McDonald's program aids education

From now through Monday, Sept. 4, area McDonald's restaurants are inviting customers to help them "quench the thirst for knowledge." For every 22-ounce soft drink sold during the period, McDonald's will donate 25 cents to a scholarship fund, the proceeds of which will be divided among five universities — including William and Mary.

This is the third year for McDonald's scholarship fundraiser and the first time William and Mary has participated. Also sponsoring this year's promotion is Coca-Cola, since the company provides the soft drinks sold at McDonald's.

McDonald's is using its local TV and radio time to promote the program along with signs in the participating stores. The company has announced that it expects to collect over $25,000 during the 11-day promotional period, which would boost each institution's student aid budget this year by $5,000. Sharing the proceeds with William and Mary are Elizabeth City State University, Norfolk State University, Hampton University and Old Dominion University.

McDonald's is the world's leading food service organization, serving some 22 million people each day in over 10,000 restaurants in 50 countries. Seventy-five percent of McDonald's are locally owned and operated by independent entrepreneurs.

Administrators from the participating universities posed with area representatives of McDonald's and Coca-Cola at a scholarship drive kickoff luncheon earlier this month at Elizabeth City State University. Ed Irish (center, second row), director of student financial aid, represented William and Mary at the event.

Marshall-Wythe enrolls a strong class of 1992

By Faye F. Shealy
Associate Dean of Admissions
Marshall-Wythe School of Law

The traditionally strong student body of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law has been further strengthened with the addition of the Class of 1992. Their enrollment this month marked the end of the law school's busiest admission season, characterized by the following significant facts:

- the largest number of applicants for admission and a 30 percent increase over the size of the 1988 applicant pool.
- an increase in the applicant pool that outpaced the national increase by 12 percent.
- the most selective admission process in our history with less than 20 percent of applicants offered admission.
- the best-qualified admittees, as measured by the median LSAT score of 41 (equivalent to the 92nd percentile) and a median undergraduate grade point average of 3.40.
- students who were brighter in terms of standardized test scores and more diverse in terms of race, gender, work experience and background.

The number of applicants to ABA-approved schools in 1989 increased 11.5 percent over the prior year and those applicants generated a 17.7 percent increase in applications. These striking increases were unexpected. Law schools generally had been advised to expect modest declines as the number of 22- and 23-year-olds in the population shrank.

The experience at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law has not mirrored the national trend in respect to the prior downturn, which occurred in the early and mid-'80s.

Applications for admission to the Class of 1992 arrived from 3,084 candidates, representing the largest applicant pool in the history of the law school. Although a sizable decline (16 percent) occurred in 1984, significant increases in the number of applicants to this law school have followed: up 5 percent in 1985; up 11 percent in 1986; up 9 percent in 1987; up 16 percent in 1988; up 30.3 percent this year — an increase in

President extends invitation to Sept. 11 faculty meeting

To: All members of the faculty and administration:

The annual collegewide faculty meeting will be held at 4 p.m., Monday, Sept. 11 in Millington auditorium.

Provost Melvyn D. Schiavelli will preside, and the academic deans will introduce new members of their respective faculties.

Deans and departmental chairs are urged to extend special invitations to their new colleagues to attend this meeting.

Biographical information on new faculty will be distributed in advance of the meeting to reduce the time of introductions.

Rector of the College Hays T. Watkins will offer a few remarks, and I will discuss the administration's priorities for the upcoming academic year.

After the meeting, you are invited to attend an informal reception in the Muscarelle Museum. I hope to see you on Monday, Sept. 11.

Paul R. Verkuil
President

P.S. Please mark your calendar for Sunday, Sept. 24, when Mrs. Verkuil and I look forward to visiting with you at a faculty barbecue in the Wren yard.

Sept. 15 memorial concert to honor Peg MacDonald

A memorial concert at 8 p.m., Friday, Sept. 15 at the Williamsburg Regional Library Fine Arts Theater will honor Margaret (Peg) MacDonald.

The concert is sponsored by the Wednesday Morning Music Club of which Mrs. MacDonald was a long-time member and supporter. The artists are students of Dr. Genevieve McGiffert, a club member, who has offered the proceeds of the concerts to go to the club's grants-in-aid scholarship fund.

Peg MacDonald's devotion to the musical life of the community over the years, supporting young talented musicians in their on-going careers both through the club and in Tidewater and on the Peninsula, was indefatigable. She was the wife of Frank A. MacDonald, professor of philosophy emeritus.

Artists who will perform at this concert honoring Mrs. MacDonald include the following: Peggy Overton Vaughan of Hampton, soprano; Tami Bick, mezzo-soprano, and John Demler, tenor, both of Richmond; Cliff Williams, baritone from Surry and Williamsburg; and Jim Weaver, Williamsburg, bass/baritone. The artists will be accompanied at the piano by Ruth Easterling Winters of Hampton.

The concert program will include arias, duets and larger ensembles from Verdi's "La Traviata" and Gounod's "Faust."

Tickets may be ordered by sending checks ($7 per adult; $5 per student) payable to the Wednesday Morning Music Club, P. O. Box 1808, Williamsburg, 23187.

Tickets will be held for pickup at the door the evening of the concert.

Essential employees will be credited with compensatory leave for the hours they worked beyond the 2 p.m. closing on Friday.

Supervisors have been asked to submit a list of these employees and the hours they worked to the office of Personnel Services so that their leave balances can be adjusted.

Hourly employees will be paid their regular wage only for hours worked.

Any compensatory time earned on Friday must be used within one year.

If you have any questions about these procedures please call Lois Parker, ext. 4310; or Tammy Benedict, ext. 4836.

There will be an accompanist.

For advance perusal of the script, librettos may be borrowed at the theatre department. For further information, please contact Leslie Muchmore, theatre department faculty, ext. 4377.

Two campus units get new names

Educational Media will henceforth be known as Instructional Technology Services and will report to Franklin E. "Bud" Robeson, acting vice provost for information technology. Duplicating services will continue its services in Swem Library.

Instructional Technology Services, says Robeson, will continue to provide institutional support for the academic community, but with more emphasis on recent available technology and the increasing needs of faculty for more sophisticated teaching aids.

