

Honors Will Highlight Charter Day Ceremony

Four of the College's six living Rectors will attend the Charter Day Convocation at 10:30 a.m., Saturday, Feb. 5 in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall to be recognized for their contributions to William and Mary.

W. Brooks George '32, 1966-68; Walter G. Mason, 1968-70; Ernest Goodrich '35, 1970-72; and John Lee Johnson, '28, 1976-78 will be on hand on the platform Saturday morning. The two other living rectors, R. Harvey Chappell, Jr., '48, 1972-76; and Edward E. Brickell '50, 1978-82 are unable to attend.

The contributions of the Rectors of the College are detailed in an article by Wilford Kale '66 in the latest summer issue of Alumni Gazette magazine.

The charter of the College, notes Kale says states that "They shall have one dis-

Lectures Focus On Wartime

What was the mood of the people on the eve of the American Revolution? How did they respond to British aggression? How did they cope with life after the conflict?

These are some of the questions historian Jackson Turner Main will tackle in a series of public lectures.

Main is James Pinckney Harrison Professor of History for 1982-83 and is currently on leave as professor of history at State University of New York (SUNY) at Stony Brook.

All lectures will be given at 8 p.m. in the Dodge Room of Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

In his first lecture, Monday, Feb. 7, Main will set the stage for his topic with a description of the principal groups which became important during the period such as slaves, craftsmen, farmers in the north and south, great planters and traders. He will take as the title of his opening lecture, "The People on the Eve of the Revolution." Main says he will use a mix of social and political history both in his opening lecture and the two that will follow on Feb. 14 and 21.

Main says he plans to discuss what the people were like on the eve of the Revolution, their interests, their lives, their attitudes toward resistance to England and how they reacted to the crisis. Each topic is a separate aspect but interrelated to the others, he says.

An Early American historian, Main is the author of several books including, "The Antifederalists 1781-1788," "The Special Structure of Revolutionary America," "The Upper House in Revolutionary America," "Political Parties Before the Constitution," "The Sovereign States 1775-1783," and "Connecticut Society in the Era of the American Revolution."

He was an American Council of Learned Societies Fellow in 1962-63, and an NEH Fellow at the Center for Advanced Studies in Behavioral Science at Stanford in 1980-81. He has been professor of history at SUNY since 1966. He earned all three of his degrees from the University of Wisconsin and received an honorary LL. D. from Washington and Jefferson College where he was a member of the history faculty from 1948-50.

Main was principal speaker at the annual meeting and invitation of new members of Alpha of Virginia Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa held in the Colonial Capitol, Dec. 5.

Main says he plans to retire at the end of this year but hopes there will be opportunities for him to teach occasionally.

Looking back over his years in the classroom, Main says he doesn't think students have changed very much. He feels that they have the same mix of abilities and aptitudes as when he began his career. He does, however, see a lessening of the formality between teacher and student.

"The relationship between teacher and student used to be formal and distant. They were inclined to address one as 'Sir' or 'Mr.' They regarded professors with some awe," says Main. "We called them 'Mr.' and 'Miss'. Now it is much more likely to be on a first-name basis, although some teachers still keep their distance. Most of us feel much closer to students now. We regard them more as friends as well as students."

Jackson Turner Main

He firmly believes that all students, regardless of what curriculum they choose, need a good foundation in history to fit them for leadership roles in life.

The James Pinckney Harrison Chair of History was established as a memorial to the late chairman of the board of the Universal Leaf Tobacco Company of Richmond, who died in 1968. The chair was established by his widow, Mrs. Nellie A. Meade Harrison of Charles City County, and their son, James Pinckney Harrison, Jr., of Hunter College.

The first holder of the chair was Dr. David B. Quinn, one of Great Britain's leading historians, who was at the College, 1969-70.

Happy Boston! See the Sons deplore,
Hallow'd Walks betwixt with guiltless Gore,
The faithless P— n and his savage Bands,
The murtherous Rancour stretch their bloody Hands,
The fierce Barbarians grinning o'er their Prey,
Prove the Carriage and enjoy the Day.

If falling drops from Rage from Anguish bring,
If Speechless Sorrows lab'ring for a Tongue,
Or if a weeping World can ought appease,
The plaintive Ghosts of Victims fish as these,
The Patriot's copious Tears for each are shed,
A glorious Tribute which embalms the Dead.

But know, Earth's firebrands to that awful Goal,
Where Justice strips the Murderer of his Soul,
Should ventur'— to the scandal of the Land,
Snatch the reluctant Villain from her Hand,
Keen Executions on this Plate infernal,
Shall reach a JUDGE who never can be brib'd.

College Receives Rare Copy of Paul Revere Print

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Fields of Williamsburg recently presented a rare copy of Paul Revere's print of the Boston Massacre to the Earl Gregg Swem Library. President Graves has called it "one of the most historically significant gifts which William and Mary has ever received."

