Degree Recipients Represent Science, Letters and Art

Two nationally distinguished scientists and a leading library scholar will join cartoonist Garry Trudeau as honorary degree recipients at the 1982 commencement exercises at 2 p.m., Sunday, May 16.

Dr. Vincent T. DeVita, Jr., director of the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md., will receive an honorary doctor of science degree along with Frederick Champion Steward, an eminent botanist and cell biologist. Clifton Waller Barrett, author, lecturer, library scholar and former member of the University of Virginia board of visitors, will receive an honorary doctor of literature degree.

Trudeau, the Pulitzer Prize winning creator of the comic strip, "Doonesbury," will be the 1982 commencement speaker and will receive an honorary doctor of humane letters degree. A graduate of Yale University and Yale University School of Art and Architecture, Trudeau was the overwhelming choice for commencement speaker by the senior class, who ranked him number one for his revealing political satire and lampoons of college life.

Trudeau was a student at Yale when he drew his first comic strip entitled "Bull Tales," which appeared in the Yale Daily News and poked fun at everything from campus revolutionaries to football huddles.

As head of the NCI, Dr. DeVita, a 1957 graduate of William and Mary, administers a staff of 1,800 and an annual budget of nearly $1 billion for the federally funded institute.

A pioneer in the development of chemotherapy as a treatment for cancer, Dr. DeVita received his bachelor's degree in chemistry at the College and studied medicine at the George Washington University School of Medicine.

After residencies and clinical studies at George Washington, the NCI, and Yale-New Haven Medical Center, Dr. DeVita joined the NCI in 1966 as senior investigator in its solid tumor service.

At that time, Dr. DeVita and several of his colleagues suggested the use of a sequence of chemicals to stop the spread of Hodgkin's disease and other systemic spreading tumors or systemic cancers such as leukemia. The four-chemical regimen is known by the acronym MOPP, and has proven itself effective in the treatment of such cancers.

The author of more than 300 articles in professional journals, Dr. DeVita is an editorial adviser to journals in cancer research and radiation oncology, biology and physics.

He is a member of the board of the American Society of Clinical Oncology and has received a number of awards for his work including the Albert and Mary Lasker Medical Research Award, and the 1980 Griffuel Prize for cancer research from the Association for the Development of Research on Cancer, a French voluntary research organization.

Frederick C. Steward

In 1976, William and Mary honored Dr. DeVita with its Alumni Medallion, presented for loyalty and service to the College.

Currently a scholar-in-residence at the University of Virginia, Frederick Steward has been called one of the top botanists in the world in the last 50 years. Steward is a leading expert in the field of plant physiology, and his work on somatic embryogenesis marked a milestone in scientific research.

Steward received both his undergraduate degree with honors in chemistry and his graduate degree in botany from the

Clifton W. Barrett

University of Leeds in England, where he was an assistant lecturer from 1927-1933.

His distinguished teaching career included being a Rockefeller Fellow at Cornell University, the University of California at Berkeley and the Marine (Laboratory) of

Helen Thomas to Receive Journalism Award

Journalist Helen Thomas, who will be Journalist-in-Residence, the first since the program gained the sponsorship of The Daily Press, Inc., will participate in three-days of informal meetings on campus Thursday through Saturday, April 15-17.

Miss Thomas, a veteran UPI reporter, will be honored at the Publications Banquet Saturday evening in Andrews Hall and will receive the College's Heritage Award for outstanding achievement in her field.

On Thursday Miss Thomas will visit the 9 a.m. and 11 a.m. government classes of Alan Abramowitz. She will meet for an informal discussion with Scott Donaldson's Creative Writing Class at 3:30 p.m. in the Wigwam in the Campus Center. She will be the guest of honor at a reception at the President's House at 5:30 p.m. (by invitation only).

Friday morning Miss Thomas will visit the 9 a.m. and 10 a.m. government classes of Ronald Rapoport. She will lunch with student leaders in the Wig at noon and will hold a press conference at 2:15 p.m. in the Campus Center Lobby. Her schedule will also include a rap session with WCWM-FM staff members at 3:30 p.m., and a seminar/discussion on "The Presidency," at 8 p.m., (location to be announced).

On Saturday, the final day of her visit, Miss Thomas will hold a rap session/discussion with staff members of the Flat Hat, the Colonial Echo and the Review at 10:30 a.m.

A reception at 6 p.m. in Andrews Hall will precede the publications banquet at 7 p.m. Tickets are available through Wednesday from Elizabeth Hammer, 220-0554 or Wilford Kale at the Richmond Times-Dispatch Office, 229-1512. Banquet tickets are $8 for campus publication staffers; $10 for all others.

Visitors to class sessions should acquire permission of the instructor.

Helen Thomas

Greek Tragedist To Speak Tonight

One of the world's leading authorities on Greek tragedy will lecture tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Morton 20.

Bernard Knox, Director of the Center for Hellenic Studies, Washington D.C., will speak on "Homer and History: Was There a Trojan War?" The lecture is open to all those interested without charge, and is sponsored by the Classical Studies Department, the Classical Studies Club and the College Committee on Lectures.

A wine and cheese reception will follow.

Newsmakers

Mary Ann Sagaria, assistant professor of education, recently presented a paper entitled "The Mobile Staff: Concepts and Determinants of Academic Administrator Job Change: at the American Educational Research Association Meeting in New York City, March 19-23.

She also presented a second paper entitled "Against the Odds: An Analysis of Theories of Adult Motivation for Learning Relative to the Literature on Low-Income Women." Sharon A. Crossland, doctoral student in higher education was the co-author. In addition, Mary Ann Sagaria was co-author with Sabato D. Sagaria of Hampton Institute of a third paper presented at the meeting entitled "Learning and Attitude Changes Resulting from Portrayal of Men and Women in Sex-role Stereotypic Activities Using Verbal and Illustrated Formats."

