Walvin from York University is Kenan professor

James Walvin

The William H. Kenan Distinguished Professor of Humanities this year is an English scholar from York University, James Walvin.

A social historian, his main areas of interest are modern British history and black history. He is particularly interested in the Caribbean area and slavery in North America.

Walvin will teach two seminars this fall, one on slavery and the other on the development of democracy. His objective, he says, will be to encourage students to develop a more cosmopolitan view of both subjects. He explains that in his course on the development of democracy he plans to look at democracy not solely as an American phenomenon but something that happened on both sides of the Atlantic.

In his course on slavery Walvin will also suggest a wide scope of study to include the role of the British in slavery. Because of his special interest in the Caribbean area he will also talk about the differences between slavery in that part of the world and what was happening at the same time in Virginia.

Walvin received the Martin Luther King Memorial Prize in 1974 for his book Black and White: The Negro and English Society, 1555-1945. He is also joint-editor of the scholarly journal Slavery and Abolition, published three times a year in London.

People tend to look at history in terms of their own nationality, says Walvin. He wants students look beyond that boundary and see how people of other nations and others besides historians viewed events. "We tend to talk in shorthand terms and we think we know what it all means, when in reality it is all very different."

Walvin has written or edited 21 books on slavery, black history and a variety of topics in recent British history. He is currently at work on the biography of an Englishman who went to Jamaica in the late 19th century as a 19-year-old tutor and later became a minister. Walvin was recently given access to the minister's remarkable diary by his grandson. The

Grosslight to be speaker at consortium graduation

Joseph H. Grosslight, professor of psychology at Florida State University, will be principal speaker at the annual convocation of the Virginia Consortium for Professional Psychology at 3 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 12 in Chrysler Hall in Norfolk.

Ten students will receive doctor of clinical psychology degrees as the sixth graduating class of the consortium, the only doctoral program in the nation that is co-sponsored by four institutions: William and Mary, the Medical College of Hampton Roads, Old Dominion University and Norfolk State University.

The unique educational program was authorized in 1978 by the State Council of Higher Education in Virginia to help meet the need for more mental health professionals.

During the four-year program, students attend classes at each of the institutions and gain clinical experience in patient-care centers throughout the Tidewater area. Practicing psychologists supervise and instruct the students at both inpatient and outpatient facilities, which provide diverse clinical learning environments for the program.

Grosslight has done extensive consulting, research and publication in his major fields of expertise, which include the relationship of the principles of learning theory to behavioral phenomena, instructional strategies in primary flight training and long-term effects of stress.

The convocation program will also include welcoming remarks by Melvyn D. Schiavelli, provost of William and Mary; and remarks by Joseph M. Marchello, president of Old Dominion; William D. Mayer M.D., president of the Medical College of Hampton Roads; and Harrison B. Wilson, president of Norfolk State.

Members of the class of 1987 are: Frances

Louise Belmont of New Bloomfield, Pa.; Edward S. Eastman Jr. of Richmond; Susan Ann Garvey of Springfield, Mass.; William Alfred Goodman of New Bedford, Mass.; James Perry Howell of Durham, N.C.; Deanna Lynne Kraus of Virginia Beach; Christine Tracey Laws of South Ozone Park, N.Y.; Thomas Elliot Pollack of Baltimore, Md.; Julia Ann Shelton of Crofton, Md.; and Valarie Elaine Sikes of Jacksonville, Fla.

Israeli scholar to speak Sept. 9

Distinguished Israeli scholar Dr. Israel Charny of Tel Aviv University will give a public lecture at 3:30 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 9 in Morton 341 on "The Holocaust and Genocide: Uniqueness versus Universality" as part of a three-day visit to the College.

Charny, a psychologist, is the author of three books and the editor of four others. He is currently conducting an important study of the children of high Nazi officials and how they have dealt with the knowledge of their parents' past.

During his campus visit Charny will discuss issues of human destructiveness and genocide with students, faculty and survivors of past genocides.

Charny has spoken widely in both Europe and the United States. At Tel Aviv University he is director of the program on family therapy and executive director of the Institute of the International Conference on the Holocaust and Genocide. He is the editor of an international newsletter on the Holocaust and genocide. Earlier this year he was appointed to the advisory board of the Institute for the Study of the Armenian Genocide.

