History scholars win large share of NEH awards

Several professors and an undergraduate student have received awards from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Four of the professors have been granted full-year fellowships from NEH. James L. Axtell and Dale E. Hoak, professors of history, have been awarded fellowships for independent study and research. Robert J. Scholnick, professor of English, and Don A. Monson, professor of modern languages, have been awarded fellowships for college teachers.

Christopher MacGowan, assistant professor of English, has been awarded a 1986 summer stipend. The grant will enable him to devote full time this summer to his project, an edition of the collected later poems of William Carlos Williams. He has already co-edited volume one of an edition of Williams' poems from 1909 to 1939 with A. Walton Litz of Princeton for New Directions Publishers, scheduled for publication in October. He expects to complete the second volume, which covers Williams' work from 1939 to 1963, by 1988.

Axtell's grant is to continue researching and writing for a book titled American Encounter: The Confluence of Cultures in Colonial North America. The work is the second in a three-volume series on early American history. Volume one, called The Invasion Within: A Contest of Cultures in Colonial North America, was published in Oct. 1985 and won that year's Gilbert Chinard Prize for the best history book exploring Franco-American relations.

Hoak's grant is for a series of studies on the English Tudor court during the reigns of Henry VIII, Edward VI and Mary I. The series will cover the organization, personnel and influence of the royal household on affairs of state. While historians have chronicled thoroughly the actions of official bodies of the period, says Hoak, "they have neglected the royal court as an institution."

Scholnick, dean of graduate studies for the faculty of arts and sciences, is working on a book called Walt Whitman and Science. He began the exploration of Whitman's use of science in poetry with an 80-page article scheduled to appear this fall in Studies in the American Renaissance, published annually by the University Press of Virginia. The NEH grant, he says, will enable him to expand the project into a full-length text.

Monson's work, titled "Andreas Capellanus, Scholasticism, and the Courtly Tradition," focuses on a Latin treatise on love by Capellanus. Monson's two-phased study will examine the influence of medieval scholasticism on the structure and organization of the treatise and will analyze the work's thematic content in relationship to vernacular poetry, feudal society, Christian theology and the love writings of Ovid.

Two professors have received awards to attend summer seminars. William S.

Cobb, professor of philosophy, will participate in an NEH-sponsored summer seminar on the sophists and the skeptics to be led by Paul Woodruff at the University of Texas at Austin. Stephen Field, assistant professor of modern languages, has received an NEH grant for

Faculty donate funds to drive for student aid

Springtime is decision time: colleges deciding which students to accept, students deciding which college to accept, financial aid officers deciding which students will receive financial assistance for their educations. It is the decision in the last category that may well influence a student's final choice of college.

The shortfall of student financial aid at William and Mary is the focus for a second year in the Faculty-Staff Campaign. So far, $17,250 in cash and pledges have been received in the drive.

Faculty and staff are asked to make their contributions by April 30.

To Students Seeking Certification

All students (graduate and undergraduate) who are seeking Virginia State Certification this spring must file an application in the Placement Office of the School of Education. These application forms must be picked up in Jones 310, filled out by the student and returned to Jones 310 if he/she hopes to be certified to teach in Virginia beginning with the 1986-87 school year.

Students extend hospitality to Dresden musicians

The Dresden Chamber Orchestra may not have thought much of the initial reception they received on their first North American tour when they discovered that thieves in New York had stolen several of their instruments. They got a good example of Southern hospitality, however, from William and Mary students. Members of the College/Community orchestra loaned the visitors instruments for their concerts here Sunday evening.

