Homecoming Still Popular

A football victory would have been icing on the cake, Brown 23-William and Mary 22, but there was a great deal to cheer about during Homecoming Weekend.

About 25,000 spectators lined Duke of Gloucester for the parade which this year took the theme "Bear Season," and bears of all descriptions were used as centerpieces in floats which forecast doom for the Brown University bears in Indian territory.

Phi Mu won the sorority division with "Smokey the Bear" and a banner, "Stomp Their Butts and Kick Their Ashes."

Second place in the sorority division was won by Alpha Chi Omega. Tri Delt took third and Kappa Kappa Gamma was fourth.

In the fraternity division, Kappa Sigma threatened to "Mow Down the Bears," with a precision lawnmowing band led by a leggy "majorette." Second place in that division was won by Pi Kappa Alpha and TKE was third.

In the open division first prize went to KAI Independent Social Organization which also won the Lambert Cup as best entry in the parade. KAI's float was a large yellow football helmet behind which was a bear with his head in a cave. "Do bears live in the woods? Well so do Indians. It's time for bears to hibernate," was the banner on the float.

Second place in the open division went to the William and Mary Choir. Choir members in robes with football letters on their backs, formed a marching in front of a float with a bear and a banner which read "Music soothes the savage beast." Third place went to the cheerleaders from the class of 1957 and fourth place to the B.S.O.

The prizes won by KAI represent a challenge which the group will try and meet next Homecoming. KAI is an organization which was established by two seniors, Kim Wood and Ida Cowgill (hence the title Kim and Ida, KAI) during their sophomore year. They decided that non-Greeks could have as much fun as Greeks. KAI now has five members including Amy Reich, Elaine Bowden and Nosuk Pak, all seniors so KAI will become an alumni unit next year. The five members of KAI constructed the float, each member contributing 1,000 rosettes to the helmet which practically covered the car that carried it.

KAI will use the prize money to defray expenses of the float and divide the rest five ways. Members would like to buy T-shirts. Members have sweatshirts and sit together to cheer at basketball games. Members do not have a "house" but since all but one member live in JBT No. 43, they

Student Directs 'Happy Birthday Wanda June'

Gregory North, a senior, will direct "Happy Birthday, Wanda June," by Kurt Vonnegut, which will be presented in the Williamsburg Regional Library's community theatre at 8:15 p.m., Friday and Saturday Nov. 12 and 13, and at 2 p.m., Sunday Nov. 14.

Tickets are $1.50 each. Admission is free for William and Mary Theatre season ticket holders. The box office at the theatre will be open one half hour before each performance. There is no reserved seating.

This is the first time a senior has directed a full-length main-stage play under the aegis of the William and Mary Theatre says North who is completing a senior directorial project, culminating an active participation in the theatre program both as an actor and a director.

North got an early start on a directing career as host of a half-hour public television show for junior high school students over Channel 15 entitled "It's Happening," when he was in the sixth grade.

Gregory North

He played the lead in "Measure for Measure," and two roles in "Oedipus Rex," for the William and Mary Theatre. North has directed plays both in the Director's Workshop and the Advanced Director's Workshop.

Set in the late 1960's, "Happy Birthday, Wanda June," involves a war hero who returns home after eight years in the jungle to a family and society that has changed beyond his recognition. Comedy results as the family tries to adjust to his presence, and he attempts to understand their changes.

James R. Fall plays the role of the returning hero Harold Ryan and Margaret Stephens '81, co-stars as his wife. Adam Reed, 11-year-old son of Ann M. Reed, associate professor of English, makes his debut in college theatre as Paul Ryan, their son.

Others in the cast include Ernest White as Norbert Woodly, a physician; Scott Bailey, as Herb Shuttle, a vacuum cleaner salesman; Charles Payne as Col. Looseleaf Harper; Henry Ward as Von Konigswald; Carol Penola, as Mildred; and Debbie Fetterman as Wanda June.

Assistant director is Mary Swetman.

Newsmakers

Herbert M. Austin, associate professor of marine science, William J. Hargis, Jr., professor of marine science and Joseph Loesch, associate professor of marine science recently attended the 41st Annual meeting of the Atlantic States Marine Fisheries Commission in Baltimore, Maryland. Austin and Loesch participated in shad and striped bass meetings and Hargis attended the Advisory Group and Executive Session. He called to their attention the upcoming "Shellfish Transport Workshop" to be jointly sponsored by VIMS and National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS) in December. Austin also attended these sessions.

