Kirkpatrick to address graduates Sunday

Over 1,300 including graduate and undergraduate students are expected to receive degrees at commencement exercises, Sunday, May 11 at 2 p.m. in William and Mary Hall.

The principal speaker will be Jeane J. Kirkpatrick, the first woman to serve as chief U.S. representative to the United Nations, a post she held from 1981 to 1985. She also will be one of five to receive honorary degrees awarded by the Board of Visitors. Honorary degree recipients include J. Bruce Bredin, a 1936 alumnus and former member of the William and Mary Board of Visitors; Richard Hendrik Fein, Ambassador from the Netherlands to the United States; George F. Kennan, retired foreign service officer, Soviet-American relations analyst and professor emeritus of the Institute for Advanced Study in Princeton, N.J.; and Charles R. Longworth, president and executive officer of the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation.

The Rev. William Sloan Coffin, senior minister of the Riverside Church in New York City and a nationally recognized leader in the civil rights and peace movements of the 1960s and '70s, will deliver the baccalaureate address at 9:30 a.m., Saturday in William and Mary Hall.

Scott Ward of San Francisco, whose honors and accomplishments are many, has been selected to give the student address at commencement, Sunday, May 11.

Jeane Kirkpatrick

Ward will graduate with a major in interdisciplinary studies and a GPA of 3.91.

Ward has been president of the William and Mary Debate Council this year, a member of the intercollegiate debate team for the past two years, a member

Faculty/staff commit over $50,000 to several campus fund raisers

With seven weeks remaining in the current fiscal year, faculty and staff members have made gifts and commitments totaling in excess of $50,000 to a variety of funds and projects at the College. Of the total, $43,472 is cash-on-hand with an additional $5,022 in pledges due prior to the June 30 end of the fiscal year. Another $15,000 has already been pledged for payment during fiscal 1986-87.

"This significant level of investment from within the College community reflects a strong concern for the activities of the institution and a vote of confidence in its mission," stated Duane A. Dittman, vice president for university advancement. "Faculty and staff members have contributed to individual areas of choice for many years, but not until last year's Faculty-Staff Campaign did the giving of this group receive visibility."

Last year's Faculty-Staff Campaign inaugurated the annual effort, addressing the need for student financial assistance, yet receiving gifts designated for other purposes as well. According to Dittman, under the leadership of Vinson H. Suttle Jr., professor of anthropology, the effort's success went beyond the financial, raising the level of campus awareness to the institution's range of needs, making a unified statement of expressed concern over the lack of sufficient student financial assistance and providing a common vehicle for faculty and staff to demonstrate their commitment to the institution.

Dittman further noted that under the leadership of Donald J. Messmer, J. S. Mack Professor of Business Administration, the current year's effort built upon last year's success, adding an additional $20,000 in new gifts and commitments and broadening the donor base. While many of the gifts have been designated for student financial aid again this year, other areas, including the establishment of a new endowment fund, have received significant support as well.

"We are very excited about the total amount of dollars contributed over the past year," said Messmer. "It is the first

Student Awards

Liddle receives NSCD fellowship

Melanie Ann Liddle, a doctoral student in history, has received the National Society of Colonial Dames Fellowship for 1986-87.

Ms. Liddle is a 1983 graduate of Austin College in Sherman, Texas, where she received a bachelor's degree with honors in history. During 1983-84 she worked as a volunteer in excavation and lab work for the Virginia Research Center for Archaeology and on the Peyton Randolph site for Colonial Williamsburg. She also serves as a conservation assistant for Colonial Williamsburg and worked on their cultural resource management project. Her adviser is James P. Whittenburg, associate professor of history.

Fulbright Award given Browning

Rebecca Lee Browning, a senior and German major, has won a Fulbright scholarship for 1986-87 and plans to study abroad, probably in Hamburg. Browning, who has been coordinator for the Women's Forum this year, is interested in feminist criticism. She studied at the College program in Munster last summer.

For honors she is completing a project titled "The German Woman: Self-Revelation and Literature." She has interviewed 24 German women on their role in society and the family and is comparing their responses to the work of three contemporary German women authors to show the interface between reality and literature.

After her year abroad Browning will begin a doctoral program in English literature at Rutgers University.

Transfer student to study in Japan

Kate McCormick, a junior and a transfer from Rosemont College in Philadelphia, has been awarded the Washington, D.C., Women's Committee scholarship for a year of study at the Christian University in Tokyo, Japan.

An economics major, McCormick is interested in the international aspects of Japan in the trade market and will spend her year abroad studying economics from the Japanese viewpoint and learning the language. Amazed at her good fortune, McCormick says she had little thought of actually winning the award, but entered because she wanted to have contact with the Committee and ask their guidance on Japanese studies at the graduate level.

After her year abroad, McCormick will lack one semester of satisfying the residence requirement so will return for further courses on campus.

McCormick hopes to begin her stay in Japan this summer as an intern for either Merrill Lynch or Morgan Guaranty Bank. Merrill Lynch is the first American company to gain a seat on the Tokyo Stock Exchange. McCormick has learned already that she is one of 10 finalists for an internship with the bank. She is currently serving an internship with the development office of the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation.

