Clark Kerr will give 1986 Charter Day address

Clark Kerr, former president of the University of California and a leading analyst of American higher education policy, will deliver the 1986 Charter Day address at the College, Saturday, Feb. 8.

The ceremonies, scheduled for 10:30 a.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall mark the 293rd anniversary of the granting of the College's charter by King William III and Queen Mary II of England on Feb. 8, 1693.

Kerr, who will receive an honorary doctor of humane letters degree at Charter Day, is both an internationally respected economist and a leading spokesman on issues and problems in higher education.

Another honorary doctorate in humane letters will be awarded to Joseph C. Smiddy, president emeritus of Clinch Valley College in Wise, Va. According to President Paul R. Verkuil, Smiddy was selected because of his leadership of that institution and his work in developing its faculty.

Kerr recently served as program director of an 18-member commission on presidential leadership appointed by the Association of Governing Boards of Universities and Colleges. The commission's two-and-a-half-year study, published last year in a report titled "Presidents Make a Difference: Strengthening Leadership in Colleges and Universities," received national media attention.

Students, tutors sought by ASP

Spring semester classes and sessions of the Rita Welsh Adult Skills Program will begin Monday, Jan. 20.

The program, located in Bryan Hall, is open to anyone 17 years or older who needs support in reading or mathematical skills or preparation for the GED, or who wants to learn English as a second language. The program is a United Way agency. There is no fee.

Persons interested in becoming students or tutors in the program are asked to stop by the office in Bryan Hall or call ext. 4644.

The author of The Uses of the University, now in its fourth edition, Kerr has had a long and distinguished career in higher education administration. After serving as president of the University of California from 1958 through 1967, he was chairman and executive director of the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education through 1973 and chairman and staff director of the Carnegie Council on Policy Studies in Higher Education from 1974 through 1979.

A native of Pennsylvania, Kerr received his bachelor's degree from Swarth-

CORE founder to retrace civil rights cause

James Farmer, founder of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) and one of the pre-eminent voices of the civil rights movement in the sixties, will review the civil rights movement in America in a talk at 7 p.m., Wednesday, Jan. 15 in the Campus Center Little Theatre.

Farmer's talk, arranged by the Office of Minority Affairs, is part of an observance of Martin Luther King Day on campus that includes an ecumenical memorial service at noon in the Wren Chapel, conducted by members of the Campus Ministries United, CAMU.

Farmer is expected to reiterate the theme of his book about the civil rights movement, Lay Bare the Heart, published in the spring of 1985. "Our nation deceives itself with the fiction that the task is complete and racism is dead and all is well. No greater lie has even been told, and the tellers of it, if they have eyes to see and minds to think, must know it," wrote Farmer. Born in Marshall, Texas, in 1920, Farmer received a B.S. degree from Wiley College in Marshall in 1938 and a B.Div. degree in 1941 from Howard University School of Religion. Since then he has received 10 honorary degrees.

He was race relations secretary for the Fellowship of Reconciliation from 1941 to 1945. During this time he also founded the Congress of Racial Equality. He became actively involved in the labor movement as special organizer for the Upholsterers International Union of North America in 1945. Ten years later he became the international representative for District Council 37 of AFSCME until 1959.

From 1959 to 1961 he served as program director for the NAACP, and subsequently as national director of CORE from 1961 to 1966. He lost a race for Congress in 1968 against Shirley Chisholm. Following a few years as a teacher, he accepted an appointment as assistant secretary of administration for HEW but resigned within two years out of frustration with the Nixon Administration.

Since 1970, he has been lecturing, writing and consulting on minority issues. He returned to the field of labor relations in August of 1976 when he accepted the post of associate director of the Coalition of American Public Employees and from 1977 to 1982 was executive director.

An internationally renowned and revered black leader, Farmer has traveled and lectured extensively throughout America and Europe and has published many articles on civil rights and social issues. Farmer is currently Commonwealth Visiting Professor at Mary Washington College.

President wants budget to include P.E. building funds

Gov. Charles S. Robb's 1986-88 budget represents a significant step in the direction of meeting the budgetary needs of the College, but one additional capital outlay project should be added during the period, according to President Paul R. Verkuil.

"The contents of the budget give us cause for cautious optimism about the upcoming legislative session," Verkuil said. "We are especially pleased that the governor has recognized the validity of the peer group concept for measuring faculty salaries. This gives the College of William and Mary the recognition in the budget process it has earned in national education arenas."