Herbert M. Austin, and Brenda L. Norcross, a graduate assistant, attended the 112th American Fisheries Society meeting held at Hilton Head, South Carolina. Austin presented two papers; "The Future of Chesapeake Bay Fisheries" and "The Decline of Mid-Atlantic Stock Striped Bass." Norcross also presented a paper, co-authored by Austin, entitled, "Shifts in spawning areas of Atlantic Croaker Micropogonius undulatus" based upon larval and adult distribution with preliminary suggestions for causes", to the Society.

Random House has just published a book on rhetoric for freshman English, entitled "STRATEGIC WRITING," by Lynn Bloom, department of English, a book designed to help students write with an efficient and effective process, and to use that process in writing essays in various modes. It contains a great many essays written by William and Mary students, including a term paper on Charlie Chaplin that constitutes an entire chapter.

Brian Walter Meehan, of Staten Island, N.Y., a graduate student in the department of invertebrate ecology at the Virginia Institute of Marine Science, is one of 143 scientists who have been awarded grants by the American Museum of Natural History in New York.

Meehan, whose research project is entitled "Evolutionary Ecology of Macoma balthica," received a grant of $500 from the Lerner-Gray Fund, established in 1976 to further research in marine biology, ecology and zoology. It is named for its principal benefactors, Michael Lerner and Arthur Gray, Sr., brother-in-law, who for more than 25 years encouraged research in these areas. Avid sports fishermen, they served on the Museum's Board of Directors and founded the International Game Fish Association.

Ute B. Winston of the department of English presented a paper entitled "Pillow Talk in Medieval Narrative," at the 8th annual conference of the Southwestern Medieval Association, held Oct. 15, 16 in Dallas, Tex.

On Oct. 8-10, James Axtell, professor of history, attended the Conference on Iroquois Research in Rensselaerville, N.Y. He then attended the annual meeting of the American Society for Ethnohistory in Nashville on October 13-16 where he served on the Executive Committee and commented on three papers concerning "Some Thoughts on the Relation between History and Anthropology." In the October issue of the William and Mary Quarterly his review of Lucien Campeau's Etablissement a Quebec (1616-1634) appeared.

Diane Ackerman To Give Reading Nov. 16

Diane Ackerman, Writer-in-Residence, will give a reading at 8 p.m., Tuesday, Nov. 16 in the Botetourt Theatre of Swem Library.

Miss Ackerman will read from a prose book she is writing about the romance of learning to fly.

Currently on leave as assistant professor of English at the University of Pittsburgh, Miss Ackerman received a B.A. from the Pennsylvania State University and an M.F.A., M.A., and Ph.D. from Cornell University.

In addition to two collections of poetry, "The Planets: A Cosmic Pastoral" (Morrow 1976), and "Wife of Light" (Morrow 1978), she has also written a prose memoir, "Twilight of the Tenderfoot" (Morrow 1980) about her experience as a cowhand on a ranch in New Mexico. Her poetry and prose appear regularly in "The New York Times," "The American Poetry Review," "The Kenyon Review," "The Washington Post," "Paris Review," and other quarterlies and journals.

In 1981, she won the Black Warrior Review Poetry Prize; and the Abbie Copps Poetry Prize in 1974. She received a National Endowment for the Arts Fellowship in 1976, a CAPS Fellowship in 1980 and was a Rockefeller Fellow in Humanities, Science and Technology in 1974.

A member of the Advisory Board of The Planetary Society, she served as poetry researcher on the KCET-TV series, "Cosmos." She is also serving a three-year appointment to the Literature Panel of the New York State Council for the Arts, and in the past has been a member of the Poetry panel for the Pennsylvania Arts Council, and for the Pennsylvania Arts Council, and for CAPS. She is also on the board of Associated Writing Programs, AWP.

Miss Ackerman has just finished a verse play about Sor Juana Ines de la Cruz, the 17th century scientist, poet and nun and has completed the first draft of a novel set in the soccer world.

A new collection of her poetry, "Lady Faustus," will be published next year.

Dempsey Named College President

John R. Dempsey, M.A., history, 1973, will be installed as tenth president of Belmont Abbey College in Belmont, N.C. in ceremonies to be held Wednesday, Nov. 11.

After leaving William and Mary, Dempsey completed a doctorate at the University of Massachusetts and then taught in the political science department at the College of Charleston in South Carolina. When the College of Charleston became part of the University of South Carolina, Dempsey was appointed Dean.