Before coming to Williamsburg, McCormick spent three summers as an intern in the office of Pennsylvania Governor Richard Thornburgh.

McMahon chosen for exchange

Mark McMahon has been selected as the Exchange Scholar to study at the University of Exeter in England next year.

A junior majoring in English and international relations, McMahon will return to campus for an additional year of study. He plans to undertake an honors project in English before graduation.

He is a member of Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity, the Nuclear Disarmament Study group and last year was a member of the varsity fencing team.

McMahon has several reasons for wanting to study abroad. He has many relatives in the United Kingdom and looks forward to visiting them and gaining a good insight into British culture. He is also excited about the opportunity to study in the English university system. He will be taking courses in English, history and political science.

McMahon, who is from Ellicott City, Md., came to William and Mary as a winner of a Westinghouse Corporation scholarship his freshman year. He will leave for England in early September and do some traveling before classes begin in October.

Christina Luman Time winner

An essay on the importance of fluency in a foreign language won for Christina Luman, a junior, the honor of being named one of Time Magazine's College Achievement Winners for 1986.

One hundred students from across the country were named by Time and honored at a banquet held in New York City on March 31. As well as a certificate of merit from Time, Luman had her resume viewed by participating corporations for job openings and intern opportunities.

A French major, Luman wasn't firmly convinced of her career choice until she spent last year at Montpellier under the College's foreign students program. The opportunity to live in the country, speak the language and establish friendships with students from several countries in Europe convinced her that she would like to do something in French, probably teach. She plans graduate study in French after graduation and is looking ahead to teaching on the college level.

Luman lives in the French House and is president of the French honorary Pi Delta Phi.

Book collectors win prizes

Winners of the third annual Williamsburg Bibliophiles Student Book Collecting Contest have been announced. First-place awards of $150 and second-place awards of $75 were provided by the Bibliophiles and the William and Mary Bookstore.

In the undergraduate division first place went to junior James Calpin for his collection on military affairs. Norman Barr, a sophomore, won second place for his collection on military uniforms from the 1930s to 1945.

First place in the graduate division went to Thomas Munroe, a doctoral candidate at VIMS, for his collection on fishes. Alexander Boulton, master's degree candidate in American studies, received second place for his collection titled "Regional Domestic Architecture of the Eastern United States."

Sample books from the winning collections are displayed at the William and Mary Bookstore and in the lobby of Swem Library.

The contest was established here in 1984 to encourage book collecting among students and promote an interest in related graphic arts. All entrants submitted an essay about their collecting interests with a list of 25 titles. Finalists made oral presentations to the judging panel composed of Terry Meyers, professor of English; John Ballinger of the Book Press; and Sharon Thelin, contest coordinator and member of the Bibliophile Council.

She plans to work at Tell-Halif on the edge of the Negev Desert on the Lahav Valley Research Project, headed by Joseph Sager at Mississippi State University. She will be studying the Beer-shebas. Monger is particularly excited to have the opportunity to work with Mindy Zeden, an archeozoologist from the Smithsonian Institution.

An anthropology major with a minor in history, Monger is planning to study the domestication of plants and animals of the area. She also plans to do ethnographic studies.

She worked at St. Eustatius in the West Indies last summer with the College's archaeological project there directed by Norman Barka and Eric Ayisi of the anthropology faculty.

Monger is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority, a cheerleader, president of the anthropology club and a sports writer for the Flat Hat. She is also an anthropology assistant working with Vinson Sutlive, chairman of the anthropology department. She has also been a tour guide for the admissions office.

Dr. Jane Goodall lecture set Thursday, May 15 in PBK Hall

Leakey and became internationally known herself for her study of chimpanzees in their natural habitat, will give one of her rare public appearances at 8 p.m., Thursday, May 15 in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

Her lecture "In the Shadow of Man," will feature slides of the chimps of the Gombe National Park, Tanzania, that she has made famous and insights into the implications of her observations for humans.

Goodall now lives in Dar es Salaam, Tanzania, and spends one-third of the year in Gombe collecting data. Her lectures, both in the United States and Europe, are arranged by the L.S.B. Leakey Foundation to help raise funds for continued research and give her an opportunity to share her studies with a wide audience.

preservation of colonial records and monuments in Virginia and the encouragement of scholarship in early Virginia history.

Sprinkle, who received a master's degree in anthropology with a specialization in historical anthropology from William and Mary in 1984, will focus his research on Bacon's Rebellion. The title of his project is "Too Much a Stranger There": Characteristics of the Baconians 1660-1676." His aim will be to create a collective biography of the known participants on both sides of the rebellion.

CHANGING HEALTH CARE PROGRAMS OR COVERAGE

Faculty and staff are reminded that completed applications to change health care programs must be received in the Office of Employee Relations and Affirmative Action by 5 p.m., May 16. Also, anyone who wishes to expand (single to family) or reduce (family to single) coverage for this program must also make that change by May 16.

After Sunday, no hot water

In order to implement a piping change in the power plant, it is necessary to schedule a complete shut down of this facility for several days immediately following commencement exercises. The full installation/maintenance period will take approximately 10 days to complete.

