

Carlos Fuentes

Speakers Include Fuentes, Mason, Smith, Ackerman

Seventh Writers Festival Opens March 22

Carlos Fuentes, internationally acclaimed Mexican novelist, playwright, essayist and critic, will be among the guest speakers at the Seventh Annual Writers' Festival March 22-25.

Other writers participating in the Festival will include novelist Diane Ackerman, currently Writer-in-Residence and author of "Wife of Light," and "Twilight of the Tenderfoot"; and Bobbie Ann Mason, whose book of short stories, "Shiloh," has been nominated for both an American Book Award and The National Book Critics' Circle Award.

Dave Smith, a finalist for the Pulitzer Prize in poetry in 1980 and in 1982, will participate in the Festival under the sponsorship of the Virginia Commission for the Arts. Smith's first novel, "Onliness," has recently been published by Louisiana State University Press.

Walter Abish, NEA Fellow in 1979 and winner of the 1980 PEN/Faulkner Award for fiction for his "How German Is It?" will also be among the authors who will participate in the Festival.

The opening session of the Festival is "A Conversation with Mason and Abish," at 1 p.m. in Rooms A and B of the Campus Center. The two will give a reading of their fiction at 8 p.m. in the Little Theatre of the Campus Center. Both programs will be held March 22.

"Small Press Publishing in the '80s," a talk sponsored by the New Virginia Review, will be held at 2 p.m., Wednesday, March 23 in the Dodge Room of Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. Dave Smith will give a poetry reading that evening at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center Little Theatre.

Dave Smith has entitled his talk on becoming a writer, "An Honest Tub," and he will present his views at 2 p.m. Thursday, March 24 in Tucker 120 (formerly the Moot Court Room). That evening Fuentes will give a fiction reading at 8 p.m. in Andrews Auditorium.

Presidents Day Attracts Execs

Executives from the nation's airline, banking, public utilities, export, oil and automotive industries will discuss "Current Issues in Corporate America" at the 1983 Presidents Day, Friday, March 18, at the School of Business Administration.

About 400 students and business men and women from across the state and nation will attend the day-long series of forums at Chancellors Hall, sponsored by students in the School's Master of Business Administration degree program.

In a 50-minute session beginning at 9 a.m., Lawrence Hyde, executive vice president of American Motors Corporation, will speak on "Worldwide Competition in the Automotive Industry." Simultaneously, Paul Edwards, vice president of public affairs for VEPCO, will lead a session entitled "Prospects for the Utility Industry."

In two sessions, both beginning at 10 a.m., William Howard, president and chief operating officer of Piedmont Aviation, Inc., will speak on "Airline Deregulation--Success or Failure?"; and Ron Stegall, vice president of computer marketing of The Tandy Corporation, will discuss "The Micro-Market--Tandy's View."

Chinese Guests Visit Campus On Thursday

Thursday the College will host a group of American specialists from the People's Republic of China

As part of a Chinese scholar orientation program sponsored by the National Committee on U.S.-China Relations, the group will spend two days visiting Colonial Williamsburg, Jamestown and the College before going to Washington D.C., Philadelphia and New York City.

While at the College, the Chinese visitors will tour the campus and attend special lectures in American history by John Selby, James Axtell and Ludwell Johnson of the department of history.

Among the Chinese visitors, all of whom are currently studying at universities in the United States, will be Ni Yaoli, Deputy Chief of the Office of American Affairs in the Foreign Ministry's Department of American and Oceanian Affairs, and Li Dakui, Chief of the American Government Section of the Institute of American Studies in the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences.

Carl Reichardt, chairman, chief executive officer and director of Wells Fargo Bank, will address a joint session beginning at 11:10 a.m. No topic for his talk has been announced.

"The American Economy--On the Mend?" will be the topic of keynote speaker Norman Robertson, senior vice president and chief economist of the Mellon Bank, at a luncheon for all participants at 12:20 p.m., in the Campus Center Ballroom.

Two afternoon sessions, both scheduled at 2 o'clock, will be led by Joji Arai, director of the U.S. Office of the Japan Productivity Center; and Bruce Gottwald, president and chief operating officer of the Ethyl Corporation. Arai will speak on "Productivity--Future Challenge." Gottwald will take as his topic, "The Environment of Regulation."

Forum Open On Wednesday

The general public and the college community is invited to share the programs of the Wednesday Forum series which is a part of the Honors Program.

Tomorrow evening, March 16, Bruce Roberts, assistant professor of economics, will talk on "How to Think About Capitalism from a Marxian Analytical Perspective," at 8 p.m. in Millington auditorium.

Jerome Handler To Speak Tuesday In Washington

The Department of Anthropology Graduate Program in Historical Archaeology and the Institute of Early American History and Culture, will co-sponsor a lecture by Jerome S. Handler, a leading authority on slave life in the Caribbean, at 8 p.m., Tuesday, March 22, in Washington Hall 111. A reception will follow.

Handler will take as his topic, "History, Archaeology, and Physical Anthropology in the Study of Barbados Slave Life."

Handler, professor of anthropology at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, is currently a fellow at the National Humanities Center in North Carolina. A specialist in the history of Afro-American culture in the West Indies, he has conducted extensive archaeological and ethnographic research. He is the author of dozens of articles, a book-length bibliography and two monographs: "Plantation Slavery in Barbados: An Archaeological and Historical Investigation," published by the Harvard University Press, 1978 (written with F.W. Lange) and "The Unappropriated People: Freedmen in the Slave Society of Barbados," published in 1974 by The Johns Hopkins University Press.