From Nov. 7-17 Bob Maidment, School of Education, will serve on a Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS) Accreditation team visiting schools in San Pedro, Sula and La Ceiba, Honduras, and in San Jose, Costa Rica.

Diane Ackerman

Writer Enjoys Adventure

You may have seen Diane Ackerman - she was the lady at the airport in the evening dress checking the oil in her Cessna.

She was in the press box at Giants Stadium the night the Cosmos played the Tulsa Roughnecks.

You may have seen her by-line in the New York Times or Sports Illustrated.

A couple of years ago she was in New Mexico learning first-hand the life of a cowhand on a ranch.

A poet with a nomadic curiosity about the universe around her, Miss Ackerman is in Williamsburg this year - the College's Writer-in-Residence.

"Why this madness?" she says, alluding to her interesting lifestyle. "I am fortunate enough to be in the business of being a writer and that permits me to have a lot of adventures and justify them to my protestant work ethic.

"I have a very nomadic curiosity and it is hard for me to be enraptured by something like flying and not want to celebrate and explore it with a book." Ackerman is currently at work on a lush metaphysical prose book about the romance of learning to fly and will read from this work Nov. 16.

She tuned into a soccer match one day, got excited about the breezy rhetoric, the rhythmic and lyrical qualities of the game, and intrigued by the ceremonial violence. Ackerman has completed the first draft of a book set in the soccer world. The book itself, she explains, is not about soccer but rather a book about a woman obsessed. It is a novel about obsession says the author. "About the need to find a necessary passion. It is about soccer but it could have been about anything else."

Flying, says Ackerman, has always intrigued her. "I was always fascinated that we live on a planet where there are things that fly. That seemed something magical and wonderful to me. It was a magic I wanted to become a part of. I just never had the courage and the money and the time all at once. Now I have two of those and that seems to be sufficient." She's been flying since summer and has about 50 hours logged. "I'm barely fledged," she quipped.

Ackerman chooses--although she admits the subject often chooses her--subjects that will teach her as much as possible about the work, especially science.

"Writing about soccer I was able to look into the anthropology of play, the psychology of sport and that was fascinating. To learn about flying I have to learn about engines and physics and engineering.

"I've never been able to make a distinction between nature on the one side of an invisible line and what we call science on the other. For me there is no 'Checkpoint Charlie'... the universe was always something I took literally as one."

Ackerman would like her students to enjoy their world as she does. "I sometimes get students deeply fascinated by the world, but sadly, what happens more often, is a tragic lack of curiosity about the process of life. They may know in meticulous detail how to drive to a distant city but they have no idea where their liver is. That's awfully limiting for an artist, who should be thinking about what it was like to have once been alive on the planet-- what the human condition is like.

Nuclear Physicist Dies Nov. 4

Joseph Robert Dietrich, 68, an international nuclear physicist, lecturer and consultant who was employed by NACA, the predecessor of NASA in 1940 through 1946 at Langley and Cleveland as head of the rocket section in the Lewis Laboratory, died Nov. 4 in Riverside Hospital. He graduated from William and Mary in 1935.

He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and received his doctorate in physics from the University of Virginia. He was past president of the American Nuclear Society and a member of the National Academy of Engineers. In 1980 he retired as chief scientist from Combustion Engineering in Windsor, Conn. He was born in Miles City, Mont., and made his home in Newport News.

He was instrumental in designing the engine used in the first atomic powered submarine, the "Nautilus."

*The Department of Physics and the School of Business Administration will make arrangements to give make-up exams to students who have exam conflicts.

No changes in this schedule will be permitted individual students, except where examination conflicts occur, or where a student has four scheduled examinations in four consecutive examination periods on consecutive days. Such cases should be discovered as early as possible and proper arrangements made to resolve them before the beginning of the examination period. Requests for rescheduling in these cases must be made on forms available in the Office of the Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences and must be approved by the Dean before they become effective.

The Office of the Dean of Students handles requests from students unable to take their examinations at the time scheduled on account of illness or other sufficient reason.

Students taking a course in which there are two sections taught by the same professor with different final examination periods have the option of taking the exam in either period (with the consent of the instructor.) It is the student's responsibility to get approval from the professor prior to the end of classes.

Classes meeting at periods for which provision is not made on this schedule should arrange examination periods to suit the convenience of the instructor and the students. Such special arrangements including the room to be reserved for the examination must be reported in writing to the Office of the Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences.