Although the entire campus community will be affected, some locations will be more involved than others. During this period there will be little or no hot water in residence halls, Adair, Blow, William and Mary Hall, and most other campus facilities. The exceptions will be small frame buildings with self-contained hot water heaters.

Please contact Charles J. Lombardo, director of operations, ext. 4211, if you have any questions regarding this matter.

Gordon wins China scholarship

Andrew Gordon

After a college career that began 10 years ago and has been interrupted by a decade of unusual life experiences, Andrew Gordon will graduate Sunday as an English concentrator and winner of a full scholarship for a year of study in China.

He is one of 15 selected on a nationwide basis by the American Association of State Colleges and Universities to receive scholarships offered through the Coordination Council for North American Affairs. The awards are sponsored by the Ministry of Education of the Republic of China.

The scholarship will allow him to live and study for the academic year 1986-87 in Taipei at the Taiwan Normal University Mandarin Training Center. After his year abroad, Gordon plans to return to study for a doctorate in comparative Chinese literature.

When Gordon began his college career in 1970 at the University of Wisconsin at Stevens Point, his primary interest was physics. It was a troubling time to be a student. Although he changed his concentration to English, he still wasn't satisfied with school and dropped out twice in two and a half years.

He teamed up with a friend, got an FHA loan and bought a dairy farm in Zenda, Wis. The herd of 47 Holsteins provided a good income for the two, but there was, as Gordon describes it, "a personality collision."

The two parted ways, and Gordon deecided to hitchhike out West. He spent six months hitchhiking and backpacking through the Black Hills, Yellowstone, Olympia, Glacier and Yosemite national parks. He had many adventures.

He recalls a chance encounter with a mountain lion who emerged from a sage slope in Yellowstone as he sat on a log sewing buttons on a shirt. "For a few seconds our eyes met. She knew I didn't mean any harm, but she also didn't want anything to do with a human being. She crossed in front of me and loped up into the sage again."

Gordon returned from the California coast via Canada, in time to help with the fall harvest of durum wheat on his uncle's farm in North Dakota.

When his family moved from Wisconsin to Virginia Beach, he moved east too.

He lived in Charlottesville for eight years. While there, he worked as a hospital attendant, wrote short stories, hitchhiked once again to San Francisco and back in 1978, managed a camera store, opened his own photographic printing business and taught photography at Piedmont Virginia Community College.

His mother and father had always urged him to return to school; his brother Peter graduated from William and Mary last year. The thought of being challenged again by ideas excited Gordon.

Getting back to books was refreshing. He explains that when he became interested in photography and its visual language, he stopped reading and spent most of his time photographing and printing. "Coming back to school has meant many adjustments, but it has also offered the excitement of learning new things. I've been able to study the structures in literature . . . the senses of form acquired by the written word. And," says Gordon, "there's also the satisfaction of finishing college."

Gordon is well prepared for his sojourn in China. He has taken courses in Chinese language, East Asian history and comparative Chinese literature. He is looking forward to his year in Taiwan to bring him fluency with the language and rich experiences in Chinese culture. He is planning to live with a Chinese family so he will have ample opportunity to hone his language skills.

STUDENT FICA

Students claiming FICA exclusion are not eligible for this exclusion during the May 16-31 pay period. This does not apply to students attending classes with an F or J visa. New FICA exclusion forms for all students are required by May 23 by the Employee Relations/Affirmative Action Office for exclusion during the summer sessions and the 1986-87 academic year.

For more information contact Lila Roberts or Patti Young, ext. 4214.

Nabisco Wightman Cup gives $139,000 to local institutions

The 1985 Nabisco Wightman Cup was an overwhelming financial success. Checks totaling $139,000 were distributed to four institutions April 30, in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall, bringing the total proceeds for the two Nabisco Wightman Cup events held in Williamsburg to $260,923.

Executive Director Dick Anzolut presented a check to W&M's women's athletic department for $94,780, as its share of the net proceeds. Other recipients were: Riverside Hospital, Newport News, $27,329; Williamsburg Community Hospital, $11,417; and Children's Hospital of the King's Daughters, Norfolk, $5,156.

Anzolut expressed his pleasure and that of the United States Tennis Association at the results of the fund-raising efforts of the four institutions and their success in bringing the first-class international event to the Tidewater area.

He also announced that the Nabisco Wightman Cup would return to Williamsburg, Oct. 29-31, 1987, with the continuing sponsorship of BASF Chemicals.

Volunteers needed to aid program battered women

The Williamsburg Task Force on Battered Women/Sexual Assault is looking for volunteers who are committed to working to end family violence and sexual assault.

Thirty hours of training for new volunteers will be offered May 17-31. It is designed to prepare volunteers to work in all areas of the program: providing support, information, referrals and crisis intervention services through the 24-hour Women's Helpline; working with women and children in shelter; and accompanying women to the police station, hospital emergency room and court.

Anyone interested in learning more about volunteering is invited to attend a pre-training orientation, Tuesday, May 13, 7-8 p.m. For more information, call 229-7585.
