WILLIAM & MARY

A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER FOR FACULTY, STUDENTS AND STAFF

NEWS

VOLUME XX, NUMBER 10 • WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1990

REMINDERS

Time Change

For all those who grumbled about setting the clocks back in the spring comes the day of revenge! Daylight savings time ends Saturday, Oct. 26; turn clocks back one hour before retiring.

W&M Hall Lot

Gets New Lights

New lighting is being installed at the William and Mary Hall parking lot. This work is expected to take two weeks and during that time various areas of the lot will be closed to parking. Designated parking areas will be clearly marked. For further details, check with the Office of Parking Services ext. 14764.

Those who park in that area are also reminded that a large portion of the W&M Hall lot will be used by the Williamsburg-James City County Public School System for bus driver training and safety programs Nov. 5 -8, restricting availability to regular users.

Dec. 1 Dance

For those who like to plan ahead, the Faculty Club and the College Women's Club are planning a gala dance, Dec. 1. Tickets are $25 per couple. More details to be announced later.

UNICEF Greetings

Although the Great Pumpkin has not yet made his visit and the season for greetings is not far off. Karen Schifrin has UNICEF cards, calendars and catalogs for distribution. Call her at work at ext. 3634 or at home, 454-3191.

New Officers

HACE will install new officers Nov. 14 at a noon meeting in the Campus Center ballroom. Speaker will be William F. Merck, vice president for administration and finance.

Chief Justice Rehnquist Receives First Carter Lowance Fellowship In Law And Public Service

Chief Justice of the United States William Rehnquist spent several days meeting with students and faculty of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law last week as the First Carter O. Lowance Fellow in Law and Public Service. The Lowance Fellowship is supported by an endowment established by friends who wished to honor the career of the distinguished Virginian and former executive vice president of the college. The sole criteria for recipients of the fellowship is distinguished public service.

At a luncheon Friday, those who were instrumental in creating the fellowship were present to see the Chief Justice presented with a handsome medallion, a profile in bronze of Lowance created by his friend Carl Roseberg, professor of fine arts emeritus.

Dean Timothy J. Sullivan introduced Mrs. Carter Lowance and other distinguished guests. Sullivan said that the fellowship could not have been created without "the help of some remarkable people." He recognized the leaders of the fund-raising effort, Roy Smith of Petersburg, a former member of the Virginia House of Delegates; Vernon M. Geddy, former mayor of Williamsburg; former U.S. Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr.; and former governors Mills E. Godwin and Albert S. Harrison.

Godwin, who spoke to the group of about 80 faculty, students and guests, said, "Although I have known many special people, I don't know of any more complete person than the one whose name is attached to this award." Godwin called Lowance, who was aware of the establishment of the fellowship before his death last fall, "a supremely modest man" who "became the premier public servant of his time." Speaking of his own second-term campaign for Governor of Virginia in 1973, Godwin spoke stirringly of his friendship and regard for Lowance, saying he "needed him as few people might imagine" and that "no one has done more to protect the integrity of Virginia's government."

In accepting the award, Chief Justice Rehnquist said that although he never knew Carter Lowance, he was "very honored to receive an award named for this distinguished Virginian." He noted the value of the fellowship program, in which "recipients can talk with students about what public service means in the hope that others will render such service to their state and their nation."

Before closing the luncheon ceremony, Sullivan announced that the second Carter Lowance Fellow would be former U.S. Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell, who will be on campus in September 1991.

Sullivan also announced that a provision in Lowance's will would result in the establishment of scholarships in his name. "We will in due course establish the Carter Lowance Scholarship Endowment to provide in perpetuity scholarships to men and women law students who evince a commitment to public service," said Sullivan.

'Serving The At-Risk Gifted Learner' Topic Of College-Sponsored Conference

Gifted education for students who might otherwise be passed over because of income levels, cultural background or handicaps will be discussed during a one-day conference sponsored by the College.

"Serving the At-Risk Gifted Learner," will begin at 8:30 a.m. Friday, October 26 at the Wyndham Hotel in Williamsburg. There is no fee to attend the conference that is sponsored through a grant from the U.S. Department of Education.

Teachers, parents and others interested in gifted education are invited to participate.

