Gun Debate Next on Forum

Two nationally recognized lobbyists will debate the pros and cons of gun control in the next Speakers Forum program at the College.

Michael K. Beard, executive director of the National Coalition to Ban Handguns (NCBH), will debate Paul Clois Stone, official spokesperson of the National Rifle Association, at 8 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 21, in William and Mary Hall.

Admission is $2 for the public; $1.50 for William and Mary students, faculty and staff. Tickets are available at Ken Smith's office in the Campus Center, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, or at the door the night of the program.

As director of NCBH, Beard heads a coalition of national religious, educational, and public interest organizations who seek to ban handguns from importation, manufacture, sale, transfer, ownership, possession and use by the American public.

Beard has also been a lobbyist for three other national organizations, the Committee for Congressional Reform, Self-Determination for D.C., and World Federalist Youth-U.S.A. He served for four years on the legislative staff of Congressman Walter H. Moeller, and as a volunteer in the office of Sen. John F. Kennedy.

He is a graduate of the American University School of Government and Public Administration and the School of International Service.

A native of central Texas, Stone serves as principal spokesperson for one of the largest and most successful lobbyist group organizations in the country. He has appeared on news and feature segments of network television and radio, including "Today," "Morning with Charles Kuralt," "Hour Magazine," and "The Larry King Show."

A critic and journalist by background, Stone has written for The Phoenix, The Boston Globe, The Texas Observer and Harvard Magazine. He served as press secretary to the House Select Committee on Ethics and to Congressman Tim Wirth of Colorado.

Pre-Registration Begins Thursday

Pre-registration for the spring semester for undergraduates and for graduate students in Arts and Sciences will be held Oct. 15-29. Undergraduate students should pick up their materials on Oct. 15 at Andrews Hall between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Graduate students in Arts and Sciences should contact their advisors between Oct. 15 and 29.

Trumbull's Surrender at Yorktown

John Trumbull's copy of the surrender at Yorktown is hanging in The Brafferton. Activities recalling the victory at Yorktown in 1781, involving members of the College community, are detailed on pages 4 and 5.

Seminar on Publishing Planned Nov. 12 and 13

The sixth Seminar in Publishing will be held in the Campus Center, Thursday and Friday, Nov. 12 and 13.

This biennial program, sponsored in memory of the late William Cross Ferguson, '16, and later president of the World Book Company, brings experts to William and Mary to introduce students to the nature of book publishing and to acquaint them with career possibilities. On the 1981 program, for example, will be the director of manufacturing at St. Martin's Press, senior editors from Alfred Knopf and McGraw-Hill, and the directors of publishing programs at New York University, George Washington University, and the University of Denver.

Students who wish to participate in the seminar on Thursday evening and all day Friday may secure application forms and further information about the program at the Swem Library circulation desk and at the Office of Career Planning in the Campus Center. A limited number of spaces will be available and will be allotted on a first-come, first-served basis, except that juniors and seniors will have priority over underclassmen.

Applications may be made Oct. 21 through 30 at the Office of Career Planning. There is a registration fee of $3.

Kemp to Talk on Admiralty Law Tomorrow

The Student Legal Forum and the American Trial Lawyers' Association are co-sponsoring the appearance of James B. Kemp of the New Orleans law firm of Phelps, Dunbar, Marks, Claverie & Sims at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 14 in the Moot Court Room of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law. Kemp will speak on admiralty practice in federal courts, concentrating mainly on his experience as defense counsel in personal injury and collision cases.

Kemp received his B.A. and J.D. from Tulane University, was editor of the Tulane Law Review, and is a member and officer of several local, state, and national bar and maritime associations. He is currently chairman of the Southeastern Admiralty Law Institute. Phelps, Dunbar, Marks, Claverie & Sims is the largest admiralty firm outside New York City.

A reception at the National Center for State Courts will follow Kemp's comments.

Washington Program Deadline Near

Applications are now available for the upcoming Washington Program of Oct. 26-28 on "The Electoral Mandate: Who Gets Elected and Why." The purpose of the seminar is to study the phenomenon of political realignment that seems to be going on and how this does or will effect the process of getting elected to public office. The deadline for applications has been extended to Oct. 19. For more information and applications contact the Office of Extramural Programs, The Brafferton, Room 8.

Planning Committee Makes Report to President

Comments and Recommendations on the Financial Study Group's Interim Report of 15 September 1981

Planning and Priorities Committee

In response to your request that we review and comment on the Financial Study Group's Interim Report by October 8, 1981, the Planning and Priorities Committee has met four times to discuss the text and recommendations of that report. We have also considered the views of the several individuals and groups who submitted critiques of the Interim Report. Many of their concerns paralleled and reinforced our own. We believe that both the general observation and the specific comments and recommendations that follow reflect the thinking of a significant portion of the College community.