The Institute of Early American History and Culture, located in Swem Library at the College, is sponsored jointly by William and Mary and the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation.

Prof. Fleming Will Give Three Lectures

William Fleming, the William R. Kenan, Jr., Distinguished Professor, will give three lectures on the topic "Loads of Interrelationships in the Arts."

Fleming's lectures will be given at 8 p.m., March 22, 29 and April 5 in Andrews 101. All are open to the college community and the general public.

Fleming will take as the topic of his first lecture on March 22, "The Creative View - Imagination." On March 29, his topic will be "The Harmonic View - Music and Architecture," and on April 5 he will conclude his lecture series with "The Historical View - Birth of the Baroque."

Fleming is best known to students of art as the author of "Arts and Ideas," originally published by Henry Holt Co. in 1955 and now going into its 7th printing. He got into the art field after a career as a concert pianist during the 1930's and 1940's in Europe and America. "It was a matter of intellectual growth," he says. "The crass commercialism of the music world is very repellent. It was a matter of keeping my self respect."

Fleming has been teaching two courses this semester, "Arts and Ideas," and "Masterpieces of Art."

Festival Calls For Musicians

Musicians and vocalists interested in Elizabethan music are invited to attend an organizational meeting to form an Elizabethan musical company to support the activities of the 1983 Virginia Shakespeare Festival.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, March 23, in the Theatre and Speech Department office in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

The group is being formed to provide a source of talent for any or all of the following: providing entertainment for five Elizabethan feasts; serving as musicians for the productions themselves; performing during intermission at productions; giving a formal concert of Elizabethan music.

For further information, call Leslie Muchmore, artistic director of the Festival at 253-4377.

Conyers to Address BALSAs

"Blacks in the Political Process: Political, Economic and Social Equality?" is the theme of a conference being sponsored by the Black American Law Students Association (BALSAs) at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, Saturday, March 19.

Keynote speaker will be John Conyers, Jr. (D-Mich.) senior member of the Judiciary Committee, chairman of the subcommittee on criminal justice and a member of the Congressional Black Caucus.

Registration begins at 8:30 a.m. in the law school building for a day-long series of workshops dealing with current concerns within the black community including the following: Penal System; Prisoners' Rights; Promoting Academic Excellence; The Changing Role of the Church in the Black Community; Blacks in Business; Corporate and Entrepreneurial Perspectives; Opportunities for Blacks in International Trade; Community Economic Development; Black Special Interest Groups; and Black Leadership: Where Does the Power Lie?"

Ms. Jackie Epps, Deputy Attorney General for Virginia, is listed on the conference program as the closing keynote speaker.

Registration fee for the conference, which includes the luncheon sessions, is $10. Childcare will be available. Registration inquiries should be directed to Barbara Johnson at 229-0247 or 253-4011. Pre-registration deadline is March 16.

The conference workshops begin at 9 a.m. and the final session is expected to close at 5 p.m.

Career Planning Fits Program To Special Student Needs

Every student approaches career planning at a different time level during his college career.

Despite the Office of Career Planning's advice to start to think about a career during the freshman year, many students procrastinate until their senior year. These seniors need a streamlined approach, sophomores have more time to explore more options. Juniors have a summer before graduation in which to get valuable work experience.

Because their constituencies come from each class, the Office of Career Planning has planned four evening programs during March, each tailored to the needs of students in each of the four undergraduate classes.

Each program is held in two sessions at 7 and 8 p.m., in the Career Planning Office at Morton 140.

The two sessions each night will include brief presentations about different aspects of Career Planning. There will be time after the presentations to browse in the careers library and talk with Career Planning Office staff who will be on hand to answer questions.

For further details call the Career Planning office, ext. 4427.

The schedule of Class Nights is as follows:

March 16, JUNIOR NIGHT, 7, 8 p.m.
March 22, SOPHOMORE NIGHT, 7, 8 p.m.
March 24, SENIOR NIGHT, 7, 8 p.m.
March 31, FRESHMAN NIGHT, 7, 8 p.m.

Handicapped Needs Highlighted In Wellness Week Program

The needs of handicapped students, and the health needs of all students will be the subjects of a week-long event sponsored by the office of Residence Hall Life of Student Affairs.

"Handicap Awareness" and "Wellness" are the topics of seminars, films, lectures and demonstrations during the week of March 21-25. All activities are free, and most will be held in the campus center.

The main event of the week will be a "Well Fair," on Tuesday, March 22, from 4-8 p.m. in the Campus Center Ballroom. The ballroom will be turned into a health market with showings of videotapes; cardiopulmonary resuscitation and emergency technician demonstrations; a bikesmith; a book table; information on sexuality and alcoholism; yoga, karate, gymnastics and modern dance demonstrations; a juice and healthful drinks bar; cooking demonstrations; arts and crafts; music, and information on volunteerism.

Other activities during the week include a health cooking contest, an indoor obstacle course to demonstrate difficulties in maneuvering a wheelchair, a wheelchair basketball game, films, lessons in finger-spelling to communicate with the deaf.

Speakers will address such topics as the effects of certain foods on emotion and behavior; anorexia nervosa; fad diets vs. healthy diets; beginning a running program; aerobic dancing; vitamins; effective time management; handling stress; religion, and weight training.

