

Harrison Lecture Series To Focus On New France

"Old Wine in a New Bottle: Society in New France," will be the topic of a three-part lecture series to be presented in February by the James Pinckney Harrison Professor of History for 1983-84. William J. Eccles.

William Eccles

The first lecture, Feb. 6, will be entitled "How The Poor Lived: Clergy and Commoners." The second lecture, Feb. 13, will be entitled "Courtiers in the Wilderness: The Canadian Nobility." The final lecture on Feb. 20 will be entitled "La Question Ordinaire et La Question Extraordinaire: The Law Applied and Unapplied."

All three Monday evening lectures will be given at 8 p.m. in Morton 220. The public is invited. There is no admission charge.

Eccles has ties to William and Mary which extend over two decades and include a three-year term as a member of the Council of the Institute of Early American History and Culture, 1976-78. Eccles has also been a contributor to the William and Mary Quarterly, published by the Institute, in 1961 and again in 1983.

Eccles comes to the College from the University of Toronto where he is professor of history. His field of study is New France, the French colonies in America from approximately 1500 to 1783 and the Treaty of Paris. Eccles was born in Yorkshire, England but went to Canada with his family at age 11.

Eccles taught a graduate seminar on New France during the fall semester and is currently teaching a fourth-year lecture course.

Eccles received all three of his degrees from McGill University, B.A., 1949; M.A., 1951 and his Ph.D., 1955 after a year at the Sorbonne on a French Government Scholarship. He began his teaching career as a member of the faculty of the University of Manitoba in 1953, went to the University of Alberta in 1957 and rose to the rank of professor before leaving in 1963 to teach at the University of Toronto.

Eccles has also been a visiting professor at the University of Chile de Santiago, and

Calabresi To Give PBK Lecture

Guido Calabresi, Sterling Professor of Law at Yale University, will give a public lecture on "Ideals, Beliefs, and the Law," at 4 p.m., Monday, Jan. 30 in Rogers 100 as part of the Phi Beta Kappa Visiting Scholar Program.

Jacobs Award For Judaic Study

The College is offering a scholarship in the amount of $1,500 for a four to six-week study/travel program to the State of Israel during the Summer of 1984. The scholarship is open to all full-time undergraduate and graduate students of the College who will be returning to William and Mary in the Fall of 1984. This opportunity has been made possible through the generosity of Mr. Nathan P. Jacobs of New York, NY.

The scholarship is intended for a student with special interests in the past and present religious, cultural, and political life of Israel. The scholarship should cover most of the expenses incurred in a four to six-week stay, up to the $1,500 stipend. The program of study/travel and itinerary for the summer are determined by the scholarship recipient. As much as possible, the College will provide assistance to the student in making final arrangements.

Students applying for the scholarship should be in good academic standing at the College and, more importantly, have a clear and persuasive reason for wishing to study/travel in Israel. Preference will be given to applicants who have not visited Israel previously.

For more information and applications, contact Carolyn V. Blackwell, Office of International Studies, James Blair 111. The deadline for application is March 2.

"Starting from some quiet remarkable and rather funny cases involving accidents to people who are injured in part because they hold some unusual beliefs, I try to derive some notions about the role of beliefs, emotions, and attitudes in our law," says Calabresi in outlining the theme of his talk.

Guido Calabresi

"I conclude that attempts to have a legal system which does not give weight to beliefs and moralisms usually simply gives weight to those beliefs and moralisms which belong to traditionally dominant groups in society. This leads to some observations about the effect of the melting pot on minorities generally and, today,

Construction Delays Postpone Occupancy Of Jefferson Until Spring

Because of delays in the rebuilding of Jefferson Hall which was gutted by fire just a year ago, the building will not be ready for student occupancy until the spring semester next year.

Originally it was anticipated that students would be able to move back into the building for the fall semester of 1984. New date for the return of students was agreed upon at a recent meeting of Sam Sadler, Dean of Student Affairs, Chuck Lombardo, Director of Residence Life; James Connolly, Director, Facilities Planning and Construction, Building and Grounds Department; and David Charlton, Director of Auxiliary Enterprises.

Because of unexpected delays caused by unanticipated problems with the excavation of the foundation of the swimming pool below the basement of old Jefferson and the necessity to replace a sewer pipe, work has fallen behind schedule by approximately 40 days, according to an update made before students left for the Christmas break.

"We hope that there will not be any more delays," says Lombardo, but added, "Even with no further delays, we will not be able to have the building ready for the beginning of the fall semester. At best it would be late September or the middle of October, and those dates represent a high risk gamble."

"We decided to give ourselves a little leeway, just in case more time is lost. Also, we agreed that it would be an inconvenience for students to move in the middle of the semester."

Lombardo said that Jefferson Hall will be available in the spring room lottery but students who opt to live there will spend the first semester at Jefferson West, the adapted Commonwealth Inn facility on Richmond Road, and move into Jefferson for the second half of the year.

Because there will be room for 188 students in the rebuilt Jefferson, 58 more than the 130 capacity of the Commonwealth Inn, Lombardo thinks that students who wish to live in Jefferson will have a good chance in the lottery. The students who were in Jefferson Hall at the time of the fire are now scattered across campus in other residences. There are some who are spending their second year at Jefferson West but several former Jefferson residents are now RAs, and graduation has also lessened the number of "survivors" still on campus.

To date, no special arrangements have been considered for former students who wish to return to Jefferson next year. They will take their chances with everyone else in the lottery, says Lombardo.

Alumni And Seniors Plan 'Life After DOG Street' Programs

The Society of the Alumni, in cooperation with the Senior Class, is sponsoring the fourth annual "Life After DOG Street" (LADS) program — practical workshops for May graduates. The program will be held Feb. 7, 8, and 9 at the Alumni House, at 6 and 8 p.m. each evening.