Robert J. Huggett, associate professor of marine science will present seminars on environmental chemistry at Wright State University, Ohio Northern University, University of Toledo and Indiana-Purdue University during the week of April 12-16. He was invited by the American Chemical Society (ACS) to be a tour speaker for the Lake Lands Circuit, which includes these academic institutions. This is the third successive year he has been asked to participate in such ACS programs.

Carl W. Vermeulen, associate professor of molecular biology, has been elected to the Royal Society of Chemistry (London).

At the 30th Annual Meeting of the Virginia Humanities Conference, on the theme of "Interdisciplinarity and General Education," held April 2-3 at Hampden-Sydney College, Alan E. Fuchs, professor of philosophy participated in a panel discussion on "Justification for Interdisciplinarity," Elsa S. Diduk, professor of modern languages, served on a panel on "The Place of Interdisciplinarity in the Curriculum," and Hans C. von Baeyer, professor of physics and Director of VARC, gave the summary address. Professor Diduk was elected Delegate-at-Large of the Virginia Humanities Conference.

Hans C. von Baeyer, professor of physics and Director of VARC, recently addressed the physics departments of Mary Washington College, Washington and Lee University jointly with Virginia Military Institute, and Guilford College in N.C., on the subject of "The Hunting of the Quark."

Cirila Djordjevic, professor of chemistry, presented a paper "Radical Interactions Via Vanadium Complexes and Cancer," at the March Second Annual Seminar of Cancer Researchers in Virginia, in Norfolk. Undergraduate research students P. L. Wilkins, N. H. Guenther, L. G. Gonshor, J. R. Less, G. M. Matthews and K. J. Roche were co-authors.

The National Center for State Courts has published Court Selection: Student Litigation in State and Federal Courts co-authored by Armand J. Galfo, professor of education and attorneys Thomas Marvell and John Rockwell of the Center. The book provides a report and background material based on an eighteen month study funded by the National Institute for Education and the Exxon Foundation.

R. Merritt Cox, Professor of Spanish, presented a lecture to faculty and graduate students at George Washington University on April 2. His subject was foreign travelers in eighteenth-century Spain and their diaries and journals.

Louis P. Messier, associate professor of education, recently served as chairman of The Special Education Committee involved in a four day evaluation of Virginia Beach Junior High School.

The self-study, undertaken by the Virginia Beach School System, is part of the process leading to accreditation for the Virginia Beach Junior High School.

Polly A. Penhale, assistant professor of marine science, has taken a two-year leave of absence to serve as Assistant Program Director for the Biological Oceanography Program (Ocean Sciences Division) of the National Science Foundation. This work involves program planning, proposal evaluation, administration of research grants and liaison with other federal agencies. She is stationed at NSF headquarters in Washington, D.C.

Penhale has studied the physiology of Chesapeake Bay sea grasses since her 1978 appointment to the research staff and faculty of the Virginia Institute of Marine Science.

Presenting papers at the Northeast Modern Language Association's annual convention, April 4 at Hunter College in New York were Associate Professors Howard Fraser and James Griffin. Fraser spoke on "Games as Repressed Violence in the Contemporary Spanish American Short Story." Griffin's paper dealt with "The Poetic Treatment of Revolutionary Violence in Al Filo Del Agua: An Examination of the Gabriel-Victoria Episode."

Professors of Religion Thomas M. Finn, David L. Holmes, and James C. Livingston attended the southeastern regional meeting of the American Academy of Religion at the University of Florida, Gainesville, from March 18-21. Finn read a paper on the Jewish origins of Alexandrian Christianity; Holmes spoke on "The History of Religion in America Course at William and Mary," in a workshop entitled "Teaching the Religion in America Course." Other panelists were from Wake Forest, Vanderbilt, Auburn, and New College.

At the Sixth Annual Purdue Conference on Film last week, Stanley Lourdeaux, assistant professor of English, presented a paper which will subsequently be published in the 1982 Film Studies Annual: "Populists/Fascists in the Humor of Charlie Chaplin and Frank Capra."

Track Coach Roy Chernock was one of the featured speakers at a running clinic held at the Peninsula Health Department auditorium, April 7 under the sponsorship of the Riverdale Hospital Center for Sports Medicine and the Peninsula Track Club.

AAUP Chapter Sets Meeting

The William and Mary chapter of the American Association of University Professors, AAUP, will meet at 7:30 p.m., Monday, April 19 in the Dodge Room of Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

All AAUP members and interested faculty members are invited to attend.

The Board of Faculty Compensation will report to the chapter and the faculty. The chapter will elect officers to serve during the next academic year.

The Virginia Conference of AAUP will meet on April 17 in Sanger Hall at the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond. Dr. John Casteen, Virginia's Secretary of Education, will speak following the luncheon. Members are asked to consult their spring conference newsletter for additional details.

For further information concerning either the meeting on campus or the Richmond conference, please contact Doug Rendleman at ext. 4699.

Braxton Invited to Yale

Joanne Braxton

Ms. Joanne Braxton, instructor in English, has been invited to speak at two programs in April at Yale University.

Ms. Braxton will speak at a conference April 16, entitled "In Her Own Write: Black Women Writers from the U.S., Africa and the Caribbean in Dialogue," which is being sponsored by the Chubb Fellowship, the Afro-American Cultural Center and the Afro-American Studies Program of Yale University.

Other participants will include Buchi Emecheta, Paule Marshall, Alice Walker, Shirley Ann Williams and Gloria Naylor.

As the guest of the Afro-American Studies program at Yale, Ms. Braxton will speak at a faculty-graduate student forum on April 23. Ms. Braxton has been asked to talk about work from her doctoral dissertation on Black Women's Autobiography and has taken as her topic, "A Textual Study of Harriet Brent Jacobs' 'Incidents in the Life of a Slave Girl' (1860)."

Ms. Braxton joined the William and Mary faculty in 1980. She has a bachelor's degree from Sarah Lawrence College and a master's from Yale University, where she is a doctoral candidate.

