

College Receives Nearly $5M - Records Set

The College received nearly $5 million in private gifts in 1981-82, its highest total in history and nearly a 100 per cent increase over 1980-81.

The $4,947,091 in private gifts exceeded the previous record of $3,783,100 set in 1977-78 during the height of the Campaign for the College and was almost $2.5 million more than last year when William and Mary received $2,563,319.

"This was obviously a most gratifying year," said Thomas A. Graves, Jr., president of the College. "To have such a dramatic increase in private giving to the College during a year when the economy did not perform well, indicates a strong faith on behalf of the donors, particularly our alumni in the College of William and Mary."

The 1981-82 total included a record $1,568,007 from 8288 alumni, which represented a $600,000 increase over last year. The William and Mary Fund set a record for the second year in a row, totaling $568,898 in cash with an additional $35,318 in outstanding pledges for a total commitment of $604,216.

Increases in other components of private giving were also dramatic:

The Athletic Educational Foundation, which raises money to fund grants-in-aid for student athletes, received a record total of $622,102, a 38 per cent increase over last year's $451,000.

Foundation gifts which included the two largest single gifts during the 1981-82 year, totalled $1,556,548. The Foundation total included grants from the William R.

Kenan, Jr., Trust and the Alfred Wilson Lee and Mary I. W. Lee Memorial Trust.

Corporate gifts increased by 27 per cent to nearly $500,000 and corporate matching gifts were up by 100 per cent to $155,000.

Gifts from the "Friends of the College," under the leadership of J. B. Hickman of Williamsburg, one of the leading volunteers who helped the College during the year, increased by more than $16,000 to top the $100,000 mark for the first time.

Gifts to the Women's Athletic Association, which initiated its first fund drive in history, totalled nearly $22,000, surpassing its goal of $20,000.

Gifts in-kind, represented by works of art, library books, antiques and furnishings, exceeded $64,000.

A $750,000 gift from the Kenan Foundation to endow a professorship in the humanities was one of the largest foundation gifts in the College's history, while a $1.75 million gift over seven years from the Lee Trust to establish an Institute on Bill of Rights Law in the Marshall-Wythe School of Law was the largest gift in the College's history. The College received seven other gifts in excess of $100,000, and 42 more from $5,000 to $100,000.

Unrestricted annual support for current operations -- those funds allocated for budgeted uses -- reached $711,391.92, an increase of $258,763, or 24 per cent over the previous year. The balance of $1,333,849 was designated for restricted purposes by the donors.

College Welcomes Parents to Campus Oct. 8-9

Over 1,500 are expected for the annual Parents Weekend Oct. 8-9.

The two-day agenda reflects the wide range of Association of Parents interests.

There will be a meeting especially for parents of freshmen, Friday afternoon. Saturday morning a series of lectures and panel discussions are scheduled across campus.

"With a Twist," a videotape program on alcohol education, produced with a grant from the Association of Parents, will be presented by June S. Henderson, a staff physician with the Student Health Service, and Leonard G. Holmes, clinical psychologist with the Center for Psychological Services.

Amy L. Jarmon, associate dean of students, and Charles J. Lombardo, director of residence life, will present a program entitled "Self Determination: A Lesson in Responsibility."

And there will be a glimpse for parents of the variety of topics their sons and daughters learn about in the classroom. George M. Grayson, department of government, will talk about current international economics in a talk entitled "Mexico: The Basket Case of the International Financial System." John F. Lavach, School of Education, will speak on "Human Growth and Development Revisited," a look back at a popular education course.

James D. Kornwolf, department of fine arts, will lecture on "Colonial American Architecture: Macrocosm and Microcosm." Vinson H. Sutlive, Jr., professor of anthropology, will talk on "Race and Culture," and Barbara A. Watkinson of the fine arts faculty, will talk on "Excavations at St. Michel de La Guerche, Tours, France."

The general meeting of the Association of Parents will be held Saturday morning in Phi Beta Kappa Hall with Eliza Michell, student chairman, presiding. Co-chairmen of the Association are Dr. and Mrs. Abelardo Ruiz of Portsmouth, Va.

But not all of the weekend will be devoted to serious business. President and Mrs. Thomas A. Graves, Jr., will host parents, faculty and staff at a reception in the Wren Yard, Friday afternoon.

College-Community Orchestra will give a joint concert for parents Friday evening in the Campus Center Ballroom.

The Speakers Forum is sponsoring Kevin McCarthy as Harry S. Truman in a program entitled "Give 'Em Hell Harry," to be presented in William and Mary Hall Saturday evening.