According to Amy Jarmon, Associate Dean of Students, the College has been blessed with an abundance of volunteers as readers, notetakers and escorts for handicapped students. But, she said, "it has been trial and error to find out what works in meeting the needs of the handicapped students."

Jarmon said that more equipment is needed for the blind and handicapped. Braille typewriters and electronic visual aid reading machines are being considered for purchase, she said. Some improvements to buildings are still needed, she added.

The wheelchair obstacle course in the Sit'n Bull Room of the campus center may help nonhandicapped members of the campus community become more aware of difficulties faced by handicapped people, Ms. Jarmon said.

Planners of the Wellness and Handicap Week are hoping that students, faculty and the public will take home some valuable lessons.

Faculty Forum to Hear Ligouri

"The Myth of Independence in Chesapeake Bay Watermen," will be the topic of a talk by Victor A. Ligouri, associate professor of sociology, at the next meeting of the faculty forum tomorrow, March 16, at noon in the Dodge Room of Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

This is a brown-bag luncheon session. Faculty are asked to bring their own lunch. Coffee will be provided.

The watermen of the Chesapeake region are frequently characterized as fiercely independent. This characterization is examined by Ligouri in his talk. The discussion includes individual ownership of boats and harvesting gear, freedom from the constraints of time, defiance, important norms of interdependence in the commercial harvesting of seafood, and the tenacious belief in such myths as one-man-one-boat and man alone against the sea.

On Wednesday, April 13, John Parkany, School of Business Administration, will talk on "The Outlook for Financing Third World Countries" at noon in the Dodge Room.

Molina Lara To Speak On El Salvador

Alejandro Molina Lara, exiled leader of the largest trade union federation in El Salvador, will speak at 8 p.m., Thursday, March 17, in Millington auditorium.

His talk, is one of several speeches he will make during a March 12-20 visit to the Tidewater area. Molina Lara will speak in Spanish, with an interpreter.

Molina Lara has been jailed four times by the Salvadoran junta for his union activities. Most recently he was captured in San Salvador in January 1981 and tortured while being held for 60 days in the barracks of the National Police. He was later freed due to international pressure including the help of the International Red Cross and Amnesty International.

Thirty-seven years old and a supporter of the Revolutionary Democratic Front of El Salvador, Molina Lara will be presenting his case before Tidewater audiences during his stay in the area.

His talk is sponsored by the departments of sociology, economics and philosophy, the Spanish House and the Central American Action Group.

Mark Doyon is back in school after a semester off, convinced the hiatus from academics was just what he needed.

He's back in class, a more enthusiastic student than he was last year and with accomplishments to show for his time away from campus.

Doyon, a junior, says he side-stepped structured time-out programs because he wanted to get away from schedules and do the things he wanted to do but never had time to do in school. He has worked most summers so free time was hard to come by.

Doyon wrote a couple of short stories, composed a number of songs and cut a record with "The Ohms," a Northern Virginia band he helped establish when he was a student at Oakton High School in Fairfax.

He says his parents were initially against his plan for taking time out from study; they were worried that he would not go back to school. He gradually won them over to his point of view, however. The semester off would not have been successful without their support, he says. Doyon spent part of the time at home and stayed with friends and relatives in the mountains of Western Virginia, close to the Kentucky line, a good place for quiet contemplation.

"Cops, Robbers and the Post Adolescent," is a short story Doyon wrote during his time off. It is about a youth who spent his first summer away from home and finds he doesn't fit in well with his adolescent peers.

Doyon wrote two songs, "Just Like You," and "Goddess d'Amour," which are included in the new record which the Ohms recorded for release the second week in March by Carrion records.

The Ohms include John Watts, who founded the group with Doyon; Eamon Loftus, and Scott Goodrick. The group, says Doyon, is not interested in being just another band that spreads its name around with a string of performances. They practice a great deal, choose their bookings and like to think have a serious commitment to musicianship. For himself, Doyon thinks of himself as a songwriter before a musician, a lyricist before a guitarist. He is not sure in what direction his career goals will take him but one thing he is sure about is that part of his energies will continue to be committed to songwriting.

Would he recommend time out? Yes, says Doyon. Everyone who is feeling the pressure of too many things to do and too little time to do them in should take a step back and look at his lifestyle. He said that when he did that he discovered that his college experience was no longer pleasurable.

ble. "College has to be a place you want to go to, not just a place you have to go to."

T. Carter Gleysteen Dead at 71

Graveside services were held today at 2 p.m., at Ware Episcopal Church, Gloucester, for T. Carter Gleysteen, lecturer in Business Administration emeritus, who died March 12. He was 71.

A graduate of Yale University, Gleysteen served in the United States Navy and in the Office of Strategic Services during World War II. He was an advertising executive in New York and Chicago and after his retirement he joined the faculty of the College.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Hoge Gleysteen, Route 3, Box 216, Bridge House, Gloucester, 23061; a daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Mary Gleysteen of Newport News; a son, William C. Gleysteen of Williamsburg; three brothers and three sisters.

The family had requested that expressions of sympathy take the form of contributions to the American Cancer Society.

Dean Sadler Advises Parents To Plan Early for Commencement

In a recent letter to parents, Dean of Students Sam Sadler urged parents to make early plans for commencement in light of the preparations currently underway for the seven-nation summit meeting to be held in Williamsburg the end of May.