The Wilson Quarterly Offers 1983 Summer Internships

The Wilson Quarterly is accepting applications for its 1983 Summer internship program. In order to attract bright college students from middle - to lower - income families who might otherwise be unable to afford an internship, they are offering a stipend of $2950. Interns will receive $125 for each of the program's 13 weeks. Upon satisfactory completion of the program they will get an additional $1,325 for 1983-84 college expenses. They will be reimbursed for minimal travel expenses.

The internships are open only to promising sophomores and juniors who received financial aid during the 1982-83 academic year, as certified in writing by their colleges. Applicants should ask their aid offices to be specific about the kind and amount of aid they receive. Their financial aid should be of a kind--a scholarship, for instance--that indicates need. Those receiving student loans alone are not qualified.

"We are especially interested in recruiting minority candidates," says a Quarterly spokesman. There will be five internships available in Summer 1983--three with the Essays editors, one with the Book Review editor, and one with the Periodicals editor. Acting as research assistants to the editors, interns will gain first-hand knowledge of the processes by which the magazine is planned, edited, and produced. They will be expected to do unpaid overtime work, particularly writing assignments, at home, at night, and on the weekends. Also, they will attend a weekly two-hour writing/editing course. This is a high intensity internship.

The program lasts from the beginning of June to the end of August, but dates may be changed for those who have scheduling problems.

Before March, 1983, applicants should forward a resume, three recommendations (from university administrators, faculty members or past employers) and certification of their financial aid status to Harry Cooper, Senior Researcher, The Wilson Quarterly, Smithsonian Institution Building, Washington, D.C.; The Wilson Quarterly, Woodrow-Wilson International Center for Scholars, Smithsonian Institution Building, Washington, D.C. 20560. (202) 357-2121.

John Funk Wins PMAC-V Award

John Funk, a senior management major in the School of Business Administration, has been awarded a $750 scholarship for the 1982-83 school year from the Purchasing Management Association of Carolinas-Virginia, Inc.

The PMAC-V Board of Directors has designated the scholarship program "The Harold Berry Scholarship Fund," in honor of Berry who retired this past year after many years of faithful service to the Association and its executive director.

In addition to the prize money, the Fund received a non-dues paying membership in PMAC-V for a period of one year. Membership includes a subscription to the association's publication The Southern Purchaser.

Membership status also entitles Funk to attend quarterly meeting of the Association without paying registration fees.

This past year, nine awards have been made by the Association, ranging from $500 to $1,000 to students at Virginia Tech, North Carolina State, the University of South Carolina, Wake Forest, Duke, East Carolina, and UNC - Greensboro.

Huguenot Society Invites Entries For Essay Competition

The Huguenot Society of the Founders of Manakin in the Colony of Virginia are offering a prize of $1,000 for an essay by an undergraduate student on a topic relating to the history of the Huguenot movement in Europe, Colonial America, or the colony of Virginia and the settlement at Manakin town.

Essays must be submitted by May 1, 1983, for the fifth annual competition.

There is no restriction on length, but essays should be submitted in typewritten form, should be double-spaced and should treat some aspect of the Huguenot movement as stated above.

The Huguenot Society will pay the award directly to the winner with the expectation that the amount will be applied to the student's further education. The Society reserves the right to first publication of the prize essay in its annual report, but the author will retain all other literary rights in the manuscript.

Two copies of the essay, one of which will be returned to the author, should be sent to the Institute of Early American History and Culture. The final decision, after a preliminary screening by the Institute, shall be made by a committee of the Huguenot Society.

The 1982 award was won by Brian Gordineer of Williamsburg, a 1982 graduate in history who wrote a paper entitled "The Huguenots Removed: A Study of the French Community at New Paltz, N.Y.," which he prepared originally for a class in the history of France taught by Thomas Sheppard, professor of history.

Gordineer is using the prize money for his education as a first-year student in the MBA program at the School of Business Administration. His essay will be published as part of the proceedings of the annual conference in May.

Further information concerning the essay competition should be directed to William A. Chenault, II, National Vice President, The Huguenot Society of the Founders of Manakin in the Colony of Virginia, 7013 Springdale Road, Louisville, Ky., 40222.

Alfred Greenwood Dies in Fairfax

Alfred Stevan Greenwood, 19, a student at the College until last January, died Nov. 4 at Fairfax Hospital of Ewing's sarcoma, a bone tumor.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred R. Greenwood, he was a 1981 graduate of W.T. Woodson High School in Annandale, where he received the Chris Marshall Award for courage, dedication and loyalty as an inspiration to his fellow students.