Luncheon on the lawn will be served Saturday before the football game and a number of receptions and open houses for

Cochrane to Receive Business Medallion

If Harwood Cochrane had been a better Latin scholar back in 1927 when he attended Cardwell High School, his career path might have taken a different turn, but he wasn't, and today at 70 he is a highly successful businessman whose accomplishments haven't suffered a bit from his classical deficiency.

Harwood Cochrane, chairman of the board of Overnite Transportation Company, headquartered in Richmond, is being honored for his distinguished business career and his high standards of professionalism and integrity as the recipient of the 1982 Business School Medallion from the School of Business Administration.

Presentation of the 1982 Medallion will be made at a Sponsors Day Luncheon Saturday, Oct. 9, in Williamsburg. Nominees for the award are selected by the business school faculty.

Today Cochrane guides one of the major trucking companies in the nation. Operating in 48 states with an employer roster of over 6,000 and revenues of $300 million, Overnite Transportation has an enviable record of both growth and profit in a highly competitive field.

A native of Goochland County, Cochrane was an average student at Cardwell High when he made a grade of 13 on a Latin exam. Cochrane's family had moved to Richmond earlier in the year, and he was living with relatives to finish out the term.

As a result of his grades, Cochrane's mother decided he might be more producive in the work force in Richmond than in the classroom in Goochland. At 16, he went to work driving a horse and wagon for Virginia Dairy. His father had died earlier that year when the family moved to Richmond.

Cochrane feels that his accomplishments in a free enterprise system can be repeated by men willing to work hard and produce with optimum efficiency.

"Under the free enterprise system it is possible for people to start and succeed today," he says but adds, "It takes money today. You can't start on a shoestring like you used to be able to do."

Cochrane recalls a $35 loan he got from his wife back in leaner times when he needed to pay his first insurance premium. His net worth then, he says, was about $1,500, which included the down payment on a house.

"Experience is a great teacher," says Cochrane. "My desire was never to just be rich. I had the desire to succeed in what I was doing--the trucking business."

William and Mary's Business Medallion was first awarded in 1976 to Thomas J. Watson, Jr., former chairman of International Business Machines. Other recipients include F. Dewey Gottwald and Floyd D. Gottwald, Jr., vice chairman and chairman of Ethyl Corporation; Thomas C. Boushall, honorary chairman of the Bank of Virginia; Thomas A. Murphy, chairman of General Motors; Frank Borman, chairman of Eastern Airlines; and James C. Wheat, Jr., chairman of Wheat, First Securities.

Cochrane attributes the success of Overnite Transportation Company primarily to an adherence to a company philosophy of dependable service through effective control of all operations. The company buys, maintains and sells all its own equipment; owns its own terminals and uses only company dispensed fuel. Part of Overnite's fuel conservation program has been to use radial tires, wind

Visitors Prime Challenge With $40,000

Members of the Board of Visitors, in an effort to increase alumni support for the academic program, have contributed $40,000 of their own money to establish a challenge fund to match, dollar for dollar, all gifts to the William and Mary Fund once a $600,000 total is reached.

"We hope the challenge fund will inspire both our regular contributors and those graduates who have never contributed to William and Mary," says Aubrey L. Mason, a 1947 graduate who, with his wife, Sissy, class of 1949, is co-chairing the 1982-83 William and Mary Fund. Mason is also a member of the College Board of Visitors.

"As individuals, some Board members have contributed to the William and Mary Fund throughout their lives, but I don't think anyone has asked them to pledge a specific amount before," says Mason, a native of Lynchburg and executive president of Legg & Mason, Inc., an investment firm.

Almond Tree Planted for St. Francis

The Catholic Student Association and Canterbury Association marked the 800th birthday of St. Francis with a tree planting ceremony on Barksdale Field Monday afternoon.

Representatives of the two groups gave to the College a flowering almond tree which has been planted in a corner of the field, adjacent to Andrews Hall.

Father Ron Seguin of St. Bede's and the Rev. Richard E. May from Bruton Parish Church, Bob Newman, CSA president; and Rob Smith, Canterbury president, were on hand to make the presentation of the tree which was accepted on behalf of the College by the Vice President for Business Affairs, Lawrence W. Broomall.

Kim Kalman, youth minister at St. Bede's presented a guitar solo as part of the brief ceremony.

Father Seguin explained that the tree was selected because it is in keeping with Jefferson's pastoral image for the campus and because it is said that it was the olive tree that suddenly burst into bloom to give St. Francis re-affirmation of his faith during a trying period of his life.

