A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER PUBLISHED FOR AND ABOUT THE FACULTY, STUDENTS AND STAFF OF THE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM AND MARY

Volume XVIII, Number 29 30

Wednesday, April 26, 1989

Timely Reminders

Graduation tickets

Tickets for commencement are available, five to each graduating student, on the second floor of James Blair from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. through May 10. Students are required to show IDs and sign for tickets.

Any tickets available after the May 10 deadline will be distributed by lottery.

Because of the serious space problem this year, faculty members are asked to limit their request for tickets to one per processing faculty. (Faculty who process do not need tickets.)

Deadline for grades

The final grades for graduating seniors are due in the Registrar's office by noon on Thursday, May 11. The list of graduates will be posted on the main floor of James Blair late the evening of May 12.

Judith Ewell

James Livingston

Ewell, Livingston receive outstanding faculty awards

Judith Ewell, Newton Professor of History, and James C. Livingston, Walter G. Mason Professor of Religion, have been selected to receive 1989 Outstanding Faculty Awards from the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia.

Thirteen faculty members, who have been selected from Virginia's public and private colleges and universities, will be honored at a dinner in Richmond, May 9, at which Governor Gerald L. Baliles will present each with a $5,000 cash award.

Professor Ewell is an authority on the 20th-century history of Venezuela and is frequently invited to speak at conferences on Latin America. She has published widely and is currently working on her fourth book, tentatively titled Venezuela and the United States: Caribbean Neighbors, 1970-1980s.

She has received many fellowships and awards, including an Organization of American States Research Fellowship and Senior Fulbright Lectureship, both in Caracas, Venezuela. She has also been active in the development of the international studies curriculum at the College.

Professor Livingston came to William and Mary to head the new department of religion in 1968. He was the first dean of the undergraduate program and has served on numerous committees on College policy and life. Livingston is the author of six books and more than 70 articles, and he has received a National Endowment for the Humanities Research Grant for a project on "English Religious Thought: 1860-1910."

Laura Stotz was among the many seniors who rang the bell in the Wren Building Monday to signal the last day of classes.

First Baldwin-Speese winners named

Two seniors, Christopher McNeill Bailey and George Minor DeShazo Jr., have been selected to receive the first awards given in memory of two master teachers and botanists at the College of William and Mary, John T. Baldwin and Bernice M. Speese.

Bailey is pursuing honors in geology and biology. In particular he is studying the distribution and composition of spruce forests on the high peaks of Highland County, Va., and the environmental factors that influence these forests.

Bailey is the recipient of the Gilman Fellowship in geology at Johns Hopkins University, where he plans to continue his environmental studies.

DeShazo, the first Rhodes Scholar from William and Mary, will be studying urban and regional planning at Oxford University in England next year. He has an interdisciplinary major. Among his research projects is a proposal, in cooperation with the College's Virginia Institute of Marine Science and other groups, to study the input and flow of nitrogen from agricultural land into the Chesapeake Bay.

Anthropology

Professors Mario Zamora and Vinson H. Sutlive, visiting assistant professor Barbara King, and assistant professor Tomoko Hamada recently participated, along with a group of William and Mary students, in the Virginia Social Sciences Association meeting at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University in Blacksburg. In a session on anthropology topics, King presented "Social Information Transfer in Non-Human Primates: Relevance to the Social Sciences;" Sutlive asked "Where's the Beef?" and Zamora spoke on "The Holistic Approach in Conflict Analysis: A Case Study of the People-Power Revolution in the Philippines." At a session on teaching techniques, Professor Zamora presented a paper titled "Project CREATIVE at The College of William and Mary Revisited." Students attending and participating in a student symposium on "Internationalism and Indian Studies," chaired by Zamora and Hamada, were Coy Short, Helen Pope, Shannon Watson, Amy Bryce, Morris E. Zamora, Karen Barragona, Stephanie Wingfield, J. Micheal Bradshaw, Stephanie Groot and Rajiv Ramaprasad.

Biology

Donna M. E. Ware, curator of the herbarium, recently attended the 1989 annual meeting of the Association of Southeastern Biologists (ASB) in Charlotte, N.C. She participated in a session on "Use of Computers in the Herbarium" and assumed the presidency of the Southern Appalachian Botanical Club, which publishes the botanical journal Castanea.

Geology

A paper titled "Description and Evaluation of a Short Writing Assignment in Historical Geology" by Heather Macdonald, assistant professor, and Renée Purdy, environmental science major, appears in the March issue of Journal of Geological Education.

Professors Stephen C. Clement, R. Heather Macdonald and Bruce K. Goodwin attended the meeting of the Northeastern Section of the Geological Society of America in New Brunswick, N.J., March 22-25. At the meeting, Clement attended a short course on Methods of Microstructural Analysis. Faculty members made three presentations: "Geology, Geomorphology and Soils South of Staunton, Va.: An Excellent Field Area in the Valley and Ridge Province" by Macdonald, Gerald H. Johnson and John F. Ludt; "Development of a Pliocene Paleosol in the Coastal Plain of Virginia" by Macdonald and Kelvin W. Ramsey; and "The Maury Fault, Goshen Pass, Va." by Goodwin and Kenneth F. Bick.

Modern Languages

Martha M. Houle, assistant professor, gave a talk based on her research on allegorical love maps in 17th-century France, titled "Lire la femme dans la carte," at the fourth Congress of the International Association of Semiotics in Barcelona and Perpignan, March 31-April 6. The Congress is held every five years.

During a semester leave this fall she will work on a book-length study of these maps. Her most recent article, titled "What's in a Fairy Tale? Louis Marin's Work with Play," is included in the latest issue of The American Journal of Semiotics.

Psychology

Professor Kelly G. Shaver recently attended the University of Southern California Invited Symposium on Entrepreneurship research, participating in a seminar on graduate education in entrepreneurship. Shaver has been named to the editorial board of Entrepreneurship: Theory and Practice.

Four current or former undergraduates have been involved in recent presentations at meetings of regional psychological conventions. Elizabeth W. Signorelli was a co-author of a paper, "Fritz Heider: Breadth of a Theoretical Legacy," presented by Shaver in a symposium on Heider at the meeting of the Southeastern Psychological Association in Washington, D.C. Sylvia T. Palms, an Honors student in psychology, was co-author of a paper titled "Advancing Social Psychology through Textbook Writing: Reflections on the Field and Those Who Speak for It," presented in a symposium on advancing social psychology at the meeting of the Eastern Psychological Association in Boston. Heather A. Sanderson, now a law student at the University of Virginia, presented results from her undergraduate Honors research at the Eastern Psychological Association, in the form of a paper titled "Testimony Characterization, Witness Age, Subject Gender and Perceived Credibility of Child Witnesses." Alison Brown's undergraduate Honors research, "Judgment Context, Sentencing Goals, Probable Success and Case Judgments by Diversion Board Members," was also presented at the EPA meeting. Brown is now a student at Rutgers University Law School; Shaver was junior author on both Sanderson's and Brown's papers.

