New writing center in Tucker seeking student tutors

The Writing Resource Center, which will open soon in Tucker Hall, will serve the whole campus population of writers — undergraduates, graduates and faculty.

It will not be just a place to come when you're really stuck and when you feel you have a terrible problem with writing says the director, Cheryl F. Giuliano, a new member of the English faculty. Rather the Center will be a place where, through a tutorial service, students can get help with all phases of the writing process — planning a paper, working through the first draft and getting the paper into final polished form.

A library at the center will include current journals and books about writing that faculty may find useful as a guide to different approaches in teaching writing in various disciplines. At some point in the future, says Giuliano, the Center may offer workshops for faculty on incorporating new techniques and strategies for teaching writing in the classroom.

Giuliano is visiting assistant professor of English and acting director of the writing center.

"What strikes me about William and Mary is that the English department seems to be very interested in the writing of students; in fact, as I understand it, the whole College is very interested in writing standards," says Giuliano who will use her expertise in teaching writing to help departments implement the concentration writing requirements.

The Center will be located in Tucker 120, a large room that will include an open area for tutors and their clients, several carrels and computer terminals. Giuliano is working with Thomas Finn, dean of undergraduate studies, and Jack Willis, chairman of the English department, to design and furnish the center which she hopes will be operational within a few weeks.

One of the immediate needs of the center is for tutors, both undergraduates and graduates. Tutors will be paid at a competitive rate. Letters are going out to faculty members asking for recommendations. Individuals may also apply directly to the director. Tutors will be interviewed and will complete a training session before they start work.

Time schedules for the center have not yet been worked out, says Giuliano. The director hopes that there can be a schedule of standing appointments worked out so students can come in and work with a designated tutor on a regular basis as long as they want to. It will also be arranged so students can phone in a day ahead and set up an appointment with a tutor. At UCLA, says Giuliano, the writing center had a flexible schedule with weekend hours.

Speaking from her own experience, Giuliano says she found that tutoring was not only challenging and interesting work, but something it helped tutors with their own writing. "I was never totally comfortable with my own writing when I was in graduate school. After two years of teaching writing I could see incredible changes in my own writing style. Also I was able to look at my own work and edit it as though I had not written it; I think that happens with students, too."

Giuliano received a Ph.D. from the University of Chicago in 19th-century English poetry. Her interests in literature and writing, she explains, have evolved and overlapped as a result of teaching writing. She is currently at work on essays about Bryon as a conversational poet, looking at his writing strategies and devices that make some of his poetry conversational. And that hooks over into working with students in writing courses who get together and converse about their writing trying to find a voice to put into their writing. "There is definitely an overlap for me between writing and scholarship," says Giuliano.

She hopes that her essays on Bryon will develop into a book. She has completed two chapters and presented them at professional conferences and received good reviews. But more important, she says, she is still very interested in the topic; she looks forward to opportunities to work on it.

Giuliano is a New Yorker. She attended Skidmore College and New York University. "Being from New York I went to the University of Chicago to see the West," she says, laughing. She left Chicago for San Francisco and taught at Stanford for a year before joining the faculty at UCLA. She is excited about the prospects for a writing program and a college-wide writing center at William and Mary.

Giuliano's office is located in Tucker 300, ext. 4370; she may also be reached through the English department office, ext. 4359.

Hostages speak of capture on Monday in Campus Center

What is it like to be held hostage?
Who are the terrorists?
Why is the United States increasingly the target?
How should America grapple with the hostage problem?

These and many more questions will be answered by three former hostages in a public forum "Caught in the Crossfire," at 7 p.m., Monday, Sept. 14 in the Campus Center ballroom.

Ambassador Diego Asencio, who was held for 61 days in Bogota, Columbia in 1980; Allyn Conwell who was held for 17 days in Beirut Lebanon in 1985; and John Limbert who was held for 444 days in Tehran, Iran, 1979-81; will talk about their experiences.

The symposium is sponsored by the Center for International Studies and the government department.

Tucker to lecture on Jane Austen

George Holbert Tucker, a columnist and former reporter and feature writer for the Norfolk Virginian Pilot newspaper, will present a slide lecture on Jane Austen to the Friends of the Library at the College of William and Mary at 7:30 p.m., Friday, Sept 18 in the Botetourt Theatre of the Earl Gregg Swem Library.

Tucker's talk, "Jane Austen: Her Family and Her Times," is based on research for his book A Goodly Heritage: A History of Jane Austen's Family (1983). Tucker is also author of Tidewater Landfalls (1969), a selection from his Virginian Pilot columns; More Tidewater Landfalls (1975); Norfolk Highlights

1584-1881 (1972) and Virginia Supernatural Tales (1977).

