

Dean Spong will retire next fall

The fifth high-ranking College employee in the past few months has given notice that he will be retiring from William and Mary in 1985. William B. Spong, Jr., dean of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, has announced he will step down next September 1.

Other 1985 retirees include: President Thomas A. Graves, Jr.; Provost George R. Healy; Dennis K. Cogle, acting director of planning and budget; and Charles M. Holloway, director of university communications.

This exodus will give whoever is the new College President a say in naming the new team members.

Dean Spong held his post since 1976, leading the Marshall-Wythe Law School into a new era of national prominence with new facilities on South Henry Street, a doubling of the law library, a ranking as one of the top 36 law schools in America, and establishment of the Institute of Bill of Rights Law at the school.

Ann Dobie Peebles, rector of the College, praised his service, noting that he has "served our national and our Commonwealth with distinction . . . and over the past nine years has led William and Mary's Marshall-Wythe School of Law, founded in 1779, into the ranks of the nation's distinguished law schools."

Miss Peebles continued, saying that "his departure next fall will be a loss to the College, but we are fortunate that he generously chose to delay his retirement for several years in order to lend his leadership to the establishment of the Institute of Bill of Rights Law at the Law School."

President Thomas A. Graves, Jr., said that "Bill Spong has provided exceptional leadership to the Marshall-Wythe School of Law over the years . . . moving it into the top ranks of legal education in the United States. The School's faculty and students are strong, its library is excellent and its facilities superb. Dean Spong deserves great credit for this progress."

Dean Spong received his law degree from the University of Virginia, served in the Air Corps during World War II, was admitted to the bar in 1947, and studied at Cambridge and Edinburgh Universities in Great Britain during 1948. He was Cutler lecturer at the William and Mary law school 1948-49. He had a distinguished career in the General Assembly for 12 years and from 1966-73, he served Virginia as U.S. Senator in Washington. In 1974 he returned to William and Mary's law school and became Dudley Warner Woodbridge professor of law, then subsequently assumed the deanship in 1976.

He is a member of the Order of the COIF, Phi Beta Kappa, Omicron Delta Kappa, Phi Alpha Delta, and is a fellow of the American Bar Association. He is a past president of the Virginia Bar Association, and is chairman of the Governor's Commission on Virginia's future. Dean Spong called his years at the law school "among the most memorable in my life."

COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY

Tuesday, September 18, 1984
Volume XIII, Number 4

Permit No. 26
Non-Profit Organization
U.S. Postage PAID at Williamsburg, Va.

The Williamsburg Scottish Festival gets under way Sept. 21 at 6 p.m. at the Wren Building, and continues all day Sept. 22 in games and special events at the intramural field on Campus Drive. The public is invited and tickets will be sold at the gate.

Bonnie Scottish festival held on college campus this weekend

The campus will ring with the sound of bagpipes this Friday, Sept. 21, when opening ceremonies of the Williamsburg Scottish Festival are held at 6 p.m. in the Wren Yard. Ian Lionel Malcolm Leslie, the 21st Earl of Rothes and hereditary chief of Clan Leslie, will be honored guest.

Field events will take place Saturday, Sept. 22, from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. on the intramural field at the College. Scottish-American athletes will test their strength by tossing the caber, the hay sheaf, and the smooth, heavy stone. Ladies will hurl haggis, and there will be competition in solo piping and drumming. Pipe band performance will be given by the Strath Highland Band and the Yorktown Fife and Drum Corps.

Demonstrations of Scottish country dancing will occur. Scottish sheep dogs will show how they can skillfully herd sheep and geese.

One of the highlights is always the Highland dancing, with the intricate and ancient steps of the Sword Dance and other dances performed competitively.

Featured during the day will be a parade of clans, a war cry rally, a tug-of-war, and Scottish games for children. Scottish meat pies and pastries, beer and soft drinks will be available, and a pub tent will spotlight colorial and Scottish traditional music, story-telling and fiddling. Available for purchase at the festival will be Scottish imports, books, accessories, weaving and woolens.

The 1984 festival features three national clan gatherings, Clan Stewart, Clan Sutherland, and Clan Leslie, in addition to approximately 45 other clans and societies expected to attend.

The festival is open to the public and tickets are $4 for adults, $3 for seniors and students, and $2 for children.

OPEN HOUSE HOURS

President Thomas A. Graves, Jr., will hold an Open House for students in his office at Ewell Hall on Thursday, Sept. 20, from 4-5 p.m., and Tuesday, Sept. 25, from 4-5 p.m. Students who wish to talk to the President are invited to stop by. No appointments are necessary.