E. Rae Harcum, professor, has had a paper, "Behavioral Paradigm for a Psychological Resolution of the Free Will Issue," accepted by The Journal of Mind and Behavior.

Sociology

Several current and former faculty members and students participated in the 52nd annual meeting of the Southern Sociological Society, held in Norfolk, Va., April 13-16. Paper presentations included: Vernon Edmonds, "Biology and Human Behavior"; R. Wayne Kernodle, "Colonial Paradise: Factors in the Selection of a Retirement Community"; Edwin H. Rhyne, "Third World Trends and Sociological Study of Them: An Inverse Correlation"; and Kathleen Slevin, "Panel Discussion on Tenure and Promotion: Some Tricks to Stay on Track."

Lawrence Beckhouse served as discussant for three papers presented on the sociology of sports, and Satoshi Ito organized and presided over the section of "Affirmative Action, Abuse Prevention and Time." Ito also served as discussant for three papers devoted to "Minorities: Families and Well-Being."

Edwin Rhyne organized and presided over a special session panel on "The Recent Political History of Virginia." Panelists included former Lieutenant Governor Henry Howell, former Congressman William Whitehurst and James Latimer, reporter emeritus, Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Elaine Themo was a member of the program planning committee, and Jon Kerner served on the local arrangements committee.

Robert Schwartzman, graduate student, presented a paper on "The Effects of Autocratic Leadership on Small Group Performance" to the section on military sociology.

Former graduate and undergraduate students from William and Mary presenting papers included: Cynthia Anderson, "Occupational Restructuring in NCAA Athletics: A Case Study of Women's Coaching"; Robert Freymeyer, "Localism in Southern Politics: What Influence Have Non-local Immigrants Had?"; Joseph Healey, "An Exploration of Memory and Sports: Stories and Recollections of Personal Involvement"; and Bigitte U. Neary, "From Mechanization to Integration: A Shift in the Deep Structure."

William and Mary graduates Carolyn Ellis, on the faculty at the University of South Florida, and Jeanne Hurlburt, on the faculty at Louisiana State University, organized and presided over the sessions on the "Sociology of Emotions" and "Social Networks," respectively.

Former William and Mary sociologists involved in the meeting were Ida Harper Simpson, immediate past president, and Nancy Gates Kutner, executive committee member.

School of Business Administration

Ned Waxman, assistant professor, recently delivered an academic presentation, titled "Post Petition Interest on Nonconsensual Oversecured Liens in Bankruptcy Cases," at the Mid-Atlantic Regional Business Law Association annual conference in Richmond, March 31. At the same conference, Donald R. Ferguson, a first-year resident MBA student, and Henry E. Mallue Jr., acting university registrar and professor of business administration, presented a paper titled "Mandatory Health Care Insurance Benefits: A Comparison of Current Models." The paper compared the 1974 Hawaii legislation, the 1988 Massachusetts bill (signed by Gov. Michael Dukakis) and the 1988 Florida proposal introduced in the House of Representative by Rep. Steve Press on such issues as employers and employees covered, benefits mandated and deductibles and exemptions permitted.

School of Education

John Thelin, Chancellor Professor of Education, is the author of a feature article, "Is the Ed School the Dead School?" published in the Spring 1989 issue of The Review of Higher Education. His essay deals with the historical and political place of schools of education within the American university structure.

In March, Thelin joined with Professor Helen Lefkowitz Horowitz, director of the American studies program at Smith College, and Raymond Heath, vice president of student affairs at La Salle University, to serve as a research team to analyze the academic culture, architecture, governance, curriculum and campus life at Seton Hall University in South Orange, N.J. Their research, site visit and report were sponsored by the New Jersey State Department of Higher Education. The project focused on the issue of how an institution's admission policies, residential arrangements and student life might be altered in light of a distinctive university teaching mission.

Deborah DiCroce, a 1984 alumna of the Higher Education Doctoral Program, has been named president of Piedmont Community College in Charlottesville. DiCroce has been provost of Tidewater Community College and also serves as visiting professor in the School of Education at William and Mary. Her recent article, "Community College Mission Revisited," was published in the Winter 1989 issue of The Review of Higher Education.

On April 1, Stuart Flanagan, professor, presented a paper at the 14th annual conference of the Virginia Council of Teachers of Math, held in Harrisonburg, Va. His talk, titled "Literacy Passport Teaching: Instructional Intervention," described a diagnostic and remediation approach to helping children achieve state-mandated math objectives. He also discussed his monograph, Ideas for Instructional Intervention in Mathematics.

On April 6, James Patton, associate professor and director of teacher education, made a joint presentation with Douglas Prillaman, professor, and Joyce VanTassel-Baska, Jody and Layton Smith Professor of Education, at the 67th annual convention of the Council for Exceptional Children in San Francisco. Their presentation was titled "The Nature of Disadvantaged Gifted Programs: A Study of the Fifty States and Selected Exemplary Local School Districts."

At the same conference, Prillaman and Antonios Katsiyannis, doctoral candidate in special education administration, presented a study titled "Suspension and Expulsion of Handicapped Students: National Trends and the Case of Virginia."

VanTassel-Baska delivered a keynote address, "Comprehensive Curriculum for the Gifted," Feb. 27 at Florida State University, Gainesville. She presented two keynote workshops at the California Association for Gifted Students Conference in San Diego, Calif., on March 4, titled "Curriculum for the Gifted" and "Counseling the Gifted." VanTassel-Baska served as a discussant for a paper session, "Dimensions of Gifted Research," at the American Education Research Association conference in San Francisco, March 30. She presented a workshop, "Nurturing the Young Gifted Child at Home and at School," in Richmond, April 13, for the Southern Association for Children under Six.

VanTassel-Baska also has an article, "Appropriate Curriculum for Gifted Learners," in the March 1989 issue of Educational Leadership, the journal of the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development. She has recently co-authored a book, Excellence in Educating the Gifted, with John Feldhusen, Purdue University, and Ken Seeley of the Clayton Foundation. Her book Patterns of Influence on Gifted Learners: The Home, the Self, and the School, co-edited with Paula Olszewski-Kubilius, director of the Center for Talent Development at Northwestern University, came out this month.

Associate Professor Ronald Wheeler spoke to Richmond's elementary, middle and secondary school principals on "The Importance of an International Perspective in the Classroom" on April 5. Wheeler is the author of the article "What Kind of Middle School Teacher Are You?" in the March 1989 issue of Middle School Journal.

Athletics

Head men's track coach Roy Chernock is the president-elect of the 110-member College IC4A Track Coaches' Association. He will begin his term at the association's August meeting. Chernock succeeds former W&M coach Harry Groves, currently head coach at Penn State.

