Asbestos Work Continues New Deadline Set Oct. 19

Millington and Morton Halls which have been undergoing asbestos removal, are expected to be ready for the resumption of classes on Monday, Oct. 19.

In announcing the new date for the completion of the project, College officials said the project had proven to be much more difficult and complicated than initially anticipated.

"We are dealing with a relatively new technology and a health hazard that require extraordinary precautions and patience in all areas of the project," according to James J. Connolly, director of facilities planning and construction.

The contractor has been encouraged to take all steps necessary to maintain optimum safety standards throughout the duration of the project, Connolly said.

William J. Carter, vice president for business affairs, said it has always been the primary concern of the College that the building be completely safe when the work is completed.

"If this requires a delay in the completion of the project, we obviously prefer this to any remaining health hazard," Carter said. "We are determined to have a safe and clean project, however long it takes."

Although the deadline for completion of the work in Millington and Morton has been delayed, the College has been assured by the spokesman for its consultant firm of Environmental Technology, Inc., of Hartford, Conn., that the work of asbestos removal is being done well.

"It is probably one of the best asbestos removal jobs I've ever seen," said Dr. Robert N. Sawyer, a nationally recognized asbestos expert, in an interview recently with the Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Sawyer said that based on his inspection, the College's latest occupancy date of Oct. 19 for the two buildings was an achievable goal. He also said that not only was it feasible but "I would hope that it could be accelerated."

Program for Parents Oct. 2-4

There will be a touch of colonial flavor in the topical programs planned for Parents Weekend, Oct. 2-4.

A "Colonial Festival," from 6-8 p.m., Saturday in the courtyard of the Sir Christopher Wren Building, will feature a colonial-style buffet dinner and entertainment by the Botetourt Chamber Singers of the William and Mary Choir and the Janet Kriner Trio. A tour of the Governor's Place has been arranged from 4-7 p.m.

Two of the lectures planned for the weekend will also have an 18th century focus. Thad Tate, professor of history and director of the Institute of Early American History and Culture which the College co-sponsors with the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation, will speak on the early history of the College.

David Holmes, professor of religion, will take as his topic "The Rise and Fall of the Established Church of Colonial Virginia, With an Excursion on Colonial Virginia Church Architecture."

In a more contemporary vein, parents will hear about "Higher Education, Higher Costs: The Personal Dimension," from a panel which includes Carolyn Blackwell, coordinator of internships; Amy Jarmon, associate dean of students; Leon Looney, director of student aid; and Harriet Reid, director of career planning.

There will also be a program on "Drugs, Alcohol and Social Attitudes," which will be presented by Jay Chambers, director of the Center for Psychological Services; Tennie Paulino, head resident, DuPont Hall; Mike Rawlings, inter-fraternity council president; and Ken Smith, associate dean for student activities and organizations.

There will also be a program by students entitled "William and Mary Beyond," in which Diane Baker, Sue Laparo and Sharon Stryker of the class of 1982 and Carolyn Finocchio of the class of 1983 will participate. A slide presentation about student life has been entitled "The William and Mary Student Outside the Classroom."

The lecture series will also include a talk by Carl Vermeulen, associate professor of biology, on "Genetic Engineering from the Layman's Point of View"; "Ireland: Current Problems," by Alan Ward, professor of government; and "Human Growth and Development Revisited," by John Lavach, professor of education.

The Parents Weekend will begin Friday, Oct. 2, with registration beginning at 8 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Hall lobby. Classes will be open to parents that morning, and at 2 p.m.,

Brent Harris as John Worthing and Mary Wickes as Lady Bracknell have leading roles in the first production of the 1981-82 William and Mary Theatre season, "The Importance of Being Earnest" which opens Thursday, Oct. 1.

Theatre Season Opens Oct. 1

One of the wittiest of all stage comedies, "The Importance of Being Earnest," with the established comedienne Mary Wickes in the role of Lady Bracknell, will provide an impressive opening Oct. 1 for the 1981-82 William and Mary Theatre season.

Also this season the theatre will present "Cabaret," "Henry IV" (part 1), and "The Elephant Man."

"The Importance of Being Earnest," directed by Richard H. Palmer, artistic director for the theatre, will be presented Oct. 1, 2, 3, 8, 9, 10 at 8:15 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. Individual tickets are $4. Tickets may be reserved at the PBK Box Office, 253-4272.

"A Trivial Comedy for Serious People" was Oscar Wilde's sub-title for

The Importance of Being Earnest and the phrase itself reveals Wilde's basic comic technique: "topsyturvydom" or the depiction of a world in which everything is turned upside down. Serious matters are treated lightly and trivial issues are handled with extreme seriousness, explains director Palmer.

Debaters Filling Trophy Case

Debaters in their first competition of the season, won the varsity division of the Washington and Lee University Debate Tournament in Lexington, Va., Sept. 19-20.

The team of Colin Buckley, a senior from Thornton, Pa., and Beth McGaffey, a sophomore from Mequon, Wis., won first place in the varsity division. Buckley won the second place speaker award.

Rob Johnson, a freshman from Blacksburg, Va., and Kevin Gough, a sophomore from Hauppauge, N.Y., also won five rounds and lost one to take second place honors.

In the novice division, second place was won by the freshman team of Elizabeth Brown of Blacksburg, Va., and Jill Pryor of Etters, Pa. Pryor was judged as first place speaker in the novice division and Brown, second place speaker.