This lecture is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

Ushers Needed

Staff members interested in attending events at William and Mary Hall as a member of the ushering staff should call Betty Adams, director, at ext. 4492.

Karsh reception

The Muscarelle Museum of Art's current exhibition of photographs by master photographer Yousuf Karsh is being applauded by visitors from all over the Tidewater area.

The Muscarelle Museum will hold a reception honoring Karsh from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m., Friday, Sept. 11. This event is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

"Photographs by Yousuf Karsh" will be on display until Sept. 20.

Karsh is the author of 11 books, the most recent of which, Karsh: A Fifty-Year Retrospective, is available at the museum during the exhibit. This book is the largest publication on his works and includes portraits not published before, as well as early works and experiments.

NEWSMAKERS

History

Richard B. Sherman's article, "The Teachings at Hampton Institute: Social Equality, Racial Integrity, and the Virginia Public Assemblage Act of 1926," was published in the July 1987 issue of The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography.

Professor Phillip J. Funigiello has signed a contract with the University of North Carolina Press to publish his manuscript "American-Soviet Trade in the Cold War: Politics and National Security, 1945-1985." Funigiello has previously authored books on the New Deal and World War II.

Classical Studies

Professor Lewis W. Leadbeater has published "Platonic Elements in Kafka's 'Investigations of a Dog'" in the April 1987 edition of Philosophy and Literature.

Economics

Carl Moody has been asked by the Virginia Department of Planning and Budget to serve on a review panel to assess the methodology and forecasts of the prison population in Virginia. The other members of the panel are Gary Henry, Office of the Secretary of Education; John Dickey, Center for Public Administration and Policy, VPI&SU; and Julia Martin, Tayloe Murphy Institute.

Professors Berhanu Abegaz and Clyde Haulman presented a paper "Chinese Banking and Monetary Reforms" at an international conference on Chinese enterprises sponsored by the Manchester Business School, England, in June. A version of their work, titled "The Economic Implication of Enterprise Financial Autonomy in China," will be published later this year in J. Child and M. Lockett, eds., Reform Policy and the Chinese Enterprise, JAI Press.

Abegaz's paper "The Economics of Surplus Squeeze Under Peripheral Socialism: The Case of Ethiopia" has been accepted for publication in Studies in Comparative International Development.

Two papers by Haulman have been accepted for publication. "Financial Innovation and the Chinese Enterprise" will appear in the Journal of Northeast Asian Studies and "Hildebrand, Hilferding and Schumpeter on Economic Development and Financial Institutions" will be published in the International Review of the History of Banking.

Professors Hausman and Haulman presented a paper "Political Economy at the College of William and Mary" at the April meeting of the Economic and Business Historical Society in San Francisco.

David Finifter, associate professor, has had an article, "An Approach to Estimating Net Earnings Impact of Federally Subsidized Employment and Training Programs," published in the 1987 Evaluation Review.

School of Business Administration

Ned Waxman has been included in Who's Who in American Law.

Richard Bland College

Paul Caruso of the business faculty contributed to the recently published third edition of Glossary of Modern Business and Economic Terms as an editor and copy reviewer for the author, Mamoud Arya. The reference work combines definitions, graphs and equations in easy-to-read order. It is an optional supplemental resource for economics students and is on sale at the RBC bookstore.

Modern Languages and Literatures

Martha M. Houle stepped down as acting director of the Center for Honors and Interdisciplinary Studies in June 1987. She spent two months as a short-term fellow at the William Andrews Clark Memorial Library (UCLA) this summer, researching a project titled "Libertinage and Literary Art," an invited article for UVA's Continuum. Houle was also accepted for an NEH Summer Seminar at Barnard College, but was unable to accept.

Her translation of Louis Marin's Portrait of the King, published by University of Minnesota Press, will be available this fall. Houle also reviewed a manuscript on postmodernism in France for Syracuse University Press.

Two members of the Spanish section of the department presented papers at the 69th annual meeting of the American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese held in Los Angeles, Aug. 12-16. Francie Cate-Arries, assistant professor, delivered a paper titled "Manuel Altolaguirre and the Otherness Within: A Lacanian Perspective." Howard M. Fraser, professor and chair, presented an illustrated lecture of the photographs of Juan Rulfo, Mexican novelist and short-story writer. His paper was titled "Inframundo: Juan Rulfo's Photographic Companion to El llano en llamas."