The Center for Psychological Services on Richmond Road has changed its name and will now be known as the Center for Personal Learning and Development.

Cops! Cowboys! Extra-Terrestrials!

Join the faculty-staff Put 'n Take paperback exchange library in James Blair 213.

Entry Fee: Three used paperbacks.

Rules: Put one in for each one borrowed.

Honor system applies.

Noonday prayer

A noonday prayer service is being initiated by the chaplains of the College. Beginning Thursday, Aug. 31, they will conduct a service of scripture, reading, prayer and meditation in the Wren Chapel, Monday through Friday from 12:10 to 12:30 p.m., while classes are in session.

These services are open to faculty, staff, students and visitors.

Radio course

If you've ever dreamed of being on the airwaves, here's your chance. The Office of Special Programs is offering an amateur radio novice course designed to prepare beginners to pass the FCC required exam for a novice class amateur radio license. Also International Morse Code training will be given.

The class begins Sept. 18 and will meet Mondays from 7 to 9:30 p.m. The fee is $25.

To register call the Office of Special Programs ext. 4084 or 4047. This office also has catalogs detailing all the courses offered this fall.

Discounts offered on football tickets

Faculty and staff are offered a discount on season tickets for home football games.

Sideline reserved seats are $40 each; End Zone reserved, $20; and the Gold Seat Family Plan for up to five season tickets, $55.

The team will play five games at home on the following schedule: Colgate, Sept. 9; Delaware, Oct. 7; East Tennessee State (Homecoming) Nov. 4; James Madison, Nov. 11; and Richmond, Nov. 18.

Checks, made payable to WMAA should be sent to the Ticket Office, P. O. Box 399, Williamsburg, VA 23187.

For further ticket information, please call ext. 4492 or 4705.

Library prohibits eating, smoking

Library patrons are reminded that eating, drinking and smoking are not permitted in Swem Library.

Food and drink are not to be brought into the library, and none may be consumed in any public area of the library, including study areas, stacks, stairwells, elevators, rest rooms, typing rooms and carrels. Food and drink brought into the building will be subject to confiscation.

Eating and drinking are permitted only in the 24-hour lounge adjacent to the front entrance of Swem. The lounge also has a smoking area. Use of other tobacco products is not permitted.

The library's vigorous campaign to enforce these regulations is necessary to preserve research materials and guarantee the longest possible "shelf life" for them. Food debris attracts a variety of insects and rodents, which then feed on glue and paper; mildew poses an equal threat to the shelf life of books.

"Cooperation from all library users together with an atmosphere of shared concern and responsibility is essential to our preservation efforts," said Jim Deffenbaugh, assistant university librarian for collection development and preservation.

Permission to use SSN

For the automated circulation system, the library of the College needs to identify each borrower with a numerical code, preferably the borrower's social security number.

With your permission, the College can provide a tape of social security numbers, which can be loaded into the database where they will be protected from unauthorized use.

In compliance with Virginia Code, Section 2.1-385, we request permission to use your social security number within our database. If this is not acceptable to you, please notify the William and Mary libraries in writing by Sept. 30. Address correspondence to Linda Adams, Circulation Coordinator, Swem Library.

If we do not hear from you by Sept. 30, we will assume that we have your permission.

Thank you.

Berna Heyman
Assistant University Librarian for Automation and Bibliographic
Control

Concert Series Is Sold Out

The William and Mary Concert Series is fully subscribed. Patrons wishing individual tickets will be put on a waiting list the evening of the performance. Seats reserved by season ticket holders not claimed by 8 p.m. will be filled by those on the waiting list.

There are, however, tickets for the opera performances of "La Boheme" by the New York City Opera's National Company. Two performances will be presented in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall, Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 29 and 30. Tickets are $12 each and will go on sale Monday, Jan. 15.

Emergency Closing Policy for Aug. 18

The Emergency Closing Policy procedures are being used for payroll reporting that was affected by the closing on Aug. 18 because of flooding and electrical outages on campus.

Non-essential employees (those employees not required to work during authorized closings); Those non-essential employees whose supervisors' required that they stay beyond the 2 p.m. closing are eligible for compensatory leave.

Essential employees (those employees identified by the employing department who are required to work during emergency closings):

Family Education Rights and Privacy Act

Under the terms of the Family Education Rights and Privacy Act of 1974, the College is to inform enrolled students annually of their rights under the law. The act does not apply to students admitted to the College who have not officially enrolled.

The College hereby affirms that its policies and procedures are in full compliance with the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974, whereby each student's right to the privacy of his or her official College records and access to the same is assured.

Enrolled students should have the following rights under the law:

1. The right of access to his or her official College records. Under the terms of the Act, the College is not required to make available to students the following materials:
 - a. Confidential letters of recommendation placed in the student's files before Jan. 1, 1975, and those letters for which the student has signed a waiver of his or her right of access.
 - b. Parents' confidential financial statements.
 - c. Medical, psychiatric, or similar records "which are created, maintained, or used only in connection with the provision of treatment to the student are not available to anyone other than persons providing such treatment; provided, however, that such records can be personally reviewed by a physician or other appropriate professional of the student's choice."
 - d. Personal files and records of members of the faculty or administrative personnel, which are in the sole possession of the maker thereof and which are not accessible or revealed to any person except a substitute.
 - e. Records of the Admissions Office concerning students admitted but not yet enrolled at the College. Letters of recommendation are removed from the admissions files before the files are forwarded to the Registrar's Office.
2. The right to inspect and review his or her official College records.
3. The right to a response from the College to reasonable requests for explanations and interpretations of his or her official records.
4. The right to an opportunity for a hearing to challenge the accuracy or appropriateness of his or her official records.
5. The right to have disclosure of his or her official records limited to College officials or other persons authorized under the Act, for legitimate purposes, unless permission for release of such information to other parties is given in writing.

The College has designated the following information as "Directory Information," which may be released to the public:

1. Student's name, address (permanent and local), telephone number (permanent and local).
2. Student's birthdate.
3. Dates of attendance at the College, field of concentration, current classification, current enrollment status (full or part time), degrees awarded.
4. Previous schools attended and degrees awarded.
5. Honors or special recognition.
6. Height and weight of members of athletic teams.

