Porters give to establish dean's fund

A gift from a 1937 alumna and her husband has established a dean's discretionary fund for Arts and Sciences.

Mary Parker Porter and Horace D. Porter of Washington, D.C., made a gift of securities valued at approximately $11,500, specifying that income from the sale of the gift benefit the Faculty of Arts and Sciences. Income from the permanently endowed fund will be available to the Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences.

Acting Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences John E. Selby said, "We're delighted to receive this gift. It's wonderful to have funds we can use at a moment's notice."

Mrs. Porter was an English major at William and Mary.

Cheever article wins gold medal

"The Bifurcated Cheever," an article by John Donaldson, Louise G. T. Cooley Professor of English, which appeared in the Winter 1987 edition of the William and Mary Alumni Gazette Magazine, has been awarded a gold medal, one of 10 in the nation given by the Council for the Advancement of Secondary Education (CASE).

The gold medal honors the best pieces of periodical writing submitted to the CASE Awards Competition for 1986-87. CASE received nearly 400 entries for the competition and awarded only 10 gold medals. Last year's winners included Harvard, Notre Dame, the University of California at Berkeley, the University of Virginia and Duke University.

The William and Mary Alumni Gazette Magazine is published twice a year by the Society of the Alumni.

Donaldson, author of several books including biographies of Hemingway and F. Scott Fitzgerald, is currently completing a full-scale biography of Cheever to be published this year by Random House. Cheever, one of the leading American writers won the National Book Award for The Wapshot Chronicle and the Pulitzer Prize for The Stories of John Cheever.

Most of those who attended the Olde Guard reunion, Friday, May 1, were just young whippersnappers compared to David Sizer '09 (seated), who is 101 years old and believed to be William and Mary's oldest living alumnus. Gathered with Mr. Sizer are (l-r) the Right Rev. John Boyd Bentley '19, Newport News; Dr. Milton Salasky '31, Norfolk; E. Ralph James Jr. '16, Hampton; Vernon L. Nunn '25, Williamsburg; William G. Thompson Jr. '28, Virginia Beach; Mrs. Sizer; D. Gardiner Tyler '20, Charles City; and Mrs. Thompson.

Stephanie Jayne receives first award named to honor Rita Welsh of adult skills program

Stephanie Jayne, daughter of Charles and Esther Jayne of McLean, Va., a senior at the College, is the first recipient of the newly established Rita Varnes Welsh Award for "commitment to education and service to others."

Miss Jayne, an English major, was presented her award at the annual recognition ceremony of the Rita Welsh Adult Skills Program on campus. The award, was presented by Provost Melvyn Schiavelli in a program held in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

The award has been created in honor of the late Mrs. Welsh who established the adult skills program on campus 10 years ago. The program provides one-on-one tutorial services.

Miss Jayne and her student, Wardell Meekins of Toano, Va., spent 40 hours in tutorial sessions. Meekins, who has over 100 hours of credit in the program, has learned to read since he started and has been able to improve his employment status as a result. A future goal is to gain his GED, high school equivalency certificate.

Miss Jayne says she became interested in the program through a faculty member who was a tutor. The experience, she adds, "will stand out in memories of my college years."

Nine students who have received their GED certificates were honored. They include Sheila Ford, Carlos Marquez, Harold Mason, Henrietta McDuffie, Gloria Merritt, Meryl Neil, Ruth Otey, Milton White and Judy Windham.

Tutors who have worked with the program for two years or more were presented with pins. They included Suzanne Aucella, Gordon Bell, Janet Blair, Meg Churchill, Gini Cook, Edith Edwards, Margaret Farrell, Shereyn Hammett, Andrew Jacob, Marsha Krotseng, Jacqueline Livingston, Jacquelin Lombard, Joe Patterson and Pat Weeks.

