

1984 Speaker Named

Paul A. Volcker, chairman of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, will be the speaker for the 1984 commencement exercises, Sunday, May 13.

Volcker will be awarded an honorary degree at the 2 p.m. ceremonies in William and Mary Hall, along with three leaders in the fields of law, business and education: R. Harvey Chappell, Jr., of Richmond, partner in the law firm of Christian, Barton, Brent, Epps & Chappell and a former rector of William and Mary; William Louis Zimmer, III, former president and chief executive officer of A.H. Robins Co., of Richmond and current chairman of the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia; and Lawrence A. Cremin, president of Teachers College, Columbia University.

The Rev. Robert F. Drinan, former Democratic congressman from Massachusetts and currently professor of law at Georgetown University Law Center in Washington, D.C., will be the speaker at a baccalaureate service for degree candidates and their parents at 9:30 a.m., Saturday, May 12, also in William and Mary Hall.

Volcker, 56, has been a member of the Federal Reserve's Board of Governors since 1979, when he began his first four-year term as chairman of the Board. He was reappointed to a second four-year term as chairman in 1983, and his term as a member of the board continues until 1992.

Volcker is a former Under Secretary of the Treasury and President of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, which post he held when he became the chief executive officer of the Federal Reserve. He has served in top posts with the Treasury and the Federal Reserve under Presidents Johnson, Nixon, Carter and Reagan.

As chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, Volcker is chairman of the Federal Open Market Committee, the system's principal monetary policy making organ.

A native of Cape May, N.J., Volcker received his bachelor's degree from Princeton in 1949, a master's in political economy and government at the Harvard University Graduate School of Public Administration in 1951, and attended the London School of Economics in 1951-52.

Chappell, 57, a William and Mary alumnus and a native of Clarksville, Va., has been partner with the Richmond law firm of Christian, Barton, Epps, Brent & Chappell since 1950. He is also a director and general counsel to Thalhimer Brothers, Inc., one of Virginia's oldest department store chains.

Active in legal organizations on the state and national level, Chappell was chairman of the American Bar Association's Standing Committee on Federal Judiciary from 1977-78, and served on the ABA's board of governors from 1978-81. He is former president of the Virginia State Bar, the Richmond Bar Association and a member of the board of regents of the American College of Trial Lawyers. He is also a member of the Virginia Bar Association and the American Bar Foundation.

His active interest in William and Mary has continued unabated since his graduation from the College in 1948, and from the College's Marshall-Wythe School of Law in 1950. Chappell was president of the William and Mary Law School Association in 1950-51 and received the Alumni Medallion of the Society of the Alumni for outstanding service to the College in 1968. He was a member of the William and Mary Board of Visitors from 1968-76, and served as rector of the College from 1972-76.

Zimmer, 71, has served on the board of directors of A.H. Robins since 1952. He retired as president and chief executive of

Committee Wants Students

The Commencement Committee has announced the competition to select the student speaker for the 1984 Commencement Exercises. The person chosen will represent all graduates at Commencement by delivering an address on a topic of his/her choosing. The only stipulation is that the topic must be a theme of institutional interest, i.e., a theme to which any graduate could relate. Any person, graduate or undergraduate, receiving a degree in May is eligible to apply.

The selection process is as follows:

By March 23, persons wishing to apply must submit to the Office of the Dean of Student Affairs (211 James Blair Hall) a sample of their writing. This must be a paper (not to exceed ten pages; five pages are acceptable) already produced for a class or a new piece reflecting the person's thinking on a subject of his/her choosing (but not on the subject proposed for the Commencement address). The writing sample must be accompanied by a recommendation from a faculty member. Faculty recommendations should address the thoughtfulness of the applicant and the applicant's ability to articulate ideas.

Three to five finalists will be selected. Each finalist will be asked to make a five-minute oral presentation to the selection committee and will have a brief interview with the committee. Additional information will be requested from the faculty references of the finalists.

By April 20, the speaker will be selected and announced to the College community.

"The Committee to select the student speaker will consist of two seniors, one graduate student, one faculty member, and the Chairman of the Commencement Committee. Being chosen to speak at Commencement is a unique achievement and high honor. The Committee joins me in urging all who are interested to apply," said Dean Sadler, Committee Chairman.