Faculty Club Plans Matoaka Picnic

The Faculty Club will end its social season with a picnic to be held at the Lake Matoaka Shelter on Friday, April 16, from 5:30 - 7:30 p.m.

Pork barbecue and hamburger along with cole slaw and potato salad will be served. All the usual beverages will be available. A volleyball net will be set up for those who would like exercise.

The Lake Matoaka Shelter is quite large and should provide adequate protection in the event of inclement weather. Persons attending the picnic should park their cars in the old Common Glory parking lot and follow the path that runs from the back of the white ticket building.

For this event, there will be no raising of the usual fees. Members will be charged $3.50 per person and non-members will be charged $6 per person. Non-drinking members will be charged $2.50 while non-drinking non-members will be charged $5.

As in the past the lower rates are offered to all Professors emeriti and emeritae of the College. All members of the faculty and administration of the college are eligible to attend this picnic.

Notes From Petersburg

Richard Bland Plans Open House April 27

by Marge Solenberger
Richard Bland Public Relations Office

Richard Bland College, Southside Virginia branch of the College of William and Mary, will be among sites opening doors, 10 a.m. - 5 p.m., Tuesday, April 27, for visitors from across the country who come to Virginia during historic Garden Week.

The President's Home on the campus will be among three homes open that day, along with the city-owned Centre Hill Mansion with its garden recently restored by the Garden Club of Virginia, two home gardens and the nature trail at Richard Bland College.

String Workshop

A workshop for string players and string teachers--violin, viola, cello and bass--will be held at Richard Bland College in Petersburg from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, May 15 in the Student Center.

Raymond Montoni, conductor of the Richmond Community Orchestra and director of the Richmond Chamber Players, will conduct the workshop.

Fees are $10 for students through high school and $15 for adults.

For additional information and registration, write Dr. Martha Day, professor of English, Richard Bland College, Petersburg, 23805, or telephone 804-732-0111.

Fire Department Benefit

Theta Delta Chi and Mu Mu raised $125 for the emergency rescue service of the Williamsburg Fire Department at a special "Fireman's Ball" held March 30 at the Pub, featured The Corner Street Blues.

Day Presides At Conference

Richard Bland College English professor Dr. Martha Day presided as president of the 30th Annual Virginia Humanities Conference held April 2 and 3 at Hampden-Sydney College.

The conference with a program involving 70 faculty, administrators and students attracted about 125, a marked increase over recent years.

RBC was co-host with Hampden-Sydney for the program focused on interdisciplinarity and general education.

Faculty participants from RBC included two biologists Cornelis Laban and Thomas Milton and Timothy Evans of the English department. Student representatives were Patricia Keen and David Nunnally, two RBC honor students accepted for admission this fall at the College of William and Mary.

Greetings were offered by Dr. Clarence Maze Jr., RBC president, and Dr. James McNeer, dean of faculty. Others attending from Bland were Edward Hayes and Elaine Potts of English and Susan Brown of art.

Panelists from William and Mary included Alan E. Fuchs of philosophy, chairman of the Honors Committee, and Elsa S. Diduk of German, who was named delegate-at-large.

Conference "Wrap-up" speaker was Hans C. von Baeyer of physics and director of the Virginia Associated Research Campus (VARC) at W&M.

ASP Renamed to Honor Contributions of Rita Welsh

The annual award ceremony for students and tutors of the Adult Skills Program at the College at 10:30 a.m., April 20 in the Dodge Room of Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall will mark a special milestone for the program - a new name in tribute to the late Mrs. Rita Welsh who guided the program since it was established in 1975 until her death last winter.

Nathan Lewis, new president of the ASP Board, will preside at the official designation of the Rita Welsh Adult Skills Program. Dr. Robert Welsh, professor of physics at William and Mary, will unveil a portrait of his wife, which will hang in the ASP classroom.

Funds for the portrait were raised by the Rita Welsh Memorial Fund Committee, which included Harriett Hanke, chairman, Mrs. Zoe Graves, Layton Brenegan, Mrs. Fan Williams, Mrs. Meredith Altshuler, Mrs. Anna Glisson and Irving Robitshek.

The committee also plans to use memorial funds to purchase a micro-learning computer for the program.

The Adult Skills Program at William and Mary is about three-and-a-half times its original size. It began with 40 students in 1975 and this semester is providing 312 hours of individual instruction for 129 adults per week.

Sixty percent of the adult students are employed and represent 25 area employers; they tend to be employed in low level, low paying jobs. The student population is 55 percent female and 45 percent male; ages range from 17 to 67, with 50 percent in the 17 - 33 age range, and 50 percent in the 34 - 67 range.

Currently, 20 percent of the students are learning basic skills; 20 percent are improving skills to better function in the day-to-day situation; 35 percent are preparing for the GED, high school equivalency diploma; five percent are developing writing and math skills; and 20 percent are learning English as a second language.

ASP is unique in that instruction is individualized. All adult students take informal placement tests which indicate their reading and math levels. A course of study is then designated to fit their own level and their own rate of learning. A tutor from the community or the College provides one-to-one instruction. Flexible daytime hours are arranged to fit around the student's job schedule and family demands.

Some 68 of the 112 tutors currently in the program are from a School of Education class at the College who are getting practical teaching experience before they graduate; 44 are from the College and the community as a whole.

Dean James M. Yankovich of the School of Education calls the ASP "a grand opportunity" for a university to fulfill its professional obligation to its students and community to the benefit of both.

"As I see it," says Yankovich, "it is a professional obligation for the university to provide its services to people who in some cases are not served by other institutions. We simply have the expertise, and when we can at the same time accommodate our institutional obligations to students, it is a very appropriate expenditure of time and effort."

Yankovich is very supportive of the program and expresses pride in the fact that it came out of a volunteer effort and is largely sustained by volunteer help.

