Elderhostel/Saga Begins This Week

Topics ranging from houseplants to America's medical care system will be examined and discussed by the over 300 men and women participating in the College's four weekly Elderhostel sessions beginning May 24 and running through June 20.

This summer's Elderhostel program at the College will share its courses and facilities with a British counterpart, SAGA, which arranges programs for a quarter of a million people each year.

Participants in Elderhostel are persons 60 years of age or older or the spouse of someone 60 or older. The Elderhostelers eat, sleep and attend mini-courses on the William and Mary campus, as well as taking part in several extracurricular activities.

The courses planned for the First Elderhostel session, May 24-30, will include "The Intellectual Scene in 18th Century Williamsburg," by Frank A. MacDonald, professor of philosophy emeritus; "Natural Sciences in the 18th Century," by Hans von Baeyer, professor of physics and director of the Virginia Associated Research Campus; and "Colonial Families," by Kevin Kelly, lecturer in history.

Robert J. Hanny, professor of education, will present a course entitled "American Public Schools: Have They Done the Job?" for the second Elderhostel session, May 31-June 6. Also during that session, Leonard G. Schifrin, professor of economics, will lecture on "The American Medical Care System," and Norman Fiering, lecturer in history and a member of the staff of the Institute of Early American History and Culture, will lecture on "Religious Diversity in Early America."

"The Poet's Eye: Images of America in Modern Poetry," by J. H. Willis, Jr., professor of English; "Traditional Music. The British Isles and America: The Four weeks of Elderhostel and Saga sessions began Sunday with the arrival of the first group of visitors at the College's Botetourt Complex. Wasting no time in getting started, hostellers like the Saga members above were briefed on the week's schedule of activities.

President Graves Reports on College Finances

The inflationary pressures of the past several years have driven the rates of increase for most goods and services required by the College higher than the rate of increase of funds available from all sources. In 1980-81, we were able to project a balanced budget only by eliminating all contingency or budgeted reserve funds; the expenditure "freeze" this spring has made very clear how narrow our margins have become. The 1981-82 budgets, still in the process of detailed determination, are not yet balanced, and at best will be very vulnerable to any unforeseen increase in costs for whatever reason. What we know of the 1982-84 budget targets promises no financial relief from the State in the next biennium.

These circumstances make it imperative that the projected revenues and expenditures of the College be brought into a more prudent relationship. We will of course pursue as vigorously as possible all opportunities to increase revenues from State as well as private sources. Necessity also requires, however, a plan, or several alternative plans, through which we can effect reductions in present expenditures categories. The figures make clear that William and Mary unfortunately cannot continue to support at present levels of commitment all academic and related administrative programs, when projected costs are adjusted for inflation and compared to likely revenue support.

A thorough examination of all our financial obligations, and an inquiry into their comparative claims on our priorities, must therefore be undertaken. It is not possible now for such planning to have any meaningful effect on our 1981-82 obligations. If it is to be at all useful to budget construction even for 1982-83, it is imperative that it begin immediately.

The scope of such a study must be College wide, and therefore of interest to every constituency supported by Educational and General funds. It is obviously impossible for every such interest to be represented directly on the working group that must analyze the figures, consider the alternatives, and make recommendations to me. It is however equally impossible for the work of the study group to be credible and effective, unless the concerns of all major interests are well represented to it.

After discussions which George Healy and I have had with a number of persons representing such interests, I have concluded that the task would be best addressed by the establishment and appointment of a very small and necessarily unrepresentative group charged to make the inquiry, but charged as well to consult with and receive comments from appropriate representatives of particular academic and administrative interests throughout the course of the study. It should also be noted that the planning implementation procedures established in 1980 require that all planning recommendations made to the President must be reviewed and commented upon by the full Planning and Priorities Committee before any action on them is taken by the President, and if appropriate by the Board of Visitors or Faculty.

In this way, I trust, we can proceed through the small working group to analyze the data and to develop the necessary plan(s) with reasonable promptness, but also require throughout the process the broader discussion and commentary critical to the development of plans that will command the widest possible acceptance by all affected constituencies.

I have asked the following persons, each of whom has the College-wide administrative or planning responsibilities noted, to serve as members of the small study group or task force:

George R. Healy, Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs
(Chairman)

Dennis C. Cogle, Director of the Budget
(After 1 July, Mr. Cogle's work will be shared by Jeffrey A. Shapiro, who will assume the position of Budget Director at that time.)

Morton Eckhause, Chairman, Faculty Liaison Committee

Henry C. Johnson, Director of Institutional Research

David E. Kranbuehl, Chairman, Planning and Priorities Committee
(Until 15 July, James M. Yankovich, Acting Chairman of the Committee, will serve in Mr. Kranbuehl's place.)

This group has been charged to begin its work immediately, and will be expected to submit an interim report, with recommendations, to me no later than 15 September. This report will be broadly distributed, and sent to the Planning and Priorities Committee for its review and comment, which will be due back to me by 5 October. A final report from the study group, taking into account all comments made regarding its recommendations, is to be submitted to me no later than 10 November. This schedule should enable us to use the approved planning recommendations in the budget construction process for the fiscal year 1982-83.

