Chief Justice Burger named new Chancellor

Warren E. Burger, retiring Chief Justice of the United States, has been elected by the Board of Visitors of the College as 20th Chancellor of the College, according to an announcement made Friday by President Paul R. Verkuil.

"As the institution which was the alma mater to the 4th Chief Justice, John Marshall, it is fitting and appropriate to have the 16th Chief Justice become our symbolic leader, especially on the eve of the Bicentennial period," Verkuil said.

The position of Chancellor, which has been vacant since 1974, is largely ceremonial and involves no administrative or teaching duties. While the appointment takes effect immediately, the Chief Justice is expected to be installed on Saturday, Feb. 7, 1987, during ceremonies marking the 294th anniversary of the granting of the College's charter.

The office of Chancellor originated with the founding of the college in 1693. The first Chancellor was the bishop of London, Henry Compton, who served from 1693 to 1700. Subsequently, three archbishops of Canterbury and seven more bishops of London have served in the office.

After the war for American independence, the College's ties with the Church of England were broken, and President George Washington became the first American Chancellor of William and Mary in 1788, serving until his death in 1799.

Tenth U.S. President John Tyler served as Chancellor from 1859 to 1862. Other prominent Chancellors were John Stewart Bryan, 20th President of William and Mary; Colgate W. Darden, Jr., Governor of Virginia; and Alvin Duke Chandler, 22nd President of William and Mary, who served from 1962 to 1974.

Burger, 78, recently announced he would retire in order to devote his full energies to his position as chairman of the Commission on the Bicentennial of the Constitution. He has served as Chief Justice of the United States for 17 years.

A native of St. Paul, Minn., he attended night classes at the University of Minnesota and graduated magna cum laude from the St. Paul (now William Mitchell) College of Law in 1931.

Also that year, he entered practice and was appointed to the faculty of his law school. In 1933, he became a full partner in the oldest law firm in Minnesota, his experience over the next 21 years covering both civil and administrative practice.

Citation for Chancellor

WHEREAS, Article XI of the Ancient and Royal Charter of The College of William and Mary in Virginia provides that "The Rector and Visitors and Governors of said College . . . shall and may have the power to elect, chuse and nominate some other eminent and discreet person from Time to Time to be Chancellor . . . for the space of seven years then next ensuing" and

WHEREAS, this office has been vacant since the term of Alvin Duke Chandler, nineteenth chancellor of the College of William and Mary, and

WHEREAS, the Honorable Warren Earl Burger has demonstrated by his distinguished service to this nation, particularly as Chief Justice of the United States, and by the esteem in which he is held by the people of the United States, that he is qualified in every respect as an eminent and discreet person.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That the Board of Visitors of the College of William and Mary in regular meeting assembled do hereby elect the Honorable Warren Earl Burger as the twentieth chancellor of The College of William and Mary in Virginia for a period of seven years commencing on July 1, 1986, in accordance with the provisions of the Royal Charter.

Board of Visitors approves plans for doctoral program in applied sciences for 1990

In a busy session June 26-27, the Board of Visitors approved the submission to the State Council of Higher Education of a six-year curricular plan for a Ph.D. in applied science. If approved for planning and development by the council, the program would be initiated in the fall of 1990.

The Board approved a fee schedule for students entering the executive M.B.A. program in Jan. 1987. A total program charge of $19,500 was recommended.

Reginald Clark joins staff

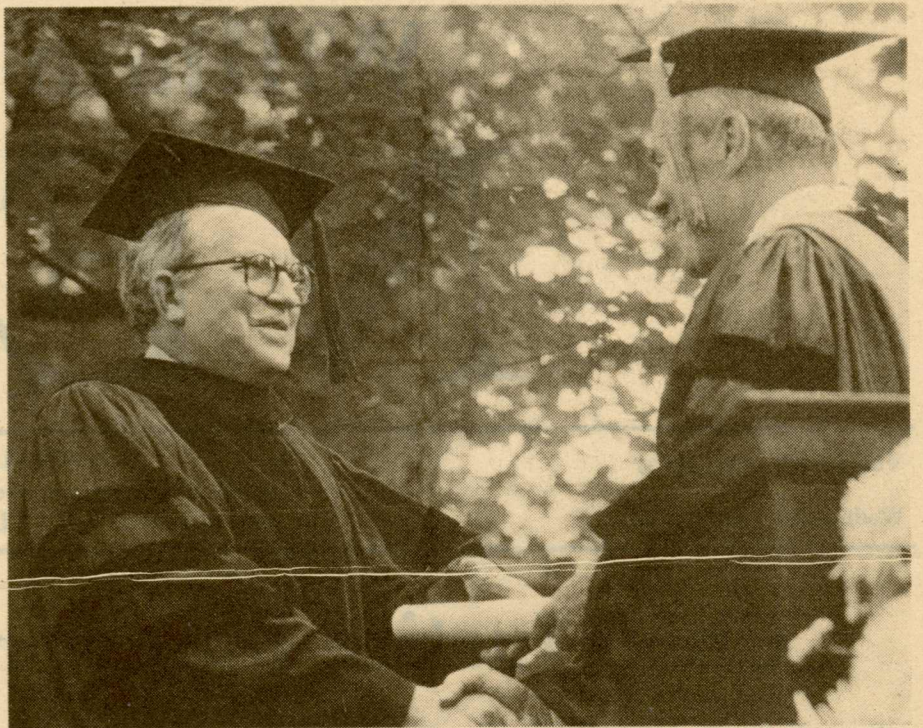

Reginald A. Clark of Newport News, an alumnus of the College and former credit analysis officer for First American Bank of Virginia, has been named by President Verkuil to the newly created post of assistant to the president for community and campus relations.

