Four selected for newly established professorships

Four faculty members at the College of William and Mary have been named to new professorships established within the last year at the institution. The appointments were approved by the College's Board of Visitors at its meeting April 24-26.

James L. Axtell, professor of history, is the William R. Kenan Jr. Professor of History; Cirila Djordjevic, professor of chemistry, the Garrett-Robb-Guy Professor of Chemistry; James C. Livingston, professor of religion, the Walter G. Mason Professor of Religion; and Elsa Nettels, professor of English, the Mildred and J.B. Hickman Professor of English.

"These new named professorships highlight our commitment to obtaining private support for our outstanding scholars and teachers," said President Paul R. Verkuil. "More important, the professorships exemplify how highly our faculty are valued by those who provided this financial support."

A specialist in colonial North America and the ethnohistory of Indian-white relations of the period, Axtell recently received an NEH fellowship for research on the second of a three-volume historical series on North American Indians. Volume one of the series, titled The Invasion Within: The Contest of Cultures in Colonial North America, won the 1985 Gilbert Chinard Prize for the best history book exploring Franco-American relations.

Axtell, 44, has been a member of the William and Mary faculty since 1978. He received his bachelor's degree from Yale University and his Ph.D. from Cambridge University, Trinity College.

Djordjevic's research interests include: the synthesis, structure and properties of transition metal complexes of biological interest; antitumor activity of complex compounds; redox properties of complex compounds and coordinated ligands; and oxygen free radical generation and scavenging involving transition metal ions.

A member of the William and Mary faculty since 1968, Djordjevic, 60, received her undergraduate degree at the University of Zagreb in Yugoslavia and also served on the faculty there from 1951 to 1968. She received her Ph.D. in inorganic chemistry from University College London, England, in 1959.

A member of the William and Mary faculty since 1968, Livingston came to the College to serve as founding chairman of the newly established religion department. He served as chairman until 1972 and again from 1980 to 1984. He served as dean of the undergraduate program from 1973 to 1978.

Livingston, 55, received his undergraduate degree from Kenyon College and his Ph.D. from Columbia University. He has written and edited six books and has taught courses in the area of modern religious thought as well as in

Dean Schiavelli named new Provost

Melvyn D. Schiavelli, dean of the faculty of arts and sciences at the College has been appointed provost of the College, it has been announced by President Paul R. Verkuil.

Melvyn Schiavelli

Schiavelli will assume his new duties July 1, upon the retirement of George R. Healy, who has served 15 years in the position.

Schiavelli's appointment ends a six-month national search, which involved the review of some 200 candidates, according to search committee chairman Thaddeus W. Tate Jr., Pullen Professor

Wig closing

The Wig in the Campus Center will be closed after lunch on May 6 and will reopen May 19 for breakfast. The Wig is being closed to accommodate the transition of the college-wide food service from Shamrock to the Marriott Corporation.

of History and director of the Institute of Early American History and Culture. The committee interviewed seven candidates and submitted a list of three finalists to the president.

"Today is a banner day for two reasons," Verkuil said. "It gives us a chance to say how grateful we are to George Healy for his years of dedicated service to William and Mary, and it allows me to say how pleased I am with the outcome of the critically important

Marshall appointed Librarian

Nancy H. Marshall, associate director of libraries for public services at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, has been named university librarian at the College. Ms. Marshall's appointment was approved by the College's Board of Visitors at its meeting April 24-26.

As university librarian, Ms. Marshall will be the administrative director of the Earl Gregg Swem Library. She will report to the provost.

"We are very pleased to have someone with high-level experience with an outstanding research library," said President Paul R. Verkuil. "That experience will be important as Ms. Marshall leads the development of our library in coming years."

"Ms. Marshall comes to the College nationally distinguished for her contributions to librarianship, particularly in the areas of technical services and copyright legislation," added Terry L. Meyers, associate professor of English and chairman of the librarian search committee. "Her administrative experience and accomplishments at one of America's major research libraries and the deep respect and admiration she has earned there from administrators, librarians, staff and faculty augur well for her leadership of Swem."

Ms. Marshall received her undergraduate degree in English from Ohio Wesleyan University and a master of arts in library science from the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Fund Drive closes May 2

The 1985-86 Faculty-Staff Campaign is nearing the end of its drive in support of student financial aid.

To date, $18,000 in cash and pledges have been received from members of the College community.

Faculty and staff members are asked to make their gifts by May 2.

Newsmakers

Betty Whitehurst, assistant professor of modern languages and literatures department, read a paper titled "The Eight Faces of Cortazar's Octaedro" at the International Colloquium on Julio Cortazar at Oklahoma State University, April 11. She then traveled to Purdue University to read a paper titled "Through a Glass Darkly: Biblical and Liturgical Images in the espejo concavo of Ramon del Valle-Inclan" at the Valle-Inclan Symposium on April 12.

Robert E. Welsh, professor of physics, presented a nuclear physics seminar on "Studies of Antiprotonic Atoms at CERN," April 9, at the University of Illinois, Champaign. He participated in the workshop on "Antimatter Physics at Low Energy," April 10-12 at FERMILAB.

Carol C. Esler, visiting assistant professor of classical studies, was an invited speaker on a panel on "Classics, Classicists and Fiction" at the spring meeting of the Classical Association of the Atlantic States in College Park, Md., April 18. Esler's paper was titled "From Myth to Mystery: The Ariadne Clue."

Ismail Abdalla, assistant professor of history, will leave June 2 to attend a week-long conference at the University of Ife in Nigeria and will give a talk on "Islamic Medicine in Northern Nigeria." The purpose of the conference is to develop a teaching textbook for the medical school of the University of Sokota in northern Nigeria. In August he will leave for a semester research project in the Sudan and Ethiopia to study the impact of famine. His work is being funded by a William and Mary Summer Faculty research grant. Earlier this week Abdalla was in Chicago attending the annual conference of the Sudan Studies Association of the United States and Canada and gave a talk on the impact of famine.