For further information, please contact the Office of the Dean of Students, James Blair 211, ext. 4387.

ROTC Interviewing

The Department of Military Science is now interviewing students interested in the two-year Army ROTC program.

The program is intended for all students who have not previously participated in campus military science instruction, and have at least two years of college remaining. A student may qualify for the final two years of Army ROTC and the possibility of receiving an Army officer commission upon graduation, by attending a six-week ROTC basic camp this summer. Those attending will earn approximately $400 plus travel expenses and will have an opportunity to compete for a full two-year ROTC scholarship.

William and Mary students incur no military service obligations by attending any one of the six different summer camps.

Interested students should contact Captain Burton or Captain Lombard at the ROTC military science department, Room 1, Blow Gym, exts. 4366 and 4368, for additional information.

St. David's Day

Members of the Celtic fringe are invited to meet in the Wren courtyard beside the South outhouse to celebrate St. David's Day next Thursday, March 1, at 4 p.m.

A brief program of Welsh songs and poetry is planned. St. David is the patron saint of Wales. For information call 253-4047.

Anne Dobie Peebles

Board Elects Peebles Rector

As the result of Board of Visitors meetings Feb. 22-23, the College has its first woman rector, Anne Dobie Peebles, a new Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, Melvyn D. Schiavelli, professor of chemistry, and a dental plan for faculty and some administrators.

Melvyn Schiavelli

Miss Peebles of Carson, near Petersburg, has been assistant rector of the board for two years. She was first appointed to the board in 1974.

Being the first is not a unique experience for Miss Peebles. She was the first woman chairman of the State Board of Education in Virginia from 1969-70. She served on that board from 1962-70 and was named Unsung Virginian by the Virginia Association of Electric Cooperatives for her contributions to the community in 1975. She has served as president of the John Tyler Community College Board and president of the Richard Bland College Foundation. Currently she is an administrative assistant to State Senator Elmon T. Gray of Waverly. Miss Peebles is an alumna of the College, class of 1944.

In other board elections, Jerry K. Jebo of Radford, a graduate of 1967, was elected vice rector and Henry T. Tucker, Jr., of Chicago, a 1972 graduate, was elected Secretary of the Board, becoming the first black in the College's history to hold an executive position on the board.

Schiavelli, 41, the new Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences, will serve as

A National Conference on Developments in State Constitutional Law, drawing more than a hundred jurists from states as far away as California and Oregon, will be held at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law March 9-10. The conference is jointly sponsored by the law school, the National Center for State Courts and the Conference of Chief Justices. Its aim is to focus judicial attention on the expanding role of state, as distinguished from federal, constitutional law.

Welcoming addresses will be given by Dean William B. Spong, Jr.; Edward B. McConnell, executive director of the National Center for State Courts, and Chief Justice Ralph J. Erickstad of North Dakota, current chairman of the Conference of Chief Justices. The keynote panel which follows will be moderated by Chief Justice Edward F. Hennessey of Massachusetts and will provide papers by William F. Swindler, John F. Marshall professor of law emeritus at William and Mary; Professor A.E. Dick Howard of the University of Virginia, Justice Stanley Mosk of California and Professor Donald E. Wilkes of the University of Georgia.

Other speakers on the principles and practice of state constitutional law will include Justices Hans A. Linde of Oregon, Robert F. Utter of Washington, Stewart Pollock of New Jersey and Samuel J. Roberts of Pennsylvania. Other speakers will be Larry L. Sipes, director of the Western regional office of the National Center for State Courts in Denver; Ronald K.L. Library Receives Dictionary

Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Hempel of Annandale, Va. recently gave to Swem Library a first edition of Samuel Johnson's DICTIONARY OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE (London, 1755). The two volume work is dedicated to Jess Jackson, chairman of the College English Department, 1929-1957, a mentor of Robert C. Hempel. The folio set has been restored by the local bookbinder H.B. Frazier, Jr., as part of the Hempel gift.

Samuel Johnson's DICTIONARY is a landmark in lexicography, being the work of one man in less than ten years. Noah Webster commented: "Johnson's writings had, in philology, the effect which Newton's discoveries had on mathematics." Its greatest followers were Webster's Dictionary and the Oxford English Dictionary. Despite the progress made in philology, Johnson's DICTIONARY may still be consulted for instruction as well as pleasure.