The following is excerpted from his letter:

Commencement is only a few weeks away - May 15. We would like to take this opportunity to tell you about Commencement weekend and to encourage you to plan now to join us on this happy occasion.

With the exception of the Senior Class dance on Friday, May 13, the events of Commencement weekend are designed to be family-oriented. The Baccalaureate Service will be held on Saturday, May 14, in William and Mary Hall at 9:30 a.m. A picnic lunch for the graduates and their families will follow at mid-day (with entertainment by the William and Mary Stage Band) and, as is our tradition, later in the afternoon President and Mrs. Graves will host a reception in the historic Wren Yard for all of you and your graduates.

Seniors will take part in a candlelight ceremony on Saturday evening and we will end the day with a wine and cheese reception in your honor in the Wren Courtyard. The Commencement Exercises will begin at 2 p.m. on Sunday, May 15 in William and Mary Hall.

When you arrive in Williamsburg, preparations will be underway for the seven-nation Economic Summit which will be held here over Memorial Day Weekend. Several College buildings will be in use as

Israel Awareness Night Thursday

Balfour-Hillel and the New Testament Student Association will sponsor an "Israel Awareness Night," Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Campus Center Little Theatre.

Special feature of the evening will be a new film on Israel, "Comfort Ye My People," by Omega Productions.

The film, photographed on location and focusing on Jerusalem in particular, includes a visit to Yad Vashem memorial and museum, a deeply moving and profound documentation of the sufferings of Jewish people during the Nazi Holocaust.

The film is highlighted by interviews with such notable Jerusalemites as Menahem Savidor, distinguished Israeli statesman and Speaker of the Knesset; David Aikman, former Time magazine Jerusalem bureau chief and internationally acclaimed journalist; and Menachem Wexler, one of Israel's leading surgeons at Hadassah Medical Center.

The film also includes portions of Prime Minister Menachem Begin's address to an international audience of more than 4,000 during the Feast of Tabernacles.

The film premiered in Jerusalem at the International Christian Embassy and multiple copies have been distributed in the United States through the Israeli Embassy's consulates.

After the screening of the film, Pastor James Parker, whose vision led to the production of the film, will share his experiences in Israel during the making of the film.

Allen Gillie, one of the planners of the Thursday night program said that the presentation provides an opportunity for the two organizations to "express jointly and publicly their common love for the Jewish people and the state of Israel, and also to remind the Christian members of the college community of their responsibility in this regard."

McGrath on Freud Forum Topic On March 23

William McGrath, associate professor of history at the University of Rochester, will give a talk on Sigmund Freud and his readings on Wednesday, March 23 at the Honors Program Forum. The College community is invited to attend.

McGrath has entitled his talk, "Freud's Political Dreams."

McGrath's teaching and research interests lie in European intellectual history and psychology, and German and Austrian politics and culture. He has spoken and published widely on these and related topics, and is completing a book on "Freud's Discovery of Psychoanalysis: The Politics of Hysteria." His book "Dionysian Art and Populist Politics in Austria," was published by the Yale University Press in 1974.

Calendar Includes, Botetourt Singers, Student Recitals

A concert by the Botetourt Chamber Singers of the Choir and three student recitals are included on the musical calendar for the coming week.

The Botetourt Chamber Singers will give their annual spring concert at 3 p.m., Saturday, March 19, in the Wren Chapel. Amy Levine, a senior, will give a voice recital at 8:15 p.m., Tuesday, March 15 in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. Kathryn Kimberly Shanks, also a senior, will give a voice recital at 8 p.m., Wednesday, March 16, in the Wren Chapel. Janice L. Trammell, a junior, will give a flute recital at 3 p.m., Sunday, March 20 in Ewell 100.

The public is invited to all programs. There is no admission charge.

The Botetourt Chamber Singers, a select group of 15 singers which is featured in choir concerts, also maintains a busy performing schedule of its own. The group is often asked to perform for area groups and for visiting dignitaries and heads of state in Williamsburg.

The Chamber Singers will be directed by Mrs. Carol Longworth, music director of the Oberlin, Ohio Community Chamber Singers and director of music at First Church UCC, in Oberlin.

The Chamber singers will include in their program a variety of light music including the following selections: "In These Delightful, Pleasant Groves," Henry Purcell; "Fair Phyllis," John Farmer; "Come Again, Sweet Love," John Dowland, and "Quick, Quick Away," Thomas East.

The program will also include folk songs from Wales, Scotland, Ireland, and Austria. "In the Mood," Joe Garland; "If I Loved You," Richard Rodgers; "Fugue for Tin Horns," Frank Loesser and "Deep Purple," Peter DeRose.

The singers will conclude with a popular showtune, "Pick-a-Little, Talk-a-Little," by Meredith Wilson, and "Good Night Ladies."

Miss Levine, who will give her senior recital March 15, is a voice student studying with Frances Breeze. She is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, the biology honorary, Phi Sigma, the William and Mary Choir, Sinfonicron Opera Company, Delta Omicron music honorary, Hillel and Circle K for which she has served as both secretary and fund raising chairman. She plans to attend the Medical College of Virginia to study medicine after graduation.

Miss Shanks, also a student of Frances Breeze, is a member of Delta Omicron and serves as vice president of Delta Gamma. This past summer she participated in the St. Moritz Music Festival directed by Robert Shaw.