Plays set for new season at college

Four productions will be featured in the 1984-85 William and Mary Theatre season.

A musical comedy, "Fade Out - Fade In," begins next month, for a six-performance run on Oct. 5, 6, 11, 12 and 13 at 8:15 p.m. at Phi Beta Kappa Hall. One matinee, on Oct. 7, will be staged at 2 p.m. The play is an affectionate spoof of Hollywood and the opulent musical movies of the 1930s and highlights lavish production numbers. Book and lyrics are by Betty Comden and Adolph Green and music by Jule Styne.

The second play, "Major Barbara," is one of Bernard Shaw's "brightest, slyest, most provocatively outrageous and more timeless comedies" and tells the story of a munitions maker who views poverty as "the most shameless sin." His daughter, Barbara, joins the Salvation Army and dedicates herself to helping the poor. Its production dates are Nov. 15, 16 and 17 at 8:15 and Nov. 18 at 2 p.m.

John Pielmeier's powerful contemporary drama, "Agnes of God" will be presented Feb. 21-24, depicting a young nun, Sister Agnes, being brought to a court-appointed psychiatrist after she is accused of giving birth to a child and strangling it with its own umbilical cord.

The last play of the season is "Epicoene, or the Silent Woman," scheduled for April 11-14. It was written by Ben Jonson, Shakespeare's chief rival, and portrays a man who abhors all sound but his own voice, a scheming nephew, a gaggle of gossips, and a mysterious silent woman.

Season tickets are available for faculty and staff at $10. Tickets are also available for each individual play, beginning about a week before each production.

St. Eustatius VIPS to visit campus

Lt. Gov. George Sleeswijk and Deputy Julian Woodley of St. Eustatius, the Netherlands Antilles, will visit the college next week, and will be feted at several events.

A luncheon at the home of President Thomas A. Graves, Jr., will take place Tuesday, Sept. 25. Later that same day, the City Council of Hampton is entertaining at a reception at the Chamberlain Hotel at 5 p.m.

On Sept. 27, the dignitaries will be honored at a dinner in the Great Hall of the Wren Building, with President and Mrs. Graves as hosts. A reception at the President's House will precede the dinner for 30.

The College's field school in historical archaeology, directed by Dr. Norman F. Barka, professor of anthropology, conducted its fourth season of research on the island of St. Eustatius during the summer. The school included about 40 students from all over the country and from Canada. Among them was Eliza Graves, a senior at Phillips Exeter Academy, and daughter of President and Mrs. Graves. The President also visited the Caribbean island during the summer to see the project in action, and was made an honorary citizen.

Currently, there are two Eustatian students on Presidential Fellowships at the College.

Archaeological remains on the island are providing insight into the 18th and 19th century development of the Dutch possession, as well as the culture of the West Indies and its indirect effect on colonial North America.

One of the things the visiting Eustatian dignitaries will be pursuing while in this region is advice on how to promote more tourism to the island, thus providing a boost to the local economy.

CLASSY ACTION

If there's singing and dancing throughout Sorority Court; it must be Rush time. The Pi Phi's had one of the best routines this year, complete with their own words to pop songs and their brand of choreography that featured a lot of arm, leg and chassiss action.

Traywick fund aids students

President Thomas A. Graves, Jr., has announced the establishment of the Leland Traywick Student Emergency Loan Fund for MBA students of the School of Business Administration. The Traywick Fund has been made possible through a $5,000 gift from the wife of the late Dr. Traywick to the School of Business Administration Sponsors.

John Jamison, dean of the School of Business Administration, commented, "I can think of nothing more appropriate in memory of Dr. Traywick than the emergency loan fund. Lee's first concern was his students and he was dedicated to helping them along with their education in every way he could. There are stories about Lee's dipping into his own pocket to help a student out of a jam. I hope some of Lee's many friends will join with Mrs. Traywick in building the resources of The Leland Traywick Student Emergency Loan Fund as a continuing reminder to our MBA students of the qualities of integrity, good humor, sensitivity and sound thinking always shown by Dr. Traywick."