SPCA Seeks Food

The Williamsburg Area SPCA February food drive closes this week. Area groceries, veterinarian clinics, churches and businesses have set out containers to receive "Have a Heart" donations of dog and cat food. The Bookstore on Jamestown Road has a drop-off container close to the check-out counters.

Deborah Fuqua of the SPCA which serves the counties of James City and York as well as Williamsburg, had a 15 percent increase in the number of animals brought to the shelter. The Shelter must rely heavily on donations of canned or dry dog or cat food to meet the nutritional needs of the animals. Last year 707 dogs and 772 cats were brought to the Shelter.

Browne Offers Unusual Course For Office of Special Programs

By Robert Jeffry, Jr.
Assistant Director, OSP

Why do some athletes suffer from the phenomenon known as "burn out"?

How can exercise help you sleep better, get over depression, and cope with stress?

Do some parents push their children too hard in youth athletics?

These are just a few of the issues in the wide-ranging and rapidly expanding field of sports psychology, and form the subject of a new course, "The Psychology of Sports and Exercise," taught by Dr. Margaret Browne. The non-credit course is sponsored by the Office of Special Programs, and begins March 15.

Sports psychology, long a serious field of study in Eastern Europe, is now coming into its own in the United States. "It's an exciting time," says Dr. Browne. "American sports are just beginning to benefit."

Various academic disciplines, such as nutrition, health, education, as well as psychology and phys. ed., are combined, resulting in what Dr. Browne calls "a holistic approach." She emphasizes that sports psychology has practical applications for everyday situations for the non-athlete. "What we're teaching athletes is exactly the same thing that's being taught in stress management. Healthy processes are being looked at under a microscope in sports," she says.

One interesting phenomenon is burn-out, a state of mind in which a highly motivated individual experiences dissatisfaction due to overexposure to a certain activity, whether athletic or occupational. "It usually happens to a very hard-driving, very giving sort of person," Dr. Browne says. "The same process that happens to athletes occurs in teachers, nurses, in any profession." If recognized, this depressing condition can be halted before it progresses too far, Dr. Browne says.

On the positive side, there is the exhilaration of what Browne calls "peak performance," an almost trance-like state experienced when an athlete achieves the maximum level of performance. "It's like a kind of flow," she says.

Pain and fatigue fade, self-confidence runs high, and concentration intensifies. Baseball batters on a hitting streak report that the ball looks as big as a grapefruit, and to basketball players, the basket appears huge and inviting. Learning to induce this condition is one of the goals of sports psychology. "It's not beyond our control," Dr. Browne says.

As chief psychologist for the public school system in San Antonio, Texas, for two years, Browne gained insight into the effect of athletic competition on children, a topic of much concern in sports psychology. "There are no easy answers," she says. "Our goal is to raise the questions."

Dr. Browne developed her ideas over the period of a year's intensive study of athletes, coaches, and phys. ed. instructors at Penn. State University, and is currently writing a book on the subject. She enjoys participating in sports herself, especially tennis and running.

Thomas Field

Field Recital

Thomas Field will present a senior piano recital at 8:15 p.m., Thursday, March 1 in the Williamsburg Regional Library Arts Center Theatre.

His program will include two sonatas by Scalatti; Sonata in f minor, Op. 2, no. 1 by Beethoven; three rondos on Hungarian folk tunes by Batok; Fantasia in c minor, K 396 by Mozart, and two works by Chopin, Berceuse, Op. 57 and Ballade in g minor, Op. 23.

Field, a music major, is currently studying with Vera Lendvay of the music faculty of the College. He has also studied with Juliet Shaw in Connecticut, Christopher Kypros at William and Mary, and Mary Norris at the Aspen Summer Music School.

He is the recipient of the Aurelia Walford and William Vose Bembov memorial music scholarships.

In addition to playing the piano, Field has studied composition and conducting and has recently conducted performances by the Backdrop Theatre and the Sinfonicon Opera Company. He is a member of the William and Mary College-Community Orchestra.

