For Want Of...

Awards May Go Begging

For the lack of entries, two journalism awards may go begging this year.

The deadline for entries for the Rex Smith Award and the Charles McDowell-Kays Gary Award is April 20. To date, none have been received. Both prizes carry monetary awards.

The Rex Smith Award was established in 1960 by friends of the distinguished alumnus of the College. A prize is presented annually to a student who demonstrates academic achievement, journalistic competence, choice of journalism as a career, and participating in the publication activities of the College.

The Charles McDowell-Kays Gary Award is made possible from the earnings of a fund established by Wilford Kale, an alumnus of the College and bureau chief of the Richmond Times-Dispatch in Williamsburg. This award is intended to honor excellence in journalistic writing at the College.

At least three but not more than five samples of work should be submitted with a short biographical sketch for committee consideration.

Entries should be delivered to the William and Mary News Office, 310 James Blair, by 5 p.m., April 20. For further information please call the News office at ext. 4331.

Festival Feasts Begin April 29

Back by popular demand, the sumptuous Elizabethan Feasts which have been a gourmet's delight in the past, will again be a part of the Virginia Shakespeare Festival at the College of William and Mary which opens its 1984 season, July 5.

The first feast will be held at 7 p.m., Sunday, April 29, in the Great Hall of the Wren Building on campus.

Tickets are $30 per person and may be obtained by calling the Festival office in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall, ext. 4377.

The authentic Elizabethan menu for the feast has been researched and designed by Sally Gray. Miss Gray is the circulation librarian at the Williamsburg Regional Library and an authority on cookbooks and cookbook history in the United States. Items selected for the April 29 feast will include Capon with Colle-flowres, Minst Pie, Lemon Whyt, and a Dyscheful of Snow.

Entertainment for the evening will be provided by the Early Music Consort of the Festival.

Feasts are also scheduled on July 22 and 29, and August 5 and 12.

Reservations for the performances of the festival which this year will include "Hamlet," "Measure for Measure," "Midsummer Night's Dream," and "Equus," are available at the Festival Office in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

Olde Guard Day

A sunny spring day added to the pleasure of graduates who came back to campus for the annual Old Guard Day program. Members of the Olde Guard are graduates of 50 years or more. Among the returnees this year were former President Davis Y. Paschall and Mrs. Paschall.

Harris Named First Haserot Professor In Philosophy

James F. Harris, Jr., has been named the first Francis S. Haserot Professor of Philosophy for the 1984-85 academic year. This newly endowed position in the College's Department of Philosophy was made possible by a gift of $200,000 last year by Dr. Francis S. Haserot, a former member of the department.

Harris came to the College ten years ago as an associate professor and became a professor in 1980. A native of Nashville, Tenn., he completed undergraduate and masters' studies at the University of Georgia, and received his Ph.D. at Vanderbilt University. He has had a distinguished career in philosophy, serving twice as a visiting scholar at Oxford University, and receiving six research grants from William and Mary and two grants from other organizations.

Harris has edited a book, Analyticity, and has written over twenty articles published in both foreign and domestic journals. He has also presented numerous papers around the country. Dr. Harris teaches courses in epistemology, the philosophy of language, contemporary analytic philosophy, and symbolic logic.

Francis Haserot began his career at William and Mary in 1936 as an instructor in philosophy and became an associate professor before resigning in 1947 to pursue independent scholarly projects. He received his Ph.D. from Harvard University after earlier studies at Columbia University and the University of Pennsylvania.

Before his death last fall, Haserot, in correspondence with President Graves, said he was pleased that his philosophy of investments had blended with his studies in formal logic and essential value-theory

New Schedule By Colonial Echo

For this first time this year, the yearbook, The Colonial Echo, will not be distributed until fall. Graduating seniors will be given an opportunity to be put on a mailing list to receive them. They will be packaged and sent C.O.D. The charge is estimated at $2.

Mark Beavers, Echo editor, explains that the decision to make a fall delivery was made last year and approved by the Publications Council. The new schedule, and enabled him to provide a substantial and enduring gift to the College.

The gift was to honor former William and Mary Presidents John Stewart Bryan and Alvin Duke Chandler.

he says, provides an opportunity to include the entire year's activities, spring sports, spring concerts and commencement, in the yearbook.

Beavers said he has always wanted to do a fall book even though it means that he and some of his staff will have to stay after school closes to get the book to the printers.

The yearbook will be distributed on campus around Sept. 2.

Jones of British TV Visiting Campus

Barry Jones, lecturer in politics at University College, Cardiff, Wales, and a leading British TV personality, will speak on "Public Media - Private Information: A Comparison of British and American Television Policies and Practices," at 3:30 p.m., Wednesday, April 18, in Morton room 341.

Jones will speak to the government department colloquium on Tuesday, April 17 at 3:30 p.m. in Morton 4 on the future of the British Labour Party.

Jones' visit to campus is being sponsored by the government department, the department of theatre and speech and the Society for Collegiate Journalists.

NEWSMAKERS

Keith Miller of the computer science department has been awarded a NASA/ASEE summer fellowship. Miller, who joined the faculty this fall, will be working in the area of image processing and computer vision at NASA Langley Research Center.

Ismail H. Abdalla of the history department, has just returned from attending two major international conferences on Islam in Africa; the first on the 'Role of the Ulama in Africa' held in Northwestern University between March 2-31, the second on 'Popular Islam in Africa' held at the University of Illinois between April 2-3. Abdalla presented a paper in the first conference on the medical contribution of the Ulama of Sokoto, Nigeria. Abdalla has also published an article about the medicine of the Prophet Muhammad in the last issue of Al-Hakim; the journal of the School of Medicine, University of Khartoum, while his article on the ecological change in Western Sudan will appear in the Northeast African Studies Journal of the Michigan State University, 6, 3 (1984-5).