Bill Scott, a sophomore from Metairie, La., and Randy Oakes, a senior from Englewood, Colo., were 1-5 for the tournament. Debate Coach Bill Harpine says he is very pleased with the team's performance. "Anytime you can come home with three trophies you have to be pleased," he said, adding that he felt Scott and Oakes, although well prepared, lacked experience and confidence. One of the tournament judges, he said, had singled out the novice team as "very promising," and predicted that they would be in the top rankings by the end of the semester.

Two teams of debaters went to the Young Lawyers Debate at Johns Hopkins University this weekend.

The team of Kevin Gough and Robert Johnson had a 5-3 record in the preliminary rounds, not good enough to get them into the final rounds of competition.

Jacobs, Williams Set Joint Concert

Michelle F. Jacobs, and William L. Williams, both juniors and voice students of Mrs. Martha Connolly, will give a joint recital at 8 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 1 in the Wren Chapel.

Both singers are members of the William and Mary Choir and the Botetourt Chamber Singers.

Miss Jacobs, a soprano, will sing "Jubal's Lyre" by Handel; two songs in German by Schubert; "Music When Soft Voices Die" from Shelley by Ernest Gold; "Orpheus With his Lute" from Shakespeare's Henry VIII, by William Schuman; and "At the Cry of the First Bird" by David Guion.

Williams, a tenor, will open the concert with "Sweeter than Roses" by Henry Purcell. He will also sing "Du bist die Ruh" and "Auf dem Wasser zu singen" by Schubert; "From Far From Eve and Morning" by A.E. Housman, set to music by Ralph Vaughn Williams; "Lord Sleeps the Crimson Petal" from Lord Tennyson, by Roger Quilter; and "As Ever I Saw," author anonymous, by Peter Warlock.

The two singers will sing as duets "Liebesgarten," "Ich denke dein," and "Die tausend Grife, die wir dir senden," all by Schumann.

Miss Jacobs is a member of the Baptist Student Union and appeared in the Backdrop Club's production of "Camelot."

Williams is recipient of the Carl A. Fehr music scholarship, named for the professor of music emeritus and long time director of the William and Mary Choir.

Colin Buckley and Beth McGaffey were 6-2 for the preliminaries and lost in the quarterfinals to a team from the Naval Academy on a split 3-2 judges decision.

Buckley was named third place speaker at the tournament, McGaffey, tenth. There were 34 teams entered in the tournament.

Premiere Shows Set Oct. 4, 5, and 6

Premiere Theatre, sponsored by the William and Mary Theatre department, will present the first performances of five student written and produced plays at 8:15 p.m., Oct. 4, 5 and 6 in the television theatre in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. There is no admission charge.

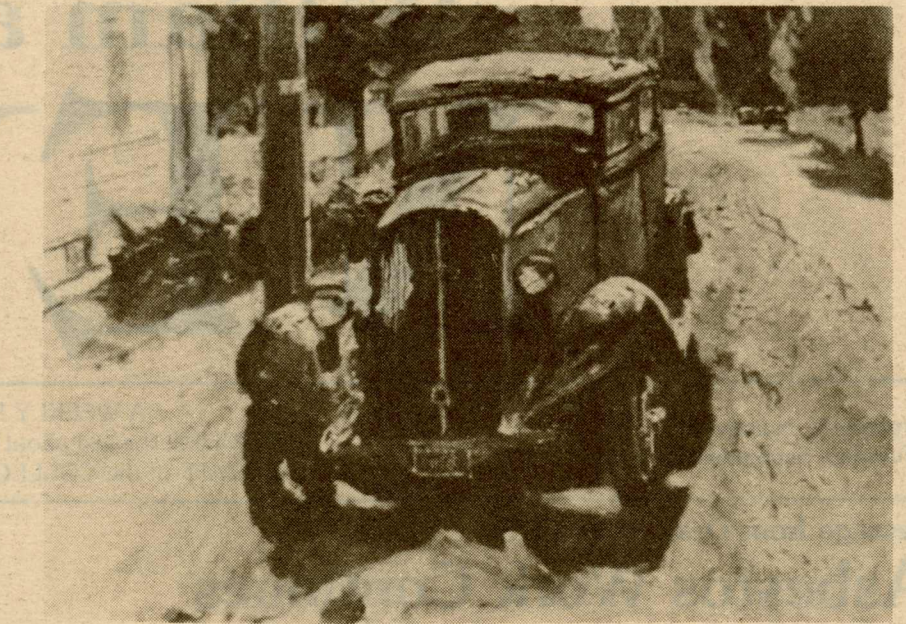

Playwrights whose work will be performed include Angela Lemmon, Lisa Seidman and Peggy Stephens.

Kohn Exhibit in Andrews Represents New Approach

The current exhibit in the foyer of Andrews Hall is a selection of paintings and watercolors by William Kohn, an associate professor of art at Washington University in St. Louis.

The work in the exhibit represents a departure from Kohn's previous work. The artist formerly worked in the studio from styrofoam models of machine parts.

In 1980 Kohn spent a year on

Painting Missing

The painting above, "Gahanna Bauer's Car," (oil on canvas, 20" x 26") has been removed from the Wigwam. The painting is part of the College Art Collection and is signed by the artist, "E. Burkhar." Anyone with information on its location should contact campus police or Dr. Chappell in the Fine Arts Department.

Master of Bamboo Flute to be Featured in Concert Oct. 6

Master Seibi Sato, the only living master of the bamboo flute of Shakuhachi, and the 37-member Classical Koto and Shakuhachi Bamboo Ensemble, who are currently on tour in the United States, will give a concert at 8 p.m., Tuesday, Oct. 6 in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

The concert is being sponsored by the Norfolk Sister City Association, the Japan-United States Committee, the Japan Culture Center of Virginia and the William and Mary Martial Arts Association.