Initial work for the Adult Skills Program began with a written proposal in the fall of 1974. Funds were obtained the next next spring from the James City County Community Action Agency and the Department of Labor.

Initial work for the program was done by Wesley Wilson, then coordinator of Minority Affairs for the College, and by the director of the College's personnel office, Irving Robitshek.

Since 1979 the William and Mary ASP has been a United Way Agency, and for the calendar year 1982 received $14,991.

Mrs. Welsh was co-director of the program with one of its founders, Donald Lashinger, professor of education.

"She was a remarkable human being," says Lashinger of Mrs. Welsh. "She was one of the most understanding people I have ever met. Her capacity to communicate and understand was phenomenal, in addition to her unusual qualities of organization and hard work."

Tillery and Curtis Plan Recitals

A piano recital and a voice recital will be given this weekend by two seniors.

Wayne N. Curtis, a tenor studying with Mary Eason Fletcher, will present a recital at 8:15 p.m., Saturday, April 17, in St. George Tucker Hall, room 120.

Miss Mary Jo Tillery, a piano student studying with Mrs. Vera Lendvay, will give a recital at 7:30 p.m., Sunday, April 19, in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

Curtis, a history concentrator from Fredericksburg, is a member of the William and Mary Choir, past-president of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia professional music fraternity, past-producer of the Sinfonicon Opera Company, and a member of Omicron Delta Kappa leadership fraternity and Phi Alpha Theta, history honorary. He has been active in theatre and is currently serving as an Aide to the President of the College.

For his recital he will sing "Canciones populares Espanolas," by Manuel de Falla; "Volkslieder," by Brahms including "Sonntag," and "Mein Madel hat einen Rosenmund"; three selections by Reynaldo Hahn; and Blue Mountain ballads by Paul Bowles.

His pianist will be David Thomason, a junior biology concentrator from Richmond who is currently studying with Claudia Stevens.

Miss Tillery will play Organ Prelude in G minor by Bach; Sonata in A Major, Op. 120 by Schubert; Rhapsody in G minor, op. 79, No. 2 by Brahms; Nocturne, Op. 33 by Barber; and "Suite Francaise" by Poulenc.

Wayne Curtis

Mary Jo Tillery

Miss Tillery, an economics and music concentrator, is secretary of the William and Mary Choir, choir director for the Baptist Student Union and second vice president of Delta Omicron, the women's professional music fraternity. She has been a recipient of the Aurelia B. Walford Music Scholarship for music study.

VWSA Plans For Oct. Conference

The Virginia Women's Studies Association, consisting of individuals, organizations, and academic and community-based programs interested in feminist education, will hold its second annual conference on October 23 on campus.

Jessie Bernard, author of The Female World, The Future of Marriage, and

Hanning to Talk On Sir Gawain Friday in Tucker

Robert W. Hanning, professor of English and comparative literature at Columbia University, will lecture on "Sir Gawain and the Red Herring: The Perils of Interpretation in Sir Gawain and the Green Knight," at 3:30 p.m., Monday, April 19, in St. George Tucker Hall, room 114.

Hanning is the author of "The Vision of History in Early Britain," "The Individual in 12th Century Romance," and has translated and edited "The Lais of Marie de France."

The lecture is open to the public without charge. It is sponsored by the English department and the College Committee on Lectures.

College Receives 'Apple' Portrait

A special ceremony was held Saturday in Adair Gymnasium which recalled the warm affection that the First Lady of American Field Hockey felt for the College.

A portrait of the late Constance M. K. Applebee, which she bequeathed to the College, was formally hung in Adair gymnasium. The portrait, by Bern Schwarz, pictures Miss Applebee holding a silver cup presented to her by a group of American women's colleges commemorating the 50th anniversary of her introduction of field hockey to the United States.

Mrs. Elizabeth Burger Jackson '34, a member of the W&M Hall of Fame; Nancy Porter-Engman, field hockey coach 1974-80, and James S. Kelly, assistant to the president gave remarks at the ceremony, tracing Miss Applebee's association with the College.

The address of welcome was made by Mildred B. West, director of women's athletics. The invocation and benediction were offered by the Rev. Thom Blair of Bruton Parish Church.

The late Miss Applebee, known to her friends as "The Apple," was an English-woman who spent her energies in women's sports on both sides of the Atlantic. In 1901, when hockey was considered by many to be too violent an exercise for young ladies, she organized a demonstration of the game for students and faculty of the Summer School at Harvard. That was the beginning of field hockey in the United States.

Dr. Sargent, director of the Harvard gym, praised her as "A young lady of unusual physical vigor and energy who excels in various forms of athletic sports." That was indeed praise for a woman athlete in 1901 and was the first of a parade of accolades that would follow her through her long career.

At 83, Miss Applebee was described by a Christian Science Monitor reporter as still spry and contributing her own special type of talent and youthfulness to the sport of hockey. She died in 1981 at the age of 107.

Miss Applebee first became acquainted with William and Mary when she met Martha Barksdale, Marguerite Wynne-Roberts and her sister, Edna Clements at the hockey camp she ran in 1925. She was then Director of Outdoor Sports at Bryn Mawr, retiring in 1929.

Miss Applebee spent considerable time in Williamsburg helping Miss Barksdale develop the hockey program at the College, and following her retirement from Bryn Mawr she continued to spend most of her winters in Williamsburg.

During World War II, Miss Applebee was a valued worker and contributor to the Red Cross, U.S.O. and local church projects. Even after her retirement in 1967 at age 90 to her home in Burley, England, she stayed in touch with her American friends.

Stevens Recital

Claudia Stevens, lecturer in music at the College of William and Mary, will present a piano recital at 3 p.m., Sunday, April 18, in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

Stevens is especially noted for her performance of contemporary American music. She has given premiere performances of works by such leading American composers as Samuel Adler, David Diamond, Vivian Fine and Hugo Weisgall, a number of them written for her.