The most famous and most desirable of all of Revere's engravings, it appeared on March 26, 1770, and was sold on the streets of Boston for eight pence. Two hundred impressions were printed. The original copper plate from which they were struck is preserved in the Massachusetts State Archives.

According to John D. Haskell, Jr., associate librarian at Swem, the print has long been held in high regard because it commemorates an important event in American history; it is the work of a famous artist and patriot; and its coloring and design make it particularly decorative. Clarence S. Brigham, the author of Paul Revere's Engravings, referred to it as "the cornerstone of any American collection."

The event depicted in the print occurred on the evening of March 5, 1770, and shows British troops firing on a crowd of unarmed Bostonians. The angry mob was actually armed with clubs and bats and reportedly provoked the troops to fire on them. Historians agree that Paul Revere intentionally produced the print as propaganda to further the Colonial cause.

von Baeyer to Head Self-Study

MEMORANDUM TO: The College Community

The College Delegate Assembly of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools is charged with the responsibility of accrediting institutions of higher learning in the southern region of the United States. This responsibility is exercised through the Commission on Colleges of SACS. Once each ten-year period member universities and colleges make a comprehensive Self-Study which is to be evaluated at the institution by a qualified committee of educators appointed by SACS. This is the procedure for reaffirmation of accreditation, but the primary purpose of these visits is the qualitative improvement of each member institution.

The above statement is drawn from the Standards of the College Delegate Assembly of SACS.

The College of William and Mary last carried out its Self-Study in 1972-73 and submitted its report to SACS in 1974.

At the request of the Commission on Colleges, we are now getting underway on the next Self-Study that will be carried out in 1983-84 and will be submitted in 1985.

Professor Hans C. von Baeyer will serve as Director of the Self-Study and Chairman of its Steering Committee. Professor Jack D. Edwards will act as Editor of the Self-Study Report. I am grateful to each of these faculty members for accepting these major responsibilities.

Associate Vice President for Academic Affairs, Associate Professor Linda Collins Reilly will serve as liaison for the College administration during the Self-Study.

The Self-Study is a major undertaking for the College that will involve many members of its Faculty and administration as well as staff, students and alumni. Your participation in and inputs to the process will be essential to its success and will be greatly appreciated. A major aspect of the Self-Study will be a careful assessment of the purpose and aims of the College. I am confident that out of our commitment to the Self-Study at this time will come many benefits of lasting value to William and Mary.

Black Thespians Give Performance for Poet Brooks

The newly formed Black Thespian Society will give the first in a series of lunchtime readings from noon to 1 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 9 in the Botetourt Theatre of Swem Library.

Students Monica Hopkins, Kenbridge; Audrey Jackson, Arlington; Zandra Thompson, Chesapeake and Jacob Wilson, Hampton, will perform a compilation of literature by Pulitzer Prize-winning poet Gwendolyn Brooks, taking the title of one of her poems, "Blackness Is A Title," as their theme.

The students gave a special preview of their program for Miss Brooks when she visited campus recently and read two of her poems, "We Real Cool," and "A Primer for Blacks," at the conclusion of her program in the Campus Center Ballroom, Jan. 27.

Sponsored by the Department of Theatre and Speech and directed by Joni Lee Jones of the theatre faculty, the Black Thespian Society is planning to present one major production this year, "The Harlem Renaissance Revisited," in the Lab Theatre at Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall, early in April, as well as the monthly noon-time readings during the semester.

Miss Jones, who joined the faculty this year, was formerly at the University of Maryland. A graduate of Northwestern University and the Folger Theatre Group, she specializes in oral interpretation. As a performer she has appeared at the Source.

Back Alley and New Playwrights Theatres in the Washington area.

The Thespians, explains Miss Jones, is an opportunity for black students to gain an appreciation of black literature and to perform in plays by black playwrights, although she adds that the group is not exclusively for black students and the material used will not be exclusively by black writers and poets.

An extracurricular activity, the Black Thespians Society offers students no credit.

The idea for the group, says Jones, began with Richard Palmer, chairman of the theatre and department of theatre and speech. Jones has been working during the first semester to get the program organized.

Open auditions will be held for the major production, "The Harlem Renaissance Revisited," a compilation of works by writers from the Harlem Renaissance.

Festival Guild To Meet Feb. 13

There will be a general membership meeting of the Festival Guild of the Virginia Shakespeare Festival at 2 p.m., on Sunday, Feb. 13, in the Dodge Room of Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

Nominations and elections for the 1983 season will be held at that time. Plans for the upcoming season will also be discussed.

Those Shakespearean and theatre enthusiasts interested in learning more about the Guild and its purpose are cordially invited to attend.

For further information, please call Kathy Hawkins during the day at 253-2230.

Coffee Hour

The French House will hold a "baratin" from 4-6 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 3 at the house. Everyone, regardless of their proficiency in the language, is welcome. Refreshments will be served.