Lee Trammell, flutist, studies with Deborah Cross. She is assistant orchestra director for the Sinfonicron Opera Company, Warden for Delta Omicron music fraternity and newsletter editor for the Baptist Student Union. She is also a member of the Choir and 1981 winner of the instrumental division of Delta Tau Chapter, Delta Omicron music competition.

We look forward to seeing you at Commencement as we celebrate together the graduation of the Class of 1983.

New Courses, Instructors Added To Fall Curriculum

Two new courses in the fine arts curriculum in the fall will be taught by visiting professors with interesting backgrounds in the artfield.

Mrs. Muriel B. Christison, a former associate director of the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts in Richmond and from 1975-82, director of the Krannert Art Museum at the University of Illinois, will teach an introduction to museum studies. Frederick Herman, a Norfolk architect and an alumnus, who was a member and chairman of the Virginia Historical Landmarks Commission for 14 years, will teach a course about certain types of urban spaces and their relationship to historic events.

Mrs. Christison, who recently retired to Williamsburg, emphasizes that her course is an "introduction" to museum studies and should be viewed as a one-semester survey of the subject, not as part of a professional museum studies curriculum. This course, she says, is an independent one as the College does not offer a graduate degree in history or art. The course is a background for students who may want to take more courses in various aspects of museum work. It will investigate the history of collecting and the history of museums. Then it will review the types of museums that exist, how they were established, how they are formed, financed, their mandate and some of the problems they encounter. The course will also cover museum operation and functions of various staff positions.

"It is usually a whole new field for most people," says Mrs. Christison. "They think of museums as nice quiet places where not much goes on."

At the University of Illinois, Mrs. Christison was instrumental in developing a museum studies program as an adjunct to the art history program. Graduates with an M.A. degree in art history could also receive certification in museum studies. The added courses, she explains, gave students career options if they were not planning to teach.

A Minneapolis native, Mrs. Christison's interest in American art first drew her to Virginia because of the biennial exhibitions of American art which the Virginia Museum and the Corcoran Museums used to hold in alternate years. She was trained originally as a medieval art historian.

Faculty Club Closes Year With Party in Museum,

The Faculty Club will close its year in fine style with a party in the new Muscarelle Museum of Art from 5 to 7 p.m., Friday, March 25.

Members of the Board of Visitors and principal donors to the Museum will be guests of the club.

The party is the first such function to be held in the new facility and will give members of the college community an opportunity to see the interior of the new museum.

The Faculty Club is open to all members of the faculty and administration of the College. Individuals who join the club on March 25 at the door or who pay their membership before March 25 will be admitted to this party along with a spouse or one guest (one guest only) at no extra charge. Membership fees may be paid to Roy Pearson, treasurer, at the School of Business Administration.

The fee for membership this year is $14. Members are charged $4 per person per party while non-members are charged $7. Non-drinking non-members are charged $6 per person while non-drinking members are charged only $3.

Mrs. Christison received her undergraduate and master's degrees in art history from the University of Minnesota and studied abroad at the University of Paris where she received a diploma in French Medieval Art and the University of Brussels where she received a diploma in Mosan and Rhenan Art and Flemish painting.

She has served in several capacities with the International Council of Museums, the American Association of Museums, the Association of Art Museum Directors and the eight-state consortium, the Midwest Museums Conference. She has also been a consultant for many museums across the country and she continues as a Senior Examiner for the American Association of Museums.

As well as being an active contributor to art journals, Mrs. Christison has been a lecturer and created weekly radio programs for both students and adults in Minneapolis, where she began her museum career at the Minneapolis Institute of Arts. The Krannert Art Museum, which she directed, is a department in the College of Fine and Applied Arts at the University of Illinois. It has collections in the fields of ancient, medieval, Renaissance, modern, pre-Columbian and Oriental art.

Frederick Herman will cover in his course a study of certain types of urban spaces such as squares, and their relationship to historic events. It is an interdisciplinary seminar study course, predicated on the assumption that certain outdoor spaces, primarily squares, by their very existence, influence certain historical events and our own perception of these events.

"Can you imagine Mussolini without his balcony?" asks Herman. The course is going to cross academic lines, says Herman, involving history, urban design, planning, architecture, art, even philosophy to a degree.

Primarily orientated to European and American settings, Herman will, however, also include the forbidden City in Peking and early Mesopotamian and Egyptian urban areas and concepts from the Mayan, Taltec and Aztec philosophies in his survey.

It is not a course that is trying to prove something or to leave someone with a special skill, it is simply an exercise and a challenging concept and will leave students with an even better understanding of their own as well as other people's reaction to certain environmental factors.

There will be no textbooks for the class. Herman said he thought students would appreciate that, with the high cost of books. There are no special prerequisites for the course but Herman would like to have students who have a strong academic education in the liberal arts and the humanities, notably history and fine arts.

Herman may hold the record for the fastest degree at William and Mary. He finished his work in two years. He persuaded Dean Lambert to let him take 24 semester hours each year and 12 hours of work in summer school. He was in the first class of returning veterans after World War II and was anxious to make up for time lost in the service.

Living in New York, he sent applications to what were considered then the top ten co-ed schools on the East Coast. William and Mary was the first to respond so he enrolled. He has a Phi Beta Kappa Key and recalls that even though he had a heavy load he enjoyed some good bridge sessions and had time to meet, court and marry. Herman is a member of the class of '48. His wife, the former Lucy E. Spigel, graduated in 1947.