At the recent annual meeting of the Virginia Social Science Association held at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville, Mario D. Zamora, professor of anthropology, organized and chaired the session on Anthropology and Ethnohistory; the following read papers in this session: Vinson H. Sutlive, Jr., professor of anthropology, "Anthropologists and Missionaries: Relatives or Relativism?" Eric O. Ayisi, associate professor of anthropology, "The Social Structure of a Small Community: St. Eustatius (The Netherlands Antilles);" Zamora, "Innovation and Response: Languages in Colonial and Free Philippines;" and Chung-Shen Chang, visiting assistant professor of history, "The 1862-63 Rebel Zamora recently accepted to serve as a member of the advisory council of Southeast Asian Perspectives, a journal published by Utkal University, Orissa, India, and as a member of the international editorial advisory board of the Journal of Social Studies, University of Nigeria, Nsukka, Nigeria. His paper (with Raquel M. German) entitled "Innovation and Response: Project Creative in Anthropology at an American University" was published in the Winter, 1984 issue of the Virginia Social Science Journal.

From May 1-10 Robert Maidment, School of Education, will serve as a member of an accrediting team visiting schools in Montevideo, Uruguay and Sao Paulo, Brazil. The accreditation visits are sponsored by the Southern Association of Colleges & Schools, Atlanta.

Clyde Haulman of the department of economics has recently been informed that his book, U.S. Employment and Training Programs, co-authored with F.A. Raffa and D.J. Hosni and published by Greenwood Press in March 1983, has been selected by Choice, the review journal of the Association of College and Research Libraries, as a 1983 Outstanding Academic Book. This award is presented to about five percent of the more than 6,000 titles reviewed during the year.

Haulman's article, "Utilizing Economic Experts," which appeared in the January 1984 issue of Trial, the journal of the American Trial Lawyers Association, has been selected for inclusion in the Personal Injury Deskbook published by Matthew Bender. The Deskbook is a collection of what Matthew Bender, a major publisher of legal books, believes to be the best legal writing published in the personal injury field.

Gary C. DeFotis, assistant professor of chemistry, attended the national meeting of the American Chemical Society in St. Louis, April 9-11. He chaired a general session in Theoretical Inorganic and magnetically Coupled Systems, and presented two papers: Magnetic Anisotropy in Single Crystal Cobalt thiocyanate dipropanol, with undergraduate coauthor Charles K. Barlowe; and Magnetic Properties of Halobis (diethylselenocarbamate)-iron (III): Anisotropy, Interactions and 3D-XY Ferromagnetism, with undergraduate coauthor Brian K. Failon and collaborators at Oregon State University.

George C. Grant, senior research chemist at the Research Campus, Newport News, presented a paper March 7 at the Pittsburgh Conference on Analytical Chemistry and Spectroscopy in Atlantic City, NJ. The Paper, entitled "Automated data acquisition for graphite furnace atomic absorption spectrophotometry using a microcomputer," was co-authored by Eileen A. Dowds, an M.A. candidate in the chemistry department.

Franz Gross, professor of physics, has been asked to give an invited talk on April 23 at the National meetings of the American Physical Society to be held in Washington, D.C. His talk, "Physics with 4 GeV Electrons," will describe the physics program planned for the CEBAF project, the 4 GeV electron accelerator to be built at the VARC/SREL site in Newport News. He has been invited to give colloquia or seminars on the same subject recently at Brown University (April 16), Rutgers (April 4), MIT (March 20) and VPI&SU (January 26).

In May, Dr. Gross will go to Hannover, West Germany for three weeks to collaborate on a research program on the Relativistic Three Nucleon Problem. This is a continuation of a collaboration started last fall, when he spent the months of November and December at the same institute in Hannover getting the program started. Travel expenses for this research are supported by a special NATO grant.

State Offering Trainee Jobs

The Office of Placement has received copies of the Office of Personnel Management Announcement Number 455, which provides information regarding GS-5 and 7 positions as fisheries, biologist, microbiologist, general biologist and wildlife biologist.

Copies of this announcement are located on the Government Information Shelf and in the Government Announcement Notebook in the Career Library in Morton 140.

Busch Gardens Discount Tickets

The Old Country, Busch Gardens, is offering one-day discount tickets good during the 1984 season to employees of the College of William and Mary, the Virginia Institute of Marine Science, and the Virginia Associated Research Campus.

William and Mary and VARC employees may obtain their tickets from the Personnel Office in James Blair Hall. VIMS employees may obtain their tickets from Anna Fisher in the Business Office. The cost per ticket is $11.00 ($2.95 off regular admission price). Only cash will be accepted. This ticket may be used for a one-day admission during the 1984 season.

Education Students Honored

Two School of Education students were recently honored for their work in the fields of special education and education administration.

Robert F. Richardson, Jr., a doctoral student in the special education administration, has been selected as one of 35 doctoral students throughout the United States to attend the American Educational Research Association's National Graduate Student Research seminar on Educational Administration which will be held in conjunction with the annual meeting of the American Educational Research Association in New Orleans, April 21-23.

Patrick Nealon, who received a doctorate in educational administration with emphasis on special education in 1983, was one of nine presentors at a conference, April 9-10, honoring promising doctoral research in the field of special education held at Virginia Tech and sponsored by the University's School of Education.

Second Season Producers

Student directors for "Second Season" are, from left, Nancy Summers, B. Keith Ryder, Deborah Niezgoda, Henry McCoy, and Lisa Middleton. Ms. Middleton recently completed a senior directorial project of Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit." Second Season productions will be presented on the following schedule: "The Romancers" and "Medea," April 19; "The Romancers," and "Scooter Thomas," April 20; and "Scooter Thomas," and "Medea," April 21. Reservations are not required, but seating is limited. There is no admission charge. For further information, call ext. 4395.