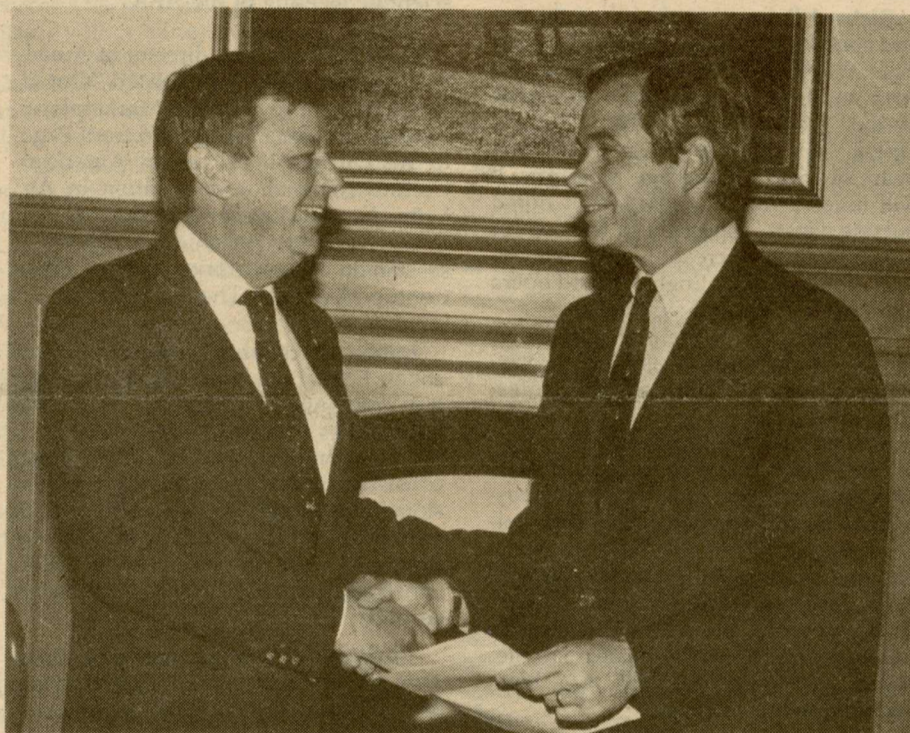

Members of the orchestra were entertained at a reception at the German House following the concert.

a summer seminar in comparative poetics.

An undergraduate student, Sharon Clarke, a junior majoring in history, has been awarded a younger scholars grant for her architectural history project titled "Nikolaus Pevsner: Did He Mislead Us?" Her faculty adviser for the project, which is to be conducted this summer, is James Kornwolf, professor fine arts.

The NEH fellowship awards were made to 262 scholars nationwide from among 1,660 applicants, while summer stipends were given to 231 of 1,446 applicants.

Festival gift

Luis R. Lazo, president of the board of trustees of Festival Williamsburg, Ltd., presents a check for $500 to President Paul R. Verkuil for the music department in recognition of the College's program "to provide excellence in the field of music education." The award is one of three presented by the Festival from the Swindler Fund. The fund was established in 1985 to recognize the contributions during the early days of the Festival of the late William F. Swindler, John Marshall Professor of Law Emeritus. Awards were also made to Hampton University and Virginia Tech. This year's Festival will be held April 25-May 4.

Ceramics, prints now on exhibit

The ceramics of several contemporary artists, including Ralph Bacerra, Rick Dillingham, Jim Makins, Mineo Mizuno, Elsa Rady and Adrian Sax, are featured in an exhibit, which opened April 19 at the Muscarelle Museum of Art. The exhibit will continue through June 1.

The gallery is open Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. and on Saturday, Sunday and holidays from noon to 4 p.m. For detailed information call ext. 4650.

The new exhibit shows the use of the traditional pottery vessel, however, each artist has pushed his or her approach to form, surface and decoration beyond mere utility and toward a more sculptural and visual end.

The objects range from the refined, delicate approach of Jim Makins' functional porcelain dinnerware to the broken and reassembled pit-fire pots of Rick Dillingham.

As a group these works constitute a sampling of the renewed interest in an investigation of clay as a medium of artistic expression.

The collection is on loan from Kenneth L. Deavers and Edward F. Nash, American Hand, Washington, D.C.

