Choir Working Toward 1984 European Tour

The College's roving ambassador, the William and Mary Choir, is taking to the road again next spring.

Under the direction of Frank T. Lendrim, choir director and chairman of the Department of Music, the singers will make their third European jaunt in 1984, visiting France, Switzerland, Germany and England.

The tour, which garnered much praise for the singers and the College in 1978 and 1981, will again be a pay-if-you-go proposition for students. Lendrim has received a rough estimate of $1,800 per student from the travel coordinator.

To help finance the trip, the choir has already inaugurated fund-raising projects under the leadership of two of its members, Terry Bockhorn of Williamsburg, Va., and Jessica Pollard of Portland, Me.

The choir raised approximately $11,000 toward the last European tour by selling Christmas cards and notepaper and plans a similar sales drive this fall. Already 100,000 cards and notepaper have been received from the printer and choir members are using Lendrim's office as a production station to package the shipment into saleable units.

The Christmas cards have full-color photographs of the Wren Building and the President's House on them and contain a seasonal greeting. These will be packaged in lots of 20 and will sell for $4.50 per packet. The black and white sketch of the Wren Building which was so popular in '81 is being repeated on the notecards and the coat of arms of the College is also being used as a design motif. Notepaper will sell for $4 for a packet of 20.

Cards and notepaper will be on sale at the College bookstore and will also be available from choir members during Homecoming weekend and at the Christmas choir/chorus concerts. Choir members also plan to canvass the campus.

For the first time this year, the Choir will operate a singing telegram business to raise funds. The first telegram was delivered recently to a local choir booster, businessman J.B. Hickman, chairman of the Friends of the College organization since its inception a little over ten years ago, in celebration of his birthday.

Bockhorn says the choir will set up business hours in the Campus Center, Campus Post Office and the Commons to receive orders for telegrams. Price of a musical message is $2.50.

Bockhorn says choir members will learn a variety of songs for different occasions and will be ready to pull from their repertoire for birthdays, tuck-ins, pledge dances, exam time cheer-ups or any event which merits a congratulatory and/or musical message.

Manager Jack Clohan '72 at the Westpark Hotel on Richmond Road in Williamsburg, has been discussing plans for a benefit pancake breakfast in February with Lendrim and the choir fund-raisers.

In 1980-81 choir members raised $22,000 toward their trip. Choir members planning to make the trip all participate in fund-raising projects and the money raised is applied to the total trip bill.

Next year's trip will cover some of the same ground as the 1981 one but several new stops have been added. The group will leave on Monday, May 14 and return June 12 or 13.

Lendrim says the trip is planned to give students an opportunity to experience Continental life as well as spend a goodly amount of time in England, particularly singing and visiting places which are relevant to Williamsburg and the College. Concerts are planned in a variety of settings including schools, large cathedrals and small village churches.

"We shall return to places visited on earlier tours," says Lendrim, "as well as some new places. Concerts have already been scheduled for Westminster Abbey, Canterbury Cathedral, and two new places which should be truly exciting, the very beautiful Stourhead Gardens in England and the very famous Wren church in London, St. Mary-Le-Bow, home of the famous Bow Bells."

One of the new stops in Europe will be Lucerne with a mountain top lunch, a ride on a cog railway and a steamer trip across Lake Lucerne planned.

Scottish Festival On Saturday

Williamsburg's sixth annual Scottish Festival, Saturday, will attract throngs of highland dancers, pipers, drummers, and athletic competitors to campus for a day-long Scottish celebration on campus Saturday, Sept. 24 from 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

The public's participation is encouraged in athletic competitions, country dancing, and children's games. Clan tents, Scottish wares, crafts, herd dog demonstrations, storytelling, and informal musical entertainment will be part of the day-long program.

Tickets are $4 for adults, $3 for students and senior citizens (65 or older), and $2.50 for children (6-12). Children under 6 are admitted free.

The capital of the colony of Virginia was greatly influenced by strong Scottish characters in the eighteenth century. Three of Virginia's royal governors were of Scottish descent, as was the Rev. James Blair, first president of William and Mary.

A traditional public party called a "ceilidh" (pronounced kay-lee) is scheduled for Saturday at 8:30 p.m. Sunday activities will include a Kirkin' (blessing) of the Tartan at 10:00 a.m. on campus.

Ellises Provide VIP Quarters

President Graves has announced that two new furnished and decorated town houses in the "Oaks on Henry" project in Williamsburg would be made available for College use in 1984.