All seats are reserved. Regular admission is $10, $12 and $14; $5, $6 and $7 for students, faculty and staff of the College, and senior citizens. Tickets may be obtained at the Campus Center desk and will be on sale at Phi Beta Kappa Hall the evening of the performance.

Master Sato, at the age of 89, continues a long career of teaching and performing which began with his first performance at age nine. Since then, he has performed and taught widely in Japan, Korea and China. The governments of all three nations have honored him for his contribution to the development of this art form. Currently, he is serving as Master of the Kinko School of Music, a four-century-old institution that is one of two surviving schools in which the shakuhachi or bamboo flute is taught.

The flute played by Master Sato is similar to those played for centuries in ancient China and Japan.

The Koto used by the performers is also an instrument that has long been part of the Japanese musical culture. The instruments rest on the floor and the strings are plucked and strummed by the performer.

For centuries the ability to play the koto has been a sign of noble breeding sabbatical in Mexico and in a natural outdoor setting, began the series of paintings which are now on display here. Kohn has selected architectural masses viewed in natural conditions and painted with a more active range of colors. His watercolors became studies for the larger paintings. He has used the watercolors to gather visual information and simplify the forms.

Kohn received a B.F.A. degree from Washington University in 1953. He has studied in Paris with Stanley Hayter.

He has been represented in numerous exhibits and has received a variety of grants to continue his work including a Fulbright to India and a grant from the Missouri award from the Missouri State Council on the Arts.

An Occasion for the Arts October 3-4 on Square Features Campus Talent

An Occasion for the Arts, Sunday, Oct. 4 in Merchants Square, will include an exhibit of the work of over 90 artists, demonstrations of ancient and modern crafts, entertainments on 10 stages, an afternoon of cinema art, refreshments, and a capper, a concert at 5:30 p.m. in the Wren Yard by the Virginia Pops Orchestra, Walter Noon conducting.

There will be several members of the College Community participating including musicians of the Friends of Appalachian Music, the William and Mary Choir directed by Frank T. Lendrim and the Botetourt Chamber Singers.

In the event of rain the Occasion program will be moved to William and Mary Hall.

The Williamsburg Choral Guild, which includes members of the College Community, will open the 1981 Occasion for the Arts with a concert at 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 3 in Bruton Parish Church. The program will consist of Music to Commemorate the Victory of the Colonials in the American Revolution, a series of anthems and keyboard music by such eighteenth century composers as Billings, Law and Wood which were written and performed at the time of the American Revolution. The Choral Guild will shakuhachi and the koto. Their repertoire includes music entitled "A Moonlight Night" and "The Distant Sound of Deer," aimed at giving the audience an insight into the inward tranquility of Japanese classical compositions and the peaceful spirit of classical Japan.

repeat selections from the program on Oct. 16 at the opening ceremonies of the Yorktown Victory Celebration.

James S. Darling, lecturer in music and organist/choirmaster of Bruton Parish Church has selected the music and is guest conductor for the performance. Soloists are Bill Thomas, Genrose Lashinger, Phyllis Varner, Cathy Reese, Chris Mathers and David Sisk. Thomas Marshall, organist of the Williamsburg Presbyterian Church, will perform the organ solos.

There is no admission charge for the concert.

Blood Pressure Control Clinic

The Personnel Office is sponsoring blood pressure clinics for its employees. Employees may have their blood pressure checked at no cost and the process can be normally completed in less than five minutes. Clinics will be held Thursday, Oct. 8 from 8 a.m. - 12 noon in the Campus Center Ballroom and 1 p.m. - 4 p.m. in James Blair Room 213, and Oct. 19 in the Campus Center Ballroom from 8 a.m. - 12 noon and in Swem Library Room 1, 1 p.m. - 4 p.m.

A clinic will be available to VIMS employees on Oct. 5, in the Exhibit Hall from 9 a.m. - 12 noon.

Parents Weekend Program

Linda Collins Reilly, associate vice president for academic affairs, will preside at a meeting with freshman parents.

President and Mrs. Graves will host a reception for parents, faculty and staff in the Wren Yard from 4-6 p.m., Friday. In case of rain the reception will be moved inside the Wren Building.

The first general session for parents will be held in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall auditorium at 11 a.m. with Tobey Rawson, student chairman, presiding. Dr. and Mrs. Abelardo Ruiz, chairmen of the Association of Parents, will also attend as will President Graves.

Lunch will be served on the lawn at Andrews Hall following the meeting, and there will be receptions and open houses across campus for parents during the afternoon as well as several athletic contests.

Parents will be invited Saturday evening to hear actress Anne Baxter, who will speak on "Fairy Tales are not Just for Children," as part of the Speakers Forum schedule.

Parents have also been extended an invitation to attend An Occasion for the Arts, which will be held Sunday, Oct. 4, from noon until 5 p.m. on Merchants Square and will feature talent from the College community.

Tobey Rawson

Tobey Rawson, student chairman, is a junior from Cincinnati, majoring in French. She says that the program has been heavily weighed with student orientation and student participation. She says she is drawing on the talents of many students in putting the program together and has tried to include students in as many aspects of the program as possible. Members of Tri Delta sorority and the Campus Civitan Club are among the

Activism Session Open to Public

Three government professors will host a conference in Williamsburg Oct. 1-3 on Political Party Activism. Through a series of workshops, the conference is designed for participants to share for the first time data analyzed from questionnaires distributed at political conventions in 11 states.

Funded by a workshop grant from the National Science Foundation, the project is an extension of an initial survey done in Virginia in 1978 by Alan Abramowitz, John McGlennon and Ronald Rapaport.