Government

An article by Roger W. Smith, professor, "History and Moral Judgment," has been reprinted in the Sept. 1987 issue of the Social Science Record, a publication for secondary school teachers in New York. Smith has also had several book reviews published recently: Berel Lang, ed., Philosophy and the Holocaust (Armenian Review); Walter Laqueur, Germany Today (Holocaust and Genocide Studies); and David Johnston, The Rhetoric of Leviathan: Thomas Hobbes and the Politics of Cultural Transformation (Perspective).

Staff

Norma R. Chandler, director of purchases and stores, and Patsy Morales, assistant director, attended the National Association of Governmental Purchasing Conference held in Kansas City, Mo., July 25-29. Chandler was a co-panelist and speaker on the topic, "Contracting for Services."

Staff/faculty due reduced football tickets

The home football season opens Oct. 3 when the Tribe takes on the Engineers from Lehigh.

Wayne Burrow, associate director of development for athletics has sent a reminder to staff and faculty that they are eligible for a discount home season ticket for $40, a savings of $10 from the regular season ticket price.

"In response to increased ticket demand," says Burrow, "we have opened up a new 40-yard-line seating area with seatbacks. This area is on the east side, adjacent to the press box and President's Pavilion area. Staff and faculty will have first priority here in section D for 1987 season tickets."

Those wishing to take advantage of the reduced ticket price are asked to call ext. 4705 and place their order. Home games include Oct. 17, Delaware; Oct. 24, James Madison; Nov. 7, Bucknell; and Nov. 21, Richmond.

Memorial set for Merritt Cox

A memorial service for Ralph Merritt Cox, professor of modern languages and literatures, who died July 2, will be held at 3 p.m., Sunday, Sept. 13 in the Chapel of the Sir Christopher Wren Building.

Several members of the College community will participate, including Thomas L. Heacox, associate professor of English; Anne Tyler Netick, associate professor of modern languages and literatures; James D. Lavin, professor of modern languages and literatures; Beth Lee Miller '83, and Lewis Robert Andrews '88.

Music will be provided by Frank T. Lendrim, professor of music, and soloist Beth Lee Miller. Miss Miller, who will sing "The Watchful's Song" from "Pilgrim's Progress" by Vaughan Williams, is a doctoral student in music at New York University.

Professor Cox was born in the Hunton community of Henrico County, Va., Jun 29, 1939. He received his B.A. from the University of Richmond, and his M.A. and Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin. He taught at the University of Wisconsin, Duke University and since 1972 was a member of the William and Mary faculty. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Delta Phi and Phi Alpha Theta; he was also elected, in 1971, a corresponding member of the Spanish Society of America. Professor Cox was the author of five books and many articles on Spanish literature.

Plans are being formulated to establish the R. Merritt Cox Memorial Scholarship to provide financial assistance each year to a William and Mary graduating senior who will be attending graduate school in Spanish studies.

Members of the College community are invited to the service on Sunday, which will be "A Celebration of the Life of Ralph Merritt Cox," and to the reception which follows at Professor Cox's residence, 642 Counselors Way.

Correction

Neal Devins of the faculty of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law was incorrectly identified in an article on page 2 of the Sept. 2 issue of the William and Mary News. Devins was a former assistant general counsel to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights in Washington, D.C., before coming to Williamsburg. The article incorrectly identified Mr. Devins as Mr. Vick, formerly of the U.S. Commission on Human Rights. The News regrets these errors and any inconvenience they may have caused. ed.

Bloodmobile Tomorrow

The Colonial Virginia Chapter, American Red Cross, will hold a bloodmobile tomorrow, Sept. 10 from 1 to 7 p.m. in Trinkle Hall.

The visit is being sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega fraternity.

For a donor appointment, call 253-0228.

Seafood Fest at VIMS Friday

The Faculty Club's annual seafood feast will be held Friday, Sept. 11 on the grounds of VIMS at Gloucester Point. The festivities, which begin at 6 p.m., will include a wide variety of seafood as well as complements such as hush puppies, cole slaw, chips and clam chowder. Music will be provided by F.O.A.M. The usual beverages will be available.

Casual dress is advised and participants are reminded to bring a sweater or jacket to offset the sometimes chilly breeze from the river.

The Faculty Club is open to all members of the faculty and administration of the College, and emeritus professors are accorded free membership.

This year's membership fee is $15. Payment, which may be paid at the party, will admit a member at no additional charge. Spouses or a guest will be admitted for $5; additional guests will be assessed $9. Only members and their guests will be admitted to this party.

The party will be postponed to Sept. 18 only in the case of severely inclement weather. If you have any doubts call ext. 4600.

Four other parties are planned during the academic year: Nov. 6, Jan. 22, March 25 and April 21. A fifth party is tentatively scheduled for February.

