Hinz Leadership Fellows established in Law School

A gift of $250,000 to the Marshall-Wythe School of Law Foundation will be used to create the Mary Siegrist Hinz Leadership Fellows Fund, a scholarship fund in memory of a former law student, according to Timothy J. Sullivan, dean of the law school.

With the assistance of the Norfolk law firm of Vandeventer, Black, Meredith and Martin, the fund has been created with a gift by Mary Hinz's husband, Lt. Dan Hinz, U.S.N., and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Siegrist of Alexandria.

The Mary Siegrist Hinz Fellowships will be used to provide merit scholarships to outstanding law students each academic year. "The scholarships will be awarded to individuals who meet the criteria established in recognition of the attributes that Mary Siegrist Hinz possessed: academic excellence, unselfish citizenship and athletic involvement," said Sullivan.

Mrs. Hinz had completed her second year at Marshall-Wythe in the summer of 1984 when she was struck and killed by a truck while riding her bicycle in Florida. She was training for a triathlon at the time. At 25, she had already distinguished herself in her academic, professional and personal life as a person of high intelligence, creativity and outstanding athletic ability, according to Sullivan.

Messmer heads fund drive

In 1983-84, William and Mary met two-thirds of demonstrated financial need of entering undergraduates if they were from Virginia and only one-third if they were not. Declining federal subsidies combined with increasing demonstrated need have resulted in a steadily diminishing ability on the part of the university to meet this need. The shortfall against demonstrated need for undergraduates in 1984-85 was $1.37 million.

The 1984 Report of Self-Study and the follow-up Long Range Planning Report cited the problem of student financial aid to be one of the major concerns facing William and Mary.

Work begins on museum addition

The Evans Construction Company of Sandston began work this week on a $1,146,000 addition to the Muscarelle Museum of Art.

Work will take approximately one year and will add 10,000 square feet of space to the existing museum. The two-story addition will include work and preparation space on the first floor and five galleries on the second. The construction site has already been fenced off. The access road between the museum and Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall will remain open.

Class of 1935 establishes professorship

Members of the Class of 1935 have made gifts and commitments in excess of $220,000 to establish an endowed professorship in government.

Income from the permanent endowment will qualify for matching funds from the Commonwealth of Virginia Eminent Scholars Program and will supplement the state salary base of the professor.

In 1983 members of the class of 1935 looked ahead to their 50th reunion and initiated the most aggressive reunion campaign in the College's history.

The late Blake T. Newton Jr., of Washington, D.C., chaired the 50th reunion committee, with members A. Addison Roberts of Philadelphia (chairman of the class gift committee), Ernest W. Goodrich of Surry, the late Ruth Weeks Harvey of Richmond, Anne Nenzel Lambert of Williamsburg, James E. Mallonee of Wilmington, Del., John A. Mapp of Richmond and Virginia Mister Walker of Capeville.

"The success of the class of 1935 effort has become a landmark in alumni accomplishments," said Melvyn D. Schiavelli, dean of the faculty of arts and sciences. "By volunteering as a group such tremendous support of the faculty, these alumni have led the way for other classes planning reunion gifts."

The Class of 1935 Professorship in Government will bring to campus an expert on public and international affairs, who also will be designated the Director of International Studies and will administer and be responsible for the development and enhancement of academic programs in this area, says Schiavelli. Administration of the Office of International Studies on campus will continue to be carried out by Carolyn Blackwell, administrative director.

Members of the Class of 1935 hope the new position will help recognize the important role of William and Mary in training students for careers in public affairs.

Governor names three to BOV

Governor Gerald L. Baliles has appointed Pamela Harriman, Carlisle Humelsine and James Brinkley to the Board of Visitors.

Mrs. Harriman of Middleburg, Va., is the wife of former New York Governor W. Averill Harriman. She has been active in Democratic Party politics and was named Democratic Woman of the Year by the Women's National Democratic Club in 1980. That year she founded a political action committee called Democrats for the 1980s.

Humelsine, who resides in Williamsburg, recently retired as chairman of the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation. He is active with a number of organizations and serves as chairman of the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

Brinkley is president of Legg Mason Wood Walker, Inc., a Baltimore, Md., brokerage firm. He is a 1959 graduate of the College and has served on the President's Council and as a member of the College Endowment Association and the Society of the Alumni. Brinkley and his wife, Dana, a 1960 graduate, are co-chairmen of the 1985-86 Alumni Fund.

Baliles reappointed former Lt. Governor Richard Davis for another term.

Leaving the Board are Jeanne Kinnamon and Caroline Egelhoff, both of Williamsburg.

NEWSMAKERS

James Axtell's recent book, The Invasion Within: The Contest of Cultures in Colonial North America, published by Oxford University Press in Nov., has been awarded the 1985 Gilbert Chinard Prize for the most "distinguished scholarly book in the history of Franco-American relations by a Canadian or American author." The award, made jointly by the Institut Francais de Washington and the Society for French Historical Studies, carries a cash stipend of $1,000. The book was also chosen by the History Book Club as a Feb. selection and by the International Bulletin of Missionary Research as one of the "Fifteen Outstanding Books of 1985 for Mission Studies." A review in the New York Times Book Review (Nov. 3) said that "The Invasion Within is the best introduction now available to the problem of cultural conversion in the New World."

James C. Livingston, religion department, spoke at a conference on "Church, State and the First Amendment," Feb. 13-15, sponsored by the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Livingston responded to an address by sociologist Robert Bellah of the University of California, Berkeley, on religion, the individual and the community - themes central to his recent widely discussed book Habits of the Heart (1985).

George Bass, associate professor of education, and Harvey Perkins, Ed.D. '85, were the keynote speakers at the 25th annual Undergraduate Workshop in Education at Hampton University on Feb. 17. The topic of their presentation was "Trends in Computer Education: Managing the Classroom for Effective CAI."