General Observations

Although no one doubts the need for fiscal prudence in the short run and an improved budget process in the long run, the members of the Planning and Priorities Committee believe that preservation of the integrity of the academic program must remain the College's highest priority. The Financial Study Group's failure to acknowledge that priority in its Interim Report greatly alarms us. The crucial assumption that the academic program has first claim on the resources of the College must not go unstated. The Financial Study Group should amend its report so as to emphasize the primacy of academic needs and concerns.

Because candor, cooperation, trust, and good will are essential if the College is to surmount its current and projected financial problems with any semblance of reason and comity, we urge the Financial Study Group to rethink or clarify several of its recommendations.

The proposed budget committee especially requires clarification and revision. As described in the Interim Report, the committee would seem to circumscribe severely the authority of the academic deans and to allow the financial officers of the College to dictate academic policy. Such a budget committee is not acceptable to the members of the Planning and Priorities Committee. We also believe that the composition of the proposed committee must be rethought; its membership must be enlarged so as to ensure adequate representation of essential academic concerns.

The proposed hiring freeze has sparked almost as much controversy as the proposed budget committee. The Planning and Priorities Committee believes that the Financial Study Group must provide a clearer justification for both the February 1982 hold-date and the cumbersome documentation required for even routine personnel replacements. More important, the Financial Study Group must explain more fully the implementation of this freeze and state whether or not exceptions will be made for those departments and schools where such a freeze would do irreparable damage to the academic program. We also urge that the role of the academic deans in this process be clarified.

Two other aspects of the Interim Report seem to us to require additional thought: first, the Financial Study Group's assumptions about budget cuts in non-personnel areas; and, second, its assumptions about the availability and use of private funds to alleviate the present crisis. Several members of the Planning and Priorities Committee feel strongly that even though the College cannot hope to make up the projected $500,000 deficit by reducing expenditures in non-personnel areas, it should nevertheless insist upon a rigid economy in those areas. Such a policy would save some money--perhaps more than the Financial Study Group estimated--and, more important, would indicate to faculty members that they are not being asked to bear the entire burden of the proposed cuts.

The Planning and Priorities Committee also wonders whether the Financial Study Group explored every avenue for increasing the amount of private funds available to the academic program at the College. We urge further attention to this question.

Specific Comments and Recommendations

These specific comments and recommendations are keyed to the recommendations outlined on pages 9 through 16 of the Financial Study Group's Interim Report.

Recommendation I: The Budget Process - The Planning and Priorities Committee strongly recommends that the Provost have the responsibility for proposing the budget for the entire College.

A. Budget Committee

1. The Planning and Priorities Committee agrees that there should be a College Budget Committee.
2. We recommend that the second sentence of this article (As part of . . . below.) be deleted. We further recommend that the charge to the budget committee be clarified to indicate that
 - a. The purpose of the committee is to advise the Provost, who shall be responsible for proposing to the President a budget for the entire College, and
 - b. That the committee is to serve as a source of accurate financial data and advice and as an oversight committee for the total university budget. It should not be a policy-making body.
3. The Planning and Priorities Committee recommends that the membership of the proposed budget committee be enlarged to increase representation from the academic community.

B. Procedures and Schedules

1. We endorse the creation of a consolidated budget reporting form.
2. We also agree that the process of budget development should begin earlier in the year than it now does.

3. Although the Planning and Priorities Committee has no quarrel with the development of a "target and addendum" system of budgeting, we believe that the Financial Study Group must explain exactly who determines the "priority need" referred to in this and other articles.

4. The Provost should submit an annual written report on the disposition of the budget to the faculties of the College.

Recommendation II: Personnel

A. New Positions, Replacement, and Reallocations

The Planning and Priorities Committee recommends the addition of a frank acknowledgement that exceptions will be made, that some new and replacement positions will indeed be authorized before February 1982. We also urge that the Provost make every effort to identify and authorize these positions as soon as possible.

B. Salaries

1. The Planning and Priorities Committee agrees with the spirit of this article; however, it understands that exceptions may be made by the Provost.

2. We recommend that this article be deleted.

C. Graduate Assistantships

Because graduate instruction is an important part of the academic program at the College, several members of the Planning and Priorities Committee doubt the wisdom of this recommendation. All of us believe the Financial Study Group must offer both stronger justification for the recommendation and some estimate of the anticipated savings.

D. Hourly Wages

The Planning and Priorities Committee recognizes the need for the restrictions imposed here.

Recommendation III: Summer School

A. Funding Authorizations

We agree that "the total amount of funding authorized for instruction in summer 1982 should not exceed that awarded in 1981."

B. Faculty Contracts

The Planning and Priorities Committee recommends that this article be deleted.