Women Tracksters Shine

Junior Jeri Daniels captured two All-American titles in the shot put and discus at the AIAW Division II Track and Field Championships at Indiana University of Pennsylvania last weekend.

Senior Kathie Ellen Scherer ran a best time of 17:07 in the 5,000 meter finals placing eighth of the 16 entries.

Shakespeare Volunteers Needed

Care to become a Roman senator for the summer?

More volunteer actors, musicians, singers, dancers, stage hands, seamstresses, carpenters, electricians, and special effects technicians are needed than ever before for the fourth season of the Virginia Shakespeare Festival in Williamsburg.

Festival director Kent Thompson is looking for large numbers of volunteers to meet the demands of this year's productions of "Julius Caesar," "The Tempest" and "Two Gentlemen of Verona."

Auditions for actors and interviews for technicians will be held Saturday, May 30, from 1-4 p.m. at Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall on Jamestown Road in Williamsburg. Rehearsals begin June 2, and performances are scheduled in repertory from July 9 through Aug. 16.

"Julius Caesar" will use the largest cast in the history of the Festival," says Thompson. Actors are needed to fill major speaking roles and crowd scenes, to give the authentic look of political turmoil in ancient Rome.

Also in demand are special effects technicians for "The Tempest." According to Thompson, "The Tempest" will require the use of pyrotechnics to indicate storms and magical sequences.

All roles except Prospero and Julius Caesar are still open. Roles will be cast by the three directors from a pool of volunteer and contract actors after the volunteer auditions May 30. "In past seasons," says Thompson, "volunteers have played a wide range of roles, including leads such as Macbeth." Thirteen men and two women have been hired this season as contract actors.

Volunteers are also needed to fill spots as ushers, box office helpers and promotions assistants. "In the past, our volunteers have made a huge difference in the success of our seasons," says Thompson. "It's clear that the Festival will need more volunteer help than ever before to meet the demands of our most challenging season yet."

Wilkinson, Leinbach Named To All-Regional Golf Team

William and Mary junior Mary Wilkinson (Melrose, MA) and Senior Tracy Leinbach (Reading, Pa.) were named to the AIAW Region 2 Division II All-Regional Golf team recently.

Both players will be placed on the slate of candidates for the AIAW All-American team which will include ten players and will be selected following the national championship.

William and Mary qualified for the AIAW Division II National Golf Championship to be held June 16-19 at the University of Northern Iowa in Cedar Falls, Iowa.

Wilkinson was medalist at the AIAW Region 2 Championship this year, while Leinbach was medalist at the State Team Championship. William and Mary won both the State and Regional Championship team titles this year.

"Friends Meeting"

The local Religious Society of Friends (Quakers) will hold a silent meeting for worship at 10:30 a.m., on Sunday, May 31, at 104 West Kingswood Drive. Please call the Crownfields at 229-3480, for directions to the meeting or for a ride.

Shakespeare Festival Directors Announced

Two veteran theatre directors, one from St. Louis and the other from New York, have been selected to join Virginia Shakespeare Festival artistic director Kent Thompson for the 1981 Festival season.

Gavin Cameron-Webb will direct the Festival's production of "Julius Caesar," and Thomas Gruenewald will direct "The Tempest," according to Thompson, who will direct the Festival's third presentation, "Two Gentlemen of Verona."

"The diversity and broad professional experience of this year's guest directors will provide leadership for our strongest artistic staff yet," said Thompson.

Cameron-Webb, a British director, most recently completed his fourth year as head of the actor training program at Webster College in St. Louis, where he worked with the Loretto-Hilton Repertory Company, a major regional theater in St. Louis.

His other regional experience includes productions at the Rochester Shakespeare Theatre, the GeVa Repertory Theatre, and the Missouri Repertory Theatre. He also directed a highly-acclaimed production of "Henry V" at the prestigious Colorado Shakespeare Festival.

"Cameron-Webb comes to us because he did a very successful production of 'Henry V,'" said Thompson.

"That play has some of the same challenges that 'Julius Caesar' presents—many characters, historical events, and battle scenes.

"We anticipate traditional classical Roman costuming, and the setting will be very simple," Thompson added. "Cameron-Webb's stress will be toward costuming and major scenic props

President Thomas A. Graves, Jr., accepts a $15,000 gift to the College from Mrs. Irene S. Murden at Mrs. Murden's Norfolk home. The gift honors Mrs. Murden's son, Forrest D. Murden, Jr.

Murden Honored by Gift to College

A gift of $15,000 has been presented to the College of William and Mary by Mrs. Irene D. Murden of Norfolk in memory of her son, Forrest D. Murden, Jr., a graduate of the College.

Murden, a Norfolk native, was a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of William and Mary in 1941 and received a master's degree from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy in 1942. In World War II he served overseas as a lieutenant in the Navy Supply Corps.