William Barnes of the fine arts department recently received a best-in-show and purchase award at the LaGrange National XI Painting, Prints and Drawing Exhibition in Georgia. Henry Hopkins, director of the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art, juror, selected 101 works from over 1,500 entered by artists from 47 states.

Barnes' painting has also been included in the Pensacola National Landscape Exhibition in Florida where he's been invited for a one-person exhibit of his work. He has also been invited to exhibit at Appalachian State University's Landscape Invitational in North Carolina.

Carolyn V. Blackwell, director of international programs, was elected vice chair (chair-elect) of the Virginia Council for Study Abroad at a recent meeting of the council in Charlottesville. She also presented a paper on "Resources in Traditional Study Areas for Study Abroad Advisers." The council represents the interests of over 40 institutions in the Commonwealth engaged in study abroad activities.

Robert T. Siegel, professor of physics, will give an invited talk on "Negative Muon Capture in Hydrogen Gas" at Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh, April 25.

The following paper has been published: "Search for 2S-State Metastability in Muonic Helium at 40 atm," by M. Eckhause, P. Guss, D. Joyce, J. R. Kane, R. T. Siegel, W. Vulcan, R. E. Welsh, and R. Whyley of the William and Mary physics department, with R. Dietlicher and A. Zehnder of the Swiss Institute for Nuclear Research in Physical Review, A33, 1743(1986).

Gary C. DeFotis, associate professor of chemistry, presented a paper, "Magnetic Behavior in the Series $\text{Co}(\text{SCN})_2(\text{ROH})_2$, R = CH_3 , C_2H_5 , C_3H_7 ," at the national meeting of the American Physical Society in Las Vegas, April 1. Former undergraduate David S. Mantus and current undergraduate Brian T. Wimberly were co-authors. On April 15, at the national meeting of the American Chemical Society in New York, DeFotis presented a paper, "Magnetic Behavior of Single Crystal $\text{Mn}(\text{SCN})_2(\text{CH}_3\text{OH})_2$," on which undergraduates Brian T. Wimberly and Ellen M. McGhee were co-authors.

DeFotis' other recent work includes "Structure and Magnetic Properties of an Unsymmetrical μ -Oxo Diiron(III) Complex," a collaborative work with Geoffrey Jameson of Georgetown University, published in the Feb. 19 issue of the Journal of the American Chemical Society, and "Ferromagnetic Insulating Iron(III) Diethyldithiocarbamate Chloride: Critical Exponents, Scaling and Magnetic Equations of State," with former undergraduate John R. Laughlin as co-author, published in the March 15 issue of the Journal of Chemical Physics.

Susan V. Donaldson, assistant professor of English, has been selected as one of 13 participants in the NEH Summer Seminar on "American Literature and Theory," directed by John Carlos Rowe at the University of California, Irvine. Two recent publications by Donaldson include "Isaac McCaslin and the Possibilities of Vision," which appears in the current issue of The Southern Review, and "Forsaking 'the Certainty of Shore': Walter Anderson and the Loneliness of Horn Island," in The Southern Quarterly in the fall-winter 1985 issue.

Gerald H. Johnson, professor of geology, was co-author of two papers presented before the 35th annual meeting of the Southeastern Section of the Geological Society of America in Memphis, April 3. The papers were titled "Stratigraphy and Origin of Late-Tertiary Gravels in the Richmond, Virginia, Area," with Joseph McReynolds, a senior at the College, and "A Depositional Model for Middle- and Late-Pleistocene Sediments in Northeastern Virginia and Northeastern North Carolina," with P. C. Peebles, Virginia Department of Highways and Transportation.

Johnson was also awarded a NASA/ASEE summer fellowship for work on the origin and early development of the earth's atmosphere. He will work at the Langley Research Center.

On May 5-9 Bob Maidment, professor of education, will direct an accreditation team visiting the American School in Tegucigalpa, Honduras. The study is being conducted for the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools in Atlanta.

Gary A. Kreps, associate professor of sociology, and Sarah L. Sanders, doctoral candidate in sociology at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, presented a paper titled "The Life History of Organization," at the Eastern Sociological Society Meetings, April 2-4 in New York City.

Bruce Grant, professor of biology, was the featured speaker at the annual banquet and initiation of new members into the University of Richmond chapter of Sigma Xi, an honors society promoting research in the sciences. His lecture, "Individual Differences in Background Selection Behavior by the Peppercorn Moth, Biston betularia," was presented on April 3 at the Engineers Club of Richmond.

Judith Ewell, professor of history, delivered two papers recently: "Jaime Lusinchi's Social Pact: Is It Working?" at the annual meeting of the Middle Atlantic Council of Latin American Studies (MACLAS) hosted by George Mason University, March 21-22, and "Debt and Politics: Venezuela under Lusinchi" at the annual meeting of the Rocky Mountain Council of Latin American Studies, hosted by the University of Colorado, April 3-5. Ewell also served as president of MACLAS for 1985-86.

Mougey heads CEBAF division

Jean Mougey has been appointed leader of the magnetic spectrometer group for the research division at CEBAF. Mougey, who has concomitantly received an appointment as tenured professor of physics at the College, will be responsible for the design of the CEBAF spectrometers.

He is internationally recognized for his pioneering research on the $(e, e'p)$ reaction, one of the main projects and scientific achievements at CEN Saclay in the past decade. He and his team at Saclay established new standards in the field concerning both the experimental resolution and kinematical limits of the reactions and the attempts for a theoretical understanding of the results. Results of his experiments include the classic momentum distribution of nucleons in nuclei.

Mougey is also widely regarded as a teacher, lecturer and author and has recently completed, with S. Frullani, an exhaustive review of $(e, e'p)$ reactions for Advances in Nuclear Physics. He is also currently editor for the nuclear physics section of the French Journal de Physique.

After having graduated from Ecole

Jean Mougey

Polytechnique, Mougey received his doctorate in physical sciences from Université de Paris-Sud (Orsay) and has been employed since 1960 by Commissariat à l'Énergie Atomique, doing work at Saclay, DPhN/HE Laboratory, Grenoble and CERN.