The first impression you get of Mark Conradi, assistant professor of physics, is that he is a man who is enjoying himself. "Come into the lab and let me show you our toys," he says, the choice of words no accident. It's clear that for Conradi, the lab is where physics comes alive for him and his students.

Conradi 32, was recently named the 1984 recipient of the College's Thomas Jefferson Teaching Award, made annually to a younger faculty member "who has demonstrated, through concern as a teacher, through character and influence, the inspiration and stimulation of learning to the betterment of the individual."

After only a few minutes with Conradi, it becomes obvious that students are a major part of his life's work. He points with pride to published articles on research done with Lee Richter, class of 1981, and Kevin Nary, class of 1982, both of whom were undergraduates studying with Conradi when they made substantial contributions to physics scholarship.

"In this department, there is a strong emphasis on getting undergraduates involved in research," says Conradi. "One of the specified graduation requirements is that students do a research project. Of course, some students regard this as a burden, but others come alive. They see the classroom experience as only the beginning of learning, and they turn their projects into something worthwhile."

Conradi says that Richter and Nary, "two students who did published work in first-rate journals," are evidence of the department's commitment to the undergraduate. "Because we have a graduate program, it could be tempting to let the undergraduates stay in the classroom," he says. "It's great to show undergraduates that they, too, can contribute, that they can cross the barrier, in some sense, between the known and the unknown."

Conradi's research centers around the study of molecular motions in solids. "A usual assumption is that molecules in a solid are in a dead or static configuration," Conradi says. "That assumption turns out to be wrong."

For instance, the molecules in various plastics move about, and Conradi surmises that the molecule movement has a lot to do with flexibility and impact resistance of various materials.

Learning more about the molecular properties of plastics could be helpful in developing new impact resistant materials for something as practical as the wing of an airplane. "But we also look at things that seemingly have no practical application," Conradi adds. "We look at simple solids, such as nitrogen or carbon dioxide. We then try to identify the way the molecules reorient and move throughout the crystal."

His work is supported by an Alfred P. Sloan Research Fellowship and a grant from the Jeffress Memorial Trust.

A native of St. Louis who received his B.S. and Ph.D. from Washington University, Conradi describes himself as "an obnoxious kid" whose chemist father taught him intellectual independence at an early age.

"His real love was electronics," says Conradi. When his father would explain some electronic or mechanical process, Conradi would often question it. "But instead of saying, 'This is the way it is,' he would say, 'Think!' and eventually show me where I was wrong," Conradi recalls.

He believes that intellectual independence is essential to the study of physics, but admits "it's awfully hard. When you come into the program, you know which courses you have to take. There is a feeling of 'How can I even hope to understand what's gone on before, much less do something on my own?' It's very tempting just to learn what the great masters tell you."

Research, on the other hand, gives students an opportunity to test their intellectual creativity. "Although there is an answer out there in the sense that 'God knows the answer,' or 'an answer exists somewhere,' we don't know it and there's nobody we can turn to to find it," says Conradi. "That's why we do research."

It is that delight with the unknown that makes Conradi happy as a scientist, as a teacher. "I look back on the people who taught me how to teach," he says, remembering the professor who guided his Ph.D. dissertation at Washington University. "He used to be dripping with sweat at the end of an hour-and-a-half lecture."

"One thing he could convey, though, was that although he had taught a concept many times before, it was still exciting to him. That stuck," says Conradi.

He wonders what he will do ten years from now to keep his work exciting, admitting, "I haven't figured that out yet." Then, as if answering his own question, he adds, "I'm an experimentalist. Of course when you do experiment you are guided by theory. But when students ask me to predict the outcome of an experiment, I almost always guess wrong."

Ironically, that fact seems to please Conradi. "It's still a fairly amazing universe," he says with a smile. "If it weren't, I'd get the answer right at least some of the time."

F. Donald Truesdell

Faculty Recital Set By Donald Truesdell

F. Donald Truesdell, professor of music, will present his annual faculty piano recital Monday, March 12 at 8:15 p.m., at Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

Three piano sonatas dating from about the middle of the twentieth century will be programmed including Norman Dello Joio's Sonata No. 3, Samuel Barber's Sonata, Op. 26, and Albert Ginastera's first sonata. An interesting blend of stylized folk song melody, syncopated jazz rhythms, blues, Gregorian chant are organized according to formal patterns and procedures of the past in these works.