A student who does not want the above information made public must file notice in writing of his or her request in the Registrar's Office, James Blair, by Sept. 11, 1989.

A student wishing to review his or her college records must consult the directory of official student records in the Registrar's Office. The directory lists the offices where official student records are maintained and the name of the official responsible for the maintenance and release of each type of record and to whom requests for access should be made.

Grants for research total over $2 million

A major grant of $232,690 from the National Science Foundation been awarded to continue work in nuclear physics with medium energy hadronic and electromagnetic probes being undertaken by professors Charles F. Perdrisat, John M. Finn and Herbert O. Funsten. This brings to $407,690 grant support to date for this project. The current grant supports work until Jan. 31, 1991.

Studies of nuclear reactions with electrons and pions will be conducted at accelerators at Bates, Brookhaven National Laboratory, Saclay (ALS and Saturne), SLAC/NPAS, LAMPF, TRIUMF and Illinois. Research activities will also be carried out at CEBAF in Newport News where the Medium Energy Group has a strong involvement.

The National Science Foundation has awarded $30,297 for equipment for a polymer laboratory, which is being supervised by Professor Robert Orwoll. These funds will provide a membrane osmometer for determining the number-average molecular weight of a polymer sample and a light-scattering photometer for the weight-average molecular weight and also for determining molecular sizes for use in an introductory polymer laboratory course.

These NSF grants helped push the total of recent grant awards over the $2 million mark. Other grants include the following:

Anthropology

The Archaeological Projects Center has received the following contracts for its services: The FCR Group has awarded a contract of $2,680 to the center for a Phase I archaeological survey of Williamsburg Green Outlet Center. This investigation is intended to provide specific information concerning the nature and distribution of potential archaeological resources within the project area. The work includes a review of the existing archaeological sites and an evaluation of the extant documentary and cartographic sources of the area.

Provost announces search for new dean of business school

Provost Melvyn Schiavelli has announced the formation of a search committee to find a successor to the current dean of the School of Business Administration, John C. Jamison, who will be leaving at the end of the 1989-90 academic year.

The committee has been asked to identify candidates who are committed to the College's goals of quality education and excellence in research and service. The new dean will be expected to continue the efforts of his predecessor to enhance the reputation and activities of the School of Business Administration and its faculty as well as strengthen the partnership between the School and the rest of the College community.

The Provost made it clear that the upcoming Campaign for the Fourth Century is a particularly important time for the School of Business Administration. Dean Jamison's successor should be familiar with development activities in an academic setting and should be well equipped to help define the School's role and provide active leadership as the Campaign progresses.

The search committee includes five members of the business school faculty: Larry Pulley, associate professor and chair of the committee; Herrington Bryce, Life of Virginia Professor of Business Administration; Jim Smith, John S. Quinn

Professor of Accounting and director of the accounting program; Ron Sims, associate professor; and Kim Smith, assistant professor. Members of the committee from outside the School of Business Administration are Robert Archibald, chair of the economics department; Paul A. Dresser Jr., chief financial officer of Chesapeake Corporation; and Douglas J. Myers, president of the MBA Alumni Association. Working closely with the committee will be a student group having representation from each of the school's undergraduate, MBA, and Executive MBA programs.

Under Dean Jamison the School of Business Administration has experienced a growth in faculty, improved and expanded its programs, and enjoyed a substantial increase in resources and facilities — including space for graduate programs in the renovation of Blow gymnasium.

Schiavelli expressed his conviction that this demonstrated progress and continuing momentum, combined with the many positive forces at work within the College community, will attract a number of highly qualified candidates. The search committee has been requested to submit the names of three acceptable and unranked candidates to the President and Provost in time for an appointment to be made no later than the April meeting of the Board of Visitors.

President, Sadler, Deutsch greet new students

President Paul R. Verkuil met with members of the Class of 1993 and their families in William and Mary Hall Saturday, the first day of orientation on academics and campus life.

"We have a wonderful educational experience for you at a very highly discounted price, courtesy of a lot of things, primarily the state and beyond that private gifts and donations," he told entering students.

"The College has been working on its curriculum, examining opportunities for new academic undertakings, intellectual additions in a sustained way over the last four years," said Verkuil. He listed four curriculum initiatives in the areas of international studies, public policy, the sciences and American studies, which he said were very important to him.

"We have unveiled a new program in American studies, which builds on our existing strengths in that field, including a course in American history in the colonial period. We have expanded American studies in the 19th and 20th centuries and are bringing together an exciting new faculty commitment in this area with a new Ph.D. program and shortly an American studies undergraduate concentration to complement it."

In the area of international relations Verkuil talked about the new Wendy and Emery Reves Center for International Studies facility, which includes housing for students and extensive programs for study abroad.

A part of the emphasis on international studies, said Verkuil, is the College's wide offerings in foreign languages.

"We teach more foreign language credits than any institution in the state on a per capita basis, and we intend to continue that tradition as part of the international studies venture."

The President also talked about the expanding public policy program. He said that new programs of an important interdisciplinary nature were being added to existing offerings. "During your stay here we will have a master's degree program in public policy, but, more important, we will have a bachelor's program in public policy in place before you are ready to leave in order for you to be able to participate in it."

For students interested in the sciences, President Verkuil talked about the applied science program being implemented and said that funding had been received and planning was underway for the new science building, Tercentenary Hall, which will be built beside the Sunken Garden.

"We are expanding our science curriculum," said Verkuil. "We feel that a truly liberally educated person is that person who knows the sciences as well as the humanities, and we are anxious to have you here. Our programs in physics, biology, chemistry and geology are very active."

New facilities, said Verkuil, include the new physical education/recreational building just completed. "You won't be able to appreciate what a step forward it is because you weren't here to be involved with Blow gymnasium," he said. "Blow gymnasium was our physical education building, vintage 1925, and nothing had happened to it since 1925, so we were overdue. In some cases," he quipped, "history has not helped us."