Swem Library

"Effective Technology, Excellent Service: A Review of How the Pieces Fit Together," written by Berna L. Heyman, assistant university librarian for automation and bibliographic control, appears in the Spring 1989 issue of LITA Newsletter. The article reviews the second Library and Information Technology Association National Conference. Heyman was a member of the steering committee responsible for planning that conference.

Leadership America Program selects junior Jamie Doyle

Jamie Doyle, a junior, has been selected to participate in the Leadership America Program this summer.

Two other juniors, Marcia Levy and Joan Wilson, were selected as alternates.

Jamie Doyle

Leadership America, the major national leadership development opportunity for collegiate graduates, selects 50 men and women from campuses across the country who are invited to spend 10 weeks strengthening their leadership skills. Finalists are chosen from over 1,000 applicants.

"It is an opportunity," says Doyle, "to define one's leadership skills, look for strengths and weaknesses and learn how best to assume a leadership role in the future, not only for ourselves but for the benefit of others."

After graduation, Doyle, a biology major, hopes to spend a year in field study before going to graduate school. She plans field work in Belize and Africa studying conservation projects for the mountain gorillas, the migration of songbirds and the problem of the diminishing tropical rain forests.

Doyle has already shown leadership qualities on campus as a teaching assistant in ornithology for the biology department, and a research assistant in the Laboratory of Endocrinology and Population Ecology, where she assisted with studies of the Carolina chickadee caching behavior. As a laboratory assistant in the biology department, she prepared laboratory materials for introductory biology, zoology and botany classes.

For seven years, 1981-88, Doyle taught summer youth nature classes in Charlottesville, wildlife classes she had designed for children 4-12 years of age.

From 1986 to 1988 Doyle was a field research assistant for endangered species for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the College, participating in studies of red cockaded woodpeckers, piping plovers and least terns.

From 1985 to 1987 she was a crew member and an assistant leader for the Caretta Research Project of the Savannah, Ga., Science Museum, conducting research on the loggerhead sea turtle.

Doyle has been an environmental education speaker for the Wildlife Center of Virginia since 1986 and speaks at schools, clubs and public events in various locations across the state.

Her work has brought her many honors. She was named National Wildlife Federation Youth Conservationist of the Year in Virginia, 1986, and that year was a finalist in the Virginia State Fair spotted turtle research project. In 1984 she was a finalist in an international science fair for her work on the barn owl.

President, 1988-89, and senior adviser, 1989-90, for the Clayton Grimes Biology Club at the College, she was coordinator for Environmental Awareness Week earlier this year. Doyle is a member of the student advisory committee to the chairman of the biology department. Next year she will be vice president and editor of the newsletter for the Williamsburg Bird Club, of which she has been a member since 1986.

Botanists memorialized

by a gift of $20,000 by Christine Kurtz Fuerhoff of St. Charles, Mo., member of the class of 1980, and has been increased by donations from friends, colleagues and students.

The award is to be given annually to a graduating senior or seniors who demonstrate a commitment to the preservation of ecosystems and native plant species.

Both Baldwin and Speese were great collectors of artifacts and plants. Baldwin, through his contacts with environmentalists and scholars around the world and his wide travels, is credited with the interesting plantings on campus, which include a collection of boxwoods that draws many visitors.

Baldwin, an alumnus, who taught biology from 1946 until his death in 1977, specialized in cytogenetics, the study of plant chromosomes. Botany was his avocation as well as his vocation, and the campus proved to be an ideal laboratory for raising specimens from European cypresses to Himalayan pines. His plantings include the California redwood and the windmill palm from Hawaii. He also brought to the campus the metasequoia or dawn redwood. Until 1946 it was known to exist only in fossil remains. However that year a group of agricultural explorers located a grove of 1,000 peasants were using the trees for the interior furnishings of their homes.

Speese, who retired from the biology department in 1976, continued to supervise care of the trees and shrubs and organized Baldwin's records until her death in 1985. She collaborated with Baldwin on much of his horticultural research and donated her extensive plant collection to the herbarium of the College.

Speese authored or co-authored many scientific papers, which have contributed greatly to an understanding of the taxonomic relations of a number of groups of plants. At the time of her death she was registrar for the American Boxwood Society.

Memorials to both Baldwin and Speese are located in the garden area at the corner of Richmond Road and Boundary Street, adjacent to the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority house.

Graves and Mr. and Mrs. Shatz honored at international dinner

Honorees at the 14th International Dinner/Program and the 10th anniversary of the Mahatma Gandhi Lecture Series included, from left to right; Professor Sunderland, vice chancellor of the University College of North Wales and Secretary-General of the International Union of Anthropological and Ethnological Sciences; Frank and Jaroslava Shatz of Williamsburg, who were presented with an appreciation plaque for their support of international studies; Thomas A. Graves Jr., president emeritus of William and Mary and recipient of the 1989 Distinguished Service Award; and President Paul Verkuil.

The pot-luck dinner, held in Trinkle Hall, was preceded by a talk by Dr. Sunderland and presentation of the awards. President Verkuil gave the welcoming message, and the principal speaker of the evening was introduced by Mario D. Zamora, professor of anthropology and vice president of the International Union of Anthropological and Ethnological Sciences.

Vinson H. Sulive Jr., professor and chairman of the department of anthropology, presided at the presentation ceremonies at which Sunderland received the 1989 Gandhi Freedom Award. Mrs. Sunderland was also presented with a gift, a copy of Hark Upon the Gale.

W. Sam Sadler, dean of students, presented the 1989 Distinguished Service Award to Graves. Mrs. Lois Hornsby of Williamsburg and Kenneth Smith, associate dean for student affairs, both spoke prior to the presentation on Graves' contributions during his tenure.

Graves announced, in the spirit of the international evening, that he was planning a trip to Southeast Asia in 1990. He added that if he had been able to assist the cause of international relations while he was here it was "a labor of love."

The appreciation plaque to Frank and Jaroslava Shatz was presented by Zamora, and Mr. Shatz responded. The award to Mr. and Mrs. Shatz capped an eventful week in which they took a prominent role in the dedication of the Wendy and Emery Reves Center for International Studies. Mr. and Mrs. Shatz are longtime friends of Mrs. Reves and her late husband.

Mr. and Mrs. Shatz recently announced that one-half of their estate will be used to support the programs and activities of the Reves Center. Earlier they had made a provision in their wills to establish the Frank and Jaroslava Shatz Writer-in-Residence Endowment to support a writer or writers who are in exile from their native lands. Mr. and Mrs. Shatz escaped from Czechoslovakia in 1954 before the Communist take-over.

Before dinner was served, students offered grace in a dozen different languages.

Moyers speech

A transcript is being prepared of Bill Moyers' speech at the dedication of the Wendy and Emery Reves Center for International Studies. People interested in obtaining a copy should contact Ray Betzner, manager of media services, ext. 4331.