On Sunday, April 20, the museum opened an exhibit of prints from its Maria Herman Lania Print Collection, which was established in 1984 by Frederick and Lucy S. Herman of Norfolk in memory of his mother.

Over the past two years the Hermans have donated 24 works, most of them by contemporary German printmakers, although there are also examples by contemporary American, Dutch, Colombian and English artists. The collection encompasses many printmaking techniques as well as a variety of styles.

Newsmakers

Support of faculty research given by variety of sources

Support from a variety of organizations and foundations will fund projects that will continue throughout 1986 and into 1987.

Richard Prosl, professor of mathematics and computer science, has received $7,000 from the TRW, Inc., Defense Systems Group-East Coast for the Industrial Affiliates Program. This program is designed to develop communication between TRW and William and Mary in technical fields of mutual interest and to facilitate TRW in recruiting of students.

Paul Cloutier, associate professor of modern languages, will direct an intensive language immersion workshop with a $29,672 grant from the Department of Education/State Council of Higher Education. This project, which will run through September of next year is designed to improve the skills of secondary teachers in critical foreign languages including French, German and Spanish, during a three-week period this summer.

Richard Palmer, professor of theatre and speech, has received a $5,000 award from the Virginia Commission for the Arts to fund a new, fully mounted period production of "The Beggar's Opera" for the 1986 Virginia Shakespeare Festival's mainstage repertory. It will involve the collaboration of noted outside artists, especially in the area of music, so that the creation of a fresh version of this popular English ballad opera will have far-ranging significance.

Two members of the physics faculty, Linda Vahala, research assistant professor and George Vahala, associate professor, have received an $18,000 award from the Department of Energy for work in nonlinear magnetohydrodynamics and alpha particles. This will be an investigation of the parallel momentum balance equation and the heat transport equation for toroidal systems with auxiliary heating, including the gyroviscous part of the stress tensor and poloidal variations in ICRF heated ion densities. To date, $147,905 has been awarded for this research.

John McGehee, research scientist in the computer science department, has received an award of $40,000 from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to develop mathematical models and analytical computer results from the Active Gear Flexible Aircraft Take-Off Landing program.

Norman Barka, professor of anthropology, received $2,500 from the Environmental Developers, Inc., for a project titled "Lafayette Family-Lafayette Elderly." This project constituted the first phase of an archaeological survey of 21 acres of land on Long Hill Road in James City County. This survey, conducted earlier this year, investigated land where a proposed apartment complex is to be built. Work was done by both currently enrolled students and graduates of the College.

The Commonwealth Fund, a foundation that provides support for a variety of human service programs, is developing a standard review procedure for multi-foundation, national grant competitions. Kelly G. Shaver, professor of psychology, was invited to provide comments on a working draft of this proposed procedure. Shaver has also recently served as a member of the program committee for the Society for Personality and Social Psychology, division 8 of the American Psychological Association, helping in the selection of posters and symposia to be presented at the next scientific meeting of the APA.

Bruce McConachie, director of American studies, recently presented "Out of the Kitchen and into the Marketplace: Changes in Uncle Tom's Cabin from Page to Stage in the 1850s" at the American Culture Association convention in Atlanta. As area chair for American drama in the ACA, McConachie also chaired a session on "The Historiography of 19th-Century American Theatre History."

Robert Maccubbin, associate professor of English, was awarded $2,600 by the Virginia Foundation for the Humanities and Public Policy for "Continuity and Change," which consisted of five, public lecture-discussions of artistic traditions, with special reference to 18th-century art. These programs were presented at the Williamsburg Regional Library earlier this spring.

Christopher Benner, research assistant professor in physics, has received $62,484 from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to support the Halogen Occultation Experiment (HALOE). Specific objectives include contribution to the development of HALOE instrument model and data-inversion algorithms, instrument test support and analysis, in-flight calibration procedures and analysis of both laboratory measurements of absorption line data and high-resolution atmospheric spectra in the existing HALOE filter regions.