Ronald N. Giese, professor of education, gave a presentation on Feb. 20 to the Tidewater Reading Councils. The presentation, titled "Using Local Newspaper Articles about Halley's Comet to Teach Reading and Language Arts," was made at the Chamberlain Hotel in Hampton, Va.

James W. Beers, associate professor of education, will be serving as a test evaluator for Science Research Associates. Over the next several years he will be evaluating the reading and language arts components of existing SRA tests and assisting in the development of future SRA tests. SRA achievement tests and the SRA Survey of Basic Skills Tests are widely used by school systems throughout the U.S. to measure student performance in reading, language arts, mathematics, science and social studies.

Will Hausman, associate professor of economics, recently attended the Business History Conference in Columbus, Ohio. He presented a paper, "The Relative Economic Efficiency of Private versus Municipal Waterworks in the 1890s," co-authored with David Kemme, Wichita State University, and John Neufeld, University of North Carolina at Greensboro. The paper will be published in the journal Business and Economic History. It also was announced at the meeting that Hausman was elected to a three-year term as a trustee of the Business History Conference.

N. Bartlett Theberge, professor of marine science at VIMS, was an invited speaker at the fifth annual Virginia Wetlands Management Symposium sponsored by Hampton University and the Virginia Marine Resources Commission. Theberge discussed the Virginia Wetlands Act and the future of wetlands management in Virginia.

Eugene M. Burreson, associate professor of marine science at VIMS, has been invited to participate in a workshop to survey the parasites of Great Barrier Reef fishes. The scientists will spend eight days on Heron Island, Australia, during Aug., collecting and examining fishes. Burreson will be responsible for leeches and blood parasites studies. The workshop is being sponsored by the Australian government.

Robert J. Huggett, professor of marine science at VIMS, chaired a committee to review and evaluate the Environmental Protection Agency's dioxin research strategy. The following research areas were covered in the review: technology assessment, monitoring, environmental effects and human health assessment. The final report, "Review of the Status of Dioxin Research in the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency," was submitted in Jan.

Huggett has also been appointed to a committee of the National Research Council, National Academy of Sciences, to review pyrethroid pesticides and their ecological risk assessment.

Dennis A. Thoney, a graduate student in the estuarine and coastal ecology department at VIMS, presented a paper titled "Morphology and Ecology of Multicalyx cristata (Aspidocetylea), a Gallbladder Parasite of Elasmobranchs," at the 60th annual meeting of the American Society of Parasitology held in Athens, Ga.

Thoney has published, or had accepted for publication, several papers this year: "The Development and Ecology of the Oncomiracidium of Microcotyle gebustis (Platyhelminthes: Monogenea), a Gill Parasite of the Black Rockfish," Transactions of the American Microscience Society, 106:38-50; "Post-Larval Growth of Microcotyle sebastis (Platyhelminthes: Monogenea), a Gill Parasite of the Black Rockfish," co-authored with E. M. Burreson, Transactions of the American Microscience Society (in press); and "Ecological Aspects of Multicalyx cristata (Aspidocetylea) Infections in Northwest Atlantic Elasmobranchs," Helminthological Society of Washington (in press).

Evon P. Ruzicki, associate professor of marine science at VIMS, presented a co-authored paper with Paul V. Hyer, Kevin Kiley and M. S. Jablonsky at the fourth Working Symposium in Oceanographic Data Systems, co-sponsored by the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (IEEE) and the Scripps Institute of Oceanography in La Jolla, Calif. The paper, "Imaging System Techniques Applied to Analysis of Hydraulic and Finite Element Model Experiment Results," was followed by a video presentation showing two-layered, nontidal estuarine circulation in the James River and upstream progression of the tide in the James.

Maurice P. Lynch, professor of marine science at VIMS, and Gene Silberhorn, associate professor of marine science, participated in the Mid-Atlantic Coastal Biosphere Reserve Site Selection Committee in Annapolis, Md. The regional committee, co-sponsored by UNESCO and the National Park Service, is responsible for selecting natural coastal areas from New England to North Carolina for eventual nomination in the International Man and the Biosphere Program (MAB). Lynch serves as a chairman of the committee.

Silberhorn recently participated in the Assateague Island Erosion Control Workshop at Ocean City, Md. He was one of 12 selected committee members who reported on erosion control alternatives for the National Park Service. The workshop was sponsored by the Park Service and Rutgers University.

Dale Hoak, professor of history, organized a session of the American Historical Association meeting in New York City, Dec. 29, on the theme, "Political Thought and Political Action in Tudor England." The session commemorated the 500th anniversary of the founding of the Tudor dynasty. At the session Hoak delivered a paper on "A New Framework for Tudor Politics: Court, Council, and Parliament."

At the Institute of Historical Research, University of London, Nov. 18, Hoak presented a paper to the Tudor-Stuart seminar on "Privy Chamber Finance and the Question of 'Modernity' in Tudor Government." At the Huntington Library, San Marino, Calif., on Feb. 22, he offered the findings of his latest research to the British History Seminar in a paper on "The Secret History of the Tudor Court: Privy Coiffers and Privy Purse, 1540-1553."

Williamsburg Players Award to honor Scammon, McCulley

The Williamsburg Players have established an annual scholarship program honoring Howard Scammon and the late Cecil McCulley.

Awards will be made to graduating high school seniors planning collegiate or professional training in theatre or dance.

Two awards of $500 will be made to outstanding students nominated by their teachers. Awards will be renewable should the recipient continue training in theatre or dance.

Howard Scammon, professor of theatre and speech emeritus, is former chairman of the department at the College and for many years directed the successful outdoor drama "The Common Glory," written by Paul Green. Scammon has directed plays for the Williamsburg Players and the Covenant Players. He has also participated in the Virginia Opera Association performances in Norfolk.

An enthusiastic participant in the theatre life of the community, Cecil McCulley taught drama and literature as a member of the English faculty of the College and was a highly respected reviewer of dramatic presentations in the Tidewater area.