The Masons are also hoping that the personal financial commitment by the Board will help emphasize the Board of Visitors' concern for maintaining and enhancing the College's academic program. "I believe the Board is showing that it is interested in and concerned about the well-being of the entire College, not just one little corner of it," he says.

Herbert V. Kelly, rector of the College, agrees that the Board wants to communicate its concerns through the establishment of the challenge fund. "We are trying to convey that in these very trying financial times for the College, it is even more incumbent upon our alumni to support what we know William and Mary to be," Kelly says. "We want to insure that William and Mary will remain an excellent institution for years to come."

Parents Program

parents are scheduled around campus following the game.

The weekend program will conclude with an ecumenical worship service in the Wren Chapel (outdoors weather permitting) on Sunday morning.

The Association of Parents works to increase communication between parents, administration, faculty and students. Parents Weekend activities, special mailings, and the distributing of the Alumni Gazette to parents are actions designed in part to increase this communication.

The Association also assisted in expanding career placement opportunities for graduating students and seeks to encourage major gifts for the College.

The start of the race with runners chasing ambulance

Phi Delta Phi Runs to Help Emergency Service

Over 220 runners competed in the 5th annual Ambulance Chase road race, held by Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity for the general benefit of the Williamsburg Rescue Squad held Saturday, Oct. 2.

In the five kilometer race, John Thelin, professor of education, won the men's open division in a fast 16:10 pace, while the women's open crown was won by Diane Hawley, an undergraduate, in a time of 18:37.

Among the law students in the race, Mike Doucette and Nora Brown, both members of the second year class, captured the men's and women's titles with a time of 18:48 and 21:35.

In the 10 kilometer race the men's open division winner was Keith Wilhelm, a law school alumnus, who ran an easy 36:55. In second place was Pete Kennedy, a second year law student.

Last finisher was Jerry Douglas who was very proud of his performance. "I finished last, but I didn't stop. Not once. I finished last honorably," said Douglas.

Each participant received a commemorative T-shirt.

The final tally is not in but race coordinator Tom Hicks hopes that over $100 will be donated to the Rescue Squad.

Gifts to College

Gifts designated for capital support, primarily endowment and the Joseph and Margaret Muscarelle Art Museum now under construction, totalled $2,901,850, or more than 50 per cent of all gifts. Almost $2 million of the capital support was designated for endowment, of which $1,274,979.57 was specifically designated for faculty salaries, which the College considers its top priority. A total of $261,986 was designated for endowed scholarships and fellowships.

Duane A. Dittman, vice president for University Advancement, paid tribute for the record setting year to the hundreds of volunteers who contributed their time and talent and the 11,000 donors who contributed their hard-earned dollars.

"Volunteers, along with the generosity of our donors, are what insures the future of the College's high quality educational program and the value of a William and Mary degree to society," he said.

There will be a read-through of Book I of J. S. Bach's "Well-Tempered Clavier." Members of the faculty and students will perform and there will be a harpsichord, clavichord and piano on stage.

Margaret Freeman, chairman of the department, who thought up the Read-In which someone dubbed "A Well-Tempered Marathon," says she got the idea from read-ins of the English Department which have included the works of Browning and Wordsworth, and recently "Wretched Poetry."

Freeman says the marathon will be presented in a very informal setting and members of the audience are invited to come and go at will. The idea, she added, is an opportunity to provide an opportunity to hear good music in a relaxing manner. It is not, she insists "something that is good for you" and she hopes stoics who think so will stay away.

In his "Well-Tempered Clavier" Bach set out to show that with a well tempered instrument you can write in any key. He wrote 24 fugues and preludes in minor and major keys.

Mrs. Freeman would like to see the marathon become an annual event and suggests the preludes of Chopin might be good marathon subject.

Among those who will participate in the Marathon are Tom Davis, Valerie Fisher, Virginia Groves, Cindy Fisher, Joan Testin, and Mia Amaya, all student; S. Vernon, F. Donald Truesdell, Martha Connolly, Frank Lendrim, H. Earle Johnson, Christine Williams, James D. Darling, Tom Marshall and Margaret Freeman of the music faculty; also Chris Kypros, on leave and presently teaching at Norfolk Academy.

St. Eustatius Continues to Reveal Treasures

The College's Field School in Historical Archaeology, directed by Norman F. Barka of the department of archaeology, conducted its second season of research on the island of St. Eustatius, Netherlands Antilles, during June-July.

The field school was composed of students from 11 states and 2 provinces of Canada, as well as participants from St. Maarten and Curacao. Individuals from the following organizations contributed time, resources, and/or supplies: St. Eustatius Historical Foundation, the Government of St. Eustatius, and the Institute of Archaeology and Anthropology (AINA) of the Netherlands Antilles.

