Education gets DOE grant

The School of Education has received a three-year grant totalling nearly $300,000 from the U.S. Department of Education to train 36 new teachers of emotionally disturbed (ED) children.

Twelve students will be enrolled per year in a modified version of the special education graduate curriculum for an intensive one-year master's program aimed at easing the shortage of ED teachers in Virginia.

The School of Education has already received $97,000, the first year's funding for the project. Program administrators, Douglas Prillaman, professor of education, and Lori Korinek, assistant professor of education, anticipate $98,000 for the second year and $100,800 for the third year of the program.

In preparing the grant proposal, Prillaman and Korinek noted that on a state-wide basis, Virginia is faced with two major problems in the field of special education for the emotionally disturbed: "First, there is a shortage of personnel to staff existing positions," they said. "Second, a large percentage of teachers currently providing services to emotionally disturbed children are not certified by the State Department of Education.

"Federal, state and local education agencies have documented shortages of competent teachers to serve seriously emotionally disturbed students," they wrote. "In order to prepare qualified teachers to work in public schools or alternative education programs, we made the proposal for this project."

Each of the 12 students will receive a stipend of $400 per month, full-tuition support and assistance with incidental costs of the 45-hour graduate program. All the students are experienced teachers, either in other areas of special education or in the regular classroom.

The grant is the first of its kind in William and Mary's graduate education curriculum, says Prillaman. "It will enable us to turn out more ED teachers than we normally would at the undergraduate level," he says. The program involves both classroom and field work, involving students in a larger number of seminars and training programs than at the undergraduate level.

At present, there are an estimated 151 teachers of emotionally disturbed children in Virginia who are not certified in that area of special education. The student-to-teacher ratio is high, and teachers have classes with ages ranging from preschool to teenage.

Korinek and Prillaman agree that the biggest reason for the shortage of ED teachers is "burn-out." Mild to severe emotional disturbances are most often responsible for loss in special education manpower, they say.

The new ED teachers will learn ways in which the behavior of emotionally disturbed children differs from normal behavior and how to recognize the kinds of educational settings necessary for the children. The ED teachers also will promote the placement of such children in the least restrictive settings with a goal of eventually placing them in regular classrooms. The teachers will also work with the parents and families of emotionally disturbed students.

One of the program's major advantages is the stipend, which enables students to participate on a full-time basis and complete degrees in one year.

UW gets assist from athletic dept.

John Randolph, athletic director, and Chris Baumann, director of marketing and promotions in the athletic department, have come up with a scheme to aid the United Way drive on campus.

Currently at $16,841, the drive is still far short of its $23,000 goal.

The athletic department is offering end-zone tickets for the William and Mary-Princeton game, Nov. 8 at $6, $3 of which will be donated to the United Way. There will be 2,000 tickets on sale, so the potential gift to the United Way could be $6,000.

President Paul R. Verkuil (l) and Dean John C. Jamison, School of Business Administration, present the 1986 Business Medallion to Katharine Graham of the Washington Post Company.

Business honors Graham

Katharine Graham, chairman of the Washington Post Company, has been awarded the 1986 Business Medallion by the School of Business Administration faculty.

The medallion was presented to Mrs. Graham at a recent ceremony in Washington, D.C., by President Paul R. Verkuil. Dean John C. Jamison, Associate Dean Henry E. Mallue and representatives of the business school faculty, including professors Marvin M. Stanley, William H. Warren and Commonwealth Visiting Professor Herrington J. Bryce, also participated in the ceremony.

Mrs. Graham received a plaque and a framed citation, which stated that her "life's affair with the Washington Post Company reflects a distinguished career as a contributor to the profession of management, a career which represents the highest standards of professionalism and integrity."

The Business Medallion is the only business-related award made by either the School of Business Administration or the College of William and Mary. Nominees for the award are screened by a committee of senior business professors, and three business finalists are presented to the faculty in an advocate process by members of the selection committee.

The Business Medallion was initiated in 1976. Past recipients include: Thomas J. Watson Jr., chairman emeritus, International Business Machines Corp.; Thomas A. Murphy, retired chairman and chief executive officer of General Motors Corp.; Frank Borman, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Eastern Airlines, Inc.; Floyd D. Gottwald, vice chairman, and Floyd D. Gottwald Jr., chairman and chief executive officer, the Ethyl Corp.; James C. Wheat Jr., chairman, Wheat, First Securities; Thomas Boushall, honorary chairman, Bank of Virginia; J. Harwood Cochrane, chairman, Overnite Transportation Company; Hays T. Watkins, chairman and chief executive officer, CSX Corp.; and Brenton S. Halsey, chairman and chief executive officer, James River Corp.