From William and Mary Herman went on to get a master's degree and a doctorate in diplomatic history and political science from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy. He was called back into the service during the Korean Conflict and was sent to Europe for two years.

When he came back, he says, he decided he did not want to work in Washington or for the government and since there were no teaching jobs available he decided to switch to architecture. He is a member of the firm of Spigel, Carter, Zinki and Herman in Norfolk. He used to be chairman of the Norfolk Design Review Commission and for 14 years was a member and chairman of the Virginia Historical Landmarks Commission.

The Hermans' home on the waterfront in Norfolk is a reflection of their appreciation of fine art and furnishings. As collectors they have concentrated on drawings and works from their collection will be included in the first exhibit in the new Joseph and Margaret Muscarelle Museum of Art on campus which is scheduled to open in October.

Drawings from the Herman Collection have been loaned to the Metropolitan Museum and several galleries in Europe.

Intensive Chinese Available In First Two Year Courses

This fall the Chinese language program will be upgraded by a change in the first two years of instruction from regular classroom courses to intensive courses in the model of French 101X and 102X. At present students spend three hours a week with an instructor, one and a half hours with a drill instructor, and two hours in a language lab. Under the new system students will spend four hours per week with an instructor, four hours in drill class, and four hours in a language lab.

Mrs. Ann Edie, instructor in Chinese, explained that additional classroom hours and drill instruction will expand the students' opportunity to develop language skills and provide them with a more solid foundation in Chinese.

According to Mrs. Edie, at present 15 students are enrolled in Elementary Chinese (Chinese 102) and 12 more are taking either intermediate or advanced courses. Because so many of the students already taking Chinese are freshmen and sophomores, Mrs. Edie says she feels the enrollment in the courses will remain strong in the future.

Several students who have taken Chinese courses have gone on to study the language in the People's Republic of China or Taiwan. A senior government concentrator, Mark Rogers, who was awarded a four-year Truman Scholarship last year, attended the American Institute for Foreign Study program in Peking in 1981 and plans to go back to China after graduation. "I am hoping for a career in East Asia affairs" Rogers indicates, "and for that you want to have the language."

Is Chinese a difficult language to learn?" according to Rogers, "It requires a certain level of commitment. If you want to speak it you have to practice, but it is not unlike a sport. To be good you have to practice and you are not going to practice unless you want to. You can't take a language just to get by, because you won't."

"I wanted to take a foreign language," Rogers adds, "but something with an exotic twist - like Chinese. My friends think it is unique - or that I'm pretty weird. They play basketball while I study Chinese, but I think they respect me for my perseverance."

Bob Walker, a 1979 graduate, took Chinese, participated in a tour of China in 1980, and then enrolled in a ten-week Chinese language course in Shanghai during the summer of 1981. Walker plans to

Cornell Press Publishes New Marlowe Work

A Concordance to the Plays, Poems, and Translations of Christopher Marlowe by Robert Fehrenbach, professor of English, has been published by Cornell University Press.

The computer-generated concordance, prepared in collaboration with two scholars at the State University of New York, Binghamton, is the first concordance to the works of an Elizabethan dramatist to provide contextual reference to both a modern edition and the original sixteenth and seventeenth-century copy-texts.

"Recent Studies in Nashe (1968-1979)," Fehrenbach's survey of scholarship on the Elizabethan pamphleteer, poet, and dramatist, Thomas Nashe, recently appeared in the Bibliography series of English Literary Renaissance.

Fehrenbach's critical edition of the sole surviving copy of a tract housed in the

Newsmakers

G.R. Jack Brooks, professor of biology, had an article entitled "An Analysis of Prey Consumed by the Anvran, Leptodactylus fallax, from Dominica, West Indies", published in Biotropica 14 (4):301-309, 1982.

Donna M.E. Ware, adjunct associate professor and curator of the herbarium, recently published an article "In tribute to Delzie Demaree" in the plant taxonomy journal Sida (9: 279-281). This volume of the journal was dedicated to Demaree, a renowned plant collector, in honor of his contributions to the botanical sciences. About 1700 of Demaree's specimens of Arkansas flora are on deposit in the William and Mary Herbarium.

H. Earle Johnson, lecturer in music, has been appointed to the editorial board of a new periodical American Music. Other members of the board include Milton Babbitt, Leonard Bernstein, Aaron Copland and Virgil Thomson. Editor of the journal is Allen P. Britton, long-time dean of the school of music at the University of Michigan and former editor of the Journal of Research in Music Education.

Ned W. Waxman, associate professor of law, has had an article entitled "A Solution to the Bankruptcy Court Conundrum," published in the March 1983 issue of the ABA Journal (J.69).

This article discusses the ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court in the case of Northern Pipeline Construction Co. vs. Marathon Pipe Line Company, in which the U.S. Bankruptcy Court's jurisdiction was declared unconstitutional. It presents and evaluates many suggested approaches to the problem, and recommends the creation of an Article III bankruptcy court as the optimum solution.

Ingrid M. Hillinger, assistant professor of law, is the author of an article, "Meet the New Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court" which appears in the current issue of the University of Richmond Law Review.