Law students win honors

Three students at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law recently placed second in the national competition of the American Trial Lawyers Association Trial Advocacy meet, held April 11-12. The Marshall-Wythe team defeated Southwestern Law School and Ohio Northern Law School before losing to the University of Texas at Austin in the finals. Pictured with the runner-up plaque are team members (seated from left) Dale Barney, a second-year student from Red Bank, N.J., and James R. Bucknam, a third-year student from Williamsburg; and (standing) Gregory R. Davis, a third-year student from Buena Vista, and Timothy J. Sullivan, dean of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law.

Calendar

THURSDAY, MAY 1
Law Day

SATURDAY, MAY 3
Wren Chapel organ recital, 11 a.m.

SUNDAY, MAY 4
Gallery Talk: "Contemporary Print-making," by Mark M. Johnson, Muscarelle Museum, 1 p.m.

FRIDAY, MAY 9
Greater Williamsburg Chapter of the Archaeological Society of Virginia: "Canal Archaeology in Richmond, Virginia," by Lyle Browning, Va. Dept. of Highways, Morton 303, 7:30 p.m.

SATURDAY, MAY 10
Wren Chapel organ recital, 11 a.m.

Road closings

The National Park Service has closed a section of the Colonial Parkway for a major rehabilitation project from Cheatham Annex (Route 641) to Millers Crossing (Route 199 at Kingspoint).

Rehabilitation work will be performed in three phases. The first is from Cheatham Annex to the Williamsburg traffic circle near the Colonial Williamsburg Visitors Center. Closure, which began this Monday, will last approximately three months.

When work is completed on the first section, it will be reopened and the next section, between Newport Avenue in Williamsburg and Millers Crossing, will be closed for approximately four months. During this time rehabilitation work will also be performed on the Bracken's Pond crossing near Yorktown, but that section of the Parkway will remain open.

The third section of the project, between the Williamsburg traffic circle and Newport Avenue, is planned to take place between the end of the Christmas holidays and April 1, 1987.

Admission tours

The Admissions Office still has some summer tour guide positions available. Because the fall positions have become so competitive, this is your best chance to become an Admissions Office Tour Guide.

Applications are available in the Office of Admissions. The deadline has been extended to accommodate new applicants.

Forum programs

The Forum of Williamsburg has planned the following programs for their May through July luncheons. All luncheons are held at the Cascades Restaurant. Advance registration and payment are required. For more information contact Julie Leverenz or Margaret Ward at ext. 4700.

Tuesday, May 13

"The Employment Interview: Choosing the Best Person for the Job," by Paula Powell, supervisor of employee relations at BASF Fibers, noon-1:50 p.m., $7.50.

Tuesday, June 10

"Presenting Yourself Graphically," by Kathy Howell Oller, owner of How Oller Design, noon-1:15 p.m., $7.50.

Tuesday, July 8

"Executive Presence," by Corrine Drosler, principal of Associates in Communications Training, noon-4 p.m., $30 (includes lunch, seminar, materials and coffee break).

SUNDAY, MAY 11
COMMENCEMENT and 50th Reunion weekend.

AT ASH LAWN: Kite Day, noon-5 p.m. (rain date, May 18)

MONDAY, MAY 12
Golf: W&M Invitational Pro-Am, Golden Horseshoe, all day.

OPEN ENROLLEMENT REGISTRATION HOURS

Listed below are the dates, times and places that the Office of Employee Relations and Affirmative Action will staff "registration booths" to assist employees in filling out their health care plan applications and to answer general questions. Please come prepared with as much of your application completed as possible.

Assistance will be given on a first-come, first-served basis. The deadline for applications is 5 p.m., Friday, May 16.

VIMS conference

The Virginia Institute of Marine Science will hold a marine science education mini-conference on Saturday, May 17 from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. in Watermen's Hall at Gloucester Point, to celebrate National Science Week, May 11-17.

The conference will include eight sessions on popular marine science activities for the classroom, a choice of three field trips, coffee/doughnuts and chowder lunch for a pre-registration fee of $5 (deadline is May 10) or $10 if registered May 11-17.

The conference, sponsored by the Virginia Sea Grant College Program at VIMS and the Mid-Atlantic Marine Education Association and oriented to educators (elementary and secondary levels) will be limited to 100 participants.

Geology lecture

Gary L. Anderson, senior staff geologist with Espey, Huston, and Associates, consulting firm, will present a slide-illustrated program on the nature of coastal areas at VIMS at 8:30 p.m., Wednesday, May 7 at Watermen's Hall, Gloucester Point.

Anderson, a former geologist at VIMS, will discuss the coastal processes at work, how these processes affect man, and how man can influence these factors.

This program is one in the "Oceanography for Landlubbers" series, presented free to the public the first Wednesday in each month. For further information on these programs please call the VIMS aquarium, 642-7174 or 642-7000.

Virginia Shakespeare Festival offers internships

The Virginia Shakespeare Festival is offering three internships this summer for local high school students interested in theater. The internships, made possible through the Dortha Skelton Memorial Fund, will carry a stipend of $300, and interns must be available from June 2 (or the end of school, whichever is earlier) until Aug. 17.

The festival will consider the applications of all interested students in grades 8 through 12, and will schedule interview/auditions with the most likely candidates. Selection will be based on evidence of an ongoing interest in theater, on experience in production and/or performance, including music, and on the likelihood of the student to profit from the experience.

Students from any school are eligible; however, because the festival does not provide housing, proximity to the College campus may be a decisive factor if the student does not have transportation.

All of the eight Skelton intern alumni have had roles or performance responsibilities. Interns have also worked behind the scenes in costume shops and on running crews and helped in the ticket office or with administrative tasks.

Applications should be made by letter to the Artistic Director, Virginia Shakespeare Festival, College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, VA 23185. Letters must be received no later than Friday, May 9.

Women's club fashion show

The College Women's Club will hold its annual spring luncheon and fashion show on Tuesday, May 6 at the Kingsmill Restaurant.