One Week Later — Jefferson West Opens

A week and a few days after the fire, Jefferson Hall residents have been relocated for the rest of the semester, and the offices of the Dean of Students and Residence Hall Life are beginning to wind down to normal operations.

Even before students started checking into the Commonwealth Inn on Richmond Road, Friday afternoon and Saturday morning, the Buildings and Grounds Department had added a collegiate look with a big sign proclaiming the building "Jefferson West."

All 135 students who had been housed in the Motor House at the invitation of Colonial Williamsburg have been moved into the new quarters. The remaining 50 have been reassigned on campus.

The College has leased the entire Commonwealth Inn until May 15 and will take up its option again for an August-May period during 1983-84. Desks, chests of drawers and hall refrigerators have been added for students. The outer glass doors of the building have been replaced by solid doors with crash bars. Students have been given keys to the outside doors as well as room keys. Smoke detectors have been installed in each room and in the hallways; extra manual fire extinguishers have been installed, and a thorough fire safety check has been carried out by Mike Kershner and a crew from the Buildings and Grounds Department.

Because all of the residents at Jefferson West are freshmen, the lack of kitchens will not be a major problem. Staff members have been given extra boarding privileges.

Chuck Lombardo and his staff are already looking for 185 rooms on campus for freshmen next year. The College, says Lombardo, would like to have freshmen on the main campus and will probably use Jefferson West for upperclassmen, although no final decisions have been made. While there are inconveniences at Jefferson West, the rooms are great, says Lombardo, who wouldn't be surprised to see some freshmen request Jefferson West for next year at lottery time.

A committee, chaired by Chuck Lombardo, is already at work on the future of Jefferson Hall. The committee, which includes: David Charlton, Auxiliary Enterprises; Dean Sadler; Larry Broomall, Business Office; and Jim Connolly, Facilities Planning and Construction, will also have the input of a student and/or staff member from Jefferson.

Items retrieved from the burned building, which have been boxed in Dupont, were delivered to owners over the weekend. The College is going to do its own retrieval of all re-usable furniture.

Heavy traffic at the clothing bank has about stopped and plans are being made to turn back the basement of Dupont to the residents for use again as a lounge and TV room.

Giving credit to the Residence Hall Life staff, Lombardo said, "They are what pulled us through as well as we came through. The staff did a magnificent job. Alecia Lenz's comments at the first meeting after the fire when she turned tears into joy, was a perfect example." Encouraging students to keep their sense of humor and stay together, Lenz, head resident at Jefferson said, "Jefferson Hall may be gone but the spirit of Jefferson still lives."

"They did everything that was asked of them," said Lombardo. "They were everything from truck drivers to box packers — they were just super. I can't say enough about all they did. They really did pull us through."

Lombardo's praise is aimed at the 125 resident and assistant head residents on campus and the eight area coordinators and the staffs of the Office of the Dean of Students and Residence Hall Life.

Did training play a large part in the way staff members were able to react, decisively and effectively at the fire scene?

"We don't spend a lot of time in disaster training, but we do put a great deal of stress on interpersonal skills — how to provide assistance when it is needed.

Although Lombardo is pleased with how things went, he says that there will be a review of the entire operation to see "if we can make an even better response if something similar should occur again."

Lombardo said that he and Dean Sadler are planning to collaborate on an article for professional journals, outlining the College's response during the fire. "Our experience," says Sadler, "will be helpful to other institutions.

Sadler echoed Lombardo's praise of the staff in a letter to parents of students in Jefferson. The letter is one of two that went out from Sadler's office this weekend. An informational letter was sent to all parents, advising them of the College's safety preparedness in the residence halls.

"I know you join me in expressing gratitude for the fact that no student was injured in the fire," wrote Sadler. "The evacuation of the building proceeded smoothly and our fire detection and alarm systems worked as they should have. That this occurred and that things have gone so smoothly since the fire, is due in large measure to the skill and dedication of the residence hall staff, especially the RAs and Head Residents in the buildings." Sadler went on to praise the spirit and courteousness of Jefferson residents under adverse conditions and concluded "We will all remember the spirit we have witnessed for a long time to come."

It takes a very special kind of person to be an RA and through the years we have devised a good mechanism for choosing people," explained Sadler. "We have been very successful every year. Staff is selected in the spring and undergoes three full days of training before the end of the term, as well as several short meetings. They return five days before students move in for all-day sessions and in-service training is continued throughout the year.

"Their commitment is often not immediately apparent," explained Sadler. Taking Head Resident Lenz as an example, Sadler said she was accountable for 184 students, supervises a staff of seven, undertakes much of the training they receive and still maintains a full academic load.

"We hope that the students will take every fire alarm as seriously as they did the Jefferson alarm, but we hope they will not be tempted to stop and gather up things to carry with them," said Sadler. "Their lives are so much more important than any possessions."