Greenwood was a member of the National Honor Society, the Latin Honor Society, the Student Council and the German and Latin Clubs. He was treasurer of the Key Club, a service organization at Woodson. He played freshman football and had coached in the Turnpike Basketball League in Annandale.

Nikki Giovanni, "The Princess of Black Poetry," will present a program of her work at 7 p.m., Wednesday, Nov. 10 in the Campus Center Ballroom at the College of William and Mary as part of the Black Culture Series sponsored by the Black Student Organization and the Office of Minority and Commuting Student Affairs.

Giovanni's books include "Black Feeling Black Talk," "Black Judgement," "Night Comes Softly," "A Dialogue: James Baldwin and Nikki Giovanni," "My House," "Cotton Candy on a Rainy Day," and her latest, "Vacation Time."

Her recordings include "Truth is on It's Way," "Like a Ripple on a Pond," and "The Way I Feel."

She has received honorary doctorates from Wilberforce University, the University of Maryland, Ripon University and Smith College, the Mademoiselle Magazine Award for Outstanding Achievement, the Ladies Home Journal Women of the Year, Youth Leadership Award and citations and commendations from the National Council of Negro Women and the American Library Association.

Miss Giovanni is an editorial consultant to Encore American and Worldwide News and writes a column entitled "The Root of the Matter." Her column, "One Woman's Voice," is syndicated by the Anderson-Moberg Syndicate of the New York Times.

Miss Giovanni was born in Knoxville, Tenn., but moved to Cincinnati at an early age. She is a 1967 graduate of Fisk University with a degree in history.

She has been characterized as the poet laureate of young Black women. "Nikki Giovanni is...softening, rounding the edges of sharp, angry poems that made her one of the 60's black revolutionary poets. If one still chooses to think of her as bitter then its bittersweet..." wrote one reviewer.

Craft Show Set Dec. 4 in CC

The Campus Center Craft Show is set for Saturday, Dec. 4 and an invitation is being extended to all campus crafters to display and sell their work.

As in previous years, the show will open at 10 a.m., immediately after the annual community Christmas Parade to catch a good number of customers in town for the parade.

Bob Knowlton, director of the Campus Center has also planned various attractions and services in conjunction with the show to boost attendance. The show will close at 4 p.m.

Anyone interested in exhibiting at the show is asked to fill out an application not later than Nov. 20. Because there is limited exhibition space, slots will be assigned on the base of the date on which the application is received.

There is a $15 charge per space, payable at the time of application. Each space will be approximately an eight-foot square.

Questions concerning details of the show should be addressed to either Bob Knowlton, ext. 4235 or Barbara Berninghausen at the Craft Shop, ext. 4041.

ALD Scholarship Entries Due

For the 1983-84 academic year the National Council of Alpha Lambda Delta will award the following fellowships for graduate or professional study: The Alice Crocker Lloyd Fellowship, The Adele Hagner Stamp Fellowship, The Maria Leonard Fellowship, The Kathryn Sisson Phillips Fellowship, The Christine Yerges Conaway Fellowship; The May Augusta Brunson Fellowship, The Fiftieth Anniversary Miriam A. Sheldon Fellowship, The Gladys Pennington Houser Fellowship, The Katharine Cooper Cater Fellowship, The Margaret Louise Cuninggim Fellowship, The Maude Lee Etheredge Fellowship, The Gladys Colette Bell Fellowship, and The Mary Jane Stevenson Fellowship. The amount of each fellowship is $2,500.00.

Any member of Alpha Lambda Delta who was graduated with a cumulative average of Alpha Lambda Delta initiation standard is eligible. Graduating seniors may apply if they have achieved this average to the end of the first semester (of first quarter) of this year.

Applications will be judged on scholastic record, recommendation, the soundness of their stated project and purpose, and need.

Application blanks and information may be obtained from: Ms. Amy Jarmon, Assoc., Dean of Students, James Blair 210.

The application form must be completed by the applicant and received at the National Headquarters Office of Alpha Lambda Delta by January 4, Post Office Box 454, Madison, IN 47250-0454.

Lerner-Levine Paintings, Lawton Ceramics, in Andrews

Paintings by Marion Lerner-Levine and ceramics by James B. Lawton are currently being exhibited in the Gallery at Andrews Fine Arts Hall.

The exhibits, which are open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and will be up until Nov. 26.