Clark, a 1975 graduate, will represent the president at a variety of local and/or regional governmental organizations on the Peninsula and Hampton Roads areas; serve as the president's delegate to public and private non-profit organizations and groups; represent the president at various student, faculty and college-wide committee meetings; and review and develop topical reports for the president on the activities and initiatives of such groups.

He began his new duties July 1.

A Newport News native, Clark received a master of arts degree in public relations and communications from the University of Florida, Gainesville, in 1977. From 1978 to 1983 he was an assistant branch manager for First & Merchants National Bank in Newport News. From 1984 to 1985, he served as a credit analysis officer for First American Bank of Virginia, supervising credit administration training of management trainees and branch managers.

While at William and Mary, Clark was active in student government and athletics. A member of the varsity track team for four years, he won the 800-meter NCAA National Championship and was voted the top student athlete at William and Mary in 1975.

Washington & Lee honors Spong

William B. Spong Jr., former dean of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, receives an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from Washington and Lee University. Citing Spong's distinguished career achievements in education and public life, the former Senator was described as a man who "has graced every position of trust, every leadership role, every institution that has claimed him."

Canning leads China seminar

Craig Canning, associate professor of history at the College of William and Mary, is supervising the Fulbright Seminar Abroad, a five-week seminar on Chinese history and culture for superintendents, principals and secondary school teachers, being held in the People's Republic of China. The seminar opened June 18 and will continue until July 22.

During two weeks of language and area studies classes at Beijing Normal University, one of China's "key universities" for teacher training, the Fulbright group will also visit historical points of interest in Beijing. Afterward the group will travel to Xi'an, Nanjing, Suzhou and Shanghai for a series of lectures and site visits related to various aspects of China's history, culture, society and government.

The seminar is sponsored by the U.S. Department of Education's Center for International Education and administered by the National Committee on United States-China Relations, a New York-based organization that carries out a program of exchanges and exchange-related educational activities with China.

This marks the fifth year of the seminar, which is a part of the Fulbright-Hays Seminars Abroad program. The program is designed to help educators improve their understanding and knowledge of the people and culture of another country through study abroad.

Twenty secondary school teachers and administrators were selected from among 400 applicants in a nation-wide competition. All grantees are committed upon their return to produce instructional materials for classroom use and to share their broadened knowledge and understanding of the host country with students, colleagues, members of civic and professional organizations and the public in their respective home communities.

In addition to supervising the seminar, Canning will give lectures on the Chinese education system, China's physical and human environment in historical perspective and other topics.

History doctoral students Janet Coryell, Holly Mayer and Gail Terry attended a conference sponsored by the University of Pennsylvania on May 24. The graduate student conference was titled "The Outer Limits" and dealt with the theory and politics of feminist scholarship. Students from universities throughout the East attended.

George Greenia of the modern languages and literatures department has received a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities to conduct archival research in the monastic libraries of Spain this summer. He will be preparing a critical edition of the medieval Spanish Libro de Alixandre and collaborating with Robert Calkins of Cornell on an inventory of illuminated Spanish manuscripts.

Virginia Shakespeare Festival opens ninth season

The Virginia Shakespeare Festival returns for its ninth season July 3 through Aug. 16 and opens with a revival production of the Bard's perennial favorite, "Romeo and Juliet."

The show, which was the premiere production of the festival's first season in 1978, will also tour the state in late August after the regular season.

Also on the main stage this season is Shakespeare's comic history featuring the rotund buffoon Falstaff, "Henry IV, Part 1," and the first long-running musical hit in English theatre, "The Beggar's Opera," by John Gay.

The festival is also presenting the Shakespeare comedy, "Love's Labor's Lost," in the smaller studio theatre adjacent to the main stage.

In selecting the plays for the 1986 season, artistic director Leslie Muchmore says he sought "to put together the kind of season VSF audiences demand. These plays represent an extremely well-rounded season of classical theatre."

He chose "Romeo and Juliet," for instance, not because the festival has done it before but because "it's a show people just can't stay away from. It epitomizes all that is good about Shakespeare." The show proved to be one of the most popular ever offered by the festival. This year's production is directed by Robert Hobbs.

Similarly "Henry IV" is a favorite because its appeal is so broad," says Muchmore. "Shakespeare did not write just a history play. This is a story of fathers and sons and the coming of age of one of England's greatest royal heroes."

"Henry IV," directed for the festival by Keith Fowler, is also a story told with warmth and humor and introduces the most popular of all Shakespeare's comic characters, Sir John Falstaff, this year played by Tracy Wigent, who returns to the role after playing it in the festival's 1982 production of "The Merry Wives of Windsor."