Dr. Leland Eldridge Traywick joined the faculty on Sept. 12, 1967 and served as the director of the Bureau of Business Research until his death on March 22, 1984. During his 17 years in Virginia, Dr. Traywick served as an advisor and consultant to many state and local officials and organizations. Prior to his arrival at the College, Dr. Traywick had served as President of the University of Omaha and of Southwest Missouri State College and on the faculties of Michigan State University, Western Reserve University, Stephens College and the University of Illinois, from which he received his Ph.D.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR STUDY ABROAD

Fulbrights to 50 Countries

About 700 Fulbright-Hays grants for graduate study or research abroad will be awarded this year. Deadline for filing applications for the 1985-86 year is Oct. 10. Fulbright program adviser Carolyn V. Blackwell in James Blair 112 can provide further information.

Applicants must be U.S. citizens, must hold a bachelor's degree or equivalent before the beginning date of the grant, and in most cases, be proficient in the language of the host country. Except for specific cases, candidates may not hold the Ph.D. at time of applications.

Peterhouse, Cambridge

The governing body of Peterhouse, Cambridge, annually offers a number of research studentships to men and women who are not already members of the College. If candidates of sufficient merit present themselves, elections into not more than three studentships may take place in June, 1985. Candidates must be under twenty-five years of age on December 1, 1985, and should have graduated by August, 1985. They must also intend to be Ph.D. candidates at the University of Cambridge. Interested students should write to: Senior Tutor, Peterhouse, Cambridge, England. Applications are due by April 1, 1985.

The governing body of Peterhouse, Cambridge, also intends to elect a number of Research Fellows not later than May 1, 1985. By Oct. 1, candidates must have passed all examinations required for a first degree at a university; they must be under thirty years of age by the same date. Candidates must be prepared to submit a sample of research already done in a field approved by the College. Completed application form and recommendation letters are due by Oct. 25. Interested students should write to: Master, Peterhouse, Cambridge, CB2 1RD, England.

Parents to see Thurber show

William Windom, a distinguished actor, will present his one-man show, "Thurber" on Saturday, Sept. 29, when the Parents' Weekend is held at the College. The performance will take place at 8 p.m. in William and Mary Hall.

Windom is possibly best remembered for his Emmy-winning lead in television's "My World . . . and Welcome To It," based on the writings of James Thurber. He has appeared on stages here and abroad in "Thurber" since 1972.

The weekend begins on Friday when many regularly scheduled classes will be open for parents' observations. A reception in Wren Yard, hosted by President and Mrs. Thomas A. Graves, Jr., will follow, topped off by a concert by the choir and College-Community Orchestra.

Lectures and tours will take place during the day on Saturday and the Windom performance will highlight the evening's activities. The only event scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 30, is an ecumenical worship service in Wren Chapel.

REGISTER TO VOTE

The deadline for registering to vote in the November 6 General Election is Saturday, Oct. 6, at 5 p.m. In addition to regular office hours, the voter registrars of Williamsburg, James City and York Counties have scheduled additional locations and times for registration.

Information about registering in the jurisdiction in which one resides may be obtained by visiting or calling the local registrars' offices at the following addresses and telephone numbers:

Williamsburg — Rm. 32, Williamsburg-James City County Courthouse, 220-0077, 8-4 Tuesdays; 9-5 Thursdays; 7:30 a.m.-5 p.m., Fridays

James City County — Rm. 17, Williamsburg-James City County Courthouse, 229-3355, 9-5, M-F

York County — Courthouse at Yorktown, 898-0144, 9-5, M-F

Absentee ballot applications may be acquired at any registrar's office in person or by mail upon written or telephone request.

Self study will host SACS team in April

As culmination of the College's 1984 Self-Study, the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools will send a team to the College on April 8-10, 1985. Members of the team will be selected by SACS, based on nominations from the College. The Steering Committee of the 1984 Self-Study is soliciting nominations from the College community.

Members of the team will include a chairman, who is often a university president, a business officer, a librarian, an administrator in the field of student development, and experts in each of the following fields: education, law, business administration, biological and marine sciences, physical sciences, humanities, social sciences and visual or performing arts. There is of course some flexibility in this list, but roughly this will be the complexion of the committee.

Guidelines for nominations specify that no member of the team should have had a consulting or visiting relationship with William and Mary for the last ten years, that no two may be from the same institution, and that they may be from any institution in North America, but not from Virginia.

The Steering Committee will screen the nominations and transmit them to President Graves for further action. Please mail nominations, together with very brief biographical details, to Hans C. von Baeyer, Physics Department, by October 1.

Faculty experts sought for Speakers' Bureau

Faculty members who would be available for speaking engagements to groups outside the College are sought for a new brochure being prepared by the Office of University Communications. If you are interested in speaking to local organizations and wish to be listed in the Speakers' Bureau brochure, please call in your name and topic to Rebecca Clark, extension 4331, or call 253-4226.