Martin Luther King Fund

In recognition of Martin Luther King's birthday, Jan. 15, the Affirmative Action Advisory Committee is asking the College Community for financial contributions to support the Martin Luther King Fund which makes annual awards to minority students to defray academic expenses. This fund, established several years ago, is in urgent need of contributions.

Tax-deductible contributions may be made by writing checks to the College of William and Mary - Martin Luther King Fund and sending the check to the Student Financial Aid office.

Members of the Affirmative Action Advisory Committee include the following: Laura Chambers, Patricia K. Smith, Willa Chambers, Charles R. Toomajian, Julius Green, Oliver O. Trumbo, Pamela D. Hairston, W. Larry Ventis, Carroll F.S. Hardy, Barbara A. Watkinson, John Lucy, Inez White, H. Earl McLane, Walter L. Williams, Judith Nussen, Beth Young, Ellen F. Rosen (Chair) and Dale B. Robinson (ex-officio).

President's Hours

President Graves will continue during the rest of the year to schedule open office hours in Ewell Hall for students who wish to come by and chat informally about any topic of their choice. No appointment is necessary. Each caller will be given approximately 10 minutes.

The schedule will include the following dates:

Tuesday, Feb. 8--4 - 5 p.m.
Wednesday, Feb. 16--4 - 5 p.m.
Thursday, Feb. 24--4 - 5 p.m.

Biology Internships

The Worcester Foundation for Experimental Biology is now accepting applications for its Summer Training Program. A "B" average or better in the sciences and cumulative coursework is necessary for consideration. Many different projects in three broad areas of research interest are available: cell biology, reproductive and Endocrine biology, and neurobiology. Deadline for applications is Feb. 28.

BSA Funding

The BSA has limited funds available to cover the cost of registration fees, travel, lodging and meals for students wishing to attend conferences during the spring semester.

Students attending a conference should submit a written request to Dan Stipano, chairman, (220-0201) BSA financial committee, before the deadline, Feb. 28.

Backpacking Equipment

Backpacking equipment available on loan from Women's Physical Education, Adair 301, Monday & Thursday, 5-6 p.m. A $10 deposit is required. Tents, stoves, sleeping bags, backpacks, pads, and cook-sets are available.

Bloodmobile

The Williamsburg-James City County Chapter, American Red Cross will conduct a bloodmobile on Tuesday, Feb. 8, from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m., at the Williamsburg Lodge (North Ballroom).

The visit is sponsored by the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation and the Marshall-Wythe School of Law.

Individuals who have not donated blood within the past eight weeks are urged to support this visit.

Colonial Williamsburg employees should call Mary Anne O'Connor, 229-1000, ext. 2723, to schedule appointments to donate. All other donors call the Red Cross office, 253-0228, to schedule appointments. The period from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. will be reserved for CW employees. The period from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. will be open to everyone.

Nuclear Disarmament Film

The William and Mary Nuclear Disarmament Study Group will show the new film, Gods of Metal, Thursday, Feb. 10, at 7:30 p.m. in Rogers 100.

Produced by the Maryknoll Order, Gods of Metal examines the impact of militarism on American society and shows what ordinary citizens can do to protest the nuclear arms race. Gods of Metal is powerful, "sophisticated," "highly professional filmmaking," according to critic Michael Seitz. A short discussion will follow the film.

Mainor on Medical Ethics

On Thursday, February 3 at 4:00 in Morton 341, Thomas Mainor will present a session on "Careers in Medical Ethics" at 4 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 3, in Morton 341.

Mainor is the Director of Chaplaincy Services at Medical Center Hospitals in Norfolk. He has also taught at the Eastern Virginia Medical School and has worked as a campus minister at William and Mary.

Mainor's talk is the first this semester scheduled by the Career Speaker Series in the Office of Career Planning. The Series plans to have about ten sessions including ones on oncology and policy analysis.

Merit Scholarships

The department of military science is now accepting applications from non-ROTC freshman and sophomore students who are interested in applying for three and two year ROTC Merit Scholarships.

The ROTC scholarship will pay for full tuition, books, educational fees plus a monthly allowance of $100 during the academic year. A number of scholarships will be awarded to those students who are not currently enrolled in the army ROTC program.

Interested students should contact Cpt. Fleming or Cpt. Burton at 4366 or 4368 for additional information. Scholarship applications are available in room 1 of Blow gymnasium.

Orchestra Rehearsals Begin Tonight

The College-Community Orchestra, directed by Edgar Warren Williams, is now accepting musicians, particularly string players and percussionists, for the spring season.

Rehearsals are held in Ewell 200 at 7 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

If interested, please contact Ann Robertson at 229-2380, Director Williams at ext. 4375, or attend the first rehearsal tonight.

The orchestra will give two concerts this spring, March 31 at the Williamsburg Regional Library, and April 24 in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

For Procrastinators

A Group will be offered at the Center for Psychological Services to address the problems of procrastination. If enough practitioners of the art are both dissatisfied with the trait and DO REGISTER, the group will begin Thursday, Feb. 10.