Grants

Anthropology

Robert R. Hunter, director of the Archaeological Project Center, will direct work on two projects for the Virginia Department of Transportation, for which awards totalling over $20,000 have been made.

A Phase II archaeological evaluation study of one archaeological site and two architectural sites within the proposed Route 502 project in Halifax County will be undertaken under a grant of $11,823.

A grant of $8,418 will be used for a Phase I cultural resources survey of the proposed Route 58 project in Portsmouth, Va.

Hunter was in the news recently for work being done at the center on artifacts from the Ferry Farm site in Virginia Beach. In an article in the Norfolk Virginian Pilot, writer Marc Davis quotes Curtis Moyer, lecturer in anthropology, who said of the project, "It's the most awe-inspiring collection from that period I've seen."

The cache from the site includes 50,000 pieces of bone, glass, ceramic and metal, all of which are stored in the center in the basement of Bryan residence hall.

For the next several months Hunter and his colleagues will sort through the artifacts, which pose some puzzling questions, even to archaeological detectives used to the unusual.

Computer Science

John P. Kearns, associate professor, has received a $61,932 award from the National Science Foundation. This amount, granted in support of a project investigating three specific topics in the efficient implementation of concurrent/distributed systems, is part of a total award of $121,176.

NASA has awarded $78,745 for a year-long study of the parallelization of ERBE data processing, which will be directed by David M. Nicol, assistant professor.

Mathematics

The National Science Foundation has awarded $37,750 for a study of matrix theory, which will be conducted by Chi-Kwong Li, assistant professor.

The research, which will be supported over the next two years by the NSF grant, involves topics in matrix theory such as generalized numerical ranges and numerical radii, matrix norms and linear preserver problems.

The National Science Foundation has granted $58,300 to professors Charles R. Johnson and Leiba Rodman, who will use their award to continue past collaboration in new research involving matrix theory, combinatorics, operator theory and applied mathematics.

Physics

A $74,000 award from the U.S. Department of Energy will fund the second year of the Topics in Theoretical Physics project, directed by Professor Franz L. Gross. The project, which has received $101,874 in total funds to date, will continue work in two broad areas of physics: quarks in nuclei and electromagnetic interactions.

The Physics Research Experiences for Undergraduates program, directed by Professor Rolf G.

Winter, has received a grant of $51,763 from the National Science Foundation. The program has run successful sessions in 1987 and 1988 and with this continued funding, which brings total grants from NSF to $80,763, plans to support 12 participants each summer from 1989 through 1991.

NASA is continuing its support of research in high resolution spectroscopy to support atmospheric measurements being undertaken by Chris Benner and M. D. Venkataraman, associate professors. A grant of $73,550 will cover work until March 31, 1990. This brings the total amount of NASA grant support to date to $410,740.

This research is to provide support for spectroscopic measurements of NASA's Upper Atmospheric Research and Global Tropospheric Research programs.

The U.S. Department of Energy has awarded $93,500 to professors Roy Champion and Lynn Doverspike for negative ion detachment cross sections. This project continues the investigation of negative ion production on alkali surfaces.

Physical Education

Virginia Department of Personnel and Training has awarded a grant of $1,200 for physiological assessments for Virginia Executive Institutes. This project will include physiological assessments for state employment based upon blood sampling.

Psychology

The National Science Foundation has awarded

$17,195 for a two-and-a-half-year study of facilitating undergraduate research instruction with an integrated computer network. Work will be done on networked PC computers to make it practical to purchase and use experimentally oriented software.

School of Education

Professors Robert Hanny and William Bullock Jr. have received $1,826 from the Virginia Department of Personnel and Training in support of their Personnel Development Services Workshop.

Marshall-Wythe

The Virginia Department of Criminal Justice Services has awarded $8,396 to the Juvenile Legal Clinic, directed by John Levy. The project, which has received a total of $69,751 from this sponsor, operates to direct juveniles from detention in juvenile detention facilities and adult jails by providing legal representation and advocacy through the use of third-year law students. These students assist court-appointed counsel in the 9th Judicial District in representing juveniles charged with offenses that could result in detention or incarceration.

Swem Library

A Telefacsimile Network for Sharing Library Resources by Public Institutions of Higher Learning in Virginia, a project intended to establish a FAX at Swem and allow the College to share library resources with the University of Virginia, is being directed by Nancy Marshall, university librarian. Funding in the amount of $2,558 comes from UVA, which receives its support from the U.S. Department of Education.

Students recognized at spring awards luncheon

Awards for excellence in academics and athletics and achievements by sororities and fraternities were presented at the annual Spring Awards Luncheon on Tuesday.

Anson Christian, president of the senior class, introduced the three honorary marshals who will lead graduates to commencement. They are Susan Donaldson, assistant professor of English; Frank T. Lendrim, professor of music and director of the William and Mary Choir; and W. Sam Sadler, dean of students.

Ken Smith, associate dean of student affairs, gave welcoming remarks at the luncheon and opened the award presentations by recognizing members of Phi Beta Kappa, Beta Gamma Phi, Omicron Delta Kappa and Mortar Board who were present.

In his closing remarks, President Paul Verkuil congratulated award winners. "This is a special class," he said, adding that the Rhodes Scholarship won by George DeShazo was symbolic of the special achievements of the class of 1989. "There are several members of the class, of that caliber," said Verkuil, "who will go on to achieve great things."

The following awards were presented:

Athletic Education Foundation Award: Heidi Erpelding and Jon Tuttle

Martha Barksdale Award: Elise Hughes and

Catie McCullough

Benjamin S. Ewell Awards: Jay Austin, Jerome Bowers II, Christine Bryant, Karen Burrell, Anson Christian, Sean Connolly, Scott Demarco, George DeShazo, Valerie Humphries, Carmen Jacobs, Keith Jasper, Elizabeth Johnson, Renee Johnson, Thomas Jones, Sarah Kelly, Jeffrey Kelly, Daniel Kern, Lori Kogut, Douglas Kossler, T. Monty Mason, Margaret Mitchell, Jennifer Murphy, John Newsom, Shaunti Reidinger, Grace Rush, Monica Sangen, Carlen Sellers, Stephanie Singer, Michele Sokoly, Dywona Vantree, Lynne Watson, Jeanna Wilson and Amy McCormick.

L. Tucker Jones Award: L. Barton Szarko and

Howard Genderson

Kathy Meador Lessin Memorial Scholar: Amy Frances Turlaga.

Laurie Lucker Blount Award: Jeanne Foster

Mortar Board Award: Julie McEvoy

Omicron Delta Kappa Award: Eric Kauders

Phoenix Awards: Marcy Levy and Doug Smith

Alpha Lambda Delta Book Award: Marcia Weidenmier

Outstanding Chapter Award: Kappa Kappa Gamma and Sigma Alpha Epsilon

Chapter Achievement Award: Alpha Chi Omega and Lambda Chi Alpha.