Most theatregoers are familiar with "The Beggar's Opera," the 1728 parody of the British upperclass and a staple of the English stage. The production, directed by Rod Ceballos, features a wealth of English traditional music which proved so popular that Bertolt Brecht created a 20th-century version, "The Threepenny Opera," based on the original.

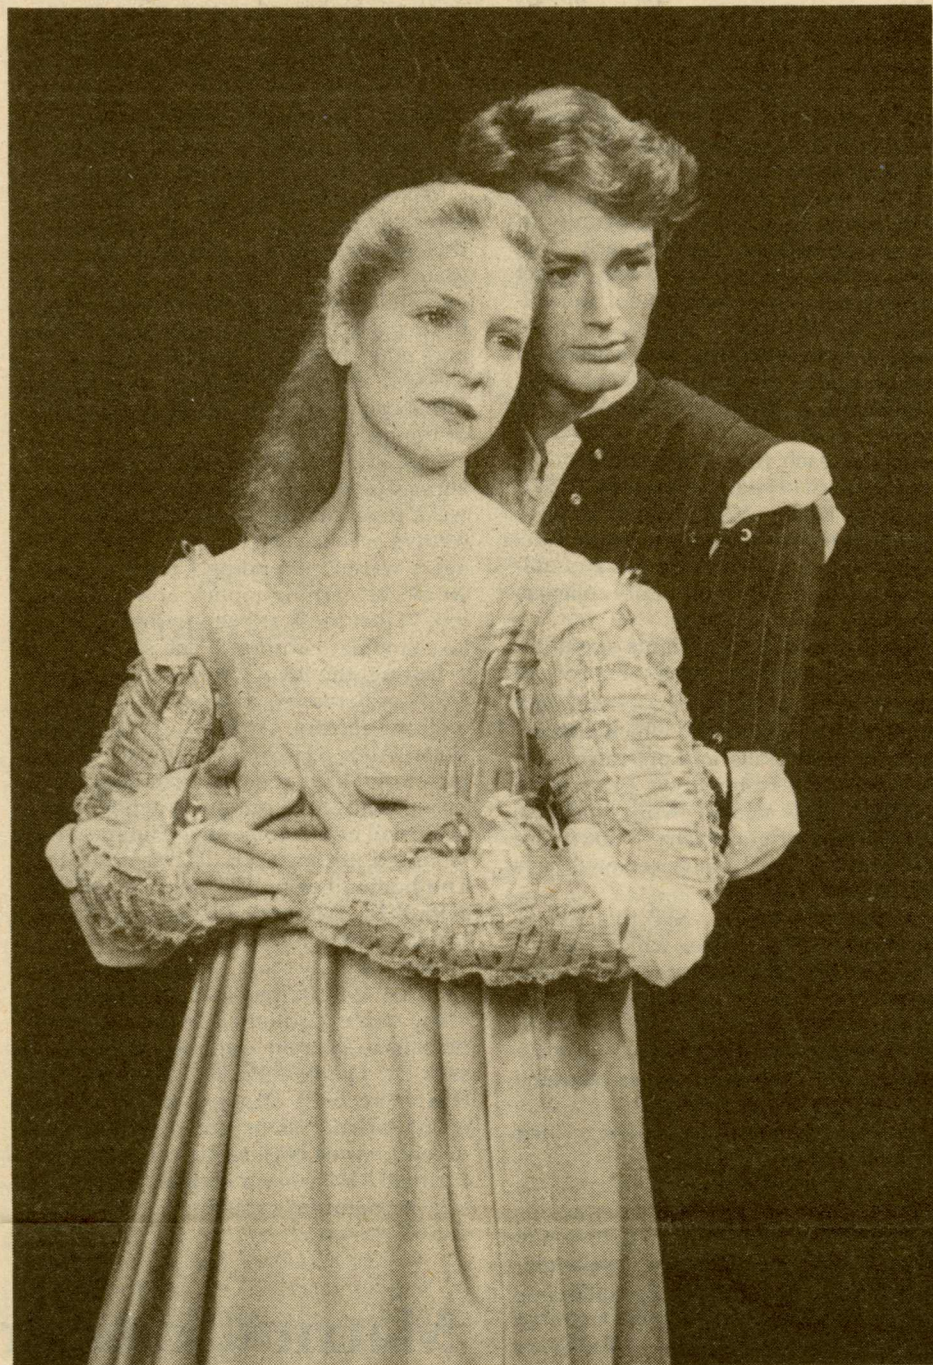

Although not as well-known, "Love's Labour's Lost," has experienced a rebirth among leading Shakespeare companies, according to Muchmore, who is directing the production. "The choice of the studio setting for this play will insure the audiences' access to the verbal battles for which it is so famous."

Top ticket prices remain the same as last year, with advance-purchase season tickets available at a 33 percent discount. Although the plays open on consecutive Thursdays in July, the festival will present all the productions in rotating repertory through the end of the season.

"Love's Labour's Lost," runs in the studio theatre location simultaneously with the main stage productions. "With our schedule, it is possible to see four plays in three days," says Muchmore.

"Very few areas of the country offer this much variety in classical theatre," he adds.

For ticket information or reservations, call the festival at exts. 4469 or 4272.

Festival challenges Marriott

The Marriott Corporation, which daily handles haute cuisine in restaurants and hotels around the world, isn't ruffled by cherries jubilee for 100 or chateaubriand for 50, but "frumenty" and almond soup with sops for 300!