Blow gymnasium, he added, was being reworked and would be ready in about 18 months. It will become a student services center bringing together facilities students need for what he termed "one-stop shopping." The M.B.A. program and the Placement Office will also be housed in the building.

The President advised freshmen to get in the habit of walking. "I always like to talk about walking to freshmen because you are not supposed to have cars; they are not legal. It is a nice tradition to get into because even when you are eligible for a car, you'll have to find a parking place, and that creates a whole lot of new problems. Keep walking," advised Verkuil.

He also suggested students take advantage of the beauty of the restored area and enjoy the entire city of Williamsburg while they are here.

Verkuil talked about the events that traditionally take place in William and Mary Hall and tax the facility to its limits. "We had the unusual experience of students scalping tickets to graduation this year. I'd like to speculate on what the price would be for a ticket in here in 1993. Quite a profitable undertaking for you — one of the benefits you get from being in this class, you can sell your tickets — you can go to the beach."

In a more serious vein Verkuil spoke of the university's heritage. "It is important to know the historical dimension simply because this campus exudes American history. I can assure you that I feel it every day. I am the 25th president of the College of William and Mary, and my predecessor and founding president, James Blair who started all of this in 1693 — and managed to serve as president for 50 years, a record I have no intention of challenging — lived in the same home I live in, the President's House on the Wren Yard. It is quite a tradition to hand on. ... It is important because architecture means so much.

"You wonder about what the 300 years mean and how do you express it, how do you feel it; without architecture, without the Wren Yard, without the three buildings — the President's House, the Brafferton and the Wren Building — in the center of our campus, being 300 wouldn't mean the same thing at all. ... There are many things about the campus you will learn to love — the Wren Building, that is where it all starts."

In his remarks, Vice President for Student Affairs Sam Sadler told students he felt there were three key elements to being successful at William and Mary: "hard work, the acceptance of responsibility and involvement, and an openness to the possibilities of life as they unfold during your college years."

"William and Mary is a special place not only because of the quality of teaching and learning, which take place in the classroom, but also because of our strong sense of community," said Sadler. "Here we have a concern for each other."

Sadler said that one of the ways in which he stays in touch with the concerns of students is to have lunch each Wednesday in the Commons dining hall. "Please don't be embarrassed or feel as though I'm singling you out in some way if I come over and sit down. It's lonely sitting at a table by myself. Such visits give us both a good opportunity to get acquainted and to talk about issues and concerns that may be on your mind."

To the parents, Sadler spoke as a parent who had just left a daughter at college. "I wanted to hear as a parent that those people who would now be directing her educational quest really understood how important each of these new students is. I wanted to hear that there would be someone there who cared when the situation required it; that the community was consciously structured to provide nurture and to facilitate growth; and that the staff would encourage her developing sense of independence, responsibility and personal confidence. I can tell you that those are the expectations that guide our contacts with your sons and daughters at William and Mary. Those of us who teach and administer here do so because we genuinely enjoy the young people who are our students and have a deep sense of commitment to them."

To students, he said, "It is our sincere hope that every one of you will be able to echo the sentiment expressed by a 1989 graduate when she wrote 'I wish I could do it over again. William and Mary was the best experience of my life.'"

Sadler also listed some statistics on the class of 1993: There are 1,278 in the class, chosen from among 9,475 applicants. The College admitted 2,535 students. As a group, median SATs were 1250, and of those who came from high schools which ranked their students, 75 percent were in the top 10 percent of their class. In fact, 113, almost 10 percent, were valedictorians or salutatorians, and 84 hold the distinction of being designated as Presidential Scholars (top 5 percent SATs in excess of 1400).

"We also take great pride in the fact that the class is also our most diverse to date," said Sadler.

There are 114 black students in the entering class and a total minority enrollment of 16 percent; 26 students come from foreign countries. This diversity of student population will add immensely to the richness of the experience we will all have at William and Mary. Fifty-four percent of the class are women; 67 percent come from the Commonwealth of Virginia, but almost every state is represented.

"I have to tell you that it's a little scary to recite these statistics and to realize, as a William and Mary graduate, that you probably couldn't be admitted to your Alma Mater any longer," quipped Sadler.

Tom Deutsch, president of the Student Association drew on some of his experiences to urge students to get involved with student life.

"You are at this school for a liberal arts education, but William and Mary is so much more than that. It is a unique learning experience, both in and outside of the classroom. Nowhere else will you have the opportunity to become involved as you do here.

"And parents, don't be afraid to let go," said Deutsch. "In order to become adults, we students have to grow. We have to experience things on our own, and sometimes we have to make mistakes. That's what college is for.

"To the class of 1993, my message would be to make friends and, again, get involved."

Deutsch closed his remarks with a quote from Glenn Close, who gave the 1989 commencement address. "This quote wasn't directed just to the seniors," said Deutsch, "it was directed to all of us 'JUST GO OUT THERE AND DO IT!' she said. You are the class of 1993. You've probably heard it 50 times today and you'll hear it 5,000 times more before you graduate. This class, more than any other, has the unique opportunity to lead William and Mary into its fourth century. So make a difference while you are here. For almost all of us, College is the best four years of our lives. But it is also the fastest. So cherish your time here, and make the best of it."

Honors 201 film and lecture series

Under the title "The Self and the Other: Perspectives on Western Culture," Honors 201 will show a series of films on Wednesdays at 3:30 and 7 p.m. in the Williamsburg Regional Library Arts Center. These are open without charge to members of the College community.

Talks are scheduled for Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m. in Tucker 120.

Programs through October are:

Sept. 6 — "Persona" (Sweden, 1966), director Ingmar Bergman.

Sept. 13 — "Outrageous" (Canada, 1977), director Richard Benner.

Sept. 20 — "Psychological Views of the Self and the Other" by Charles Matthews, School of Education, and Michael Rohrbach, psychology.

Sept. 27 — "The Self and the Family" by Monica McGoldrick, Rutgers Medical School.

Oct. 4 — "The Return of Martin Guerre" (France, 1982), director Daniel Vigne.