Jeanne Foster receives the Laurie Lucker Blount Award from Marcy Levy, president, Chi Omega

John Tuttle was named Outstanding Male Athlete by the Athletic Education Foundation. His award was presented by Bobby Dwyer, assistant athletic director for development.

The Kathy Meador Lessin Memorial Scholar is Amy Frances Turlaga, who received her award from Nathan Altschuler.

Marcy Levy received the Phoenix Award for her efforts in establishing WhistleStop. The presenter was W. Sam Sadler, dean of students, who was recognized as one of the honorary marshals for commencement.

Student participants named for special summer programs

Wilson independent study program

Five students, Darlene Berkel, Lara Davis, Patty Haefs, Michael Molloy and Laura Taber have been awarded scholarships made possible by a gift to the College from Fred E. Wilson.

Wilson has given $13,750 to inaugurate the Wilson Cross-Disciplinary Independent Study Programs at the College. This is a summer program that funds five students, each of whom will undertake a graded three-credit independent study project in an area outside of his or her area of concentration.

Darlene Berkel, an economics major, will study "The Treatment of Race and the Racial Genetic Diseases in the Field of Human Genetics."

Lara Davis, a fine arts major, will study, "Perception: The Psychology of Viewing Art."

Patty Haefs has selected "Science and Technology in Ancient Rome."

Michael Molloy, a public policy major, will study "Victorian Social Problem Literature."

Laura Taber will study "The Histological Analysis of Thyroid Tissue."

In an interview with Flat Hat reporter Dawn McCashin, Joel Schwartz, director of the Charles Center for Interdisciplinary Studies, said he was

"flabbergasted" at the number of applicants and feels that this program has "struck a nerve—a true unmet demand in the student body."

Public law stipends

Five law students will receive stipends totaling $9,600 this summer from the William and Mary Public Service Fund to work in public law.

Patrick Allen, a first-year student, will be funded for his work with the Media Access Project in Washington, D.C. MAP is a non-profit First Amendment watchdog organization.

Laurel Gross, a second-year student, will spend the summer with the Youth Law Center in San Francisco. She will be assigned to one of the center's attorneys, helping to provide legal representation to juveniles, and joining the center's effort to reform legislation in the areas of juvenile justice, foster care and juvenile health care.

Caroline LaCour, also a second-year student, will work with Legal Services of North Florida, Inc., at the Panama City office.

Lisa Leba, completing her first year, will work in Williamsburg at the Peninsula Legal Aid Center on Richmond Road.

Thuy Tran, also a first-year student, will be working with the Indochina Resource Center in Washington, D.C., studying refugee settlement programs.

PSF is a non-profit organization founded by students at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law. Its purposes are to raise the consciousness of law students to the needs and opportunities within the public interest sector, to allow students to gain experience in positions that historically can afford to pay little or nothing and to supplement the limited resources available in the public interest sector.

Founded in 1987 the Public Service Fund has more than doubled its stipend total in two years as a result of support provided by the law school and the community.

Governor's Fellows

Three seniors and a law student have been selected to participate in the Governor's Fellows program this summer in Richmond.

William and Mary will be represented by Jay Austin, Jonathan R. Tuttle and Jeffrey S. Kelly from the class of 1989 and Annette Elseth from the Marshall-Wythe School of Law.

Fellows spend the summer working with members of the Governor's cabinet or personal staff. In addition to work experience, Fellows will attend weekly seminars taught by cabinet members and others experienced in state government and take part in other collegial activities intended to give the Fellows a fuller understanding of state government issues and processes.

Micken pleased with performances of novice and varsity debaters

The question at the national collegiate debate tournament earlier this month was whether increased restriction on the possession of handguns by civilians was justified.

For debaters the question had an almost macabre quality, because it came on the heels of a tragic occurrence at their hotel on the eve of competition. A distraught husband, rebuffed by his estranged wife who was at the hotel with a group of friends, returned with a gun, killed his wife and then turned the gun on himself, as horrified guests witnessed the scene.

Freshman Gerny Kamens and junior Ron Westfall placed 18th in team points overall in a field of 450 debaters. Tim Domin, a senior, was 22nd place speaker. In the novice division, Dan Palamontain, a sophomore, was sixth place speaker.

At the Junior Varsity Nationals at George Mason University in March the William and Mary contingent tied with Wheaton College for the two-team award for the best school record. The team of Kamens and Miles won seven of eight preliminary rounds and were seeded second in a field of 51 teams from 19 states. Palamontain and Peter Brien, a sophomore, won five of eight preliminary rounds and finished 16th seed. Kamens was fifth-place speaker; Miles was tied for 10th. The William and Mary entry also included Jason Jones, freshman, and Tom McInerney, junior who had a four-four record in the preliminaries as did the freshman team of Ann Skjei and Meenu Talwar.

This year the debaters went to eight major tournaments including those at Vanderbilt University, the U.S. Military Academy, West Point, Duke University, Towson State, Arizona State, George Mason, Syracuse Universities and Wheaton College. Doug Clarke, a senior, won top-speaker honors in the varsity division of the tournament at Syracuse University. Top 10-speaker awards were also won by Palamontain and Mennu, fourth and fifth place speakers at Towson State in December. McInerney, a junior, was ninth place speaker and Jason Jones, a freshman, was 10th.

The strong showing by new debaters as well as experienced competitors, says debate coach Pat Micken, bodes well for next year.

Coaches assisting Micken include Wayne L. Kraemer, Sean Reilly and Tom Sotelo.

Special Programs offering

Course for custom-home builders

A new "how to" course in custom home building is being offered by the Office of Special Programs at the College, beginning May 6.

John Anderfuren president of the Custom Home Building Planning Center in Suffolk will teach the course, which combines classroom and hands-on instruction for anyone who is building a custom home. Classroom instruction will include finance and loans, design and contracting procedures as well as item-by-item analysis of potential costs, new technologies and dos and don'ts.

Field sessions at a model home site will reinforce lessons with hands-on practical experience as the class follows the construction process from start to finish. Emphasis will be on quality construction and showing potential owner-builders how to get the best value for their money.

The course will meet from 8:30 to 10:30 a.m. on alternate Saturdays for 10 weeks beginning May 6. The tuition is $90, $135 for a couple. Text and materials are an additional $40.

For registration details, contact the Office of Special Programs, 110 North Boundary St., ext. 4084.

Phi Beta Kappa's Apollo Room refurbished

The re-birth of the Phi Beta Kappa Apollo Room is a modern-day Cinderella story.

The meeting place for Alpha of Virginia Chapter, which traces its history back to the students who organized the society in 1776, has undergone a revitalization that is truly remarkable.

At a reception held April 10, representatives from Phi Beta Kappa gathered to open the new facility.