Newly installed at the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg, Marriott caterers might have expected requests for some 18th-century delicacies in the Colonial Capital, but this summer they are taking a quantum leap backward into the 16th century. Theresa Garnier, head caterer, took on an Elizabethan Feast June 24, for 300 visitors from the Pennsylvania Bus Company. The feast is part of the annual Virginia Shakespeare Festival, which this summer will present "Romeo and Juliet," "Henry IV, Part I," and "Love's Labour's Lost," in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall on the college campus.

Adapting old recipes and creating the ambiance of a sumptuous Elizabethan banquet in a setting more used to quick lunches, bluejeans and running shoes is a catering challenge. But Ms. Garnier is the right person at the right place at the right time to get the job done. She majored in history at London University and has an interest in historical foods which began with research into period clothing.

The main dining hall of the college was transformed into a festive hall. Actors, singers and dancers entertained the guests between courses. Costumed servers paraded the food in with accompanying musical fanfare and kept the wine glasses filled. The large cartouche of the British Coat of Arms at one end of the dining hall was an appropriate decoration for the feast.

Pewter plates were substituted for the pieces of wood, or "trenchers" that Shakespeare's guests might have used. Thick slices of bread scooped out in the center were also used as trenchers but this aspect of historical dining was sidelined in favor of modern comfort and convenience.

Some liberties were also taken with historical eating utensils. Elizabethans would probably have used spoons, a

Summer programs on campus aid minorities

Minority students who will be freshmen at the College in the fall are getting a head start on their academic pursuits this summer during the Virginia Student Transition Program (VSTP), which opened June 28 for its fourth year on campus.

VSTP provides the new William and Mary students with an opportunity to get accustomed to college life early. "We want students to recognize the distinct difference between high school and college," says Carroll F. Hardy, associate dean of student affairs and director of the program. "It helps prevent them from thinking of their freshman year as the 13th grade."

Funded each year by a grant from the State Council of Higher Education, VSTP began in 1983 at William and Mary as one of five pilot programs, and is now held at almost all state colleges and universities and many community colleges, according to Dean Hardy.

Approximately 30 students spend six weeks on campus taking one college course of their choice for credit, and three non-credit courses, which include: writing; study skills; and pre-calculus or calculus, depending upon prior math training. Pre-calculus work includes algebra and trigonometry, "for those who want to brush up or review," says Dr. Hardy.

A new offering at VSTP this year is the study skills course, which focuses on critical thinking and is taught by Susie Mirick, director of study skills. Ms. Mirick says the course will deal with problem solving in the areas of class work, library research, career planning and college life in general. "It's a way to teach students how to manage their lives effectively," she says.

Among the William and Mary staff members who will make presentations during VSTP are: Donald C. Johnson of Swem Library; Jan Pattis of Psychological Services; John Thrash, academic programs coordinator of the School of Business Administration, who will discuss self-esteem; and Sharon Thelin of the career planning office.

Dr. Bertha L. Maxwell, the Frank Porter Graham Professor of Afro-American and African Studies at the University of North Carolina-Charlotte, will return to VSTP this summer to conduct a seminar on understanding self and others, and enhancing self-esteem.

In their spare time, VSTP participants will take excursions to Washington, D.C., and King's Dominion theme park. They also will attend a performance of the 1986 Virginia Shakespeare Festival on campus. The program ends Aug. 8, giving students just enough time for a short vacation before freshman orientation begins Aug. 23.

CHAMP aimed at high school drop-out rate

A new two-week program for minority students who are about to begin high school opens July 21 and its coordinator hopes the project will help average students become superior ones by the time they reach college.

CHAMP, an acronym for Creating Higher Aspirations and Motivation Program, is the brainchild of Carroll F. Hardy, associate dean of student affairs. CHAMP is supported by a $35,000 grant from the State Council of Higher Education's Funds for Excellence.

"CHAMP is designed to limit or reduce the attrition rate of minority youngsters who tend to drop out of high school at the sophomore year," says Dean Hardy. "It will also motivate them to consider higher education after secondary school." She adds that the program is not geared to either gifted students or slow learners, but is for "the ordinary student." Enrollment will be limited to 50 students who live within a 50-mile radius of the Williamsburg campus.

William and Mary was one of 11 colleges statewide to receive grant money this summer for minority student programs. Dr. Hardy believes CHAMP can serve as a model for institutions desiring to increase the applicant pool of black and other minority students. She says CHAMP represents William and Mary's "total commitment to the diversification of the institution."

Students in CHAMP will receive a $30 stipend for their participation in the two-week program. Dr. Hardy added the incentive because she believes if the teenagers weren't attending CHAMP, they would be earning money at a summer job. "I just see it as helping them not to lose summer earnings," she says.

During the two week session, students will receive instruction in preparatory algebra, writing, and study skills. After CHAMP, students will return to William and Mary one Saturday per month for continued work, and there will be a "Homework Hotline" established through Dr. Hardy's office. The hotline begins this fall and will be staffed by William and Mary students weekdays from 5 to 8 p.m.