John D. Broadwater, a graduate student in the American Studies program, has reviewed two books for the Maryland Historical Magazine: Shomette, Flotilla: Battle for the Patuxent, and Hopkins and Shomette, War on the Patuxent, 1814: A Catalog of Artifacts. The reviews appear in the December 1982 edition of the magazine.

N. Bart Theberge, Jr., associate professor of marine science and head of Ocean and Coastal Law at VIMS, has been invited to present two papers entitled: "The Commons Concept and Coast Management" and "Chesapeake Bay Conflicts and Fishing Management" at the Coastal Zone 1983 Conference to be held in San Diego, Ca., on June 1-4.

Carol Rideout, and Advisory Services staff member at VIMS, was invited to attend the 1st International Crustacean Culture Conference held on February 9-11 at Brigham Young University, Hawaii Campus.

Rideout was a member of the Planning Committee at the Conference and presented a poster on Aquaculture Data Base.

A book by Michael A. Faia, professor of sociology, has been accepted for publication by Cambridge University Press under the auspices of the Rose Monograph Series of the American Sociological Association. The tentative title is The Strategy and Tactics of Dynamic Functionalism.

The following has been published: C. Richard Terman, 1982. The Kepone problem in the James River and adjacent areas of Virginia: A classic example for ethical and scientific consideration. In: The Environmental Crisis: The Ethical Dilemma. Edited by Edwin R. Squiers. The AuSable Trails Institute of Environment Studies. pp 245-257. Terman is professor of biology.

Norma R. Chandler, Director of Purchases and Stores, attended a three-day seminar entitled, "Competitive Sealed Proposals/Competitive Negotiations." This seminar was sponsored by the National Institute of Governmental Purchasing and the Virginia Association of Governmental Purchasing. The meeting was held in Richmond, Virginia on January 19-21, 1983.

The seminar included a work statement preparation, evaluation of proposals, source selection and the definitive contract negotiation. The new procurement, Virginia Public Procurement Act, that went into effect January 1, 1983 allows for the various state agencies to use competitive negotiations and this seminar defines the methods available to utilize this accepted method of procurement.

Leland Traywick, director of the Bureau of Business Research, School of Business Administration, will be one of the featured speakers on a program entitled "The Economy: A Media Myth," which is being planned for the fifth annual conference of the Virginia Media Executives, March 25, at the Hotel Madison in Norfolk. On the program with Traywick will be Jay T. Harris, national correspondent, Gannett News Service; Judy Hines, vice president and director, American Newspaper Publishers Association, and Robert C. Maynard, editor-publisher, Oakland Tribune.

The following physics paper has been published: Total cross sections for collisions of H- and D- with various molecules. M.S. Huq, L.D. Doverspike, and R.L. Champion. Phys. Rev. A 27, 785 (1983).

Louis P. Messier, associate professor of education, served as general chairman for the Virginia Department of Education review of programs offered by Hampton Institute's School of Education.

The three day review is part of a process Virginia Education schools undertake regularly in order to qualify programs for certification by the Department of Education. Hampton Institute's teacher preparation programs in English, Reading, Physical Education, Mental Retardation and Hearing Impairment were among those reviewed by the committee.

Craig Canning, associate professor of history, gave a presentation entitled "The New China" as part of History Update, a workshop for secondary school history and social studies teachers sponsored by the Department of History and the Arts and Letters Public Service Program at Old Dominion University, Saturday, Feb. 12.

Paul LeBel, associate professor of law, is the author of "Standing After Havens Realty: A Critique and an Alternative Framework for Analysis," which appears in the December 1982 issue of the Duke Law Journal.

An article by Sylvia Scholnick, lecturer in religion, entitled "The Meaning of Mishpat in the Book of Job," appears in the December, 1982 issue of Journal of Biblical Literature.

Andersen, Carl M., mathematics and computer science; "Tire Nonlinear Model," National Aeronautics and Space Administration, #59,090 (3/16/82-12/15/82).

Curtis H. O'Shell, School of Education, has been informed by the Board of Directors of the National Board for Certified Counselors that he has been approved as a National Certified Counselor.

New French Textbooks Combine Culture With Language in New Approach to Language Learning

Ronald St. Onge, chairman of the department of modern languages, and his wife, Susan St. Onge of the modern languages faculty at Christopher Newport College, have teamed with another Christopher Newport French teacher, David King, to produce a new set of textbooks for intermediate French which will be used in 200 level courses here next year.

Publishers Heinle & Heinle of Boston contacted the St. Onges. They wanted a popular textbook for intermediate French. For the past two calendar years the St. Onges have been working steadily on the project and the result is a three-volume set of texts, including a grammar, reader and workbook that has already received pre-publication praise from language teachers at Boston College and the University of Pennsylvania.

"Interaction," a grammar book and "Interculture," a reader are the major portions of the new teaching package, aimed at giving students a working facility with the language by heightening their interest and appreciation of both the French culture and their own.

The intermediate level of French instruction has always caused some difficulty for teachers, says St. Onge, because of the variety of backgrounds from which students come. The assumption is that students at the intermediate level have mastered the elementary principles, "but this is not always so," he asserts "and then students start building on a shaky foundation."

"We're not taking anything for granted," says St. Onge explaining the main divisions of the new texts which include a review grammar component. "We're interested in getting students to communicate by teaching them communication skills, not just grammar principles in a vacuum."