2. We suggest the phrase "by the academic deans and the Provost" be inserted after "should be re-examined . . ."

Recommendation IV: Maintenance and Operating Funds

Again, we believe the Financial Study Group must explain exactly who determines the "priority basis" on which addenda requests will be funded.

Recommendation V: Private Funds

The phrase "additional private funds" in the first sentence of this article is confusing. Some members of the College community think the Financial Study Group is referring to new private funds, above and beyond what the Office for University Advancement anticipates for 1982-83; others believe the Study Group is simply recommending a redistribution of existing resources. Because the Planning and Priorities Committee feels that both a vigorous search for new private monies and a careful examination of the distribution and use of existing private funds--with an eye to channeling a much larger percentage of those funds than is now the case into the academic program--are crucial to the health of the College, we urge the Financial Study Group to strengthen and clarify this section of the report.

Recommendation VI: Recoveries

We endorse this recommendation but believe that it might best be omitted from the Financial Study Group's final report.

A Touch of Color

Yellow, white and rust colored chrysanthemums at various locations on campus are adding touches of bright color to the shifting tones of fall.

The Grounds Crew under the direction of Roy A. Williams, landscape superintendent, has enlivened the area around the sundial on the new campus with flowers, and the areas directly behind Millington Hall and in front of the bookstore also have been planted. Pots of flowers on the steps of the President's House dress up the entrance of this historic building. The plants were grown from rooted cuttings by the landscape staff.

Williams says the efforts of his crew will "bring about an awareness and appreciation of a well maintained landscape." He adds that the areas now planted with chrysanthemums will be expanded with spring flowering bulbs and summer annuals.

CHUCK Speaker

Panhellenic and Interfraternity Council are jointly sponsoring a talk by Mrs. Eileen Stevens at 8 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 29 in the Campus Center Ballroom, entitled "Are You Your Brother's Keeper."

Mrs. Stevens has led a campaign to halt abusive hazing activities on college campuses since her son, Chuck Stenzel, was killed in a hazing incident in New York in 1978.

According to Mike Rawlings, IFC President, Mrs. Stevens' message is one of responsibility and brotherhood and is not anti-Greek. "Her talk is for the entire college community because it is intended to motivate people to think more thoughtfully about those around them and to avoid foolish and regrettable actions," he said.

In her crusade on behalf of the Committee Halting Useless College Killings (CHUCK), Mrs. Stevens has traveled extensively to colleges and appears regularly on such talk shows as the Phil Donahue Show, the Tom Snyder Show and 20/20.

While hazing is not a problem at William and Mary, Rawlings believes that her message is timely because "she inspires people in a positive way to act in support of the people around them."

VIMS Welcomes Visitors to Open House, Oct. 16-19

The Virginia Institute of Marine Science plans to open its doors for public visitation during the Yorktown Victory Celebration, Oct. 16-19. Laboratory demonstrations and exhibits depicting marine research in Virginia are being planned for the event, according to Fred C. Biggs, VIMS director of public information.

The VIMS open house is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 17 and 18, beginning at 10:00 a.m. each day.

All research programs of the Institute will be represented, including graduate student research projects, Biggs said. Nets, dredges, geology corers, bottom grabs, current meters and other specialized sampling gear normally used at sea will be displayed on the Institute lawns.

Visitors will be able to tour laboratories involved in pollution, toxicity, subaquatic vegetation, physiology, radiobiology, microbiology, and oyster breeding and mariculture research. Demonstrations and exhibits of physical oceanography, marine geology, fisheries science, remote sensing and wetlands research will be housed in the VIMS conference hall. Movies and filmstrips depicting marine science and phenomena of the world oceans are being planned for continuous viewing during the event.

"We hope to make it an interesting and informative segment of the overall celebration event," said Biggs. "While there will be exciting things for viewing by visitors interested in the Chesapeake Bay and the ocean, members of our scientific staff and faculty will be on hand to explain their work and to answer questions about marine science. That's the real bonus, I think.

"Altogether, we will have five

Kallos to Escort German Visitors on Wren Visit

Alex Kallos, professor of modern languages emeritus, will serve as chief interpreter and escort for a delegation of city officials and press from Zweibrücken, Germany, sister city of Yorktown, who will be on campus Oct. 21 as part of their bicentennial visit.

The Lord Mayor, the Mayor, City Senators and journalists from Zweibrücken will visit the Wren Building and gather at the French Plaque to honor the contributions made by the German soldiers in the Regiment de Royal Deux Ponts, who were commanded by General Rochambeau and fought for the Colonials. Approximately 900 German soldiers gave their lives in the American campaign.

Kallos, who speaks fluent German and French, will meet the delegation in Yorktown Wednesday, Oct. 21. They will tour Jamestown before coming to Williamsburg for lunch at the Alumni House, hosted by the Innkeepers Association.

