Karsh exhibit opens July 4

The work of internationally acclaimed photographer Yousuf Karsh, who used his camera with the skill of a sensitive artist, comprises a major exhibit at the Muscarelle Museum.

Portrait studies of Winston Churchill, Pablo Casals, Ernest Hemingway, Pablo Picasso, Georgia O'Keeffe and George Bernard Shaw are included in the exhibit of over 80 photographs, which will be exhibited July 4 through Sept. 20.

"We are extremely excited that we have the opportunity to show the work of this outstanding artist photographer," said Mark Johnson, museum director.

The exhibit, organized by the Muscarelle from Karsh's private collection, includes, in addition to those listed above, portraits of Marian Anderson, Albert Einstein, Robert Frost, Helen Keller, John F. Kennedy, Sophia Loren, Paul Robeson and many others.

Karsh, a native of Armenia, was brought to Canada in 1924 by his photographer uncle, George Nakash. "While at first I did not realize it, everything connected with the art of photography captivated my interest and energy," recalls Karsh. "It was to be not only my livelihood, but my continuing passion."

After an apprenticeship in Boston with the eminent portrait photographer John H. Garo, Karsh settled in Ottawa in 1932, where he began his professional career. As early as 1936 he was photographing visiting statesmen and dignitaries, among them President Franklin Roosevelt.

Professorship in business honors Dalton

Five Virginia corporations have made contributions totaling $200,000 to establish the John N. Dalton Professorship in Business Administration at William and Mary, according to President Paul R. Verkuil.

Three Richmond-based firms, CSX Corporation, Ethyl Corporation and Signet Banking Corporation, along with Bassett Furniture Industries of Bassett and Chesapeake Corporation of West Point, have funded the professorship to honor the former governor of Virginia.

Verkuil said the professorship "is a commitment which provides vital support to learning as well as a lasting tribute to a great Virginian and alumnus of the College."

Dalton, governor from 1977 to 1981, received his undergraduate degree from William and Mary in 1953, serving as president of the student body. His political career began with his election to the House of Delegates from Radford in 1958, culminating with his election as governor. Dalton died last year of cancer at the age of 55.

While in office, Dalton concentrated much of his effort on the promotion of Virginia's economy. He was known for attracting new industry to the state, and as many as 32,000 new jobs were created during his four-year

Board of Visitors meet at Ash Lawn-Highland revise drug policy, approve private fund budget

At a morning meeting at Ash Lawn-Highland near Charlottesville, the Board of Visitors heard a report by President Verkuil on the College's revised drug education and testing policy (see story p.2). They also approved the 1987-88 Board of Visitors Private Funds Budget totaling $3.4 million.

Each year the Board approves a private funds budget and is charged with the responsibility for administering endowed and other expendable funds for restricted and unrestricted purposes.

Board members received an interim progress report summarizing gifts to the College from July 1, 1986 through June 8, 1987. The College has received a total of $9,886,580 thus far, a 28.9 percent increase over the same period last year. Included in that total is $6,204,831 in gifts for capital purposes, including endowment, facilities and gifts-in-kind, which represents an increase of 56.4 percent over the previous year. For current operations, the College has received $3,280,182, which represents a 3.9 percent decrease from the same period last year. However, this year's current operations total does include $1,537,573 generated by the William and Mary Annual Fund, which compares to $1,366,669 for the same period last year, a 12.5 percent increase. Undesignated gifts for the period totaled $401,567.

The board also approved the following appointments, effective Aug. 16 to May 15, 1988, unless otherwise indicated, to fill existing vacancies:

ADAM S. ARNOLD, full-time visiting associate professor of business administration.

MURRY BARTOW, full-time assistant men's basketball coach, Department of Athletics, effective May 16-May 15, 1988.

MARY ANN BURNS, part-time visiting professor of classical studies.

DEBORAH A. CAVE, part-time diving coach, Department of Athletics.

Revised drug policy stresses education, eases mandatory ruling

A revised drug education and testing policy, emphasizing education and calling for mandatory testing only in the case of reasonable suspicion of drug use, has been established in the Department of Athletics.

