Earth Day Schedule Includes Wide Variety of Events

The worldwide celebration of Earth Day 1990 will include a communitywide festival of activities in Williamsburg.

From 6 a.m. until midnight, Saturday, April 21, local citizens will be able to make field trips, attend workshops, plant trees, promote recycling and enjoy an open-air evening concert. The day's schedule begins and ends in the Sunken Gardens, with a non-denominational sunrise service and a candlelight vigil at midnight.

Sunday, April 22, will feature a series of afternoon discussions and an evening forum at the Williamsburg Regional Library, where various organizations will be offering displays, demonstrations and educational material throughout the weekend.

"This event could be a turning point in enabling our community to learn how to deal locally with the ills our world is facing," said Judith Kator, coordinator of the Williamsburg Regional Task Force on Recycling. "The College students deserve a lot of credit. This is mostly their doing. They've worked hard and have been very creative in developing a way for the community to learn what our problems are and what we can do about them."

Earth Day 1990 will also serve as Public Service Day VI. "The community's attention should focus on Earth Day," said Bill Bryant, coordinator of Public Service Day, an annual event celebrating volunteerism. "The College students are making a great opportunity available, and the community should take full advantage of it."

In addition to events listed below, the W&M Recycling Organization will be sponsoring a recycling drive in the W&M Hall parking lot all day Saturday, with volunteers offering educational packets, free pine seedlings and selling Earth Day 1990 T-shirts. Throughout the weekend, the Virginia Department of Forestry, Citizen Action for a Safe Environment, W&M Recycling Organization, Campus Conservation Coalition and Phoenix Foods will offer exhibits at the Williamsburg Regional Library.

The complete schedule of events is listed on page 4. Please note that preregistration by April 18 is required for several events. Call 253-4013 for more information.

New Musical Ensemble Plans First Concert, April 21

The new musical group "The Suonarotti Ensemble," will make its debut at a performance of "Trio for Flute, Cello, and Piano" by Allan Blank at 3 p.m., Saturday, April 21 in the foyer of Andrews Hall.

This performance is open to the public without charge. The public is also invited to the reception for the composer, which will be held following the performance.

The ensemble, under the direction of William & Mary Orchestra Director Joel Suben, includes Mark Reczkiewicz, flute; Jennifer Poole, cello; and Lee Yezek, piano. The name "Suonarotti" is derived from two Italian words which in translation mean "to play a musical instrument" and "broken."

"Trio for Flute, Cello, and Piano" was written by Allan Blank in 1983. Blank, professor of composition at Virginia Commonwealth University, has been the recipient of several prestigious awards, among them: the Howard Hanson Prize from the Eastman School of Music, a National Endowment for the Arts award, and the Virginia Music Teachers' "Composer of the Year" prize. Blank's works have been published and recorded frequently.

Blank will attend the Saturday performance and will talk about his work.