The group will tour the Governor's Palace following their visit to the Wren Building and will be feted at a reception at the German House before their return to Yorktown at 5 p.m. The tour of the Governor's Palace is being arranged by Mrs. Autumn Fulton of Williamsburg, who will assist Dr. Kallos with the campus visit.

The city of Zweibrücken has been documented historically from 1170 and the time of Frederick Barbarossa (red beard). It has endured invasions from France and Sweden and was badly damaged during World War II. It retains buildings open to visitation, along with exhibits placed on campus lawns. Our present plan is to channel guests so they may either take the entire tour or select a specific building or set of exhibits to tour. I expect that the entire tour will take 1½ to 2 hours, depending upon the pace of the individual guest," he said.

VIMS is providing several of its facilities to the Gloucester Bicentennial Committee for its special events and needs. An art show will take place in the Maury Hall parking lot. Its pier is being converted for docking a pedestrian ferry that will transport celebrants between Gloucester Point and Yorktown. An amphitheater is being established in the VIMS fortification remains, where the Gloucester Victory Celebration will take place on Oct. 18.

A sunrise service will also occur on Institute grounds that morning. The Gloucester Bicentennial Celebration headquarters, press facilities and a first aid station will be located in a VIMS building.

In a memo to VIMS faculty and staff, Frank O. Perkins, acting dean of the School of Marine Science and Director of VIMS, said that since most of the Gloucester-based events of the Celebration will occur in the Gloucester Point area surrounding the VIMS campus, it will not be possible to conduct normal business operations at the Institute during the four days, Oct. 16-19.

Although Monday, Oct. 19 was declared a State holiday by Governor Dalton, he substituted it for the regularly-scheduled Columbus Day holiday; Columbus Day is one of the holidays set aside by the College of William and Mary for an extended Christmas leave.

The Victory Celebrations and VIMS open house, says Perkins, in his memo "promise to be outstanding events, during which we shall have an opportunity to demonstrate to a very large community of persons the diverse and important work accomplished at VIMS. Your contributions to the occasion are going to be very important and much appreciated.

Sevareid to Speak at Hampton Coliseum Oct. 19

Eric Sevareid, known to millions of TV viewers as CBS News National Correspondent, will be heard at "An Evening with Eric Sevareid," lecture, Monday, Oct. 19 at 8 p.m. in the Hampton Coliseum, as part of the Bicentennial celebration of the victory at Yorktown.

His lecture is part of the "Our Future in the Cosmos" lecture series which is sponsored jointly by the College and the NASA Langley Research Center. Free tickets are available from the Office of Special Programs, 877-9231.

For forty years Eric Sevareid has reported, summarized, and analyzed American and world history as correspondent for CBS news. As the nation embarks on the first evening of its third century, Eric Sevareid is preeminently qualified as one of the world's premier journalists to speak about the past, the potential, and the prospects of the American experience. The statement below was specially prepared by Mr. Sevareid for America's Victory Celebration October 19, 1981, and the Evening with Eric Sevareid lecture.

"A few days in October of 1781 made it certain that a new nation would be born into the world. The certainty did not come with the words of

Jefferson in 1776, but with the carefully planned acts of violence at Yorktown in 1781. The 'principle', enunciated by a modern wit -- 'everything that can go wrong will go wrong' -- was reversed for Washington at Yorktown. Everything that could go right, went right. The French fleet did show up. The British at New York were fooled. Washington's army did manage a good headstart in its move south. All worth remembering when personal life or the state of the nation makes one gloomy. After all it was just a few months before the great victory that hundreds of American soldiers were deserting. British guns were trained on Mt. Vernon. Governor Jefferson had been forced to flee to the mountains. Washington himself was saying, 'We are at the end of our tether.' A long time ago, but to most of us America still feels fairly new. Not as new as it did, but not yet old and set in its ways. It seems to me that the United States has reached what one might, not too fancifully, call middle age. The country is reexamining itself, as persons do at middle age, recognizing its inherent faults and its limitations, reaffirming its strength, beginning to distinguish more clearly those ills of humanity that it can help to cure from those it cannot, realizing that it is not required that a man or a nation solve all problems to live successfully. Amelioration of human ills is the best we can look for. To do that is to live successfully. As Harry Golden said, 'America ain't what's wrong with the world' -- and it never was."

Park Service Display Spotlights St. Eustatius

A display commemorating the role of the tiny Caribbean island of St. Eustatius in the American Revolution and her contributions to Cornwallis' surrender is currently at the National Park Service Information Center at Yorktown.

A long-range multidisciplinary research project relating St. Eustatius' history with early American history was begun several years ago and is currently under the partial sponsorship of the anthropology department. The College undertook a field school in historical archaeology, under the direction of the department of anthropology, this summer when plans for the exhibit were discussed.