Students who have completed more than 40 hours of work at the center were presented with certificates. They included Preston Armstead, Louise Berkley, Charles Brooks, Lawrence Brooks, Carrie Brown, Hazel Brown, Roger Charity, Evelyn Coleman, Gilbert Crist, Lei Dupuis, Pierre-Eric Duqueroix, Maria Fentress, Viola Gaines, Joyce Gallimore, Albert Graves, Henrietta Harris, Lorraine Hatchett, Wateina Hatchett, Mary Holliman and Larkin Handley.

Also James Jackson, Eleanor Johnson, Alberta Jones, Stephen Klink, Mary Lat-timer, Connie Marquez, Wanda Mayo, Michael McDermott, Ellis Meeks, Wardell Meekins, Michele Muller, John Pitts, Hilda Potter, Elenora Robinson, Jessie Saunders, Herbert Scott, Cynthia Selle, Bessie Singleton, Albert Skutans, Charles Spencer, Lynn Starling, Todd Stewart, Margie Suggs, Sary Sun, Edward Swan, Bernard Turner, Duerant Wallace, Michael Webb, Moses Wong and Wen Shu Wu.

Virginia's first lady, Jeannie P. Baliles, who is active in the private-public initiative to reduce illiteracy, visited the Rita Welsh center last fall and praised it as "a rare model of an integrated, comprehensive, community-spirited literacy program. Its professionalism and sense of pride is transmitted to all who come through the door."

At the beginning of this year, 120 students, each with an assigned tutor, were enrolled. Students are, for the large part, employees of area businesses and immigrants from Vietnam, Taiwan and Korea who want to learn English.

Faculty and staff of the College, students and residents of the Williamsburg area serve as tutors. The Rita Welsh center is a United Way Agency.

First Ewell awards are given

The Benjamin Stoddert Ewell Award, proposed by the Student Association, was presented for the first time this year at the annual Spring Awards luncheon.

Winners were: Adam David Anthony, Mary Catherine Bauer, Anja Buchanan Bergman, Christopher John Bright, Karen Ann Delaney, Barry Kent Diduch, Mary Joanne Dorr, Angela Renita Fogle, Christopher Lee Foote, Coralin Elizabeth Glerum, Laurie Page Grant, Michael Alexander Hackett, Kim Arlene Herd and Leann Lernerich.

Also Karen Marie Luparello, Elizabeth Ann Mack, Tracy Janine Mancini, Johnnie Stuart McGranahan, Kathryn Ellen Mimbberg, Jean Stuart Moroney, Brien James Poffenberger, Suzanne Scott, Elizabeth Wise Shapiro, John Edward Squier, Suzanne Lesley Walker, Phyllis Marie Wolfeich and Ted Douglas Zoller.

These awards were established to honor well-rounded undergraduate students of the College — those who best exemplify a liberal arts education through their activities as well as their studies. The award is named in honor of Benjamin Stoddert Ewell, the 15th and 17th president of the College who, by ringing the Wren Building bell, kept the College alive when it closed its doors during the Civil War. Ewell recognized that students are the heart of the College's existence and continued the spirit until the students could bring life back to the campus.

Lisa Miller, Ken Lambiotte and Bob Ross received Athletic Education Foundation Awards.

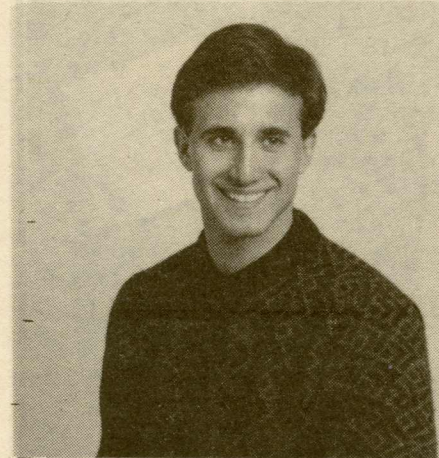

The senior athlete service award was won by Suzanne Scott. Lee Ann Crocker won the Martha Barksdale Award.

Richard Goldstein won the L. Tucker Jones Award. Whitney Monger was named Kathy Meador Lessin Memorial Scholar.

The Kays Gary-Charles McDowell Award for excellence in journalism was won by Susan Winiacki.