HACE to hear Mathes

The William and Mary Hourly and Classified Employees Association will hold a covered-dish luncheon Thursday, Sept. 10, at noon in the Dodge Room of Phi Beta Kappa Hall.

Luncheon speaker will be Martin Mathes, professor of Biology. Mathes will discuss his new book, "The History of Landscaping: The Planting of a Campus Tradition."

A slate of officers to be voted on at the October meeting will be presented by the nominating committee.

Application Deadlines for College Grants

Applications for Summer Faculty Research Grants, Semester Faculty Research Assignments and Minor Research Grants are available from the Office of Grants and Research Administration (James Blair 202). Applicants should read the policy and procedure statements attached to each application before submitting a proposal. Proposals should be returned to the Office of Grants and Research Administration by the indicated deadlines.

Minor Research Grants — Oct. 8 and Feb. 11, 1988.

Summer Faculty Research Grants — Oct. 22.

Semester Faculty Research Assignments — Nov. 12.

Proclamation

WHEREAS, our Founding Fathers, in order to secure the blessing of liberty for themselves and their posterity did ordain and establish a Constitution for the United States of America, and

WHEREAS, it is of the greatest import that all citizens fully understand the provisions and principles contained in the Constitution in order to support it, preserve it and defend it against encroachment, and

WHEREAS, the Bicentennial of the signing of the Constitution provides a historic opportunity for all Americans to learn about and recall achievements of our Founders and to reflect on the rights and privileges of citizenship as well as its attendant responsibilities, and

WHEREAS, the independence guaranteed to the American people by the Constitution should be celebrated by appropriate ceremonies and activities during Constitution Week, Sept. 17 through 23, as designated by proclamation of the President of the United States of America in accordance with Public Law 915,

NOW, THEREFORE, I Paul R. Verkuil, President, do hereby proclaim the week of Sept. 17 through 23 as Constitution Week at the College of William and Mary and urge all our students, faculty and staff to pay special attention during that week to our Federal Constitution and the advantage of American Citizenship.

NEW BOOKS AT SWEM

By Jim Deffenbaugh
Collection Development Librarian

The Emotions by Nico H. Frijda (Cambridge University Press). BF531 F75 1986. Dutch psychologist Frijda attempts a survey of data theories upon a behavioral phenomenon at the core of the psyche — emotion. This is a highly academic, but readable treatment of emotional behavior, including what stimulates it, its physiology, its consequences, its regulation, etc.

Religion and the Western Mind by Ninian Smart (State University of New York Press). BL41 S596 1987. A renowned scholar in philosophy and religious studies discusses the importance of religious world views in the education, ethics and politics of both East and West.

Cisneros: Portrait of a New American by Kemper Diehl and Jan Jarboe (Corona Publishing Company). F394 S2C563 1985. A hometown biography of Henry Cisneros, the dynamic mayor of San Antonio, Texas. Cisneros is a political figure of growing importance on the American political scene. Also comments on the increasing significance of Latinos in U.S. politics.

The Women's West edited, with introductions, by Susan Armitage and Elizabeth Jameson (University of Oklahoma Press). HQ1418 W66 1987. As a collection of papers presented at the first Women's West Conference in Idaho, 1987, this group of essays seeks to correct historical neglect of frontier women and to point out inaccuracies about women in the art, literature, film and folklore concerning the Old West.

Steering the Elephant: How Washington Works edited by Robert Rector and Michael Sanera (Universe Books). JK421 S73 1987. Collection of accounts by Reagan appointees on what the first six years of the Reagan Administration has shown about how change is facilitated or frustrated and about how the very nature of policy change is evolving.

Garcia Marquez: Writer of Columbia by Stephen Minta (Harper and Row). PQ8180.17 A73Z74 1987. Literary biography and criticism of this crucial Columbian author who won the 1982 Nobel Prize for literature. Considers the role of violence, politics, tropical peasantry and the Catholic Church in his writings. Most extensive discussion of the classic One Hundred Years of Solitude.

Voluntary Euthanasia: Experts Debate the Right to Die edited by A.B. Downing and Barbara Smoker (Humanities Press International). R726 V65 1986. Ethicists, philosophers, social scientists and physicians deal with the question, "Is it a human right for an individual to be allowed to choose for himself the merciful release of death even if he is unable to terminate his life unaided?" Both pros and cons are included in the essays, as well as discussion on active/passive euthanasia and the hospice movement.

Subsequent Performances by Jonathan Miller (Viking). PN1655 M48 1986. One of the most brilliant figures of British theater discusses the problems of re-creation or adaptation of drama or novel to a different historical and social context than that of the original work. The author presents his dramatic theories in a largely autobiographical setting.