International Studies Center plans discussion of terrorism with three former hostages

Three Americans who are former hostages will relate their experiences and address the issues surrounding terrorism at a public panel discussion, "Caught in the Crossfire," at 7 p.m. Monday, Sept. 14 in the Campus Center ballroom.

There is no admission charge. The symposium is sponsored by the new Center for International Studies and the government department.

Panel members include: John W. Limbert, an American Foreign Service officer who was held hostage in Tehran for 444 days, Nov. 1979 to April 1981; Allyn Conwell, an international businessman who was spokesman for hostages during a TWA hijacking in Beirut in June 1985; and Diego Asencio, Ambassador to Colombia who was held 61 days at the Dominican Embassy in Bogota. Moderator for the panel will be George Grayson, Marshall Professor of Government

Each of the panel members will address the questions: What are the common experiences of hostages? Who are the terrorists? Why is the United States increasingly the target? How should America grapple with the hostage-taking problem? An audience question-and-answer session will follow the panel members' presentations.

Labor Day Observance

The College and Virginia Institute of Marine Science will be closed Sept. 7 to observe Labor Day.

The administrative offices, the plant department and campus mail room will be closed with the exception of essential employees who are required to work. The Campus Police Department will maintain its regular schedule.

Classes are scheduled for Sept. 7. Academic support staff who are required to work will be credited with compensatory time on an hour-for-hour basis. Consistent with an exception in the Fair Labor Standards Act, non-exempt employees are also eligible for compensatory leave if they are required to work on this holiday.

The names of classified and William and Mary support employees who are required to work must be reported in writing to the Office of Personnel Services by Sept. 10 in order that these employees may be credited with compensatory leave on an hour-for-hour basis.

With approval of management, compensatory leave should be taken as soon as possible after the holiday on which it was earned. Compensatory time not taken within 12 months will lapse. Hourly employees who are required to work on the holiday will be paid their regular hourly rates.

On behalf of the administration of the university, I wish each member of the College community a safe and enjoyable holiday.

Deborah Vick joins law school in development, alumni affairs

Deborah S. Vick, formerly a fund-raiser for the Washington Center, Washington, D.C., joins the staff of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law as associate dean for development and alumni affairs. Her top priorities are to widen the scope of the Annual Fund for the law school and raise funds for the Bill of Rights Law Institute.

Mrs. Vick succeeds George L. Follansbee Jr. who left to practice law.

Deborah and her husband, Neil, a member of the Marshall-Wythe faculty, are already charmed by the hospitality of Williamsburg people and the beauty of the area. Both enjoy hiking and bicycling and appreciate the easy access they have to the scenic Colonial Parkway from their home in Kingspoint.

It actually takes the Vicks less time to get to the law school from their home than it used to take them to get from their apartment to their car in D.C.

Deborah is a graduate of Lewis and Clarke University and is currently a Ph.D. candidate in higher education administration at Vanderbilt University. She is writing her dissertation on the impact of internships on the psychological and sociological development of college students. When the opportunity to join the law school administrative staff meshed with her husband's appointment to the faculty, she was delighted.

Neil Vick is a scholar of constitutional law, in particular how it affects issues such as affirmative action, church and state. He is currently editing a book about civil rights and private schools. Before coming to Williamsburg he was assistant general counsel to the U.S. Commission on Human Rights in Washington, D.C. He is a graduate of the Vanderbilt University Law School.

Deborah says her job will involve some traveling to visit alumni and prospective donors in the private and corporate sectors. She will also serve in an advisory capacity to faculty seeking grant support for research projects.

As part of the expansion of alumni involvement in the law school, says Mrs. Vick, plans are underway for the formation of regional law alumni chapters. One of the first will probably be in the Northern Virginia area, home to the alumni president Edward McGuire. She will also be involved with planning for law school events during Homecoming this fall and the annual spring reunion program.

The Annual Fund, she notes, has grown astronomically, giving her a good base from which to expand it even further. Figures this year show 1,196 contributors gave approximately $180,000 to the law school. That is a solid gain over last year's figures of 818 donors and $128,000 in funds raised.

Deborah Vick

A daily challenge, finding a slot

Off campus

New parking regulations being employed by the City of Williamsburg will directly affect students who are being limited in their access to on-street parking adjacent to the campus.