Besides training students in archaeological field techniques, the main purpose of the 1982 research was to continue the assessment of archaeological remains on the island, as a basis for the formulation of specific research problems to be dealt with beginning in 1983. The following work was conducted this past summer:

1. Nearly all warehouse ruins in the Lower Town (about 150 are visible) were plane-table mapped and construction details photographed, giving information as to relative sizes of structures, orientation, building techniques, etc.

2. Excavation continued at a complex of completely buried warehouse structures near the base of the cliffs, under the direction of Patricia Kandle; stone walls, floor pavements and other features within a complicated 8-10 ft. deep stratigraphic context, dating to different phases of the 18th-19th centuries, were uncovered; numerous late 18th-early 19th century artifacts were found; an additional season of work will be required on these well-preserved remains; it is probable that interior and exterior features of several warehouses can be delineated from this excavation.

3. A second warehouse area, south of the previously described excavation, was tested under the direction of Patricia Samford; the purpose of this work was exploration of a wave-storm affected area in order to assess below-ground preservation and content; several test trenches in the interior of the warehouse yielded the remnants of a yellow Dutch brick floor c.3 ft. below present surface, and a good stratigraphic succession of fill for several feet beneath the floor; the lowest level reached contained beach-washed artifacts dating to the early to mid 18th century.

4. In addition to continued archaeological survey of the entire island, the 1982 season concentrated on an initial survey of the town of Oranjestad, the main population center; this survey was guided by various research questions dealing with temporal and spatial distribution of sites, structures, and artifacts, socio-economic and ethnic differences as evidenced by the material culture evidence, etc.

5. A related survey, also under the direction of Christine Grebey, addressed an ever-present ecological problem, that of obtaining fresh water; the survey team was interested in locating evidence of historic water systems on the island; by the end of the season, 120 cisterns had been located and studied and information gathered on how different populations through time had coped with an obvious ecological limitation.

6. In order to learn more about life and industry in the non-town areas of Statia, several sugar plantation sites were studied; the main work was conducted at English Quarter, under the direction of Linda

Anthropologist Reviews Summer Work

by Eric Ayisi
Visiting Professor of Anthropology

A second visit to any place generally speaking does not have the same novelty and excitement about it, but not so with St. Eustatius that little island of 8.1 square miles not polluted by violence, and industrial waste. Its 1,500 people descendants of former slaves from Africa enjoy a unique life style. It grows on the visitor, especially on an American because of the historical origins of the place.

Dr. Norman Barka held his second field school this summer on the island and as part of the school I continued with my collection of oral history of the island, was assisted by two students who were interested in certain aspects of the research. There were also two research scholars from the Institute di Arkeologia, Dr. Rose Mary Allen and her assistant who came from Curacao, sponsored by the Bureau Cultuur en Opvoeding.

The field school has become an Antillean affair for both the local government and the central government, have shown keen interest in the project, and have expressed this interest in many generous gestures. The local historical foundation also continues to be the chief sponsor of the school.

Last summer I was intrigued with a number of discoveries, especially the group of islanders who claimed that their ancestors came from the Congo. This summer I was confronted with a greater surprise; I came across documentary evidence of some of the slave names from my hometown in Ghana.

The local archives contains a great deal of historical information about the presence of people from the coastal towns of the Gold Coast, now Ghana. There are a few common names of some of the people who were fishermen on the island in the early 17th century. This piscatorial occupation is the industry on the coast, and it seems these men practiced this craft when they were brought to the island.

This thesis is supported by a historical evidence. The Dutch were on the island of Saint Eustatius in 1636, and in 1594 the Dutch had established a trading post at Sao Jorge Da Mina on the Gold Coast (Elmina) and a brisk trade was conducted between the then Gold Coast and the new world. It was not until 1642 that the Dutch left the post and it was appropriated by the English.

It is feasible to speculate that a bulk of the slaves from Africa came from Ghana. Although some of the names I found are not being used on the island and in spite of miscegenation, ecological factors, and diffusion of ideas caused by the various European occupations of the island, producing a special type of people and culture on the island, there are certain things uniquely African about these people. Their sense of time, their family-systems, their generosity, and speech patterns, reecho their African ancestry. This island is unique, and it is full of history, and it is imperative that the history be gathered through archaeological excavations, and oral history before the politics of the island usher in the two tyrants which have reigned in the developing countries, ambition and avarice.

Ayisi talks with Alvin Patrick, one of the older people on the island. Patrick fought with the Dutch army during World War II and was decorated by the Queen.