Memory and Brain by Larry R. Squire (Oxford University Press). QP406 S66 1987. Attempts to bring together the many separate recent psychological and neurobiological works on memory to present an overview of the scientific analysis of the workings of memory. Though technical in nature, this work is accessible to the persistent non-expert.

Biofeedback: A Practitioner's Guide by Mark Stephen Schwartz (Guilford Press). RC489 B53S39 1987. A somewhat technical but highly fascinating report on the nature and applications of biofeedback. Of particular interest are tools to aid biofeedback and its use in treating headaches, teeth-grinding and high blood pressure.

J.M.W. Turner: "A Wonderful Range of Mind" by John Gage (Yale University Press). ND497 58G3 1987. Luxuriant book, illustrated with many color reproductions. Focuses on the development and achievement of J.M.W. Turner, the late 18th- and early 19th-century British landscape artist. Contains a compelling introduction on modernism and romanticism.

Chefs prepare 'House Specials' for seafood seminars at VIMS

This fall starts the fourth series of Seafood Education Seminars, "House Specials," offered through the Sea Grant College Program at VIMS.

The House Special is seafood, and it's on the menu for the next series of seafood education seminars. Some of Virginia's finest chefs will be preparing a few of their own favorites. Virginia wines will again complement the tantalizing menus. Seminars will be held in Waterman's Hall at the Gloucester Point campus.

The schedule of events for September, October and November is as follows:

Sept. 27 — 11:00 a.m. Marcel Desaulniers, executive chef; Phillip Deleplane, chef; Jeff Duncan, assistant chef; and Jonathan Zearfoss, assistant chef, team winners of the 1986 Governor's Seafood Tasting, from the award-winning Trellis Cafe, will prepare a seafood brunch.

Sept. 30 — 6:30 p.m. Jimmy Sneed, chef at Chez Claude Restaurant François in Urbanna, will be preparing his specials of the house. Wines will be served by Elaine Sheetz, Meredyth Vineyards in Middleburg.

Oct. 7 — 6:30 p.m. Susan Painter, silver medalist at the 1986 Governor's Seafood Tasting, returns to prepare her Chesapeake Bay favorites. Emma Randel, owner of Shenandoah Vineyards in Edinburg, will be the guest wine specialist.

Oct. 14 — 6:30 p.m. William A. Scabassi, head chef of Wesley's Restaurant in Virginia Beach, will prepare curried crabmeat with pears and other specialties. Joachim Hollerith, wine maker for Prince Michel Vineyards of Leon, will serve Virginia wines that have been aged in oak barrels from France.

Oct. 28 — 6:30 p.m. Renee and Lee Chewning, owners of Chick Cove Manor in Deltaville, have planned to serve smoked shark pate as the opening of a seafood dinner. Layne V. Witherell will serve the wines of Montdomaine Cellars in Charlottesville.

Nov. 11 — 6:30 p.m. Richard Carr, chef at Berret's of Williamsburg, returns with Jenny and Tom Austin, managers, to prepare some of their favorites. Layne V. Witherell will be serving the wines of Monticello.

Individual evening class fees are $22.50, which include an evening of instruction by a leading area chef and a Virginia wine specialist, dinner, wine specially selected to complement the chef's creations and a participant's package of information. A discount is available for registrants who sign up for the entire series of five evening seminars. Cost: $100. Brunch fee is $20.

Preregistration and advanced payment is required for these classes. The classes are limited in size, and registrants are accepted on a first-come, first-served basis. For registration forms contact Sue Gammisch, VIMS, Gloucester Point, VA 23062; for additional information call 1-642-7169.

Minority Career Day at UVA, Nov 3; registrations due Oct. 23

Transportation by bus to Charlottesville will be provided. The bus will leave from the front of Morton Hall at 8 a.m. and will return around 5:30 p.m.

It is anticipated that more than 100 employers representing a wide variety of career fields will be in attendance. Also there will be a panel discussion which will focus on issues relating to the minority student job search.

The University of Virginia will conduct a Minority Career Day which is open to all currently enrolled minority junior, senior or graduate students, Tuesday, Nov. 3.

William and Mary minority students who wish to participate must register with the receptionist in the Office of Career Services, Morton 140. Deadline for registering is 5 p.m., Oct. 23.

Fulbright grants for 1988-89

The 1988-89 competition for grants for graduate study abroad offered under the Fulbright program and by foreign governments, universities and private donors will close on Oct. 31. Only a few more weeks remain in which qualified graduating seniors and graduate students may apply for one of the approximately 700 awards for study in 70 countries.