Signs have been posted indicating the new rules. These restrict parking in several areas around the campus to those who own property or live along the designated streets which include sections of Griffin and Wythe avenues and Norfolk and Cary streets. Residents in those areas will be eligible for a parking permit. The permits will cost $2 for a vehicle registered in the city, $50 if registered anywhere else.

The police, according to an article in the Daily Press Tuesday, will wait at least a week before enforcing the new parking regulations. Under the new law, cars without decals will not be permitted to park for over two hours on certain designated streets.

Complaints about drivers, primarily College students, keeping their cars on the street for a long time prompted several months of discussion, and in July City Council approved the decal program.

On campus

Campus parkers who have not bought their campus decals will face fines beginning Monday according to Thea Stanton of the campus parking office.

Warnings have been issued but next week fines will be imposed.

For anyone who has not purchased the parking permit, the Campus Parking Office has moved from the Police Department to the Watts Cottage on Boundary Street next to Hunt Hall.

Music department locations and phone extensions

Because of the construction at Ewell Hall, the music department's offices are scattered across campus. Below is a listing of current extensions and new locations.

Cockerell, PBK 223, ext. 4375
Defotis, Tucker 103, ext. 4754
Etheridge, CC Little Theatre, ext. 5531
Fletcher, 225 Richmond Rd., ext. 5590
Freeman, acting chair, 225 Richmond Rd., ext. 4374
Jose Marie Goetz-Garland, dept. secretary, 225 Richmond Rd., ext. 4374
Gutwein, Washington 212, ext. 5268
Hedges, Washington 213, ext. 5268
Lendrim, PBK 224, ext. 4230
Suben, CC Little Theatre, ext. 4309

Persons wishing to contact the applied music teachers, except Jock Darling, are asked to call ext. 5590. Darling may be reached at the Bruton Parish Church office, 229-2891.

Departments get new leadership

There are several changes in the leadership of arts and sciences departments, due for the most part to the rotating chairmanship program.

Robert E. L. Black succeeds Lawrence L. Wiseman as chairman of biology.

Henry Coleman succeeds Marlene Jack as chairman of fine arts.

Ronald Hallett is the new chairman in comparative literature, succeeding Lewis Leadbeater.

Alan Ward, who was acting dean of graduate studies last year, assumes the chairmanship of the government department with the return from leave of Dean Robert Scholnick.

John Selby, acting dean of arts and sciences will resume chairmanship of the history department. In his absence Ed Crapol has been acting chairman.

James Bill is new director of the International Studies Program.

Kenneth Harris succeeds Dennis E. Coates as professor of military science and director of the ROTC program.

Margaret Freeman has been nominated as acting chairman of the music department; Edgar W. Williams, chairman, has been granted leave of absence for the fall semester.

Jack vanHorn replaces Hans S. Tiefel as chairman of the religion department.

A complete list of all department chairs/directors, is being prepared by the Office of the Provost.

Kenan professor is social historian

diarist, says Walvin, wrote in such detail that it is possible to tease out of his work remarkable details about his personal and family life.

A prolific author, Walvin has found that research for one book has provided the seed for another. When he was writing a book titled Leisure and Society, 1830-1950, published in 1978, he developed an interest in children of the period. A Child's World: A Social History of English Childhood, 1800-1914 was published in 1982. His Leisure in Britain, 1780-1939 was published in 1983, following a book about a specific aspect of that leisure—the institution of the English summer holiday, titled Beside the Seaside: A Social History of the Popular Seaside Holiday, published in 1978.

As a football (soccer) enthusiast as well as a social historian, the riots that erupted over crucial games was the impetus for his book Football and the Decline of Britain, published in 1986. Earlier he had written The People's Game: A Social History of British Football, published in 1975.

He has authored 10 books on slavery including England, Slaves and Freedom, 1776-1851 published last year. He has also published books on the abolition of the Atlantic slave trade, a documentary on the Negro in Britain and a profile of a Jamaican plantation, 1670-1970.

Teaching and writing for Walvin are interwoven. His research for classes often spurs writing projects, and his writings have prompted courses on a variety of topics.

His teaching, writing and lecturing have almost turned him into an Atlantic commuter. He has given lectures on slavery in Italy, Denmark, France and the Netherlands, as well as Britain and the United States. Since 1964 there has only been one year that he did not make a visit to the U.S., and that was 1966 when he was doing research in London as a graduate student.