UN day events set next week

Friday, Oct. 24 is United Nations Day. The International Relations Club will celebrate the event on campus by hosting the High School Model United Nations, Oct. 30-Nov. 1.

Memorial service Friday for Rebecca Dowski

In a letter to the College community yesterday, Sam Sadler, dean of student affairs, announced that a memorial service for Rebecca Dowski would be held Friday, Oct. 24 at 12:30 p.m. in the chapel of the Wren Building.

"Several of Becky's family members are planning to be present," said Sadler. Campus ministers have planned a brief ecumenical service to which members of the College community are invited.

Sadler also took the opportunity of the letter to thank "all of you who have called to offer your assistance to the police and the F.B.I. since learning of Rebecca Dowski's death. We are still receiving regular updates on the progress of the investigation, but at this time there is nothing new to report."

Dowski and her friend Cathleen Thomas were found Sunday, Oct. 12 on the Colonial Parkway, victims of an apparent double homicide. The F.B.I. continues to request that anyone who may have information about Rebecca's whereabouts or activities between Thursday afternoon and Sunday evening contact them (804-244-1959) or the Campus Police (ext. 4956).

The efforts of administrators on campus have been not only to assist the F.B.I. and campus police, but also to

Notable & Quotable

From an article by historian Llewellyn H. Johnson, III, in the summer edition of William and Mary college's alumni magazine:

Although [Abraham] Lincoln was opposed to slavery, he was also opposed, as he told the voters in the 1850s, to social and political equality for blacks, whom he wished to colonize somewhere outside the country. There was no room for interpretation; his language was explicit: "There is a natural disgust in the minds of nearly all white people, to the idea of an indiscriminate amalgamation of the white and black races."

Jacquelin Crebbs, director of annual support, has been awarded a silver medal for a direct mail campaign in the 1986 Council for Advancement and Support of Education competition.

The award was made for a series of letter and brochure designs, which were used in a fund-raising campaign during 1985-86.

Roger W. Smith, professor of government, was invited recently to speak at the Zoryan Institute in Cambridge, Mass., on "The Denial of Genocide." The paper he presented at the American Political Science Association Convention in Washington in August on "Denial and Justification of Genocide: The Armenian Case and Its Implications," has been nominated for best paper at the convention. His essay on "History and Moral Judgment," which focuses on David Wyman's The Abandonment of the Jews, appears in the fall 1986 issue of Menorah Review.

Carl W. Vermeulen, professor of biology, presented a seminar titled "Environmental Effects on the Expression of K1 Capsule in Escherichia coli to the biological and medical faculties of Duquesne University, Carnegie-Mellon University, the University of Pittsburgh and several hospitals in the Pittsburgh area on Oct. 7. This talk was a distillation of his work at the Walter Reed Army Institute of [Medical] Research during the past three summers. Vermeulen is a 1987 Fulbright Scholar to Denmark.

George W. Grayson, professor of government, delivered a lecture on "Mexican Politics: Continuity or Crisis?" on Oct. 14 at Emory University's Center for International Studies. Grayson's article "Mexico: The Oil Glut and Structural Reform" appeared in the summer 1986 issue of Washington Quarterly, published by Georgetown University's Center for Strategic and International Studies. His article on "Portugal: Casting Its Lot with Europe" appears in the Nov. 1986 issue of Current History.

Gary Kreps, associate professor of sociology, attended the National Science Foundation-sponsored Italian-American Conference on Hazards and Disasters at the University of Delaware. He served as a formal discussant of Italian hazards and disaster research and presented a paper titled "Theoretical Issues in Disaster Research." The paper will be published later in the proceedings from the conference. Kreps also has co-authored an article with Susan L. Bosworth: "Structure and Process: Organization and Role," American Sociological Review 51 (Oct. 1986): 699-716.

EMS, AV, plan open house Nov. 3-14

Faculty and staff of the College are invited to visit the facilities of Educational Media Services, ground floor of Swem Library, and Audio-Video Services in Phi Beta Kappa Hall, between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Nov. 3-14.

The Open House has been scheduled to give faculty and staff an opportunity to learn more about facilities and the variety of services available and how to procure them.

New facilities and resources include a video viewing station, a Total Graphics Camera and a computerized audiovisual materials-locating system.

AV-OnLine is a comprehensive audiovisual database with automated index to the audiovisual catalogs of the Library of Congress and 3,500 producers and distributors. With acquisition of the data-base, which contains about 350,000 items, Educational Media is quickly able to locate audiovisual materials by subject matter, title, producer and key words (string words).

Other important services offered by Educational Media include: audiovisual equipment set-up, projection; technical support (design, installation, maintenance and equipment repair); film/video-tape rentals, acquisition; photography; graphic design; duplicating (xerox); audio production; video production; microcomputer laboratory; audio listening station; instructional development-design; and faculty development.