The program of Sunday's recital will include "Variations on an Original Theme," by Brahms; Schumann's Kreisleriana"; the Elliott Carter piano sonata; and Chopin's fourth "Ballade."

Nominations Sought for College Honors

The Committee on Prizes and Awards will meet shortly to select the recipients of the major College awards, the Carr Cup and the Sullivan Awards. Nominations for the Carr Cup and the Sullivan Awards may be made by any member of the College Community. Criteria for the awards are as follows:

The Carr Cup - "awarded (to a graduating senior) on the basis of character, scholarship, and leadership. The aim is to find a well-rounded student, having a good standing in all three of these respects, and withal carrying within the spirit of willingness to sacrifice and give oneself to a cause. . ."

The Sullivan Awards - awarded annually "to not more than one man and one woman in the graduating class, and to one other person who has a close relationship to the College. In the selection of the recipients, nothing is considered except the possession of characteristics of heart, mind and conduct as evince a spirit of love for and helpfulness to other men and women."

Please submit all nominations and supporting materials to the Office of the Dean of Students (James Blair Hall, Room 211, Ext. 4387) by April 23.

Four to Receive Honorary Degrees May 16

the Carnegie Institute of Washington, D.C. From 1934-1947 Steward served on the faculty of the University of London, and in 1936 received a doctor of science degree in botany.

During World War II, Steward left the University of London when his lab was destroyed during the Blitz. From 1946-50, he was professor of botany and eventually chairman of the department at the University of Rochester.

From 1950-73, he served as professor of botany at Cornell University, during which time he was named director, Laboratory of Cell Physiology, Growth and Development there.

In 1965, Steward was named the Charles A. Alexander Professor of Biological Sciences at Cornell, and upon his retirement from the university in 1972, Steward became Alexander Professor of Biological Sciences, Emeritus.

Since his retirement, Steward has served as adjunct professor in the Department of Cellular and Comparative Biology for the State University of New York at Stony Brook, and in 1974 was named a Scholar-in-Residence at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville, where he makes his home.

The recipient of numerous academic awards and honors, Steward is a Fellow of the Royal Society of London and a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts & Sciences.

He has received an honorary degree from the University of Delhi in India, and in 1973-74 was visiting professor at the University of Madras in India and a visiting lecturer in 1975 at the University of British Columbia.

Author, lecturer and bibliophile C. Waller Barrett has been called "the most vital and prominent book collector on the American scene." He has devoted his life to the acquisition of rare American books and manuscripts and to the advancement of libraries.

Barrett has served as a trustee or as an officer or board member of friends groups to most of the major libraries across the nation.

Perhaps his greatest gift to the literary world, however, was the donation of his life's collections to the University of Virginia to form the C. Waller Barrett Library of American Literature, considered to be the best and most complete collection of American literature in existence.

The Barrett Library contains almost one half million books, manuscripts, letters and memorabilia of about 1,500 American authors and is worth an estimated $15 million.

Barrett's wide-ranging career has also encompassed the business world. After serving as an assistant to the vice president of a New York shipping firm in the 1930's, Barrett became founder, vice president and director of the North Atlantic & Gulf Steamship Co. of New York and was president of the company from 1952-54.

In addition, Barrett served as president of the board of education of Henry Holt & Co., from 1945-46, and was president and chairman of the board of directors of Norgulf Corp. He has also served on the board of directors of Eastern Broadcasting Corp., Alexandria Improvement Corp., Corp., 620 Park Avenue Corp., and Holt, Rinehart and Winston.

Mark Rogers Wins 1982 Harry Truman Scholarship

Mark M. Rogers, a sophomore, is an at-large winner of a 1982 Harry S. Truman Scholarship.

Sponsored by the Harry S. Truman Scholarship Fund as an official memorial to the 33rd President, the award offers up to $5,000 yearly to winners for the final two years of undergraduate schooling and two years of graduate study for applicants interested in careers in public service.

A winner is selected from each of the 50 states and the territories and 26 at-large awards are made.

Rogers is aiming for a career in foreign service. He is particularly interested in China, is studying the Chinese language, and last summer spent seven weeks at the Peking Language Institute.

Rogers feels his interest in Chinese and his initiative in undertaking study abroad helped strengthen his credentials for the scholarship award. He has also demonstrated interest in public service through his membership in the International Relations Club, the Virginia Public Interest Research Group, PIRG, and the Circle K service organization. Earlier he was active in the Anderson presidential campaign.

A 1980 graduate of Radnor High School, Bryn Mawr, Pa., Rogers was active in community service groups before coming to William and Mary and participated in minor state legislative campaigns in Pennsylvania.

Of the award, Rogers says, "It is good to have something to work for and it places a greater value on the education I am receiving to be recognized prior to actually getting a degree."

The selection process, he says, was a learning experience. Finalists were interviewed by a panel of five judges who fired questions based on two essays and a public policy issue of the candidate's choosing. Rogers elected to talk about the issue of selling more sophisticated weaponry to Taiwan because of the prominence of that issue in the news at the time of his interview.

Rogers says he appreciates the help he has received from William Morrow of the government faculty, faculty liaison for the scholarship program, Dr. Choghan Kim and his Chinese instructor, Mrs. Ann Edie.

Other Winners

Congratulations also to Debbie Meyers, daughter of Associate Dean of Arts and Sciences for winning the Peninsula Spelling Bee sponsored by The Times-Herald. Now it is on to Washington.

Congratulations also to writer Art Buchwald, holder of a William and Mary honorary degree for a Pulitzer prize for commentary.

Rogers' interest in public affairs and especially China, have been helped along by the work of his mother, the Rev. Linda Rogers, a Lutheran pastor, who works on the resettlement of Indo-Chinese refugees through a church agency. Rogers also wants to give credit to his father, Robert F. Rogers, a real estate developer in Bryn Mawr, for lots of both moral and financial support.