Alumni To Hear Lowry, Ripple

The Charlottesville-Highland Chapter of the Society of the Alumni will celebrate James Monroe's birthday with a party at his home, Ash Lawn, on April 28.

Gary R. Ripple, dean of admissions, will be guest speaker at the spring dinner meeting of the Pittsburgh chapter April 30 at Arthur's restaurant.

A spring cocktail-reception is planned by the Hartford, Conn. alumni May 2, at the University Club in Hartford. Special guests will be Glenn Lowry, director of the Muscarella Museum and Tish Paschall '64 of the Society of the Alumni staff.

Lowry will present slides of items in the College's art collection at the meeting of the Southern Connecticut chapter, May 3, at Skipper's Restaurant.

The annual meeting of the Maryland chapter will be held at the International Hotel at the Baltimore/Washington airport. Speaker will be Dean John Jamison of the Business School.

No appointment is necessary.

Writer-in-Residence

The English department has announced that, in all probability, poet Amy Clampitt will be William and Mary's writer-in-residence for the 1984-85 academic year.

Students who wish to work with her in English 469 and/or 470 should submit a manuscript of no more than twelve poems to Mr. Heacox by the end of the exam period -- May 10.

Ms. Clampitt will select the students with whom she wants to work from these manuscripts. Students chosen may add the course during the Fall Semester add-drop period.

For further information, contact Mr. Heacox at x4470.

Summer Jobs

Williamsburg's new water theme park, Water Country USA, has openings for lifeguards, attraction attendants, EMT's, ticket sellers, food service, gift shop, maintenance, and janitorial personnel. Supervisory positions are also available. Lifeguard applicants need Red Cross Life Saving or WSI certification. Pay rates are based on position classification and qualifications.

Apply at the Water Country USA temporary office at the Village Shops at Kingsmill, next door to the Travel Service. The Village Shops are located on Rte. 60 East, 1/2 mile east of 199. Applications accepted on Saturdays from 9 a.m. - 12 noon and 2-5 p.m.; also Tuesdays through Friday from 2-5 p.m.

For additional information call 229-9302.

C-SPAN

C-SPAN, Cable Satellite Public Affairs Network, intern program seeks to utilize the talents of students interested in communications while exposing them to the workings of a national cable television network and the United States Congress. For more information, see the folder on the Internship bookshelf in the Career Library, or contact Mary Przepyszny in the Office of Career Planning, Morton 140.

Summer Campaign Internship

The Americans for Democratic Action Youth Caucus is accepting applications. Application deadline is May 1. For more information, see announcement in Internship Book 7, Washington area, in the Career Library, Morton 140.

US/ICOMOS

The United States Committee of the International Council on Monuments and Sites (US/ICOMOS) is seeking applicants for volunteer projects in England and France. All programs are open to people between the ages of 17 and 23 who are prepared for a rugged environment and hard physical work. Application deadline is May 11. For more information, see announcement in Internship Book 1, International section, in the Career Library, Morton 140.

Handicapped Awareness Day

Handicapped Awareness Day will be held on Monday, April 23, 1984. From 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. a display table will be set up in the Campus Center lobby with information from agencies and organizations which work with handicapped concerns.

All students, faculty, and staff at the College and members of the Williamsburg area are welcome to stop by and browse.

A recently published book on "The Virginia House," by Anne M. Faulconer, illustrates 65 of the best-known and most historic homes in the Tidewater area, and features three pages of text and color photos of the Presidents House at the College. Utilizing over 300 color photographs, the book also contains intricate floor plans and architectural details of the houses, along with historical anecdotes and information about each.

Ms. Faulconer, a New York writer, is the daughter of Virginia and Robert Faulconer of Norfolk. Mr. Faulconer is a member of the Board of Visitors of the College. The book is published by Schiffer Publishing Limited, Exton, PA 19341.

ATTENTION: MAY GRADUATES

If you are graduating this May and you are a National Direct Student Loan recipient, you will be required to have an Exit Interview pertaining to the repayment of your loan before you leave school.

The Student Loan Office has set up the following dates and places for the interviews, which takes approximately thirty (30) minutes to complete. On April 23 and 24, and May 3 and 4, from 1:00 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., these meetings are to be held in Rooms A and B of the Campus Center.

If you are unable to attend any of these meetings, please contact the Student Loan Office at 253-4685 as soon as possible!

Soviet Affairs Intern

The government office in Washington, D.C., which is responsible for developing U.S. policy toward the Soviet Union, is offering an internship to juniors and seniors. Interns perform the work of a junior foreign service officer. This entails replying to Congressional inquiries, directing telegram traffic, writing press guidance for the department spokesman, researching current topics in U.S.-Soviet relations and assisting senior officers on any assigned projects. This internship is offered through the College VENTURE Program. VENTURE is a job search program for undergraduates who wish to take time off. For more information, contact the VENTURE Program, x4427, Morton 140.

A Reminder

Graduating students who have made definite plans regarding employment or graduate school are encouraged to drop by the Placement Office in 140 Morton Hall to complete a Placement Questionnaire. Information obtained through this form is very useful in assisting others.

Those who are willing to share job search information with others should contact Bob Hunt, Associate Director of Placement, at ext. 4604.

Copies of letters received from potential employers (including rejection letters), sample cover letters and resumes, as well as names, addresses, and phone numbers of helpful contacts, will be particularly useful to students who are job searching in the future.

Republican Gathering

The College Republicans presented retiring Seventh District Congressman J. Kenneth Robinson with the Colgate Darden Award for "his consistent adherence to conservative principles," at the organization's annual Rites of Spring barbecue which this year drew over 200 area Republicans. Robinson has worked for continued funding to anti-communist rebels in Nicaragua.