Information about the new program will be sent out to area teachers by mid-April. Nominees will be screened in May, and winners will be announced in early June. Anyone wishing to donate to the program may do so by calling Frank Stevenson at 253-2426 or the Williamsburg Players at 229-1679.

Education secretary retires

Gloria Thisdell and her husband Robert are pictured with John Nagle, dean of the School of Education, Donald J. Herrmann, professor of education emeritus, and associate dean Virginia Laycock, at a retirement party hosted by the School of Education in the foyer of Andrews Hall. Dean Nagle thanked Mrs. Thisdell for her many contributions to the School and also for her "irreverence." She was always there with a keen wit to problem solve and get the job done," he said. Mrs. Thisdell was secretary to Dean Laycock at her retirement. She was a member of the College staff for 14 years.

Students present tales in French

A program of folk tales in French, "Contes de fees et de forets" will be presented by students at the Williamsburg Regional Library Theatre on Scotland Street, Friday and Saturday, March 21 and 22.

General admission is $2 at the door; William and Mary students with valid I.D.s will be admitted free.

Performances will be given nightly at 8 p.m. There will be a special open dress-matinee at 3 p.m., Friday for grade school and high school students of French and their teachers.

The program will include "Little Red Ridinghood," "Blue Beard," "Puss in Boots" and two African folk tales.

For further information, contact Clare Mather, Department of Modern Languages, ext. 4362. This program is funded in part by the Williamsburg Arts Commission.

In a scene from "Le Petit Chaperon rouge," (Little Red Ridinghood) Katherine Kitzmann, in the title role, is surprised by the wolf, played by Christy Musser.

Talk on 1915 maritime incident

Phyllis A. Hall, adjunct assistant professor of history, will give a slide lecture on "German Raiders at Hampton Roads," Tuesday, March 25 at 7:30 p.m. in Morton 341.

In 1915 the U.S. was a neutral observer in the European war. This neutrality was jeopardized when a German sea raider, the Prinz Eitel Friedrich, arrived in Hampton Roads after sinking the U.S. merchant ship William P. Frye. Ms. Hall's talk, sponsored by the History Graduate Student Association, will focus on the Frye incident and the internment of the Prinz Eitel Friedrich and another German raider, the Kronprinz Wilhelm.

Ms. Hall received her doctorate in French Renaissance history from Columbia University in 1975.

Confucian imprint on China lecture topic

John R. Watt, executive director of the American Bureau for Medical Advancement in China will give a lecture on "The Confucian Imprint on Modern China and Chinese Life," at 4 p.m., Thursday, March 27 in the Moot Court Room in Tucker Hall.

Watt's appearance on campus is part of a week-long lecture tour organized by the Virginia Consortium for Asian Studies of which William and Mary is a member. Watt will also lecture at ODU, Emory and Henry, Washington and Lee, Randolph Macon Women's College, Lynchburg College, UVA and Randolph Macon College in Ashland. His visit here will be co-sponsored by the East Asian Studies Association and the Lectures Committee.

His topic is of considerable relevance today, says Craig Canning, faculty adviser to the East Asian Studies Association, because "as Watt will argue, Confucian values remain strong in Japan and the new industrial countries of East Asia, such as South Korea, Taiwan, Hong Kong and Singapore, and even in China itself where a Marxist revolution sought to eradicate Confucianism. Dr. Watt will examine the elements of Confucianism that not only seem compatible with modern life in East Asia but that also appear to have made a positive contribution to economic and social development in that region."

Watt holds a Ph.D. in Japanese and Chinese from Columbia University as well as an M.A. from Harvard and a B.A. from Oxford University. The District

Republicans win best in state

At the annual convention of the College Republican Federation of Virginia, held in Virginia Beach, Feb. 21-23, the William and Mary club was recognized as the best in the state and its scrapbook received a first-place award.

William and Mary had the largest delegation at the convention.

At the board meeting following the election of new state officers, Club Chairman Howard Estes was appointed to serve on the 3rd District Republican Committee, while First Vice Chairman Bill Hatchett was named a voting member of the Republican Committee of the 1st Congressional District (which includes the College).

Magistrate in Late Imperial China (Columbia University Press, 1972) is one in a long list of publications. Watt has served as the academic dean at Windham College and as director of international programs at Johnson College, University of Redlands. He is also editor of the American Asian Review and a member of the Modern China Seminar at Columbia University.

Kearns to speak at colloquium

Phil Kearns of the Department of Computer Science, University of Pittsburg, will speak on "RISCy ADA: Efficient Tasking of Processors with Large Register Sets," at the March 24 computer science colloquium at 3 p.m. in Jones 302. Coffee will be served at 2:30 p.m.

Bay is topic of law speaker

The Environmental Law Society of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law will present Jeter M. Watson, staff attorney for the Chesapeake Bay Foundation at 7:30 p.m. tonight, Wednesday, March 19 in Room 127 of the law school.

Watson will discuss the current initiative to clean up the Chesapeake Bay, the Gwaltney case brought by CBF and currently on appeal and employment prospects in environmental law. A question-and-answer period will follow his talk.

Jobs at Busch

Busch Gardens has positions available for the summer and weekends when the park is open. Pay varies depending upon the job. Bonus plan available. If interested, apply in person at the employment office at Busch Gardens, 9 a.m.-4 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

Special Discount

Water Country USA is inviting faculty, staff and students to enjoy a full day of "Fun in the Sun" for half the price, May 10-11 and 17-18. By presenting a college ID at the admissions gate, persons will receive a $5 discount for themselves and families and friends in their party.

SA NOTES

EXECUTIVE SECRETARY

A salaried position with responsibilities for hiring, designing office informational and filing systems, acquisition and management of office flow. A good position for management experience and flexible hours. Applications must be returned by March 28 and are available in the SA office daily between 1 and 5 p.m.

CHANGE-OF-PACE DIRECTOR

A salary position that entails the organization of a weekly coffeehouse program for musicians and performers to provide entertainment for interested students. Those with musical ability or with knowledge of the musical community are encouraged to apply. Applications must be returned by March 28 and are available in the SA office, daily between 1 and 5 p.m.