The conference is being held as part of Project Mandala, a three-year research and development program that will create a blueprint to identify and assist gifted students from special groups. In addition, the effort will involve working with parents and family members of the students, developing materials for use by school systems, training teachers and establishing a national resource network in the field.

Project Mandala is funded by the Jacob Javits Gifted and Talented Students Act.

For additional information about the conference, contact Joy L. Baytops, Project Mandala coordinator, at (804) 221-4813 or 221-4814.

Dr. Ruth Mulliken Is Now An Arkansas Traveler

Dr. Ruth Mulliken, coordinator for learning disabled students, was recently honored by the Governor of Arkansas with the Award for Distinguished Service to the people of Arkansas, given only to people from outside the state.

An award not lightly or often given, it was presented to Dr. Mulliken for her work with the Institute of Industrial and Commercial Ministries, a nationwide organization that began in Newport News.

The Institute trains lay people and clergy as volunteer chaplains in various businesses. Police departments, life insurance companies, a poultry farm, a hotel chain and a theme park are all among the "customers" who avail themselves of the services of Institute personnel.

The idea of a counselor who would be available to workers, someone they could go to talk confidentially, began in England and was brought to Virginia by the Rev. James Jones of Trinity Church in Newport News in 1972; by 1976 the organization had gone nationwide. The work of the Institute has been expanded by workers who have transferred to other areas of the country and want the benefits they got from a counselor they had in Virginia and volunteers who have moved and want to continue their work elsewhere.

More and more companies, says Dr. Mulliken, are asking for the ministry. One company, she added, had found that the number of grievances it received had dropped after workers found they had someone they could go and talk things over with. Dr. Mulliken states firmly that there is no Bible study involved. The ministry is, she says, "a caring presence, a supportive listener, who assists the person in solving his or her problems."

A professor of education for 10 years, Dr. Mulliken was recruited in 1975 by Dean James Yankovich from Christopher Newport College where she headed the department of psychology, to work with the new master's degree program in school psychology. She currently works half time at the College as well as maintaining a busy schedule as a consultant for schools who seek her expertise as a child psychologist and therapist in the fields of services to pre-school handicapped children as well as exceptional children and those with learning disabilities. She recently completed a study tour of Russia to see what was done there for exceptional children.

A resident of Yorktown, Dr. Mulliken holds B.S. and M.A. degrees from New York University, and a Ph.D. from the University of Utah. She joined the Christopher Newport College faculty in 1965. She has served on a variety of boards and is a former chairman of the Virginia Special Education Advisory Committee. She is currently on the Community Services Board of the Sara Bonwell Hudgins Regional Center, which assists people with handicapping conditions.

Don't look for Dr. Mulliken's name on an imposing brass plate of an office door on campus. She works quietly, one-on-one with students, and her office door is distinctive because of its anonymity. As with the ministry, hers is a caring presence on campus, and students appreciate the fact that she's a stickler for confidentiality.

It's no secret however that she is an energetic cook and baker, and friends are always passing along recipes to her. This time of the year she is getting out candy recipes for people on her list who would not feel the holiday season in full swing until they had received a box of sweets from Dr. Ruth's kitchen.

Somehow she manages to maintain a hefty work schedule and still find time for travel. She is off to New Zealand in late December, just for fun, accompanied by one of her three daughters.

Departments

Biology

Professor Charlotte Mangum delivered a Plenary Lecture titled "Significant Events in the History of O_2 Carriers" at the fall meeting of the American Physiological Society.

Professor Stewart Ware recently published "Adaptation to Substrate—and Lack of It—In Rock Outcrop Plants: Sedum and Arenaria" in American Journal of Botany 77:1095-1100. He also reviewed Eugene Wofford's book, Guide to the Vascular Plants of the Blue Ridge in Bulletin of the Torrey Botanical Club 117:317-318.

Computer Center

Susan Walker and Earnie Dyke gave a presentation at the Association of Collegiate Computing Services of Virginia during their fall meetings Oct. 18 and 19, at Mary Baldwin College in Staunton.

The title of their presentation was SOURCE—The Poor Programmer's Source Management System. SOURCE written in-house by Earnie Dyke, is the system used to manage the source code for all of the College's administrative computer systems.