Luncheon will be served probably at noon. Following a short business meeting, members of the club will model fashions from J. B. Hickman, Ltd.

For reservations, please call Peggy Kossler, 229-8060, by Friday, May 2.

Internship Open in Investment Banking

Kidder Peabody has an opening in their Associate Intern Program in the merger and acquisition group. It is a two-year training program after which the student returns to graduate school.

A description of this program was featured in Forbes magazine and is on file in the Kidder Peabody Employer Research File in the Career Library, Morton 140.

Interested and qualifying individuals should place a resume in the Kidder Peabody envelope in the Placement Office, Morton 104, by 5 p.m., Friday, May 2. Kidder Peabody will select candidates from resumes and they will be flown to New York for an interview.

Bond campaign closes May 1

The faculty and staff have received information and registration cards to permit them to initiate (or increase) an investment in U.S. savings bonds. Dale Robinson, this year's campaign coordinator, said that he was "very optimistic that the campaign would be successful" in establishing new accounts. He added that "the bonds are a great way for any member of the faculty or staff to start a savings plan with a guaranteed minimum rate of return."

The savings bond campaign ends May 1. Information can be obtained by contacting Patsy Farmer in the Office of Employee Relations and Affirmative Action, ext. 4214.

U.S. Savings Bonds, Series EE. Rate changes every six months. Yield 8.36 percent (11/1/85-4/30/86); 9.69 percent average yield since 11/82.

Bonds offer top safety. They have a guaranteed minimum of 7.5 percent interest if held for five years. No maximum return. No risk of principal. Replacement if lost or stolen. Exchange privilege. No fees, no commission. Exempt from probate.

Taxes: Interest deferred from federal; exempt from state and local. Minimum investment: $25.

Benjamin R. Cato

Department of Mathematics

Benjamin R. Cato joined the faculty in 1955 after three years of teaching at the University of Maryland at College Park and two years at the University of Arizona at Tucson. He received his bachelor's degree and his master's degree from Duke University in 1948 and 1950 respectively, following several years of active duty as a staff sergeant in the U.S. Army Air Corps during the Second World War.

During his 31-year teaching career at William and Mary, his diverse mathematical interests have enabled him to teach an exceptionally wide variety of courses, and his effective teaching style has benefitted innumerable graduates. He was promoted to professor of mathematics in 1972.

Professor Cato has always been an enthusiastic supporter of the sports programs at the College, serving on the athletic policy committee and also as faculty adviser to the varsity and junior varsity cheerleaders for over 10 years. He has been active in almost a dozen College committees ranging from the academic status committee to the transportation appeals board.

Of particular importance has been Professor Cato's work in the early years of the master's program in the mathematics department. He was instrumental in the design and implementation of this ongoing program, which celebrates its 25th anniversary this year. He also served as associate director and director of the College's NSF Institute for Secondary School Teachers in Mathematics from 1959 through 1973, administering over one million dollars in grants. He has been a member of the book reviewing staff of Choice Magazine for over 29 years and has served on committees of the State Department of Education and the National Science Foundation.

the College and the Williamsburg community through his shared love and knowledge of music. As one of the important developers of the Concert Series, and then as a critic and enthusiastic supporter of musical events here and in Europe, he has enlightened, educated, and amused hundreds of readers through the columns of "Soundings," his regular feature article on music in the Virginia Gazette.

Margaret L. Hamilton

Department of Government

Margaret L. Hamilton joined the faculty in 1953 after serving for several years in the Department of State. She received her bachelor's degree from the University of Michigan and her master's and doctoral degrees from Columbia University.

At William and Mary she has taught principally in the areas of comparative politics and international relations, but has also given courses on American government and other subjects. Her special fields of interest have been the politics of France and Britain. She has published several important articles on both British and French politics and has recently conducted extensive research in France on local government and political parties. Her seminars on French politics and the European Left have been of special importance, drawing, as they have, on years of reflection and research.

The honors and recognition that Les Hooker has received describe well the high regard in which he is held by his peers: Virginia Coach of the Year, 1952, 1953, 1955, 1956; National Collegiate Athletic Association Educational Committee member; Virginia Sportswriter and Sportscasters Award, 1966; president of the Southern Conference Athletic Directors, 1968; Southern Conference Commissioner's Cup, 1969, 1970, 1971; inducted into the Virginia Sports Hall of Fame, 1982; member of the board and president of the Virginia Sports Hall of Fame; lifetime member National Basketball Hall of Fame; and finally over 20 years of service to the International Association of Auditorium Managers, assisting this group in several leadership capacities in developing the highest professional standards.

Lester Hooker is a man of integrity and in his years of service to William and Mary he has gained the respect of all elements of the College community. He has been dedicated to his profession, to the students, and to the College's high expectations for all individuals who come to this campus to learn or to teach.

J. Luke Martel

Department of Modern Languages and Literatures

J. Luke Martel joined the faculty in 1963 after 12 years of teaching at various institutions of higher learning both in this country and in France. He received his bachelor's degree from the University of Arizona, the Licence-des-Lettres from the Universite de Montpellier, and his doctorate from the Universite d'Aix-Marseille.

At William and Mary, he has taught across the wide spectrum of courses in French language, literature and civilization, with special interest in 19th-century literature and the culture of Quebec. Over the years, he has provided energetic leadership to the College and professional organizations, and, in recognition of his achievements, he was decorated by the French government with the Palmes Academiques.

His contributions to the international dimensions of education have been outstanding. As a founding member and president of the Alliance Francaise, he has furthered the cause of intercultural understanding and service to the community. He has further manifested his unswerving commitment to international study in his creation of the College's Junior Year in France, which he has nurtured and directed since its inception.

John A. Moore

Department of Modern Languages and Literatures

John A. Moore joined the faculty in 1950 after four years of teaching at the University of North Carolina. He received his bachelor's degree from Davidson College and his master's degree and doctorate from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He has been the recipient of professional honors such as the Fulbright and Danforth fellowships in support of teaching and research, and he served on the executive committee of the South Atlantic Modern Language Association.