The handsomely decorated Apollo Room, which will be used for initiation of new members and other chapter events, is furnished in the Queen Anne period. There is a handsome banquet table, wing chairs, hunt board and several 18th-century portraits of early members of the chapter.

The graceful drape of the curtains, the sheen on the peg-and-plank floor and the large brass chandelier over the table add to the charm of the room. A display case with a variety of keys and other PBK memorabilia, positioned behind a solid glass wall, provides a permanent exhibit for visitors without opening the room itself.

Encouraged by Ludwell Johnson, professor of history and a member of Alpha of Virginia, the administration of the College provided $50,000 in endowment funds for the facelift for the Apollo Room.

Along with the refurbishing, Johnson negotiated, with Rector Anne Dobie Peebles, a resolution by the College's Board of Visitors that Alpha of Virginia Chapter has exclusive jurisdiction over the use of the room. This, he hopes, will fend off future misuse of the facility.

There were no "before and after" pictures taken of the Apollo Room, but before the current refurbishing it had been used for a variety of purposes, including storage for boxes of T-shirts, candy bars and plastic drink containers used at the concession stand during a summer theatre festival held in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

"It was embarrassing," said Johnson, "to take prospective students to where the founding chapter of Phi Beta Kappa was housed and find the room filled with plastic furniture and janitorial supplies. The new look of the Apollo Room provides visible evidence of the importance of undergraduate education at the College."

In a 1968 master's thesis, Janice L. Fivehouse traced the history of PBK on campus.

Phi Beta Kappa was founded on Dec. 5, 1776, by students of the College. It is believed that they gathered in the Apollo Room of the Raleigh Tavern on Duke of Gloucester Street. When founded, the organization closely resembled 18th-century fraternities and literary societies. However, its policy of chartering other chapters helped establish a national honor society.

PBK celebrated its 1926 sesquicentennial with the dedication of Phi Beta Kappa Hall on the College campus, which contained a re-creation of the Apollo Room of the Raleigh Tavern. It was a great occasion. Guests included Henry Van Dyke, professor of English at Princeton, and Dr. John H. Finley, associate editor of The New York Times. A full day of activities was planned, including an academic procession, presentation and dedication ceremonies and an evening banquet.

The building was gutted by fire in 1953. At first, plans were made to restore it, but a proposal was finally approved and plans made to finance a new $1 million building. The necessary funds were obtained from fire insurance, available College funds, an appropriation by the General Assembly of Virginia and individual contributions. These contributions were made by William and Mary alumni, Alpha of Virginia, friends of the College and Phi Beta Kappa members throughout the nation, including John D. Rockefeller Jr., who gave $250,000. The new Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall was dedicated on May 18, 1957.

"The Alpha Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa represents an ancient and honored tradition of the pursuit of excellence," concludes Fivehouse.

"This is the major ideal which unifies the 18th-century social fraternity and the 20th-century honor society. Phi Beta Kappa's greatest contribution has been and will be making individuals a part of this tradition and thereby giving them added encouragement to pursue excellence in their own lives."

Dedication is one of the watchwords of tutors and students at the Rita Welsh Adult Skills Center and so it was that the winner of the Rita Welsh Award was not able to be present to receive her award. A dedicated teacher, Elizabeth Rosser was teaching math at Lafayette High School as her work with the center was being applauded at the annual Award Ceremony in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall, Tuesday morning.

Nan Cruikshank, director of the Center, was mistress of ceremonies and described the gathering as a family time, a time of celebration, which complements the Center's Christmas party. The 200 tutors and 200 students have been working hard, said the director, and added, "I know from experience that the tutors learn as much as the

Members of the cast of "To Whom It May Concern," a musical recently staged by the Covenant Players, performed two songs from the production. The Covenant Players this year donated $750 to local charities from funds raised by the theatrical production.

Principal speaker for the program was William O'Donovan, editor and publisher of The Virginia Gazette. O'Donovan applauded the efforts of the students. "It is hard to believe," said O'Donovan "that you were in the dark until a few months ago, there was a dark spot of uncertainty in your life. Now you know more about things because you understand English." You can vote with a greater degree of confidence, he told his audience, "you have taken charge of your life. All of us do that everyday, and it is wonderful." O'Donovan was introduced by Irving Robitsek, president, ASP board of directors.

Mrs. Cruikshank paid tribute to her staff, Mary Lee Suiter, Lynn Holston and Mary Liz Sadler and presented a gift to Miss Holston who is graduating and leaving the program. She also thanked Fan Williams, a long-time friend of the Center, for her special contributions.

The following tutors received pins in recognition of two or more years of service: John Angle, Martha Bentley, Darren Bowie, Pam Chadwick, Liz Clement, Mary Louise Clifford, Patty Cook, Karena Dixon, Marilyn Entwisle, Lois Farr, Eugenia Fernandez, Marian Holl, Marilyn Holloway, Julie Hotchkiss, Karen Jeffcoat, Caroline Lee, Ursula Murden, Kristin Nahill, Jennifer Palmer, Margaret Schober, Stephen Smith, Albert Wisner, Nell Wisner and Michelle Wright.

Since the last award ceremony the ASP program has "graduated" five students who have received their G.E.D. certificates. They are Teresa Latoski, Reggie Berkley, Tracie Carter, Marc Harbour and Rodney Wise.

The presentation of awards to students with 40 hours of attendance at the center was made by Reggie Clark, assistant to the president.

A reception was held in the Dodge Room following the presentations.

Wallace Gusler, director of conservation at Colonial Williamsburg (l), poses with LeRoy Graves, a member of his staff who has been tutored at the center by Stephanie Suppo.

Tutor Laurie Wehle with speaker Bill O'Donovan.

Members of the cast of "To Whom It May Concern" (l-r), Jennifer Catney, Becky Bagdasarian, Mike Holtz and Steven Utley.

NEW BOOKS

AT SWEM

By Carol McAllister and Ellen Golembe

Turning Professors into Teachers: A New Approach to Faculty Development and Student Learning by Joseph Katz and Mildred Henry (Macmillan) LB2331 K32 1988. Basic teaching methods have remained the same over the years, failing to keep pace with the changing attitudes and expectations of today's students and thus creating a gap between teacher and learner. How should a professor respond to a group of uninterested or underprepared students? The authors of this study confront this problem in a grant-funded project that aims to understand how students learn and how faculty can develop practices based upon this understanding. Although the authors realize that it is difficult to bring immediate changes to institutionalized systems, they believe that the adoption of their methods "can be a transforming experience for the teacher" and can lead to changes that will "vivify the classroom." The data compiled here will be of interest to all faculty and administrators concerned with creating the best possible environment for education. References and an index are included.