One of the key components of CHAMP will be parental involvement. "Any student admitted to the program must have a parent to attend a seminar," says Dr. Hardy. "We feel it's essential that there be a strong parent/student coordination." Moms and dads are also urged to come back to the campus with their CHAMP sons or daughters on subsequent Saturdays after the program has ended.

knife and or their hands while dining. Forks were not introduced into England from Italy until around 1610. Elizabethans expected to bring their own knives to a banquet; the host would provide the spoons. Since most contemporary diners would sorely miss the fork, a full complement of silverware was used for the Pennsylvania visitors.

The menu included almond and cabbage soup (pottage with machett); sallet Renaissance with herb dressing; chicken with orange sauce; mincemeat pie; kidney bean tart; lemon rice; and for dessert, a meringue pudding called "A Dyschful of Snow" and pear pie.

With her experience with Elizabethan and Roman feasts, Ms. Garnier is adept at adapting old recipes to suit modern tastes. You can't take old recipes at face value, Ms. Garnier says, a lesson she learned through personal experience.

In selecting foods for the feast she had the assistance of Ms. Sally Gray of Williamsburg, an authority on the history of foods and cookbook publication.

A native of Jersey, the Channel Isles, Ms. Garnier had her own catering business in Washington, D.C., for three years called "The British Gourmet," which specialized in English and Irish foods and sought to spread the fame of English trifle and blancmanges among Washingtonians. She still has a standing order for five English Christmas cakes. Topped with the traditional layers of marzipan and royal icing and spiced with brandy, these holiday treats take several months to prepare, says Ms. Garnier.

Ms. Garnier started her training in foods at the Cumberland Hotel in London. The Cumberland's food service areas and kitchen cover two underground city CHAMP isn't a college preparatory seminar, since the participants will only be in the ninth grade this fall, but Dr. Hardy says the students will get an idea of the kinds of high school courses they should take to prepare them for college. Parents will discover what kinds of preparations they and their sons or daughters need to make before college, and they also will learn about upcoming college entrance exams and financial aid benefits.

Although the CHAMP program is so new that applications for it are still being printed, Dr. Hardy encourages interested students or parents to contact her office for more information at ext. 4247. She adds that eligible minority students (please eliminate Page 3) may also be recommended by other individuals, such as clergymen or teachers.

STEP helps students get ready for college life

The Summer Transition and Enrichment Program (STEP) enters its seventh year July 5, as approximately 60 rising high school seniors from throughout Virginia convene for four weeks of learning, recreation and a taste of college life.

Students enrolled in STEP get help deciding which college to attend and what to expect when they get there. While some STEP participants may not eventually choose to attend William and Mary, many from past programs have enrolled at other highly ranked institutions, according to STEP coordinator Carroll F. Hardy, associate dean of student affairs.

The STEP participants will be on campus until Aug. 1, taking university-level courses in calculus or matrix algebra, writing composition, and study skills. All three courses are taught by William and Mary faculty members.

Dean Hardy will teach a seminar on how to choose a college, emphasizing how to read a college application form, how much and what kind of information to supply, how to determine whether a student meets the qualifications, what financial aid benefits are available, and whether the school can meet the student's career goals.

Visiting scholars to STEP this year include physicist Nettie Faulcon of the National Aeronautic and Space Administration (NASA), who will discuss choosing a career; and Thomas Tucker, director of the Health Career Center at the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond. Representatives from the fields of business, politics, government and law also will be guest lecturers.

STEP participants will use William and Mary's microcomputer labs with computer-assisted instruction. The computers allow students to pace themselves and have special software designed to help them prepare for the SAT.

Despite their intense coursework, STEP participants won't spend all their time on academic subjects. The students will attend a performance of the Virginia Shakespeare Festival's "Romeo and Juliet" and talk with the cast and crew backstage afterward. They also have trips planned to Busch Gardens and King's Dominion, along with an excursion to Seashore State Park and a formal closing banquet to which parents are invited.

bocks where all types of meats, fish, vegetables, fresh breads, cakes and even hand-dipped chocolates are prepared for guests.

Ms. Garnier began her association with Marriott at American University in Washington, D.C. Her husband, who operated a counter-intelligence agency, still maintains their residence there. While in Washington Ms. Garnier was also active as a faculty member at the Open University where she taught arts and crafts to the elderly and classes in food.

VICE PRESIDENT FOR ADMINISTRATION AND FINANCE

The College of William and Mary is inviting applications for the position of Vice President for Administration and Finance.

The University - The College of William and Mary is a public institution of 4,700 undergraduates and 2,000 graduate students. It has a highly selective student body and a strong commitment to the arts and sciences. At the graduate level it offers professional programs in law, business and education; doctoral programs in computer science, history, marine science, physics and psychology, and 24 master's programs.

The Position - The Vice President for Administration and Finance reports to the President and serves as a member of his leadership team. The functions of the Vice President for Administration and Finance include university-wide budget planning jointly with the Provost, development of planning systems and studies, leadership of all financial operations of the institution, personnel administration, facilities management, business functions, and development of administrative computing and telecommunications services. The Vice President will also have responsibility for communication with relevant state agencies.

Qualifications - Senior level administrative experience with state government, educational agencies and legislative committees is preferred. An earned doctorate is preferred. Candidates must possess exceptional leadership and managerial skills. The successful applicant should be available to assume the position during September 1986 or soon thereafter.