Designed to give graduates useful information and to help them make the post-graduation transition easier, LADS is a series of informational sessions with area alumni. LADS is not career oriented but is a program devised to give seniors the advantage of assistance from alumni who have already successfully made the transition from campus life into business and professional life.

The LADS program was initiated by a member of the Society's Board of Directors and is planned by Program Director Diane Hagemann '75 and the Senior Class LADS Committee co-chaired by Anne St. Clair and Monica Johnson.

The Richmond, Lower Peninsula, Williamsburg and Norfolk/Virginia Beach

Alumni Chapters are providing panelists for the program. Panelists will include John Greene '70, Randy Duvall '75, Chuck Byrd '75, Jim Newman '69, David Sisk '74, Jack Brendel '58 JD '65, B.W. Marshall '69 and Dave Mercer '73 and many other area alumni.

At each session of the program, a panel of alumni representing the banking, legal, insurance, health care and real estate fields will discuss practical information and solutions to problems seniors may face upon graduation.

For example, alumni in banking will discuss the many ways of invest and manage personal finances, the many ways to establish credit and other services of a bank. Real estate agents will discuss what to watch out for in renting or buying housing, rights as tenants and alternative ways of finding and financing housing. Insurance agents will discuss the whys and hows of purchasing personal insurance. General questions about settling into a new location will be addressed as well.

Koehly Named Finance Director

Frank O. Perkins, Dean/Director, School of Marine Science/Virginia Institute of Marine Science, has announced the appointment of Mr. Paul V. Koehly to fill the position of Associate Director for Finance and Administration at VIMS.

Koehly, who has been Acting Associate Director since September, 1983, assumed the full-time duties of this position as of January 1. The selection was made after a search committee conducted a nationwide search for qualified applicants.

He holds the degrees of B.B.A. from the University of Cincinnati, M.B.A. from Michigan State University and professional certificates of Internal Auditor and Information Systems Auditor. He has twenty-eight years experience in finance related areas, and has developed and implemented unique approaches to efficiently accomplish job requirements. He also has provided guidance to reduce operating costs and increase revenues.

No newcomer to VIMS, Koehly, at the request of the Board of Visitors of the College, previously served in an Acting Associate Director capacity from February, 1980 to August, 1981. This tenure was served during the merger of the Institute with the College.

Holding the position of Director of Internal Auditing at the College since 1975, he will continue to serve in an acting capacity until such time as a successor is appointed.

Perkins added, "It is indeed a pleasure to announce Mr. Koehly's appointment. He played an important role in the development of the Institute during 1980 and 1981. I am looking forward to working with him in his new role as a permanent member of our central administration."

Last semester James Axtell, professor of history, gave a paper entitled "Preachers, Priests, and Pagans: Protestant and Catholic Missions in Colonial North America" at the Conference on Iroquois Research, the Johns Hopkins Seminar in Atlantic History, Culture, and Society, and the George Mason University Anthropology Program. In November he attended the annual meeting of the Advisory Council of the Newberry Library Center for the History of the American Indian in Chicago, which also published his article "The Unbroken Twig: The Revolution in Indian Education" in Francis P. Jennings, ed. The American Indian and the American Revolution. Ethnohistory recently published his article "Some Thoughts on the Ethnohistory of Missions" and the Journal of Interdisciplinary History his essay review on "Invading America: Puritans and Jesuits." A book review appeared in the January William and Mary Quarterly.

R. Merritt Cox, professor of Spanish, has written a review of Pensee Hispanique et Philosophie Francaise Des Lumieres for The Eighteenth Century: A Bibliography.

Sylvia Scholnick of the religion department presented a paper, "The Meaning of Rib in the Book of Job," at the Society for Biblical Literature annual meeting in Dallas on December 19.

Mary Ann D. Sagaria, assistant professor of education and Dyanne Bostain, Thomas Butler, Archie Earl, and George Stone, doctoral students in Higher Education co-authored a paper entitled "A Preliminary Planning Study for a New College" which appeared in the December 1983 issue of Resources in Education. An article "Job Change and Age: The Experience Administrators in Colleges and Universities," co-authored by Mary Ann Sagaria and Kathryn Moore of the Pennsylvania State University will appear in the January issue of Sociological Spectrum.

Sagaria also has been awarded a Young Scholars Grant by the Spencer Foundation to undertake a national study of the relationship between career experiences and managerial skill development of academic deans. Her study will build upon previous work funded through a William and Mary summer research grant.

Chapter Programs Set By Alumni

Members of the Richmond Chapter of the Society of the Alumni will hold a Deli Dinner before the William and Mary - Richmond basketball game, Jan. 28.

The Northern Virginia Chapter is hosting its fourth annual basketball party on Saturday, Feb. 25 in conjunction with the William and Mary - George Mason University game. The chapter is also sponsoring a ski weekend at Snow Shoe, March 2-4.

To celebrate the chartering of the College and to honor the founding of the new Northern California Chapter, the Society of the Alumni is hosting a cocktail reception, Feb. 8 in San Francisco.

The Philadelphia chapter and Duke University are co-sponsoring a Midwinter Dance on Feb. 11 at the Horticultural Center, Fairmount Park, in Philadelphia.

Business Office Staff Changes

A recent issue of William and Mary News announced that Dennis K. Cogle would fill the position of director of planning and budget on an acting basis reporting directly to the Provost. Cogle moved to his new location in the Brafferton on Monday, Jan. 23, and can now be reached on Extension 4203.

In conjunction with Cogle's change, the supervisory responsibilities for College telecommunications, campus post office, and central copying have been temporarily redistributed. Telecommunications and post office supervision has been assumed by Hal Holcomb. Overall supervision of and planning for central copying is now handled by Jeanette Canady. Both individuals may be reached at the Office of the Vice President for Business Affairs, ext. 4211.