Other people attending from the Computer Center were Jay Klinefelter, Jim Brown and Virginia Jones.

Music

Timothy Olbrych, lecturer in guitar, gave a concert Oct. 14 with the Shanghai String Quartet at the Fine Arts Museum in Richmond. Since its New York debut at Town Hall, the Shanghai has been hailed as one of the leading quartets of this generation. It has performed to exceptional critical acclaim throughout the U.S. and abroad. The Quartet won the prestigious Chicago Discovery Competition in 1986, has been Ensemble-in-Residence at the Tanglewood and Ravinia Festivals, and has performed in the Lincoln Center's "Mostly Mozart Festival" and "Great Performers Series." The Quartet is currently in residence at the University of Richmond.

Timothy Olbrych

Among the pieces presented on concert were the Quintet for Guitar and Strings by Mario Castelnuovo-Tedesco (1895-1968), and the Partita for Guitar by Stephen Dodgson (b. 1924). Both works are considered tour de forces in guitar literature.

Olbrych's performance brought rave reviews from Clarke Bustard and Francis Church of the Richmond Times Dispatch. Reviewers praised Olbrych's "polished technique" and "ear for the finest subtleties"

Olbrych has appeared in concerts throughout the East Coast both as a soloist and member of chamber music settings, including Merkin Hall in New York City and the Tidewater Classic Guitar Society Series.

VIMS

At least 15 VIMS scientists and graduate students in VIMS' Division of Chemistry and Toxicology will present papers describing research findings, including significant advances in analytical techniques, at the 11th annual international meeting of the Society of Environmental Toxicology and Chemistry (SETAC) to be held Nov. 11 to 15 in Arlington, Va.

According to Division Head Robert J. Huggett, who helped organize the conference, SETAC is the "ultimate gathering" for environmental scientists interested in technical advances in environmental toxicology and chemistry.

"VIMS contributions, which focus on the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries, will be of particular interest to a large number of SETAC researchers," he asserts, because of burgeoning international concerns about the impacts of toxic substances on the world's coastal oceans and estuaries.

Organizers expect over 2,000 attendees from 23 countries to converge on the Hyatt Regency Crystal City to hear reports on global and regional issues, including groundwater contamination, aquatic and wildlife toxicology, global warming and international environmental regulations. A special feature of the conference will be the keynote address by Smithsonian official Dr. Thomas Lovejoy, a conservation biologist known for his work in the Amazon and host of the PBS series "Nature."

New Play In Rehearsal

Rehearsals are underway for the next presentation by the William and Mary Theatre. "A Lie of the Mind," a play by Sam Shepard, will be performed Nov. 15, 16, 17 at 8:15 p.m. and Nov. 18 at 2 p.m. Tickets are $5.

Professor Richard Palmer will direct the production and Kyle Rudgers will be assistant director.

The cast will include the following: P. Christien Murawski as Jake; Christopher Obenchain as Frankie; Sharon Gardner as Beth; Michael Holley as Mike; Rachel Gardner as Lorraine; Lydia York as Sally; Craig Cackowski as Baylor and Karen Carter as Meg.

Update on Faculty Optional Retirement Plans

State Announces No Changes To Plan Contributions For Present

The Secretary of Education, James W. Dyke, Jr., has announced that contribution rates to faculty optional retirement plans such as TIAA/CREF will not be reduced at this time. The recent rate reduction corresponded to a reduction in the state's contribution to the Virginia Retirement System (VRS) from 12.57 percent to 10.51 percent as a result of increased yield assumptions for the pension fund.

Secretary Dyke stated that as a result of the VRS action, there now exists a conflict between the Code of Virginia and the 1990 Appropriation Act. The Code of Virginia says that the state's contribution rate to optional retirement plans cannot be higher than the contribution rate to VRS.

However, the Appropriation Act passed by the 1990 General Assembly established the optional retirement plan rate of 12.57 percent of payroll for the 1990-92 biennium. When a conflict exists between the Code and the Appropriation Act, the Act generally prevails.

Accordingly, the rate will remain at 12.57 percent of payroll through the remainder of the fiscal year as specified in the Appropriation Act. Governor Wilder has indicated that he will recommend an amendment to the budget bill for consideration by the 1991 General Assembly to seek conformity with the rate paid to VRS.