SCHLAFLY-WEDDINGTON DEBATE

Phyllis Schlafly and Sarah Weddington will debate contemporary feminist issues and other controversial subjects such as ERA, nuclear weapons, the Reagan Administration, abortion and economics at W&M Hall, March 17. The debate begins at 7:30 p.m. Admission is free to students, faculty and staff; $3 to the community.

Judge Bonney on Chapter XI

Ned Waxman of the School of Business Administration faculty, has invited the Honorable Hal Bonney, United States Bankruptcy Judge in Norfolk to speak on Chapter XI reorganization under the U.S. Bankruptcy Code at 3 p.m., Friday, March 21 in Chancellors 102.

Members of the faculty, law students and members of the Collegiate Management Association are invited to attend.

Braxton, Mott, Klappert to participate in Festival

The College will celebrate the annual Writers' Festival on campus March 25-27, with appearances by five authors, among them poet Peter Klappert, former writer-in-residence at the College and founder of the festival. All sessions are open to the public free of charge.

The author of The Idiot Princess of the Last Dynasty (Knopf, 1984), Klappert founded the festival as the "Poetry Upheaval" while writer-in-residence in 1977. Operating with meagre resources, Klappert assembled a cast that included such nationally prominent poets as Philip Levine and Daniel Mark Epstein.

This year Klappert will appear with poet and William and Mary alumnus Mark Craver; translator and novelist Stephen Becker; poet and William and Mary faculty member Joanne Braxton; and this year's writer-in-residence Michael Mott.

The festival begins Tuesday, March 25, with a conversation with Becker at 2:30 p.m. in the Campus Center, rooms A and B. Joanne Braxton will talk about "Black Grandmothers: Sources of Artistic Consciousness and Personal Strength" and will read from her poetry at 4 p.m. in Tucker Hall 120. Stephen Becker will give a fiction reading of his work Tuesday at 8 p.m., also in Tucker 120.

Klappert will give a reading of his works at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Tucker 120. Also that day Mark Craver will read from his works at 4 p.m., also in Tucker 120.

Thursday's schedule includes a conversation with Klappert and Craver at 9:45 a.m. in the Campus Center, rooms A and B. Mott, novelist, poet and author of the best-selling biography on Thomas Merton, will round out the festival with a fiction reading at 8 p.m. in Tucker 120.

Klappert, a talented witty reader who has performed at more than 150 colleges and universities, arrived on the poetic scene with the publication of Lugging Vegetables to Nantucket, selected by Stanley Kunitz for the 1970 Yale Series of Younger Poets Award. He is currently associate professor of English and director of the Graduate Writing Program at George Mason University.

Craver, who graduated from William and Mary in 1979 with a bachelor's degree in philosophy, is beginning a promising career in poetry. His first book, The Problem of Grace, has just been released by Lost Road Publishers. He also holds a master of fine arts degree in poetry from George Mason University and currently lives in Arlington.

Novelist and translator Becker, who now lives in the British Virgin Islands, has taught at several American universities and lectured in China, France and Mexico. He has published 10 novels, with the last five - including The Blue-Eyed Shan, a Book-of-the-Month Club alternate (1982) - appearing under the Random House imprint. His 11 works of translation from the French include two titles on the Holocaust: The Last of the Just (1961), by Andre Schwarz-Bart and Elie Wiesel's The Town Beyond the Wall, (1964).

Braxton, an assistant professor of English at William and Mary, is both a practicing poet and scholar of American literature. She received her Ph.D. from Yale University, and her published poetry includes the book, Sometimes I Think of Maryland (Sunbury Press, 1977). A recent recipient of William and Mary's Jefferson Teaching Award for her accomplishments in the classroom, Braxton has been granted a research fellowship in the fall of 1986 from the American Council of Learned Societies.

Mott, the author of The Seven Mountains of Thomas Merton (Houghton Mifflin, 1984), began the book in 1978 during his first stint as writer-in-residence at William and Mary. The biog-

Pollio talks begin March 20

Under the auspices of the United Chapters of Phi Beta Kappa Visiting Scholar Program, Howard R. Pollio, Distinguished Service Professor in Psychology and senior research fellow at the University of Tennessee's Learning Research Center, will visit the campus, March 20-21.

As part of his visit, Pollio will give a public lecture at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, March 20, in Tucker auditorium on "Taking Humor Seriously."

Pollio will begin his campus visit on Thursday, March 20 with a discussion and bag lunch at 11:30 a.m. in the Creative Arts House. He will speak on "Grades: A Tiger Looks at Its Stripes." This session is sponsored by the School of Education and the Psychology Club.

"Projects in Humor Research," will be the topic of his classroom discussion in psychology 485 at 3:30 p.m. in Millington 123.

March 21

Pollio will give a class lecture in psychology 351 on "Seven, Plus or Minus Two: Myths about Metaphor," at 10 a.m., in Millington 23. This session is open to all interested students and faculty. He will also speak at a colloquium at 4 p.m. in Millington 21 on "What Would a Psychology of Human Experience Look Like?" There will be a small reception for Pollio at 3:30 p.m. in Millington 230.

raphy spent nine weeks on the New York Times best-seller list, was selected as a Book-of-the-Month alternate and garnered the runner-up slot for the 1984

Pulitzer Prize in biography. Mott's varied writing career also includes six volumes of poetry, two novels and two children's novels.

C.W. series opens March 25

Colonial Williamsburg is offering a series of lectures March 28-April 10 on "Ancestors of American Architecture" highlighting dwellings in Britain, Germany and the Low Countries.

The lectures will be given in the Henrage Auditorium of the DeWitt Wallace Decorative Arts Gallery. Tickets are $5 per lecture or $25 for the entire series of six programs. Tickets are available by calling Ms. Elke Hall at 229-1000, ext. 2925.