Oct. 6 (Friday) — Special Presentation: "Antigone" marionette theater by Peter Arnott, Williamsburg Regional Library Arts Center, 7:30 p.m. (Children under 12 not admitted.)

Oct. 11 — "The Story of Adele H" (France, 1975), director François Truffaut.

Oct. 18 — "Wozzeck" (film of the Alban Berg opera; in German, no English subtitles).

Oct. 25 — "The Canvas Mirror: The Painter's Image of Self," a slide lecture by Richard Palmer, theatre and speech.

has awarded $3,965 for a Phase II architectural study of Boom Furnace, Pulaski County, by the center. This study will include an evaluation of the structures in the area in terms of criteria for eligibility to be listed in the National Register of Historic Places and to identify the effects of proposed construction on the property if warranted.

VDT has also awarded $4,177 in supplemental funds for a Phase I cultural resource survey of the proposed Route 29 projects.

Operations Manager Donald W. Linebaugh will be director of these two projects. He will also direct work on a Phase II architectural evaluation of the Mill Village associated with the Route 707 project in Rappahannock County. The Virginia Department of Transportation has awarded $3,299 for this work.

Linebaugh will also direct work on the archaeological resource planning of the Williamsburg Pottery property. An award of $2,191 has been made by the DeYoung-Johnson Group, Inc.

Center Director Robert T. Hunter Jr. will direct a Phase I archaeological survey of the proposed MCP sites at Langley Air Force Base for which a contract in the amount of $5,354 has been received from Waller Todd and Sadler Architects, Inc. Hunter will also direct work on a Phase I cultural resources survey of the proposed Route 613 project; an investigation of two new alternatives for Route 460 in Montgomery County; and a Phase II architectural survey of the Millington House. The Virginia Department of Transportation has awarded $34,177 for these three projects.

The Washington Design Group, LTD., is funding a combined Phase I and Phase II archaeological evaluation of a proposed Virginia State Library Records Storage Facility in Richmond, Va. This work is being directed by Hunter, and funds of $10,169 have been provided.

Biology

Ruth Beck, assistant professor, has been awarded a grant of $8,000 by Virginia Department of Game and Inland Fisheries to define the essential habitat for the red-cockaded woodpecker in Virginia.

Professor Mitchell A. Byrd has been awarded a grant of $40,000 from the Virginia Department of Game and Inland Fisheries for work with nongame and endangered species. He will continue his study of the osprey, the peregrine falcon, the bald eagle and the habitat of the barn owl.

Byrd has also received a $50,000 grant from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (administered through the Virginia Department of Game and Inland Fisheries) for special research on the piping plover, an endangered species on Assateague Island.

Associate Professor Stanton F. Hoegerman is project director for an investigation of the effects of dideoxy and similar nucleoside analogs on chromosome structure and behavior. This work is being funded by a grant of $700 from the Virginia Academy of Science.

Professor C. Richard Terman has received a grant of $2,300 from the Jeffress Trust for a study of socially induced contraception, "Clarification of Mechanism," part of his continuing study of prairie deer mice. This brings to $17,000 funds received from the Trust for this work.

Chemistry

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has awarded $90,680 for work to develop frequency-dependent, electromagnetic techniques for measuring in situ during fabrication in a tool the processing properties of resins that may be used for rocket, space and aircraft structures and engines. Project director is Professor David E. Kranbuehl.

The major long-range goal is to develop on-line instrumentation of quantitative nondestructive material evaluation and closed loop "smart" cure cycle control.

DuPont has awarded $3,500 in funding for a project on the frequency-dependent electromagnetic measurements of polymers directed by Kranbuehl.

The purpose of this research is to establish the ability of frequency-dependent electromagnetic sensing to monitor: onset of flow, point of minimum viscosity and maximum flow, gel point, evolution of volatiles (MEK and H₂O) and extent of reaction and completion.

Professor William H. Starnes Jr. is working on the structure of PVC prepared in the presence of Tetrahydrofuran, a project which has received a grant of $81,895 from the B. F. Goodrich Company.

Starnes is also the project director for work in the elucidation of polymer microstructures which has received a grant of $40,400 from the National Science Foundation.

This research will contribute to a detailed understanding of the molecular microstructures and polymerization mechanisms of two synthetic polymers having great technological significance. The polymers are poly (vinyl chloride) (PVC) and poly (vinyl acetate) (PVAc).

The Petroleum Research Fund/American Chemical Society, has awarded $20,000 for work in the insertion reactions of cyclodextrin-bound carbenes which is being conducted under the direction of Christopher J. Abelt, assistant professor.

The purpose of this research is to develop carbene insertion reactions as a method for regioselective devitization of B-cyclodextrin. This will be achieved by determining how carbene reactivity is expressed in the B-cavity.

W. Gary Hollis Jr., assistant professor, is directing work on "The Use of Chiral Boronate Esters in Asymmetric Diels Alder Cycloadditions," under a grant of $42,750 awarded by the Jeffress Memorial Trust. The goal of this work is to develop systems wherein high levels of asymmetric induction are possible and which yield cycloadducts of synthetic interest.

Computer Science

NASA has awarded a grant of $69,905 for work on a practical theory of ultra-reliable software. This brings to $103,796 the grants awarded for this project, which is being directed by Professors S. K. Park and R. E. Noonan and Assistant Professor K. W. Miller.

Researchers are seeking to develop methods for improving reliability based on a theory of incremental reliability, which is the process of producing quantifiable reliability improvements by the repeated application of fault removal techniques, and at each stress stage of this process determining a new estimate of the reliability of the resulting software.

Professor Stephen K. Park and assistant professor David M. Nicol are working on a parallelization of reliability performance estimation tools used to design embedded avionics computing systems, under a grant of $89,313 from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

C.I.T. has awarded $39,838 for parallelization of performability design tools which will be directed by Nicol. The goal of this project is to develop methods for parallelizing software used in the design of complex computer systems on the Intel IPSC/2.

Economics

The U.S. Agency for International Development has awarded $74,417 under the intergovernmental personnel act for work being directed by Eric R. Jensen, associate professor.

This assignment permits civilian employees of institutions of higher education to serve in federal agencies to aid in solving problems and delivering improved services through the sharing of professional, administrative and technical expertise.