First District Congressman Herb Bateman was recognized for "his consistent loyalty to conservative ideals."

Also on hand for the event were several candidates for Republican state and national committee positions, many Republican leaders from throughout the First District and College Republicans from most Virginia universities and colleges. At the College Republican organization's state convention last month, the William and Mary chapter, which has a membership of over 300, was honored as the best large C.R. club in the state.

William Berry Work Going Up Next In Muscarelle Museum

Twenty-one works of William A. Berry, an artist whose colored-pencil drawings explore the pictorial potential of solid geometrical form, will be exhibited in the Spigel Gallery of the Muscarelle Museum of Art, April 27 through June 11.

Berry will present a gallery talk at 4:30 p.m., April 27 in the Museum. A reception for the artist will be held from 5:30 to 7 p.m. Both the talk and reception are open to the public.

Berry, whose work is included in the art collection of Helen Hayes, is known for elevating the centuries-old technique of "cross-hatch" drawing to a modern art form, says Glenn Lowry, director of the Museum.

The artist has juxtaposed geometric forms, such as polygons, with more familiar still-life objects, such as fruit, a soup tureen, even a license plate, to produce what he calls "unexpectedly rich contrasts."

He says of his work, "To aid me in these drawings, I have constructed numerous paper models, including models of the Platonic, Archimedean, and Kepler-Poinsot solids," referring to mathematical structures whose facets are shaded by Berry to achieve certain color effects.

Berry uses the models to observe the actual effects of color on their surfaces, and he uses photography to record different versions of arrangements of the models. He adds, "I prefer to use a drawing technique that I developed especially for the subject—a type of color hatching that I call 'planar modeling.'"

"The technique allows me to describe form in terms of planes built up with parallel line segments of a single color. When a different color is added, a different line direction is taken in the hatching," he says.

Berry received a bachelor's degree in fine arts from the University of Texas at Austin in 1955, and a master's in fine arts from the University of Southern California in 1957. He also attended Il Circolo Artistico Internazionale in Rome during 1956-57, where he studied drawing. He also has taught at the Boston University School of Visual Art (1974-78), and at the University of Texas at Austin (1968-74).

He has shown his work throughout the United States in seventy-seven exhibitions, and he was an artist-in-residence in the Dominican Republic from April 1 through June 30, 1983, at the International Artists Colony. His residency was sponsored through an award by the Altos de Chavon Foundation.

In addition to the Berry exhibit, a selection of recent acquisitions in the College art collection will be exhibited in the Sheridan Gallery of the Museum, May 10 through July 9.

Christine Jones Wins Book Prize

Christine Jones, a sophomore from Alexandria, has won the first annual Williamsburg Bibliophiles Prize in Book Collecting. Richard E. Powell, a junior from Falls Church, and Herbert Kaylor, a senior from Lorton, tied for the second prize.

Ms. Jones began her collection of books about ballet when she was a sophomore in high school. Now, she says, "I'm addicted." Mr. Kaylor's collection is devoted to Latin America with emphasis on Mexico. He acquired several of his books while studying and traveling in Mexico last summer. Mr. Powell collects in the field of Western moral thought and ethical theory and acquired many of his books by scouring book stores in the Washington area.

The prizes ($100 for first, $75 each for second) will be awarded at the April 27th meeting of the Bibliophiles, which will be held in the Botetourt Theater in Swem Library at 8:00 p.m.

The contest, which is open to all students at the College of William and Mary, was established to promote and encourage the collecting of books, not only for their cultural value but also for their aesthetic value.

Contestants were required to submit a bibliography of books in their collection along with a statement of the next six books which they wished to acquire and why these titles were desired. Each finalist was asked to bring twenty-five books to a meeting with the judges to discuss their collection.

The judges were Linda Collins Reilly, Associate Provost of the College; Joyce McKnight, an alumna of the College and member of the Bibliophiles, and John D. Haskell, Associate Librarian of the College and Chairman of the Book Collecting Contest Committee. The rules were based on those for similar competitions at Amherst College and Boston University.

Selected titles from the winners' collections will be exhibited in the Zollinger Museum and the Virginia Room of Swem Library through April 27.

Talk on Sailing

Chris White, sailboat designer from Mathews, Va., will give a slide lecture entitled "Exploring the Caribbean in a Small Boat" at 7 p.m. Thursday, April 19 in Small 113.

Housekeeping Awards

Three custodians at the College were honored recently for outstanding service. Hazel Morriss (left) has worked for the College seven years and is a housekeeper in Old Dominion Hall. She was honored for the month of January. Paul Alexander has been employed by the College for two months and works at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law. He was honored for the month of March. Pictured at right is housekeeping supervisor Josephine Strong, who accepted the February Housekeeper of the Month Award on behalf of Alice Christian, who could not attend the award ceremony. Mrs. Christian has worked for the College four years and is a housekeeper in the Campus Center.

Publishing Grants Deadline Is Set

The Committee on Training in Publishing Procedures offers two grants of up to $1500 each depending on need and the availability of funds to recent graduates of William and Mary who are admitted to one of the following programs for training in publishing procedures in the summer of 1984.

Howard University Book Publishing Program
Publishers Weekly Internship
New York University Diploma Programs in Book and Magazine Publishing
Radcliffe College Publishing Procedures Course
Stanford University Publishing Course
University of Denver Publishing Institute

The deadline for application is April 30. Application forms are available at the office of Career Planning (Morton 140).

Applicants need not be admitted to a program at the time of application, but all awards are contingent upon subsequent admission as a full-time student.

Our Own Summit Film

Ten months in the making, featuring a cast of thousands, we offer for your review "Window to the World," a fifteen-minute sound and color production of TV Services, illustrating the College's role in the 1983 Summit. Showings will be in the Botetourt Theatre at 12:15 p.m., and 12:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, April 17, 18, and 19.