On Saturday, Oct. 3, the series of workshops will conclude with a one-hour roundtable discussion on "Caucuses and Primaries in Presidential Nominating Politics" at 1:30 p.m., in the Campus Center Little Theatre. The public is invited.

organizations who have volunteered to help.

The slide show has been prepared by Bob Stephenson.

Rawson is a President's Aide, has been Resident Assistant for two years and worked with the Career Day sponsored last spring by the Office of Placement and the Career Planning office. She is also active with the SAVA program at the Women's Center and has been a member of the Student Association Council and the chorus.

Rawson says she has enjoyed the challenge of being student chairman of Parents Weekend. She adds, "I love to organize things." Kulie Alton and Alicia Rubi have assisted with art and publicity.

Information Given on Leave Balances

Effective Sept. 16, classified employees are receiving a record of their leave balance with their pay check. This information is located on Check Stub 3 and contains annual, sick, and compensatory leave balances in Column 1. These balances are based on the leave of absence forms received in the Personnel Office prior to the "Leave on Record as of" date listed on Check Stub 3. Column 2 designates the maximum number of annual leave hours the employee may carry over into the next calendar year. The semi-monthly credits earned for annual and sick leave are indicated in Column 3.

Employees having questions concerning their leave balance should contact Arnette Otey in the Personnel Office at ext. 4214.

A College-Wide Message

TO: Faculty and Students

FROM: Zeddie P. Bowen, Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences

I am writing to bring you up to date again on the progress in the asbestos removal projects in Morton and Millington Halls and to summarize the impact of the October 19 projected completion date on the academic program.

At this time, the basic asbestos removal has been completed in Millington Hall and re-fireproofing should be completed today. Remaining to be done are bulk cleaning, wet cleaning and special vacuum cleaning with appropriate inspection and testing, replacing ceiling tiles and custodial cleaning before re-occupation can begin. Following final clearance, it will take several days to move faculty and department offices back and ready the building for classes. Morton Hall will take about a week longer than Millington.

The educational impact of the two month delay in completion of the project has fallen unevenly on the students and faculty of the College. For most, especially those not housed or scheduled to have classes in Morton and Millington Halls, the project has little impact and the academic program has been unaffected. For those departments located in Morton Hall, Classical Studies, Economics, Government, History and Sociology, the primary difficulties have been the inaccessibility of faculty offices and teaching materials on the one hand and the disruption of the regular teaching pattern with its attendant extra wear and tear on both faculty and students on the other.

The courses in these departments have retained their educational integrity in spite of evening classes for some (63 out of more than 1,350 at the College this fall), and teaching in less than ideal classrooms for others. Nothing major has been dropped from these courses, and no courses in these departments have been cancelled because of the delay in re-occupying Morton Hall.

The situation in the Psychology Department, located in Millington Hall, is somewhat similar but has required extra work and ingenuity on the part of the faculty to make adjustments in laboratory courses. Laboratory exercises have been modified where special equipment or facilities are not available, and they are being taught in classrooms not designed for such purposes. The courses, as redesigned, are somewhat different from our ideal but still present the basic material originally planned for them. Laboratory exercises requiring special equipment or facilities are being delayed until Millington Hall is again in use.

The impact on the Biology program has been more serious. In addition to the disruptions faced by other departments in Morton and Millington, the biology laboratories have presented special problems. Three optional laboratory courses (Biology 303. Genetics Lab (the optional lab for the genetics course); Biology 325-L. Plant Development Lab; and Biology 425L-525L. Radiation Biology Lab) cannot be offered this fall because of the long term nature of the laboratory projects they involve. The genetics lab will be available in the spring for students who missed the opportunity to take it this fall. The other two lab courses will be offered again next fall and available to those students who missed them this fall.

In several other biology courses with required labs (Biology 316L. Invertebrate Biology, and Biology 426L-526L. Aquatic Ecology), the labs have been taught in the field for the first 4 to 6 weeks and they are more or less on schedule. Labs are now temporarily suspended but will resume as soon as Millington is available to finish the remainder of the work. Provided they can be taught in Millington Hall after mid-October, these courses will be able to cover the basic material planned.

Several other courses (Biology 301L. Microbiology and Biology 552. Cytogenetics) have been using temporary facilities and are more or less on schedule, but they are reaching a stage beyond which they cannot go without access to their regular laboratories and their equipment. Other courses with scheduled labs (Biology 211. Comparative Anatomy; Biology 308. Human Anatomy; Biology 316. Invertebrate Biology; Biology 406. Cell Biology; Biology 432. Animal Physiology; and Biology 440. Mechanisms of Microbial Activity) have postponed laboratory meetings until Millington is reopened. If those labs can not be started by the beginning of November, it may be advisable to cancel them for this semester.

The greatest concern is for Biology 101, which enrolls approximately 500 students. The laboratory schedule has been revised and the essential material concentrated in 7 laboratories scheduled to begin on October 19. Consolidating the material into 7 lab exercises has required, in addition to a great deal of extra work and planning for the faculty, some compromises and the elimination of some enriching experiences. Also lost is the complementing learning benefit of coordination between laboratory and lecture material. Should occupancy of Millington Hall be delayed further, other options will be explored to provide the educational experience expected in the course.

Under the circumstances, faculty and students are coping surprisingly well while maintaining their perspective and sense of humor. Again, we thank them. I am hopeful that I will not have to report on progress in these projects again in another month.

Oscar Wilde Comedy Opens Theatre Season

The comic aphorism in which a well-established phrase is made ludicrous by substituting a misplaced word is one of Wilde's favorite devices for verbally standing on his head: "Divorces are made in heaven." "Half of modern culture is based on what one shouldn't read."