History

The Gwathmey Memorial Trust has awarded $5,000 to fund a scholarly conference commemorating the tercentenary of the accession of King William III and Queen Mary II to the English throne, held Feb. 9-11. The director was Professor Dale Hoak.

International Studies

The Korea Research Foundation has made a grant of $20,000 for the continuing development of Korean studies at the College. This brings to $40,001 the amount awarded by the Foundation for this work, which is being directed by James A. Bill, director of the Wendy and Emery Reves Center for International Studies.

Physical Education

The Athletic Congress of the USA has awarded $3,000 for a biomechanical analysis of shotput and discus throwers. This project, which is being directed by Raymond W. McCoy, assistant professor, will provide analysis by feedback with video taping of U.S. Olympic shotput and discus athletes in training.

Physics

The National Science Foundation has awarded $94,901 in a two-year grant for topics in theoretical physics being directed by Professor Carl Carlson.

Four problems will be investigated under this grant: The N-Δ electromagnetic transition at all Q₂; the distribution amplitude of gluons in a glueball; electrodisintegration of relativistic heavy ions; hadronization of spectators to deep inelastic scattering in nuclei; and the electromagnetic form factor of the deuteron.

Eugene R. Tracy, assistant professor, is investigating the effects of ISI on laser plasma instability under a grant of $24,995 from the U.S. Naval Research Laboratory.

Keun Jenn Sun, research scientist, is directing work on the applications for high temperature superconductors, which is being supported by a grant of $62,500 from NASA. Grants to date total $121,500.

Significant efforts are being made to develop applications for high temperature superconductors. To facilitate these developments, better characterization techniques are required at both the materials and systems levels. Ultrasonics has shown promise as a technique for characterizing the microstructure of the materials, as well as their superconducting phenomenon. The purpose of this project is to conduct research to better understand the interaction of the ultrasonic wave with the superconductor.

The Southeastern Universities Research Association (SURA), Inc., has made awards to promising graduate students enrolled or enrolling in master's or doctoral programs at SURA member institutions and whose research interests are synergistic with research activities to be conducted at the Continuous Electron Beam Accelerator Facility (CEBAF) in Newport News, i.e. nuclear physics, accelerator physics and related scientific and engineering fields.

A recent grant of $10,500 from SURA/CEBAF has been awarded to graduate student Veljko Dmitrsinovic.

Research scientist Meng-Chou Wu, is director of research on relating ultrasonic properties to polymer systems which has received a grant of $57,000 from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. This research focuses on relating the ultrasonic properties to important polymer properties such as viscosity, free volume and degree of cure.

NASA has awarded a $500 travel supplement to enable D. Chris Benner, research associate professor, to attend a conference pertaining to his work on gas correlation spectroscopy. To date $512,376 in funding has been received for this project.

Psychology

Professor Ellen Rosen has received $39,200 for assistantships in psychology at Eastern State Hospital. These funds have been provided by the Virginia Department of Mental Health, Mental Retardation and Substance Abuse Services. The assistantships will provide continued training in clinical psychology and research to students in the psychology department's master's degree program.

Affirmative Action office

The State Council of Higher Education for Virginia has awarded a grant of $9,166 to the Affirmative Action Office for graduate fellowships for fiscal year 1989-90. This program provides need-based fellowships for other-race students.

Arts and Sciences

The State Council of Higher Education for Virginia has awarded $36,000 for support of existing graduate fellowships and the creation of new ones. This program is administered by Graduate Dean of Arts and Sciences Robert J. Scholnick.

Ash Lawn-Highland

A grant of $64,736 in general operating support has been awarded by the Institute of Museum Services. The funding will enable Ash Lawn-Highland to continue the accelerated rate of both its short- and long-range goals in research, restoration, preservation and education. Carolyn C. Holmes is executive director of Ash Lawn-Highland.

The Virginia Commission for the Arts awarded $625 in touring assistance for Bob Brown Puppets and J. Plunky Branch.

School of Business Administration

The Virginia Institute of Marine Science has awarded a grant of $31,270 for economic and business management studies on the aquaculture of striped bass. These studies will be directed by Roy L. Pearson, director, Bureau of Business Research.

Pearson will also direct a number of research projects that will be funded over the coming year by a grant of $83,490 from the State Department of Taxation.

The Bureau of Business Research will conduct six to eight research projects per year on current economic topics or issues of concern to Virginia government agencies, state or local offices. The goal is provide useful information and analysis in a timely manner. Total award to date for this work is $163,290.

School of Education

The Virginia Foundation for the Humanities and Public Policy awarded $30,000 for the Eastern Virginia Writing Project this summer, a program which continues to center on increasing the competency of student writers at all grade levels in all disciplines.

A grant of $80,000 from the U.S. Department of Education will be used in a master's degree program for preparing teachers of seriously emotionally disturbed students. This program will be directed by Professor Douglas Prillaman and Lori Korinek, assistant professor.

This training program will prepare special education professionals to apply background knowledge and skills to assess performance, manage behavior, develop social skills, and plan and implement individualized educational programs for seriously emotionally disturbed children and youth.

In another grant award to the School of Education, the U.S. Department of Education has awarded $79,818 to assist a master's program to prepare resource/consulting teachers in special education. The resource/consulting teacher project prepares well-qualified teachers to serve mildly handicapped and at-risk students and their teachers in least restrictive settings. This program is being directed by Virginia K. Laycock, associate dean, and Korinek.

Joyce vanTassel-Baska, Jody and Layton Smith Associate Professor of Education, has received funding of $64,800 from the Virginia State Library and Archives for libraries link learning. This project will establish a collaborative model for a new network of linking library services, expanding existing library resource sharing opportunities and operating a model network of services to a target population.

Marshall-Wythe School of Law

The Post Conviction Assistance Program, directed by Professor John Levy, has received a grant of $3,200 from the U.S. Department of Justice. In this program, law students perform legal assistance to inmates at the Federal Correctional Institution in Petersburg. The services include interviews, research, investigation, correspondence, referrals to Legal Aid Societies and other attorneys, drafting briefs, post-conviction motions and petitions.