Georgie Boge received the Mortar Board award as the outstanding female sophomore. The Omicron Delta Kappa Award for the outstanding sophomore male was presented to John F. Newsome IV.

Seniors to study abroad

John Koegl

John Koegl, a senior at the College, has been awarded a Fulbright scholarship-to-Germany-year and will study at the University of Munster.

Koegl, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Koegl of Stephens City, Va., is a graduate of James Wood High School. He is majoring in German and English and hopes to pursue a career in writing.

Alpha of Virginia Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa recently honored Koegl with the Cecil M. McCulley Humanities Award for 1986-87.

The award, established to honor the late Professor Cecil McCulley, a longtime member of the English faculty and a drama critic for the Virginia Gazette, goes annually to a graduating senior who has demonstrated dedication and excellence in any area of the humanities. Koegl was cited for his outstanding work in English as well as his excellent work in German. This award included a stipend of $250.

The Fulbright program affords Koegl a second visit to Europe. He spent his junior year with the Munster Program at the College.

Although his father is German, Koegl did not study German until he came to college. He studied French and Latin in high school. Languages fascinate him, and, after his first visit to Europe, he set his sights on a Fulbright as a way to make a return visit. Going overseas, he explains, gives people the kind of global perspective they can't get at home.

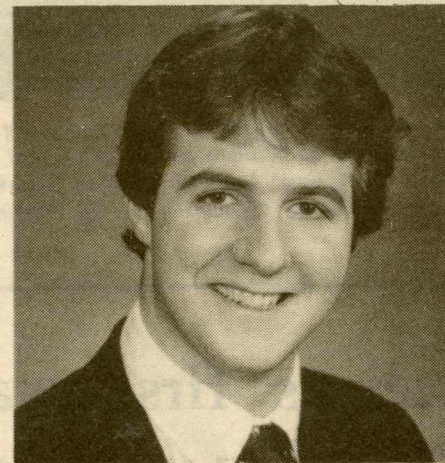

Buckley chases German program

George Buckley, son of George and Patricia Buckley of Tockville Centre, N.Y., a senior at the College, is one of 45 Americans recently selected to participate in the Congress-Bundestag Youth Exchange Program for young professionals in West Germany.

This year-long work/study exchange program begins in late July. It will include a two-month intensive language course, four months of study at a German professional or technical school and a six-month internship in a German business or industry; most participants will also stay with a German family for part of the year.

Buckley plans to do his internship in a German bank and would like to pursue a career in international banking. He is a psychology/German major.

George Buckley

Administered in the U.S. by the Carl Duisberg Society, Inc., of New York City, this program began as part of President Reagan's Youth Exchange initiative to honor the 300th anniversary of German immigration to the United States. The program is funded by the U.S. Congress and the West German Bundestag.

Cadets receive awards at annual ROTC spring ceremony

Cadet Master Sgt. Charles E. Smith was the junior class recipient of the Department of the Army Superior Cadet Award at the Military Science annual spring awards ceremony. He also won the Association of the United States Army's U.S. Army Military History Award and a William and Mary Ranger Club proficiency award.

Cadet Sgt. John A. Stewart, a sophomore, was recognized for achievements in the Running and Fitness Club.

Cadet Lt. James A. Vick Jr., a senior, received the Reserve Officers Association gold medal for leadership.

Cadet Staff Sgt. Stephen B. Molseed, a junior, received the Reserve Officers Asso-

Gift to Muscarelle Museum

Robert J. Moore of Richmond, director of community relations for Philip Morris U.S.A., hands a $10,000 check to Mark M. Johnson, director of the Muscarelle Museum. The check completes a $100,000 pledge by Philip Morris U.S.A. made in 1984 toward construction of Phase II of the museum, which adds a new wing and expanded exhibition and work and storage space. Mr. and Mrs. Moore and Johnson are pictured at the current exhibition of Italian Renaissance art, selections from the Piero Corsini Gallery.

1987 Graduates are toasted

Graduates raise glasses to celebrate end of college days.