For details, please call either John Sherman, acting director, or Rick Davis, Educational Media Services.

DIRECTORIES AVAILABLE

The latest edition of the SCATS Directory and copies of the Peninsula and Williamsburg Telephone Directory are available and may be picked up at the Campus Post Office.

Financial Aid Director Sought

The Director of Student Financial Aid provides leadership for a comprehensive financial aid program. Duties include administering all federal, state and institutionally-provided financial aid programs; coordinating student employment; supervising veterans affairs activities; providing counseling to students and parents; participating in the development of policies applicable to student financial assistance; and interacting with the faculty and administrative staff.

A master's degree in an appropriate area is required as is experience in the administration of student financial aid programs, preferably with increasing levels of responsibility. Candidates should possess proven administrative ability, demonstrated knowledge of financial aid programs and policies including federal regulations, strong interpersonal skills and the ability to communicate effectively. A knowledge of computer-based financial aid programs is preferred. The salary is commensurate with the qualifications. Starting date is September 1, 1984.

Letters of application and resumes must be postmarked by May 1, 1984 and should be sent to:

W. Samuel Sadler
Dean of Student Affairs
The College of William and Mary

Singers To Preview European Repertory In Spring Concerts

The choir and chorus of the College of William and Mary will preview some of the music they will sing on their European tour this year at spring concerts, April 20, 21 and 22 at 8:15 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. Admission for the concert is $2 and tickets will be on sale at the PBK box office before each performance. Tickets are also available from the music department office and at the Campus Center front desk.

The chorus will open the program with selections by Randall Thompson, Franz Schubert, Tomas Luis de Victoria and Ignazio Donati.

The chorus will also sing four choral hymns from "The Rig Veda," part three, by Gustav Holst with accompaniment by Nancy Lendrim, harpist with the Toledo, Ohio Symphony.

The choir will open its portion of the program with several sacred works and music from the Court of William and Mary, "Praise The Lord, Ye Servants," by John Blow, and "Ad Dominum cum Tribularer," by Hans Leo Hassler. Soloists will be Martha Feathers, Hampton, Va.; Silas McCullough, Bon Air, Va.; David Montuori, Allentown, Pa.; Elizabeth Hylton, Bowling Green, Va.; Fred Baerenz, Stafford, Va; and Robert Anderson, Roanoke, Va.

Dennis Ramsey from Madisonville, Va., and Kord Basnight of Chesapeake, will be soloists with the choir for "Black is the Color of My True Love's Hair," an American folk song. The choir will also sing a Scottish Folk Song, "My Love is Like a Red, Red Rose," and "Neighbors' Chorus," by Offenbach.

Two ensembles of the choir, the Botetourt Chamber Singers and the Men of the Choir, will be featured during the spring concerts. The Botetourt Singers will sing "Fine Knacks for Ladies," by John Dowland; "Just Ere The Dawn of Day," by Hugo Distler, and "Come Away, Sweet Love," by Thomas Greaves.

The Men of the Choir will present "The Seeds of Love," an English folk song with soloists Douglas Walter of Mechanicsburg, Pa., and David McMenamain of Hartwood, Va. This

R.E.B. Stewart, Jr., president of The Olde Guard, presents a check for $2700 to the president of the Choir, Robert Seal. The gift will help finance the Choir's third European tour which begins May 14.

Student Hosts For Foreign Students Sought By International Studies

The Office of International Studies is recruiting interested students to serve as student hosts for incoming foreign students.

The volunteer student hosts will provide practical assistance to two or three foreign students during the orientation week and throughout the academic year. The "hosts" will help the foreign students acclimate to the College and to the Community, figure out course selections, establish bank accounts, etc.

Each month the Office of International Studies will organize an activity which will bring together the student hosts and foreign students as well as faculty, administrators, and the Community. Activities will include a speakers series; film fest; community outreach to service organizations (for example, the Kiwanis International), area churches and schools, to inform them of other cultures; trips to Norfolk or Washington, D.C.

Hosts will be selected and trained by the Director of the Office of International Studies, Carolyn Blackwell, and will serve in a volunteer capacity.

The purpose of the project is not only to provide assistance to incoming foreign students, but to promote cultural exchange among college students, faculty, administration and the community-at-large. Those interested in serving as a student host, are asked to fill out a brief application form in the Office of International Studies, James Blair 111, by April 25.

Student Recitals Planned On Campus, At Regional Library

Two senior music students are preparing recitals for presentation in the theatre of the Williamsburg Regional Library's Arts Center.

Julia Mae Shen, a piano student of Mrs. Vera Lendray, will present a program at 3 p.m., Saturday, April 21. Laurie Anne Ramsey, a violin student, studying with Jonathan Mott, will perform at 7 p.m., Friday, April 27.

Shen has selected for her recital, French Suite No. 6 in E. major by Bach; Sonata in F major, op. 10, no. 2 by Beethoven; Suite for Piano (1920) by Poulenc; six dances in Bulgarian rhythm from "Mikrokosmos, volume 6, by Bartok; Impromptu in B flat major, op. 142, no. 3 by Schubert; and "Phantasiestucke," op. 12 by Schumann.

("Spring") for Piano and Violin by Beethoven; and two works by Cesar Franck, Sonata for Piano and Violin in A Major, and "Recitativo-Fantasia." Pianist for the Beethoven Sonata will be Bradley Staubes, a junior from McLean; for the Franck sonata, Thomas Field, a senior from New Canaan, Conn.

Julia Shen

Shen is an economics major and music concentrator. She is currently president of Delta Omicron women's honorary music fraternity and in 1983 was recipient of the Gladys Iseman Clark Lesson Scholarship.