The policy, reported to the W&M Board of Visitors June 26, replaces one instituted last fall that involved random testing of student athletes and mandatory testing of those qualifying for NCAA postseason competition. That program was suspended earlier this year by President Paul R. Verkuil, who established a task force, headed by Edmund P. Edmonds of the law faculty, to review its provisions and make recommendations for changes.

"I applaud the efforts of the task force," Verkuil said. "Its report was translated directly into changes in the policy. I believe we have struck a good balance between the rights of individual privacy and the overall interests of the university."

The new policy reinforces the department's existing drug education program, requiring all student-athletes to participate annually. Sessions in the program will center on attitudes toward drug use, the effects of drugs on general health and athletic performance, the dangers of addiction, the College's disciplinary sanctions for drug use, the NCAA regulations governing drug use and the College's drug testing policy itself. Each student-athlete will sign a form acknowledging familiarity with the College's rules and regulations on drug use.

Under the policy, testing in the form of urine screening may be ordered by coaches or administrators "for a student-athlete regarding whom they have a reasonable suspicion of drug use." The grounds for suspicion must be documented in writing and reviewed by the dean of student affairs and the director of athletics. The policy contains a detailed procedure through which testing would be performed.

Substances banned by the policy include those in six classifications specified by the NCAA: psychomotor stimulants, such as amphetamines; sympathomimetic amines; central nervous system stimulants; anabolic steroids; diuretics; and street drugs, including cocaine and marijuana.

If a student-athlete receives a test result indicating the presence of any substance on the list, he or she will be informed of the finding and referred for mandatory psychological counseling; a later retest may also be required, depending on individual circumstances. If an athlete tests positive a second time during his or her athletic career, he or she will be suspended from participation for four weeks, referred for required counseling and subject to retesting at a later time. A third positive test will bring permanent disqualification from intercollegiate athletics, loss of any grant-in-aid and referral to the College's disciplinary system.

Verkuil said the nine-member task force, which included student athletes, was thorough in its research, interviewing experts on technical testing procedures and on legal aspects of the issue, arriving at a policy that is both fair to the students and responsive to the issue of drug abuse.

"The group stressed the importance of education as a deterrent to drug use, and it was very sensitive to students' rights," he said.

"We intend to place heavy emphasis on education for both student-athletes and the student body as a whole in combating the problem of drug abuse."

Verkuil said the factors in the decision to review the testing policy instituted last fall were the need for campuswide involvement in policy formulation and shifts in interpretations of legal questions surrounding drug testing.

"We learned something this year," he said. "This is a highly complex problem that demands the best thinking we can apply to it. We have benefited from our own experience, from that of other colleges and universities and from a growing number of judicial decisions on the subject, in establishing a policy that will serve our community well. I am grateful to the athletic department, the faculty, the student body and the Attorney General's Office for their assistance in formulating this policy."

Those serving on the task force were Edmund P. Edmonds, chairman; Reginald Clark, assistant to the president for community and campus relations; W. Samuel Sadler, dean of student affairs; David P. Aday Jr., associate professor of sociology; Jayne Barnard, associate professor of law; John W. Conlee, associate professor of English; and three students, Elizabeth A. Hunter, William M. Walker Jr. and David J. Szydlak Jr.

The first CommonHealth Fun and Fitness Challenge was held on campus Saturday, June 20.

Designed as a family event, the Challenge attracted more than 70 CommonHealth participants from William and Mary, Old Dominion University and the Department of Motor Vehicles in Richmond.

Teams competed in a 5-km fun-run, a one-mile 'walk for the health of it,' volleyball, tug-o-war and the zip line.

Children were entertained by Daisy the Clown as their parents racked up points in the team standings. William and Mary entrants showed their strength by taking first place in the walk, zip line and tug-o-war, but it was the team from Old Dominion University that took home the Challenge Cup.

It is hoped that more agencies will participate in the 1988 event. The William and Mary team hopes to bring back the cup to Williamsburg.

Joe Agee (physical education) and Margo Wright (School of Education) await the start of the five-km fun run with runners from ODU and DMV.

Frances Lemons, Melissa Lemons, Kathy Roemer, Theresa Lemons and Dena Gray, all from the School of Education, take a one-mile walk "for the health of it."

