Heathrow on the return trip to Washington.

The choir is hoping to have alumni in the audiences along the route. At Christ's Hospital, Horsham, Professor John Morpurgo of Leeds University, an alumnus and author of the early history of the College, "Their Majesties Royall Colledge," published in 1976 and dedicated to the Alumni of the College, past and present, and to all who have served the College."

To All Who Helped - Thank You

May 13, 1981

To The Editor
The Virginia Gazette
Williamsburg, Virginia 23185

Dear Sir:

I believe your readers would be interested to know that countless individuals and businesses showed their generosity and their support of our community by freely volunteering to help the College and Williamsburg to host the Prince of Wales during his visit on May 2.

Dozens of students and College staff assisted as drivers, ushers, guides and media advisors without compensation.

Automobiles used for the motorcade were provided at no cost to the College by Kearney Oldsmobile-Cadillac-GMC, Inc. Warner Cable Television of Williamsburg installed a permanent television cable system in Phi Beta Kappa Hall to allow the ceremony there to be viewed by the media and by some 200 students in a separate auditorium, again at no cost to the College. Mr. Joseph Steele, and Shaia Carpets, loaned furnishings to allow the College to create an appropriate dressing room for the Prince of Wales prior to the Convocation. Floral decorations on the campus were designed by Mr. Claude Jones, Jr., and contributed to the College.

Special thanks go to a number of businesses which helped the College host the Prince of Wales and other British officials at luncheon in the Great Hall. Mr. Jerry Shepperd of Williamsburg served long hours as a consultant for this special occasion. Discounts or outright gifts of food and beverage were contributed by Le Ya Ca Restaurant, Owens Blake Seafood, Jos. McSweeney & Sons, Inc., Saville Produce Co., Diamond Springs Water Co., Inc., and The Cheese Shoppe.

Furnishings were loaned by The Sheraton-Patriot, Colonial Williamsburg Foundation, and The Williamsburg Hospitality House. Discounts on rental of serving items were given by the Williamsburg Pottery and by Ridgewells of Bethesda, Md.

The College and, I believe, the Williamsburg community owe these and so many others our thanks for assisting in making this historic event such a success.

Without their help, and in view of the College's current very strict financial limitations, the Prince of Wales' visit could not have reflected so well on the community.

Sincerely,

Thomas A. Graves, Jr.
President