Erin Sheehy First Winner Of Southland Olympia Award

Erin Sheehy, scholar, athlete and student leader and outstanding in both soccer and swimming, will become William and Mary's first recipient of the prestigious Southland Olympia Award. The award will take place at a reception and dinner prior to the William and Mary vs. Lafayette basketball game on Thursday, February 6.

Sheehy, a senior from Penfield, New York, is a six-time All-American in swimming and is an All-State soccer player. She is captain of both teams and maintains a "B" average at William and Mary.

The Olympia Award is sanctioned by the U.S. Olympic Committee and funded by The Southland Corporation (7-Eleven stores). Voted on by a panel of former world and Olympic greats, the Olympia Award recognizes achievement and contribution of athletes in the 31 Olympic sports. Recent winners include Mary Decker, Carl Lewis, Alberto Salazar, Tracy Caulkins, Evelyn Ashford, and Ralph Sampson.

Rene A. Henry, Jr., formerly of Norfolk, a 1954 graduate of William and Mary and now director of the Southland Olympic News Bureau office in Los Angeles will be involved in the presentation. A former sports information director at William and Mary, West Virginia and the USMA-West Point, he directed the communications campaign that led to Los Angeles being selected as the host for the 1984 Olympic Games.

Sheehy will receive a distinctive museum-piece reproduction of a Greek amphora (two-handled vase) given to amateur athletes 2,500 years ago in Ancient Greece.

Archaeology Conventions Draw Participants From Many Countries

Norman Barka, chairman of the department of anthropology, was general chairman and Theodore R. Reinhart, associate professor of anthropology, was program chairman for the seventeenth annual meeting of the Society for Historical Archaeology which was held in Williamsburg, Jan. 5-8 with the fifteenth annual meeting of the Conference on Underwater Archaeology.

The meetings were sponsored by the department of anthropology, the Colonial National Historical Park, National Park Service, the Research Center for Archaeology, Virginia Historic Landmarks Commission, and the Greater Williamsburg Chapter of the Archaeology Society of Virginia.

Several thousand delegates from Mexico, Bermuda, England, Australia, Holland, Northern Ireland, Switzerland the Virgin Islands and Curacao attended as well as participants from 46 states and five provinces of Canada attended the meetings.

Several papers were presented by William and Mary representatives including the following: Anne Yentsch, "Studying Socio-Economic Rank in Historic Annapolis."

John H. Sprinkle, Jr., "Probabilistic Survey at the Governors Island, James City County.

Hours for Students

President Graves will hold the first of his open office hour sessions with students from 4-5 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 26

The President will be available in his office in Ewell Hall during this hour to talk informally with student about topics of their choice.

No appointment is necessary.

Shared Experience Program

Shared Experience offers undergraduates the opportunity to participate in a program of local internships. This spring internships are available with James City County Government, The War Memorial Museum, Farmer's Home Administration, Child Development Resources, Jeffery Shy Associates (computer), Wheat First Securities and Twentieth Century Galleries. Application deadline is Jan. 30. For more information and application forms, contact the Office of Career Planning, Morton Hall, Room 140, x4427.

College VENTURE Program

The College Venture Program offers undergraduates an opportunity to gain valuable, hands-on experience in areas of career interest. Current intern positions include: Child Care Counselor, Laboratory Technician, Community Service Worker, Zoo Research Trainee, Editorial Assistant, Outdoor Education Intern, Democoder: Computer Software Manufacturer, Arts Management Intern, and Urban Planning Intern. These positions are open to any students considering or willing to take time off from school. They can be found, along with many other positions, in the VENTURE Job Bank located in the Office of Career Planning, Morton Hall, Room 140, ext. 4427.

Summer Job Opportunities

Information regarding 1984 summer opportunities with the Federal Government can be obtained by reviewing the bulletins in the Summer Job Notebook in the Career Library, Morton Hall 140.

Interested persons are encouraged to review Announcement No. 414, as well as the supplement, which gives information regarding summer employment opportunities within the State of Virginia. Forms 171 and 1170/17 are also available in the Career Planning and Placement offices.

Help Needed!

Immediate assistance is needed for handicapped students here at the College. Please volunteer to help in one or more of the following capacities.

- drivers to get students to and from class or to run errands
- escorts to walk with handicapped students around campus
- readers to read assignments, texts, and handouts onto tapes

Please volunteer to help your fellow students. Call Dean Jarmon's office (ext. 4581, or ext. 4546) for more information.

Camp New Horizons

Camp New Horizons will be interviewing on campus Thursday, Jan. 26 for summer jobs. Please contact Wendy Charlton in the Placement Office, ext. 4606 for interview appointments.

Badminton Club

"Come join the fun and get some exercise. The Badminton Club is sponsored by the Women's Physical Education Department and is open to the community and all college faculty, staff and students. The club meets every Monday evening from 7-9 p.m. in Adair Gym. No experience is necessary, instructions will be given as you play. Bring your friends and learn to play an international sport. It's a great way to release controlled aggression." Feffie Barnhill, Women's P.E.

Swimming Classes

The College Women's Club is holding registration from 10-11 a.m., Saturday, Jan. 28 in Adair gymnasium. Classes begin Feb. 4 and will meet each Saturday from 9:30-11:30 a.m. The classes are 50 minutes long and will be scheduled through April 21. The fee is $12.

Red Cross certified courses for non-swimmers and swimmers from three-year olds to adults may enroll. These classes are open to members of the College community, faculty and staff and their families and students and employees and their families at the National Center for State Courts.

For details concerning the classes, please call either Cathy Walsh at 220-1060 or Bonita Stockmeyer at 229-5256.