President Graves said, "On behalf of the College, I receive this news with great appreciation. We thank the donors, Dr. and Mrs. James S. Ellis of Shellis, Inc., for this most generous and timely gesture which will provide us with splendid facilities for use by distinguished visitors and guests of the College. We have lacked such accommodations for some time, and these new apartments will be a most welcome addition to the College's capabilities."

The one story, two-bedroom units will be located on S. Henry Street near Route 199 and are scheduled to be available in the spring of 1984.

Symphony Series Dropped This Year

There will not be a Symphony Sampler series this year. Dean Ken Smith, who coordinated the program last year, says that there was not enough interest generated to keep the program independently solvent.

He says that if more stable funding can be arranged, it may be possible to reinstate the program in the future. In the meantime, Smith's office hopes to help sponsor some appearances of the Richmond Symphony and others in the area.

The Concert Series and Sunday Series are continuing this year. Season tickets for the Concert Series are available from Smith's office in the Campus Center. There is no admission charge for the Sunday Series.

Scottish dancers and pipers will be part of Williamsburg Scottish Festival, Sept. 24

Sondheim Program Here Tomorrow

The Talented American Series, the Student Association's cultural arts program, will present the hit musical review, "Side By Side Sondheim," at 8:15 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 21, in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

General admission tickets are $4 ($3 for students, faculty and staff)

Doug Fairbanks, Jr. On Parents' Program

Several thousand postcards were mailed last week to parents announcing the program change for Parents Weekend.

For reasons of ill health, Bob Hope has cancelled his performance scheduled for Parents Weekend. In place of "An Evening with Bob Hope," the Association of Parents and the College's Speakers Forum will present movie actor-producer Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., whose career includes 75 films, work in television and public service to a variety of causes which has garnered him many awards.

Tickets for Fairbanks' appearance will be provided to all parents registered for Parents Weekend and their families, at no charge. Refunds are being processed for parents who have already purchased tickets for Bob Hope.

Parkers Take Note

Cars parked in the Merchant's and Employee's Parking area across from Hunt Hall that do not have an appropriate Colonial Williamsburg stickers will be towed. This decision has been made as a result of the increase in business in the Merchant's Square area and the loss of parking spaces for employees in that area.

Prosl Named Chief AP Reader

Richard C. Prosl, associate professor of mathematics and computer science, has been named to a four-year term as Chief Reader in Mathematics for the Advancement Placement Mathematics Program of the College Board.

The AP program is implemented by the Educational Testing Services. Prosl will head a group of 150 readers who meet each June at Trenton State University to grade over 34,000 examinations. Students who take the examinations are high school seniors who have undertaken college level work in the subject and take the examination for college credit and/or advancement placement, depending on the policies of the colleges and universities they attend.

Prosl has been a reader since 1968 and from 1969-73 was a member of the examining committee which determines the content of the examination. As Chief Reader he will sit in on the deliberations of this committee with the privilege of review.

Curtis H. O'Shell, School of Education, has been appointed to serve as a member of the State Department of Education Rural School Effectiveness Project. Twenty two rural school divisions have been selected to participate in the project. Each division will be served by a department staff person and a college/university individuals who will act as consultants.

Robert J. Orth, marine scientist at the Virginia Institute of Marine Science in the department of wetlands, has been invited to present a paper on the importance of seagrass beds as nursery areas at a joint Indo-U.S. Conference on Life Histories of Benthic Marine Invertebrates: Techniques and Methods. The conference will be held at Marathwaa University in Aurangabad, India in January, 1984.

The meeting is to help improve scientific communications between the scientists of India and the United States in American techniques and methodology.

The conference is being sponsored by the U.S. Office of Naval Research - Oceanic Biology Program, the Indian University Grants Commission, the Indian Society of Comparative Endocrinology, Marathwada University and the American Institute of Biological Sciences.

In preparation for the 1983 Economic Summit held in Williamsburg last summer Colonial Williamsburg commissioned various translations of one of their most popular trade publications, "A Window on Williamsburg." George Greenia of Modern Languages prepared and translated the Spanish edition. The project was made the more interesting by the problem of identifying historically accurate terms and expressions in 18th century Spanish while making them clear to the modern Spanish reader. Copies of the Spanish version, "Los encantos de Williamsburg," as well as parallel versions in French, German and Japanese, are available in numerous CW outlets.

Greenia, participated in the recent Eighth International Congress of Hispanists held at Brown University, Providence, R.I. The Congress, held only every three years, was celebrating its first meeting in the United States and hosted over 500 researchers in Spanish language and literature from 24 countries. Greenia read a paper entitled "The Speeches of the Alexandres and the Libro de Alixandre" in a section devoted to the Middle Ages. A Spanish version of the paper will appear in the acts of the Congress to be published in 1984.