The exhibit was officially presented as part of the Yorktown Victory Celebration by Ellis Lopes, Vice President of the St. Eustatius Historical Foundation, and Ms. Miriam Schmidt, a representative of the St. Eustatian government. The St. Eustatius visitors expect to remain for the duration of the official bicentennial celebration to talk about "Statia" with visitors to the exhibit and to extend a hand of friendship from St. Eustatius once again.

During the 18th century, explains Edwin Dethlefsen of the anthropology department, St. Eustatius was a major free port in the Caribbean, and as such she became intensively involved in trade with the North American Colonies. She was the first foreign nation to return a salute from an American warship, saluting our flag with the cannon of Fort Orange. Now little known, tiny St. Eustatius was by far the biggest contributor of smuggled, European arms, provisions and other goods to support the American Revolution, enjoying some of the heaviest trading activity ever to take place in the Caribbean.

Because of her friendship with the Americans, the island was pillaged by the British Admiral, George Rodney, so severely that she has suffered economic problems ever since. Rodney was so intent on "getting even," explains Dethlefsen, that he failed to give proper attention to the movements of the French fleet through the Caribbean, when he might have obstructed their plans for the blockade of the Chesapeake Bay a few months later. So St. Eustatius has a strong claim to being instrumental in bringing about the victory at Yorktown.

"The Stadians are so proud of their long heritage of friendship with Americans that they have made English both their official and their popular language, in spite of the fact that Statia is a Dutch colony," says Dethlefsen.

Dethlefsen says that artifacts from the summer field school are being shipped from the island later this fall and will be displayed on campus and probably in other areas as part of an exhibition program yet to be planned.

Exhibits Include College Loans

A Map of Guilford Courthouse has been loaned from the College's rare books and manuscripts collection to the Yorktown Victory Center for Bicentennial exhibits.

The College has also contributed several items to the exhibit currently on display at the Colonial Williamsburg Visitor Center. These items include a travel book from the rare book

Public Invited to Attend

Ceremony Friday to Honor Fallen Frenchmen

In a reenactment of a ceremony that took place 50 years ago, members of the French military and descendants of Revolutionary War heroes will gather at the Sir Christopher Wren Building to honor the French soldiers who died at the College of William and Mary when it was used as a hospital during and after the Yorktown campaign.

On Friday, Oct. 16, at 3 p.m., representatives of the French government will lay wreaths on a plaque in the portico of the Wren Building, inscribed with the names of 125 members of the French forces who died "within these walls and in other hospitals in Williamsburg of wounds received during the Siege of Yorktown."

Representatives will lay one wreath from the Republic of France and one from the Senate of the Republic of France during a short ceremony in the Wren Yard facing the Portico.

Military officials participating in the half-hour ceremony will include: Brigadier General Michel de Noray, French Army Attache in Washington, D.C.; Capitaine de Fregate Jean-Charles Lefebvre, Commanding Officer, Georges Leygues; and Colonel Paul Roux, Commanding Officer, 99th Infantry Regiment.

Also attending the ceremony will be le Comte and la Comtesse Michel de Rochambeau, descendent of the Count de Rochambeau, commander of the French army at Yorktown; and le Marquis and la Marquise Jean-Pierre de Chambrun, descendent of the Marquis de Lafayette, the famous French general.

Earlier this year, the Marquis de Chambrun received an honorary degree from the College in recognition of the contributions of his ancestor Lafayette, and in recognition of his own tireless efforts to encourage closer cultural relations between the U.S. and France.

Fifty years ago, the current Marquis de Chambrun's father and mother visited the College to unveil the French memorial tablet during the Sesquicentennial.

The visiting French dignitaries will be accompanied by a French military unit, a French military band, and members of the Honor Guard from Ft. Eustis.

Dr. Edward E. Brickell, Rector of the College, will give welcoming remarks. The invocation will be given by the Rev. Father de Rocquois. A representative of the French delegation is expected to give remarks of commemoration, preparatory to the laying of the wreaths on the plaque.

The military ceremony, will be held outdoors in the Wren Yard, rain or shine.

ROTC Cadets to Salute College Company

The American Victory Celebration at Yorktown will be in part a military event, and the ROTC Cadet Brigade is actively preparing for several roles in the festivities, including a full-scale tribute to the students and faculty of the College who fought the War for Independence.

On Saturday, Oct. 17, the College community will honor the men of the William and Mary College Company of 1777 at halftime festivities of the William and Mary - Marshall University football game. The ceremony is part of the official schedule of activities commemorating the American Victory at Yorktown, Oct. 16-19.

The ROTC Cadets, who are staging the special ceremony, have chosen the theme, "The Scholar/Soldier: The Revolutionary War and Today." The tribute will blend elements of the historic and the modern Army.