This is his 50th visit to the United States, his third this year. In March he gave the Phi Alpha Theta Distinguished History Lecture at the State University of New York at Albany on "Childhood and the Historian."

Walvin recalls his first visit to Williamsburg eight years ago, when he was serenaded by a William and Mary student acting as an 18th-century balladeer. Because Walvin comes from one of the most beautiful cities in England it is a compliment to the Colonial Capital that he found Williamsburg also a very pleasing place. Despite his many journeys, this will be the first time Walvin has spent an entire academic year in the U.S.

In 1985 Walvin logged over 75,000 miles. He plans at least one trip to Jamaica while he is here. His wife and teenage son will accompany him to Canberra, Australia, to fulfill a three-month teaching assignment as a Fellow at the Australian National University before heading back to England. The Walvins also plan to visit Singapore where Mrs. Walvin lived for several years as a child.

Walvin says he once thought about a career in medicine. "I would have made a lousy doctor," he chuckles. "I suppose by 15 or 16 I wanted to teach—teaching was one of the good jobs, one way of improving yourself. I started out in languages, French and German, and soon switched. I thought I'd die if I had to do any more 17th-century French verse—there must be, I felt, more to life than this."

A native of Manchester, England, Walvin received a B.A. in history/politics from the University of Keele. He received a master's degree in history from McMaster University, Canada, in 1965 and a Ph.D. in history from the University of York, 1970. He began his teaching career as a fellow at McMaster and since 1982 has been a reader in history at York University.

He is a Fellow of the Royal Historical Society and the Institute for Advanced Studies in the Humanities. He held a fellowship at Huntington Library, Los Angeles, in 1981 and at the Australian Studies Centre, London, for research in Australia in 1985.

Walvin's office is in the Honors Center on the ground floor of Tucker Hall.

Sea Grant interns must apply by September 11

The Office of Sea Grant, NOAA, U.S. Department of Commerce, is again sponsoring a Sea Grant Intern Program, which enables graduate students to obtain a year of work experience on Capitol Hill in congressional offices or senior staff offices of the DOC dealing with marine matters.

Graduate students who apply should have achieved a sufficient level of expertise in their academic/career program such that their serv-

Collegewide Faculty Meeting

The annual universitywide faculty meeting will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 8 in Millington Auditorium at 3:30 p.m.

Provost Melvyn D. Schiavelli will preside, and the academic deans will introduce new members of their respective faculties. Deans and departmental chairs are urged to extend special invitations to their new colleagues to attend this meeting. Biographical information on new faculty will be distributed in advance of the meeting to reduce the time of introductions. Mr. Hays T. Watkins, the new Rector of the College, will offer a few remarks, and I will discuss the administration's priorities for the upcoming academic year.

After the meeting you are invited to attend an informal reception in the Muscarelle Museum. I hope to see you on Tuesday, Sept. 8.

Also, please mark your calendar for Sunday, Sept. 20 at 11:30 a.m., when Mrs. Verkuil and I look forward to visiting with you at the annual Faculty Brunch in the Wren Yard.

Paul R. Verkuil
President

Pickers, fiddlers, tooters, singers, please apply, talents needed

F.O.A.M. dance set Saturday

Is there there a Southern-, New England- or Scottish-style fiddler in the house?

Will clawhammer banjo players and flat-pick guitarists form a line to the right; dance callers and cloggers please form to the left

Members of the faculty or staff with any of the above noted talents they are willing to share are asked to contact the Friends of Appalachian Music, F.O.A.M. Hammered dulcimer and string bass players, dance pianists and callers will be welcomed also.

F.O.A.M began about nine years ago as a student-faculty organization, playing old-time fiddle tunes. Over the years it has evolved into a dance band sponsoring and playing for monthly dances. The dances include simple Appalachian square and circle dances as well as New England quadrilles and contra dances.

Everyone is welcome, no experience necessary. Instructions are given for each dance. Many have found the dances to be much simpler than modern western club square dancing. Dress is casual and comfortable.

The next dance is Saturday, Sept. 5 at the Upper James City County Park about 14 miles from campus. In October F.O.A.M. dances move to the Norge Community Hall on Route 6 for the winter.

Admission is $3 for couples, $2 single.