The purpose of the group is to provide insights regarding procrastination and examine alternatives. Class size is limited.

Instead of "putting it off," register now by calling x4231 or stop by the Center. The Group will meet for 8 weeks on Thursdays 3-5 p.m. at the Center for Psychological Services, 125 Richmond Road. Group Leader will be Jan Pattis.

Deadline For Fellows Program Feb. 15

Deadline for Governor Charles Robb's Fellows Program for this summer has been extended from Feb. 1 to Feb. 15.

Applications must be received at the Governor's Fellows Program,

State Capitol, Richmond, Virginia 23219.

An applicant selected as a Fellow must be willing to commit at least two months to fulltime work in the Governor's Office. The normal period of a fellowship would be from June 1 to July 30.

Mary and William Law Society Plan Conference in Campus Center

Women political candidates, women campaigners, and women lobbyists will share their knowledge about women in the political process in the United States at a conference Saturday, Feb. 12, at the Campus Center, sponsored by the Mary and William Women's Law Society at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law.

Barbara Mikulski, democratic U.S. Congresswoman from Maryland, will be the keynote speaker. She will speak at a buffet luncheon.

Voting patterns of women and women as an emerging voting block will be discussed by three faculty members. George Grayson, a former member of the Virginia General Assembly and John McGlennon, both members of the government department faculty, and Richard Williamson, professor of law, will examine the political impact of women. Grayson and McGlennon were both candidates for the First District Congressional seat.

Virginia Senator Paul Trible's campaign manager in the November election, Judy Peachee, will explore practical problems women candidates face on the state level. Williamsburg-James City County Clerk of Courts Helene S. Ward will discuss campaign problems of local women political candidates.

A workshop on lobbying at the local and state levels will be led by three veteran lobbyists. The director of Common Cause of Virginia, Gordon Morse, consumer lobbyist, Christie Vernon, and the former legislative head of the League of Women Voters of Virginia, Anne Treichler, will review current legislation of interest to women pending in the General Assembly as well as give tips on how to organize "grass root" coalitions and how to lobby.

The conference gets underway at 8:30 a.m., Feb. 12 with registration. The first workshop begins at 9 a.m.

Advance registrations will be accepted until Feb. 7. Registration fee for students and senior citizens is $4.50 and $6.50 for the general public if the registration is received by Feb. 7. The fee includes the buffet luncheon.

Free child care will be available but lunch will not be provided for children.

Make registration fee checks payable to: The Mary and William Women's Law Society and mail to 410 Merrimac Trail, No. 10, Williamsburg, VA. 23185. For more information, call 220-1357.

Victorian Architecture

Richard Guy Wilson of the Architectural History Program in the School of Architecture, University of Virginia, will speak on "Church and Domestic Architecture in Victorian America," as part of David Holmes' class in American religion, at 11 a.m., Thursday, Feb. 3 in Jones 301.

Trip to "Gandhi"

The Catholic Student Association and Student Ecumenical Council are sponsoring a trip to Newport News to see the movie "Gandhi" on Saturday, Feb. 5. They will leave from St. Bede's Church parking lot on Richmond Road at 3:15 p.m. Cost is $2.

For more information call 229-5146.

Drivers are needed. Those who can bring cars are asked to do so.

Physics Colloquia

Hans Weber, University of Virginia, will be guest speaker at the Feb. 4th physics colloquium which will be held at 4:30 p.m., in Small 109. His topic will be "Quarks and the Nucleon Interaction."

Speaker for the Feb. 11th colloquium will be A.T. Fiory, Bell Laboratories who will discuss the equilibrium Kosterlitz-Thouless phase transition observed in superconducting films.

Coffee is served in the conference room at 3:30 p.m. before each colloquium.

Final Oral Exam

Tzu-Shin Wang will take the final oral examination for the Ph.D. degree at 11 a.m., Friday, Feb. 4 in the conference room of Small Physical Laboratory. This examination is open to the public. His topic is "A General Theory of Electron Detachment in Negative Ion Collisions."

Career Exploration Day Set Feb. 12

The Offices of Career Planning and Placement in cooperation with the Society of the Alumni are encouraging all students to register now for the third annual CAREER EXPLORATION DAY to be held on Saturday, Feb. 12 from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in Morton Hall.

The program will provide students with a unique opportunity to discuss career issues and opportunities with William and Mary graduates. Students may choose from twenty-one career panels including — advertising, banking, fine arts, public administration, journalism, research and law.

Some of the Alumni who will be returning to campus for the program include:

Jamie G. Baylis, '81 - assistant to the editor-in-chief for Harper's Magazine

Ellen K. Rudolph, '68 - Community Services Coordinator for Colonial Community Mental Health Center
Bruce E. Russell, '76 - Manager in International Cost Accounting for Phillip Morris, Inc.
Caroline B. Bolte, '81 - Public Relations Officer for The Valentine Museum
Richard Owens, '68 - Assistant to the Chairman of the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts
Lawrence T. Leightley, '72 - research/projects coordinator for the Department of State
Students may obtain a complete listing of panel presentations as well as registration forms in the Office of Career Planning and Placement, Morton Hall 140.