Marion Lerner-Levine of London, England, paints from direct observation but allows surreal elements into her work by altering scale and juxtaposing diverse objects. She works solely with still life, trying to transform it into something other than still life. She paints objects that have labels on them, Italian madonnas, tiny Chinese dancing men, dream landscapes, boxes, cans, fans and postcards that she uses as subject matter. The colors are bright and subtle, generally against a white, light background.

In several recent works including "Swan Scenes," "Varying Perception," and "The Beauty of Stone," Lerner-Levine has painted landscapes on boxes, in what is, on the surface, a still life situation. The shallow and deep landscape space changes the still life. The still life changes the landscape. Placed on rectangular, square or round boxes, the landscape continues around the corners of the box, or sometimes collides with a different scene there. This frames in the impossible infiniteness of real landscape.

"Conversely, the introduction of distant space into the solid, still surface of the still life alters the unimaginative solidity of boxes and objects, says the artist. They become magical. They form their own light, their own space, their own world."

Lerner-Levine was educated at the Art Institute of Chicago, the Chicago Graphic Workshop, and California State College at Los Angeles, and has had one-woman exhibits at the Foundry Gallery in Washington, D.C., and the Prince Street Gallery, Womanbooks and NYU Contemporary Arts Gallery in New York City.

The work of James Barnard Lawton originated from the wheel. It is altered significantly from its circular base into geometric and/or organic configurations. His pots emerge very free of roundness, the forming method opening up a frontier rich with possibilities.

Interpreted through this approach are vessel formats of historical origin. The tray for example, has been of particular interest to Lawton and he has used it in combination with other objects.

Lawton has also used the glaze as a vehicle to carry imagery. "My intent in the glazing," says Lawton, "is to unmask the benign nature of a 'decoration' to look past embellishment towards a more essential connection. Utility alone, does not lead me to the ceramic vessel, rather the historical precedence of this object encourages me to interpret it in a way pertinent to the present."

Lawton is a member of the American Crafts Council and the National Council on the Education of the Ceramic Arts. He is represented in collections in several states and is affiliated with several galleries including the American Had in Washington, D.C., Garth Clark in Claremont, Ca., and Galerie Simone Stern in New Orleans, La.

In 1981 he was Visiting Artist for the Artist-in-the-Schools Program of the South Carolina Arts Commission. Lawton lives in Indiatlantic, Fla., and studied at LSU, Baton Rouge and Florida State University in Tallahassee.

Currently on exhibit in the Andrews Foyer Gallery are paintings by Norman Nilsen which will be up until Nov. 19. This will be followed by an exhibition of sculpture by John Brazenall, Nov. 22 - Dec. 23.

The next exhibit in the Andrews Gallery will be a Fine Arts Faculty Show, Nov. 29 - Dec. 23.

Sinfonicron Casts 'The Merry Widow'

The Sinfonicron Opera Company has chosen the cast for "The Merry Widow," and rehearsals are underway.

The Franz Lehar musical about a very eligible rich widow in the kingdom of Portevetro and the government's maneuvering to get her another husband and keep her wealth in the country, will be presented Jan. 26-29. Tickets will go on sale after the first of the year. Individual admission will be $4. A special two for one sale for William and Mary students will be offered for the opening night performance.

The part of the widow will be played by Janice Taylor, wife of a commuting graduate student. Drew Dolson will play the part of the ambassador of Portevetro, Baron Mirko Zeta and Hardwick Spencer will be his secretary, Njegus. Chris Quartana will play the part of Danilo Danilovitch, the widow's former lover who seems the most likely candidate to keep her wealth in the country. Beth Miller as Valencienne is married to Baron Zeta but is in love with another. Lance Humphries as Camille de Rosillor, Dave Pruitt as Vicomte Cascada and Dirk Brown as Raoul de St. Brioche also have leading roles.

"The Merry Widow," will be directed by Julianne Fanning. Choreographer is Alison Emory. Tech director is Chris Fretts and vocal director is Val Fisher. Mary Ann Locke is stage manager and orchestra director is Susan Powell. Cindy Fisher and Gretchen Hines are handling publicity. The producer is Brad Staubes.

Fisher and Hines plan to present selections from the show as a promotion device and visit area schools and area organizations to spark interest in the show. They have already been invited to take the program to "A Change of Pace" one evening close to opening night. Special T shirts are being designed for cast members.

Computer Team Wins 2nd Prize

The 5th Annual Scholastic Programming Contest of the Capitol Region of the Association for Computing Machinery was held on Saturday, Oct. 30, at Virginia Commonwealth University. The top 3 teams out of the 14 participating were: Virginia Tech, William and Mary, and the University of Maryland. This was the best finish ever by a William and Mary team in the three years it has participated in the contest. It is particularly noteworthy since William and Mary is one of the few teams composed solely of undergraduates.