Approximately 5,800 faculty are members of optional retirement plans.

'College Bowl' Returning To Campus

College Bowl, "the varsity sport of the mind" is returning this fall. Tournaments are scheduled Nov. 13-29 in the Campus Center.

Faculty and staff members are needed to serve as judges and moderators during the upcoming games. No prior knowledge of the College Bowl program is necessary, and a commitment of just one hour or so would be greatly appreciated.

College Bowl features two teams of four players competing to score points. Questions cover a variety of topics from literature, science, history, current events, religion, philosophy, art, music, drama to mythology and rock 'n roll, sports and movies. If you like "Jeopardy," you will love "College Bowl."

The winning team will represent William and Mary at the regional level in Lexington, Ky., March 1-3. Last year the team finished second and narrowly missed going to the national tournament. They also never finished worse than third in any of the tournaments they attended. College Bowl is sponsored locally by the Campus Center and nationally by the Association of College Unions-International.

If interested in serving as a team member, team coach, judge or moderator, please contact Scott McLeod at ext. 13437.

NOTES

Christian Scientists

"Energy" will be the topic for discussion at the meeting of Christian Scientists, Thursday, Oct. 25 at 5 p.m. in the Grammar School of the Wren Building.

Organ Concert

Noted organist Dr. James Kibbie, will give a concert at 4 p.m., Sunday, Nov. 4 at St. Stephen's Lutheran Church, Jamestown Road. This is the first in a series of three organ dedication performances in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Carl Fehr who have been active in the music program at the church. Dr. Fehr, for many years director of the William and Mary Choir, is Chancellor Professor of Music Emeritus.

Kibbie, associate professor of organ at the University of Michigan, has performed extensively throughout Europe and North America. He has won awards at the International Organ Competition at Chartres, France, and is the only American to have won the International Organ Competition at the Prague Spring Festival in Czechoslovakia.

Other concerts in the series will be held Feb. 3 and April 3. All three concerts are open to the public.

The new organ, designed with tracker action by Petty-Madden Organ Builders of Hopewell, N.J., has eight voices, 14 ranks and 482 pipes. Donations for the new instrument were made by members of the church and community.

Chamber Music

The second performance in the Music at the Muscarelle chamber music series will be held at the Museum at 4 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 28.

Future performances are scheduled at 4 p.m. on Nov. 18 and Dec. 2. Concert-goers are invited to come early to view the special exhibition "Sculpture by Harold Tovish." Both the Museum and the concert are open to the public without charge.

The concert will feature the William and Mary Chamber Players, with the Guitar Ensemble and String Ensemble. Performers are all enrolled in chamber music classes offered by the department of music.

Selections planned for the October 28 concert include Three Pavans by Luis Milan, Ronald Phillips, guitar; Two Sonatas by Giuseppe Tartini, featuring a string trio; "Serenade for Winds in E Flat" K375 (first version 1781) by Mozart; and "Valse Staccato" by Anton Rubinstein, arranged for flute quartet.

Book Sale

The Friends of the Williamsburg Regional Library are holding a fall book sale from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 27 and from 1 to 5 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 28.

House Flicks

The German House will show "Three Penny Opera" Oct. 30; the Italian House will show "Pasqualino Sette Bellezze" Oct. 29.

College Musicians Schedule Three Concerts in Nov.

William and Mary Chamber Orchestra with Conductor Joel Subin

College of William and Mary musicians will present three concerts in November.

The William and Mary Orchestra will present its fall concert at 8:15 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 1 in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. Tickets are $3 and will be available at the door. Tickets may also be reserved by calling the orchestra office at ext. 11089.

The William and Mary Chamber Orchestra will give two performances, on Nov. 8 and Nov. 29 at Bruton Parish Church, both at 8 p.m.

Joel Subin, director of orchestras, will conduct all performances.

The orchestra program will feature a student vocal soloist, Wendi Gerth, a senior from Brentwood, Tenn., in "Exultate Jubilate" by Mozart, selected in tribute to the bicentennial of the composer's death. Miss Gerth is winner of the recent orchestra concerto competition.