Application forms and further information for students currently enrolled at William and Mary may be obtained from the Fulbright Program Adviser Carolyn V. Blackwell at the Center for International Studies, The Manse, Boundary Street, adjacent to Brown Residence Hall. Deadline for filing an application on campus is Oct. 9.

Most of the grants offered provide round-trip transportation, tuition and maintenance for one academic year; a few provide international travel only, or a stipend intended as a partial grant-in-aid.

Applicants must be U.S. citizens at the time of application, and must generally hold a bachelor's degree or its equivalent before the beginning date of the grant, and in most cases, should be proficient in the language of the host country. Except for certain awards, candidates may not hold a Ph.D. at the time of application.

1987 PQT given Oct. 24

Registration deadline is Oct. 9 for the 1987 Professional Qualification test which will be held Oct. 24. This test is required for those wishing a career with the National Security Agency. Registration forms are available from the receptionist in Career Services, Morton 140.

New poster promotes career services programs

Pam Ewouds and Natalie Mahoney in Career Services wanted to give their programs higher visibility on campus so they took a cue from the advertising industry to get the word out to students — good packaging sells products.

Posters, they knew, are popular with college students, and Trivial Pursuit is a popular campus pastime so they put the two together. The colorful green-and-gold posters around campus, attractively illustrated with a Trivial Pursuit board theme and some jazzy graphics, are advertising the services the College offers to help students with career decisions. The wedges of the pie-shaped center of the poster contain information about the aids available through Career Services.

Initially the idea was to have a game board that students would actually use, but ideas changed during the planning, and the poster, the creators hope, will be a reminder to students of the total package of services open to them. The attractive illustrations on the poster are the work of graphic designer Cindy Wilson.

The main idea behind all the work, says Ewouds is to get the message across that Career Services is more than just a place where students find jobs. "We're concerned with the student's total development, and that is why we attempt to teach them skills and knowledge appropriate for making life-long career decisions. Specifically, we want to educate students to the fact that career development is a life-long process that involves all the steps outlined on the poster." Pam Ewouds is one of the associate directors in the Office of Career Services. Natalie Mahoney is coordinator of experiential programs.

Ewouds and Mahoney also hope that the "Rules of the Game," as outlined on the poster, will get across the idea that pursuing one's career is more than just a game. The definition of career goals is actually a process, and it's one that takes time and hard work. The office and alumni encourage students to get involved in that process at an early stage in their college career.

The first step in the definition of career goals is self-assessment — a component students often overlook. Ideally, freshmen would begin their "pursuit" at that point. Career Services makes many services and programs available to students as they learn more about themselves. These include individual counseling, vocational assessment inventories and SIGI PLUS, a computer-assisted guidance program.

The Career Library, which has been completely reorganized to reflect the "Career Pursuit" concept, is another tool appropriate for students learning more about themselves as well as firms and employers.

Next step for the student is exploration of career options through internships and informational interviewing. The Alumni Career Advisory System has a bank of over 1,200 names of alumni who have agreed to help.

Career Exploration Day each year is another opportunity for students to hear from them about careers in a variety of fields. This academic year the program will be held Jan. 30 and is coordinated by Bob Hunt, associate director of Career Services.

The Career Speakers Series, which continues throughout the year, also brings men and women to campus to talk about how they made their career choices and what their work entails. The newsletter Futures, a student-edited, weekly publication circulates on campus and contains a variety of career information.

"We want students to explore for themselves," says Mahoney. "Some students find that exploring a career lifestyle by talking to people in the field will reinforce or change their perception of what they want to do after college. Likewise, the exploration process often allows the student to work through parental pressure and achieve a sense of autonomy in making career choices."

After exploration comes decision-making. One of the major decisions at this point is whether the student will continue his education in graduate school or begin the job search.

Jero's The Trial of Brother Jero. Premiere Theatre offers student-written original plays and Directors' Workshop presents student-directed one-act plays. Second Season productions are free. Call 253-4395 for information.

Series tickets selling fast

The annual Concert Series at the College continues to be one of the best investments in musical entertainment available.

The 1987-88 five-concert series, is available to the general public for $17; tickets for William and Mary students, faculty and staff are $13. The season this year includes The Western Wind, a vocal ensemble, Thursday, Oct. 15; The Feld Ballet, Thursday and Friday, Nov. 5 and 6; Mischa and Cipa Dichter, two pianos, Wednesday, Jan 20; Empire Brass, Monday, Feb. 29; and the Swedish Radio Orchestra with Esa Pekka Salonen conducting and Cho-Liang Lin, violin soloist, Monday, March 14.

All concerts are presented in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall and begin at 8:15 p.m. General admission tickets, if available, are $5 for individual performances. Holders of season tickets may select one performance of the Feld Ballet as part of the season package. The Ballet will give a different program each evening.