William and Mary was represented by Mike Blanks, Chrissie Grasmeyer, Chuck Shotton, and Karen Stone. The faculty sponsor was Robert Noonan of the department of Mathematics and Computer Science.

Each team is given five hours to solve four problems. This year Virginia Tech and William and Mary each solved one problem. No other team succeeded in solving any problems.

Virginia Tech and William and Mary will represent the Capitol Region in the national contest to be held in Orlando, Florida, on Wednesday, Feb. 16. They will be competing against the two best teams from each of the other 10 regions.

"Scalloped Jar" by James B. Lawton

Three Students Plan Recitals

Matthew DiSilvestro, a student of Timothy Olbrych, will give a classical guitar recital at 8 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 11 in the Wren Chapel.

DiSilvestro, who will graduate in December, is majoring in music. In addition to campus performances, he has played with the McDeviate and with the pit orchestra for the production of "Company" at the Chamberlain Hotel. He has also played in area hotels and for a radio commercial over WGH.

For his concert on Thursday, he will play six Renaissance lute pieces, "Chaconne in D minor by Bach and the Allegretto selection from "Sonata" by Alexander Bellow. DiSilvestro will also play two selections by Villa Lobos, "Choros," and Prelude No. 3. and "Burgelesa," by Moreno Torroba.

Ann Roberson

Ann Roberson, a senior, will give an oboe recital at 8 p.m., Sunday, Nov. 14 in the auditorium of the Williamsburg Regional Library.

Ann Roberson

Roberson is president of the College/Community Orchestra and the Pre-Law Club and is a member of Delta Omicron music fraternity, the Sinfonicron Opera Company and the Canterbury Student Association. She is majoring in music and English.

For her recital on Sunday she will play Sonata for Oboe and Piano by Poulenc and variations on "La ci darem la mano," from Mozart's "Don Giovanni" by Beethoven.

The latter selection is a trio for two oboes and English horn. Miss Roberson will be accompanied by Karen Work and Katherine Slatten and her piano accompanist Thomas Field. Field is a junior majoring in music and computer science who is studying with Vera Lendvay. Miss Roberson studies with Burton Kester.

Miss Roberson currently holds both the Aurelia B. Walford and the Anna B.K. Nimmo scholarships in music. After graduation she plans to do graduate work in music history.

Clayton Lee Cromley

Clayton Lee Cromley, a senior majoring in government and music, will give a baritone voice recital at 8 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 18 in the Wren Chapel of the Sir Christopher Wren Building. He is currently studying with Frances Breeze of the music faculty.

He is a member of the William and Mary Choir, a production director and former station manager for the campus radio station, WCWM, vice president of the Society for Collegiate Journalist. He has appeared in the casts of "Godspell" and "Trial by Jury." Cromley is also a member of the F.H.C. Society.

His recital program will include "Ah! Spietato," from "Rinaldo," and "Lascia chi' io piagna," from "Amadigi," two operatic selections by Handel; Liederkreis, Op. 24 by Robert Schumann, a song-cycle of nine songs based on the poems of Heinrich Heine and "Fetes Galantes II" a set of three songs from a book of poems by Paul Verlaine set to music by Debussy. His final selection will be a set of four songs from a book of poems by Gertrude Norman entitled "Childhood Fables for Grownups," music by Irving Fine.

Pianist for Cromley will be Ann Roberson.

Faculty Party

The Faculty Club will hold its second major party on Friday 12, Nov. from 5:30-7:30 p.m. at the home of Lynn Doverspike at 950 Jamestown Road.

The House on Jamestown Road A Home Away From Home

It is not the Ritz, but they're getting there.

The white frame house next to the Book Store on Jamestown Road is now home for the 900 day students on campus, and while improvements are needed (and are being made), the residents have no complaints. Their former niche was a small room off the ballroom of the Campus Center labelled "Pantry" that they shared with banquet ice and beverages when celebrations were scheduled next door.

The new quarters are convenient, homey and provide a pleasant spot for commuting students to spend their free time on campus. The students share quarters with the Legal Aid Services who occupy two rooms on the first floor but there is little complaint about the double-occupancy.