To spotlight the strong horn section in the orchestra, Subin has selected "Divertimento No. 2" by Mozart. As a salute to the reunification celebrations in Germany, the orchestra will play the preludes to the first and third acts of Wagner's "Lohengrin." The orchestra will conclude with a Slavonic dance by Dvorak.

The concerts by the Chamber orchestra will be devoted to the cycle of six Brandenburg Concertos by Bach. Three will be played Nov. 8 and three on Nov. 29.

Last November during American Music Week, Subin opened a Chamber Orchestra concert with the Brandenburg Concerto No. 5 as a salute to celebrations marking the tricentennial of the Glorious Revolution, 1688-89, which brought the College's patrons, King William III and Queen May II, to the throne of England. The response of the SRO audience was enthusiastic, and, coupled with the conductor's enthusiasm for the music, prompted plans to showcase more of the concertos.

Subin, who is busy in rehearsals for the upcoming concerts, will take time out to fly to California the end of the month to hear his own music premiered by a nationally recognized choral group.

The San Francisco Girls Chorus will perform Song Book, by Subin, a collection of poems set to music and sung a cappella, Oct. 26 in San Francisco and Nov. 3 and 4 in Sacramento. Subin is flying to California at the invitation of the Chorus to hear the performance of his work in San Francisco.

"Song Book," explains Subin "was a response to the sound of a 50-odd-member chorus of young women which I heard during a tour of the State Music School of Chorzow, Poland late in 1988.

Having at once made up my mind to compose music for this choir, I agonized long about the choice of language (English), and longer still about the tone to be established. Ultimately I gathered a set of diverse short poems by different authors, with the greatest common element being a directness of speech and relative lack of complexity. I set about to fit the texts with equally uncomplicated music."

Mstislav Rostropovich insisted upon girls as well as boys for the children's chorus when he conducted the San Francisco Opera's 1975 production of Tchaikovsky's Queen of Spades. Singers were recruited and the group participated in subsequent operas. In 1978 the San Francisco Girls Chorus became a performing group which has impressed audiences both in this country and abroad.

Subin has also learned that two of the movements from Song Book will be published next year by Lawson-Gould Music Publishers of New York who specialize in choral works.

Wendi Gerth

Choir/Chorus To Present Fall Concerts

Choir Soloists

The William and Mary Choir and the University Singers from the University of Virginia will give a joint concert at 8:15 p.m., Friday, Oct. 26 in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. There is no admission charge.

The William and Mary Choir, under the direction of Frank T. Lendrim, will open the program with "Holy Radiant Light," by Alexandre Gretchaninoff; and "Hosanna to the Son of David," by Orlando Gibbons. Soloists for the Gibbons work will be Amy Schadewald, Kristye Krause, Kerith Martin, Shanti McCrie, Joshua Lathrop and Malcolm Gaines.

The choir will also sing two American folk hymns arranged by Robert Shaw with soloist Wendi Gerth. Two ensembles from the Choir, the Botetourt Chamber Singers and the Men of the Choir, will be featured in the concert. Jason Flemmons and Hunter Old will be soloists with the Men of the Choir. Heather Swain will be soloist with the choir for "O Whistle and I'll Come To Ye," a Scottish folk song arranged by Mack Wilberg.

The University Singers conducted by Donald Loach, will sing Mass in G minor by Ralph Vaughan Williams and two selections by Randall Thompson, "The Light of Stars," and "Alleluia." Soloists for the Mass will be Courtney Birch, Laura Little, Jennifer DeBlasi, Paul Stancil, Tyler Magill and Christopher Doyle. They will also sing "Alleluia" by Sven Lekberg; and Salve Regina by Francis Poulenc.

As a finale, the combined choirs will sing "Great Day," a spiritual arranged by Warren Martin. Soloists will be Kathryn Valenta, James Pennington, and Edward Overton.

Writing Resources Center Offers Workshop

The Writing Resources Center is offering a workshop addressing graduate school and grant fund applications. The workshop will be held 7 to 8 p.m. on Nov. 1. Any interested students should sign up at the WRC located in Tucker 115A, or call ext. 13925 since attendance will be limited to 12 students. Walk-ins accepted on a first-come, first-served basis.