The series opens at 7:30 p.m., March 28 with a lecture by Cary Carson, director of research for Colonial Williamsburg, and Camille Wells, editor of Perspectives in Vernacular Architecture, speaking on "English Building Traditions in the Chesapeake Colony."

Other series speakers and their topics are as follows (all programs begin at 7:30 p.m.):

Robert St. George, professor in the American and New England Studies Program and the Preservation Studies Program, Boston University, "English Building Traditions in New England," March 31.

Orlando Ridout V, director of surveys for the Maryland Historical Trust, "Farmsteads and Early Agricultural Buildings in Maryland," April 2

Dell Upton, professor of architecture, University of California, Berkeley, "Dutch Building Traditions in North America," April 4.

Edward A. Chappell, director of architectural research, Colonial Williamsburg, "German Building Traditions in North America," April 8.

Carl R. Lounsbury, a research associate, Colonial Williamsburg, "Early Public Buildings," April 10.

Campus discusses apartheid in South Africa

Last week saw the most extensive campus debate to date on the question of apartheid and the appropriate position the College should take with respect to its investments in companies operating in South Africa.

The Ad Hoc Committee on South Africa presented a resolution of selective divestiture to the Faculty of Arts and Sciences on Tuesday. The faculty passed it almost unanimously (one dissenting vote) calling on the Board of Visitors to require all companies to be signatory to the Sullivan Principles to be eligible for College investment, and to divest from signatory companies that do not satisfactorily implement the Principles. The resolution also called for divestiture from companies, signatory or not, that deal directly with the government of South Africa as long as it enforces apartheid laws. The Committee hopes that the faculties of the Schools will take up the issue soon.

The Committee also sponsored a film fest on South Africa on Wednesday afternoon and evening. The three films shown were: "Allan Boesak: Choosing for Justice," "The Discarded People," and "Woza Albert." The films portray the dilemmas confronting South Africans as they struggle among themselves to restructure their society.

"Teach-In" was also held Thursday afternoon with the primary aim of providing information and policy options for an informed debate, according to the organizers. Over 100 students, faculty and area residents participated in four seminars led by Ismail Abdalla, assistant professor of history; Berhanu Abegaz, assistant professor of economics; Dale Cockrell, assistant professor of music, and Ed Crapol, professor of history.

About the same number of people attended the evening panel discussion with two more faculty members, George W. Harris, assistant professor of philosophy and David H. Jones, professor of philosophy, joining the panel. The lively discussions underscored the need to contain further violence by pressuring the South African government to introduce basic reforms with deliberate speed.

In a related development, the Student Bar Association of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law last week passed a resolution advocating "total divestment . . . from all companies with holdings in South Africa." A spokesman for the Ad Hoc Committee said he hopes that other groups will "take a more active interest in an issue which has galvanized so many conscientious people throughout the world."

Tokyo Strings here Sunday

The Tokyo String Quartet will perform in the William and Mary Concert Series, at 8:15 p.m., Sunday, March 23 in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

Tickets are $5 and may be obtained at the Concert Series office in the Campus Center, room 203. If still available, they will also be on sale at the PBK box office the evening of the performance.

The Quartet, whose sound has been described as "fine Japanese silk made audible," will play Quartet No. 19 in C major, K 465, "Dissonant," by Mozart; Quartet, Op. 3 by Berg; and Quartet in F major, Op. 59 No. 1 by Beethoven.

Celebrating its 15th anniversary during the 1985-86 season, the Tokyo String Quartet has been hailed as one of the world's great quartets. Its international career includes regular performances in music capitals throughout the globe, such as New York, Washington, D.C., Vienna, Berlin, Amsterdam, Milan, Paris, London and Sydney.

During its anniversary season the Quartet will make two tours of Europe, one of which will be a month-long tour of European summer music festivals, a visit to Paris for a series of six concerts and performances in Finland and Japan.

Citizens of Japan and Canada, the members are all residents of the United States and live in the New York City area. Kikuei Ikeda, Kazuhide Isomura and Sadao Harada were trained at the Toho Music Academy in Tokyo. Soon after the Quartet's formation in 1969 it won first prize at the Coleman Auditions in Pasadena, Calif., the Munich Competition and the Young Concert Artists International Auditions, which brought the ensemble its successful New York debut.

Peter Oundjian, who joined the Quartet in 1981, studied with Ivan Galamain, Itzhak Perlman and Dorothy DeLay. Oundjian won first prize in the 1980 International violin competition in Vina del Mar, Chile.

The Tokyo String Quartet performs on four exquisite instruments created between 1656 and 1677 by the Italian luter Nicolò Amati, which have been loaned to the ensemble by the Corcoran Gallery of Art.

MBAs produce TV show

O. K. Louis Rekeyser, don't get too comfortable in that leather swivel chair - here comes some competition.

Four MBA students have initiated "The Virginia Business Perspective," a half-hour television show which is currently being aired on cable TV in the Richmond-Williamsburg area via a public access channel. The producers hope to expand their viewing area to include Virginia Beach and Northern Virginia. They plan three programs this semester.

The program includes an interview with James A. Bacon, editor of the new monthly magazine, Virginia Business, some how-to advice from David Moore of the business faculty on "How to Market Yourself in the Job Market," information on the budget bill and an editorial on mergers and acquisitions by John Strong of the business faculty.

Coming up later this month is a program which will feature Peter Grove, director of Belmont Museum at Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, on art as an investment; an interview with Guy Bush, an antiques dealer in Washington, D.C.; and an update on the real estate development market on the Peninsula by developer Haley Newman. In April the show will include an interview with the CEO of Beatrice.

The producers of the new show are Brent Winn, Jeffrey Rogatz, John Pollock and Mary Bacon. The idea started with John who was working with Continental Cable TV in Williamsburg. He was interested in the production end of the business and came up the plans for a program.