Applications - Applications, including a current resume and list of references only, should be received no later than August 15, 1986. Please address applications to Melvyn D. Schiavelli, Provost, College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, VA 23185. (804) 253-4217.

The College of William and Mary is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

Jennifer Pelnik is awarded T.C. Clarke Scholarship

Jennifer Joan Pelnik, a junior majoring in management, has been named the Summer 1986 recipient of the T. C. Clarke Scholarship. A native of Syracuse, N.Y., where she graduated from West Genesee High School, Ms. Pelnik is the first non-Virginian to receive the scholarship since it was established in 1982.

The scholarship is traditionally awarded to an undergraduate student or students attending the Summer Session program of the College's School of Business Administration. It is funded by an endowment created by Mr. Clarke, the former chairman of the board of directors of Royal Crown Bottling Company of Norfolk, and has, since its initiation, provided financial support for 11 students pursuing the bachelor of business administration degree at William and Mary.

In announcing the 1986 award, Associate Dean Henry E. Mallue Jr., noted the significant contributions made by Mr. Clarke over the years. "Mr. Clarke is a valued and long-time supporter of professional education at William and Mary, where he continues as a member of the board of the Business Administration Sponsors, Inc. By providing financial assistance to deserving students Mr. Clarke has found yet another way to encourage academic achievement, a goal sought during his years of service on the College's Board of Visitors. We are most grateful for this continuing support from a respected member of the Virginia business community."

A gift from Allied-Signal, Inc.

Barbara Robbins, manager of university recruitment for Allied-Signal, Inc., of Morristown, N.J., presented a check for $6,000 to John C. Jamison, dean of the School of Business Administration at the College of William and Mary on May 9. The money was given to the school for use in the M.B.A. program. Allied-Signal conducts job interviews on campus and has hired M.B.A. graduates from William and Mary for the past several years.

Historian Botein dead at 44

Stephen Botein, who served during the 1985-86 academic year as visiting editor of publications at the Institute of Early American History and Culture, died suddenly in Worcester, Mass., on June 24, at the age of 44. He was conducting a summer seminar at the American Antiquarian Society at the time of his death and had planned to return to Williamsburg briefly to complete his appointment at the Institute. He was professor of history at Michigan State University and a distinguished scholar of early American history with a special interest in legal history.

He was coeditor of and a contributor to a forthcoming volume of original essays on the formation of the Federal Constitution titled Powers Not Delegated:

Fred Adair, professor of education, recently published a review of a monograph titled The Changing Family: Series 1. Focus on Behavior by Paul J. Cibrowski. Adair's review appeared in the May issue of The School Counselor.

John E. Olney, assistant professor of marine science, attended the annual meeting of the early life history section, American Fisheries Society in Miami, and presented a paper titled "Ontogeny and Systematics of the Pearlfishes: Carapidae (Ophidiformes)."

Olney was presented a cash award of $150 for the best paper presented out of 93 at the meeting. The award was in honor and memory of Sally Richardson. Richardson, one of the foremost researchers on fish larvae in the United States, died unexpectedly prior to the meeting in Miami. She earned her Ph.D. from VIMS in 1971 and at the time of her death was employed at the Harvard Museum of Comparative Zoology.

Douglas Rendleman, professor of law, chaired a panel on "Mortgaging the Future: Threats to Federal Student Assistance Programs," at the AAUP annual national meeting in Washington, D.C.

Edward K. McCormick, director of student financial aid, was a featured presenter on June 10 at the spring conference of the Virginia Admissions Council on Black Concerns at Virginia Beach. McCormick spoke on financing post-

Origins of the Constitution and American National Identity, which he had sent to press in early June. He was also the author of Early American Law and Society and more than two dozen essays in books and journals. He was working on a book on the social origins of early American law.

A memorial service will be held on campus sometime during the 1986-87 academic year.

New Chancellor

In 1953, Burger was appointed Assistant Attorney General as Chief of the Civil Division in the Department of Justice by President Dwight D. Eisenhower. Three years later, President Eisenhower appointed him to the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit, where he served until his appointment as Chief Justice of the U.S. by President Richard M. Nixon.

As Chief Justice of the United States, Burger also serves as Chancellor of the Smithsonian Institution, a post he has held longer than any other Chancellor since the Institution's founding. He has served as Chairman and Trustee of the National Geographical Society, and honorary Chairman of the Institute of Judicial Administration and the National Judicial College.

Over the years, Burger has had an ongoing relationship with the College of William and Mary. He received an honorary doctor of laws degree and was commencement speaker in 1973, and was the speaker for the annual Law Day at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law in 1979. His last visit to William and Mary was in February 1985, when he spoke to a gathering of state supreme court justices about the upcoming bicentennial of the Constitution. For many years he maintained a friendship with the late William F. Swindler, a member of the law faculty and an authority on the U.S. Constitution.

secondary education for minority students. The conference brought together college administrators, student affairs professionals, affirmative action officers, admissions personnel, superintendents, principals, guidance counselors, community outreach personnel, and community leaders. One of the guest speakers was Lieutenant Governor L. Douglas Wilder.

John Thelin, associate professor of education, authored an editorial titled "The Difference Between 'Cost' and 'Price' in Pursuing Bargains in College Tuition," which was published in The Chronicle of Higher Education on May 21.