"Success: Past, Present and Future," was the theme of the Black Student Organization's annual senior reception held Sunday, April 26 in the Campus Center Little Theatre.

President Paul R. Verkuil opened the program with welcoming remarks. A prayer was offered by Carl Peoples, and the Ebony Expressions presented several musical selections.

Two graduates, Reginald Clark '75, assistant to the president, and Elizabeth Young '83, recounted highlights of their college years.

The Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity award was presented to Reginald White. Sherri Tolson won the Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority award, and Valencia Jones was presented the Delta Sigma Theta sorority award.

Joan Redd and Linda Powell were presented awards by Zeta Phi Beta sorority, and the Rolls Royce Award was presented to Angela Fogle.

Karl Pete won the BSO award, and the Anthony Lus award was won by Althee Malloy.

A bouquet of flowers was presented to Carroll Hardy, associate dean of student affairs, in appreciation for her work with students.

A champagne toast to graduating seniors was proposed by Karl Pete, president-elect of the Black Student Organization.

omore, received the General Society of the War of 1812 Award and a proficiency award from the Cadet Club.

Cadet Staff Sgt. Amy K. Englund, a junior, received a Sons of the American Revolution medal and was also recognized for achievements in the Pershing Rifles.

Cadet Pfc. Alexandra G. Kwiatkowski, a freshman, also received a Sons of the American Revolution medal.

Cadet Sgt. Lisa M. Weis, a sophomore, received a Military Order of the World Wars award. Cadet Sgt. John C. Owers, a sophomore, was also recognized for achievements in the Running and Fitness Club.

Cadet Sgt. John E. Ramey, a sophomore, received the Reserve Officers Association bronze medal for leadership. He also received awards from the Pershing Rifles drill unit and the Ranger Club.

Newsmakers

Classical Studies

Carol Clemeau Esler, assistant professor, was an invited panelist at the annual meeting of the Classical Association of the Middle West and South in Boulder, Colo., April 25. The panel, titled "Clytemnestra and Cassandra: Another View of the Homecoming," was a discussion of, and readings from, her novel-in-progress, Agamemnon's Wife.

Chancellor Professor J. W. Jones presented a paper titled "Aeneid IV. 238-278 and the Persistence of an Allegorical Interpretation"; Associate Professor James R. Baron was a participant in a panel on "Classics and the Cinema"; Visiting Assistant Professor T. Keith Dix read a paper on "Pliny's Benefactions to Comum and Imperial Policy in Italy"; and alumnus Ross Scaife gave a paper on "Ovid's Views on Death and Immortality in the Exilic Poetry."

Government

Roger W. Smith, professor, has been named a contributing editor for the Internet on the Holocaust and Genocide, an international newsletter published in Tel Aviv, Israel. He has also been appointed an Associate of the Zoryan Institute in Cambridge, Mass. The Institute has an extensive oral history program which seeks to document the experiences of survivors of the Armenian genocide of 1915-17, collects other forms of documentation and publishes a series of articles and books on contemporary Armenian history.

Garrette wins HACE Award

Pam Garrette, winner of the William and Mary Hourly and Classified Employee Association's award for April is just completing a successful year in a new job.

Pam Garrette

For six years Garrette was a secretary in the Career Services Office; last year, in the realignment of that office, she was appointed recruitment coordinator. She has enjoyed her new job and is now compiling statistics that show it was a very good year for recruiting on campus.

The number of recruiters conducting on-campus interviews was 227, a significant rise over the 189 the year before. Approximately 900 students participated in the interviewing procedure.

Garrette attributes some of the increase in the number of companies coming to campus to the mentions William and Mary received in USA Today and The Public Ivys. Companies came from as far away as San Francisco, although most recruited from East Coast offices. One company, said Garrette, came to recruit recruiters.

As a recruitment coordinator, Garrette gets to see the process from both sides. Students come in to check with her about the location of interviews and get some last-minute encouragement; employers meet with her when they come to campus to coordinate student interviews. Students also come back, she says, to tell her the good news about a successful interview or job offer.