At William and Mary he has taught a wide range of courses in Spanish language and literature, with a specialization in Cervantes and Spanish renaissance literature. Throughout his professional career, he has been most active in research, having authored numerous articles and two books relating to Spanish literature from the Renaissance through the modern age. He has provided valuable leadership to the Spanish section as its coordinator, and he served as chair of the Department of Modern Languages and Literatures during the 1985-86 academic year.

Of significant importance in his professional life has been his kindness, good humor, charitable spirit, and willingness to share his professional interests with his colleagues. In sensitive matters he has been a force of moderation down through the years, and he has encouraged harmonious interaction of all of his associates.

John S. Quinn

School of Business Administration

John S. Quinn joined the faculty in 1949. In 1955-56 he served as budget officer of the University of Maryland and has served the academic community with distinction since his initial appointment.

During his tenure he has taught virtually every accounting course offered at the College. His reputation as a teacher and contributor to William and Mary earned him its highest faculty recognition, the Thomas Jefferson Award. As successor in accounting to the late Wayne F. Gibbs Sr., Professor Quinn is a man of uncompromising personal and professional integrity and a stern but loving task-master. He confesses that his greatest satisfaction comes from the success of his students on national accounting examinations, in their courses and in their personal lives.

Educated at Salem State College, Boston University and the Harvard Business School, Professor Quinn has helped guide the College's accounting program through its period in the Department of Business Administration, the founding of the School of Business Administration in 1978, and the achievement of the recently inaugurated accounting pro-plementation of this ongoing program, which celebrates its 25th anniversary this year. He also served as associate director and director of the College's NSF Institute for Secondary School Teachers in Mathematics from 1959 through 1973, administering over one million dollars in grants. He has been a member of the book reviewing staff of Choice Magazine for over 29 years and has served on committees of the State Department of Education and the National Science Foundation.

Dennis K. Cogle

Director of Planning and Budget

Dennis Cogle has resided outside his native Virginia only as almost four years of service in the Army Signal Corps took him to North Africa, Italy, France and ultimately Germany during World War II. Returning home, he matriculated at William and Mary, received his baccalaureate degree in 1949, and began immediately his long service to the Commonwealth as administrative assistant to the director of the Virginia Fisheries Laboratory. In 1958 he moved his duties to Williamsburg, and for 28 years he has ably served his College in administrative positions whose titles indicate the breadth of their responsibilities: director of personnel, assistant to the bursar, assistant vice president for business affairs, and acting director of planning and budget. He broadened even more his relationship with the College by the achievement of an M.B.A. degree in 1970.

William and Mary has never had a more loyal alumnus than Dennis Cogle, or a more dedicated servant. Our finances have benefitted from his scrupulous attention to detail; our athletic teams, or at least their stadium fans, have been enthused by his booming encouragement; and our lives in Williamsburg have been enhanced by Dennis' decision, once returned from the wars, never to leave Virginia again.

Carl R. Dolmetsch

Department of English

Carl R. Dolmetsch joined the faculty in 1959 as an assistant professor after teaching three years at Drake University. He had received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Drake and his doctorate from the University of Chicago.

At William and Mary he balanced a strong commitment to undergraduate and graduate teaching with an active career as a publishing scholar. He taught a wide variety of courses in English and American literature, from freshman writing to graduate seminars, and always exhibited enthusiasm and mastery of his subject. His special province has been American literature of the 19th and 20th centuries, and his extensive scholarship has focused on the writings of two classic American humorists, wits, and social critics: Mark Twain and H. L. Mencken. As recognition of his growing international reputation, he taught from 1964 to 1966 in Berlin, Germany, as a Fulbright Professor, and since has lectured and taught extensively both here and abroad. To his outstanding achievements as a teacher and scholar, must be added his extensive contribution to governance at William and Mary through service on many College committees, and through his six-year tenure as chairman of the English department from 1970 to 1976.

Professor Dolmetsch has been particularly generous to

In addition to her teaching and research, she has played an active and stimulating role in college governance. She was chair of the Department of Government from 1973 to 1978, and she acted in that capacity in 1968-69. She has served on numerous committees in the College, including those on educational policy, faculty affairs, and foreign studies.

She has been an active participant in national and regional professional meetings, has received Fulbright and Ford Foundation fellowships, and in 1962-63 was an adviser to the Council of World Affairs in San Francisco.

Provost

George R. Healy became vice president for academic affairs and professor of history in 1971 after serving successively as teacher, department head, dean, and provost at Bates College between 1957 and 1971. At William and Mary he was concurrently appointed provost in 1975 and became acting president from January to July 1985. In his 15 years as the senior administrative and chief academic officer under the President he exemplified, to the highest degree, qualities of humaneness, civility, judgment, and integrity in a demanding position.

His career spanned a period of unprecedented growth and increasing complexity in the academic programs of William and Mary. In responding to these challenges he never wavered in his commitment to liberal and professional education and to the intellectual quality of this historic college. He adjudicated differences of opinion and made difficult decisions with fairness and reason. For many faculty and staff he has been the conscience of this institution.

The performance of his administrative duties has reflected the solid academic grounding that he received from his undergraduate education at Oberlin College, his graduate training at the University of Minnesota, and his earliest teaching at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. A specialist in the intellectual history of 18th-century France, he brought a Gallic precision to his prose style. Few administrators in American education have produced more eloquent memoranda. In representing the College he won the lasting esteem of his fellow administrators in Virginia higher education. He has earned the unqualified respect of all who have worked closely with him.

Director of William and Mary Hall

H. Lester Hooker Jr. came to the College in 1939 as a freshman, the loyal son of a loyal father. He withdrew from college during World War II to serve in the United States Air Force, returned to graduate in 1947 and immediately began a life dedicated to the service of the young citizens of the Commonwealth as a teacher and a coach. He returned to his alma mater finally in 1963 and served as director of athletics until 1972 when he assumed the new position of director of William and Mary Hall. In most of those years at the College he has held the ranks of assistant then associate professor of physical education and has been a teaching member of the faculty.

gram accreditation by the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business in 1984. In large measure his reputation as an accounting educator and program leader for many years is responsible for the high national reputation of the College's accounting program.