Theatre Opens 'A Streetcar Named Desire'

by Lynette Ashby

"A Streetcar Named Desire," Tennessee Williams' celebrated drama, will be presented by the William and Mary Theatre Oct. 8, 9, 14, 15, and 16 at 8:15 p.m. and Oct. 10 at 2 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

Considered to be one of the finest plays of the American theatre, "Streetcar" has had a long and successful run on Broadway, and its film version earned several Academy awards, including ones for director Elia Kazan and stars Vivien Leigh, Kim Hunter and Karl Malden. Although it is one of the most popular productions in the country, this is the first time "Streetcar" has been presented by the William and Mary Theatre.

Freshman Stephanie Wright portrays Williams' delicate, neurotic heroine Blanche DuBois, who comes to New Orleans seeking refuge from the realities of her life. Blanche's delusions and denials of her past are her downfall, however; when she is finally forced to confront them she is destroyed and finds a final retreat in madness.

Blanche's "executioner" is her crudely sensual brother-in-law Stanley Kowalski, played by junior Jamison Price. Stanley resents Blanche's pretensions, and her presence threatens the connubial bliss he enjoys with Blanche's sister Stella, played by junior Judy Clarke. Senior Rob Sherman portrays Mitch, a friend of Stanley's who falls in love with Blanche.

The cast also includes Gary Cowling, Mike Lazo, Debbie Menzgod, Nancy Barton, Mark James, Laura Vientimilla, David Johnson and Kathy Pearson.

"A Streetcar Named Desire" was to be Tennessee Williams' swan song to the American theatre: convinced he was dying of pancreatic cancer, Williams began work on what he then called "The Poker Night." In his "Memoirs" he writes, "I (worked) furiously on it. For despite the fact that I thought I was dying, or maybe because of it, I had a great passion for work."

After seeing Elia Kazan's production of Arthur Miller's "All My Sons," Williams implored the director to stage his newly completed play. Kazan sent the playwright a young actor to read for Stanley. He showed up three days late, Williams recalled. He fixed the fusebox in Williams' Cape Cod beach house and also fixed the plumbing. Then Marlon Brando read and got the part.

Tickets for the William and Mary production may be obtained at the box office or by calling ext. 4272. A reception will follow the opening night's performance.

Stephanie Clark as Blanche DuBois, takes offense at some angry words from her brother-in-law Stanley Kowalski, played by Jamison Price as Stella, played by Judy Clarke, tries to restrain her husband in a scene from "A Streetcar Named Desire," which will open the William and Mary Theatre season.

Red Cross Offers WSI Classes

The Williamsburg-James City County Chapter, American Red Cross, will conduct a WSI update retraining session for all water safety instructors on Tuesday, Oct. 12, 7-8 p.m., in the Red Cross Conference Room, 109 Cary Street.

All instructors who have not received the update training are required to attend this session. Instructors will not be able to conduct classes in the Williamsburg-James City County jurisdictional area after December 31, unless they are holding a form indicating they have completed the retraining.

The new materials required for all instructors are a new instructor's guide entitled "A Guide for Safety Services Instructors" and a new textbook entitled "Swimming and Aquatics Safety." Both books were released in the spring of 1982. They replace the old "Swimming and Water Safety" textbook and instructor manual.

If you already have the two new text materials in your possession, please bring with you to class. If you do not have the required materials, they must be purchased and studied prior to the class date. Materials can be purchased in the Red Cross office, Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. - 4 p.m., at a cost of $5.46 for both.

PLEASE CALL THE RED CROSS OFFICE (253-0228) BY NOON, OCT. 12, IF YOU PLAN TO ATTEND THIS MEETING.

CONTINUUM here Sunday

CONTINUUM, known in the past as the Performers' Committee for Twentieth Century Music, will give a concert at 3 p.m., Sunday, Oct. 10 in Ewell 100 as part of the Sunday Series.

The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge.

Performers will include Victoria Villamil, soprano; Jayn Rosenfeld, flutist; and Cheryl Seltzer and Joel Sachs, pianists and directors of the group.

Program for Sunday's concert will include music by modern composers, selections including "Synchronisms," for flute and electronic sounds by David Ovsky (1962); "Five Pieces for Piano," by Henry Cowell, written in the late 1920's; "A Solo Requiem," by Milton Babbitt (1976-77).

Flutist Rosenfeld will play "Sequenza," a solo by Luciano Beria (1958); and

"Figments," by Barbara Kolb (1966) for flute and piano.

"Ahnu," composed by Bruce Gaston in 1981 for prepared piano and electronic sounds will also be included on the Sunday concert as well as "Five Songs," by Charles Ives.