Although there will be less traffic through her office this summer, Garrette will be busy gearing up for the fall, preparing letters of invitation to companies, updating literature in the careers library and preparing statistical reports on the year's work.

Born in Newport News, Garrette has spent most of her life in Williamsburg. She attended James Blair High School and is a graduate of the Smithdeal-Massey School of Business in Richmond.

Before coming to the College, she tried her hand at several different jobs. She worked at the Fort Eustis Education Center, at Casey's department store and for a while took care of 10 small children.

Garrette and her husband, Danny, a sales representative for Colonial Typewriter Company, have two daughters, Kelly, 10, and Jennifer, 15.

Garrette was nominated by her boss, Stan Brown, director of the Career Services Office. He describes her as a "well-organized, very conscientious and loyal employee, ... who takes her responsibilities very seriously."

Brown adds, "And I am not the only one who feels that way. Employers who come here and students who work with her also feel that way. She doesn't want anything to go out from this office that isn't just right. She is a valuable employee who is always coming up with ideas. I am very thrilled and pleased that she received this award."

When Garrette was selected to replace the coordinator for recruitment (who left because her family was relocated), she had big boots to fill. "We had over 200 applications for the job," said Brown.

Smith's article on "Human Destructiveness and Politics: The Twentieth Century as an Age of Genocide," has been published in Wallimann and Dobkowski, eds., Genocide and the Modern Age (Greenwood Press). His review of James Reichley's Religion in American Public Life appeared in a recent issue of Perspective.

Business Administration

Richard C. Hoffman, assistant professor, has recently had a co-authored study, titled "Who Influences Strategic Decisions?" published in Long Range Planning, vol. 20, no. 2 (April 1987): 76-85.

VIMS

Maurice P. Lynch, associate dean, School of Marine Science, has been appointed for a second two-year term as chairman of the Chesapeake Bay Agreement's Scientific and Technical Advisory Committee.

Lynch and Scott Hardaway, marine scientist, attended the sixth annual undergraduate workshop "Science Education for Tomorrow's World" held at Hampton University. Their presentation was titled "Saving our Shoreline."

Joseph G. Loesch, professor of marine science, received a $65,000 grant from the National Marine Fisheries Service to continue an ongoing study of the population dynamics of anadromous Alosa species in Virginia waters.

In addition, Loesch and William H. Kriete Jr. received $55,000 from NMFS to start a striped bass tagging program in the James River to study the migration and exploitation of this species both within Chesapeake Bay and along the northeastern Atlantic coast.

George C. Grant, professor of marine science, Robert J. Huggett, professor of marine science, Leonard W. Haas, associate professor of marine science, Carl Cerco, assistant professor of marine science, and Linda Schaffner, VIMS graduate student, were invited as participating reviewers of the Maryland Chesapeake Bay Monitoring program. The two-day workshop was held at the University of Maryland's Donaldson Brown Center on the Susquehanna River.

The following VIMS contributions were received by the library January through March:

VIMS plans auction May 21

Fiberglass boats, pickup trucks, office furniture, outboard engines, typewriters and a host of other surplus goods will go to the highest bidders on May 21 when the Virginia Institute of Marine Science holds its general surplus property sale.

An auctioneer from the State's Department of General Services will conduct the sale on VIMS' triangular parking lot on State Route 1208 at Gloucester Point, beginning at 10 a.m. on Thursday, May 21. All items will be presented for inspection from 2 to 4 p.m., Wednesday, May 20.

Three 16' to 19' fiberglass boats, Caterpillar marine diesel engine parts, Cummins marine diesel engine parts, two International Harvester trucks, one Minneapolis Moline 4-cylinder tractor, one fork lift, 31 calculators, black iron pipes and fittings, seven 3-M word-processing equipment sets, 18 typewriters, seven adding machines and miscellaneous camera equipment will be included in the sale.

"Some items are in operable condition while others need work or are in poor condition. Since all sales are final, we encourage buyers to inspect items carefully before the sale," says A. N. "Bud" Davenport, VIMS property administrator.