An Open Letter to the College Community

Today we begin the College's Combined Virginia Charitable Campaign (CVC). Timed to coordinate with the Williamsburg United Way Fund Drive, the CVC provides us with an opportunity to support United Way or any other more than 100 volunteer agencies participating in this statewide charitable giving drive for State employees.

As we begin this year's campaign, the need to support volunteer human services agencies has never been greater. Cutbacks in federal and state support and the slowdown in the economy have made people in need more dependent than ever on volunteer agencies to meet their basic needs. Here in Williamsburg, for example, a 9 percent increase in funding is required to cover the basic operating budgets of the organizations supported by United Way. Knowing the College as well as I do, I am confident that our response will be one of generosity as we consider our gift to these agencies.

After all, at the local level, faculty, staff and students give freely of their time in support of United Way funded agencies like the Red Cross, Rita Welsh Adult Skills, Housing Partnerships and Child Development Resources, to name just a few. Many at the College provide professional and financial support of other local initiatives that improve the quality of life in the greater Williamsburg area. Others choose to support national and international organizations whose missions are aimed at remedying a plethora of human and environmental problems. The concern is here. The caring is too. Yet, last year's participation in our annual CVC charitable campaign was only 18 percent. Our campaign committee concluded that low participation in the CVC was due to poor communication and not stinginess or a lack of compassion. So, this year, we are going to get the word out to everyone. We are going to show the skeptics that a reduction in cash will not translate into a reduction in caring. It is our goal to increase by at least 9% the amount donated by William and Mary employees and to greatly expand the number of employees who contribute.

I urge all those who give so generously of their time and money to local, national and international organizations to consider participation in the CVC to give to the charity of their choice through payroll deduction. To those of you who have not participated in the past, you will be surprised how little a month keeps so much, when combined with the giving of your colleagues. Giving the equivalent of one hour of pay a month will nearly triple the College's goal of $43,000. That is all it will take, one hour of pay per-month, through payroll deduction, to the charity of your choice.

When your department volunteer asks you to consider a donation, think a moment...then give an hour of your time or more if you can. Thank you for your past participation and for your consideration of this year's request.

Campaign Seeks Higher Number of Givers: Offers Parking Decal as Incentive

This year's Combined Virginia Campaign on campus will be a concentrated effort to raise funds within a two-week period with a personalized, one-on-one approach.

Representatives from each department have been asked to attend information sessions and take back materials and pledge cards to co-workers.

As important as the goal of $43,000 is, major emphasis this year will be put on raising the participation level on campus. The payroll deduction method is being suggested as a way of contributing and distributing a gift over 24 pay periods.

To encourage givers, a drawing will be held for a free parking decal. Everyone who contributes at least $20 is eligible to win. Drawing for the decal will be held at the close of the campaign.

The cartoon above, a humorous reminder to pitch in and boost the participation rate, is the work of Joseph Gilley, graphic designer and closet cartoonist for the publications department.

Wilson Fellowships Support Cross-Disciplinary Research

By Elaine Justice
Director of Public Information

Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Wilson, Jr. of Alexandria have made a gift of life insurance to the College of William and Mary with a face value of $600,000 to provide annual support for the college's Wilson Cross-Disciplinary Scholarship program. At maturity, the policy will permanently endow the program. The Wilsons have funded the program on an annual basis since 1989.

The Wilson Cross-Disciplinary Scholarships give students the chance to develop their own research in areas outside their majors. Applicants must propose a project that is not only outside their major, but outside their general field of study. For example, a humanities major must choose a project from the social sciences or sciences.

Students work one-on-one with a faculty member of their choice, and have the option of completing the project during one summer session or working for a longer period in the summer. Wilson Scholars receive four credits for their completed projects.

Fred Wilson, a member of William and Mary's class of 1955, is former owner and president of Wilson Mortgage Company. Mrs. Wilson is an antique dealer with particular expertise in Black Americana.

Wilson said his support of the program grew out of his frustration as an employer, when he observed that some college graduates tended to be "too narrowly focused" on their academic major, and had little background or interest in other fields.