Even the style of Wilde's famous comedy is the reverse of expectations: his world of parody, farce, mock-heroics, satire, and burlesque is wrapped in a style of super-restraint. His characters get by with saying the most outrageous things by using the most off-handed, matter-of-fact tone.

This play is something of a William and Mary Theatre tradition adds Palmer, it has been done in one form or another four different times during the theatre's 56 years.

Opening Night Reception Planned

Members of the faculty and staff are invited to a post-show reception for the cast, in the Dodge Room, immediately following the opening performance, Thursday evening, Oct. 1.

As Lady Bracknell, Miss Wickes will play the part of a member of the English aristocracy during the Victorian era. Lady Bracknell's emphasis on the importance of trivial social conventions makes her a central figure in Oscar Wilde's satire of the stilted lifestyle of England's affluent class at the turn of the century.

A versatile performer with credits in stage productions, the movies and TV, Miss Wickes has been starred or featured in over 300 dramatic and musical stock productions, ranging from Elizabeth in "Elizabeth the Queen" to Madame Arcati in "High Spirits" and "Blithe Spirit," to Maizie Madigan in George Seaton's production of "Juno and the Paycock," with Jack Lemmon and Walter Matthau.

She has appeared in nine TV series, the last being "DOC" for CBS, in which she co-starred as Nurse Tully with Barnard Hughes. She was nominated for an Emmy as best supporting actress for her work with Gertrude Berg and Sir Cedric Hardwicke in the series "Mrs. G. Goes to College." M*A*S*H created the role of the most decorated nurse in Korea for Miss Wickes and at the other end of the spectrum, "Sesame Street" created the role of the plant lady for her. She has just completed a starring role in "Love Boat" and is a semi-regular on "Match Game."

Brent Harris, a senior from Virginia Beach who has been an actor with the Virginia Shakespeare Festival for the past two summers, will play the part of John Worthing, whose different postures as a man-about-town and a country gentleman threaten to jeopardize his romantic life.

Alexander Iden of Berryville, Va., a freshman, will play the part of Worthing's friend, Algernon Moncrief. Iden has starred in several productions with the Mercersburg Academy Players and appeared last summer in the Blue Ridge Players' production of "Spoon River."

Anne M. Huschle, a senior from Garden City, N.Y., will play Cecily Cardew, the lovesick ward of John Worthing whose dream is to marry a man named "Earnest." Miss Huschle has appeared in several William and Mary Theatre productions including "Measure for Measure" and "Waiting for Godot." She was a technical intern this summer at the Olmsted Theatre of Adelphi University. Next summer she will be an acting apprentice at the renowned Williamstown Theatre Festival in Massachusetts.

The part of the Rev. Canon Chasuble will be played by Gary L. Cowling, a sophomore from Lorton, Va. He appeared last year in the Covenant Players production of "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat." Beth L. Miller, a sophomore from Phoenix, Md., will play the part of Gwendolyn Fairfax.

Miss Prism, the muddled governess, will be played by Shoshannah Aborn, a junior from Kensington, Md., who has been in several William and Mary Theatre productions and an editor for the student newspaper, The Flat Hat.

The cast will also include Scott Ticknor of New York City as Merriman, the butler; James A. Martin, a sophomore from Norfolk as Lane, the manservant; and Marie Buchwalter, a senior from Fairfax, Va., as understudy to Miss Wickes.

FOAM Sponsors TRAPEZOID

FOAM, The Friends of Appalachian Music at the College of William and Mary, will present a concert of traditional Irish, American, acoustic swing and blues by the group "TRAPEZOID," at 8 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 8 in the Campus Center Little Theatre.

General admission is $4. Tickets will be on sale at the door the evening of the performance.

Trapezoid is the shape of the hammered dulcimer and the name of a versatile traditional music ensemble from Elkins, West Virginia. Exploring the broad spectrum of acoustic music from America and The British Isles, they draw from the framework and texture of older traditional music and create an engaging new sound.

Trapezoid combines a strong vocal blend with a variety of hard-driving instrumental arrangements on hammered dulcimer, fiddle, mandola, guitar, bass, cello, and bowed psaltry. Band members are Paul Reisler, Lorraine Duisit, Ralph Gordon, and Freda Epstein. Trapezoid has recorded three albums, including their current release on Flying Fish Records, "Now and Then."

Anne Baxter is Forum Speaker

Academy award winning actress Anne Baxter, a Hollywood star for the past 25 years, will present a program entitled "Fairy Tales Are not Just for Children," at 8 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 3, in William and Mary Hall.

Miss Baxter's lecture/entertainment is sponsored by the Speakers Forum, a coalition of student organizations which sponsor at least four programs throughout the year.

Individual tickets for the Forum program are $1.50 for William and Mary students; $2 for the general public. Season tickets are $3.50 for William and Mary students; $6 for the general public. Advance tickets are available at the Campus Center. Tickets will also be on sale at the door the evenings of the programs.

Miss Baxter won an Oscar for her supporting role as Sophie in "The Razor's Edge," an adaptation of a Somerset Maughan Novel, which starred Tyrone Power. She was also nominated for an academy award for her acting in the title role of "All About Eve."

Her program Oct. 3 will include "the making of an actress, the public fairy tale, the private woman." Miss Baxter will wear costumes designed by Pauline Trigere.

An established name in films, TV and the stage, Miss Baxter began her career at age 11 when she became the youngest pupil ever accepted by Maria Ouspenskaya, the famous ogress of drama, in her New York school for actors. She made her Broadway debut at 13 in "Seen But Not Heard." She did several plays at the Cape Cod Playhouse before going to Hollywood, where she signed a long-term contract with 20th Century Fox. Of the 51 films she made in Hollywood, 21 were for 20th Century.