German House Programs

The German House holds a Kaffeeklatsch on alternate Mondays and Tuesdays throughout the semester from 3:30-5 p.m. The next Kaffeeklatsch is scheduled for Tuesday, January 31. This series will run through April 17.

The German House is also offering a series of German films with English subtitles each Thursday at 8 p.m. The next film is "Heidelberger Romanze" (1952). Final film program will be on April 19.

Chesapeake Boat Building Film

The "Oceanography for Landlubbers" series will present a film, "Billie Moore: Chesapeake Boat Builder," produced by the Newport News Mariners' Museum, on Feb. 1, in the VIMS' Byrd Hall Conference Room at 7:30 p.m.

The international award-winning film documents the unique skills required in building a Chesapeake Bay deadrise oyster boat and the way of life of a waterman.

Mr. Enno Reckendorf, Administrator of the Norfolk School of Boatbuilding, will present the objectives and work of the boatbuilding school after the showing of the film.

These programs, presented by the VIMS' Sea Grant, Marine Advisory Services, are offered free to the public the first Wednesday in each month. For further information regarding this series, contact Mary Sparrow, 642-2111, extension 298.

Career Day Coming

Career Exploration Day will be held in Morton Hall from 9:30 a.m.-1 p.m., Saturday, Feb. 18.

Registration is required. Application forms are available in the Placement Office, Morton 140, also at the Commons, Campus Center and Campus Post Office.

Loan Closet

The Backpacking Equipment Loan Closet on the third floor of Adair gymnasium will be open this semester on Mondays and Thursdays from 7-8 p.m. For more information on terms and equipment available, please call Sharon Young at ext. 4535.

Study Skills Workshop

January 25th: MEMORY/READING STRATEGIES AND NOTE-TAKING SKILLS

Skillful, purposeful marking in your textbook is more useful than taking copious chapter notes. In fact, it is the most efficient aid for retention and review that you can devise. Learn and use the SQ3R method of reading and textbook usage and see yourself become a more efficient, effective student.

This workshop and others on various aspects of study skills will be offered throughout the semester on Wednesdays from 7:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. in Jones 302. These workshops are open to all. No registration is necessary.

Food Co-op

There will be an orientation session for prospective members of Williamsburg's Phoenix Food Cooperative on Thursday, January 26th at 8 p.m. at the Wesley Foundation located at 526 Jamestown Road, across from Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

Any members of the college community interested in joining this pre-order food buying cooperative can attend this orientation or call Dave Sobal at 253-2310.

Conference Funds

Financial aid is available through the Board of Student Affairs for attending conferences.

Requests for conference funding will be accepted until Feb. 1.

Please submit requests to Dean Smith's office in the Campus Center.

One Year Later — Jefferson Being Readied For Students

By Rebecca Clark
University Communications

Debbie Zanfagna walked sleepily out of her Jefferson Hall residence at the College of William and Mary early on the frigid morning of Jan. 20, 1983, thinking that someone had just come in and tripped the fire alarm as a prank.

As she reached the exit, she realized how cold it was outside and returned to her room for a jacket. Then, not knowing how long the fire drill would last, she walked the short distance to her sorority house and found a place to sleep.

About six hours later, a friend called and said that Debbie and 184 fellow students had just lost everything they had. The residence hall was gutted. "The whole thing was such a shock. Nothing was real. I couldn't believe I didn't have anything anymore," she recalls now, one year later.

It was the worst fire in William and Mary's recent history, and one that had as many personal losses as property losses. It has taken a whole year to settle all the myriad claims associated with the fire. The Dean of Student Affairs, W. Samuel Sadler, says there are still a few insurance checks to be written, and the College is preparing to repay the local Red Cross for the money it borrowed from the national office.

So far, the largest claim paid to a student fire victim is $5,248. The smallest claim was for $317. The largest payment went to an international student who lost expensive clothes and other valuable items. That student had no outside insurance, so the College paid her entire loss. The lowest claim was small probably because the College was asked only to cover what the student's insurance did not pay, according to Sadler.

The most common items lost, other than clothing, were stereos, receivers and speakers. Some students played in bands and had electric guitars and other musical instruments. Zanfagna says she was one of the luckier ones who got a few of her belongings out. She gained temporary celebrity when a television news crew filmed her as she emerged tearfully from the burnt-out building holding her flute.

Since men were housed in the west end of Jefferson, most of them lost everything, because that section sustained the heaviest damage. "Some of the guys were bitter," says Zanfagna. But most students, despite their losses, weathered their misfortune well.

The fire began when a refrigerator malfunctioned in one of the residence hall's kitchens, according to a fire marshal's report. The fire burned the entire building's wooden frame. Although the interior of Jefferson was gutted, the Flemish-bond brick walls remained intact. That removed one concern that a new dormitory would have to be built on the site that would not fit in with its 18th century surroundings.

The new Jefferson Hall will look virtually the same as the old building on the outside, but the interior will be more modern and comfortable, with carpeted hallways, air-conditioning and more accommodations for handicapped students. Although construction is several weeks behind, the building is scheduled for completion by late 1984 at a final cost of approximately $2.85 million.

After the fire, College officials began a systematic check of every residence hall, administration and classroom buildings for proper wiring of fire and smoke alarms. At that point, says James J. Connolly, director of facilities, planning and construction, "there were no disbelievers" that another fire was possible on campus. Some of the residence halls were literally taken apart at their seams to have firestopping material installed around ductwork.

Connolly says it wasn't the Jefferson fire that triggered all the attention to fire safety around campus, however. About a month before the fire, a state law mandating installation of smoke detectors was amended to include dormitory rooms in the requirement. The work to install the necessary equipment was conducted throughout 1983, but some remains to be done after the deadline of Jan. 1, 1984, due to contract delays, Connolly says.