"In 1777, approximately 32 students and professors formed a militia company to protect the town and the College," says Lt. Col. Lawrence M. Beyer, chairman of the Military Science department. "Certain members of that unit eventually joined other companies involved in the Battle of Yorktown. Today, the ROTC Corps at the College symbolizes that contribution and will honor its 18th century counterparts."

Joining the ROTC Cadets for the ceremony will be two military units attired in 18th century garb. The Wakefield Militia Company of Wakefield, Mass., symbolizing the members of the College's 1777 company, will march and fire a volley from authentic weaponry.

Accompanying them will be the Colonial Militia Ancient Fife and Drum Corps from Northern New Jersey.

Representing the modern Army, members of the College's Rangers Club will conduct an assault demonstration, which will include the use of smokescreens, artillery simulators, and the firing of blank ammunition.

After the demonstration, the Queen's Guard and members of the Cadet Corps will parade Cary Field with flags representing the Thirteen Original Colonies. A representative of Gov. John N. Dalton will present College President Thomas A. Graves, Jr., with a battle streamer commemorating the continuous contribution of the William and Mary students to the cause of liberty and preservation of our nation.

As early as 1775, faculty and students from William and Mary joined militia companies organized in the vicinity of Williamsburg. In May 1777, however, the Virginia House of Burgesses issued a statute allowing the formation of two new companies in the colonial capital, one of which was to be composed entirely of students and faculty of the College.

The captain of the company was the soon-to-be-president of the College, the Rev. James Madison, who served in that capacity in 1777 and 1778. Other officers were students such as 1st Lt. Granville Smith of Hanover County, 2nd Lt. William Nelson, Jr., a son of a member of the Board of Visitors, and Ensign Daniel Fitzhugh of King George County.

Research of historical records indicates that the closing of the College in 1781 shortly before the British invasion did not deter some of the students in the militia company from joining other units. From the ranks of William and Mary students came some of the men who helped seal the fate of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown and win American independence.

In addition to their Oct. 17 tribute, members of the ROTC Cadet Corps will serve in various capacities during the four-day celebration. Several cadets will serve as escorts for dignitaries visiting the Yorktown site. Members of the Queen's Guard will march in the Yorktown Day Parade Friday, Oct. 16, and will also participate at the static display to be set up adjacent to the Yorktown Battlefield.

ROTC students will also host a group of cadets from the Irish Military Academy of the Defense Forces of the Republic of Ireland. The Irish cadets will attend Saturday's game and spend the night on campus as guests of various ROTC students.

Thaddeus Weaver Joins Regiment to Participate in Bicentennial

Thaddeus Weaver, a sophomore from Wilmington, Del., wanted to be a part of the Yorktown Bicentennial Celebration, not just a spectator, so he joined the First Continental Regiment of Valley Forge, Pa., and will participate in

Tickets Available For Army Show

As a salute to the Yorktown Victory Celebration, the Army will present its theatrical extravaganza, "Spirit of America," in Hampton Coliseum, October 16 and 17 at 8:00 p.m. each night.

The show features performances by the 3rd Infantry Regiment's "Old Guard" Fife and Drum Corps, Commander-in-Chief's Guard, the U.S. Army Drill Team, the U.S. Army Band, the Herald Trumpets, the Army Chorus, and several soloists. Included will be a reenactment of the Battle of Concord Bridge as well as routines depicting our nation's history as seen in the exploits of the U.S. Army.

Admission is free. However, tickets are required and can be obtained by writing "Spirit of America," P.O. Box 95, Fort Monroe 23651 or calling 800 582-8980.

A limited number of tickets are also available by contacting the College of William and Mary Military Science Department, LTC Beyer, ext. 4475.

the encampment this week with his unit as a Fife Major.

About 4,000 people will be involved in the Yorktown encampment. Weaver's unit will be in charge of the ceremonial music and signaling, which will be part of the engineering demonstration at Yorktown. The first things to go up, he says, will be the field hospital and forge.

His company has participated in reenactments in each of the 13 original Colonies. Members include men and women from many different walks of life including teachers, students, a pipe fitter, businessmen and a biochemist.

The group holds business meetings monthly and has two sets of officers, one for the 20th century business matters that come up and one for the 18th century regiment.