Minority summer programs help many students

Minority students from throughout Virginia are attending summer programs at the College designed to make them better students both in high school and in college.

CHAMP, for Creating High Aspirations and Motivation Program, held June 14-27, is designed to limit or reduce the rate of minority students who drop out of high school. The Summer Transition and Enrichment Program (STEP) for minority high school seniors, July 5-31, teaches better study skills and provides information about the college application process. The Virginia Summer Transition Program (VTSP) June 28-Aug. 8 helps minority freshmen entering William and Mary this fall make a smooth transition from high school to college.

year courses. VSTP students will also meet with advisers to work out their freshmen schedules.

Mathematics instruction is emphasized in all the programs, and students will take computer-assisted instruction in algebra, trigonometry or calculus, depending on prior math training. The program also includes writing and study skills workshops and information on a variety of career fields from guest speakers.

Sixty high school seniors are expected for STEP, a major feature of which is a preparatory workshop for the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT). Dr. Carmelita Williams, chairman of the reading department of Norfolk State University, will conduct the workshop.

The itinerary for STEP this year will include a visit to the Virginia Institute of Marine Science at Gloucester Point. Hardy wants students to visit with minority students there and learn about marine science as a profession.

CHAMP students this year are returnees. CHAMP was initiated last summer and funded by the State Council of Higher Education. The program did not receive funding this year but there were enough funds remaining from the 1986 program to invite students back for a second session.

Muscarelle begins classes for children

The Muscarelle Museum of Art invites school children entering grades one through eight to participate in a series of classes held at the museum during the month of July.

"The classes are designed to introduce young students to the museum and its collections," says director Mark Johnson. "At the same time, students will develop and appreciate and understanding of the visual arts through exposure to original objects." The series will include gallery talks and hands-on studio sessions.

Classes have been geared to the special interests of various age groups. For children going into the first and second grades, "Inside, Outside," taught by Jenny Sanders Eggleston, will inspire young artists to draw from the beauties of nature and the landscape around them.

"Kaleidoscope," taught by Debby Gieseler, for children going into third through fifth grades, will encourage students to see the world around them with all its different forms and dimensions. Students will then create their own optical art of light, color and shape.

For students going into sixth through eighth grades, "Through the Viewfinder" will teach them to experience the world through a photographer's eyes in a workshop exploring the most basic elements and techniques of photography. The class will be taught by Ellen Walter.

"The art museum can be an exciting setting that encourages original thought while helping children interpret their ideas and develop observational skills. They can also gain an appreciation of the world around them and its history through art," says Lisa McAuliffe, Muscarelle Museum educator.

Classes are scheduled Tuesdays and Thursdays, July 7, 9, 14, 16, 21, 23, 28 and 30. All classes meet from 10:30 a.m. to noon. The fee is $15 for the series. Scholarships are available in cases of financial need. The program is supported in part by a grant from the Williamsburg Arts Commission.

Registrations are now being accepted and will continue until classes are filled. Advance and in-person registration is required. For more information on the children's classes, call the Muscarelle Museum education office at ext. 4003.

Camp Shakespeare very popular

Camp Shakespeare, sponsored by the Virginia Shakespeare Festival for youngsters between the ages of 8 and 15, will be held July 6-17 in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

Planners are delighted that this year's registration has far exceeded last year's, and participants are coming from Newport News, Hampton and Yorktown as well as Williamsburg.

The official deadline for registration was June 26. Latecomers will be accommodated on a space-available basis. Cost of the program is $20. For information please call 229-5676.

Sessions will be held 9 a.m.-4 p.m., Monday through Friday each week. Participants will play theatre games to familiarize themselves with stage techniques, practice acting exercises and learn a script of "Much Ado About Nothing," adapted for young readers.

In addition, campers will learn about stage makeup techniques, perhaps even try a few basic tricks-of-the-trade on their own faces. They'll learn about costume and set design, using basic ideas about color and space to perhaps render their own scaled-down version of a set.

Instructors will be Bill Eyre, program specialist in the visual and performing arts for the James City County Department of Parks and Recreation, and Kacey Kamp '87, who was active in the theatre department as an undergraduate.