Award for suggestion

Orth's suggestion that all state employees be required to wear seat belts while operating a state vehicle was recorded as one of the fastest accepted and implemented suggestions ever acted upon by the Commonwealth.

Howard Fraser, chairman of the modern languages and literatures department, presented a paper titled "Apes and Ape Lore in Turn-of-the-Century Buenos Aires" at a meeting of the Society of Latin American Popular Culture in New Orleans, April 10-12.

Four professors in the sociology department attended the meetings of the Southern Sociological Society held in New Orleans, April 9-12. These meetings marked the golden anniversary of the society's founding. Wayne Kernodle presented a paper on "Religion, Superstition, Magic and Sports in an Hawaiian Community," to the sports sociology section. David Aday's paper, "Toward an Integrated Understanding of Social Control and Deviance: Theory and Policy Implications," was presented to the social control and social policy section. Michael Faia was discussant for two papers in the societal development and change section on "Cultural Materialism" and "Modern Religion and Secularization." Elaine Themo also attended the meetings.

William S. Cobb, professor of philosophy presented a paper on "Birth in Beauty" in Plato's Symposium at the recent meeting of the Southern Society for Philosophy and Psychology. His paper "The Religious and the Just in Plato's Euthyphro" appears in the current issue of Ancient Philosophy.

Eric Jensen, assistant professor of economics, recently attended the annual meetings of the Population Association of America, held in San Francisco. He presented a paper titled "A Microeconomic Model of the Old-Age Security Motive for Childbearing." He is also the author of "A Comment on Glen Firebaugh's Population Density and Fertility," appearing in the May issue of Demography, vol. 23, no. 2.

Charles Quittmeyer, Gottwald Professor of Business Administration, gave a talk on the development of political economy at William and Mary as precursor to its first school of management at the 1986 meeting of the American Institute for Decision Sciences, March 26-27 in Williamsburg.

Friday party closes season for Faculty Club

The Faculty Club will hold its last social event of the year from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at Trinkle Hall, Friday, April 25. The Board of Visitors will be the club's guests. The usual beverages and hors d'oeuvres will be served.

The fee for this final party is $4 for paid members, $7 for non-members. Non-drinking, non-members are charged $6 per person, while non-drinking members pay only $3.

U.S. SAVINGS BONDS CAMPAIGN

Consider how bonds can help you meet your future needs. Sign up for savings bonds or increase your present investment. It's a great way to save!

Today's Series EE bonds are better than ever. They earn a variable interest rate, 85 percent of market rates, when held at least five years. There is no upper limit on what bonds can earn. Bonds also have a guaranteed minimum return of 7.5 percent when held at least five years. And bonds offer tax advantages and safety features that have made them a favorite of Americans for years.

If you're not satisfied with the amount of money you're saving, there's a special opportunity to sign up for the payroll deduction plan for U.S. Savings Bonds or to speed up your rate of saving if you're already participating by May 1. With the payroll savings plan, saving is regular and automatic.

D.C. tour gives students glimpse of Chinese culture

by Alison Alten

Students of Stephen Field's Chinese class discovered this spring that a glimpse of Chinese culture is as close as Washington, D.C. To augment their Chinese studies here, Field and his students visited the Embassy of the People's Republic of China, lunched with the Taiwan delegation and toured the Chinese exhibits in the Freer Gallery.

At the embassy, Ms. Yang Meng, third secretary, led them on a short tour. The embassy is a showcase for both ancient and modern Chinese art. One of the most interesting pieces was a huge needlepoint depicting the late Chairman Mao surrounded by Chinese wearing the traditional garb of the 56 minority groups represented in China.

The group went to the Empress Restaurant for a buffet lunch with the delegation from Taiwan, Republic of China, headed by Ching Ping Lee. In addition to lunch, the group was treated to a brief performance of Peking opera by the Han-Sheng Chinese Opera Institute.

The students also saw a film about modern Taiwan and received packets of political, historical and cultural information.