The students initially thought of the program as an interesting sideline to their studies but after they previewed it for faculty and deans at the School of Business Administration, they were permitted three hours of independent study credit for their work. William T. Geary is their faculty adviser. Mary Bacon says that the group hopes to have the program well established before they graduate so that it can be continued by other students next year.

Is the program any competition to "Wall Street Week" of PBS fame? No, maybe not now, but who knows?

SCATS DIRECTORIES

The 1986 SCATS directories have arrived and can be picked up at the College Post Office for a limited time. These directories will be available on a first-come, first-served basis. Quantities available while they last.

There are still copies of the C&P Telephone directories available at the Post Office. These copies will only be available until March 14.

Gutwein talks on sound systems

A lecture-demonstration using the Decillionix DX-1 and Ensoniq Mirage Sound Sampling Systems, will be presented by Daniel Gutwein, assistant professor of composition and music theory, at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, March 26 in Ewell 100.

Gutwein will demonstrate and offer brief explanations of how microprocessors can record and play back sound, how changes in pitch and rhythm are accomplished and how data is manipulated to create a variety of sound.

Gutwein received his bachelor's degree and a doctorate in music from the University of Cincinnati College-Conservatory of Music. He received the BMI Award in 1976 for a work memorializing the deaths of jazz musicians John Coltrane, "Yardbird" Parker and Eric Dolphy and received the National Saxophone Workshop Composition

David Gutwein

Award for a work using electronic tape and tenor saxophone.

Gutwein is the former lead saxophonist with the Tommy Dorsey Orchestra, and is currently working on an opera based on the Rosenberg Atomic Spy Case.

Cockrell talks on African music

Dale Cockrell, assistant professor of music who has taught at the University of Natal, South Africa, 1974-76 and returned to South Africa in 1984 for further research, will give a lecture on black South African music at 4 p.m., Wednesday, March 26 in Ewell Hall 100.

His lecture is open both to the College community and the general public.

Cockrell has titled his lecture "Of Gospel Hymns, Minstrel Shows and Jubilee Singers: Towards Some Black South African Musics." His talk will be accompanied by recorded musical examples and slides.

Cockrell will present some results of his research in South Africa. His work is based on intensive readings of 19th-century primary sources and observation of contemporary South African musical life and discusses four main questions: What American music was heard in 19th-century South Africa? How was it that black South Africans came to know so well gospel hymns, minstrel shows and Afro-American spirituals? How do modern-day black South African musical forms relate to those historical paradigms? And what are the musical, social, and political meanings that can be derived from the relationship between 19th-century American musical forms and 20th-century black South African musics?

Spring drive for financial aid

Therefore, for the second year, the Faculty-Staff Campaign will focus its effort on this problem.

Campaign Chairman Don Messmer, speaking on behalf of the advisory committee for university advancement, said that the shortfall of student financial aid cannot be eliminated overnight but that with increasing attention focused on the problem, and through the sustained efforts of many different groups, the situation can be remedied.

Messmer added that last year's campaign was well received among faculty and staff. Nearly one in three members of the school's faculties participated, and almost $25,000 was committed during the spring campaign. "The response from the College community exceeded both our estimates and our hopes. Their support was very gratifying to all of the committee but perhaps should not have surprised us considering their long tradition of dedication to our students."

Vinson Sutlive, chairman of the anthropology department, headed last year's efforts - the first campus-wide faculty-staff drive at the College. Messmer, the J.S. Mack Professor in the School of Business Administration, chairs the committee of representatives from all faculties and several administrative offices which, among other activities, organizes the campaign.

Campaign brochures will be distributed this week through the campus mail. Faculty or staff members with questions may contact either Don Messmer (ext. 4432) or other committee members.

The Williamsburg-James City County Chapter of the American Red Cross will conduct the multimedia standard first aid course on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, March 25 and 27 from 6 to 9 p.m. in the Red Cross conference room at 109 Cary Street. Both sessions must be attended for certification.

Enrollment will be limited to 12 on a first-come, first-served basis. To register, please send a check payable to the American Red Cross, 109 Cary Street. Pre-registration is mandatory. Registration will close March 24.

Celayne Hill

Celayne Hill did such a good job as a recruiter for the School of Business Administration that when the new position of Director of Admissions and Financial Aid for the Master of Business Administration program was established in June, she was offered the job.

Energetic and vivacious, Hill has broadened the scope of her work from her initial interest in recruiting minority students. She is still interested in that area and works with the affirmative action committee of the Business School. Now she also does a lot of networking, visiting with pre-M.B.A. advisers and meeting with alumni to get their opinions on how the program has helped them. She also helps keep business school publications, including catalogues and brochures, updated.

Hill is a 1983 M.B.A. graduate. A New Yorker, she attended Connecticut College where she majored in government and Spanish. Hill decided to take a year off after graduation to take stock. She was considering a career in law.

During that year off she was an advertising copywriter for WRKS-FM in New York City. She liked her work in radio and began to consider an M.B.A. degree to help her move up the corporate ladder.

William and Mary was not on the top of her list when she began shopping for graduate school. But she was persuaded to consider coming here by her father who, says Hill, "seemed to know a lot about the school. He said 'It is the second oldest in the country; it's got to be a good school.'" The financial aid package offered her clinched the decision.

The ease with which Hill interacts with people follows naturally from a very active involvement with projects as an undergraduate. She was a disc jockey in Connecticut, a member of the varsity basketball and lacrosse teams and a volunteer for Learned House, a community project in New London, similar to the Big Brothers, Big Sisters program.

A transplanted New Yorker, Hill misses the excitement of the city - and bagels draw her back to Manhattan whenever she can get away.

Just as she took time before beginning graduate studies, Hill advises students just out of college to get some work experience before pursuing an M.B.A.

When students are ready for school again, she and her boss Franklin E.

Robeson, professor and associate dean of the School of Business, have a convincing recruitment pitch.

"An M.B.A. simply helps people be better managers," says Robeson, "no matter what job they get." This is true for those who seek the $60,000-a-year job in the city or those who go into non-profit or charitable work, he adds.