Truesdell received degrees in composition, theory, and piano from the University of Michigan. His doctorate was earned at the Eastman School of Music. In 1960, he was appointed Chairman of the music department and continued in that position until 1973. His primary teaching responsibilities have been in the advanced areas of music literature and theory.

Truesdell has been active in professional organizations throughout his career, having read papers at both state and national conventions. He served as president of the Virginia Music Teachers Association from 1969 to 1973 and is a member of the National Music Teachers Association, the American Musicological Society, the College Music Society, and the Sonneck Society. He is a life member of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia music fraternity and was elected in 1951 to the national music honor society, Pi Kappa Lambda.

head of the largest of the College's five schools. He replaces Jack Edwards, professor of government, who has been acting dean since last summer, filling the vacancy left by the resignation of Zeddie P. Bowen who is now vice president and provost at the University of Richmond. Edwards had served as dean from 1974 to 1981.

The Board authorized the implementation of a recommended Blue Cross-Blue Shield of Virginia dental plan for the contracted faculty and faculty equivalent employees of the College and VIMS.

The plan would cover persons in faculty and faculty equivalent positions who are eligible for normal state benefits. Currently, approximately 490 such faculty would be covered. At a rate of $8.46 per month, the total annual premium to cover these 490 faculty would be $49,744.80. The Board authorized an adjustment in the 1983-84 unrestricted private funds budget of $16,581.60 to cover the first four months premiums for this dental plan.

The plan provides a range of options for covering 50 to 80 percent of dental costs. In addition, there is a $25 deductible clause for some options. There is an annual maximum of $1,000 in individual coverage. Term of the present contract would begin March 1 and continue for one year.

A native of Petersburg, Va., Zimmer has also been a leader in education, serving as rector of the University of Virginia from 1976-1980, and as a member and chairman of the State Council of Higher Education. Zimmer was also president and chairman in 1971 of the Board of the Governor's Management Study, Inc., which conducted a study of Virginia's state government.

Zimmer is also a director of the Communications Satellite Corp. of Washington, D.C. and a director of Sovran Bank, N.A., of Richmond. He served as associate partner and counsel to McGuire, Woods & Battle of Richmond from 1938-62 and 1978-82.

He is an alumnus of the University of Virginia, receiving his bachelor's degree in 1935 and law degree in 1937.

Lawrence Cremin, 58, has been a member of the Teachers College faculty since 1949 and a member of the Columbia University Department of History since 1961. He served as chairman of the Teachers College Department of Philosophy and the Social Sciences from 1958-74, and as director of the College's Institution of Philosophy and Politics of Education from 1965-74.

In addition to serving as president, Cremin is also the Frederick A.P. Barnard Professor of Education at Teachers College.

A historian and interpreter of education, Cremin has written numerous books, the most notable entitled "The Transformation of the School," a recent history of the progressive education movement in the United States. He is currently at work on a comprehensive history of American education, the first volume of which was published in 1970 under the title, "American Education: The Colonial Experience."

Cremin has taught at Harvard University, Stanford University, the University of Wisconsin, the University of California at Los Angeles, the Bank Street College of Education, and the Seminar in American Studies at Salzburg, Austria.

A native of New York City, Cremin received his master's and doctorate degrees from Columbia.

The Rev. Drinan was a member of the U.S. House of Representatives from 1971 to 1981, where he served on the House committees on the Judiciary (1971-81), Internal Security (1971-74), and Government Operations (1975-81), and House Select Committee on Aging (1977-81). Drinan was also chairman of the Subcommittee on Criminal Justice of the House Judiciary Committee from 1971-81.

Before his election to Congress, Drinan was dean and professor of law, Boston College Law School, Newton, Mass., from 1959-70. His fields of academic speciality include international human rights, constitutional law, civil liberties, legislation and arms control.

Drinan, a Jesuit priest, is the author of "Honor the Promise: America's Commitment to Israel" (1977); "Vietnam and Armageddon" (1970); "Democracy, Dissent and Disorder" (1969); and "Religion, the Courts and Public Policy" (1963).