Dean Sadler says he couldn't have been more pleased with his staff, and that of Residence Hall Life, in dealing with the crisis last year. He says he wouldn't change a thing in the way the fire was handled.

The outpouring of community and College support was gratifying, too, he says. Clothes, food, money, and offers of shelter poured in. The Campus Center Little Theater was turned into a clothing drop, and many found plenty of warmth, if not style, there. The only problem, says Zanfagna, was that most of the clothing was for women. But if there wasn't enough for the men, Casey's Department Store provided a $200 clothing voucher to every student, male or female, to help make up their losses.

"I do wish we could have reacted more quickly to those who had significant losses," says Sadler. "There was an inability to provide assistance to those who wanted to get things out of the building. We had to disappoint some because the risks of going back in there were too great."

Art Lecture

Stephen Frazier, visiting professor of ceramics for the spring semester, will discuss the development of his work, in particular his large scale abstract sculptures, in a lecture at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 26 in Andrews 201. Frazier received his M.F.A. in ceramics in 1983 from the University of Tennessee in Knoxville. His lecture coincides with an exhibition of his work in Andrews Foyer which will close March 2.

Wagoner Dancers Next On Series

Reviewers have used such accolades as "non-stop delight," "technically brilliant" and "inspired" to describe the work of Dan Wagoner and Dancers, who will perform at 8:15 p.m., Tuesday, Jan. 31, in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall as the next attraction on the Concert Series schedule.

Individual tickets are $5 for the general public; $4 for members of the College community. For ticket information, call ext. 4557.

One year later, the Jefferson Hall fire is just another conversation piece. Students have gotten on with their lives, but planning director Connolly's fire safety job is continual. "We can't just install the smoke detectors and forget about them," he says. An ongoing maintenance contract will ensure that all of the devices are kept in working order. On Friday, the Jefferson alumni had a party for themselves to remember the day. The theme was "come as you were."

Sinfonicon Light Opera Company Opens 'Pirates' Wednesday

Can a yearbook staff photographer, a volunteer at the Williamsburg Community hospital emergency room, a member of the modern dance Orchestis, the modern dance company, co-chairman of the clown ministry for the Catholic Student Association, a harpsichordist, an ROTC scholarship cadet and an Exxon marketing intern make beautiful music together? The Sinfonicon Light Opera Company hopes so.

These are a few of the interests of the student cast which will present "The Pirates of Penzance," Jan. 25-28 in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m. Tickets are $4 for members of the College community; $5 for the general public. The box office at PBK is open daily 1-6 p.m. and 7 p.m. days of performance.

Zoe Trollope who is one of the advertising and publicity directors for the show and also has one of the major acting roles as Frederic's nurse Ruth, has supplied The News the following information about the show:

The stage of PBK has been a scene of bustling activity since Jan. 11, when Sinfonicon members returned to the building to rehearse and set the stage for the upcoming Pirates of Penzance.

The Sinfonicon Light Opera Company, which traditionally performs Gilbert and Sullivan operettas, is an entirely student-run organization. The group's Board of Directors are elected by the Company's members, who comprise of members of Delta Omicron and Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, both honorary music fraternities.

Last semester, Sinfonicon produced a highly successful "Gilbert and Sullivan Revue." In this show, which was held in Andrews Foyer, excerpts were presented from various Gilbert and Sullivan shows, including a special preview of Pirates of Penzance.

War Museum Honors Black Soldier

The War Memorial Museum of Virginia will open its new permanent exhibit gallery entitled "The Black Soldier" on Wednesday, Feb. 1. This exhibit gallery will trace the role of blacks in the U.S. military from 1775 to the present, primarily stressing the 20th century.

This study of the black military experience features uniforms, photographs, posters, and weapons, as well as other objects which document the sacrifices and contributions of U.S. servicemen. Topics within the gallery include "Black Doughboys," "Going Out of Slavery" and "The Seeds of Racial Equality." Some of the very unique artifacts used in this exhibit range from posters such as "Journee de la Corps d'Afrique" (French, World War I) and "We Are Doing Our Bit" (U.S. 369th Infantry Regiment Support, World War I) to a saber used during the Indian Wars by the 10th Cavalry.

The museum will present special opening activities on Feb. 1, 1984 at 7:30 p.m. This exhibit preview will include the Honorable Jessie Ratley, the noted author Colonel Jesse Johnson, and award-winning filmmaker William Miles. These speakers will set a perspective not only for the opening of the exhibit but also for the viewing of the documentary "Men of Bronze." A reception will follow these activities. During the entire course of Black History month, the museum will offer special lectures and programs relating to "The Black Soldier."

The public is invited to the opening ceremonies and the following schedule of programs throughout February.

Sat., Feb. 4

11 a.m., Film - "The Black Soldier," (30 min., B&W)

3 p.m., Film - "Men of Bronze," (58 min., color). The 369th (formerly the New York 15th National Guard) was not permitted to fight with white U.S. troops and was assigned to the French Army instead. The entire regiment was awarded the Croix du Guerre (making it the most decorated American unit in WW II).

Sun., Feb. 5

2 p.m., Lecture - Col. Jessie Johnson, U.S. Army (Ret.) will speak 15-20 minutes on the 369th Infantry Regiment during WW I. Afterwards he will autograph copies of his books on black military history available for sale in the museum gift shop.

3 p.m., Film - "Men of Bronze"

Charter Day Panel To Focus On Role Of Art Critic

A panel of nationally known art critics and museum directors will meet on campus Charter Day weekend for a symposium entitled "The Role of the Critic in Defining Contemporary Taste," from 2-3:30 p.m., Friday, Feb. 3, in Millington Auditorium.

The symposium is one of the events scheduled Feb. 3-4, marking the 291st anniversary of the granting of the College's charter in 1693. This year's Charter Day theme is a continuation of a year-long celebration of the fine arts that began with the dedication in October 1983 of William and Mary's new Muscarelle Museum of Art.