Getting a uniform together is a very specialized job, says Weaver. Leather work has to be specially ordered, also black powder guns. Members try to wear authentic garb, he says. The First Continental Regiment wears cocked hats and regimental coats of green wool with brown facings and pewter buttons, black leather shoes with buckles and half gaiters. Weaver carries a fife and fife case, sword and belt, canteen, haversack for food and a knapsack for clothing. All "small clothes," including breeches and shirt are white linen so they can be washed and bleached to stay clean. A complete wardrobe of regimental clothes costs several hundred dollars, says Weaver. Because members want to come as close as they can to the 18th century soldiering look, clothes that have been well worn and patched are preferred to new ones. "We pride ourselves," explains Weaver "in not looking as if we just stepped out of a Norman Rockwell painting." Weaver first became interested in reenactments when he watched one near Brandywine. His regiment, he says, is like a second family. They finance trips out of their own pockets. They recently flew, in uniform, to perform in South Carolina. All the weaponry of the unit gave the metal detectors at the airport a good workout, and the cabin crew made a special exception to the usual ban on weapons on board the plane.

Weaver says he is learning a lot of history as well as enjoying the camaraderie of the regiment and acquiring a greater appreciation of what the 18th century soldier endured. In particular, Weaver has a great appreciation for such 20th century luxuries as toothpaste and orange juice from the refrigerator. The convenience of fresh squeezed orange juice was a luxury the 18th century soldier never knew, says Weaver, who adds that he never cared for sassafras sticks and sweet gum to prevent tooth decay.

An International Gathering

Members of the International Circle will hold their annual United National dinner on Sunday, Oct. 24 in the Campus Center Ballroom. The dinner will feature dishes from around the world. Former Ambassador Kananatne from Sri Lanka will be guest speaker. There will also be various forms of entertainment provided by the language houses and the International Circle members, following dinner. Tickets go on sale Oct. 16 at the Campus Center and at the Commons during the lunch and dinner hours.

McMahon Exhibit Opens Oct. 19

An exhibit of paintings by Hylarie McMahon, associate professor of art at Washington University School of Fine Arts, St. Louis, will be on display in the Foyer Gallery at Andrews Hall, Oct. 19 - Nov. 13.

"Each piece begins with a notion about color and the application of pigment to cloth. This is why I continue to think of the pieces as essentially paintings, though their construction refers to other models," says the artist.

"The colors are usually intense, not for expressionist impact but to force the spacial contrasts and luminosities in each sequence of color horizons. These separate passages of paintings are put together as required by the structure of the whole piece," says McMahon.

McMahon says she is interested in oriental art and is intrigued to find that spacial zones of different character and scale are often arranged in a hierarchy within a second piece.

"This contrasts," she explains, "with the Western notion that all spacial elements should be similarly expressed within a work, and that if they are not, a situation of deliberate conflict is intended."

The "Canopy of Heaven Series" by McMahon is derived from a motif used occasionally in Early Christian churches. The interior of the dome was painted to represent the heavens, which were imagined as a canopy above the earth, sometimes continuous, or sometimes partially lowered or drawn aside, revealing further spacial and spiritual vistas.

McMahon began her art education at the Slade School of Fine Arts at the London University, where she earned a diploma in painting and sculpture in 1951. She received a Master of Fine Arts degree from Cornell University in 1957 and has done graduate studies in Art History at Washington University.

McMahon was a visiting artist, at several British Universities in 1980 and this year has given a special lecture series this year on prominent artists at Washington University. She was a panel speaker on modernism and post-modernism earlier this year for the Contemporary Art Society at the St. Louis Art Museum.

Personnel Notices

Employee Recognition Award Program

The College of William and Mary initiated a program April 30, 1973, which included the recognition of permanent classified employees who demonstrate outstanding performance and initiative as indicated below:

Members of the College staff who continually perform their duties beyond the normal job requirement as shown by their annual service ratings and other supporting evidence will be recognized. Employees may also be recognized for outstanding performance of a special task beyond normal job expectations. Recommendations should be submitted in writing to the appropriate Dean or Department Head for comments and endorsement. If approval is recommended by all supervisors concerned, the primary recommendation and the endorsements should then be forwarded to the College Personnel Office. Two classified employees were recognized during calendar year 1976, one employee in 1977, one in 1978, five in 1979, three in 1980, and five to date in 1981, in this manner for their performance.

Employees are also encouraged to recommend ways to save money, improve efficiency and promote safety at the College. Recommendations should be submitted in writing by the employee directly to the College Personnel Office, and should include an outline of current and proposed methods of operation, and how changing them will benefit College operating effectiveness. Recommendations will not be considered for award if a similar suggestion has been accepted or rejected within the past twenty-four months, if it is a matter of routine attention, obvious repair or maintenance; if it is a personal grievance or request; or if it is a matter not completely controlled by the College of William and Mary. The Personnel Office will provide assistance in preparing such recommendations.

Winners of citations for performance or accepted suggestions will receive a $50 U.S. Savings Bond. Any employee who receives three or more such citations during the calendar year will receive an additional $50 Savings Bond and will be named "Employee of the Year."

Supervisors at all levels are encouraged to promote this program within their areas of responsibility.