Karsh exhibit

Karsh gained international recognition with his unforgettable portrait of Winston Churchill in Dec. 1941. The photograph, one of the most widely reproduced portraits in the history of photography, illustrates Karsh's in-depth perception into his subjects and his ability to illuminate their personalities. His portraits of Churchill and other world figures, including the British Royal Family, Nehru and Dag Hammarskjold, have appeared on commemorative postage stamps in dozens of countries.

To achieve his unmistakable images, Karsh travels throughout the world, preferring to photograph his subjects in their own environments. "Any room in the world where I could set up my portable lights and camera — from Buckingham Palace to a Zulu Kraal, from miniature Zen Buddhist temples in Japan to the splendid Renaissance chambers of the Vatican — would become my studio," writes Karsh.

During work on his first "international portfolio" in 1943, Karsh initiated another routine: "the practice, which I continue to this day, of 'doing my homework,' of finding out as much as I can about each person I am to photograph." Karsh's humaneness and empathy allow him to form a creative bond with his subjects. Although in his late 70s, today he still works at a vigorous pace.

Karsh's work is represented in the permanent collections of the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Museum of Modern Art in New York, the Philadelphia Art Museum, The Art Institute of Chicago, the National Gallery of Canada and other leading museums.

He is the recipient of the Canada Council Medal, the Order of Canada (akin to the Medal of Freedom in the United States), and the Presidential Citation (U.S.) for meritorious service on behalf of the handicapped.

Karsh is the author of 14 books, the most recent of which (Karsh: A Fifty-Year Retrospective) is the largest publication on his works. It includes portraits not published before, as well as early works and experiments. This book will be offered for sale at the Muscarelle Museum during the exhibition.

Carroll Hardy

For many participants, the programs represent the first time they've been away from home in an academic setting, according to Carroll F. Hardy, associate dean of students for minority affairs and coordinator of the three summer programs. The VTSP program in particular can mean the difference between a successful freshman year and ending up going home because of homesickness," says Hardy.

Although STEP is for students still in high school, the four weeks they spend away home is a good preparation for college. "Because they have been here, the apprehension of their first year at college is absent. They've overcome the fear of the unknown," says Hardy.

VSTP students will get a head start on their classmates this fall by taking one summer school class that will be credited to their first-

Shakespeare Festival opens with 'Much Ado About Nothing'

The 1987 Virginia Shakespeare Festival production of "Much Ado About Nothing" is a comedy cloaked in suspense and seriousness that, according to its director, will have audiences on the edges of their seats.

"Much Ado" opens the festival Thursday, July 2, and will be presented in repertory through Aug. 15 with "Antony and Cleopatra," "Henry V" and John O'Keeffe's "Wild Oats" at Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. For festival tickets and information, call the box office at ext. 4469.

"Much Ado" is one of Shakespeare's most popular comedies, but director Leslie Muchmore says he isn't sure why it's such a crowd-pleaser. "The play has a serious, almost tragic plot, to the point of catastrophe," he says. "The military element is strong, and the play is full of intrigue as Don John attempts to destroy Hero's reputation before she marries Claudio."

In addition, the self-righteous Claudio is prepared to reject Hero, thinking she is tainted, and there are few things more distressing than a bride left at the altar. "But for all of that, it's patently a comedy," says Muchmore. "The play is full of ruses, hidden secrets and feigned identities, and there's not one moment where someone isn't pretending to be someone else."

This will be Muchmore's first directorial effort at the play, though it was first produced by the festival in 1979. "I'm still finding out a lot about the show," he says. "Basically, we are just going to tell the story. We're not cutting any of it, and there will be dancing onstage and live music" He says his biggest challenge is not only to make the Sicilian setting believable, but to make all the characters' outlandish excesses seem real as well.

The characters, such as the sparring lovers Beatrice and Benedick, are conceited and deluded with self-importance, says Muchmore. None of the characters is exemplary; all are excessive in some way. The men are inflexible, comic Italian male, macho types. The women are uneducated and naive. In fact, nothing has prepared Hero to speak for herself, even when she gets to the altar and finds herself in danger of losing Claudio because of the slanderous Don John.