Barbara K. Townsend, 1983 Ed.D. in higher education, wrote an article, "Outsiders Inside Academe: The Plight of Temporary Teachers," which appeared on the back cover of The Chronicle of Higher Education on May 28.

There will be a charge of $2 for campus parking beginning at 5 p.m., Saturday, July 5 for the ZZ Tops concert scheduled for 8 p.m. in William and Mary Hall. W&M decals and summer conference passes will be honored.

The Morton Hall parking lot has been reserved for Virginia Shakespeare Festival patrons.

Student dies in D.C. crash

Word has been received of the tragic death of one of our students. Andrew Vaughn Darnell, a senior from Burke, Va., died on Saturday, June 28 as a result of injuries he received in an auto accident in Washington that day. A memorial fund has been established in his memory, and contributions may be sent to: The Andrew Darnell Memorial Fund, AFS International Student Exchange, 313 East 43rd Street, New York, NY 10017.

Library buys Tyler letter

Swem Library recently purchased at auction in New York a letter written by John Tyler as Rector of the Board of Visitors of the College.

Dated October 11, 1858, Tyler writes to Edward B. Dallam of Baltimore about the Board's decision at its July meeting to "abolish the law chair" because of difficulty in finding a suitable law professor. Dallam was inquiring into the position on behalf of a friend; Tyler advises him to have his friend send his application before the next meeting in July 1859, and the Board would then consider him for the professorship. A new law professor, Charles Morris, was appointed in 1859.

This letter is important for several reasons. Minutes of the meetings of the Board of Visitors no longer exist for that period, and the College has no other letters signed by John Tyler as Rector. Tyler was Governor of Virginia from 1825 to 1827 and President of the United States from 1841 to 1845. His son, Lyon G. Tyler, was President of William and Mary from 1888 to 1919. The letter will be kept in the College Archives.

VIMS research gets $37,500 for Bay work

A gift of $37,500, over a three-year period, from Allied-Signal Inc., of Morristown, N.J., has been announced by Robert J. Orth, head, Submerged Aquatic Vegetation program at the Virginia Institute of Marine Science.

The SAV research program was initiated in 1978 under the auspices of the Environmental Protection Agency's Chesapeake Bay Program. It has continued through the combined efforts of the state and federal governments and the private sector to learn more about the Bay's ecosystem.

Jack G. Owens, vice president of the fibers division, Allied-Signal Inc., in commenting on his company's gift said, "The Institute should be commended for its contributions to the scientific programs which we are confident will lead to a reasonable solution to the restoration of the Chesapeake Bay." Frank Perkins, dean/director of VIMS, noted that Allied-Signal has shown a continuing interest in the work of the SAV research team. "We are deeply appreciative of their support for this research starting with a gift of $20,000 in 1984 and now with this three-year commitment."

Education, arts and sciences benefit from new endowments

Mr. and Mrs. Layton F. Smith of Basking Ridge, N.J., and Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla., have established an endowment for a professorship in the School of Education. Mr. Smith recently retired from a career in the investment field.

"Jody and Layton Smith, parents of a William and Mary graduate, have been most thoughtful and generous supporters of William and Mary," said President Verkuil on Friday in announcing their gift. "For the past five years, they have taken the leadership role in supporting the William and Mary Parents Fund."

In addition to support of several other project areas, in 1983 the Smiths established an initial endowment fund for the general support of William and Mary faculty. It is upon that endowment base that they have built the professorship.

At the time, the Smiths stated: "It is clear to us . . . that endowment for faculty support is and will continue to be the highest priority of the college, and we are eager to add our support in the most helpful way possible. Our daughter's educational experience at William and Mary was absolutely first-rate, and we recognize the real value of her education was fostered by her professors. It is the effort of those dedicated men and women which we see as most deserving our support."

Simultaneously, the Smiths added a provision in their estate plans for $1 million for faculty support and development. The Smiths have designated their bequest to establish "one or more Eminent Scholar Professorships" in academic areas to be determined by the president of the college.

In commenting on the professorship, John Nagle, dean of the School of Education said: "The Smiths are especially appreciative of the excellence in the faculty of the College. To us in the School of Education, the teaching/learning process and the preparation of outstanding educators are central to our mission. It seems, therefore, especially fitting that their recognition of excellence led to a professorship in the School of Education."

The Smiths' endowment for the School of Education qualifies for matching funds through the Commonwealth of Virginia's Eminent Scholars Program. Appointment of the Jody and Layton Smith Professor in Education will be made during the upcoming academic year.

Cummings Memorial

A gift of $200,000 to the College from The Frances L. and Edwin L. Cummings Memorial Fund of New York City has made possible the establishment of the first permanently endowed professorship for a distinguished minority scholar-teacher on the faculty of arts and sciences.

"The establishment of the Frances L. and Edwin L. Cummings Professorship will have a broad and lasting impact on our efforts to promote greater diversity among our faculty and student populations," said President Verkuil when the gift was announced on Friday. The Cummings Professorship will also generate matching funds through the Commonwealth of Virginia's Eminent Scholars Program.