The examination reading process which Prosl heads also includes about 20 intermediate level administrators who "back grade" papers from readers to insure a high level of consistency. The process, says Prosl, is "amazingly efficient and effective."

Wayne Kernodle, professor of sociology, has been appointed by the Williamsburg City Council to serve a second three-year term on the Peninsula Agency on Aging, Inc. Board of Directors.

Prillaman Writes Spec. Ed. Book

Thelma is withdrawn in the classroom and refuses to do her work. Ray is restless and sometimes displays violent behavior if asked to sit still too long. Whatever the cause of their behavior, these children have learning disabilities, problems that prevent them from acquiring the skills they need.

For both troubled students and their teachers, however, help may be on the way in the form of a guide book outlining a new approach to teaching authored by Douglas Prillaman, professor of special education and John D. Abbott, director of special education for Philadelphia Public Schools, and entitled, "Educational Diagnosis and Prescriptive Teaching."

This new work provides elementary school teachers with step-by-step instructions on how to deal with students who have learning disabilities which block their school progress and make them difficult to handle in class.

Prillaman and Abbott reject the so-called "medical model" used in treating learning disabilities, instead formulating their own practical approach in which the classroom teacher works closely with educational and medical professionals to discover and correct learning problems.

"Teachers and educators ought to be able to become diagnosticians as well as instructors, instead of having to refer students to all kinds of specialists," says Prillaman. Although specialists may eventually have to be called in particular situations, Prillaman and Abbott believe that many learning problems can be handled by a partnership between the classroom teacher and a specially trained diagnostic teacher.

Their book is a step-by-step guide for both classroom and diagnostic teachers, complete with forms and case studies such as Thelma's and Ray's, and is designed to meet students' special learning needs and return them to the regular classroom as quickly as possible.

"In any classroom there are a certain number of kids with problems," says Prillaman. Although Thelma's problem seemed to be a behavioral one, its underlying cause was a learning disability.

The reverse is also true, he adds. A child's learning disability may be caused by what Prillaman calls, "social and emotional factors." The book provides specific advice and exercises to help teachers discover and deal with the social and emotional problems that may be hampering a student's learning.

For example, Ray's restlessness and occasional violent behavior in class may stem from any number of social or emotional problems. "Perhaps Ray's father is an alcoholic, or he's on speed; any problem such as this can affect his performance in school," Prillaman says. And, as most teachers can attest, students with such problems can also hamper the learning of their classmates.

"Some teachers are and some are not prepared to deal with the underlying

Self-Study Notes

In preparation for the 1984 Self-Study, the Steering Committee adopted a "Statement of Purpose" of the work ahead. It intentionally displays the quality of succinctness that it extols.

"The Southern Association of Colleges and Schools requires the College of William and Mary to undertake a self-study every ten years. The self-study provides a welcome opportunity to redefine William and Mary's objectives and to recommend a long-term agenda. It also gives us a chance to assess the quality of our efforts during the past decade. By evaluating our strengths and weaknesses, we hope to discover realistic ways to improve our effectiveness.

The self-study will involve the whole College community. The project is essential, yet we wish to avoid unnecessary diversions of time and energy from our principal tasks: teaching, learning, and research. The steering committee intends to emphasize efficiency and economy of expression. The 1984 self-study report will be shorter than the 1974 document.

Andrew Pratt Wins University Grant

The Institute of International Education has awarded Andrew Damian Pratt '83 a Swiss Universities Grant of $4700 for graduate study in Swiss-French Literature at Neuchatel, Switzerland, during the current academic year.

Approximately 260 grants are made available each year to young American students and artists under programs sponsored by foreign governments, universities and private donors and administered by IIE.

Many of these foreign grant programs were initiated during the 1920s. They were suspended during World War II, but were reinstated in the late 1940s. The purpose of the programs is to increase mutual understanding between the people of the United States and other countries through the exchange of people, knowledge and skills.

Pratt was a biology and French major, a student representative on the faculty foreign studies committee and vice president of Phi Mu Alpha music fraternity. He was also a member of Phi Sigma biology honorary and Pi Delta Phi, French honor society.

causes of students' learning problems," says Prillaman. "I think we need to spend more time on the social and emotional development of the child. We don't do it because it's not scientific enough."

Diagnostic teaching, in which educators look for underlying causes that make students behave badly in class and fall behind in their work, is a relatively new approach to teaching that may not be popular at first, Prillaman admits. "It costs more money because you use more personnel time; teachers have to spend more time on the job if they start looking at factors influencing student performance.

"But if today's teachers are ever to deal effectively with problem students, diagnostic teaching with tailor-made 'prescriptions' may be the only answer."