Keeping Them Out of the Hands of Satan: Evangelical Schooling in America by Susan D. Rose (Routledge) LC586 F85R67 1988. As part of the series "Critical Social Thought," this book explores the organizational structure of the institutions of church, home and school among contemporary American evangelicals. The author traces the dramatic growth of evangelical education in the last half of the 20th century and then presents in-depth ethnographies of two contrasting evangelical communities: a group of working-class fundamentalist Baptists and a group of middle-class, independent charismatics. Their motives for establishing Christian schools' curricula and its influence on the next generation are major topics. By promoting an understanding of evangelical institutions at the grass roots level, Rose hopes to clarify the "appeal and practice of evangelicalism." Her concluding chapters contain insights into the connections between Christian education, class and gender relations and recent political events. The book is well documented, with extensive chapter notes and a 10-page bibliography.

White House Ethics: The History of the Politics of Conflict of Interest Regulation by Robert N. Roberts (Greenwood Press) KF4568 R63 1988. Conflict of interest problems have existed since the formation of the U.S. government and have recurred from administration to administration. The author contends that "efforts to deal with the conflict of interest problem have failed because of a general lack of understanding of how the system developed and as a result of continuing disagreement over what constitutes a prohibited conflict of interest under current rules and regulations." To address this issue, Roberts presents a chronological history of the evolution of the system developed to deal with public service ethics and devotes several chapters to the later 20th-century administrations from Truman to Reagan. In the epilogue, Roberts proposes establishing a "National Commission on Public Integrity" and concedes that America faces a continuing challenge in the management of government ethics.

In-Service Education for Staff Development by Ben M. Harris (Allyn and Bacon) LB1731 H29 1989. The purpose of in-service education is to improve the quality of performance of personnel who are already in assigned positions. This book, with its emphasis on planning, organizing and directing such programs, serves as a text, source book and basic reference guide for administrators, supervisors and training directors. This well-written volume contains practical teaching aids, including case illustrations, evaluation instruments and sample training plans. Flow charts, diagrams and a bibliography supplement 275 pages of text, and 13 appendices provide usable forms and worksheets. This is a thorough, well-organized work, a helpful resource for all professionals interested in staff development.

Contemporary Southern Politics edited by James F. Lea (Louisiana State University Press) F216.2 C59 1988. According to editor Lea, "the intermingling and overlapping of the new and old, good and bad, in contemporary southern politics often baffles observers, particularly those from outside the region." In this collection of essays, the authors explore the changes that have occurred in southern politics and government since the mid-1960s. Most of the 19 contributors are professors at southern universities who attempt to describe and analyze what is happening in the South now and underscore the significance of these events for the nation's future. Five broad areas are covered: "The Setting of Southern Politics," "The 'Power Shift' and Public Attitudes," "Politics and Elections," "Government and Leadership" and "Continuity and Change." This volume is an insightful and balanced assessment of an important and influential region. Its aim of promoting a better understanding of the region and its politics is admirably achieved.

Ethnic Groups and U.S. Foreign Policy edited by Mohammed E. Ahrari (Greenwood Press) E876 E88 1987. Between the 1940s and the 1980s, the American political system underwent a series of changes, with the governmental process becoming much more pluralistic and Congress gaining strength and becoming more assertive, particularly in the area of foreign policy. These changes brought on a new consciousness and a new sense of identity for a number of ethnic and special interest groups. This study deals with the participation in the U.S. foreign policy process of seven such groups: Arab, Jewish, black, Polish, Mexican, Cuban and Irish Americans. A summary essay, bibliography and index complete the volume.

The Tragedy of Afghanistan: The Social, Cultural and Political Impact of the Soviet Invasion edited by Bo Hultdt and Erland Jansson (Croom Helm) DS 371.2 H84 1988. Due to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, research efforts in that country, by both Afghan and non-Afghan scholars, have greatly diminished. In response to this decline, the Swedish Institute of International Affairs arranged a seminar called "Afghanistan: A Threatened Culture." The aim of the gathering was to "get a broad picture of what the war has meant for Afghanistan, its people and its culture," and to encourage Afghan scholars to renew their work. The 18 papers included in this volume cover five themes: ethnicity and the new nationalism, Afghan learning and education, the war, ecology and life in exile. Some of the studies are supplemented with bibliographies, and the collection is indexed.

Software Reliability: Measurement, Prediction, Application by John D. Musa, Anthony Tannino and Kazuhira Okumoto (McGraw-Hill) QA 76.76 T48M87 1987. With the increase in automated information processing, the demand for good software is growing. As attempts are made to create programs that will perform more complex processes at lower costs, questions of reliability come into play. The authors of this book, all staff members at AT&T Bell Laboratories, have organized the volume to provide information for three groups of users. The first part is written for those who may not need to apply software reliability measures, but can benefit from an understanding of the process. The second section is for those who will be using reliability measurements for such things as decision making, risk analysis and quality assurance. Practical application is emphasized. The final section focuses on the theoretical background of the field and addresses students and researchers who need an in-depth knowledge of the subject. The final chapter of the volume, "Future Development," suggests possible research topics.

Partnerships thanks helpers

Housing Partnerships, Inc., would like to thank the many students and professors who devoted their Saturdays to rehabilitation work in the community.

Housing Partnerships, Inc., is a community service organization, which builds and repairs homes for low-income families as well as elderly and handicapped residents of Williamsburg and James City and York counties.

The organization was established in 1985 by a group of concerned citizens who saw that many homes in the area were without the services of indoor plumbing or sufficient heating. Other homes needed roof repairs and structural maintenance. The object of HP is to make every home safe, dry and warm. With the help of volunteers—students, residents and community organizations—housing for many has been greatly improved.

William J. O'Donovan, editor-publisher of the Virginia Gazette, serves as president; Stephen Elliott, an executive of the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation, is chairman of the board.

Volunteers include the following: Marcia Agness, Adriann Alleyne, Stacy Alspaugh, Thomas Anderson, Joanne Arnold, James Arritt, Gillian Barr, Andy Bavier, Cheryl Beatty, Mike Begland, Jonathon Biedron, Joe Bieras, Ted Bohan, John Bouldin, Charles Bowery, Tom Broadhead, Rebecca Brooks, Cara Brown, Jill Bulls, Will Burhans, Stephanie Burks, Jennifer Butler, Sean Cadden, Jack Calandra, Joe Cantrell, Rich Casson, Kate Chalkley, Robert Chappell, Kathy Chronister, Brian Claggett, Rob Clark, Garvey Clarke, Mike Cokus, Brian Coleman, Kathy Cross, Virginia Crouch, Phil Davis, Allison Despard, Kennon Dick, Talaya Draper and John Drew.