Verkuil said the major item the College will attempt to add to the budget is a new physical education facility, which was submitted as the second priority last fall. The proposal calls for the construction of a $4.5 million building in the new campus area to provide modern facilities replacing the outdated ones in Blow Gymnasium.

The top William and Mary capital priority, the renovation of and addition to Ewell Hall for the Department of Music, was included in the governor's budget.

Space available for Feb. 1 trip

The Lord Chamberlain Society has several seats available on a trip to Washington, D.C., Feb. 1 for the National Shakespeare Company's performance of "King Lear" with Douglas Campbell in the title role.

A motorcoach will leave Phi Beta Kappa parking lot Feb. 1 at 8 a.m. There will be three hours open for gallery touring before the 2 p.m. performance at the National Theatre. Tickets may be available for the "Treasure Houses of Britain" exhibition at the National Gallery but no group ticketing has been arranged.

Enroute home the group will stop at Matt's British Pub for dinner, and plans to arrive back in Williamsburg at 10 p.m.

Cost of transportation and a ticket to the play is $38. Those who would like to make reservations are asked to call Linda Williams, secretary in the theatre department, at ext. 4395.

Muscarelle opens two new exhibits

A public preview and reception for "AdoRnmenTs" and "Sacral Art" - two new exhibits at the Muscarelle Museum of Art - will be held Friday, Jan. 17, 5:30-7:30 p.m.

"AdoRnmenTs" features an unusual exhibit of jewelry designed by over 80 contemporary artists and architects. Participating artists exercised their creative genius to produce an exciting variety of objects from traditional and non-traditional materials. Some of the items incorporate tin cans, automotive parts, Jello molds, buttons, horns and dried fish!

Debaters earn 14 trophies

Three physics professors have been selected as Fellows of the American Physical Society. Carl E. Carlson, Lynn D. Doverspike and Roy L. Champion, who is also chairman of the physics department, were named to the society Nov.

Champion is a specialist in experimental atomic and molecular physics and ion-molecule interactions. He received both his bachelor's and master's degrees from North Carolina State University and his Ph.D. from the University of Florida.

A member of the William and Mary faculty since 1967, Champion achieved the rank of professor in 1972 and served as department chairman in 1982. He is the author of nearly 50 papers and publications, some co-authored with Doverspike.

Carlson, a specialist in particle physics theory, received his undergraduate and graduate degrees from Columbia University, where he was an instructor while a Ph.D. candidate. He was a research associate at Stanford University during 1968-70 and a research associate at the University of Chicago during 1970-72.

The author of over 40 articles and publications, Carlson began teaching at William and Mary in 1972, attaining the rank of professor in 1982.

Doverspike is a specialist in experimental and atomic molecular physics and ion-molecule interactions. He received his bachelor's degree from Oklahoma State University, his master's degree from U.C.L.A. and his Ph.D. from the University of Florida.

He began his teaching career at William and Mary in 1967 as an assistant professor, and attained the rank of professor in 1979. Doverspike also served as visiting scientist in France during 1977-78 at the Universite de Paris-Sud.

Jeanne Abbott Ito dies December 25

Jeanne Abbott Ito, wife of Satoshi Ito, associate professor of sociology, died Wednesday, Dec. 25, at their home. She is survived by her husband and two children, Loren and Todd, both of Williamsburg, and two brothers, Kenneth Abbott of Mount Pilar and Gerald Abbott of San Francisco.

Mrs. Ito, a Williamsburg resident for the past 17 years, was employed as a staff associate with the National Center for State Courts.

Funeral services were held Sunday, Dec. 29, with burial at Cedar Grove Cemetery.

The family requests that expressions of sympathy take the form of contributions to the National Center for State Courts, the College of William and Mary or the American Cancer Society.

The National Association of College Auxiliary Services has appointed Charles Lombardo, director of operations, a member of the 1986 annual meeting committee and chairman of the 1986 workshop committee.

Billie Brandon, director of administrative services, has been appointed to serve on the publications and research advisory board of the College and University Personnel Association.

(more Newsmakers on p. 4)

During graduate school, Doverspike was a research engineer for Hughes Aircraft and a research associate at the University of Florida. He is the author of over 50 papers and abstracts, and has been active on campus as a member of the Board of Student Affairs Committee (1973-74), the Discipline Committee (1971-present) and the Educational Policy Committee (1974-present).

Outstanding work earns students Education awards

The 1985-86 School of Education Fellowships for outstanding work at the graduate level have been awarded to Liz Acosta-Lewis and William Tramosch.

Each receives an unrestricted award of $1,100.