Panel participants will include Donald B. Kuspit, professor of art history, State University of New York at Stony Brook and a leading critic of contemporary art; Paul Richard, art critic for the Washington Post; Leo Castelli, director of Leo Castelli Gallery in New York; and Thomas Sokolowski, chief curator of The Chrysler Museum in Norfolk. Each of the panel members will present brief remarks, followed by a question-and-answer session.

Also that weekend, the College will honor J. Carter Brown, director of the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C., who will be the principal speaker for William and Mary's 291st Charter Day convocation at 10:30 a.m., Saturday, Feb. 4. Brown will receive an honorary Doctor of Fine Arts degree at the ceremonies.

Donald Kuspit

Kuspit, 49, is one of the country's best known critics of the contemporary art scene. His extensive publications include over 200 articles in both academic and popular journals and two books, "The Philosophical Life of the Senses" (New York, 1969), and "Clement Greenberg, Art Critic" (Madison, 1979).

He received his undergraduate degree with distinction in philosophy from Columbia University in 1955, a master's degree in philosophy from Yale University in 1957 and a doctor of philosophy degree magna cum laude from the University of Frankfurt, Germany in 1960. Kuspit then turned his attention to art history, receiving a master's from Pennsylvania State University in 1964 and a Ph.D. from the University of Michigan in 1971.

Paul Richard

Paul Richard, a native of Chicago, has been the art critic for The Washington Post since 1967. He received his bachelor's degree from Harvard University and did graduate work in architecture at the Graduate School of Fine Arts at the University of Pennsylvania. He joined The Washington Post in 1964.

Thomas Sokolowski

Sokolowski, 33, has been chief curator of The Chrysler Museum since 1981. He received his undergraduate degree in art history from the University of Chicago and a master's degree in that field from the Institute of Fine Arts of New York University. His area of academic speciality is Italian Baroque painting.

Prior to his appointment at The Chrysler Museum, Sokolowski spent three years studying at the American Academy in Rome. He has also taught art history at the University of British Columbia, Kent State University and the University of Minnesota at Minneapolis.

Leo Castelli

A native of Trieste, Italy, Leo Castelli is regarded as one of the world's leading art dealers. His Leo Castelli Gallery, which he founded in 1957, is considered among the most important contemporary galleries, representing the vanguard of contemporary taste. He is also the owner of Castelli Graphics in New York, specializing in contemporary American painting and sculpture.

New Exhibit At Muscarelle Museum Of Art

"Optic" an oil on canvas 78" x 78" painted by Robert Cottingham, is included in the catalogue of the exhibit at the Muscarelle Museum of Art entitled "Late Twentieth Century Art From the Sydney and Frances Lewis Foundation," which will be on display through April 14 and opens Feb. 4, as part of the Charter Day program.

After receiving a law degree from the University of Milan, Castelli spent the early part of his career in international banking. In 1939, he opened Galerie Rene

Drouin, Paris, which remained in operation until 1949. In 1941 Castelli came to the United States, where he worked for a time in knit-goods manufacturing and studied at Columbia University. He was the recipient of the Mayor's Award of Honor for arts and culture, New York City in 1976 and won the Manhattan Cultural Awards Prize in 1980.

Micro Computer Laboratory To Open In Swem

A 16 station microcomputer laboratory located in Swem Library will officially open on Feb. 13.

The laboratory was primarily funded through academic support fees and is a joint effort of the Computer Center, Educational Media Services, and Swem Library. The facility consists of 16 Apple IIe microcomputers, four printers, and appropriate accessories and software.

In order to use the microcomputers, all patrons should check in at the desk located in the Learning Resource Center in Educational Media Services. Easy to use tutorials are available for the first-time microcomputer user. Software is currently available for creating spreadsheets, filing and sorting databases, text-editing, creating business graphics, and programming in BASIC, Pascal, Fortran, and Pilot languages. In addition, individual faculty members may provide software related to particular classes.

In order to introduce students, faculty, and staff to this facility, several open houses have been scheduled during the next month. The schedule is as follows:

Note: All open houses are scheduled from 2 to 5 p.m. on the ground floor of Swem Library (Educational Media Services).

Jan. 26: All staff members and faculty.
Jan. 31: All seniors and graduate students.
Feb. 2: All juniors.
Feb. 7: All sophomores.
Feb. 9: All freshmen.
Feb. 13: Facility open for general use.

It would be helpful in reducing congestion if all those interested in seeing the facility would attend only on the assigned day. Due to the large amount of preparatory work required in order to open this laboratory, patrons are requested to please refrain from using the facility prior to Feb. 13.

Esther Rolle Coming Friday

The Black Student Organization and the Office of Minority Affairs are co-sponsoring actress Esther Rolle in a one-woman show, "Ain't I A Woman," at 7 p.m., Friday, Jan. 27, in the Campus Center Ballroom as part of their 1983-84 lecture series.

The public is invited. There is no admission charge.

on women who are seeking equality," he adds.

Calabresi has been a member of the Yale Law School faculty since 1959. His writing and research have been concerned with law and economics, the ethics of medical care, the rights of courts in American society, legal issues in medical care and the problems of legal obsolescence. His books include "The Costs of Accidents, Tragic Choices," and "A Common Law for the Age of Statutes." He is currently working on the manuscript of "Ideals, Beliefs and the Law." He has served as a visiting professor at Harvard University Law School, The Kyoto American Studies Seminar and the European University Institute in Florence Italy.