First the Committee and now CONTINUUM, has been working to expand the audience for this century's music. The group was first established in 1967.

It has presented concerts of established masters and younger composers throughout the United States. In New York City the group is well known for its annual series of retrospective concerts -- evenings devoted to single composers of foremost stature and influence. This series achieved national recognition when Newsweek magazine devoted an article to CONTINUUM's "pathbreaking" concert "Avant-Garde Music of the Soviet Union."

Shoreline Meeting Set Oct. 22-24

The increasing pressures of development on the American shoreline in the face of a rising sea level will be the keynote address topic to joint sessions of the Mid-Atlantic Marine Education Association (MAMEA) and the Virginia Science Teachers Conference, scheduled for the Holiday Inn-SCOPE in Norfolk, Virginia, Oct. 22-24.

Orrin H. Pilkey, professor of geology at Duke University, will deliver the keynote address during a general session for both conferences on Friday evening, Oct. 22. He has published extensively in professional research journals and authored several professional books. His book, "The Beaches are Moving: The Drowning of the American Shoreline," was the Book-of-the-Month alternate selection in 1980.

Attending the joint conference will be MAMEA members from Virginia, North Carolina, Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia together with K-12 Virginia science teachers, according to conference coordinators Sue Gammisch and Lee Lawrence, marine education specialists of the Virginia Sea Grant Program, Virginia Institute of Marine Science.

A brief course on fisheries of Chesapeake Bay will be taught by Herbert M. Austin, associate professor of Marine Science, School of Marine Science at VIMS.

The course will cover the status and problems of important Bay fisheries. It will include lectures and field work on board a research vessel on Saturday, Oct. 23. Participants will receive one graduate credit from the College of William and Mary.

Workshops Assist Small Businesses

Eight business experts will lead a series of workshops on "How to Have a Financially Sound Small Business," Oct. 17-21, at the School of Business Administration.

The workshops, to be held on five consecutive nights from 7-9:30 p.m., are sponsored by the Women in Business Program of the College and will be held in Chancellors Hall, room 102.

Topics to be covered range from market research, setting up books and financial statements, to hiring and firing, employee benefits and tax and legal aspects of a small business organization. Speakers for the sessions are from both the business and academic communities, and are experts in finance and banking, marketing, tax planning, personnel and risk management.

Participants may attend one session or all five. Cost for each session separately is $10, or all five sessions for $40. A 50 percent discount is offered to two or more people from the same organization who register at the same time. Registration fee includes workbook materials and refreshments.

The sessions are sponsored by the Women in Business Program at the College and are open to both men and women.

counts which we felt were better understood by our customers."

Cochrane is also proud of the company's good benefits and open-door policy for employees. Overnite Transportation is the largest nonunionized trucking company in the nation. The last Teamster organization attempt in 1978 failed by a margin of 5 to 3.

Cochrane knows every aspect of the trucking business. He was a driver when he started the company in 1935 with one truck. "We drove on roads that were terrible," he recalls. "We usually had a breakdown or a flat tire every trip. Now drivers can wear a white shirt and know they won't have to change a tire. There were plenty of scary times on the roads, many close calls."

The name "Overnite," says Cochrane, struck him as an appropriate one because most of the runs when the company started were relatively short ones. He discovered a Baltimore company had prior claim on "Overnight Motor" so he changed the spelling of his own company name to "Overnite."

Looking ahead, Cochrane says he sees a slow recovery for the economy but a good recovery nevertheless, so good in fact that in about 18 months there will be pressure on businesses to fill consumer orders. Because of the current recession and resulting loss of jobs, people are not buying. But when the economy turns around, he explains, "industry will not be ready to meet the needs and will need time to gear up."

Cochrane has been actively involved in community as well as industry affairs. In Richmond, as well as the state, he has worked actively for the arts and education in addition to numerous volunteer jobs to spur economic development. He has also worked extensively for his church on a local and international level.

He is a member of the Virginia Port Authority Executive Committee, vice president of American Trucking Associations, a deacon at Tabernacle Baptist Church and president of the church's Endowment Fund Committee. He was named "Free Enterprise Man of the Year" by the Richmond Jaycees in 1978. In 1979, he was awarded an honorary doctor of commercial science degree and inducted in Beta Gamma Sigma honorary business fraternity at the University of Richmond.

Cochrane and his wife, Louise Blanks Cochrane, have three children and eight grandchildren. The Cochranes live on a farm in Hanover County where they raise Angus cattle.