DANCEVENT to Spotlight Faculty Choreography

"Dancevent," with choreography by members of the dance faculty and performance by members of Orchesis, will be held Friday and Saturday evenings, Oct. 23 and 24 at 8:15 p.m., nightly in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. There is no admission charge.

The program will open with "Earth Light," a multi-media interpretation of the shifting illuminations and spirit of different earthscapes. Music by Hovhanness is used with permission of C.F. Peters Corporation, New York City.

"Rainbow Chasers," a spirit piece in three parts, with music by Messina, Lennon/McCartney, and Seger, has been choreographed by Marilyn Brda, a new member of the dance faculty this year.

"Ice Floe," choreographed by Carole Sherman, with music by Reich, is a piece which uses different levels and breaks the shoe-box look of the proscenium stage. "Ice Floe" explores color relations and negative and positive elements of design.

Lighting design for the performance is being directed by Roger Sherman; technical advisor is David Dudley.

Several alumni dancers will join the members of Orchesis for the performances. "An Evening of Dance," to be held March 25, 26, & 27, will feature work choreographed and danced by Orchesis members.

Dances performed for "Dancevent" represent ongoing research by members of the dance faculty. Work by Carole Sherman and Shirley Roby has been supported in part by Faculty Summer Research Grants.

On Oct. 27 and 28, the Martha Graham Dance Company will be on campus for two performances at 8:15 p.m. nightly in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. A different program will be presented each evening. The Dance Company's appearances are part of the Concert Series schedule.

Brda Directs Apprentice Program

The Orchesis Apprentice program this year is under the direction of Marilyn Brda, a new member of the dance faculty. The course is designed to help students develop technical and artistic skills for dancing in ensembles.

Although several in the group hope to become members of Orchesis next year, membership is not essential, says Brda, because others are taking the course as a development step in dance instruction.

Apprentices represent several different levels of dancing skill, says Brda. Some have had quite a bit of studio work; others have not. Brda says she is stressing technical training and helping dancers sharpen their awareness of other dances through repertoire pieces with ensemble problems. Dancers must maintain a high degree of energy but the same time be aware of what other dancers with them are doing, she explains.

Brda expects the apprentices to present a program toward the end of the semester.

Brda brings to the Apprentice Program a background in choreography and performance which includes a four-year term as a performer and choreographer with Somedancers, Inc., from 1974-78. She was a member of the Hubbard Street Dance Company in 1980, and earlier this year choreographed "Star" for the Dance Theatre of Dayton. From 1979 until she came to Williamsburg, Brda was a member of the dance faculty at Wright State University in Ohio where she taught modern technique, jazz technique, ballet, ballroom dancing and the history of dance.

Brda received her dance training at the University of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana where she earned MA and BFA degrees in dance.

evidence of both French and Swedish influences in its culture today.

Zweibrucken today attracts visitors to its world famous flower gardens. The mild climate of the area is inductive to a long growing season, and early spring tulips give way to many different varieties of roses which bloom from early June into late August. On the outskirts of the town are horse farms where the Zweibrucken horse, a breed developed from Arabian stallions and English mares, are raced. Zweibrucken is considered a major center for sports and the arts. Zweibrucken is situated equidistant from the French cities of Metz and Nancy and the German cities of Karlsruhe and Mannheim.

The items on loan also include Mrs. Earl Gregg Swem's Sesquicentennial Medal, and a letter from St. George Tucker to his wife Fannie, dated Nov. 27, 1781, in which he expresses hope that the current campaign will end the war. The Colonial Williamsburg exhibit includes scenes from the 1931 Sesquicentennial pageant and some of the VIP's there, including Gov. John G. Pollard with Lord and Lady Cornwall and U.S. Sen. Fraternity Pitch For United Way May Set Record

They hope to break the Guinness Book of World Records for horseshoe pitching, which is 130 hours. The fraternity men began Friday morning at 7 a.m. and hope to keep going until about 10 p.m. Wednesday evening.

The project is to aid the United Way. Kevin Doyle, mastermind behind the project, says he hopes that contributions from all sources will total $2,000 to $3,000 by the time they are finished.

Members plan to alternate 16 hours of play with eight hours of sleep. The fraternity has chosen the United Way as its philanthropic project this year and plans to establish the "World Record Weekend" as a means of annually helping other causes in the future.

There have been casualties along the way. One member had to drop out because of stomach cramps from too much coffee. One fraternity member required four stitches to close a wound in the back of his head from a wild pitch.

The horseshoe pitchers welcome wellwishers at the pits outside Blow gymnasium. Those wishing to donate to the project may contact any fraternity member or call ext. 4459 or 229-5896.

Dick Prosl, chairman of the Campus United Way Fund Drive, helps Greg Wagner (1) and Kevin Doyle toss out a ringer at the horseshoe pits on the side of Blow gym.