Harriet E. Reid Director of Career Planning

Harriet E. Reid has been a staff member of the College for 22 years. Arriving at William and Mary after serving as director of guidance at James Madison High School in Vienna, Va., she served for 11 years in the Office of Admissions as the assistant dean of admissions, the director of admissions for women and the associate dean of admissions. She became the director of career planning in 1975.

A skilled counselor, Harriet Reid's career is distinguished by a unique ability to discern and challenge the potential in young people and by a deep commitment to them and to their success. Her lightness of heart, keen judgment and obvious love of learning have endeared her to students and have made her a valued and much admired colleague.

Through her untiring efforts William and Mary has achieved a program of career services of which it is justly proud. She has creatively involved alumni and friends of the College in career activities by inaugurating the Alumni Career Advisory Service and Career Speakers Forum; her support and supervision of the pre-med and pre-law advising programs have resulted in an enviable record of success in placing William and Mary students in medical and law schools; and recently, she has been instrumental in developing internship opportunities for the College's students. A major accomplishment has been the establishment of a Career Library and Resource Center, which is widely recognized by students and colleagues as a model facility. Her work has benefitted countless students through the help she has provided them in achieving direction and purpose in their lives and in preparing for productive service in their careers beyond college.

Howard Marston Smith Jr. Department of Physical Education

Howard Marston Smith Jr. graduated from the College in January 1943. After service in World War II, he returned to the College as a member of the physical education department in 1947 and has continued since then as a member of the teaching faculty. He received his master's degree from Syracuse University and completed the course requirements for his doctorate at the same institution.

At the College he has served in a variety of capacities in addition to his teaching responsibilities. He was chairman of the Department of Physical Education from 1951 to 1978.

From 1958 to 1972 he served as faculty adviser to Omicron Delta Kappa, a national student leadership fraternity. He was an active member and officer of the Order of the White Jacket from its inception, serving as its president in 1982-83. Additionally, he was chairman and faculty adviser of the College Dance Committee from 1946 to 1958 and served in an advisory capacity to other student groups including the now defunct varsity club and the physical education majors club.

During his many years of teaching in the physical education department he has been involved in practically every course offered by the department. He has served the College on committees ranging from admissions to degrees and from curriculum within the discipline of physical education to athletics.

He has been a leader at all levels. He has participated in national programs and has been especially active in the state professional organizations. On the local level, he has been instrumental in encouraging the mutually beneficial relationship between the College and the public and private school systems. He, more than any other person, was responsible for the student teaching program for physical education majors that has been conducted throughout the Peninsula for the past 40 years. He has further served the local community overseeing the Department of Recreation and the Williamsburg-James City County School Board.

Richard Bland Sidney Robert Davis

Sidney Robert Davis became a member of the faculty of Richard Bland College in 1968. His expertise in the broad field of sociology has been recognized at the state and national levels. His appointment as a delegate from the Commonwealth to the White House Conference on Aging is indicative of his standing among his colleagues. A multitude of public service activities, numerous speaking engagements, and memberships on various boards and commissions have been a part of his illustrious teaching career.

Professor Davis introduced several new courses in his field during the past 18 years. His special talents in social gerontology, marriage and the family, and dying, death, and bereavement have brought recognition to both him and the College.

During his tenure at the College, Professor Davis served as chairman of the Department of Sociology and chairman of the Division of Humanities and Social Sciences. In an administrative capacity, he ably assisted the College as dean of students.

Erika R. A. Stronach

Erika R. A. Stronach became a member of the faculty of Richard Bland College in 1964. She has taught numerous courses in elementary and intermediate German and has assisted non-native students in instruction of English as a second language.

Professor Stronach's major contribution, in addition to her teaching career, has been in the area of public and community service. In years past, she has coordinated the efforts of the Community Wind Ensemble and The Entertainers, a College-sponsored singing group. Her efforts to bring potential high school students in touch with music have served as a vital recruiting tool. The Octoberfest sponsored by the German Club has enhanced further the reputation of the College within the community. Richard Bland College appreciates the 22 years of service rendered by Professor Stronach.

Marjorie Z. Solenberger

Marge Solenberger, public relationist at Richard Bland since 1968, was born in Oregon, raised in California, married in China, lived three years in The Netherlands and came here from New Mexico. Wife of a retired naval officer with 17 years of sea duty, she was a newspaper woman before her marriage. In 1958 she became director of the news bureau for the University of New Mexico. There she was president of the New Mexico Press Women and Theta Sigma Phi, national honorary for women in communications.

Presently she serves as the fourth woman since 1948 on the Petersburg General Hospital Authority and is on the boards of the Petersburg Historic Foundation, Inc., and the Southside Virginia Concert Association, Inc. As a Virginia Press Woman she is a member of the national committee arranging for the 50th anniversary recognition of the National Press Women to be held in June of 1987 in Williamsburg. A member of the Herb Society of America, she grows and discusses herbs but considers the best crop of all, three sons, all doctors.

As public relationist for Richard Bland College for 28 years, she pursued a public relations program intended to bring credit not only to that institution but to its parent college, The College of William and Mary. Looking upon the program as a means to reinforce not only governing missions and policies, she pursued this course as well with the administration, faculty, staff and above all, the students.

She continued to introduce new projects to enhance the College and its environs. Among these projects were en-

Board Actions

Financial affairs took center stage as the Board of Visitors approved operating budgets for the College of William and Mary, the Virginia Institute of Marine Science and Richard Bland College for the 1986-87 academic year at its meeting April 24-26 in the College's Campus Center.

The Rector of the College, Miss Anne Dobbie Peebles, welcomed the new Board members appointed by the governor in March. The new members are Mrs. W. Averell Harriman of Washington, D.C., Carlisle H. Humelsine of Williamsburg, and James W. Brinkley of Towson, Md. They replaced A. Addison "Billy" Roberts of Philadelphia, Mrs. Jeanne S. Kinnamon of Williamsburg, and Mrs. Caroline T. Egelhoff of Williamsburg.