Muchmore has set "Much Ado" in the 1830s, when men wore snug breeches and cumbersome cravats and women changed their frilly gowns many times a day. The play's color palette will be subdued pastels for women, and black and white for men. "We've given it a summer look because a lot of it takes place outdoors in Sicily," Muchmore says. Lighting will be reminiscent of a hot Mediterranean sun.

Among the cast members for "Much Ado" are John Reese as Leonato, Liz Tunstall as the beleaguered bride Hero, Sally Edmundson as the combative Beatrice, Wesley Stevens as her husband Benedick, Mikel MacDonald as Don Pedro, Carter Reardon as the misanthropic Don John, Jeff Klein as the bumbling Dogberry, Larry Williams as his equally clumsy assistant Verges, Scott Whitehurst as the skeptical bridegroom Claudio, Arthur Hamilton as Antonio, Jeff Walker as Balthasar and John Edmond Morgan as Borachio.

Staff IDs key to ticket discounts

Staff members who present their staff IDs at the Virginia Shakespeare Festival box office are eligible for special ticket discounts on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings during the 1987 season, July 2 through Aug. 15.

The festival this season is presenting "Antony and Cleopatra," "Much Ado About Nothing," "Henry V" and "Wild Oats by John O'Keeffe, an 18th-century comedy dealing with the misadventures of a Shakespearean actor in the Quaker countryside.

'Wild Oats' opens July 9

Audiences will experience the atmosphere of an English country playhouse for the thoughtful story of an itinerant actor in search of his identity in the 1987 Virginia Shakespeare Festival production of John O'Keeffe's "Wild Oats," opening Thursday, July 9.

Directed by Rod Ceballos, the Georgian-era play has bittersweet elements involving love and mistaken identities that nevertheless lead to a happy ending.

"Wild Oats" will be presented in repertory through Aug. 15 with Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing," "Henry V" and "Antony and Cleopatra" at Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. For tickets and information, call ext. 4469.

Ceballos, returning for his second season as a director for the festival, says the title of O'Keeffe's play refers to unscrupulous men who arranged marriages to take advantage of unsuspecting women, only to leave them soon afterward.

The young actor, Rover, was the result of such an unfortunate marriage, and he never knew his father. During his travels as an actor, he arrives in a Quaker village and meets a Quaker woman. She falls in love with him; on condition that he become a Quaker, Rover can marry the woman and inherit her land.

Rover is unaware that his father has remarried, has a second son and lives in the same village. The father is trying to fix up his second son with the same Quaker woman who loves Rover. When the two young men realize they are related to each other, the second son embarks on a plan to have Rover marry the Quaker woman.

Throughout the play, audiences will notice that Rover uses the theatre, particularly quoting from the works of Shakespeare, to mask his insecurity. Ceballos says Rover "uses his acting talent to cover his lack of real-life

Three-day Sherlock Holmes workshop slated for July 24-26

Williamsburg will take on a bit of Victorian London in late July when more than 150 fans of the Sherlock Holmes stories gather to celebrate the master detective's centenary.

The event is called "Fiddling Around with Sherlock Holmes," a three-day workshop, July 24-26, tracing the 100-year popularity of the cerebral sleuth created by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. From his first print appearance in Beeton's Christmas Annual for 1887 in London, to his modern representations on television, the stage, in books and the movies, Holmes has outgrown the limits of a fictional character to become part of our culture.

He has, for example, inspired dozens of societies around the world, dedicated to keeping his memory green. One such group, The Cremona Fiddlers of Williamsburg, is sponsoring the workshop, in cooperation with the Office of Special Programs.

Workshop leader will be John Bennett Shaw of Santa Fe, N.M. Shaw owns more than 12,000 books dealing with Holmes, making his the largest private collection in the world. He is an accomplished lecturer, former oilman, funeral director, librarian and bookseller. He has been cited in Smithsonian Magazine, The Atlantic Monthly and Reader's Digest, discussing Holmes.

The workshop will include sessions on the influence women had on Doyle's work to the attitude of Victorians toward cocaine, a drug Holmes used but Doyle refused. There will be quizzes testing the more outre aspects of Holmesian knowledge, films starring Raymond Massey, Basil Rathbone and Arthur Wontner among others as Holmes, plus a Sherlockian poetry reading. On Saturday evening, participants will enjoy a Victorian-style dinner.