For additional information, call ext. 4024.

Half of ticket receipts go to United Way

Tickets, which must be purchased by Nov. 7, are on sale at William and Mary Hall and First Virginia Bank branches at 300 Second St. and 171 Monticello Ave. The sales are being coordinated by bank president John Nystrom, a member of the United Way Fund committee.

As an added incentive, the athletic department will give away 350-375 Tribe football T-shirts with the number 2 on them, the same number worn by the team's standout Michael Clemons. The give-away will be held at 4:30 p.m., Nov. 7, on the practice field beside Cary Field. Children wearing the shirt to the game, if accompanied by an adult, will be admitted free.

It is a good opportunity, says Baumann, to see some good football and give the United Way a helping hand.

Fund drive chairman Lawrence Wiseman is delighted with the new offer of help. He says he hopes his second letter to the campus community will generate more donations that, coupled with the athletic department effort, will allow the drive to meet its quota and go over the top.

President's letter

keep the campus aware of developments in order to dispel rumors.

In a letter to parents, Oct. 17, President Paul R. Verkuil said that while the deaths and the recent assault on a student had been reported widely in the press, "I felt you would find it helpful to hear directly from us about them."

"We are confident," said Verkuil, "these two terrible incidents in no way suggest that our campus is less safe than it has been in the past. But, we know that the juxtaposition of these events has created real concern for some of our students. To reassure them, we have temporarily added additional uniformed security officers to increase the visible presence of police on campus. A full security check of all of our student residences and exterior lighting was completed earlier this week and repairs were made where necessary."

He also added that the College's emergency phone system, which includes both phones in buildings and around campus, was fully operable.

"We have been meeting with the students most directly touched by these incidents and communicating with the rest of the campus community by memoranda and through the media as information becomes available," he added.

"The circumstances of the past 10 days have been difficult ones for a community as close as ours. However, the reassurance we have received from the F.B.I. and the efforts I have outlined, are having the desired effect here on campus. I hope you will find them comforting as well," concluded Verkuil.

Tracy Flora gets Ramsey award

Tracy Elizabeth Flora, a senior art history major, has been awarded the Harold W. Ramsey Memorial Scholarship for the third consecutive year.

Established in 1984 in memory of the late Mr. Ramsey, a 1927 alumnus of the College and a distinguished educator in Franklin County, the scholarship is granted to an incoming freshman who is a graduate of Franklin County High School. The scholarship is renewable for all four years of undergraduate studies.

Miss Flora may undertake graduate study in museum management or museum education after graduation.

Debaters on the road to West Point, Miami

This Saturday there will be more debaters than football players in competition.

Pat Micken, debate coach, will take four teams to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, and Stephen Mister, a law student and assistant coach, will take teams to Miami of Ohio University for a competition there.

Cean Reilly and Rich Evontiz, both sophomores, and Laura Forester, a senior and Therese Tracy, a freshman, will comprise two teams that will compete in the novice division at West Point. Rod Satterwhite, a junior, and Lorette Chaney, a senior, will debate in the varsity division as will two sophomores, Sayoko Blodgett-Ford and her partner, Douglas Clarke.

Earlier this month, debaters did well at a major tournament at Vanderbilt University, which drew over 90 teams from across the country in the varsity and novice divisions.

In the varsity division, Orette Chaney and Rod Satterwhite were 5-3 in the preliminaries. In the octofinals they were seeded 14th and lost to Florida State University.

In the junior division Laura Forester and Therese Tracy were 3-3 in the preliminaries and were seeded 12th going into the octofinals. There they beat Kansas State University and went on to the quarterfinals where they lost to Whitman College.

Forester was judged 4th-place speaker and Tracy was fourth-place speaker, gaining her first trophy in her first tournament.

Also in the junior division, Douglas Clarke and Sayoko Blodgett-Ford were 6-0 in the preliminary rounds. They were seeded first going into the final rounds and beat Meridian College in the octofinals and Duke University in the quarterfinals. They lost to Whitman College in the semifinals.

Clarke tied with Tracy for fourth-place speaker honors.

Delta Sigma Theta sorority gives high schoolers a hand

For the past three Saturdays, members of Mu Upsilon chapter of Delta Sigma Theta sorority on campus have been holding morning workshops for area high school students on test-taking skills.

The sessions, held in Morton Hall, were geared specifically toward SAT tests.

Charlene Jackson, president of Mu Upsilon, helped coordinate the program with the help of the sorority's adviser, Mrs. Elizabeth Morgan of Williamsburg.

Three educators gave their time to the program, including Janie Jordan of the mathematics and computer science division at Norfolk State University, Carmelita Williams of Norfolk State University's reading program, and Lucy Wilson, assistant vice president for academic affairs at Old Dominion University.