In addition to her musical interests, Shen is the co-captain of the mermettes creative aquatics/synchronized swim team and has competed as a choreographer and swimmer at the national level. She is also a volunteer Girl Scout leader in Williamsburg. She is a member of Mortar Board and Omicron Delta Kappa, both honorary fraternities recognizing outstanding leadership, scholarship and service to the College and community. After graduation, Miss Shen plans to attend law school.

Ramsey will play Concerto No. 1 in A minor for Violin by Bach; Sonata No. 5

Laurie Ramsey

Instrumental accompaniment for the Bach Concerto will include Susan Powell, violin; Margaret Bambery, viola; and Staubes, violoncello.

Ramsey is majoring in French and minoring in music. She has led the William and Mary College Community Orchestra as well as three Sinfonicon pit orchestras in the position of concertmaster. She has also played with the Peninsula Symphony orchestra and the Williamsburg Choral Guild. She is a member of the French Honor Society, Pi Delta Phi, and Phi Beta Kappa. Ramsey spent her junior year abroad at Montpellier, France. She plans to attend graduate school in French and will also continue her training in music.

Concert in Ewell

Dirk Lamar Brown of South Boston, Va., a senior music concentrator will give a vocal recital at 8 p.m., Sunday, April 22 in Ewell Hall, room 100, with Angela Elizabeth Castle of Hempstead, N.Y., pianist.

State Transfer and Incentive Grants Offer Opportunities

The Virginia Transfer Grant Program is intended to assist black students who transfer to one of Virginia's 13 traditionally white public senior institutions of higher education and white students who transfer to either Virginia State University or Norfolk State University, Virginia's two traditionally black institutions.

Initial awards of $1,000 for the academic year are offered. Awards may be renewed for one additional year, if the student achieves a 2.0 grade-point average for all courses taken in the first year of full-time study at the senior institution, or is likely based on an evaluation of first year courses completed, to make sufficient progress to advance to the next highest class level by the end of the second year of full-time study (e.g., sophomore to junior).

Applicants should apply directly to the eligible institution of their choice. Applications should be filed as early as possible (before July 1 for the fall term) as funds are limited. Because VTG application closing dates may vary among institutions, applications should check the institution she or he plans to attend, as soon as possible. No VTG applications will be accepted by an institution after the opening of the term for which assistance is sought.

In order to be eligible to receive VTG funds an applicant must be formally accepted for full-time study in a baccalaureate degree program at a state-supported "other-race" senior institution.

Applicants must be bonafide domiciliary residents of Virginia under Section 23-7 of the Virginia Code, as amended.

Applicants who were enrolled in college during the 1983-84 academic year must complete at least 30 semester hours or 45 quarter hours of degree credit prior to enrolling at the senior institution in 1984-85. Applicants who did not attend college in 1983-84 must have completed at least two college level courses prior to enrollment at the senior institution.

Applicants normally must have a cumulative grade point average of 2.0 or higher for all college level work completed prior to enrollment at the senior institution (on a 4.0 scale). Students with less than a 2.0 average may also qualify, however, if other factors indicate a high probability of success at the senior institution.

Applicants must be classified as a first-time transfer student at the "other-race" school.

Application information may be obtained from the Office of Equal Employment Opportunities and Affirmative Action, ext. 4651.

SIG

Special Incentive Grants are intended to assist white students entering as first-time freshmen or transfer students at one of Virginia's two traditionally black institutions, Norfolk State University or Virginia State University.

Awards of $1,000 per academic year are made, renewable for one additional year to students who, at the end of the first year, have earned a cumulative grade-point average of 2.0 or higher.

Eligibility requirements are identical to those for the Virginia Transfer Grant with one exception; there is no requirement for SIG applicants to have completed some college level work prior to enrollment at Norfolk State or Virginia State University.

First time freshmen as well as transfer students are therefore eligible to apply for a SIG.

Applicants with no prior college level experience must have a high school grade point average of "C" or better to qualify, however.

Those interested in SIG should request application materials directly from the admissions or financial aid offices at Norfolk State University or 2401 Corprew Avenue, Norfolk, 23504; or Virginia State University, Petersburg 23803.

ensemble will also sing "Stopping By Woods on a Snowy Evening," by Randall Thompson.

The singers will conclude their program with "Jubilate Deo," by Daniel Pinkham, sung by both the choir and the chorus.

The choir and chorus will be under the direction of Frank T. Lendrim, professor of music and chairman of the department of music at the College. He will also direct the choir on a 26-concert European tour which will take them to England, France, Switzerland and Germany. On the Continent the choir will sing in Notre Dame Cathedral and Chartres Cathedral, at the American School in Paris, and churches in Geneva, Frankfurt and Wiesbaden.

The choir has been invited to sing at the first British International Garden Festival in Liverpool during their stay in England, and have also been invited to Drapers' Hall by the Drapers' Company of London.

Recital

The program will include four songs of the seventeenth century, and works by Purcell, Selle, Lanier, and Blow. Also included will be selections from the Liederkreis, Op. 39, by Robert Schumann, "Poeme d'un Jour," by Gabriel Faure, and three twentieth century works by Ireland, Vaughan Williams and Head.

Brown is a senior, majoring both in music and classical studies. He is the student of David Parks and formerly studied music with Frances Palmer Breeze. In 1980-81, Brown was the recipient of the Carl A. Fehr music scholarship. He is a member of Phi Mu Alpha music fraternity and appeared in the operetta "The Merry Widow," which was produced last year by the Sinfonicron Light Opera Company.

Castle is a sophomore computer science and music major. She is presently studying with Vera Lendvay and received previous training from the Manhattan School of Music, preparatory division. Castle is a member of Delta Omicron music honor fraternity and will be president of that organization next year. She has sung with the William and Mary Choir and the Botetourt Chamber Singers, and is also active in Phi Mu sorority.