According to Joel Schwartz, who directs the Roy R. Charles Center for Honors and Interdisciplinary Studies and oversees the program, four qualities make the Wilson Scholarship Program distinctive: its cross-disciplinary focus; its student-initiated topics; its one-on-one faculty-student contact; and the opportunity for sustained undergraduate research on topics that may not be a part of the college's established curriculum.

"Undergraduate education at William and Mary is pretty broad the first two years," said Schwartz, "but once you declare a major, you can become narrow in your focus. We wanted to encourage depth and breadth, to make students use their heads in new situations."

Six Wilson Scholars participated during the first year of the program. The number rose to 13 this year as more students and professors decided to embark on a new type of teaching-learning opportunity.

"I expected to play a fairly passive role in the program," admitted David Aday of the sociology department. "I was really surprised at the amount of interaction involved." Instead of merely supervising Nicole Thomson's project on drugs and social control, Aday found himself developing a portion of his research sparked by some of Nicole's findings. As a result of their collaboration, professor and student are working on two separate papers, which they hope to have published in sociological journals, and they have plans for a third.

Not only did the Wilson Scholars program help Nicole explore different aspects of a subject she found intensely interesting, the project served to clarify her own career goals. Although she had planned to attend law school as a step toward a career in public policy, she now plans to do graduate work in sociology and public policy, with an eye toward becoming a public policy consultant in Washington.

For Eric Bradley, who worked with English major Laura Taber during the summer of 1989, the program's benefits also run both ways. "Students gain a perspective that they would never get from a lecture course," he said. "The program also exposes faculty to a broader range of student perspectives than they might otherwise encounter, so there's a reward there as well."

Margaret Simpson of the economics faculty, who worked with fine arts major Kayo Motoyama on the U.S.-Japan trade conflict, echoes Bradley's view. "I learned a lot about the Japanese policy making process," she said, "and because Kayo is not an economics major, she thought about things in different ways and questioned established models."

Three To Receive 1990 Alumni Medallion

Three alumni, President Paul R. Verkuil, Stewart H. Gamage of Alexandria and John A. Mapp of Richmond, have been selected to receive the 1990 Alumni Medallion, the highest award given by the College's Society of the Alumni.

The medallion, given in recognition of extraordinary professional achievement and service to the community and the College, will be awarded Friday, Nov. 2 at the Alumni Society's annual homecoming awards dinner.

Verkuil, a 1961 graduate of William and Mary, was sworn in as the College's 25th president on July 1, 1985. He also serves as professor of law and government and teaches an interdisciplinary course on the separation of powers.

A native of Staten Island, N.Y., Verkuil served in the U.S. Army for three years before entering the University of Virginia Law School, where he earned an LL.B. degree in 1967. After graduation he practiced antitrust and corporate law in New York City until 1971. During this time Verkuil earned a master's degree in political science and economics from the New School for Social Research, and a master's in trade regulation from New York University. He received a J.S.D. degree from NYU in 1972.

In 1971 Verkuil joined the faculty of the University of North Carolina Law School. In 1978 he became dean of the Tulane University Law School, and in 1983 was named Joseph M. Jones Professor of Law.

The author or co-author of several books on federal regulation and administrative law, Verkuil serves as a member of the Administrative Law Conference of the United States and the American Law Institute. He also is a member of the council and last retiring chair of the American Bar Association Section of Administrative Law and Regulatory Practice. In 1988 he was appointed by the federal court in Louisiana to serve as a special master in the United States v. Louisiana, a higher education desegregation case. On two occasions, Verkuil has been among a group of the nation's foremost legal figures, including justices of the U.S. Supreme Court, who participated in the Anglo-American Legal Exchange.

Stewart Gamage

Paul Verkuil

A Norfolk native who grew up in Petersburg, Gamage currently serves as floor assistant to U.S. House of Representatives majority leader Richard A. Gephardt, D-Mo. She is a 1972 graduate of William and Mary, and has a degree in public administration from the University of Southern California.

Gamage has held a variety of positions in Virginia government and on Capitol Hill. After serving in 1977 as a member of the professional staff of the select committee on ethics, U.S. House of Representatives, she served from 1978 to 1979 as executive assistant to Lt. Gov. Charles Robb, and from 1979 to 1981 as deputy to the President's Advisor on Inflation.