Public Advises

It appears that the red fire trucks of the city are becoming familiar sights on campus, due to fire alarm problems. The number of alarms experienced since the beginning of the fall term has averaged about 12 per week, according to David H. Charlton, assistant vice president for business affairs. Sensitive smoke detection systems installed in buildings are sounding off and there's not too much that can be done, he says. Service contracts, however, have been awarded to increase frequency of cleaning, checking and servicing of each smoke detection unit. The nature and location of alarms suggest that there is little room for improvement in technology or environment, he adds.

A College Committee on the Arts has been formed, to create a forum for those faculty members who teach in creative writing, dance, fine arts, music and theater. The group will discuss issues concerning the arts at the college, and it plans to hold another William and Mary Arts Festival next spring. About 30 members of the faculty have signed up to become members of the committee.

For several years parking and driving on sidewalks and grassy areas have been recognized as safety and maintenance problems. Pedestrian risks and repair costs have become increasingly difficult to manage as personnel and dollar reductions have been absorbed by College service departments.

In 1983, an ad hoc committee was appointed to develop and recommend a plan to protect these areas of our campus and to improve pedestrian safety while accommodating essential access to all buildings.

The plan, developed by the ad hoc committee and endorsed by the Traffic Advisory Council, has designated spaces near major buildings for service vehicles and loading/unloading. The space will be available for unrestricted parking, except during the hours of 7:45 a.m. and 4:45 p.m. weekdays. Service/vendor/loading permits are available from the Campus Police Department.

Unusual circumstances occasionally will require driving or parking on sidewalks or grass. Special permits can be obtained from the Campus Police Department. Members of the ad hoc committee and the Traffic Advisory Council urge all members of the College community to cooperate in the effort to improve pedestrian safety and maintain the condition of our campus walkways and grassy areas.

Contact the parking manager or the director of Campus Police at ext. 4596 if you have questions.

Dean of Student Affairs Sam Sadler is recuperating from a home accident that almost severed his left index finger. The culprit was an electric saw. Surgery was performed on the finger, and he is back at work with a cast from finger to elbow.

Be watching Channel 8 (WXEX, Richmond) Thursday, Sept. 20 at 7 p.m. for the "P.M. Magazine" program. The show was taped on the campus of William and Mary, using the Wren Building, the Sunken Gardens, and the President's House as backdrops. The film crew and "P.M. Magazine" personalities were on campus last Thursday preparing the show.

The International Law Society of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law is sponsoring a lecture Thursday, Sept. 20, at 3 p.m. in room 124 of the Law School. The speaker will be Desmond S. Green, professor of law at Trinity College, Dublin, Ireland. His topic is "Legal Aspects of the Northern Ireland Crisis." The public is invited and a reception will follow the lecture.

The first session of the Auxiliary Writing Program (Sept. 25-Oct. 18) will meet in Tucker Hall, room 202, from 7-8 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 25. Students may register in departmental offices and may call the office of the Dean of Undergraduate Studies, Arts and Sciences (ext. 4681) or the English department (exu. 4359) for more information.

Richard A. Williamson, associate dean of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law will discuss "The Rights of the Accused: What's Left After the Recent U.S. Supreme Court Term," at 7 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 19, in room 124 at the law school. The lecture is sponsored by the National Lawyers Guild and is open to the public without charge.

Williamson's talk will deal with the changes in the protections traditionally afforded accused individuals, particularly recent Supreme Court rulings.

College registry provides local volunteers who serve well

With the cooperation and encouragement of President Thomas A. Graves, Jr., Evelyn Cosby King began the William and Mary Service Registry in the spring of 1982. Since then it has been operating quietly but officially at the College.

Mrs. King, a graduate of 1943, and her husband, Hal, moved back to Williamsburg in 1981 to enjoy an early retirement from the life insurance business. Mr. King, a former tennis professional and basketball coach, is now with the Williamsburg Recreation Department.

"We're too young to retire from the mainstream," Mrs. King says. "Since Hal had his twilight job lined up, I had to find out what I was supposed to do with my time. Fortunately, Dr. Graves is an open-minded and caring college president who accepted my ideas."

Having been on Governor Mills E. Godwin's staff in the 1970s, Mrs. King knew about the gravity of budget cuts in state institutions and the element of insecurity involved in not knowing when the axe might fall. Much of the time cutbacks occur in secretarial and clerical positions and part-time jobs, many of which can often be aided, if only spasmodically, by the volunteer.