Mark Rogers

Faculty Debate

There will be a faculty debate at 5 p.m., Thursday, April 15 in Chancellors Hall room 102 on the topic "The Role of Federal Reserve."

The debate, sponsored by the W&M Business Review, is open to the public.

Formal presentation of awards to winners will be made in Truman's hometown of Independence, Mo., Rogers isn't sure if his exam schedule will allow him to make the trip.

Rogers is the second William and Mary student to win this award. Clay Clemens '80 currently a student at the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University.

Players Will Present Belle of Amherst

The Covenant Players of the College of William and Mary will present Miss Lora Jacobsen as Emily Dickinson in The Belle of Amherst.

Performances of The Belle of Amherst will be held at 8:15 p.m., April 23 and at 2 p.m., April 24, 25 in the Botetourt Theatre of Swem Library. General admission is $2. Tickets will be available at Binn's Fashion Store on Merchants' Square beginning April 16 or at the door.

The play by William Luce is an exploration of the world of Dickinson through her words and ideas. All of the action in the play takes place in the Dickinson household in Amherst, Ma., from the mid to late 1800's. Although the play is a one-woman show, Emily slips into numerous characters that have touched her life and her creative mind. The play opened on Broadway in April 1976 with Julie Harris as Emily, directed by Charles Nelson Reilly.

Miss Jacobsen has appeared in numerous productions of the William and Mary Theatre, including Waiting For Godot, Waltz of the Torreadors, and Measure for Measure. She has most recently appeared as Beverly in the Covenant Players' fall production of The Shadow Box.

The Covenant Players is a shared activity of the Catholic Student Association and the Canterbury Association which evolved from a covenant signed between Catholic and Episcopal students at the College in 1977. The group seeks to bring a ministry of drama to the College and community by offering plays of religious significance, produced by student casts and crews, giving all profits to charity.

ADMISSIONS OFFICE ROADRUNNER

Alumni Network Provides Valuable Service

In the weeks following the Alumni Leadership Conference on September 19, 1981, action was taken in the Admissions Office to make schools and applicants aware of the availability of the services of the Alumni Admissions Network. Letters were sent to each guidance director in the five geographic areas, announcing the formation of our Network and listing the names of the area members. Directors were invited to call upon the committee members as needed for information, interviewing, and/or college fairs. The Admissions Office staff was also given Network information to provide to the many individuals who call or write requesting the name of an alumnus in their area. Network members conducted interviews and sent evaluations which were very helpful in evaluating candidates. Many report numerous telephone calls from prospective applicants seeking information or advice about applying to the College. The Virginia Beach and Roanoke committees assisted Dean Ripple with large scale college fairs held in their respective areas. He was most appreciative of their help and found them to be quite knowledgeable about William and Mary and admissions procedures. Other members have acted or will act as our representative at various other college fairs.

During January and February, a major responsibility of the Network was to interview candidates for admission. These individual interviews provided personal attention to our applicants, gave them an opportunity to learn more about William and Mary, and gave the Admissions Office another dimension of the applicant for evaluation. Approximately 480 applicants from the five areas were invited to a central location in their region to be interviewed by committee members on one of three Saturdays, January 30, February 6, or February 27; 268 of these took advantage of the opportunity. The alumni conducting the interviews sent the Admissions Office evaluations which were considered during the deliberations of the candidates.

The Admissions Office has kept the Network members informed of office activities through frequent memos, telephone calls, and reports. Each member is sent the Flat Hat and the William and Mary News each week so that they can remain up-to-date on campus activities. Members have been in frequent contact with Karen Schoenenberger calling to check facts, or to discuss candidates.

Transfers Listed For Richard Bland

Acceptance of a dozen transfer students from its Southside Virginia branch for the fall semester at the College of William and Mary has been revealed by the office of admissions.

Included on the list from Richard Bland College are students representing eight localities in Southside Virginia and one from out-of-state. They are Victor Branch of DeWitt, Edward (Sunny) Cameron, Brenda Frye, Patricia Keen and James McMillen, all of Hopewell; M. Jerome Hayes of Disputanta, Mary Ann Kearns of Chester, Beverly McCollum of Charles City, David Nunnally of Dinwiddie, Brock Wood of Colonial Heights, Allan Joseph Zoldork of Prince George and Tom Crapps of Live Oak, Fla.

After decisions were made and students notified on April 1, Network members were notified about the action taken on each candidate they interviewed. Sometime during the month of May, a formal evaluation of this pilot year of the program will be undertaken.

Financial Aid Situation Still Not Settled

Financial Aid Confusion

Bobby Goldsboro sings a song entitled Saturday Morning Confusion which could be adopted by the Department of Education as its theme. Of course, not all the blame for confusion in student financial aid can be heaped on the Department of Education. The Congress of the United States must share the "distinction."

Entering students' offers of assistance are mailed in early April. If we are lucky, we may get tentative allocation letters from the Department of Education by late April. The confusion surrounding funding and financial assistance offers carries over to students and parents who are faced with the need to select the college or university of first choice, usually May 1. The lack of, or uncertainty of information about student financial assistance surely adds to the anxiety of many families.

We wish it were not so.

Open House Set For New Students

William and Mary's faculty and staff will welcome our recently accepted students and their parents to our annual Open House on Saturday, April 17. This is an excellent opportunity for admitted students to spend more time on campus and become oriented to the Williamsburg area. Our professors are more than willing to chat with students interested in a subject area and provide more specific information on courses of study.

The visitors will be entertained by the talented Botetourt Singers during a picnic lunch, before heading off to see other campus buildings. A financial aid session will be conducted to answer questions and eliminate some concerns of students and parents.

The day will move on with great sports action provided by the William and Mary tennis, baseball, and lacrosse teams. A busy Saturday will be concluded with the William and Mary Theatre's production of "The Elephant Man."

Wanted

Departmental brochures, pictures, samples of rare species nurtured in the greenhouses. . . whatever seems reasonable to add to our display of materials for prospective students.