One of the unique features of the texts is a series of mini-interviews with French

Archiepiscopal Library at Lambeth Palace, London, is to be published in the Text series of that same journal. That 1567 pamphlet, A Letter sent by the Maydens of London to the vertuous Matrones and Mistresses of the same, is a reply to an anti-feminist attack on the lives and habits of domestic maidservants in Elizabethan London and, aside from its interest as an example of mid-Tudor pamphleteering, sheds light on the social and legal history of sixteenth-century England.

Fehrenbach's findings on the literary relations of a woman writing popular literature in early Elizabethan England is the subject of an article scheduled to appear in the next issue of English Language Notes as "Isabella Whitney, Geoffrey Whitney, Sir Hugh Plat, and 'Sister Eldershae.'"

Ventis Tonight

Larry Ventis, associate professor of psychology, will speak on "Religion and Mental Health," tonight at 7:30 p.m., at a colloquium sponsored by the department of religion in Rogers 107.

Ventis has just published a book with C.D. Batson entitled "The Religious Experience: A Social and Psychological Perspective" (Oxford University Press, 1982).

Glenda Page Wins Honor For Work with Cystic Fibrosis

Mrs. Glenda Page of Williamsburg, subscription clerk for the William and Mary Quarterly, published by the Institute of Early American History and Culture, has been named one of the Ten Outstanding Young Women in America.

Her selection stems from her untiring efforts to advance the aims and objectives of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

The mother of a Cystic Fibrosis child, Mrs. Page has worked vigorously to raise funds for C.F. research and established the Foundation chapter in Danville as well as organized the fund-raiser - Harvest Jubilee there.

Mrs. Payne and her husband, Joe, who works for Horne Brothers in Newport News, had one daughter Shannon Christine, who was four years old when Audrey Kay was born with Cystic Fibrosis. Audrey was born in the Williamsburg Community Hospital and immediately rushed to Kings Daughters Hospital in Norfolk for emergency surgery.

Essentially a respiratory and digestive disease which leaves its victims with no resistance to illness and no ability to produce necessary enzymes for digestion, C.F. is so far incurable, but with research and advances in medical technology, those with the disease are living longer, more comfortable lives. Audrey has daily therapy and medication. An adorable brown-eyed brunette, Audrey Kay was 1982 Williamsburg Area Cystic Fibrosis Poster Child.

take the Foreign Service exam in December and is looking toward a career that will be enhanced by his knowledge of Chinese. Susan Burns completed Chinese 101 and 102 and then spent the next 18 months studying the language in Taiwan followed by a year in Japan before returning to graduate last May. She is now back in Japan preparing to enroll in a Japanese university where she intends to study Chinese history.

Matthew Hannan, another Chinese 101-102 alumnus, joined a summer language program sponsored by the University of Minnesota at Nankai University in Tianjin, China. Hannan enjoyed the summer program so much he decided to stay on at Nankai this year and is currently taking courses in Chinese grammar and usage, ancient Chinese literature, and selected works by China's revolutionary leaders.

Opportunities for William and Mary students to study in China will be increased by the College's recent membership in the China Cooperative Language and Study Programs Consortium, observes Craig Canning, professor of history. "In the past our students had to join programs at other universities or go on their own," notes Canning, who helps supervise the Chinese language program. "Now the Consortium program, which is administered by the Council in International Educational Exchange (CIEE), provides qualified students with straightforward procedures to follow if they want to study in China.

Canning is enthusiastic about the new intensive format and increased oppornationals now living in the United States. They relate their experiences in learning to live in a different culture and help students see, not only interesting facets of the French culture, but often overlooked aspects of their own.

The contemporary cross-cultural readings are just one part of the overall teaching package. Systematic vocabulary development, incisive grammar explanations and flexible exercises are also newly developed teaching devices included in the new series which is liberally illustrated with graphics and photographs. The complete program package also includes an instructor's manual and language lab tapes.

Writers Festival

Diane Ackerman will give a poetry reading at 4 p.m. Friday, March 25 in Tucker 120.

The final session of the Festival will be the presentation of awards to winners of the student writing contest, which will be held following Miss Ackerman's presentation.

The William and Mary Writers' Festival is supported by grants from the National Endowment for the Arts, the Virginia Commission for the Arts and the William and Mary Lecture Committee, and by the College's department of English.

When Audrey was diagnosed as having C.F., said Mrs. Payne, the family received constant support, not only from their pastor at Walnut Hills Baptist Church, Jerry Haywood, but the entire congregation, their family and friends.

"I am glad the God saw fit to give us the responsibility of a special child like Audrey. Our family has always been close but Audrey has brought us even closer and given us the ability to witness to others the strength that we have found in our faith."

Mrs. Payne serves on the board of the Williamsburg branch of the C.F. Foundation which works to educate people about C.F. and engage in fund raising. The yearly "Bowl for Breath," campaign is a major project for C.F.

Mrs. Payne meets with C.F. parent groups. She has appeared on TV informational programs about C.F. and has also participated in radio programs.

Mrs. Payne has worked for the college on and off since 1972. She was in the catalogue department of Swem Library when she first began and then she worked for Colonial Williamsburg for three years. She came back and was assigned to the treasurer's office and later the Buildings and Grounds department, before leaving for Danville. She has been back on campus this time for 18 months.

Mrs. Payne's selection has earned her an entry in the Outstanding Young Women of America directory, a certificate and a handsome plaque.