In 1946 she married leading man John Hodiak while making the film, "Sunday Dinner for a Soldier."

Miss Baxter later married Randolph Galt, who had invested in a 37,000-acre cattle station 180 miles north of Sydney in the Australian Bush. For nearly four years the Galts, now divorced, lived in Australia with the nearest grocery store 35 miles away, sharing a telephone of sorts with 14 other participants.

As well as movie assignments that took her to several European countries, Miss Baxter spearheaded what has become the current trek of famous film personalities toward television. Although she has refused the offers of several series, she has guest starred on all the important television shows, including a number of feature-length "World Premiers" and "Movies of the Week."

Next on the Forum schedule is a debate on gun control, Oct. 21, with Michael K. Beard, executive director of the National Coalition to Ban Handguns, and Paul Clois Stone, media coordinator and official spokesperson of the Institute for Legislative Action, National Rifle Association of America.

Revised Procedure for Classified Personnel Transactions

The "interim report" of the Financial Study Group, published in the 21 September William and Mary News contains recommendations on new procedures for reviewing and approving requests for personnel changes. The final report is not due until 10 November. In the meantime, President Graves has designated an ad hoc group, composed of the three vice presidents, the Director of Planning and Budget, and the Director of Personnel to review all requests for new classified positions, reallocations, and the filling of vacant positions.

Effective immediately, the following procedure is applicable to all classified personnel transactions:

1. The person who initiates a request (in writing) should forward it to the appropriate dean, department head, director, or supervisor. Complete justification to support the request should be included. There should be a statement as to the availability of funds within the existing departmental budget.
2. After review and written endorsement at the appropriate level, the request should be sent to the Director of Personnel.
3. The Director of Personnel will verify the current availability of funds, after which all requests will be considered by the group noted above.

These procedures are intended only to insure careful review of all classified personnel requests, in light of the general need to keep all College expenditures to a reasonable minimum in a year in which there still remains a projected budgetary shortfall. There is not now, nor are these procedures intended to effect, a hiring "freeze" on classified personnel. Well justified requests for replacements will be reviewed and authorized as promptly as possible, and requests for reallocation, and even for new positions, will be carefully considered.

The cooperation of all concerned in supplying full justification and other essential information would be appreciated, in order that decisions may be made with the least possible delay.

Editor's note: Keen interest and close attention consistently focus on the process surrounding the selection of students to William and Mary. Very often, the extent of concern for students in making a smooth transition into the community here goes unnoticed. This special column describes the recognition of that need and the deliberate energies exerted in creating a real home environment for those students new to the William and Mary Experience.

These measures help a new student feel comfortable in a new environment. Once that comfortable feeling is established, the student is given responsibility to make his or her own decisions. Shortly after the beginning of second semester each student must indicate interest in living in College housing for the following year by paying a room reservation deposit. The choice of a compatible roommate for the sophomore year is left up to the student as well as the selection of which residence hall he or she is interested in living in during the following school year. Once these actions and decisions have been made, the student is ready to participate in the annual room selection process in April.

Freshman year is crucial in determining the success or failure of the college student. Since students spend fifty to sixty percent of their time in the residence halls, it is important that their experience is positive. As this article has indicated, the process of admitting a student does not end after his or her acceptance; this is only the beginning.

In providing a new home for the student, the residence hall staff completes the difficult task of the admissions counselor by insuring a successful match between the student and the college environment.

Ginger Nobles, Assistant Dean for Residence Hall Life

Cindy DeRisio, Graduate Student Residence Hall Life

After Admission . . . Residence Hall Life

One of the first questions a student has after determining which college to attend is: What will college living conditions be like? Quickly then come the questions: Who will be my roommate? Will we be compatible? Where will he or she come from?

Issues of housing seem to weigh heavily on a student's mind, and the answers to these questions often determine the ease with which a student adjusts to college.

At William and Mary, shortly after each student has decided to accept the offer of admission he or she is mailed a housing questionnaire to complete. The questionnaire addresses the incoming student's opinion about a roommate's cigarette smoking, room neatness, study habits, dating styles, as well as a preference for coeducational or a single-sex residence hall assignment. When rooming assignments are made in late May of each year, the questionnaires of the freshmen are matched according to their desire to live in a coeducational or single-sex residence hall situation as well as their answers to the questions of lifestyle. While this is not a foolproof method of assignment, it should serve to reassure most students that they will be living with someone who shares their basic outlook.

Once a freshman student arrives on campus, one of the first persons he or she meets is the Resident Assistant (R.A.). The R.A. and the rest of the Residence Hall Staff are trained to assist students in their transition from high school to college. R.A.'s work very hard to help the students build a sense of community on each hallway. They also handle emergencies, counsel students on many matters including roommate difficulties, and make referrals to other College resources when necessary.

Orientation aides, upper-class students chosen to assist new students, add a nice welcoming touch to the residence halls at the opening of each session. They work alongside the R.A.'s to decorate hallways and plan get-acquainted activities for small groups of new students.

Workshop Held For Alumni Admissions Network

The Wren Building was the setting for 25 alumni who returned to campus on September 19 to participate in the first training workshop of the Alumni Admissions Network. This is a new program developed to allow the Admissions Office to expand the services offered to applicants who are unable to visit the campus. The alumni will interview applicants in their home areas, attend selective College Day Programs as the William and Mary representative, and act as referral agents for students with special talents.