Joel S. Levine

Joel S. Levine, a NASA scientist who teaches a course entitled "Star, Planets, and Life," for the Office of Special Programs of the College, is one of 12 in the physical and biological sciences to receive the 1982 Halpern Award in Photochemistry, given annually by the New York Academy of Sciences.

Levine was cited for his accomplishments and leadership in studies of the photochemistry of the Earth's atmosphere and the atmospheres of Mars and Venus. Levine is a senior research scientist in the Theoretical Studies Branch, Atmospheric Sciences Division at NASA's Langley Research Center, Hampton, Va.

Presentation of all the science awards for 1982 were made at the 165th annual meeting of the academy Dec. 8, at the Vista International Hotel, World Trade Center, New York City.

At 40, Levine is the youngest person to receive the Halpern Award. He is also the first U.S. Government employee selected in the international competition.

Photochemistry is the branch of science that deals with chemical reactions initiated by the interaction of photons with molecules.

Levine has been at Langley since 1970. He received a B.S. (physics) from Brooklyn College of the City University of New York, an M.S. (meteorology) from New York University and an M.S. (aeronomy and planetary atmospheres) and Ph.D. (atmospheric sciences), both from the University of Michigan.

Levine is author of more than three dozen papers in referred scientific journals. He has written chapters in five books, co-edited a volume on tropospheric chemistry, and has been the contributing editor for astronomy and space sciences for The New York Times Encyclopedic Almanac.

Julian Ward Jones, Jr. of the department of classical studies has just published an article in Vergilius (1982): "A Twelfth-Century Interpretation of Vergil".

Hans O. Tiefel read a paper, "Rethinking Christian Ethics in Light of the Holocaust," at the annual meeting of the Society of Christian Ethics in Indianapolis on Jan. 14.

John D. Haskell, Associate Librarian, Swem Library, reviewed Justin Winsor: Scholar - Librarian, edited by Wayne Cutler and Michael H. Harris, in the Fall 1982 issue of the Journal of Library History.

John H. Oakley of the department of classical studies recently attended the annual meeting of the American Philological Association and the Archaeological Institute of America in Philadelphia where he presented a paper entitled, "A Louvre Fragment Reconsidered: Perseus Becomes Erichthonios". His article on this fragment has just appeared in the Journal for Hellenic Studies 102 (1982).

The following members of the Department of Religion gave papers at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Religion in New York, December 19-22:

David L. Holmes, "Doing Architecture and Historic Preservation in the History and Church History Classroom."

James C. Livingston, "The Religious and the Aesthetic in Nineteenth Century England: Romanticism to Aestheticism."

Jack D. Van Horn, "Buddhist Movements in Modern India."

Gregg Kormanik, acting assistant professor of biology, recently returned from the National meeting of the American Society of Zoologists in Louisville, where he presented a paper with David Evans, University of Florida, entitled "Sodium and Chloride Extrusion in the Gulf Toadfish, Opsanus beta, Acclimated to Sea Water". This paper appeared in the December issue of the Journal of Experimental Zoology.

Anne Netick, associate professor of modern languages, attended the national convention of the American Association of Teachers of Slavic and East European Languages in Chicago, Dec. 27-30, where she presented a paper: "Katerina Ivanovna: Andreyev's Pan-Psychic Heroine." Netick was elected secretary of the drama section for the 1983 convention of AATSEEL.

Netick also attended the South Atlantic Modern Language Association conference in Atlanta in November, where she presented a paper: "Gogol on Art." She is a member of the Nominating Committee of the Slavic Section of SAMLA.

Eric O. Ayisi, associate professor of anthropology, has been recognized for work in his field by inclusion in several registers with international circulations.

He will be listed in the 1984 edition of Personalities of America and the tenth edition of Men of Achievement, due for publication in the latter part of 1983. He is also included in Who's Who in the South and Southwest, a Marquis publication and has been invited to join the International Platform Association, founded by Daniel Webster and Josiah Holbrook in 1831 as The American Lyceum Association.

A general introduction course in coastal and estuarine resources was recently completed by 14 managers of the Virginia Department of Parks at the Virginia Institute of Marine Science of Gloucester Point.

The four-day professional training program, directed by Maurice P. Lynch, VIMS Assistant Director and VIMS scientists, was designed to inform field personnel of coastal environments and resources in Virginia and to assist them in better managing their individual parks and developing appropriate interpretive programs.

Alan J. Ward, professor of government, presented a paper entitled, "Political autonomy and divided societies: Northern Ireland and the West Bank Compared," on Dec. 30, to a joint session of the American Historical Association and the American Professors for Peace in the Middle East. The session was held at the annual meeting of the A.H.A. in Washington, D.C.