1982 Holiday Schedule

To: The College Community Date: September 20, 1982
 From: Lawrence W. Broomall
 Vice President for Business Affairs
 Subject: Holiday Schedule for November and December 1982

THANKSGIVING HOLIDAYS, 1982

The administrative offices, the plant department (except for those employees required to maintain essential services), and the mail room of the College of William and Mary will be closed on November 25 and 26, 1982. The Campus Police Department will maintain the regular 24-hour schedule.

The names of permanent classified employees who are required to work on either November 25 or 26, 1982 should be reported in writing to the Personnel Office in order that they may be credited with Compensatory Leave. Permanent classified employees who are required to work on either of these days should take compensatory leave earned as soon thereafter as possible in order to avoid excessive leave accumulation. Hourly employees who work on either of these days will be paid at their regular hourly rates.

CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS, 1982

Again this year the College will observe an extended Christmas-New Year's Holiday period beginning Friday, December 24, 1982 through Friday, December 31, 1982. In the event the Governor declares an additional day or days, we would extend the holiday period into January. As an example, if he declares one day, the holiday would run through Monday, January 3, 1983; if he declares two days, it will extend through January 4, 1983. Such extensions into January are required, because examinations are scheduled through December 23, 1982, thus precluding an earlier beginning date for the holiday.

Due to the nature of the service provided by the College of William and Mary, it is necessary that employees work on certain days which are listed as legal holidays in the Virginia Personnel Act. In recognition of this fact, the Board of Visitors of the College has authorized an alternate holiday schedule, and it includes no holiday time over and above those total holidays authorized by the Virginia Personnel Act for all State employees.

The alternate holiday schedule adopted by the College provides for only five working days during this period. It will be noted that six working days are involved in the schedule described above. In order to provide the sixth day, we will utilize the holiday which falls on November 11, a Thursday in 1982. Observance of this holiday for the Christmas-New Year's holiday period will remove the necessity to heat buildings and require employees to work one day during that period.

Administrative offices, and the plant department (except for those employees required to maintain essential services), will be closed during the period.

The Campus Post Office will be open from 9:00 a.m. until 12:00 noon on December 24, 27, 28, 29, 30, and 31, 1982, and January 1, 1983. If the holiday period is extended by one day, the Post Office will be open from 9:00 a.m. until noon on Monday, January 3, 1983, in addition to the other dates shown. This Post Office will NOT be open at other times during the holiday period noted above.

The Campus Police Department will maintain the regular 24-hour schedule.

Emergency service may be obtained at any time by calling the regular College telephone number, 253-4000, or by calling the Campus Police at 253-4596, or at Emergency Extension 333.

The names of permanent classified employees who are required to work during this holiday period should be reported in writing to the Personnel Office in order that they may be credited with compensatory leave. Permanent classified employees who are required to work on any of these days should take compensatory leave earned as soon thereafter as possible in order to avoid excessive leave accumulation. Hourly employees who work on any of these days will be paid at their regular hourly rates.

This holiday decision has been considered from many standpoints, since it is recognized that a few people might be inconvenienced by such a close-down over a continuous period.

Those individuals or groups who might be so inconvenienced by this extended holiday should direct their concerns to me, IN WRITING, no later than Friday, December 3, 1982, in order that we might make any special arrangements necessary to accommodate those concerns. In the absence of such notification it will be assumed that all offices are agreeable, and adaptable, to this extended closedown.

In the light of past experience, we are assuming that the following operations/activities will require such special arrangements, and are prepared to approve them again:

Anthropology	Campus Police
Biology	Campus Post Office
Chemistry	Telephone Switchboard
Computer Center	Basketball Team
Endocrinology and	Track Team
Population Laboratories	Psychology
Physics	Swem Library
Law Library

Please advise me, in writing, no later than Friday, December 3, if our assumption for those listed is not a valid one.

Employee morale constitutes one strong justification for the extended holiday. Another justification, of equal importance, is the fact that it enables the College to exercise effective energy and cost saving measures. We are under constant pressure on these points, and, with the students away from the College, this holiday period affords the best opportunity of the entire College year for a virtual close-down of most facilities.

Paychecks for permanent employees will be available at the normal location (Payroll Office, 2nd floor, James Blair Hall) from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon only on Friday, December 31.

The temperature in unoccupied buildings will be reduced to 50 degrees after 5:00 p.m. on Thursday, December 23rd. This requirement will prevail through Sunday, January 2, 1983; if an additional day is declared by the Governor, this reduced temperature will be extended through Monday, January 3, 1983. Buildings occupied during this period, are subject to the following schedules for temperature and lighting:

1. Student Residences
James Blair Terrace (Units 46, 47, 48 and 49), Comer House, Bozarth House, Hoke Garage, Thiemes and graduate housing in the Randolph residences will not have reduced temperatures during this period.