The Network is a cooperative effort of the Admissions Office with The Society of the Alumni. Jack Garrett, President of The Society, notes the historical interest of The Alumni Society in this type of project since the '30s, and continues, "This is only one of a number of phases of activity being implemented by The Society in support of the College." Approval and funding for the Network was given by the College Relations Committee of The Alumni Board, chaired by Austin Roberts.

This is the pilot year of the program with intensive evaluations planned for the spring as a means of determining the degree of effectiveness. Selection of geographic areas and committee members for this pilot year were made following recommendations of faculty and staff, the Alumni Board, and Admissions Officers. The areas represented include Roanoke, Virginia Beach; Westchester County, New York; San Diego, California, and; Baltimore, Maryland. Diversity of age, sex and occupation is reflected in each committee. Gary Ripple, Dean of Admissions, who has directed a similar program at another university, sees the program "as an opportunity for us to provide more individual attention to our applicants, and to utilize the valuable resources of the strong William and Mary alumni body." An additional benefit is that applicants from these

Deans Hold Two-Day Meeting

A large circular table in the center of a conference room at the Sheraton Inn was the "hide-away" for the Admissions Deans, Gary Ripple, Rex Tillotson, Karen Schonenberger, and Juanita Wallace, on September 10 and 11. They deliberated (over coffee!) these two days on how they could better serve the best interests of students and the College.

As an outgrowth of a combined staff development workshop in the Fall of 1980, the need for such an exercise became evident. It was apparent, too, that the staff could benefit from a team-building experience, one that would, as well, strengthen interpersonal and leadership skills.

An outcome: the sessions facilitated cooperative planning of effective strategies for accomplishing the tasks in Admissions. Attention was directed, too, to the role of the clerical staff and how best to utilize their support more efficiently. Specific goals involving day-to-day implementation of policies and procedures were examined.

Hopes were fulfilled, for the staff returned to the "work site" with strategies designed to improve productivity and with a broader understanding of each other's roles. Two days well spent!

Rachael Farthing Retiring Oct. 1

Rachael Farthing, stand up and take a bow! After 19 years of service to William and Mary, Rachael Farthing is retiring, effective October 1, not to swing in her rocker but to have fun. She is eager for more travel and anticipates the hours she will devote to needlepoint, sewing and reading. No

Law School Seminar

Representatives from the University of Chicago, Cornell and New York University Schools of Law will conduct a seminar at 8 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 15 in the Great Hall of the Wren Building. Directors of admission and associate deans of the schools will speak on admission to their schools. Students interested in a career in law are urged to attend. Further information concerning the seminar may be obtained from the Office of Placement, ext. 4604.

History Honor Society

Phi Alpha Theta is accepting applications for membership now through Friday, Oct. 2. Declared History concentrators and students with 12 completed hours in History, who have a G.P.A. of 3.0 overall and in history courses, may sign up in the History Dept. office: Swem 207-208.

Acceptance of graduate students in History is automatic with application.

Cutler Lecturer

John Hart Ely, Ralph S. Tyler, Jr., Professor of Constitutional Law, Harvard University, will give the 1981-82 Cutler Lecture at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, at 4 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 1 at the law school. Ely will take as his topic, "Choice of Law and the State's Interest in Protecting Its Own."

Foreign Affairs Scholarship

Applications are now being accepted for the Koenig-Nimmo Foreign Affairs Scholarship. This scholarship will award to a William and Mary senior $600. The Koenig-Nimmo scholar will be selected by the Honors and Awards Committee of the Department of Government on the basis of scholarship and a serious interest in a career in the foreign service of the United States. Applications may be obtained in the Government Department Office, Room 310 of the Swem Library. Completed applications must be returned to the Government Department by 5 p.m. Monday, Oct. 5.

Greyhound Station On Run

The Greyhound Bus Station has been added to the James Blair Terrace route of the campus bus service. The bus stops at the Greyhound station on the outbound portion of every run to James Blair Terrace. Specifically, buses stop at the bus station at approximately five minutes before the hour and 25 minutes after the hour, from 7 a.m. until midnight, when the College is in session.

Club Plans Washington Trip Oct. 24

The College Women's Club is planning a theatre trip to Washington, Saturday, Oct. 24, for a performance of the Broadway hit "Evita," now playing at the National Theatre.

The deadline for reservations is Oct. 7. The fee of $27 includes bus fare and a ticket to the play. It does not include lunch or dinner. There will be time during the trip for shopping or a visit to the Rodin exhibit or the Smithsonian museums. There will be a stop for dinner enroute home.

The College Women's Club is open to all women who work for the college or whose husbands work for the College. Those wishing to join should send $5 in dues to Diane Lederer, 121 Justice Grice, Williamsburg, VA. 23185.

The Club offers a variety of activities throughout the year and has several interesting groups for couples including play reading, bridge, two gourmet groups, and a new group for those interested in card and board games. There are also several groups just for women including sewing, a book group, and bridge players who meet in the evenings once a month.

"In addition," says Brigid Edmonds, the interest group chairman, "we hope to have an afternoon play reading group, an afternoon bridge group, and there has been interest in a coffee and conversation time."

A two-session mini-course in Italian cooking begins in October. Other courses are planned for the second semester.

One of the major projects of the College Women's Club is the Hostess Corps, a group of volunteers who act as hostesses to help Mrs. Graves during some of the occasions when the President's House is open to visitors.

Each corps member will be called upon about three times a year to hostess at a time convenient for her. There will be two evenings in October for briefings on the house furnishings.

Detailed information on any other club programs may be obtained by calling Susan Geary at 229-8835.

areas will now have the opportunity to add another dimension to their application file. Alumni will submit interview evaluations which hopefully, will aid the Admissions Office in the difficult process of evaluation of personal qualities.