The weekend is open to anyone with an interest in learning more about the world's most famous fictional character.

The fee is $95 and includes admission to all events. Registration forms and additional information can be obtained from Ray Betzner, 2906 Richard Pace South, Williamsburg, 229-3783 or 220-1047 evenings and weekends.

Furniture Deliveries

Herman Miller Systems furniture and chairs ordered from the state contract will be delivered 60 days after receipt of order at the factory. Please be sure to build this lead time into your plans when ordering.

Reinstatement of Purchase Orders Funded by State-Appropriated Money for the New Fiscal Year 1987-88 (Grant-Funded Purchase Orders to be included; Same form to be used for Local Reinstatements)

In order to reflect the status of purchase orders not liquidated as of June 30, we are required to reinstate all outstanding purchase orders so they may be reentered as encumbrances against 1987-88 funds. The purchase order must be reinstated before any payments will be processed by Accounts Payable.

The reinstatement forms must be returned to the Purchasing Office for processing into our account system as soon as possible after July 1 to reestablish each purchase order as an open item. Forms are available from the Purchasing Office.

The same method is to be used this year as was used last year, i.e. a reinstatement form will be completed for each purchase order. An instruction sheet is attached to the reinstatement form explaining in detail how the form is to be filled in for each outstanding purchase order not liquidated as of June 30 which is to be reentered as an encumbrance against 1987-88 funds.

The College Grants Office will be responsible for reinstatement of all outstanding purchase orders funded by grants in the new fiscal year.

We urge you to return these completed forms not later than July 25. Also please advise the Purchasing Office by memorandum of any order that you wish cancelled or reduced in scope, in order to clear the open files of any purchase order not reinstated for FY 87-88. Call Purchasing Office personnel at exts. 4215, 4279 or 4373 for assistance.

N.B. If the purchase order is not reinstated prior to submitting the voucher to the Accounts Payable Department for processing/payment, the voucher will be returned to the department requesting that the purchase order be reinstated at that time, causing unnecessary delays in the paying of vendors.

Director of Purchases and Stores

CW programs focus on blacks and young people

Blacks and young people are the focus of several new programs at Colonial Williamsburg this summer.

Relationships between 18th-century slaves and their owners will be examined in "Williamsburg in Black and White," a play being presented for the first time this summer. The 90-minute performance will be presented at 8 p.m. Sundays, now through Aug. 30 (except Aug. 2) in the Williamsburg Lodge auditorium. Tickets are $5 for adults, $4.50 for groups and $4 for youths and are available at the door.

Other African-American programs include "The Other Half," a two-hour walking tour focusing on the work, education, religion and music of African-Americans; and a one-hour program on African-American music, dance and storytelling, held at the Brush-Everard garden Wednesdays and Fridays.

A new two-hour walking tour, titled "According to the Young Ladies," designed for girls between 12 and 20, will be offered Mondays and Wednesdays through July 29.

A similar new program, "Young Ladies in the Garden," will allow visitors to the Orlando Jones garden to talk with nine character interpreters portraying teenage girls of the period. This program will be presented Sundays and Fridays through July 31.

These new programs were designed to complement the two-hour "According to the Ladies" walking tour that provides visitors a view of the community from a woman's perspective.

For a glimpse into the lives of some teenage boys, CW offers "Young Gentlemen of the College" in which visitors mingle with character interpreters who tell them about the daily routines of students in the 18th century.

For additional information about all these programs, including tickets and their specific schedules, please contact Colonial Williamsburg.

Program lauded

The College Republicans were named one of the nation's 10 outstanding clubs at the biannual National College Republican convention in Philadelphia, June 18-21.

The William and Mary club, which was similarly honored at the last national convention in 1985, has a membership of over 1,000 students.

James Parmalee, chairman of the College group, said "To be recognized as the best in your field is always exciting, and I am sure that this will help motivate our club to new heights in the campaigns this fall."

The club also received the James Brady Award for publishing the nation's best CR newsletter. Parmalee and Mary Barnes, chair of the Board of Student Affairs, each won a Robert Taft Award for student activism. Only 10 Taft Awards are given nationally.

Observance of Independence Day Holiday

The College and VIMS will be closed Friday, July 3 to observe Independence Day.