The Post Conviction Assistance Project has received support for a legal skills pro-bono teacher through a grant of $49,400 from the U.S. Department of Education. The faculty member will direct the expansion of the law school's innovative legal skills program to include actual client representation.

Muscarella Museum of Art

The Williamsburg Arts Commission has awarded the museum a grant of $3,800 for the coming year in support of its children's classes. These classes are designed to introduce young students to the museum and its collections and to develop an appreciation and understanding of the visual arts through exposure to original objects, gallery dialogues and informal studio sessions.

VIMS

The national Aeronautics and Space Administration has awarded a $12,000 grant to VIMS for Transmission (TEM) and scanning (SEM) studies on polymers. This work will be directed by Patrice L. Mason, laboratory specialist.

Marshall-Wythe applications, enrollment increase the applicant pool of over 90 percent since 1984.

More important than these numbers is the high quality of candidates comprising the applicant pool and class. Applications were received from 49 states (South Dakota is the exception), the District of Columbia and several foreign countries. They attended 553 different undergraduate institutions. The University of Virginia and the College of William and Mary remain the primary feeder schools (208 and 137 applicants, respectively).

Largely due to the unanticipated increase in the national applicant pool and a jump in yield, recent entering classes have slightly exceeded the projected class size of 175. The new class has 186 students despite the fact that fewer students were offered admission.

This class includes 97 females (52 percent) and 22 minorities (12 percent). It is the first majority female class. The median LSAT score for the entering class is 41 (92nd percentile) when calculated using the highest score for individuals with multiple test scores and 40 (90th percentile) when calculated using the average score for multiple test takers.

Their median undergraduate grade point average is 3.27. Twenty-three states plus the District of Columbia and the countries of Ethiopia, India and Ghana are represented in the class, as are 95 different undergraduate colleges and universities. Twenty-three percent attended the University of Virginia or the College of William and Mary. Duke University provided the next largest group of students.

Although political science, government and history are the most popular majors, incoming law students have majored in almost all disciplines, with business and science or engineering majors now accounting for one-quarter of the class. Ten percent of the class have earned post baccalaureate degrees including the M.P., M.A., M.Div., M.P.A., M.F.A., M.S., M.Ed., M.B.A., Ed.D. and Ph.D.

It is no longer the case that the overwhelming majority of entering law students are 22-year-olds who have just graduated from college. The average age of entering students is 25, and over half of the first-year students have full-time work experience — 26 as legal assistants or paralegals — others in such fields as consulting, engineering, accounting and teaching. Artists, auditors, computer analysts and a corporate CEO represent diversity among the work experience of new students.

They are a bright, diverse, accomplished group of students, and they want to be lawyers. They are members of the Class of 1992 and it is expected that they will contribute to the law school's academically strong and hard-working student body.

Labor Day Holiday

The College and Virginia Institute of Marine Science will be closed Monday, Sept. 4 to observe Labor Day.

The administrative offices, plant department and campus mail room will be closed with the exception of essential employees who are required to work. The Campus Police Department will maintain its regular schedule.

Classes are scheduled for Sept. 4. Academic support staff who are required to work will be credited with compensatory time on an hour-for-hour basis. Consistent with an exception in the Fair Labor Standards Act, non-exempt employees are also eligible for compensatory leave if they are required to work on this holiday.

The names of permanent classified employees who are required to work must be reported in writing to the Office of Personnel Services by Sept. 11 in order that these employees may be credited with compensatory leave. Hourly employees who are required to work during the holiday will be paid their regular hourly rates.

With the approval of management, compensatory leave should be taken as soon as possible after the holiday on which it was earned. Compensatory time not taken within 12 months will be lost.

On behalf of the administration of the university, I wish each member of the College community a safe and enjoyable holiday.

Melvyn D. Schiavelli
Provost

Classified Advertisements

Classified ads are included as a service to members of the College community and will be accepted from faculty, staff, students and alumni only. The fee for ads is $3 for three consecutive issues. Ads should be no longer than 40 words and must be submitted, in writing and with payment, to the William and Mary News office no later than 5 p.m. on the Friday preceding the first insertion. Corrections must be made before the second insertion. Any change is considered a new ad.

Employment

Informational interviews are held in the Office of Personnel Services each Thursday from 9 a.m. to noon on a first-come, first-served basis. This is an excellent chance to learn more about employment opportunities at the College and VIMS.

The following positions at the College are open to all qualified individuals. Visit the Office of Personnel Services, Thiemes House, 303 Richmond Road, for information, a listing of vacancies and application forms, Monday-Friday, 8 a.m.-4 p.m. All applicants must submit a completed Commonwealth of Virginia Application form to the Office of Personnel Services.

Notice: In accordance with the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986, effective immediately, all individuals hired for positions at the College of William and Mary or the Virginia Institute of Marine Science will be required to produce the following: either (1) one document establishing both U.S. employment authorization and identity (such as Alien Registration card with photograph, U.S. passport, certificate of U.S. citizenship, certificate of naturalization or unexpired foreign passport with attached employment authorization); or (2) one document establishing U.S. employment eligibility (such as original Social Security card, birth certificate or unexpired INS employment authorization) and one document establishing identity (such as driver's license or U.S. military card). If the employee cannot produce the required documents within three business days of hire, he/she will be subject to removal.

The College of William and Mary is committed to the principles of equal opportunity and affirmative action in the employment of faculty, administrators and non-academic personnel. This policy was reaffirmed by the Board of Visitors on Nov. 4, 1988. It is the policy of the College not to discriminate against any employee or applicant for employment on the basis of race, sex, color, national origin, religion, age, handicap, disability, veteran's status or political affiliation. It is also the policy of the College to implement appropriate affirmative action initiatives.

Deadline for applying for the following positions is 5 p.m., Friday, Sept. 1, unless otherwise indicated. Postmarks will not be honored.

Wightman Cup opens Sept. 14

The College will again play host to the BASF Wightman Cup tennis tournament which will be held Sept. 14-16 in William and Mary Hall.