The Blue Room of the Wren Building was an ideal setting for the workshop. Attendance at this conference was a pre-requisite for participation in the program. The purposes were to provide an overview of the admissions process, to enhance the interviewing skills of the committee members, and to allow students, faculty and staff the opportunity to share their knowledge and impressions of life at the College. Those making presentations included: Gary Ripple, Juanita Wallace, and Karen Schoenenberger from the Admissions Office; Sam Sadler and Ginger Nobles from the Office of Student Affairs; Millie West, Director of Women's Athletics; Randolph Coleman, Professor of Chemistry; Jack Edwards, Professor of Government; Jean Wyer, Associate Professor of Business Administration; Fred Adair, Professor of Education; and Dale Moats, Frank Roberts and Tinnie Paulino from the class of 1982. Topics ranged from coping with academic pressure at the College, presented by Tinnie Paulino, to a mini workshop on interviewing skills conducted by Fred Adair. A dinner, hosted by Gordon Vliet and The Society of the Alumni, was held in Andrews Foyer following the day-long workshop.

Karen Schoenenberger, who will direct the program for the Admissions Office, viewed the workshop as a very successful beginning to a program which can be of great benefit to the College community. "These are bright and energetic individuals who will represent William and Mary with pride and enthusiasm. They were carefully selected, and the training workshop provided them with the skills and knowledge they will need to be of assistance to our applicants."

PQT Test

The Office of Career Planning now has the bulletin and registration form for the 1981 Professional Qualification Test for the National Security Agency.

The test will be given on campus Nov. 14, but registration must be made by Oct. 31.

The Office of Career Planning is now located in the Campus Center, in the Gold Room.

While this year's pilot program is limited to only five geographic areas, its smallness will make easier the task of assessing the effectiveness of all aspects of the program. Plans for the next few years include expansion of committees into many other areas of the state and nation. A long range goal, in keeping with the educational philosophy of the institution, is to offer this individualized attention to the great majority of prospective applicants to the College.

Preliminary Figures Received on Class Profile

At this writing, we are waiting for the final figures on the new freshman class but we expect the final numbers to be quite similar to previous years. We offered admission to 2046 (35%) of 5779 applicants in order to enroll 1097 (53% of those admitted). Sixty-four per cent of our new students graduated in the top tenth of their high school class and eighty-two percent were in the top fifth. Our "superior" freshmen (1350 mean total SAT and top two percent of class) number eighty-five. Two-thirds of this group are from Virginia while the remainder are from ten other states). Their primary academic interests are (in order) biology, math, chemistry, history, psychology and english. Notably, twenty-four percent of this group was undecided at the time they filed an application.

No More Letters, No More Files, Rachael Farthing Retiring

More letters to read from irate parents, or complaining legislators. She will miss, however, the pleasant few and those accompanied by interesting stamps.

Rachael's leaving brings forth ambivalent reactions, with good reason. She has seen the College move from ultra conservative to liberal conservative. She admits readily to the joy she feels upon departing but just as easily agrees that she will miss the long associations with some fine people, friendships which she will seek to maintain.

Reminiscing at length, Rachael projects feelings back to the era of Bob Hunt and Ed Jones who made decisions on applicants independently of any committee which, she continues, "only complicates the system. As a matter of fact, I see no significant improvement in the quality of students admitted as an end-product of this new system."

Though the type of mail processed by Rachael has created many impressions, she prefers that written by a student - even on scrap paper - to one perfected by the father's/mother's secretary. As she parts this office and this campus, resigning her position of clerk-typist (mail processor, . . .), she recommends that when you write a letter, "include it all: Name, address, zip, etc. - and write it legibly!"

Allen Changes Job

LaVonne Allen ends her "tour of duty" in the office after 3½ years. "Many personalities have been encountered in my role, either directly or indirectly," says LaVonne. No more packeting brochures, no more prospective student files. She sings loudly, "After reading millions of applications and letters and literally answering thousands of phone calls, the sign would be a welcome sight to behold!"

LaVonne will be assuming a position in Student Financial Aid as of October

Juanita Wallace Leaves for Georgia

Your editor too, takes this moment to say farewell to the William and Mary family. It's difficult to say good bye to so many friends, but I must. On October 19, a new career will begin for me as Director of Admissions at Spelman College in Atlanta, Ga. Spelman is a small private girls' college that has historically enjoyed a fine reputation for excellence. It, like William and Mary, should provide a continuation of professional and personal experiences that are guaranteed to be fulfilling.

William and Mary will long be remembered, and it was with great difficulty that I made the decision to leave. But, after ten years . . . Farewell, and God bless! Ed.

Career Office Revamps Files To Provide Easier Access

Carolyn Finocchio, student coordinator for the Office of Career Planning's program of informational interviewing with the help of alumni has revamped the ACAS files.

Using a more informal format, Carolyn has set up notebooks on the major career areas including business, education, government, health and science fields. Each notebook contains information on alumni who have agreed to participate in the program, how to reach them and to what extent they would like to be involved. Some alumni have indicated they would be willing to participate by correspondence, others by telephone, and some have indicated they would like to have students visit them on the job.

There are 255 alumni advisors enrolled in the program in 27 states across the country.

Students here receive guidance from the career planning office on the type of questions to ask alumni, and alumni have been briefed on the type of information which would be most helpful to students.

Finocchio hopes students will avail themselves of the ACAS service, get acquainted with it and plan to contact alumni during the fall break or other vacations during the year. Students in all classes are invited to participate and are urged to participate before their senior year.

The Career Planning office is temporarily located in the Gold Room on the second floor of the Campus Center.