Of major concern to college administrators in recent years has been the need to increase the representation of racial, cultural and socio-economic diversity among the faculty and students. William and Mary's efforts to recruit highly qualified minority faculty members came to the attention of the board of directors of the Cummings Fund through the initiative of a 1979 alumnus, J. Andrew Lark, and Leroy C. Latten, co-trustees of the fund.

The academic discipline in which the appointment will be made has been left to the discretion of the dean of the faculty of arts and sciences. The first appointment is expected for the fall of 1987.

Pennants missing from Alumni House

Four vintage football pennants (circa 1920s and 30s) are missing from the Alumni House on Richmond Road.

These pennants were individually framed under plexiglass and identified with engraved brass plates. Three are green and gold (one with a leather coat of arms and one labeled "William and Mary 13, Harvard 13," and the fourth is orange and black with a football emblem.

Anyone knowing of the whereabouts of these items is asked to contact Brad Dunkin, House Manager at the Alumni House, 229-1693 - no questions asked.

Affirmative Action

On April 28, 1978, the Board of Visitors of the College of William and Mary in Virginia agreed to participate in the Virginia Plan for Equal Opportunity in State-Supported Institutions of Higher Education (1978).

On January 21, 1983 the Secretary of Education of the Commonwealth of Virginia submitted various amendments to the Office of Civil Rights of the Department of Education. These amendments were accepted.

On February 15, 1983, the Board of Visitors authorized the administration of the College of William and Mary and Richard Bland College to develop and submit affirmative action plans to the Secretary of Education of the Commonwealth.

The Virginia Plan as amended, expired on June 30, 1986, and the Office of Civil Rights has not determined if Virginia will be required to continue its affirmative action initiatives under the Adams litigation.

On May 2, 1986, the Secretary of the Commonwealth of Virginia requested that the presidents of the state's colleges and universities prepare and submit new affirmative action plans for students, faculty and staff. Such plans are to be in effect from July 1, 1986 to June 30, 1989.

The Board of Visitors retains the sole authority and responsibility for the admission of students, academic performance requirements and employment policies of the College of William and Mary, the Virginia Institute of Marine Science and Richard Bland College, subject to the limitations of applicable law.

RESOLVED, That the Board of Visitors of the College of William and Mary agrees to participate in various initiatives, where appropriate, pursuant to criteria established by the Secretary of Education on behalf of the Governor.

RESOLVED FURTHER, That the Board of Visitors hereby authorizes the administration of the College of William and Mary and Richard Bland College to develop plans which will address the efforts to ensure equal educational opportunity through educationally sound and realistic measures.

HOLIDAY CLOSING

Independence Day, July 4, is a legal holiday for permanent classified employees and William and Mary support personnel. The administrative offices, the Plant Department and the Campus Mail Room will be closed with the exception of essential employees who are required to work. The Campus Police Department will maintain its regular schedule.

Classes are scheduled for July 4. Academic support staff who are required to work will be credited with compensatory time on an hour for hour basis. Consistent with an exception in the Fair Labor Standards Act non-exempt employees are eligible for compensatory leave if they are required to work on this holiday.

The names of permanent classified employees and William and Mary Support personnel who are required to work must be reported in writing to the Office of Employee Relations and Affirmative Action by July 11 in order that these employees may be credited with compensatory leave on an hour for hour basis.

Compensatory leave earned should be taken as soon as possible after the holiday it was earned with the approval of management. Compensatory time not taken within 12 months will lapse. Hourly employees who are required to work on the holiday will be paid at their regular hourly rates.

The Virginia Institute of Marine Science will observe this same holiday schedule and procedure.

On behalf of the administration of the university I hope that each member of the College community has a safe and enjoyable holiday.

George R. Healy
 Provost

Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences of the COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY

The College of William and Mary invites applications and nominations for the position of Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences.

William and Mary is a state university chartered in 1693 with a present enrollment of approximately 4800 undergraduate and 1800 graduate and professional students in the five academic divisions of the university: the Faculty of Arts and Sciences, and the Schools of Business, Education, Law, and Marine Science. The vast majority of its undergraduate students is enrolled in the arts and sciences.

The Dean is the chief administrative officer of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences which comprises 23 academic departments. The Dean is responsible for the administration of instructional programs, budgetary planning and allocation, faculty development, and academic advising within the Faculty of Arts and Sciences. The Dean is assisted administratively by a Dean of Undergraduate Studies and a Dean of Graduate Studies of Arts and Sciences and reports to the Provost. Salary will be competitive and commensurate with qualifications.

Candidates should have an earned doctorate or equivalent and should be established scholars with administrative experience consonant with the complexity of a state-supported university. They should have a strong commitment to liberal education and scholarship. The position carries professorial rank with tenure in the appropriate department.

Nominations, or, in the case of applicants, a letter of application and resume, should be sent to:

Professor Morton Eckhause
Chairman, Dean Search Committee
Department of Physics
College of William and Mary
Williamsburg, Virginia 23185

In addition, applicants should arrange for four letters of recommendation to be sent to the above address. The search committee will begin reviewing applications by 1 July 1986 and will continue the review and interview process until the position is filled. The preferred starting time is fall 1986, but applications from those who could assume the position not later than 1 July 1987 will also be considered.

The College of William and Mary is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer. Women and minorities are encouraged to apply.