One advantage of the William and Mary M.B.A. program is its moderate size. "There is concern for the students," says Hill. An active M.B.A. student association and class projects both offer opportunities for students to build friendships.

Statistics on William and Mary M.B.A. graduates show that the majority of them enter the world of finance, either in management, accounting, commercial banking or investments. Another contingent enters marketing, sales or advertising. The starting salary range of William and Mary M.B.A.s is $18,000-$60,000, with an average of $27,850.

Peggy Miller designs gown from 'Gone With The Wind'

One of the College's most successful moonlighters, fashion designer Peggy Miller, a.k.a. secretary in the fine arts department, who has been marketing period patterns for a number of years, has scored a real fashion coup with her latest venture.

After three years of painstaking research and several visits to the West Coast, Mrs. Miller has produced a pattern for the famous 'barbecue dress' which Scarlett O'Hara wore when she met Rhett Butler for the first time in "Gone With the Wind."

This year marks the 50th anniversary of the publication of Margaret Mitchell's novel. Mrs. Miller introduced the first dress from the pattern at a press showing in late February at the Williamsburg Regional Library. Casey's department store is planning a special showing of the dress on Saturday, March 22.

This is the first time that the famous movie gown has been available to the public. Fashioned on the actress Vivien Leigh, the dress has only been exhibited on rare occasions. It is currently in the collection of the Los Angeles County Museum of Art. On a trip to California, Mrs. Miller made copious notes, recording each measurement. She also took many photographs and literally traced every thread of the seamstress. Her copyrighted pattern is accurate down to the last detail. The only thing that is lacking is the hand-painted design on the shirt of the original dress which was created for the movie by Walter Plunkett.

The first dress from the pattern was made by Williamsburg seamstress Carole Smith. She did not know when she started, what the finished product would look like. Mrs. Miller wanted to prove her pattern and having Mrs. Smith know its identity would not have been a true test of the pattern's accuracy. The dress took over $279 worth of materials including 29 yards of ecru silk organza and over 26 yards of green velvet ribbon. It was the equivalent of making a ball or wedding gown says Mrs. Smith.

Under the label "Pegee," Mrs. Miller has 14 copyrighted patterns from history that include a 1628 day dress and a 1910 woman's motoring duster. She expects Scarlett's dress will be popular both as a ball gown and a wedding dress.

What's next? Like all designers, Mrs. Miller isn't telling until the next press conference.

Hinz gift

"This generous gift by her husband and family will have a major impact on the school's efforts to bring distinguished young scholars to this special community," said Sullivan. "Simultaneously, it will recognize the qualities of character, intellect and spirit which Mary possessed and shared with us."

Beginning in the fall of 1986, entering students will be eligible to compete for the awards. Hinz Scholars will receive a grant equivalent to full tuition, which will continue throughout their careers at Marshall-Wythe, subject to their making satisfactory progress toward a degree and continuing to exemplify the characteristics upon which the award was originally based.

During her two years at Marshall-Wythe, Mary Hinz was a superior student while continuing her extracurricular athletic pursuits. She was sixth in her class and a member of the Student Bar Association. She also clerked for Vandeventer, Black, Meredith and Martin during the summer of 1984.

In both high school and college, Mrs. Hinz distinguished herself on the playing field as well as in the classroom.

A long-time resident of Alexandria, she was recognized as one of the best female athletes to graduate from Mount Vernon High School. A Mary Siegrist Hinz memorial award is given each year to the school's outstanding senior woman athlete.

A summa cum laude graduate of Mary Washington College, she was also a member of Phi Beta Kappa. At Mary Washington, she founded and served as president and coach of the school's first softball club and was active in the college's student government organization and honor system.

Dancers perform March 20-22

The Orchesis modern dance company will present its annual concert of original choreography, "An Evening of Dance," at 8:15 p.m., Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, March 20, 21 and 22 in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

There is no admission charge.

THE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY DIRECTOR OF THE BUDGET

RESPONSIBILITIES: Under the direction of the Vice President for Administration and Finance, and in regular communication with the Office of the Provost, the director of the budget is responsible for the development, maintenance and oversight of all university budgetary processes and procedures. The Director's duties shall include the preparation of all budgetary documents as well as the preparation of such budgetary data, revenue projections and financial analyses as may be required by the President and the College's Board of Visitors. The Director shall also (1) monitor internally allocated operating and capital budgets to ensure compliance with approved operating plans, (2) share responsibility for the implementation of a campus-wide automated financial management system, (3) prepare reports or analyses required by the State Council of Higher Education, the Virginia Department of Planning and Budget and the College's Internal Auditor and (4) perform other duties assigned by the Vice President for Administration and Finance.

QUALIFICATIONS: A relevant bachelor's degree (master's preferred), three years of experience in higher education budgeting or finance and a demonstrated expertise in the use of automated financial management/accounting systems are required.

Salary and benefits are commensurate with experience. Applicants should submit a resume and three letters of recommendation by April 21 to Dr. Andrew B. Fogarty, Vice President for Administration and Finance, The College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, VA 23185. AN EO/AA EMPLOYER.

Vice President for University Advancement The College of William and Mary

The College of William and Mary seeks outstanding candidates for this position, under whose direction the College will celebrate its tricentennial in 1993 with the successful completion of a capital campaign already in the planning phase.

The successful candidate should be an experienced development officer with proven managerial and fund raising record encompassing annual giving, deferred giving and capital campaign planning and direction, preferably within the higher education environment.

The Vice President is responsible to the President, coordinates the many development projects with the university, works closely with the Director of University Relations and an independent Society of the Alumni, and will direct a professional development staff of nine and support staff of twelve.

The College of William and Mary, second oldest to Harvard, is a public university of 4700 undergraduate and 1500 graduate students in Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education, Law, and Marine Science. It has a highly selective student body, and a tradition of and commitment to academic and professional excellence. A major responsibility of the new Vice President will be to increase substantially the private endowments which currently exceed $40 million.