Paul Markowski

Paul Markowski, resident director of the Day Student House is delighted to take visitors on a tour and point out the special features of the house. Downstairs in the living room there is comfortable furniture, a TV and a newly installed pay phone for the convenience of students. There's a touch of whimsy in an artful rendition of the Sunken Garden over the sofa. The screened porch off the living room is a good place for outdoor parties. Right now there is a supply of firewood stacked by the porch, contributed by two enterprising day students.

The stairs have been carpeted and the upstairs area around the stairs will be carpeted also. The floor in the entry hall downstairs is going to be refinished and the housekeeping staff, which is taking a personal pride in the improvements being made, has promised to keep a shine on the floor to greet visitors.

There are two study rooms upstairs with work tables and carrels. Markowski says the rooms are ideal for meetings of small groups, such as business school case groups. Lockers are available. Users bring their own locks.

Also upstairs is a quest room for emergencies; the fee is $10 a night. To discourage short-term tenants, the sign on the door notes the the daily fee also applies to anyone who wants to use the room to take an afternoon nap.

The room has, says Markowski been a lifesaver for students stranded either by bad weather or car trouble. It was also a temporary lodging for three foreign students who arrived and could not be permanently located in housing right away. There is also a shower upstairs.

"When you come to campus loaded with books for five classes, gym clothes and your lunch, it is good to have somewhere like the house," says Markowski. He said one student told him he really enjoyed the opportunity of the house as a place to have lunch. "People looked at me in a funny way when I ate in the car," he told Markowski.

Markowski estimates that 40-50 students a day use the house.

Wyer to Conduct WIB Workshop

The Women in Business Program will conduct two workshops in December.

"Understanding Financial Systems," a practical approach for non-financial manager, will be held Dec. 1, 2 at the Quality Inn, Fort Magruder. "How To Be Taken Seriously in Business," a repeat of a very popular program, will be presented Dec. 4, also at Fort Magruder.

The program on financial systems includes a practical, plain-English course "to boost your financial confidence", as well as sessions on budgeting, financial decision-making and "Megatronics, Inc.", a comprehensive case study.

Seminar leader will be Jean Wyer, associate professor of business administration at William and Mary. A certified public accountant, she is a consultant to numerous national and international organizations. She is recipient of the 1982 Thomas Jefferson Teaching Award, the highest award given by the College in recognition of teaching accomplishments.

Fee for the course is $495

Julie White, director of the Institute for Management at Old Dominion University, will be workshop leader for the program on Dec. 4

Participants will also be counseled on how to apply these skills in specific situations such as making a point in a meeting, working in a group, giving and taking criticism and dealing with sexism in the office.

Fee for the program is $65.

Registration details for both programs may be obtained from Julia B. Leverenz, director, Women in Business Program, School of Business Administration, 253-4286.

Government Dept. Sponsors Boyle

How much did Virginia candidates and political committees spend in the 1982 federal elections? How can students obtain statistics on campaign financing?

Answers to these and other questions will be addressed by Larry Boyle of the Federal Election Commission in a presentation sponsored by the government department. The meeting will be at 3:30 p.m., Friday, Nov. 12 in Room 20, Morton Hall.

An alumnus, Boyle is an information specialist at the FEC. The Commission is an independent regulatory agency with jurisdiction over the campaign financing of federal elections.

His visit to the campus is one of several presentations Boyle will be making in the Williamsburg area from Nov. 11 through 13. These presentations to educators and students are part of an educational outreach program recently implemented by the FEC to acquaint them with its research facilities, publications and audio-visual materials.

Official Memorandum

Personnel Policies

The Department of Personnel and Training has established specific personnel policies and procedures which must be strictly adhered to when a personnel action is taken involving employees subject to the Rules for the Administration of the Virginia Personnel Act.

In the past, training has been conducted by the Training Officer from the Personnel Office in the areas of performance evaluation preparation, application of the Employee Standards of Conduct, and the State Grievance Procedure. All supervisors who are responsible for the administration of these policies should be knowledgeable of their proper application. If there are supervisors in your department who have not been advised of, or others for whom a review of these procedures would be helpful, please contact the Personnel Office to arrange for participation in a training session. For those departments with a number of supervisors, a session may be scheduled for the entire group at the department's convenience.

In addition, the Department of Personnel and Training has published, "Employee Relations Management: A Handbook for Supervisors", a booklet containing detailed instructions for these personnel procedures. Most departments will have this information as distribution was made when the booklets were first published. However, additional copies are available in the Personnel Office.

It is the responsibility of all administrators to properly follow the published procedures. Any question concerning their application should be directed to the Personnel Office.