BSO Fetes Seniors

Brian Scott of Hampton, a senior majoring in business, receives the first annual Rolls Royce Award from Carroll F. Hardy, Associate Dean of Students and director of the Office of Minority Affairs, for his contributions to Black Student Organization projects. The award was indeed a Rolls Royce - in miniature. The lighthearted presentation was part of a gala occasion, the Black Student Organization's annual reception for graduating seniors. The reception was held in the Campus Center Little Theatre Sunday afternoon. Principal speaker was Mrs. Jessie Rattley, Councilwoman from Newport News.

Sociologist On Leave Reports On Eruption Of Volcano

The surprise eruption of Mauna Loa volcano which began on March 25 has altered the tranquility of the Big Island of Hawaii and especially that of its largest city, Hilo. This threatened city is where we are presently living while on an exchange professorship in sociology at the University of Hawaii at Hilo. We occupy the home here which belongs to Professor Joe Monane who is teaching at William and Mary and living in our house in Williamsburg. The house in Hilo is situated just off of Kaumana Road which, within a few miles, becomes the well known Saddle Road that winds up into the rugged mountains adjacent to the Mauna Loa Forest Reserve. It was at the 9,000 foot elevation of Mauna Loa that the eruption along a 2,000 foot long fissure occurred and began to send four lava flows down the slopes toward Hilo and the sea.

With Mauna Loa pumping out 800,000 to 1,000,000 cubic centimeters of lava per hour it soon became evident from Civil Defense reports that we were potentially in the direct path the main flow might take in its seemingly relentless forward movement. After twelve days of eruption, Mauna Loa continues to pump steadily at the above rate. The flow is now some fifteen miles long and scientists at the volcano observatory can make no clear predictions about when it will stop, whether the eruptions will increase or decrease, or whether the lava flows will or will not change directions.

As of Sunday, April 8 (as I write this) two things do seem to have happened. First, Flow 1 of the lava has apparently stalled some four short miles above the nearest homes in Hilo. This is only miles from where we live. A second flow which began at the 6,000 foot level and was also headed toward Hilo along the same route, has just stalled at a higher elevation. The stalling of these flows does not mean that the threat to Hilo and the crisis situation are over because the eruption continues unabated, but it does give more time to wait, hope, and continue to be anxious.

A couple of days after Mauna Loa erupted and began spewing its fire and lava along the slopes in forty foot high curtains of fire, Kilauea, some thirty miles from Mauna Loa, erupted for the second time since we arrived in Hilo in the first week in January. That eruption sent fountains of fire shooting nearly 2,000 feet into the sky and provided an almost indescribable spectacle of nature's awesome forces. However, it caused no major concern in Hilo though some homes on the Kilauea side were temporarily threatened by forest fires which were set off by the volcanic ash and lava flow. In Hilo we had a lot of vog (volcanic fog). The second eruption of Kilauea, occurring almost simultaneously with Mauna Loa, was the first time this had occurred in 116 years. Royal Gardens, a subdivision just above Kalapana and the beautiful black sand beaches, about 30 miles from Hilo, was evacuated as lava flows came within a couple of miles from the homes situated there. Apparently, Madam Pele, the Hawaiian fire goddess, only wanted to send some kind of warning message to the residents of the area, since Kilauea ceased this eruption only 22 hours after it began and no houses were touched. Civil Defense reported this morning, however, that all signs at Kilauea point to another eruption in the very near future.

What happens to life in this city of Hilo where residents each night can look up the nearby slopes - some literally out of their own windows at home - and see Mauna Loa's red fire curtains and the smoke rising from a sixteen mile long flow of lava, which is about four football fields wide and thirty to forty feet high, and which is moving slowly, but relentlessly toward where they live? Well, life goes on pretty much as usual during the daylight hours, except that radios and television sets are kept on all day to hear the Civil Defense update their reports on how far the flow has moved and whether there are any signs of change in the eruptions. I prepare lectures, teach, give quizzes and grade them as usual, but conversations at the University always include remarks about Mauna Loa. Some of my students who live some four or five miles from the flow are understandably having difficulty concentrating on their academic work while worrying about evacuation plans - where they would go, where they would store their home furnishings. Ruth continues to prepare and hold workshops in gerontology through the continuing education branch of the University and people continue to attend. Some afternoons we go to a small, beautiful beach along Hilo Bay and sunbathe, swim, look for colorful reef fish, sleep, and watch the smoke rising from the Mauna Loa eruption and try to estimate how much further it has moved or if any new fissures have occurred.

There has been an upsurge in tourists from other islands and from the mainland, and they make a difference in the traffic congestion on Hilo's narrow streets. Some of the visitors and natives who are determined to get close to the walls of fire, violate Civil Defense regulations. They try to drive rental cars up forbidden Saddle Road, hike along dangerous and uncharted terrain to get a better angle for camera shots; and, in general conduct themselves much like tourists anywhere. Private planes, as well as some commercial ones, fly off-course to give their passengers a stellar view. This results in problems for Civil Defense and endangers the local population as well.

At night vehicular traffic increases enormously as local citizens, along with visitors, clog the streets which give access to those spots which provide the clearest and most unobstructed views of Mauna Loa. And then, anxieties which most of us have submerged during the day, come again to the surface. The night we drove up Saddle Road to Kaumana City, before it was closed, and saw Mauna Loa's fire curtains just four miles away was the first time I felt really frightened and concerned about the future. Some of my students who live in that area have already either moved out or are packed and ready to leave on short notice.

Civil Defense has been excellent during this crisis. They have reported regularly, have maintained a calm and objective stance, and have provided assurances that everyone will be given a minimum of 24 hours notice if evacuation of any area becomes necessary.