Acosta-Lewis, who is completing work on a master's degree in higher education, plans to pursue a doctorate. A 1980 graduate of Randolph-Macon College, she currently has an assistantship with the dean of the School of Education. Next semester she will be an intern in the Office of University Relations.

Acosta-Lewis also plans to work as an intern in the publications department of Virginia Commonwealth University next fall to broaden her perspective on career options in higher education.

For Tramosch, a doctoral student in education, the fellowship is icing on the cake. A museum specialist, he will go to New Zealand in April for a six-month Fulbright Teaching and Research Fellowship. Although his teaching assignments will take him to different parts of New Zealand, he will be headquartered at the Auckland City Art Gallery.

Tramosch's career in museums began as an interpreter at Sturbridge Village in Massachusetts. He joined Colonial Williamsburg in 1979 and is now special programs officer and director of interpretive education.

He will spend Jan. through March in a management program at Oxford University in England. His dissertation, which he hopes to finish before he leaves for England, is on mid-career professional training for museum workers in Great Britain and the U.S.

A graduate of the University of California, Berkeley, Tramosch received a master's degree in American studies from William and Mary. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and the museum studies committee of the American Association of Museums and is head of the education committee for the Council of the American Association for State and Local History.

Tramosch said he would give the check for $1,100 to his wife, "who has helped me through this, before I spend it unwisely."

John Oakley of the classical studies department recently attended the 87th annual meeting of the Archaeological Institute of America and the American Philological Association in Washington, D.C., where he presented a paper titled "The Classical Athenian Wedding." This paper was part of a panel, "Marriage Rituals in Greek Tradition, Ancient and Modern," which was sponsored by the Modern Greek Studies Association. Mr. Oakley was also a panelist in a later session on iconography. His book review of R. Lindner's Der Raub der Persephone in der antiken Kunst appeared in the American Journal of Archaeology 89 (1985): 700-701.

Anthropologists honor Altshuler

Juniors win Hill scholarships

Two juniors at the College, Lisa Clement of Springfield, Va., and Elizabeth Harmon of Wattsburg, Pa., have been awarded Frederick L. Hill mathematics education teaching scholarships.

The awards of $1,000 each toward tuition are made possible by a fund established by Mr. Hill, a Williamsburg resident, and a matching donation from his employer, the Anheuser-Busch Corporation.

Elizabeth Harmon

Mr. Hill set up the scholarships to emphasize the attention he feels should be given to good preparation in mathematics. Both recipients plan to teach high school math.

Clement wants to be a mathematics teacher because she feels she can make a contribution. "I think I can find a way to communicate with students who don't like mathematics," she says. "I think I have the patience to work with students who don't understand the material."

An active participant in the Student Association, Clement has served on both the social and finance committees. She played rugby for three semesters and is interested in coaching tennis. She enjoys working with children and has been a counselor at Camp Varsity in Madison, Va.

Lisa Clement

A member of the Colonial Baptist Church, she teaches the children's church and has been a member of the church choir.

Stan Brown named SCPA president

Stanley E. Brown, placement director, was elected president of the Southern College Placement Association at the annual conference held in Tampa, Fla., during Dec.

Brown has been involved with career placement at the College since 1968. He has also served as director of corporate relations and as acting vice president for development.

The speaker, Michael West, is a Christian Science practitioner and teacher and a former Christian Science minister for the armed services in New Zealand.

West was born and educated in London and has served both in the Royal Air Force and the Royal Navy. He has served the Mother Church in Boston in several capacities including trustee of the Christian Science Publishing Society and treasurer of the Mother Church.

$100 prize offered for best poem

The Academy of American Poets in conjunction with the Department of English is offering a $100 prize to the student submitting the best poem or group of poems. Deadline for the contest is April 1. Poems should be submitted to Mrs. Smith, Tucker 102, or Mr. Heacox, Tucker 8.

The Academy's program of college prizes began in 1955 with 10 participating schools. This year contests are being held at over 130 colleges and universities. Every five years the Academy publishes an anthology of selected prize-winning poems, edited by a prominent American poet.

The Academy, now entering its 52nd year, is a non-profit organization devoted to stimulating interest in the poetry of the U.S. In addition to the College Prize Program, the Academy sponsors fellowships, readings and several other awards.

The statute, drafted by Thomas Jefferson, was originally presented at the Capitol in Williamsburg in 1779 and finally approved by the Assembly in Richmond, Jan. 16, 1786.

Bank internships

Each summer Equitable Bank of Baltimore awards eight paid summer internships to rising juniors and seniors in all majors as well as grad students. Designed to familiarize interns with banking issues and trends in the field, the program focuses on Equitable in particular and includes weekly seminars, guest speakers, and individually tailored projects.