In 1980-81 Calabresi was Arthur L. Goodhart Professor of Legal Science at Cambridge University, as well as a fellow at St. John's College, Cambridge. He is a fellow and member of the Council of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and a corresponding fellow of the British

"Ain't I A Woman" is the tale of two extraordinary women and their battle for human rights. Ms. Rolle will recreate highlights of the lives of Sojourner Truth, a freed slave who spoke out against slavery during the Civil War; and Susan B. Anthony, often referred to as "the women's commander-in-chief"

Academy. He is a trustee of the Catholic University of America and the Carolyn Foundation, and served on the advisory board of the Kennedy Institute for the Study of Human Bioethics.

Calabresi is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Yale University. He also holds a B.A. from Magdalen College, Oxford University, an LL. B. from Yale Law School and an M.A. from Oxford University. He has received honorary degrees from Yale, Notre Dame University and the University of Turin, Italy.

The Phi Beta Kappa Visiting Scholar Program was begun in 1956 to enable undergraduates to meet with noted scholars in diverse disciplines. Under this program, sponsored by the United Chapters, a scholar travels to universities and colleges that have Phi Beta Kappa chapters, spending two days on each campus. During that stay the scholar takes part in classroom and seminar discussions, meets informally with students and faculty members and gives one public address.

Calabresi will be on campus, Jan. 30, 31.

Veteran Newsman To Teach OSP's Legislative Seminar

A seminar to encourage greater citizen participation in the Virginia General Assembly's law-making process, including the encouragement of potential candidacies for the State Senate and House of Delegates, will begin on Feb. 15 on the campus.

Seminar Coordinator Wade Mann, veteran newsman and commentator on legislative affairs, emphasizes that the seminar will seek to provide news perspectives on the legislative process, as well as dealing with issues before the current 1984 Virginia General Assembly.

The four-session "Legislative Issues and Candidates Seminar" begins Wednesday, Feb. 15, at 7:30 p.m. and will continue on three succeeding Wednesdays.

The seminar is being offered through the Office of Special Programs. For information on fees and registration forms, call 877-9231 or 253-4084.

Mann has had many years of experience covering and participating in local and state government activities in the state of Indiana. He has been a legislative reporter, editorial columnist, editor, publisher, and owner of newspapers covering legislative issues. He served as co-producer and interviewer for "The Lawmakers," public television's daily coverage of the 1976 Indiana General Assembly and public affairs commentator, WIAN, Indianapolis Public Radio, during 1982.

Marine Business Workshops Set

A series of small business management workshops for commercial fishermen and other businessmen in marine-related fields is scheduled to run from mid-January to mid-February. The free workshops are being sponsored by the Virginia Sea Grant Program Marine Advisory Service in cooperation with the Eastern Shore of Virginia Chamber of Commerce.

Ron Grulich, Marine Business Specialist with the Sea Grant Program at VIMS will be coordinator for the workshops to be conducted at the Rappahannock Community College (RCC) in Glens, Va., and at the Eastern Shore Community College (ESCC) Melfa, Va., according to the following schedule:

Jan. 24-26 Financial Planning and Analysis

Jan. 31- The Role of Insurance
Feb. 2 in a Small Business

Feb. 7-14 The Business Plan and Presenting a Financial Proposal

Although the workshops will have a marine emphasis, ALL local businessmen are welcome to attend.

For further information concerning the workshops, please contact Ron Grulich, Marine Business Specialist, at VIMS, 642-2111, ext. 112.

French House Sets Open House Jan. 29

The French House will hold an open house from 2-4 p.m., Sunday, Jan. 29 for prospective 1984-85 residents.

The afternoon program will include an informal question and answer period, a tour of the house and refreshments.

The French House is home to 40 students who are interested in the culture and language of France. Residents, however, do not have to be French majors to live in the house, which is located in the Botetourt Complex.

Throughout the year the French House residents plan a variety of activities. French movies are frequently shown and guest speakers from the French Embassy are invited to talk about historical and topic themes. Residents participated in a French radio program over WCWM.

Dining in the French manner has also been a way of helping student familiarize themselves with the language and patterns of French life. More dinners are planned for this semester.

The tutor who lives at the house leads informal rap sessions and members of the French faculty participate in conversation hours.

tially cover the cost of materials used in the course.

This course will provide instruction on how to resuscitate an adult or a baby who has suffered from cardiac arrest, when there is no help available.

In announcing the course, Dr. J. S. Karow, director of the Student Health Service, stressed its importance. "It is estimated that thousands of people's lives could be saved annually if people knew proper CPR technique. The first 3-5 minutes after a cardiac arrest is the most important period for resuscitating a person to prevent brain damage. The longer a person goes without breathing and without a heart beat, the more likely there is to be brain damage and the less likelihood of recovery."

Dr. Karow said that if there is enough interest in the course to warrant it, the instruction will be repeated for a larger number of people. Those who would like to take the course but can not fit it into their schedule on Feb. 22 are asked to contact the Student Health Service and let the staff know that they would be interested in a later course.

Computer Center Offers Free Non-Credit Courses

The William and Mary Computer Center has scheduled a number of free, non-credit short courses for the spring semester. Although there is no charge for the classes, space is limited for most of them, especially those providing "hands-on" access to the computer system. Any one who wants to attend one or more of the courses should register in advance with Lenora Rodgers at ext. 4547.

Several of the courses suggest certain pre-requisite experience for participants.

The instructor will assume that at least the stated background is present: When the pre-requisite is some experience on the PRIME or any computer, mastery of the topics outlined in "Introduction to the PRIME and Text Processing" exclusive of RUNOFF is appropriate.

Richard Bland Has Tracks From Old Railroad

Railroading buffs will be interested in a mini railroad track on the campus of Richard Bland.

Two 25-foot lengths of rolled iron rails, once part of the Petersburg-Weldon Railroad, one of the oldest lines in the country, dating from 1830, have been carefully preserved on a graded road bed of gravel and held down by antique spikes near Ernst Hall.