Mailing to Seniors

We've already started our search for outstanding high school seniors--those who will make up our 1983 freshman class. Using names received from the College Board Student Search Program, we have mailed introductory information to 5000 prospective candidates encouraging their consideration of William and Mary as they seek the best college.

New "Guide for Transfer Students from Virginia Community Colleges"

An updated version of this publication is hot off the press. This bulletin is designed to provide information for potential transfer students in the Virginia Community College System regarding admission procedures, degree requirements, academic regulations, and evaluation of credits at the College of William and Mary. In addition, it contains a list of Virginia Community College System courses and their William and Mary counterparts.

Fall Profile

Some statistics on the applicants for Fall, 1982: 2333 Virginians applied, 1163 were accepted. 3450 out-of-state applicants, 715 were accepted.

Spring Counselor Tour

On Friday, April 16, the Admissions Office will be participating in a Spring Counselor Tour along with other institutions in the state. About fifty counselors from high schools and secondary schools across the country will spend three days touring the University of Richmond, Randolph-Macon College, Mary Washington College, and William and Mary. The last leg of the tour will begin when the counselors arrive on campus early Friday morning. At that time the counselors' orientation to William and Mary will commence with a student-guided tour of the campus. The counselors will also be introduced to other aspects of the college community through faculty and student discussion panels. The purpose of the tour will be to inform counselors about the total William and Mary community so that they will have a great amount of knowledge to disperse to their students.

'Elephant Man' Opens Wednesday to Close Season

In Don Reilly, a freshman, the NFL may have lost another Roger Staubach, but Broadway may get a talented actor-director instead.

Reilly, who won critical praise for his performance as Hotspur in "Henry IV" earlier this year, will play the challenging title role in "The Elephant Man," to be presented by the William and Mary Theatre, April 14, 15, 16 and 17.

All seats are $4 and may be reserved by calling the Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall box office at 253-4272.

As a freshman at Woodson High School in Fairfax, Va., Reilly was very involved with football, but he took a class from drama coach Joan C. Bedinger and found a new love -- the theatre.

Energetic, as well as talented, Reilly finished high school in three years by doubling up on his courses, so the list of his stage credits isn't as long as it might have been. However, at Woodson Reilly played Eugene in "Look Homeward Angel", was a member of the dance and singing corps in "Pippin", portrayed Dr. Doolittle in "My Fair Lady", was the director in "Stages," a one act play which won first place in Virginia Theatre Association competition; and was assistant director for "Applause."

While in high school Reilly was also a contributing writer and actor in "Seasons To Be," which was presented at the Kennedy Center Musical Theatre Lab.

Ms. Bedinger says Reilly is "a very versatile actor, very serious and very professional in his approach to his work in the theatre."

Reilly's serious approach to his current role is evident when he talks about how he is developing his characterization of John Merrick, the Elephant Man. Merrick was an Englishman who was disfigured by neurofibromatosis, and was rescued by a physician from his life as a carnival freak to become the toast of London society.

"It is a tremendous challenge," says Reilly. "Of all the roles in contemporary plays, it is hard to think of one with such technical difficulty and so many demands on the actor both physically and vocally.

Reilly will not wear the make-up used in the movie version of the play. Instead, he will rely on skillful manipulation of his body to convince the audience that his disfigurement is indeed shocking to behold.

The script notes include a warning that the role of Merrick should not be attempted by any actor with back trouble. To be sure that Reilly doesn't develop back trouble from the role, he is working with Williamsburg chiropractor Dr. E. P. Panza.

Dr. Panza

Not only must Reilly work on posturing, he also must make sure he has the endurance to sustain a performance that calls for him to be in all but two or three of the 21 scenes of the play.

When the audience first sees Merrick, he is standing erect and as an actor describes his crippling disease, Reilly slowly bends his body into the contorted posture he will maintain for the rest of the play.

Don Reilly as John Merrick, the elephant man is shown in a scene with Paul Sagan as Dr. Treves. Reilly will play the title role in "The Elephant Man" without the benefit of make-up.

Dr. Panza's counseling was sought by some of Reilly's classmates, who were concerned that his earnestness in portraying Merrick might cause him troubles with his spine.

"He is putting a lot of stress on his spine," says Dr. Panza. Dr. Panza is counseling Reilly three times a week during rehearsals and will continue through the run of the play and beyond to make sure that the effects of the strain will not cause him any problems later on.

Because Dr. Panza's professional approach is geared to preventative measures, trying to prevent scoliosis, it is a challenge, he says, to help someone look as if they have scoliosis.

Dr. Panza has rapidly become a William and Mary fan since he moved here from Sharon, Pa. last year. His initial contact was with wrestlers since his three sons are competitors and his eldest, Tony, is a state champion at Lafayette High School. He has also worked with gymnasts.

He volunteers his help, he says because he finds students "attractive" and refreshing to work with.

"One thing that has impressed me is that the students I have worked with here are doing something constructive for their generation. You read about the 10 percent that are not but these students are in the 90 percent; they are working and have set goals for themselves and are working toward those goals. He characterized the concern of Reilly's drama classmates for his safety, "a very caring gesture."

Dr. Panza holds a Saturday morning clinic from 9 a.m. to 12 noon on a donation basis at his office for students who want to see him.

He, like Ms. Bedinger, plans to attend a performance of "The Elephant Man."

Local Physician to Speak at Post-Curtain Forum

by Caroline Morris '82

The William and Mary Theatre production of The Elephant Man is hosting a unique post-show forum on John Merrick and his hereditary disorder, neurofibromatosis, after its Thursday, April 15 performance.

Along with the director and cast will be special guest Dr. Richard Honablue, M.D., a local family practitioner, who has previously worked with victims of the disorder.

The audience is invited to remain after the 8:15 p.m. performance to ask questions on the play, the production, the scenic and technical aspects, and on John Merrick and his disorder.