Also, Lawrence Wiseman, with former graduate student Mary Anne Tucci, presented "Migration of embryonic chick heart fibroblasts and myocytes through solid tissue masses in culture".

Mortar Board Seek Nominees

Dear College Community,

Every spring Mortar Board, the senior leadership honor society, recognizes two outstanding women, a senior and a sophomore, for their achievements at William and Mary.

The Laurie Lucker Blount Memorial Award honors Laurie Blount, a graduate of the Class of 1978. The award guidelines state: "the recipient must be a graduating female, have contributed both to her community and campus in the area of service, have demonstrated high academic achievement, and have been a member of a women's athletic team and displayed sportsmanship and team spirit."

The Outstanding Sophomore Female Award recipient must: be a sophomore female; have earned a qualifying 3.0 grade point average; have high intellect as demonstrated by stimulating ideas, curiosity, and perceptiveness; have served the College community in a capacity that was exemplary to her peers; and have conveyed a positive attitude in her academic, service, and leadership endeavors.

The Mortar Board is accepting letters of nomination for these two awards through Friday, February 18th, at Dean Jarmon's office (James Blair 210). Nominations should elaborate on each of the award criteria.

The Mortar Board thanks you for your assistance.

Paul S. Markowski
Member, Mortar Board

Nicholas Lucchetti, senior historical archaeologist and graduate student in American Studies, and Martha McCartney, historian, both of the Virginia Research Center for Archaeology, have co-authored an article entitled "Smith's Fort" in the Fall/Winter 1982 issue of Discovery.

Robert Scholnick of the English department presented a paper, "In Defense of Beauty: E.C. Stedman's Advocacy of Poe," at the annual convention of the Modern Language Association of America, Los Angeles, Dec. 27-30. Scholnick's review of Betsy Erkillia, Walt Whitman Among the French: Poet and Myth, appears in the Winter, 1982 number of Comparative Literature Studies.

Funeral is Held For Dr. Crownfield

Dr. Frederic R. Crownfield, Jr., professor of physics, died Saturday, Jan. 29.

Professor Crownfield was born in Adington, Massachusetts, and had been a member of the College faculty since 1956. He received his bachelor's degree from Harvard College and his master's and doctorate from Lehigh University.

A Quaker memorial service was held at 8 p.m. Monday evening at St. Martin's Episcopal Church on Jamestown Road.

The family requests that memorials take the form of contributions to the American Diabetes Association, 600 Fifth Avenue, New York, New York 10020.

Professor Crownfield is survived by his wife, Mrs. Carol A. Crownfield of 312 Cary Street, Williamsburg; two daughters, Mrs. Margaret Sue Kinnel of Greensboro, North Carolina and Miss Heea Marie Crownfield of Cincinnati, Ohio; two brothers, William R. Crownfield of Dobson, North Carolina and David R. Crownfield of Cedar Falls, Iowa; and his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic R. Crownfield, Sr. of Greensboro, North Carolina.

Talk on Shakespeare

Richard Palmer of the theatre and speech department will talk on "Shakespeare and the Artists," at 8 p.m., Monday, Feb. 7 at the Creative Arts House. Refreshments will be served.

College Receives Painting

A painting by noted Italian artist Filippo Scropo has been donated by the artist to the Muscarelle Museum of Art.

Glenn Lowry, museum director, accepted the gift on behalf of the Museum at a presentation ceremony, Dec. 13. Also on hand for the presentation were Barbara Watkinson and Miles Chappell of the fine arts faculty and Franco Triolo, associate professor of modern languages and literatures. Presenting the gift on behalf of the artist was Roberto Severino of Georgetown University.

Scropo's paintings have been shown all over the world. Recently, a comprehensive exhibit of his last works toured the United States, including a four week show at the College last April, in the Andrews Hall Gallery.

Triolo, of Modern Languages, was responsible for bringing the art show to the College, and for securing the gift to the Museum. However, it was Henry Coleman, of the fine arts faculty, who coordinated the April show and selected the particular painting for eventual donation. The donated painting is entitled: "Espansione 1975".

Scropo's works have been included in a representative art exhibit of modern Italian artists that will be shown in this country in 1983 under the patronage of Accademia Italia. Scropo's work was recently chosen for inclusion in the permanent collection of modern Italian art at the Uffizi Gallery in Florence.

The Wilson Quarterly

The Wilson Quarterly, a publication of the Smithsonian Institution, is offering a paid summer internship in journalism. The intern will be involved in all phases of production of the magazine. The program is open to all sophomores and juniors. Deadline for applications is March 1.

Doctoral Exam

Doctoral candidate Richard Glancy will defend his dissertation "A Study of the Relationship of Regional School Accreditation Status to Achievement Test Scores in Public Elementary Schools in Virginia" on Feb. 9 at 9 a.m. in Jones 210.