Ticket sales are brisk, says Ken Smith, associate dean of student affairs and director of the concert series. He anticipates another sold-out season for 1987-88.

Anyone wishing to receive a series flyer and ticket form is asked to call Ken Smith's office, ext. 4557. Checks for concert series season tickets should be made payable to CONCERT SERIES and mailed to CONCERT SERIES, College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, VA 23185.

State Health Dept. outlines precautions against AIDS

Acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (AIDS) is a fatal disease. It is caused by human immunodeficiency virus (HIV). There is neither a vaccine nor cure for AIDS as yet. The only method of prevention currently available is education. Therefore, the Virginia Department of Health strongly recommends that accurate information about AIDS be provided to citizens of the Commonwealth.

This article has been developed by the State Health Department to provide the public with basic information about Acquired Immunodeficiency Syndrome (AIDS). It is also intended to familiarize citizens with human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) antibody testing. AIDS is caused by HIV. The pamphlet titled "AIDS: What You Should Know About the Antibody Test" contains additional information and is available through local health departments.

AIDS and Antibody Testing

AIDS is caused when human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) attacks a person's immune system and weakens his or her ability to fight other infections. Currently there is neither a cure nor a vaccine to combat this fatal disease.

The only preventative measure we currently have is education. Therefore, by understanding how HIV is transmitted, individuals can protect themselves against exposure to HIV.

The routes of transmission of this virus are as follows:

1. Intimate sexual contact (either heterosexual and/or homosexual) involving the exchange of blood, semen or vaginal secretions.
2. The sharing of contaminated intravenous (IV) drug needles or other drug paraphernalia such as syringes or "cookers."
3. Transfusion with blood or blood products containing HIV. Contracting AIDS through a blood transfusion, however, is extremely unlikely, especially if the transfusion occurred after June 1985. This is because only blood that has been tested and found to be free of contamination with HIV has been used for transfusion since that date.
4. Transfer of HIV from an infected mother to her child, either before or during birth.

HIV is not transmitted through casual contact such as one would typically experience in a social or occupational setting. That is, the virus is not transmitted through social kissing, shaking hands, sneezing, sharing food utensils, or use of swimming pools and hot tubs.

Career choices

A Graduate/Professional School Day is held to give students an opportunity to talk to representatives of schools and assess their programs. The event is planned this year for Nov. 12.

For those students choosing the job search option, many services are provided by Career Services. The office welcomed 221 recruiters during the 1986-87 academic year and expects at least that many this year. A complete seminar schedule, including resume preparation and mock interviews, is offered by the professional staff.

Ewouds and Mahoney have been pleased with the favorable response shown by students, and they hope that the poster creates a sense of enthusiasm and motivation for students defining career goals.

Trivial Pursuit is published by Horn Abbott, Ltd. The poster creators secured permission from the publishers for their project and later this fall hope to present a copy of their poster to one of the company executives who is coming to campus.

Career Pursuit posters are available at the Office of Career Services, Morton 140, ext. 4604.

HIV Antibody Testing

Currently, there is no readily available way to test directly for HIV, other than in research laboratories. We can, however, test for antibodies to the virus in your blood. If you have been infected with the virus your white blood cells (part of your immune system) produce antibodies to fight it. While the presence of antibodies in the bloodstream does not mean that you have AIDS or will definitely develop AIDS, it does indicate that you have been exposed to the virus and, most importantly, that you are capable of passing it on to others.

Where Can You Take the Test?

Many private physicians offer HIV antibody testing. In Virginia you can also be tested at your local health department or one of the testing and counseling sites. They offer free, confidential counseling and testing. Counseling and testing services are available at local health department sexually transmitted disease clinics, maternity and family planning clinics, and methadone and detoxification centers throughout the Commonwealth. Information about testing sites is available through the Virginia AIDS Hotline, 1-800-533-4148.

CommonHealth to draw for holiday, Sept. 11

Members and those interested in becoming members of CommonHealth, the state's employee health improvement program, are invited to a reception in the Campus Center Atrium from noon to 1 p.m., Friday, Sept. 11.

Highlight of the gathering will be the drawing for a Mexican vacation trip. Mrs. Paul Verkuil will present the grand prize.

In addition to the trip, dinner certificates at local restaurants including The Trellis and Sakura Japanese Seafood and Steak House will be awarded as well as exercise weights, walking shoes, a sport watch, Heart Association cookbooks and two tickets to the Wightman Cup tennis matches in William and Mary Hall next month.