"However seemingly small the task, when we actively support the education of young people, we give a part of ourselves to the future," she says. "There are so many wonderful people in Williamsburg who have experience and good will to share with the College. And there are many receptive members of the College community who recognize the value of the volunteer."

At present Mrs. King is the sole recruiter and recruits from the inside out. That means she first makes contact with an office or department to find out if and what help is needed. If needed, she then tries to find a person who would be suited for the job and willing to take it. In some cases, there are volunteers who give a morning or afternoon a week on a regular basis. On the other hand, there are those who respond to emergency situations when they occur. That's why the group latched on to the title suggested by Marion Gibbs, a volunteer. The names are on the registry to be called when necessary.

"We are moving along slowly but surely and hope someday to have a registry expanded to touch all areas of William and Mary," Mrs. King notes. "And although we trust that such work brings its own rewards for the volunteer and affords the College an opportunity to know that Williamsburg is supportive, we have a couple of social events during the year to express our appreciation and encourage friendships. Last spring we lunched at the Alumni House. This fall Mrs. Graves is planning a coffee at the President's House."

Bagpipes sound beautiful to him

When Bruce Grant finished his Ph.D. in genetics at North Carolina State in 1968, his wife surprised him with a gift of bagpipes. He already played several other musical instruments, such as trombone and guitar, and had wanted to try the pipes. Since that time, he has become an accomplished piper and a founding member of the Strath James Pipe Band in Williamsburg.

The band will be part of the annual Williamsburg Scottish Festival on Saturday, Sept. 22, at the intramural playing field on Campus Drive.

Although he does have some Scottish blood flowing through his veins, Dr. Grant plays the bagpipes for the musicianship involved, and "because it's fun."

Campus Spotlight

"It's a difficult instrument to make sound good," he says, "so it's a real musical challenge. Playing it gives me discipline; the fingering has to be clean, and I am pleased when I do a good job. When played well, the pipes create a beautiful sound. Each note on the chanter forms its own harmony with the drones."

The bagpipe has an eight-hole melody pipe or chanter, and three harmonic drones fed from a leather bag inflated by a blowpipe. Some people believe it produces ungodly noises, but Bruce says when that's the case, it's not the instrument's fault, it's poor musicianship that gives a bad name to bagpiping.

He has taken piping lessons from some of Scotland's master musicians in summer classes held in Canada. In 1969, he and two other pipers formed the Strath James Pipe Band here. Strath is a Scottish word meaning river or valley, so the name encompasses the James River region. By 1970, it was a real band, with commuters coming from as far away as Richmond and Norfolk to practice every Friday night. Each year W&M students find their way to the band, he says. The group performs at fairs, parades, An Occasion for the Arts, and at Colonial Williamsburg, as well as at Scottish festivals along the east coast. There are women members as well as men. "We're an equal opportunity pipe band," says Bruce.

During the past summer, he spend three months in England on a biology research project. He packed his pipes — just in case he might find an affiliation with a pipe band, and indeed he did. Not long after arriving, he was invited to join the City of Liverpool Band, which sort of adopted him. He played with the band all summer, even traveling to Scotland for a musical engagement one weekend. Some of his friends worked as "buskers" or street musicians, playing in pubs, town squares, and subway stations, and several times they insisted he go along. It was amazing, he says, how much money the buskers could collect in a few hours. "You could almost make a living this way," he told his new friends, and they answered, "We do."

The personable biology professor so endeared himself to the Liverpool band that when he had to return to Williamsburg in late August, the group showed up at the train station to pipe him off, a gesture that really touched him.

"Even when it's very, very good, the bagpipe is viewed as a novelty act," Bruce says. "But real pipers make good music, and there is camaraderie among them."

Both of Bruce's daughters dance competitively at Scottish festivals, and win awards. He doesn't play for the judged competition, but sometimes at home he plays for them to practice their Scottish dances, and that gives him pleasure.

"Pipes are not widely appreciated as a musical instrument," he muses, "but I love the way they sound."

INSURANCE SEMINAR

Because of the complexity of the insurance industry with its many career opportunities, the College Placement Office has arranged a seminar for students who may be thinking of careers in insurance.

There will be a presentation on Tuesday, Oct. 9, at 3:30 p.m. at Morton 141 by Jim Jackson, manager, commercial lines division-Richmond, the Chubb Group of Insurance Companies.

Interested students should sign up at the Employer Information bulletin board in Morton Hall.