Submit nominations and letters of application with resume, references, and salary expectation by 15 May to:

Dr. Andrew B. Fogarty, Chairman
Vice President for University
Advancement Search
The College of William and Mary
Williamsburg, Virginia 23185.

An Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer.

THE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY PROFESSOR OF GOVERNMENT AND DIRECTOR OF INTERNATIONAL STUDIES

The College of William and Mary seeks a person with an outstanding scholarly record and a demonstrated interest in teaching in international relations. As Professor of Government, the appointee is responsible for maintaining a research program and teaching one course each term. As Director of International Studies, the appointee is responsible for general supervision of the Center for International Studies, for academic program development in international studies and for the expansion of external funding sources for these programs. The director is responsible for all matters pertaining to the academic progress of students in these programs. The Director is assisted by the Director of Programs in the Center, who reports to the Director and is responsible for the administration of programs in the Center. In filling this senior position, we are particularly interested in applications from minorities and women.

Send letter of application and curriculum vitae, with names of references, to Jack Edwards, Department of Government, College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, VA 23185. Review of applications will begin April 1 and continue until the position is filled. We prefer that the new Director begin by September 1986, but the starting date is negotiable.

The College is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

NEW TUITION PAYMENT POLICY

A new policy concerning payment of tuition, room and board charges has been approved by the Provost and will take effect with the payment due date for the fall semester 1986.

The pre-registration of returning undergraduate students will be cancelled for non-payment of their accounts. This will result in their course selections actually being deleted from the files at a pre-determined deadline date, if they fail to make payment for the upcoming semester. When, and if, their account is cleared, they will be required to late register after all incoming students.

Specific procedures will be as follows:

We will take immediate steps to ensure that all students understand the policy.

Beginning with the fall 1986 billing (July 1986) a payment due date will be established and students will be notified of the consequences of non-payment. The payment deadline will be approximately three weeks prior to the first day of registration.

All students whose payments are not received in the Treasurer's Office by 5 p.m. on this date will be dropped from their pre-registration courses.

The Student Accounts Office will develop procedures for purging student files and establish guidelines for exceptions.

Approximately two days after the deadline date, Student Accounts will furnish the Registrar's Office with a listing of records to be purged. The file will be purged and the students notified. This notice (including instructions on how to proceed) will be mailed to the student's permanent home address.

Students whose courses have been purged, but who wish to return to William and Mary, must report to the Treasurer's Section at late registration to clear their account.

Late registration times will be indicated on the notice students receive; this process will take place after all incoming students have registered and at the same time that unclassified students are registering.

Few exceptions will be allowed under this new policy; however, verified scholarships and guaranteed student loan credits will be allowed to clear accounts if certain requirements are met.

The primary purpose of instituting this new policy is to halt an alarming and fiscally dangerous trend. Based on analysis of collections for the academic years 1984/85 and 1985/86, approximately 70 percent of the student body paid tuition and fees after the due date in the fall semester and approximately 60 percent in the spring semester. Research indicates that other state institutions have realized substantial benefits by utilizing similar policies.

We realize that such a change will possibly cause some initial confusion. We therefore ask for cooperation and understanding from all parts of the College community. If you have any questions or suggestions, please let us know.

Dorothy Bryant, Registrar
E. Kenneth Greene, Treasurer

REQUISITIONING CUTOFF DATE

As stated in the Agency Procurement Manual from the Division of Purchases and Supply dated May 1, 1984, April 30 is the cutoff date for receipt in Richmond of requisitions to be funded in this fiscal year. Requisitions affected are those exceeding $5,000 for supplies and equipment that must be processed by that office or requisitions for printing that exceed $1,200.

After April 30 only emergency requisitions will be considered as an exception and must be accompanied by a letter of explanation and approved by the Division of Purchases and Supply in Richmond before they will be processed.

In order to comply with the above, we ask that your requisition be submitted to the College Purchasing Office not later than April 11. This should allow enough administrative lead time, production and delivery time to insure procurement, delivery and payment prior to June 30.

Urgent purchases of day-to-day supplies involving dollar values of up to $5,000 will be processed as necessary through April 30 if delivery and invoicing are assured before June 1.

We trust that the schedules noted above will relieve a "log jam" of requisitions at the end of this fiscal year and prevent a reversion of funds because of undelivered supplies and equipment.

Any questions regarding these procedures should be referred to the College Purchasing Office, ext. 4215, 4179 or 4373.

TEMPORARY EMPLOYEES - CLERICAL

The College of William and Mary is seeking an applicant pool of individuals available for temporary clerical employment. Individuals hired on a temporary basis will work in a variety of departments on campus and will be paid an hourly rate based on the grade level of the temporary appointment. The length of temporary appointment will vary from one week or less to a maximum of 90 days.

Applicants should have demonstrated clerical ability and strong communication and organizational skills. Some temporary appointments will require word processing skills, knowledge of bookkeeping or familiarity with personal computers. Most positions will require a typing test.

PARKING LOT CHANGES

The Physical Plant lot has been re-designated as Day Student/Faculty Staff Only. The Physical Plant lot is defined to include all College parking behind the Bookstore, Campus Center/Trinkle Hall, Hunt Hall, as well as the larger lot between the Campus Police building and Buildings and Grounds shops area. Specifically designated spaces will remain unchanged with the following exceptions:

Four spaces along the north wall of the Purchasing Department will be designated as one-half hour timed parking to accommodate the short-term parking needs of the Bookstore and Purchasing Department per TAC recommendations;

Two spaces in the north end of the Physical Plant lot will be designated one-half hour parking for Campus Police and Buildings and Grounds visitors.

Enforcement of this action during workdays from 7:45 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. will assure improved accessibility to parking for employees and a reasonable opportunity for day students. Resident students will be able to park in the area from 4:45 p.m. to 7:45 a.m. Those students currently restricted to the Physical Plant lot, will continue to use this parking area without penalty through August 31, 1986.