Heat will be reduced in all other student residences after 12:00 noon on Friday, December 24, 1982 through 8:00 a.m. on Friday, January 14, 1983. Separate instructions to Area Coordinators and Resident Tutors will be issued by the Office of Residence Hall Life.

2. Offices
Brafferton, Rogers, Washington, and Millington Halls and the Population Laboratory will not have reduced temperatures during the period. Heating temperatures in the buildings connected to the Honeywell "BOSS SYSTEM" will be controlled by the "BOSS" operator during this period. Heat and lighting will be provided to the College Telephone Switchboard area and Campus Police Office at all times during the holiday break. Heat and lighting will be provided to the College Post Office from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon from December 24th throughout the holiday.

3. Libraries
Access governed by hours of operation established by the two libraries (Swem Library and the Law Library). However, heat, lights, and electrical devices in offices will be reduced according to the overall College schedule noted above.

4. Adair and Blow Gyms
Heating temperatures will be reduced and office lighting will be shut off at 5:00 p.m. on Wednesday, December 23, and remain off until 5:00 p.m. on Sunday, January 2, 1983. If the holiday period is extended, this date will be extended accordingly. Emergency and exterior lighting will be left on.

The following information pertains only to the Virginia Institute of Marine Science:

1. The switchboard at VIMS will be closed November 25 and 26, 1982 for the Thanksgiving Holiday. The switchboard will also be closed beginning Friday, December 24, 1982 through the end of the Christmas-New Year's Holiday.
2. The VIMS payroll office in Clayton House will be open December 31, 1982 for paycheck pickup from 9:00 a.m. until 12:00 noon only.
3. The names of employees who will be required to work either during the Thanksgiving or Christmas-New Year's Holiday must be provided to the Associate Director for Finance and Administration no later than Wednesday, November 24, 1982.

The following information pertains only to the Virginia Associate Research Campus:

1. The switchboard at VARC will be closed November 25 and 26, 1982 for the Thanksgiving Holiday. The switchboard will also be closed beginning Friday, December 24, 1982 through the Christmas-New Year's Holiday.
2. The VARC Business Office will be open December 31, 1982 for paycheck pickup from 11:00 a.m. until 2:00 p.m. only.
3. The names of employees who will be required to work either during the Thanksgiving or Christmas-New Year's Holiday must be provided to the VARC Business Office prior to the beginning of either holiday period.

Social Security Cards for New Employees

The College Personnel Office is responsible for maintaining accurate social security identification on our employees. In accordance with federal regulations, the employees' name and social security number must be obtained directly from his social security card which has been issued by the Social Security Administration. Information on a metal plate or from any other document will not be accepted. A copy of the original social security card will be kept in the employee's personnel file.

Until the above identification can be furnished to the Personnel Office, an individual may not begin employment with the College.

Archaeology

France; the study concentrated on a description of domestic and industrial remains at the site, as well as systematic surface collections and the creation of a detailed site map.

A preliminary report on the 1981 and 1982 seasons will be ready by June, 1983. At least three M.A. theses are currently being researched and written on subjects dealing with Statis.

ST. EUSTATIUS

NETHERLANDS ANTILLES

St. Eustatius is one of a tiny island group, the Dutch Windwards, situated about 160 miles southeast of Puerto Rico. Measuring nearly 5.5 miles by less than 3 miles maximum width, "Statia" is divisible into 3 geological areas: volcanic hills in the northwest, a 1900 ft. high extinct volcano, "The Quill," in the southeast, complete with a miniature rain forest in its crater, and a rather fertile low plain in the middle of the island. Most of Statis's population of about 1500 resides in the town, Oranjestad.

Statia's small size belies the immensely significant role she played throughout the colonial development of North America and the West Indies. First settled by the Dutch in 1636, by 1650 her several tobacco plantations were thriving, but her major activities were in colonial trade. Statia early became a center of West Indian trade with the Spanish colonies and she constituted a funnel through which huge quantities of English sugar were moved toward European and North American markets.

A Thank You

On behalf of the International Circle and the Asia and Africa Societies of the College of William and Mary, we thank all the professors, administrators, students, and residents of Virginia who flocked to see the internationally acclaimed Kalipayan Dance Company of the Philippines dancers perform on September 24 at Phi Beta Kappa

Hall. The many favorable comments and wonderful compliments of our hundreds of patrons who witnessed the performance have helped us to pursue our goal of inviting first rate performances and artists from Asia, Africa, and Latin America, a dimension missing in the William and Mary cultural programs.