Faculty and staff members are welcome to play or dance. Those interested in learning more about F.O.A.M. or volunteering their talents are asked to contact Stephen Clement of the geology faculty, ext. 4204 or at home, 566-1110; or Rick and Karen Berquist at 229-4082.

Lively interest in band music

Over 80 students have already signed up for the William and Mary band — concert and marching — says director George Etheridge. More musicians, however, will still be welcomed.

Students wishing to sign up can reach Etheridge at ext. 5531 or may call him at home, 565-2803.

His office is in the Little Theatre of the Campus Center.

Canterbury picnic

All members of the College community and Bruton Parish Church are invited to join the Canterbury Association for a picnic beginning at noon on Saturday, Sept. 19 at Waller Mill Park.

Those planning to attend are asked to call either Charlotte Kreefer at the church office, 229-2891, during business hours or Larry Harrison, 253-7935, evenings after 5 p.m. before Sept. 10.

Festival winds up 1987 tour in Farmville

After two performances on campus Sept. 4 and 5, the Virginia Shakespeare Festival's "Much Ado About Nothing" closes out the season with a Virginia tour through Oct. 26.

Tickets for the performances Sept. 4 and 5 at 8 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall are $6, general admission; $5 for William and Mary Theatre subscribers; and $4 for all William and Mary students and faculty and staff members who are theatre subscribers. For ticket information call the PBK box office at ext. 4469.

The tour schedule includes the following stops:

Richmond — Sept. 17, 18, 19, University of Richmond's Modlin Fine Arts Center Camp Theatre on the Westhampton campus. The box office at 289-8271 will open Sept. 3.

Bristol — Oct. 1, Virginia Intermont College, two performances, at 1 p.m. and 8 p.m. Dorothy Sayer Theatre, Fine Arts Center. These performances will open the Fine Arts Festival at VIC.

Roanoke — Oct. 3, Virginia Western Community College. For ticket information call Charles Grimsley, chairman of the performing arts, 804-669-6101, ext. 272.

Farmville — Oct. 26, Jarman Auditorium, Longwood College. Box office information available by calling 804-392-9361

The cast for the touring production has changed considerably from this summer. Evangelia Costantakos plays Beatrice and William Michie, Benedict. This summer Costantakos was the Egyptian queen and Michie Octavius Caesar in "Antony and Cleopatra."

Cast members also include Elizabeth Tunstall as Hero, Mark Finlay as Claudio, Robert Nelson as Leonator; John Edward Morgan as Dogberry, and Leslie Muchmore as Don John.

Wmsbg. Chorus begins rehearsals

The Williamsburg Women's Chorus will begin rehearsals for the fall season on Thursday, Sept. 10, at 9:30 a.m. in Fellowship Hall of Williamsburg United Methodist Church.

Membership is open to all women interested in singing a wide variety of music. No auditions are required. New and returning members are welcome to join through the Sept. 24 rehearsal.

Rehearsals are held Thursday mornings, 9:30-11:30 a.m. (September through mid-December and January through May). An attendance policy is in force. Dues are collected each season to cover expenses including the cost of new music.

The Williamsburg Women's Chorus, founded in 1965, is the only group of its kind in the area and has drawn members from James City, York and Gloucester counties, as well as the city of Williamsburg.

Since the spring of 1983, the chorus has been directed by Linus M. Ellis III, who holds two degrees from the Juilliard School of Music and is a doctoral candidate in historical musicology at Catholic University.

For more information, call Ellis at 229-0286, or Mary Ann Williamson, 229-8934.

RBC offering glaucoma tests

Richard Bland College is offering three credits for a course on substance abuse and ways to combat it, which will begin Sept. 9. Fall classes also include a course on financial advice for middle-aged investors titled "Conservative Investing for People over 50."

Further information about these courses may be obtained by calling RBC at 732-0111.

In cooperation with the Prince George Lions Club, Richard Bland College is offering free eye testing for glaucoma on campus, Saturday, Sept. 19. The Lions Club is also collecting used eyeglasses, which can be recycled to needy persons.

The glaucoma testing is part of a flea market in which members of the general public are invited to participate. Anyone wishing to reserve space for a public service display or profit-making item should contact Mrs. Shirley Peterson at RBC, 732-0111. A $10 registration fee is payable before space is assigned. Ten percent of income from sales is payable to the college.