Minchinton Talk March 21 in CC

Walter E. Minchinton, professor of economic history at Exeter University in England, will give a public lecture at 4 p.m., Wednesday, March 21, entitled "New Light on the Colonial Virginia Slave Trade," at the Campus Center Little Theatre.

Minchinton will discuss his work in locating and editing an important body of additional documentary evidence on the colonial Virginia slave trade and also address the broader significance of his findings for the history of blacks in early Virginia.

His lecture is co-sponsored by the Institute of Early American History and Culture and the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation.

Police Officer Awarded Honor

Katherine A. Yates, a College police officer, has been named to the list of Outstanding Young Women in America today. This is a yearly listing of women who have been cited for their accomplishments in their chosen careers and public service.

Katherine Yates

Yates has been a member of the William and Mary Police Department since August, 1980. She joined the College staff in 1976 and completed assignments in the Plant Department office, the President's Office and the Office of the Director of Internal Auditing.

After field training in Fredericksburg with the Virginia State Police and schooling at the State Police Academy, Yates returned to the Tidewater area and joined the College Police Department. She has also trained at the Virginia Criminal Justice Commission Academy at Virginia Commonwealth University.

A graduate of Denbigh High School, Yates is the daughter of Mrs. Virginia Yelland of Newport News and the late Maj. (Ret.) Wilford J. Yelland. She attended Hampton Roads Business College for two years and has also taken courses at the College and Thomas Nelson Community College.

A member of Trinity United Methodist Church in Newport News, Yates has sung in the choir, been a member of the administrative board and worked with the youth group of the church. She has also been a member of the American Legion Auxiliary, Scottish Rite and has worked as a Red Cross volunteer.

Yates has tried a variety of different jobs but likes police work because it takes her off a static office routine and enables her to meet a variety of people and encounter situations each day. The visits of important people to campus and such events as the Summit of Industrialized Nations, which was held here last year, all involve the Campus Police and make her job a very interesting one. Although members of the Campus Police have full powers of arrest, much of their work is handled with administrators rather than through the legal system.

Intern Catalogue

The Office of Career Planning has received a booklet from the American Chemical Society entitled Internships for Chemistry and Chemical Engineering Students. The booklet contains listings of internship programs which chemistry students may find valuable in preparing for a career or expanding academic experiences. Students are encouraged to stop by the Office of Career Planning, 140 Morton Hall, to look through this booklet, located on the Summer Job shelf in the Career Planning Library.

"L'Heure des Blagueurs"

The French House will host its weekly conversation/snack hour this Thursday, from 4:30 to 5:30. Come practice your French and munch out!

Officer Yates makes her home in Williamsburg with Officer Yates. She is the wife of Charles H. Yates, also a member of the Campus Police. They were married December, 1981.

School Interviews

Students should sign up for interviews in the Office of Educational Placement, Jones 305.

Credential papers must be on file in order for students to be interviewed.

Credential forms for setting up a file may be obtained in the Office of Educational Placement. This is not an automatic procedure; students must obtain the forms, fill them out and return them to the office. Students are also responsible for seeing that recommendations are also returned to the office.

Listed below are the school systems interviewing on campus during the month of March.

BALSAs Plans March Meeting

BALSAs, the Black Law Student Association, is headed this year by Valerie Warner of Danville, a second year law student who plans to practice law in the public sector and work for a legal aid organization or a government agency.

Warner is a 1975 graduate of Virginia Commonwealth University where she earned a degree in elementary education. She taught five years in District of Columbia public schools and before enrolling in law school she worked as a paralegal for the Virginia Legal Aid Society in Danville, Va.

Warner did some teaching for the adult education division of the Norfolk public schools but when funding became a problem, she had to look for another career option. At one point, she says, she had a job as a bartender. Throughout her job switches, Warner says she had maintained an interest in the law and after working in Danville decided to go to law school.

It is a lot of hard work, she says, but admits that part of the problem last year was the fear of anticipation that she brought with her. Things are easier for Warner this year because her sister is taking care of her young son. As well as her duties with BALSAs, Warner is a member of Phi Alpha Delta legal fraternity and Mary and William's Women's Law Society.