Also Geoff Koch, Kristye Krause, Bob Kuhn, Caroline LaCour, Chris Lande, Caryl Lazzaro, Kenneth Leary, Cathy Lee, Joseph Lee, Paul Los, Terry Lovaas, John Lyman, Dave MacDonald, Dawn Mann, Scott Margolis, Jami Marley, Leslie Martin, Todd Martin, Neil McBrayer, Claire McGinity, Tom McInerney, Beverly McLean, Angus McQueen, Kristin McSwain, Will Mennen, John Miller, Paul Miller, Steve Mintz, Meg Mitchell, Don Montaldi, Jennifer Moon, Jonathon Morris, Stephen Nichols, Cap Noonan, Alicia Nulty, Augusto Obleade, Janet Offerman, Eric Oney, Peter Parks, Tom Pinott, Peter Pontzer, Chad Pridgen, Renee Purdy, Elizabeth Ransom, Gretchen Rask, Mark Ratzlaff, Shaunti Reidinger, Sally Rice, Sam Richards, Kent Roberts, Jason Robins, Bill Rosenthal, Jonathon Rubin and Gina Sampson.

Swem improves OCLC link

Swem Library has installed equipment to give its users self-serve access to the OCLC database produced by the Online Computer Library Center.

OCLC is a cooperative library services organization based in Ohio. The OCLC Online Union Catalog includes bibliographic records for items dating as far back as 2150 B.C. OCLC's 9,000 participating libraries in 26 countries contribute approximately two million new records each year. An increasingly larger percentage of records are in languages other than English, French, German or Spanish. Through OCLC, researchers have access to more than 19 million bibliographic records representing books, journals, manuscripts, films, theses, sound recordings, etc.

Users can search the OCLC database for books and other materials at these 9,000 libraries. Swem can borrow most of the materials listed in OCLC from one of the libraries reporting ownership. This service supports faculty and graduate student research. The OCLC database can be searched by author, by title, and by a combination of author and title information. Later this year, OCLC will introduce subject searching.

Swem's public OCLC terminal is located next to the reference desk on the first floor. Students, faculty and staff interested in learning more about OCLC and its use are invited to call the reference desk at ext. 4407.

Notes

Surplus auction

The College will hold an auction of surplus equipment on Thursday, May 18 at Building 22 of Eastern State Hospital. The auction will begin promptly at 9 a.m. Items may be viewed May 17 from 1 to 3 p.m. and from 8 to 9 a.m. May 18.

Items to be auctioned include sofas, typewriters, calculators, recorders, cameras, tables, desks, chairs, refrigerators, an organ, a piano, scientific equipment, computer equipment, etc.

For detailed information, please call Annette Ashcraft at ext. 4179.

Paydays changed

In order to improve service and provide direct deposit through electronic fund transfer, paydays for hourly employees and students will be changed.

Beginning with the first payday in July, paydays for hourly employees and students will be the first and 16th of each month.

For example, the payday scheduled now for July 12 will be changed to July 14. The July 26 payday has been moved to Aug. 1 and the Aug. 12 payday moved to Aug. 16.

Deadline for time sheets will remain the same.

Study in Israel

The Hebrew University of Jerusalem is offering the Horace W. Goldsmith Memorial Scholarship for study in Israel. The awards, for one year, will normally not exceed $4,000. The cost of a full year, including airfare and books, is approximately $9,000-9,500. Those students awarded the Goldsmith Scholarship who need further assistance may also apply for an additional Hebrew University loan or stipend.

For details please contact the Office of Academic Affairs, Hebrew University of Jerusalem, 11 East 69th St., New York, NY 20021; phone 212-472-2288.

Ash Lawn art exhibit

Ash Lawn-Highland and the Piedmont Council of the Arts will host a reception to honor the high school students and their teachers who participated in this year's Seventh District Congressional Art competition. The reception will be held from 3:30 to 5 p.m., Sunday, April 30, and will serve to open a three-week exhibition of the top 24 entries.

The public is invited to attend.

Special guest will be Congressman D. French Slaughter (R-VA), who has been honorary chairman of the competition since 1985. Slaughter is one of over 250 members of Congress who participate each year in the Congress Arts Caucus in Washington, D.C.

Physics colloquium

Vic Emery, Brookhaven National Laboratory, will be principal speaker at the colloquium at 4 p.m., Friday, April 28, in Small Hall 109. He will discuss implications of experiments for the theory of high T<sub>c</sub> superconductivity. Coffee will be served at 3:30 p.m. in the conference room.

Lions fund RBC travel

The Petersburg Lions Club has presented Richard Bland College with a check for $10,000 to provide funds for students' international educational travel.

Named in honor of former Lions Club member W.R.S. Curtis, the endowed scholarship will enable RBC students to participate in educational tours around the world for personal growth and college credits.

Curtis, who died in 1987, was an active member of the Lions Club for 32 years and served both as local president and district governor.

Russian courses

Courses in Russian language will be offered this summer and are open to everyone who wishes to develop a knowledge of Russian, including faculty and students at William and Mary as well as interested persons in the community.

In the first semester, which begins June 5, Professor Ilja Kostovski will teach both Russian 101 (elementary Russian) and Russian 201 (intermediate Russian).

In the second semester, which begins July 10, Kostovski will teach Russian 102 and 202, the continuing courses at the elementary and intermediate levels.

For information about registration, please contact the Registrar's Office on the first floor of James Blair Hall.

Oral for Ph.D.

Zhi Wei Lu will take the final oral exam for the Ph.D degree in physics at 2 p.m., Thursday, May 4 in the conference room of William Small Physical Laboratory. His topic is "Local Density Approximation Study of Transition and f-Electron Materials." The public is invited to attend.

Host families needed

The World Educational Student Travel, a non-profit organization, is seeking host families for French and Spanish exchange students who will spend one month in the area this summer. The European youths range in age from 14 to 19 and each has had at least three years of English language training. For details call Lee Hubert at 229-6316.

Credit Union's Traveling Branch

A representative of the state's Credit Union is available from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month, in the lobby of the Administration Building at Eastern State Hospital.

Services available include processing of new accounts; free checking; loan processing; savings withdrawals (checks only); transfers and deposits (no cash); payroll deduction to Credit Union accounts and Visa and MasterCard at attractive rates.

Classified Advertisements

Classified ads are included as a service to members of the College community and will be accepted from faculty, staff, students and alumni only. The fee for ads is $3 for three consecutive issues. Ads should be no longer than 40 words and must be submitted, in writing and with payment, to the William and Mary News office no later than 5 p.m. on the Friday preceding the first insertion. Corrections must be made before the second insertion. Any change is considered a new ad.

No Heart For a Kingdom

The life and times of William's Mary, through music, drama and dance by
 Catherine Flye and June Armstrong-Wright

"No Heart For A Kingdom" is the poignant love story of King William III and Queen Mary II. It captures the public and private drama of Mary's life, and the manners, mores and devious intrigues of the times. Over 30 fascinating characters, such as Samuel Pepys, and Christopher Wren are portrayed against the colorful backdrop of the late seventeenth century. The play highlights the music of Mary's special friend, Henry Purcell, performed by an original instrument ensemble.

"No Heart For a Kingdom" was commissioned by the Folger Shakespeare Library, Washington, D.C.