The next stop was Twin Oaks mansion, the former residence of the Chinese ambassador. There the group was per-

John Patykula, classical guitarist, who teaches both at William and Mary and Virginia Commonwealth University, will give a recital with Barbara Jean Nicoletti, flutist, at 3 p. m., Sunday, April 27 at the Williamsburg Regional Library Theatre.

There is no admission charge.
 The program will include works by Handel, Bach, Debussy, Villa-Lobos and Faure.

Patykula studies with guitar virtuoso
 Jesus Silva. He is a graduate of the North Carolina School of the Arts and VCU.

Miss Nicoletti, a graduate of the Shenandoah Conservatory of Music, is working on a master's degree in education at VCU. She is a student of Fancile Bilyeu.

Elizabeth Fulcher

Fraternity, Gerald is also a recipient of the Aurelia B. Walford and William Vose Bembow scholarships in music. She studies voice with David Parks.

Featured in her program are Dido's Lament from Henry Purcell's opera Dido and Aeneas and three Hermit Songs by Samuel Barber, as well as art songs by Purcell, Gabriel Faure, and Johannes Brahms.

Fulcher recital

Elizabeth Fulcher, soprano, will give a senior recital at 8 p. m., Sunday, April 27 in the Williamsburg Regional Library
 Arts Center Theatre.

Miss Fulcher studies voice with Mary Eason Fletcher. She is a government major with a minor in French. She is a Presidential Scholar, a member of Delta Omicron international music fraternity and winner of the Gladys Iseman Clark Scholarship for Applied Music.

Miss Fulcher was the soprano soloist in the Brahms Requiem, performed for the 1986 John D. Rockefeller Memorial Concert at Bruton Parish Church. She also participated in the student competition of the National Association of Teachers of Singing. She appeared in the William and Mary Theatre's 1983 production of "Fiddler on the Roof," and has sung for three years as a member of the Canterbury Choir at Bruton Parish Church.

Miss Fulcher will pursue further study of voice and opera with the intention of pursuing a singing career.

Talk by Duffy

Composer John Duffy will talk on
 "The Art of Composition," Sunday, April 27 at 1 p.m. in the Wren Chapel, as part of the educational program of Festival Williamsburg.

Duffy, who is on the national board of Festival Williamsburg, is president of Meet the Composer and freelance composer to ABC, NBC, NET TV, films and has sung with the William and Mary Chorus, the Baroque Chamber Ensemble, and the Grace Covenant Presbyterian Church Choir.

Currently beginning her second term
 as secretary of Delta Omicron Music

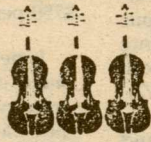

MASTER PLAN PROPOSAL PRESENTATIONS

A screening committee has reviewed proposals for master plan and property study services received by the College from 14 highly reputable firms. The committee has invited five of these firms to return to campus in order to further clarify their proposals and to provide an opportunity for interested members of the College community to participate in the final selection process. Each of the five firms will be prepared to make a presentation of no more than 30 minutes, which will be followed by up to 30 minutes for questions from the screening committee and, subsequently, up to 30 minutes from any other member of the College community. Each session will be held in Room C of the Campus Center according to the following schedule:

- April 29: 9 a.m. - Harry Weese and Associates, Ltd. (Washington, D.C.)
- April 29: 2 p.m. - John Carl Warnecke and Associates (Washington, D.C.)
- April 30: 9 a.m. - Sasaki Associates, Inc. (Watertown, Mass.)
- April 30: 2 p.m. - Wallace Roberts and Todd (Philadelphia, Pa.)
- May 2: 9 a.m. - Johnson, Johnson and Roy, Inc. (Ann Arbor, Mich.)

The screening committee will meet early in the following week to formulate its recommendations and would appreciate receiving all written input from members of the College community by Monday afternoon, May 5 (directed to Master Plan Committee care of the Bridges House).