This year the team competition between the United States and Great Britain will share the spotlight with an exhibition match between two tennis stars, Billie Jean King of the United States and Virginia Wade of Great Britain.

Cup matches will be played at 7:30 p.m., Sept. 14 and 15 and at 1 p.m., Sept. 16. The exhibition match between Billie Jean King and Virginia Wade will be played at 7:30 p.m., Friday, Sept. 15. The draw will be decided at a press conference, which will be held at noon on Sept. 13 in Merchant's Square. Team practice will begin Sept. 11.

The $100,000 purse will benefit women's athletics at the College, Riverside Cancer Services, the Williamsburg Community Hospital and Central Virginia Food Bank.

Tickets range from $30 for a Parquet Box; $25 for a first tier box; $12 for mezzanine; and $5 for general admission. All students (18 years and under) admitted at a discounted rate of $2.

The United States team will include teen sensations Mary Joe Fernandez and Jennifer Capriati, who will be making their U.S. Wightman Cup Team debuts when they join veterans Patty Fendick, Lori McNeil and Betsy Nagelsen. Marty Riessen is the team coach for the fourth straight year.

The British delegation will include Sarah Loos More, Sara Gomer, Jo Durie, Gretchen Magers, Amanda Grunfeld, Clare Woods and Anne Hobbs.

Billie Jean King has been a dominant player in women's tennis since the early 1960s. She has won a record 20 Wimbledon titles including the singles championship six times. She has won the Australian Open, the French Open, the U.S. Open four times, and has numerous doubles and mixed doubles Grand Slam titles. She was inducted into the International Tennis Hall of Fame in 1987.

Virginia Wade captured the Wimbledon championship under extraordinary circumstances. She played before Queen Elizabeth II on the occasion of her Silver Jubilee and the centenary of Wimbledon. In addition, Wade has won the U.S. Open and the Australian Open and in 1973 she won both the French Open and the Australian Open doubles championship. A member of Britain's Wightman Cup team from 1965 to 1968, Wade holds the career record for most appearances in Wightman Cup and Federation Cup competition.

The Wightman Cup is the only continuous competition in women's tennis played by professional teams from two countries, the United States and Great Britain. On alternate years, matches are played at the Albert Hall in London.

The competition is named for Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman, a California player who made sports history when she won nine U.S. Open titles in three years from 1909 through 1911, winning the singles, women's doubles and mixed doubles competitions all three years.

For ticket and schedule information, call the Wightman Cup office at ext. 4360.

Exhibits

Muscarelle Museum

Contemporary Inuit Drawings (through Oct. 29) showcases work produced within the past 30 years by artists native to the Canadian Arctic. Fascinating both for subject matter and for manner of presentation, these drawings offer an unparalleled opportunity to examine aspects of traditional Inuit life and culture. In conjunction with this exhibition, selected Eskimo sculpture from the Herman Foundation will be on display.

Oriental Expressions: Selections from the Permanent Collection (through Oct. 29) features Chinese, Japanese, Korean and Indian works of art from the 15th through 20th centuries, drawn from the Museum's small study collection of Asian art. A number of media are represented including drawings, paintings, woodblock prints, ceramics, jade, cloisonne enamel, ivory and bronze.

Collection Highlights (ongoing) presents a changing exhibition of works from the late medieval period to the mid-20th century, drawn from the permanent collection and selected objects on loan to the Museum. Arranged chronologically as an art historical survey, paintings, drawings, sculpture and decorative art objects are on view in the upper-level galleries.

Community Calendar

This column is devoted to events in Williamsburg and surrounding areas that would be of interest to members of the College community. We will accept entries, on a space available basis, of concerts, lectures, exhibits and other events open to the general public.

Hennage Aud. is located in the DeWitt Wallace Decorative Arts Gallery at the corner of Francis and Henry streets. Prices listed are in addition to regular gallery admission.

On-going

Overeaters Anonymous meets Mondays at 7:30 p.m. in the Wesley Foundation Student Center; and Fridays, at noon at St. Bede's Parish Center.

The Courthouse in the Historic Area is closed for restoration until Jan. 1990. Ticket sales, reservations and special tour departure operations, previously conducted at the Courthouse, have moved to the Greenhow Lumber House, just west of the Greenhow Store on the south side of Duke of Gloucester Street. A new military encampment, in an area north of the Tayloe house on Nicholson St., allows historic interpreters to more accurately reflect military life in 18th-century Virginia. The site operates from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and is accessible to visitors with a CW admission ticket. The DeWitt Wallace Gallery is closed for repairs of flood damage.

On the Hill Cultural Arts Center in Yorktown features daily art and craft demonstrations in addition to exhibits. Fall classes are being organized for adults and children. Call 898-3076. On-going events: "Pottery: Linking the Past and the Present" and "18th-Century Relics from Yorktown's 'The Poor Potters,'" on loan from the National Park Service. September exhibits: "A Family Resemblance" paintings by Alfred and Ron Pollard; and pottery by Jensen Turnage. October exhibits: "Vive Les Vetments: A Celebration of Wearable Art," clothing and accessories by Enid Adams, Cate Fitt, Ann Harney, Nancy Mead, Alice Rogan-Nelson, Lynne Sward and Virginia Wright; and baskets and pottery by Jane Conrath. On The Hill is open Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m. and Sunday, 1-5 p.m.

The work of artist Jia Bo, recently of Beijing, China, will be on exhibit in the Williamsburg Regional Library's Arts Center Gallery, Sept. 1-27. Jia Bo, currently a resident of Williamsburg, worked on Tian'An Men Square in the fine arts department of the Museum of the Revolution and History from 1986 to March of this year. Working through his painting to preserve traditions of his childhood in south China, Jia Bo depicts simple village life in a series of oil paintings titled "Blue South" and a series of works in acrylic tempera titled "Water Country."

The Twentieth Century Gallery begins its 1989-90 exhibition season with an exchange show of art works in various media by members of the D'Art Center, Norfolk, Aug. 29 through Sept. 23. The gallery, located at 219 N. Boundary St., is open Tuesday-Saturday, 11 a.m.-5 p.m., and Sunday, noon-5 p.m. Works by members of the Twentieth Century