The Board approved the following budgets for 1986-87 at William and Mary:

*$42,761,542 for educational and general programs, 60 percent of which is funded by the General Assembly, with the remainder funded by tuition and fees;

*$14,608,229 for maintenance and operations of state auxiliary enterprises (which includes student food services, student residences, faculty housing, student health and counseling services, William and Mary Hall, the Campus Center, parking, and the bus service); and

*$1,284,854 for private auxiliary enterprises (which includes $702,740 for the bookstore, $520,140 for Ash L awn, and $62,014 for the William Small Physics Laboratory Machine Shop).

For the Virginia Institute of Marine Science, the Board approved an operating budget of $9,892,000, for its programs in marine life management, higher education instruction and administrative and support services.

Richard Bland College's operating budget approved for 1986-87 is $3,234,753. The educational and general portion of the budget includes a 14.6 percent tuition increase to help fund General Assembly mandated salary increases for classified employees, faculty and administrators.

Other 1986-87 William and Mary operating budgets receiving Board approval were:

*$1,117,442 for women's athletics;

*$3,040,963 for men's athletics;

*$606,030 from private funds for the Society of the Alumni;

*$202,647 from the Alfred Wilson Lee and Mary I. W. Lee Memorial Trust for the Marshall-Wythe School of Law's Institute of Bill of Rights Law; and

*$3,172,048 from private funds, which is controlled by the Board itself.

In its Committee on Buildings and Grounds, the Board heard progress reports on the $3-million addition to the Earl Gregg Swem Library and the $1.3-million addition to the Muscarelle Museum of Art.

The Board also received reports on future major construction projects scheduled for the 1986-88 biennium. Among the future construction projects are: an addition to the psychological counseling center on Richmond Road, expected to cost $137,500 in auxiliary enterprise funds; two additional intramural athletic fields, to be built behind the Commons with $165,000 in auxiliary enterprise funds; the $2.2-million renovation of Ewell Hall; a $4.3-million physical education, intramural/recreation facility; a $1.6-million student residence near the law school; and $1.3-million reconstruction of Tyler Hall for an International Studies House.

The Board also passed a resolution directing the administration to request $154,000 from the state to renovate William and Mary Hall to accommodate both the men's and women's athletic associations.

From a resolution recommended by its academic affairs committee, the Board approved the College's submission of a proposal for a Ph.D. in American studies to the State Council of Higher Education in Virginia (SCHEV). If approved by SCHEV, the program would start in the fall of 1988.

The Board officially approved the mission and policy statements of the Muscarelle Museum of Art which had been previously written in conjunction with museum's Visiting Committee.

The Board's university advancement committee heard a progress report summarizing gift receipts through April 8, 1986. William and Mary has received $2.6 million this fiscal year in expendable funds for current operations, a 49 percent increase over the same period last year; $3.1 for capital purposes, including endowment, facilities and gifts-in-kind, a 28.8 percent increase over last year if the gift of the Goodwin Islands is excluded.

The late Samuel T. Blaisdell of New York, class of '49, made a $50,000 bequest for undergraduate scholarships, and the Board established the Samuel T. Blaisdell Memorial Scholarship, the income from which shall be used for student aid.

The Board approved the following appointments to fill existing vacancies:

EDWARD A. ABRAMSON, full-time visiting professor of English, Aug. 16, 1986 through May 15, 1987. This is a temporary, restricted appointment.

MERYL ALTMAN, full-time assistant professor of English, Aug. 16, 1986 through May 15, 1987.

search for his successor. Mel Schiavelli is the ideal choice. He brings the qualities of academic leadership, the personal style and the commitments that are essential for the continued development of this increasingly complex institution."

Schiavelli, 43, will serve as the senior administrative and chief academic officer of the college in his new post, and will be responsible for all educational programs, academic planning and policies. He also will share responsibility for budget planning and implementation with the vice president for administration and finance, Andrew B. Fogarty.

A native of Chicago, Schiavelli joined William and Mary in 1968 as an assistant professor of chemistry. He was promoted to associate professor in 1971 and to professor in 1980 and served as chairman of the chemistry department from 1978 through 1984, when he was appointed dean of the faculty of arts and sciences.

Marshall

1979, Ms. Marshall has been responsible for budgeting, planning, policy development and evaluation of public services activities for 11 service units and nine collection specialties in the graduate research library with major campus holdings in the social sciences and the humanities.

Included in the Memorial Library public services division are reference/documents, circulation, interlibrary loan, rare books and special collections, public catalog information desk, microforms, periodicals, foreign newspapers, reserves, collection preservation and specialized reading rooms.

From 1983 to 1984, Ms. Marshall served as acting director of libraries at the University of Wisconsin-Madison with responsibility for the overall administration and management of the General Library System, including the main research library and 14 branch libraries, a budget of $10 million, collections of 3.1 million volumes, a professional staff of 92, and a para-professional staff of 197.

One of Ms. Marshall's main fields of interest is copyright law. She has participated in activities in this area both at the state and national levels and is the author of several publications pertaining to copyrighting including "The New Copyright Law: A Five Year Review," Bowker Annual of Library and Book Trade Information, 28th edition (1983); and "Register of Copyrights' Five-Year Review Report: A View from the Field," Library Trends, vol. 32, no. 2 (Fall 1983).

Ms. Marshall is married to William H. Marshall, professor of child development in the School of Family Resources at the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

The Marshalls have four children. Bruce is an assistant professor of theology, St. Olaf's College, Northfield, Minn. Gregg, with the U.S.I.A., is currently stationed in Jakarta, Indonesia. He will be duty officer for the press corps for the upcoming visit of President Reagan to Bali. Lisa is an editorial supervisor for J. B. Lippincott Publishers, Philadelphia, and Jeanine is an accountant with the Madison, Wis., Power and Light Company.

couragement of a natural trail, which brought thousands to the College, and leading students on off-campus assistance programs such as painting the ancient bandstand at historic Poplar Lawn Park and cleaning the grave site of Richard Bland, a Virginia statesman and champion of public rights as well as a William and Mary graduate. A major accomplishment was locating a painting of Richard Bland whose place in history has been most insecure because of the lack of a likeness and his untimely death October 26, 1776, on the outbreak of the Revolutionary War, which deprived him of a rightful place among with the great heroes of that period.