An informational seminar will be held Thursday, Jan. 23 at 7 p.m. in Morton 101. Appropriate dress is requested.

For more information, contact the Career Planning Office.

Next faculty club party in greenhouse

The Faculty Club will hold its third social event of the year Friday, Jan. 24 in the Greenhouse on top of Millington Hall, 5:30-7:30 p.m. The usual beverages and hors d'oeuvres will be served. The Grey Panthers have been invited, and free plant cuttings will be available.

This year's fee for membership in the Faculty Club is $14, which entitles holders to reduced rates at all parties. Members in good standing are charged $4 per person per party, while non-members are charged $7. Non-drinking members are charged $3 per person, while non-drinking non-members are charged $7.

The Faculty Club is open to all members of the faculty and administration of the College. Individuals who join the club between now and Jan. 24 (including those who join at the door) will be admitted to this party along with a spouse or one guest at no extra charge. Membership fees may be paid to Norman Fashing, treasurer, Department of Biology. The Faculty Club plans three other so-

PhoneFriend service begins Feb. 3

Beginning Feb. 3, the Williamsburg United Methodist Church will offer PhoneFriend, a free service for "latchkey children." It will operate on regular school days from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m. and will serve children in grades K-6 in the areas of Williamsburg, James City County and the Bruton District of York County.

PhoneFriend, developed by the American Association of University Women, is an after-school telephone line to offer information, help and comfort to children who are at home alone. It is a "back-up" for emergencies and a place to call just to talk to an adult when parents are unavailable.

Volunteers answering the phone located at Williamsburg United Methodist Church will be trained to listen to children who express feelings of loneliness or fear, make referrals where the situation suggests (e.g., contact police to check on a child's report of a prowler) and provide information to callers (e.g., what to do about spills, minor accidents, wet clothing, books left at school and over 100 other problems). If necessary, volunteers will attempt to contact parents.

Because most children seem able to deal with concerns when they have a supportive listener, volunteers will encourage children to solve their own problems by asking "What would your parents want you to do in this situation?"

The intent of the program will be to help families and not place them in a position of suspected neglect. Confidentiality will be respected. For data collection purposes callers will be asked for their first names, schools they attend and ages. Phone numbers will be requested only if the volunteer believes it might be necessary to call the child with additional information.

Further information on PhoneFriend may be obtained by calling 229-1771 and leaving your name and number.

War broadcasts

Landon Arts Productions will present The War Years, an intimate look at the radio personalities and broadcasts of World War II, Monday evenings, Jan. 20-Feb. 10, at the Green Leaf Cafe at 9 p.m. Admission is free.

PLAN FOR SNOW AND ICE REMOVAL

In accordance with past practices, should snow and/or ice occur, the following plan for removal will be followed. Priorities listed in this plan will not be altered without compelling reasons.

Students, faculty, and staff are urged to exercise extreme caution when there is snow or ice on the ground, and to use primary (brick) pathways and main entrances to buildings during such periods.

Priorities are as follows:

1. Campus streets are given first priority with emphasis on intersections, DuPont Bridge and the steeper inclines.
2. Entrances to student residences and academic buildings are given second priority when classes are in session. Primary walkways and access areas for handicapped residents (as identified by the dean of students) also are given second priority. Priority for individual buildings is based on the number of people served by those buildings.
3. Side entrances and secondary walkways will be cleared as manpower becomes available. These areas will continue to be "worked" as long as hazardous conditions exist.
4. Parking lots will be plowed when both manpower and equipment are available.
5. Unpaved pathways will not receive snow removal attention. Use of these pathways during adverse weather conditions should be avoided.

The method of snow removal (melting agents v. broom, shovel, plow blade, etc.) will be determined by the superintendent of landscaping.

The cooperation of the entire College community is essential during periods when snow and ice are on the ground. Prime concern must be for the safety of students, faculty and staff. Accordingly, we will appreciate your concerned cooperation.

WILLIAM AND MARY

NEWS

The WILLIAM AND MARY NEWS is issued weekly during the school year for faculty, staff and students of the College and distributed on campus Wednesday afternoons.

News items and notices for the calendar should be delivered to the News Office, James Blair Hall 310A, no later than 5 p.m. the Friday before publication.

Classified advertisements are carried as a service to members of the College community only. There is a charge of $3 for an advertisement of 40 words or less in three consecutive issues. Copy changes constitute a new advertisement. Copy and payment should reach the News Office no later than 5 p.m. the Friday preceding the first insertion.