Director Richard Palmer states one reason for the round table discussion is "because neurofibromatosis is a current problem, not just an historical one, and the play has drawn wide public attention to the disorder and created a strong social consciousness."

Whereas, in Merrick's time, the illness was hidden from the public eye, it now draws a sympathetic curiosity. In response to this public interest, the National Neurofibromatosis Foundation founded a Virginia Tidewater chapter last October. One of the chapter's many goals is to find doctors who can help victims by offering both knowledge and time.

Dr. Honablue is one such doctor. He works at the Family Practice of Williamsburg on Cary Street, is a diplomat for the American Board of Family Physicians and a member of both the American Medical Association and the American Academy of Family Physicians.

"During my training (at the Meharry Medical College in Tennessee)," explains

Honablue, "I had the opportunity to care for a number of patients afflicted with neurofibromatosis, also known as Von Recklinghausen's disease." Most of Dr. Honablue's contact with the disorder was at a Child Development Center.

Dr. Honablue adds, "As a family physician, I'm not only interested in the medical illness, but also in the social and psychological aspects of the disease entity."

Changes in Personnel Records

It is the responsibility of each employee to advise the College Personnel Office whenever a change affecting their personnel records is appropriate. For example, it is extremely important that each member of the Virginia Supplemental Retirement System keep up-to-date the designation of their beneficiary. The beneficiary is the person, or persons, to whom the contributions and interest credited to the member's account, or other benefits in the Retirement System, are to be paid in the event of the member's death. Form VSRS-1, Designation of Beneficiary, is used for changing the designation of beneficiary. This form will also be used to distribute the proceeds from a member's Group Life Insurance Policy.

Other changes, such as home address and/or telephone number, or attainment of an educational degree or certificate or any other evidence that may qualify the employee for promotion, should be reported in writing to the College Personnel Office. Changes in Federal/State tax exemption status or any changes affecting Blue Cross/Blue Shield coverage must be completed by the employee in the College Personnel Office.

Employees, by appointment, may review their personnel files in the Personnel Office to insure that the information contained in the file is current and correct.

Equal Employment Opportunity Policy

The Commonwealth of Virginia shall provide equal employment opportunity to its employees and applicants for employment on the basis of fitness and merit without regard to race, color, religion, national origin, handicap, sex or age (except where sex or age is a bona fide occupational qualification). This policy shall be followed in recruiting, hiring, promotion into all position classifications, compensation, benefits, transfers, layoffs, returns from layoff, demotions, terminations, State sponsored training programs, educational leave, social and recreational programs and use of State facilities. Any person employed by the Commonwealth of Virginia who fails to comply with this policy is subject to disciplinary action.

They are looking for people interested in sales opportunities doing personal and business insurance planning for professionals and business executives.

The training will be located in the Tidewater area, however, once trained, a representative may transfer anywhere in the United States.

If you are interested, please call the placement office (4604) to make an appointment.

ODU Basketball Pulls Out of ECAC

Although basketball power Old Dominion University has decided to pull out of the Eastern College Athletic Conference's (ECAC) Southern Division, the rest of the group, including William and Mary, have decided to stay together for another two years.

"There is no question that with them in the field it presents a more challenging situation, but we have a very strong schedule," says Head Basketball Coach Bruce Parkhill.

Athletic Director Jim Copeland said that although ODU was not in the Conference, William and Mary would continue to play them and maintain the rivalry between the two schools.

For both Copeland and Parkhill, the most important aspect of the Conference is not the loss of Old Dominion, but the fact that the winner of the Conference tournament gets an automatic berth in NCAA competition.

Parkhill, however, would like to see the tournament, now scheduled for the University of Richmond, moved to a neutral court so no one has the home court advantage.

But adds Parkhill, "The bottom line is that we have a route to the NCAA."

UNICEF Benefit

Tau Kappa Epsilon is sponsoring "Quiz for the Kids," a 15-hour marathon trivia contest for the benefit of UNICEF, from 9 a.m. to midnight, Saturday, April 17 in the Campus Center.

Marty Kloeden and Marc Balcer who produce the Quiz Kid Show for the campus radio station WCWM came up with the idea for the marathon and are continuing to work with the fraternity in setting up the event.

There is still time to make pledges.

Sophomore Steering Committee Seeks Membership for 82-83

The Sophomore Steering Committee is accepting applications for 1982-83 membership through Friday, April 16.

Applicants may be current freshmen, sophomores or juniors. Forms are available in Dean Sadler's Office, James Blair 212 and should be returned there after completion.

Further information concerning the Committee may be obtained by calling either Sue Newman, ext. 4062 or Susie Sweetser, ext. 4237.

Clark Prizes

Four prizes, each of $50, are being offered for student writing. The Glenwood Clark Prize for the best piece of fiction submitted, the Goronwy Owen Prize for the best poem, the Howard Scammon Prize for the best play, and the venerable Tiberius Gracchus Jones Literary Prize for the best writing regardless of type are included.

Entries, not necessarily limited in number, should be given to Cecil McCulley, English Department, 303 Tucker Hall, by Friday, April 28.

Russian Speaker

The Russian House will present a lecture by the well-known author and advocate of international human rights, Mihajlo Nihajlov at 5 p.m., Friday, April 16 in the Russian House.

Mihajlov will take as his topic, "A Dissident's Life."

Job Interviews

Planning Research Corporation, the largest computer planning organization in the world will be on campus to interview students Tuesday, April 20. The division interviewing works closely with the Department of Defense. The job will initially be located in McLean, Va., however, it could eventually lead to overseas or nationwide relocation. Therefore, applicants must be willing to relocate.

The job is entry level in computer operations leading to analysis and planning. Requirements consist of at least 24 hours of computer science background accompanied by any major or graduate degree.

PRC representatives will be prescreening resumes, therefore, interested applicants must submit resumes to the office of placement by 5 p.m. Tuesday, April 13.