The administrative offices, the plant department and the campus mail room will be closed with the exception of essential employees who are required to work. The Campus Police Department will maintain its regular schedule.

Classes are scheduled for July 3. Academic support staff who are required to work will be credited with compensatory time on an hour-for-hour basis. Consistent with an exception in the Fair Labor Standards Act, non-exempt employees are also eligible for compensatory leave if they are required to work on this holiday.

The names of permanent classified employees and William and Mary support personnel who are required to work must be reported in writing to the Office of Personnel Services by July 7 in order that these employees may be credited with compensatory leave on an hour-for-hour basis.

With the approval of management, compensatory leave earned should be taken as soon as possible after the holiday on which it was earned. Compensatory time not taken within 12 months will lapse. Hourly employees who are required to work on the holiday will be paid at their regular hourly rates.

On behalf of the administration of the university, I wish each member of the community a safe and enjoyable holiday.

Provost

Gallagher wins HACE award

Diane H. Gallagher, secretary in the Office of Annual Support, has been selected Hourly and Classified Employee of the Month for June.

A native of Farmville, Diane has been with the office for a little over two years, since April 1985, and is responsible for a long list of duties that would overwhelm a less competent person. In addition to serving as secretary for the director and associate director of annual support, she coordinates all the administration for the office, supervises many student helpers, manages the many mass mailings, coordinates mailing lists, helps with President's Council activities and works with the College's constituencies such as parents, alumni and friends.

Despite the heavy workload, however, Diane enjoys her job. "The unique thing about being at William and Mary is the people that I work with," she says. "We're like a family, always encouraging each other. That kind of appreciation goes a long way."

"While quantifiable skills are necessary for success in her position, Diane's qualitative attributes have held her in our highest esteem," says Jacquelin Crebbs, former director of annual support, now director of development at the Chrysler Museum in Norfolk. Because her rewards are highly intrinsic, she finds great satisfaction in a job well done. So do we, and we would like to augment her personal reward with the recognition that she is exceptional within this system."

Diane's husband Ron is a community liaison officer between Eastern State and Riverside hospitals. The couple has a son, Blake, who will be 11 in September. They also belong to Victory Heights Baptist Church where they are involved with the youth ministry, a campground ministry and music ministry — both Diane and Ron are singers. "We also have a weekly Bible study in our home, which is open to anyone who wants to come," says Diane.

In February Con Spirito presented its New York City debut at Merkin Concert Hall of the Abraham Goodman House. A New York Times reviewer wrote that the musicians "play with wit, elegance, teamwork and, yes, spirit."

The July 7 and 8 concerts by Con Spirito will include works by Jacques Ibert, Elliott Carter, Franz Danzi, Malcolm Arnold, Farakas, and Luciano Berio.

Remaining programs in the series will feature the Franciscan String Quartet, July 14 and 15, and Violist Karie Prescott, July 21 and 22.

experiences to make emotional ends meet in his life, to complete the make-up of his character."

For example, Ceballos says, Rover is the washbuckling hero "who saves people's lives, defends the honor of older women and sweeps wench off their feet — everything that would happen in a theatrical setting. But he can't handle real life."

John O'Keeffe was one of the most prolific and popular playwrights of his time, and "Wild Oats," first performed in 1791, was one of 30 or 40 of his plays. Ceballos says because O'Keeffe could write quickly, he was commissioned for many events. "He actually made a decent living writing for the theatre."

"Wild Oats" will be performed in the studio theatre of Phi Beta Kappa Hall. The intimate setting will include wooden benches on the first several rows for audience members; seating will be on a first-come, first-served basis. All scene changes will be done with sliding panels in full view of the audience similar to the way scene changes might have occurred in O'Keeffe's day.

Cast members for "Wild Oats" include Will Casey, returning for his fourth season with the festival, as Rover; Graham Winton as Harry Thunder; David Carlyon as George Thunder; Ray Collins as John Dory; Robert Mellette as Farmer Gammon; Daniel Escobar as Banks; William Michie as Ephraim Smooth; Whitt Brantley as Sim; Sandra Lindberg as Lady Amaranth; Birgit Darby as Jane; and Evangelia Costantakos as Amelia.