After the war, he taught government at William and Mary and did graduate work in international law and economics at Columbia University. In 1949 and 1950 he was liaison officer for Dwight D. Eisenhower at the United Nations. He was the author of "Economic Cooperation," and with Isador Lubin, of "Our Stake in World Trade."

From 1954 to 1959 he assisted Henry Ford II, first as special liaison with foundations and international organizations, and then as manager of public and government relations of Ford International.

After two years as government relations counselor to what is now the Exxon Corporation he became a partner in 1962 in Allen and Murden Inc., management consultants. He was president of Murden and Company from 1967 until his death in 1977.

Mrs. Murden's gift will be used to establish an endowed acquisition fund for the College's Earl Gregg Swem Library and to establish the initial funding of a professorship in the Humanities in the name of Forrest D. Murden, Jr.

Transference of a Musical Culture," by W. E. White of Colonial Williamsburg; and "Houseplants: Their Growth, Nutrition and Environment," by Martin Mathes, professor of biology, will comprise the course offerings for the third session from June 7-13.

Offerings during the final week, June 14-20, will include the following: "Life in an Isolated Fishing Community" The Guinea Marshes of Chesapeake Bay," by Victor A. Liguori, associate professor of sociology; "Solitude and Isolation in American Literature," by Robert J. Scholnick, professor of English; and "Social Dances of Colonial Times," by Mr. and Mrs. Leland Ticknor of Williamsburg.

"The music for the show will be period music done on a synthesizer," Thompson continued. "This will help to achieve the magical quality of the play while including a contemporary medium.

"And of course we'll be having a guest artist playing Prospero," added Thompson.

The 1981 season of the Virginia Shakespeare Festival opens July 9 and runs through August 16 at Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. For ticket information, call 253-4469.

Women's Forum Seeks Support

Groups with an active interest in issues affecting women are invited to participate in a week-long forum on "The Work of Women," scheduled Nov. 8-14, 1981.

Three Peninsula organizations which are planning the forum--the Women in Business Program of the College of William and Mary, the Junior League of Hampton Roads, and the Peninsula Women's Network--hope to enlist the support of all types of women's groups throughout Tidewater to make the event the largest forum on women's issues ever held in the area.

The sponsoring groups have sent personal letters of invitation to participate to over 100 area organizations, including four area colleges and universities, local chapters of political, religious social service and women's clubs, and associations of professional women.

The week will culminate with a day-long conference Saturday, Nov. 14, featuring nationally known speakers and workshops on the work of women both in and out of the home. Keynote speaker for the session will be Dr. Juanita Kreps, former United States Secretary of Commerce.

Newsmakers

Along with a collaboration of physicists from Tel Aviv, Zurich, and Amsterdam, R. G. Winter, professor of physics, completed work at the Swiss Institute for Nuclear Research on a paper entitled "Observation of the Quasifree Reactions of Pions," published in Physical Review Letters 46, 1271 (1981).

S. Stuart Flanagan, professor of education and director of a Virginia Metric Education project, promoted National Metric Week by appearing on several local television shows. During the week of May 10-16, he spoke about metric education and conversion on the talk shows of Channels 3, 8, and 13.

national Trade Seminar in Lynchburg in April where he was a member of a panel on international business education in Virginia. Professor Tarleton has also had a paper accepted for presentation at an International Symposium on Exporting sponsored by the Organization of American States in Washington in June. The paper, co-authored by Professor George Tesar of the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater, is entitled "Comparison of Wisconsin and Virginia Small and Medium Sized Exporters: Aggressive and Passive Exporters."

College Announcements

Correction to "Lay-Off Policy"

The article on the layoff policy, page 2 of the April Personnel Communique, contains an error in the sixth paragraph. This same error appears in the 12 May, 1981 issue of the William and Mary News on page 3, paragraph 3 in the article on the same subject.

The sentence should read: Next, the agencies will allow employees to displace individuals with less seniority in the same classification if they are fully qualified to do the work.

Benefits Statements

Benefits statements from the Virginia Supplemental Retirement System will be distributed along with paychecks on June 1, 1981. These statements are intended for all College employees who contribute to the State retirement system.

These statements are based on salaries and information available on November 30, 1980. The Social Security benefit estimates might be lower this year than last. This change is not due to a change in Social Security benefits but is due to a change in the method used to estimate the benefits. The new benefit estimates should be more accurate.

As in past years, the following people will not receive a benefit statement:

- 1) Employees hired after November 30, 1980.
- 2) Employees listed as on leave on November 30, 1980.
- 3) Employees who have Group Life Insurance but who have not contributed to VSRS retirement.
- 4) Employees age 65 or over.
- 5) Employees hired at age 60 or over.

Employees should not make retirement decisions based on these benefits statements. Assumptions are made about salary and years of contributing to VSRS and Social Security, and these assumptions might not be true for an individual employee. For persons nearing retirement, both VSRS and Social Security will give individual estimates based on the person's actual salary and service credit record.

Employees having questions concerning their retirement benefits should contact either the Personnel Office at X4214 or VSRS at 804-786-3831.