The crisis here is a long-fused one. It is unlike a flash flood, a hurricane, a tidal wave, or even a Mt. St. Helen explosion. The eruptions here begin and at first the lava flows more rapidly down the slopes, cutting their channels and eating away any forest growth in their way. However, the further the extremity of the flow from its source, the more slowly it moves and the more rapidly the lava forms a crust and cools. In the process it creates its own hills and barriers. (New high land for future real estate brokers to sell.) The most rapid flows are about 300-700 feet per hour and at the fourteen mile mark may slow to 50-100 feet per hour. The flows seem to have stalled now but Mauna Loa still pumps lava at the same rate. No one seems to know exactly where it is all going. One possibility is that it has gone underground and is moving along enormous underground lava tubes. So if Mauna Loa continues to erupt, it could be two or three weeks or more before we know for sure whether we will have to evacuate. By then, we may be on our way back to Williamsburg.

One very interesting aspect of the whole affair is the dichotomy between the explanations of the scientists and of the native Hawaiians who firmly believe in the legends linking the eruptions of the island volcanoes to the disapproval of Madam Pele, the fire goddess. Civil Defense reports only what the scientists at the observatory tell them. There is also another important source of information here about volcanoes and that is this folklore. Nathan Altschuler, Vince Sutlive and their colleagues in anthropology at William and Mary will understand the importance of this source and will not sneer at its validity - nor will any of the citizens of Williamsburg who believe in the ultimate power of some of their own gods or dieties.

According to the folklore, Madam Pele, the fire goddess, considers Mauna Loa to be her favorite place. Many native Hawaiians and other old time local residents tell me that Madam Pele has become very angry about the desecration of land in Mauna Loa by people who want to use it for entrepreneurial purposes such as new housing developments, business ventures and the like. They see proof of this explanation in photography taken of the eruption in which they can identify Pele's angry and death-like face as she stares down upon Hilo. Others tell of Madam Pele visiting their homes in the Kaumana area and asking for food, and promising to spare their homes in return for their kindness . . . This version of the story appeals to us very much also because Madam Pele usually has a dog with her who also is hungry. Anybody who knows the Kernodles and their affection for dogs will understand our tendency to accept this explanation. A student of mine, who is a haole, or mainlander, from New York, reports to me that his "Hawaiian-Chinese-Filipino-Caucasian" roommate told him that Madam Pele is upset at the recent federal-state-county operation aimed at discouraging the growth of the crazy weed pakalolo (marijuana) on Big Island and its shipment. The goddess is mad, they say, because the officials crassly used the term "Operation Pele" in connection with this operation. Letters to the Editor in the local paper have reported that many native Hawaiians are very upset because Civil Defense will not permit them to walk to the eruption source to present gifts of food, flowers, etc. (in earlier times it was a virgin) to Pele which they believe is the only way to stop the eruption. The scientists occasionally hint of bombing the eruption crater to disperse the flow but immediately there is an outcry from the natives that this would make Madam Pele even more angry.

So we are caught between the explanations of the scientists and the folklorists. Which shall we choose? Well, I have noticed that the scientists and Civil Defense spokesmen always conclude their reports with vague statements about what will happen and that they, also, pay indirect homage to Madam Pele. I suspect that some are still not certain that Pele is not behind it all. So if Mauna Loa keeps erupting and Kilauea does it again I think I will listen to the old timers and what they have learned about Madam Pele's predispositions and actions from their folklore and traditions of long standing.

Fire Alarm Newsletter

April 5 Meeting

The Chief of the Williamsburg Fire Department was guest at the Task Force meeting today.

Chief Cumbee reported the campus had experienced 19 fire alarms since last week's meeting, but he had some particularly good news to report. None of the alarms reported thus far have been caused by vandalism or purposeful false alarms. However, some preventable alarms are occurring simply because residents are not following the task force's recommendation that kitchen doors be closed and a kitchen window opened while cooking. Following this advice would be simpler than causing a whole residence hall to have to evacuate in response to preventable alarms. Please help in this area. There were fire alarms attributable to cooking since last week's meetings. Perhaps three could have been prevented.

It was noted that the campus community experiences a greatly increased number of fire alarms on weekends. Since detectors are not more sensitive on weekends than during the week, human factors must be involved. Such things as attempting to control the density of cigarette smoke will possibly lower the number of "unknown alarms."

John Bond and Mike Kershner have made several repairs and adjustments on campus during the week to try to lessen the fire alarm problem. Kershner has replaced or relocated several alarms. He has replaced horns and installed bells to make the warning system more effective. John Bond has installed label plates in Botetourt and will soon install an intake-exhaust fan system in Unit H to ascertain if the problem can be managed with controlled air flow.

Chairman Charlton announced that THE FIRE ALARM SYSTEM WILL NOT BE SUSPENDED ANYWHERE ON CAMPUS DURING READING AND FINALS PERIOD. The State Fire Marshall will not allow this even with the employment of fire proctors.

Two members of the Task Force, Charles Lombardo, Director of Residence Life, and Clinton Merrett, '87, will attend a meeting of the Residents Concerns Committee to talk about the fire alarms situation.

During the last few weeks, vandalism to fire detection equipment has peaked and then declined. However, over the last four months, vandalism has constantly become a larger problem.

In March more than 18% of the alarms resulted from vandalism. Some see irritation with our problem as a reason to tamper with fire equipment. It is not. THERE IS NO JUSTIFIABLE REASON TO TAMPER WITH OR DESTROY FIRE DETECTION EQUIPMENT. Please do not allow a few unthinking people to play with your safety. We know from our own very recent history that college residence halls do occasionally have fires. If detection equipment is destroyed, we could lose more than property. The alarm system is not perfect, but please protect it; it is very important.