Since Glancy's study breaks new ground in the use of "clustering" as a multivariate method of equating groups applied to the old problem of accredited versus non-accredited schools, the members of his committee invite faculty members and their advisees who have an interest in the technique, as well as the purpose of the study, to attend the session.

'Pegee' Finds N.Y. Headlines Pinch Purse

A New York Times article on the current popularity of "antique" clothing, lists the work of Peggy Miller, secretary in the Fine Arts Department whose "Pegee" patterns offer several patterns for 1776 clothing for men, women and children, plus an 1810 woman's dress.

Mrs. Miller, a fashion designer who has done costumes for historic exhibitions, will research any historic costume and do a pattern to order, for a minimum of $500.

The New York Times article has brought Mrs. Miller lots and lots of mail, so much in fact that she is going to have to renege her offer of a free brochure - filling the orders, she says, is going to be a financial strain.

Fulbright Receives Award

Senator J. William Fulbright delivers an acceptance speech as recipient of the first Thomas Jefferson Award in International Education by Mario D. Zamora, professor of anthropology and president of the Association for Anthropological Diplomacy on Dec. 6, (at left) at the Hilton Hotel, Washington, D.C. in conjunction with the annual meeting of the American Anthropological Association. Fulbright was cited for his "significant and revolutionary contributions to international education and for his championship of peace, freedom, and international understanding." Recipients of Fulbright grants and scholars in anthropology, government, business, and public service honored him with a banquet.

Mario D. Zamora, professor of anthropology, was the invited keynote speaker during the 12th annual meeting of the Canadian Council for Southeast Asian Studies held at Lakehead University, Thunder Bay, Ontario, Canada, in November.

Co-sponsored by the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, Thunder Bay Branch, delegates from several universities in Canada in the field of Southeast Asian studies convened. Zamora's keynote speech was entitled "Southeast Asia and Nation-Building", to be published also in the conference papers and proceedings.

Computer Courses in Demand

The William and Mary Computer Center has scheduled a number of free, non-credit short courses for the spring semester. Although there is no charge for the classes, space is limited for most of them, especially those providing "hands-on" access to the computer system. Anyone who wants to attend one or more of the courses should register in advance with Zoe Lagassa at 253-4547.

Several of the courses suggest certain pre-requisite experience for participants. The instructor will assume that at least the stated background is present. When the pre-requisite is some experience on the PRIME or any computer, mastery of the topics outlined in the first 2 days of "Introduction to the PRIME and Text Processing" is appropriate.

Introduction to the PRIME and Text Processing: a 3-session course designed to get people started in the use of the PRIME. Tasks like typing and listing documents are emphasized.

Day I (Monday): getting on the PRIME, overview of system, basic commands
Day II (Thursday): use of the ED text editor
Day III (Monday): the text formatter Runoff

The above series will be offered several times during the semester, always in Chancellors 104:

Feb. 7, 10 and 14 (two sessions filled)
Feb. 21, 24, 28 (filled)
March 21, 24 and 28, 3-4 p.m. (limited enrollment)

New sections added to original schedule

Feb. 15, 17 and 22, 2-3 p.m. (limited openings)
March 7, 10 and 14, 2-3 p.m.
each class is limited to 10 participants

PRIME Debugger: DBG: 2-session course on the interactive symbolic debugger on the PRIME. Participants should have programming experience in Fortran or Pascal.

Feb. 1 and 3, 3:30-4:30, Jones 203
limited to 20 participants

The PRIME Editor EMACS: one session workshop introducing a powerful full-screen editor on the PRIME. Participants should have used the PRIME before.

Feb. 8, 3:30-4:30, Jones 201
limited to 20 participants

Introduction to IBM Time Sharing with TSO: 2 one-hour sessions, similar to days I and II of the PRIME introduction. Participants should have used some computer before.

Feb. 15, 17, 3:30-4:30, Jones 302

PRIME Topics - Tailoring your Environment: 1 session explanation of some useful features (abbreviations, login command files, terminal characteristics, cpl routines, etc.) Participants should have some PRIME experience.

Feb. 22, 3:30-4:30, Jones 302

Introduction to Basic: 1 session workshop on use of Basic on the PRIME. Participants should have some computer experience.

Mar. 1, 3:30-5:00, Jones 203
limited to 20 participants

Quebec-Labrador Foundation, Inc.

creet and fit person, that shall be elected and nominated out of their number. . . " setting down the manner in which the Rector is to be chosen from the members of the Board of Visitors. With the exception of three years during the Civil War, noted Kale, when there was no person in the office, the post of Rector has been filled. First Rector of the College was James Blair.

The College will also recognize outstanding teaching and the spirit of Jefferson with the presentation of the Thomas Jefferson Award and the Thomas Jefferson Teaching Award. Both awards are made possible through the generosity of the Robert Earl McConnell Foundation.

Principal speaker at Charter Day will be Governor Charles S. Robb who will make a major address on the future of higher education in Virginia.

Governor Robb will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws during ceremonies Saturday morning.