Sylvia H. McIvor

On this special occasion it is appropriate that we recognize Sylvia McIvor, an individual who has been with Richard Bland College almost since its inception. She was there as one of the first three full-time employees and served as secretary to the director of the College and the business manager. Her developing guidelines for admissions procedures, planning for the initial student orientation and registration programs, securing housing for non-resident students and initiating the first student financial aid program, all serve as examples of her instrumental role in the early days of the College.

It is appropriate that this year she watched the College celebrate its 25th anniversary. A college that has grown from a fledgling institution with nine faculty and 175 students to one that offers three transferable liberal arts, science and business degrees to nearly 1,000 students, taught by 31 full-time and a dozen part-time faculty.

The celebration of this 25th anniversary coincides with her retirement. Her 25 years have placed her in whatever position was needed at each point in time. As assistant registrar for admissions, college registrar and later, director of admissions and registrar, she combined authority with compassion, understanding with empathy, and duty with service.

Tuition, fees structure detailed

To: The College Community

From: George R. Healy

Subject: Tuition and General Fee, Room, Board, and Other Fees for 1986-87

At a meeting of the Board of Visitors on Friday, April 25, 1986, the operating budgets of the College of William and Mary were approved. The Board of Visitors then approved the tuition and fee schedules necessary to finance the operating budgets.

As has been true in recent years, the charges necessary to finance the operating budgets have increased. This is primarily due to the need to finance the College's share of the faculty and classified salary increases, and other operating enhancements, authorized by the 1986 General Assembly. There is also a modest rate of inflation that must be covered in auxiliary enterprises, intercollegiate athletics, and room costs.

In constructing College budgets for 1986-87, we have tried to keep all increases in tuition and fees to the lowest levels consistent with need, legislative mandates, and predictable minimum costs. The details of the new tuition and fee schedules as approved by the Board of Visitors are listed below.

	RESIDENT 1986-87	DIFFERENCE: 1985-86 to 1986-87	NON-RESIDENT 1986-87	DIFFERENCE: 1985-86 to 1986-87

An article titled "On Causality, Responsibility, and Self-Blame: A Theoretical Note," has just been published in the Journal of Personality and Social Psychology by Kelly G. Shaver, professor of psychology, and Debra Drown, a student in the Virginia Consortium for Professional Psychology Psy.D. program. Shaver presented a paper, co-authored by Patricia M. Hayes, a former William and Mary undergraduate student who is now on the staff at the Medical College of Virginia, titled, "Situational Possibility, Personal Similarity, and Defensive Attribution in a Dangerous Job," at the recent meetings of the Eastern Psychological Association.

Hedy R. Dexter, a student in the psychology predoctoral M.A. program, presented a paper in the same session titled "Victim's Contribution to an Accident: Responsibility Attributions to Victims and Perpetrators" that was co-authored by Shaver. In the fall Ms. Dexter will be continuing her education in the social psychology program at the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

Joanne B. Funigiello, associate professor of modern languages and literatures, presented a paper "Approaches to Literature," at the session on "The Teaching of Italian Literature," at the Northeast Conference on the Teaching of Foreign Languages held in Washington, D.C., April 17-20.

Bruce Roberts, associate professor of economics, presented a paper titled "Marx after Marx After Sraffa: Separating Marxism from 'Surplus Theory'" at the meeting of the Association for Economic and Social Analysis in Amherst, Mass., April 4.

Roberts also authored with Susan Feiner and Barbara Morgan, a paper titled "Hidden by the Invisible Hand: Race and Gender in Introductory Economics Texts," which was presented at the meeting of the American Economic Association in December.

Kevin Geoffroy presented a paper titled "An application of the Zener-Schnuelle and Jachan Indexes for Measuring the Degree of Congruence Between the Holland Vocational Preference Inventory and the Occupational Values Scale," at the annual conference of the Eastern Education Research Association in Miami Beach this spring. In addition, he chaired the presentation session on "College Instruction - Curriculum and Occupational Choices."

Three past presidents of the Peninsula Counselors Association, all from the School of Education, were honored with commemorative plaques for leadership and service to the Association. Kevin Geoffroy, professor of education, served as 11th president, 1973-74; Fred Adair, 14th president, 1976-77, and Charles Matthews, 18th president, 1980-81.

Hedy R. Dexter, a student in the psychology predoctoral M.A. program, presented a paper in the same session titled "Victim's Contribution to an Accident: Responsibility Attributions to Victims and Perpetrators" that was co-authored by Shaver. In the fall Ms. Dexter will be continuing her education in the social psychology program at the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

To Students Seeking Certification

All students (graduate and undergraduate) who are seeking Virginia State Certification this spring must file an application in the Placement Office of the School of Education. These application forms must be picked up in Jones 310, filled out by the student and returned to Jones 310 if he/she hopes to be certified to teach in Virginia beginning with the 1986-87 school year.

Bikers benefit Statute of Liberty

The Williamsburg Kodak Liberty Ride Festival will be held Sunday, May 18 as bicyclists celebrate and support the restoration of the Statue of Liberty. Opening ceremonies to be held at 12:45 p.m. at William and Mary Hall will feature the Colonial Williamsburg Fife and Drum Corps.

Cyclists will have a choice of three loops - 12.4 miles, 23 miles or 33.8 miles long - that start and end at the Hall.

Local entertainment and a picnic lunch will be available at the Hall, followed by a live concert beamed by satellite from New Orleans.

Williamsburg is one of 100 cities in the country (three in Virginia) chosen to host this festival.

More information is available by contacting the event's local publicist, Sharon Buehrle at 253-0303 (days) and 229-6082 (evenings).