The sorority is planning a party for youngsters in the children's ward at Eastern State Hospital at Halloween.

They will hold a "Step Show" of African dances from 7 to 9 p.m., Friday, Nov. 14, in the Campus Center Little Theatre during Homecoming weekend. Admission to the show is $2. Patrons may use their tickets as part of the admission charge for the dance that will follow.

Proceeds from the Homecoming activities will be divided between the Black Student Organization and a local charity to provide Thanksgiving baskets for needy families.

Although Mu Upsilon has a social side, it is a service organization. Ninety percent of the money members raise and the majority of the sorority's activities are for public service projects.

EXHIBITS

ANDREWS GALLERY: "Louis Finkelstein - Paintings" (Through Nov. 6)

ANDREWS FOYER: "Collage, Constructions, Wall Reliefs Invitational" (Through Nov. 6)

ANDREWS HALLWAY: "David Acker - Paintings" (Through Nov. 6)

MUSCARELLE MUSEUM:

Bolivian textiles

(Through Nov. 23)

The current exhibit, which includes over 100 pieces, has been assembled from the private collections of Paul and Virginia Clifford and Kevin Healy. The exhibit will continue through Nov. 23.

The museum is open daily, Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 4:45 p.m., and on weekends from noon to 4 p.m.

Bolivian textile production has roots that reach back to pre-Columbian times and is continued today with some of the weaving implements that were developed over 3,000 years ago.

Bolivia's different regions have preserved their unique styles of weaving, which vary in both technique and use. The Muscarelle exhibit includes examples of each region's style, highlighting the craftsmanship and design of the individual works.

Bolivian spinners have produced some of the most finely spun sheep and camelid yarns in the world using only a simple drop spindle.

Chinese education topic of talk

Philip H. Phenix, professor emeritus of philosophy and education at Teachers College, Columbia University, will speak at 10:30 a.m., Friday, Oct. 24 in the Dodge Room of Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall as part of the annual meeting of the Virginia Educational Studies Association.

Phenix has written extensively on philosophical and religious issues in education and is expected to talk Friday about his impressions of Chinese education, gained on a recent trip.

His talk is open to the public.

William Losito, professor of education and an active member of VESA, will host the day-long meeting.

Deadline Nov. 7 for scholarship award

The government department is now accepting applications for the Koenig-Nimmo Foreign Service Scholarship. Deadline for applications is Nov. 7. The award will be made by Dec. 1.

This award is made each year to a senior who plans to pursue a career in international service with a government agency. The recipient will be selected on the basis of commitment to foreign service, academic excellence, leadership qualities and interest in promoting international understanding.

This scholarship is the result of two generous contributions by alumnae of the College. In Nov. 1979 Mrs. Anna Belle Koenig-Nimmo '45 made a gift to the College to establish an endowment fund for the awards. Ms. Laurie Johnston '74, now a career foreign service officer, contributed an additional sum to the fund in Jan. 1980.

Application forms for the scholarship are available in the government department office, Morton 10.

College/ESH auction Nov. 6

The College and Eastern State Hospital will jointly conduct an auction of surplus equipment beginning at 9 a.m., Thursday, Nov. 6 at Building 22 at Eastern State Hospital.

Equipment to be auctioned includes trunks, sofas, typewriters, calculators, tables, chests, desks, scientific equipment, Xerox copiers, chairs, pianos, stoves, refrigerators, mattresses, computer equipment, recorders, small boxes, mowers, a safe and a tractor.

Auction items may be viewed and inspected from 1 to 3 p.m., Nov. 5 and the day of the auction from 8 to 9 a.m.

For further information, please contact Annette Ashcraft at ext. 4179.

Training set on purchasing

Monday, Oct. 27, 3:30-4:30 p.m.

Tuesday, Oct. 28, 10-11 a.m.

Wednesday, Oct. 29, 10-11 a.m.

In an effort to better serve the College community, the purchasing department is in the process of delegating the authority to make most purchases valued under $500 to individual departments. This will eliminate the need to file the Requisition for Purchases Form (DP-1) for small-dollar purchases.

Minimal training is required of personnel. Training sessions have been set up in the Campus Center ballroom on the following schedule:

LSE scholarships

The American Friends of the London School of Economics annually offers approximately eight scholarships in the range of $2,500 each to U.S. citizens or permanent residents for one year of graduate study at the London School of Economics.

To be considered for an AFLSE scholarship, an applicant must have already applied to LSE for admission, but should not wait for LSE acceptance before applying to AFLSE. The deadline for application to AFLSE is March 1.

For information about obtaining application materials, both for LSE and AFLSE scholarships, contact the Office of International Studies, ext. 4354.