The Battle of the Weldon Railroad and the Second Reams Station, fought in 1864 was waged for control of the strategic line which was later consolidated with the Atlantic Coastline Railway. According to RBC historians William Henderson and John Blair, Petersburg's importance as a rail center was a factor in General Ulysses S. Grant's plans to force the fall of Richmond.

Brian Waymack, RBC grounds supervisor said it took three hours to remove a quarter inch layer of rust from the rails. They were then treated with a preservative and painted. The rails were so heavy it required three men to put each one of them in place.

Since most iron rails were replaced with steel in the late 1870's, the two rails are of particular interest to historians. "Somehow the two now at the College were overlooked and were later discovered under six inches of dirt on the Louis Walter Walker, Jr. farm on historic Halifax Road, according to Henderson.

Allmond Recital Held At St. John's

Tenor Timothy E. Allmond, Jr. '78, of Greenbelt was heard in recital at St. John's Church, Norwood Parish, Chevy Chase, Md., on Sunday, Jan. 15. He was accompanied by Nelda Diane Casper of College Park.

In the Washington area he has sung in and directed the choir at Canaan Baptist Church and is presently tenor section leader at St. John's. He is a student of Pauline Pappas Wadlow of Potomac. His program included early Italian and English songs, operatic arias by Mozart, Donizetti, Ponchelli, Gounod, and Massenet, and American spirituals.

Nelda Casper '79 is the Organist-Choir Director of St. George's Episcopal Church in Glenn Dale and is employed as an engineer at the Westinghouse Company in Baltimore.

Allmond received a B.A. in music from the College; Casper a B.S. in Physics and a B.A. in music.

Seniors received invitations to one of the sessions and are asked to respond promptly whether or not they are attending since space has been reserved for each member of the senior class. To respond, to the LADS invitation, please call Program Director Diane Hagemann at the Alumni House at 229-1693 or ext. 4302 or place the invitation's tear-off response portion in the specially marked LADS boxes located in the Campus Center, Commons, Campus Post Office, Senior Dorms and Day Student House. Seniors may opt to reschedule to alternate night if the one to which they have been invited is inconvenient. But all seniors are urged to respond and attend this worthwhile program.

Furnishings From The President's House

The Spigel Gallery at the Muscarelle Museum of Art is featuring a sampler of masterpiece furnishings from the President's House. The exhibit closes this Friday, Jan. 27, marking an end to the observance of the 250th anniversary of the construction of the house. Part of the collection includes: an American 18th-century mahogany marble-top table; an American 18th-century secretary desk; a George II settee made of walnut and upholstered with silk and linen damask; a Queen Anne side chair, and an English Hepplewhite sideboard, circa 1785.

Eccles Gives First Lecture Feb. 6

a guest lecturer at the American University in Beirut and at the Sorbonne.

Eccles is the author of several books including Frontenac, The Courtier Governor, (Toronto, 1959); Frontenac, (Series Figures Canadiennes, Montreal, 1962); Canada Under Louis XIV, (Canadian Centenary Series, Toronto, 1964); The Ordeal of New France (Canadian Broadcasting International Service, Montreal, 1966); Phillips Historical Atlas of Canada, (with J.W. Chalmers and H. Fullard, London, 1966); Canadian Society During the French Regime, (Montreal, 1968); The Canadian Frontier 1524-1760, (Histories of the American Frontier Series, New York, 1969); and France in America, (New American Nation Series, New York and Toronto, 1972).

He received an American Historical Association Award for Frontenac: The Courtier Governor in 1959 and the Institut Francais de Washington's Gilbert Chinard Award in 1974 for France in America. Eccles received the Tyrrell Medal of the Royal Society of Canada in 1979 and was designated Seniro Connaught Fellow at the University of Toronto, 1980-81. Eccles has also served as a member of the Councils of the Canadian Historical Association and the Humanities Association of Canada as well as the Institute of Early American History and Culture.

Eccles is currently working on a book about war and trade in New France. He says he has another two years of research to do before he begins writing.

Eccles' interest in history began at an early age. As a boy living along the Ottawa river, he explored the ruins of a 17th century fort located just a mile from his home outside of Montreal. Also, he adds, the early period of Canadian history holds more excitement and interest for him than does the period after the conquest.

A very military group, the early French settlers repulsed an American invasion and held their own against the 13 colonies. It took, says Eccles, 23,000 regulars and a quarter of the British Navy to conquer the 75,000 inhabitants of the French settlement. If it had been left to the French colonists, he explains, there would not have been a war with Britain. Says Eccles, "They had no quarrel with the English colonies but French Imperial policy dictated war. The Canadians had no say in the matter, they were told to go out and fight."

The Canadians stayed out of the American Revolution and refused to take sides either for the colonists or the English. But in the earlier colonial war, says Eccles, the Canadians frequently sent raiding parties across the border. The Canadians loved good horses for racing and would raid settlements in New England. "They would go as infantry and come back as calvary," quipped Eccles. "Today there is the complaint that people drive everywhere in their cars and are loath to walk. Back then the Canadian generals complained that their men were always on horseback and never wanted to walk."

There was also a good deal of illegal trade undertaken between the Canadians and American says Eccles. There was an eager market in New York for furs, French silks and the finest textiles, wine and brandy, and the French wanted English woollens.

Safety Lecture For Staff/Faculty Planned By Police

An office safety lecture will be given by Kathryn Poynter of the Campus Police Department from 5:15-6 p.m., on Wednesday, Feb. 1 in Room C of the Campus Center.

The lecture will include suggestions on how to create a safer atmosphere in offices through environmental design and some tips on home security. Pamphlets will be distributed on sexual assault, office safety and home security. Forms will be available for participants to request copies of other pamphlets on a variety of crime prevention aspects.

All members of the College community are invited to attend. The presentation has been specially prepared for faculty and staff members.