BALSAs, explains Warner, provides a support system for black students. It has a buddy system for first year black students to help smooth the way both academically and socially. The Organization keeps a file of tests and outlines and books for incoming students. It also helps sponsor speakers.

Currently Warner and BALSAs members are planning for a one-day conference, March 24, on the status of blacks in the political process.

Law Program Seeks Jurors

Have you ever wondered what it would feel like to:

- be on trial for murder?
- fight in court to receive your rightful inheritance?
- testify to the horrible collision you saw at a dangerous railroad crossing?

Volunteer to be a witness for Trial Advocacy mock trials at the College of William and Mary Law School, and you can have that experience without facing the legal consequences! In the alternative, if you prefer to sit back and watch the battle rage as budding young trial attorneys use all their legal skills to protect their clients' interests, you can volunteer to be a juror at the mock trials.

The goal of the mock trials is to provide students practical experience in order to produce better, more competent attorneys. The experience allows student attorneys an opportunity to try their first cases before real judges while giving volunteers a chance to get a taste of the world of trial work.

Witnesses will be given a set of facts to learn. A student-lawyer will then call and arrange an interview and prepare the witness for trial, which will take place one weekday afternoon in April. Jurors will listen to the testimony of the witnesses at trial and reach a verdict. Mock trials will be held Monday through Friday afternoons from 1-6 p.m. in the law school's Moot Court Room, beginning March 30.

Anyone interested in participating should contact Professor Lederer or his assistants, Mike Walsh and Victoria Huber, at the law school for information and scheduling. Please call ext. 4018 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Marion King

Marion L. King, Jr., purchase and storekeeper supervisor at VIMS was recently awarded the designation of Professional Public Buyer (PPB) by the Universal Public Purchasing Certification Council.

Award Presentation

Erin Sheehey, a senior from Penfield, N.Y., a six-time All-American in swimming and an All-State soccer player, receives the Olympia Award from Tom McLeod of the Southland Corporation (7-Eleven Stores) which sponsors the program. Sanctioned by the U.S. Olympic Committee, the award recognizes achievement and contributions of athletes in 31 olympic sports. Sheehey is captain of both the swimming and soccer teams and maintains a "B" average. Presentation was made earlier this month at a reception and dinner held in Williamsburg.

Women, Law And Medicine Conference Set

Women's health and related legal issues will be the subject of a day-long conference on Women, Law, and Medicine presented by the Mary & William Women's Law Society on Saturday, March 17, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law.

Norma Swenson, a leading activist in the women's health movement and co-author of the book, Our Bodies, Ourselves, will deliver the keynote address. Conference goers may attend three of six workshops which will be presented. The conference is co-sponsored by the American Bar Association's Law Student Division.

A workshop on "Artificial Insemination and Surrogate Motherhood" will be led by Boston attorney Holly D. Ladd and Associate Dean of the T.C. Williams School of Law in Richmond, Margaret Lane. "Family Violence: The Medical-Legal Interface" will be presented by two professionals in the field. Willafay McKenna, Managing Attorney of the Peninsula Legal Aid Center in Williamsburg and Dr. Steve Cummings of the Williamsburg Community Hospital.

"Pregnancy and Employment" will be discussed by Claudia Withers, Staff Attorney at the Women's Legal Defense Fund in Washington, D.C. Gayle Lewis, an attorney specializing in medical malpractice in Philadelphia and Williamsburg Obstetrician-Gynecologist Camilla Buchanan, M.D., will speak on "Unnecessary Medical Care and Surgery."

"Nurse Midwives" will be the topic of the workshop led by Sally Austen Tom, Government Liaison with the American College of Nurse Midwives in Washington, D.C. "The Challenge to Legalized Abortion" is the subject of the last workshop to be presented. Ben Greenberg, Executive Director of the Association of Virginia Planned Parenthood Affiliates, will speak along with additional panelists to be announced.

Registration fees the day of the conference are $5 for students, senior citizens, and the unemployed; $8 for all others. Pre-paid preregistration is $1 less.

Free childcare will be provided for those who preregister. For a brochure or further information, telephone 220-1773 (evenings) or 220-1681, or write Conference, c/o E. Radgord, 1502 Conway Drive No. 204, Williamsburg, VA 23185.