Several departments with high enrollments in the wellness program will receive special recognition. All current members attending the reception will receive one incentive point. Ken Kambis, director of the College's Wellness Laboratory will be master of ceremonies.

At present 800 members of the College community have enrolled in the CommonHealth program. All faculty, staff and family members are eligible for membership.

This month CommonHealth will offer a variety of programs including glaucoma testing and brown-bag lunch-and-learn seminars on AIDS, chronic pain and diabetes. October programs will include talks on stress management and back problems.

For details concerning the CommonHealth program, call Mary Louise Mageean at ext. 4577.

Sigma Chi wins Honor award

The Sigma Chi chapter on campus has received the national fraternity's Legion of Honor Scholarship Award.

The Legion of Honor award is given annually to those campus chapters selected as having commendable scholarship programs. Each of the fraternity's 200 active chapters is annually encouraged to apply, and 49 were honored with awards for the 1986-87 academic year.

Babysitting Co-op Service

Under the auspices of the Office of Academic Support, a co-op babysitting service is being formed for College parents.

The service will operate on a ticket system. Carmen Jacobs, 220-4938, is the coordinator of the program, and questions should be addressed to her.

An organizational meeting will be held later this month. Those wishing to participate are asked to complete the form below.

Notes on purchasing

New copier contract

The new state contract for copiers became effective June 1 and extends through March 31, 1988. The copier contract includes copiers which run from 1,000 to 250,000 copies per month. The contract covers outright purchase, 12-month rental and 24-month rental. If you would like to buy, but aren't sure which copier is best for your department you may rent with an option to buy after a 180-day trial period.

Clients are reminded that permission must be obtained from the Central Copying account, Auxiliary Services, Bob Barnett at ext. 5516 before copiers may be rented or purchased. A copy of the copier contract may be obtained from the Purchasing Office, ext. 4215.

Furniture from VCE

The Code of Virginia requires that certain goods or services be procured, when available from the Department of Corrections (Section 2, 1-4533, 53.1-47, 53.1-48, 53.1-49)

Articles and services produced or manufactured by state correctional facilities must be purchased by all departments, institutions and agencies of the state that are supported in whole or in part with state funds. If correctional enterprise goods or services do not meet the (reasonable) requirements of a department, a letter of justification must accompany a request for an exception. The Purchasing Office must then seek approval from the state. The only time items of furniture may be purchased from an outside source is when that item is not available from Correctional Enterprises or another state contract.

Listed below are some items available from VCE:

Metal/wood/fiberglass furniture: desks, typing returns, credenzas, tables, vertical file cabinets, storage cabinets, industrial shelving, bookcases, lockers and fiberglass stacking chairs.

Wood furniture: sofas, chairs, loveseats, coffee tables, end tables, office tables, cafeteria tables, telephone tables and CRT tables, desks, bookcases, credenzas, dormitory furniture, side chairs, oak chairs and benches and boat-shaped conference tables.

IBM eliminates some charges

IBM announced to its customers that effective June 26, destination charges for machines, model conversions, feature additions and feature removals would no longer be invoiced to customers for equipment shipped from or returned to IBM.

Destination charges invoiced prior to June 26 will be due and payable to IBM. Destination charges include line haul or over-the-road charges and local drayage both from and, if applicable, to IBM. Excess-storage charges, waiting time or overtime, dry runs, rigging, expedite charges, special handling, etc., are not included in destination charges and continue to be the responsibility of the customer.

In addition, the customer remains responsible for the repayment of shipment charges for Service/Exchange Center machines being returned to an IBM location for repair or exchange and for machines under an IBM Credit Corporation Term Lease being returned to the IBM Credit Corporation.

For further information call your IBM marketing representative, Gary Rinehard at 804-446-6200

Dealing with sales reps

Sales representatives, despite widely varying styles and techniques, generally follow one very simple rule: sell as many as possible, for as much as possible.

When you deal with sales people, try not to commit or even imply commitment to their product. Sales representatives look actively for that kind of commitment, and when they see it, they relax. They have their customer hooked. There's no reason to consider giving us a price break, special quick delivery, extended warranties, free service, etc.

Usually sales people are prepared to cut all sorts of special deals in order to get our business. But when it is obvious they have already sold us, why should they?

So how can you deal effectively with sales representatives?

Be pleasant, be courteous, but give them absolutely no clue that you are the least bit committed to doing business with them (even though you may be). When you've completed your research, call the appropriate College Purchasing buyer and tell her what you know and your preferences. Then sit back and let our professional buyers extract the best possible price, terms, warranty and service from the vendor.

That's what we're here for.

The article above appeared in the University of Virginia publication The New(s) Material Management and was written by Bob Bendl.