Personnel Offers Courses In March

The Personnel Office is sponsoring two workshops during the month of March for all interested employees of the College and VIMS.

The first workshop, entitled "Effective Listening Skills," will be held March 5-6 in the Sit 'n Bull of the Campus Center. Participants will learn to understand the value of feedback; guard against biased judgments, stereotyping, and emotional barriers that inhibit effective listening; demonstrate an increased sensitivity to nonverbal communication; and to cut through distracting elements to get at the critical content of the spoken statement.

On March 8-9, "Fundamentals for Supervisors" will be held in the Sit 'n Bull Room of the Campus Center. Topics to be discussed will include communication, motivation, conflict resolution, and leadership style.

The cost for each workshop is $10 per participant. Class will convene at 9 a.m. each day and dismiss at 4:30 p.m.

For further information and registration, interested individuals should contact Charla Cordle in the Personnel Office at x4045. Early registration is encouraged as space is limited.

The French Army

Colonel Burel of the French Army will speak at the French House on Wednesday, Feb. 29, at 8 p.m. He will show a short video on the French army, and speak about French military capacity. The video will be in English and his lecture will be in French. All welcome!

Festival Seeks Two Vocalists

The Virginia Shakespeare Festival is still looking for two vocalists to complete its recently formed Early Music Consort.

Anyone with trained tenor or soprano voice, with good sight-reading capability, is encouraged to apply to this professional ensemble as soon as possible. Rehearsals are now underway for a concert scheduled for May 11, and for the Festival's spring Elizabethan Feast in April.

For information and audition, please call Donna Della Rocca, musical director, at 253-0352.

Republicans Cited For 'Chapter Work

The William and Mary chapter of College Republicans has been named the Best Large Club in Virginia.

The award was made last week-end at the annual state convention held in Lynchburg.

Kevin Gentry was elected state corresponding secretary and also voted CRFV's Man of the Year. The William and Mary scrapbook, compiled by Kathy Patten and Beth Loudy took first place in that division. Beth was chosen as the College Republican representative from Virginia's First Congressional District. The William and Mary delegation was led by chairman Mark Hall.

The College Republicans on campus are actively campaigning for local, state and national candidates, working at the polls and hosting guest speakers. Meetings are held every Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Campus Center Sit 'n Bull room. Membership is over 300.

Subject: Meal Reimbursements to be Reported as Taxable Income

Reference my memo of January 31, 1984, same subject.

Further clarification appears necessary as to how to indicate on the reimbursement voucher that a claimed meal was for business purposes and not reportable as taxable income. A brief explanation should be included specifically stating that the meal was a business function. Also, in order to provide official documentation for use should the IRS audit you, include the names and titles of those present as well as the business purpose, i.e., interview, recruiting, etc.

The yellow copy of the reimbursement voucher will be returned to you at the time of payment. This form should be retained with your other tax information in order to answer any future questions which may be asked concerning the payment.

If you have any questions, please call Lee W. Martin on extension 4221 or myself on extension 4211.

Prompt Payment of State Invoices

Commonwealth directives as well as good cash management policies require the prompt processing and transmittal of all disbursement documents to the State Comptroller's Office for payment when due.

In order to assure that invoices are paid when due, all State Agencies are required to complete the preparation and processing, and transmit them to arrive in time to allow the Department of the Treasury seven working days for their processing. In order to process State invoices through the College Financial Accounting System, prepare the other reports required by DOA to accompany the invoices, and allow the Central Agencies in Richmond the required processing time, we must have the invoices in the General Accounting Office-Accounts Payable no later than the 15th calendar day from the receipt of the vendor's invoice or receipt of the goods or services requested.

It is recommended that departments assign a high priority to the processing of invoices for payment to vendors. In order to provide an audit trail, departments should date stamp the vendor's invoice upon receipt and prepare receiving reports immediately upon the arrival of the goods or completion of the services requested.

These actions are required in order to insure that payments are made when due thereby avoiding the penalty of paying interest to vendors for late payment. Also, the documentation necessary to backup the payment process will be available for audit. If you have any questions, please call Lee W. Martin on extension 4221 or myself on extension 4211.