From 1982 to 1989, Gamage served Virginia governors Charles Robb and Gerald Baliles as director of the Virginia Liaison Office in Washington, D.C. She left that post in 1989 to return to the House of Representatives.

From 1985 until earlier this year

Gamage was a member of the College's Board of Visitors serving as chair of the committee on academic affairs and as vice rector of the board during the final year of her term. She was a member of the Society of the Alumni board of directors from 1980 to 1985. Currently she is a member of William and Mary's Tercentenary Commission, which has overall responsibility for the College's 300th anniversary celebration in 1993.

Mapp, a native of Accomac County, has assumed leadership roles in a number of arenas. A 1935 graduate of William and Mary, he served in the U.S. Navy during World War II, then launched a career in personnel administration and labor relations. From 1949 to 1952 he served as director of personnel for the City of Richmond where he helped inaugurate the council-manager form of government under a new city charter and set up the city's civil service system.

After earning a master's degree from NYU in 1962, Mapp became dean of the evening college and summer session for Virginia Commonwealth University. During his tenure from 1964 to 1978 the evening college's enrollment grew and eventually ranked first nationally. He served as president of the North American Association of Summer Sessions.

In 1984 VCU honored Mapp as one of the first two recipients of its Presidential Medallion.

Throughout his life, Mapp has held positions of leadership in educational, civic and church activities. Also active as an alumnus, he chaired his 50th reunion committee for his class, and from 1989 to 1990 served as chair of the Olde Guard Council, an organization representing alumni whose classes graduated 50 or more years ago.

In the Richmond area, Mapp serves as president of the VCU Friends of the Library Services and chairs the Virginia Health Services Cost Review Council. As a board member for the Shepherd's Center of Richmond, he helped create for senior citizens "Free University" classes taught largely by emeriti faculty and staff of VCU.

William and Mary's Alumni Medallion has been given to 194 alumni since its inception in 1934.

Alumni Return Nov. 1-4

William and Mary 'Magic' To Shine At Homecoming

By Virginia Collins
Director Alumni Communications

Alumni, friends and students of the College will celebrate homecoming the weekend of Nov. 1 to 4 with festivities planned by the Society of the Alumni around the theme: "William and Mary Magic."

Brooks George (with Mrs. George in background) will serve as the Grand Marshal at the 1990 Homecoming Parade Nov. 3.

The annual dinner of the Order of the White Jacket will kick off activities Thursday evening, with other reunion events continuing throughout the weekend for the undergraduate classes of 1945, 1950, 1955, 1960, 1965, 1970, 1975, 1980 and 1985, alumni of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, business school and other groups.

The 61st annual homecoming parade, a highlight of the weekend for both alumni and local residents, begins at the Colonial Capitol building on Duke of Gloucester Street at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 3, and proceeds along Richmond Road to Cary Field. This year's parade features 16 area businesses who are sponsoring student-made floats. The Strath James Pipe Band will participate along with bands from Berkeley Middle School, Manor High School, Salem Junior High School and Nansemond River High School.

W. Brooks George of Richmond, a 1932 graduate and current chairman of the Olde Guard Council, will serve as homecoming grand marshal. Over the years, George has provided leadership at William and Mary in numerous capacities. He has served as rector of the College, founder and first chairman of the Board of the School of Business Administration Sponsors Inc., president of the Society of the Alumni, and honorary chairman of the Campaign for the Fourth Century. He is retired chairman of the board of Larus & Bros., and has served on the boards of numerous Richmond area organizations.

Saturday afternoon at 12 p.m., William and Mary Tribe kicks off its homecoming game against the Paladins of Furman University at Cary Field. Prior to the game alumni and friends are invited to join the Surrey House luncheon-on-the-lawn at the Alumni House beginning at 11 a.m. Limited tickets will be on sale at $8 per person in the registration tent.

Following the game, all alumni, family members and friends are invited to attend the third annual Homecoming Tailgater celebration on the south lawn of the Alumni House. There is a $5 per person admission fee.

Additional activities include a free seminar on "College Admission in the '90s," led by Jean Scott, dean of admission, from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. Friday afternoon in Campus Center room C.

The annual Sunset Ceremony, held in memory of alumni who have died during the past year, will be held at 4:30 p.m. Friday in the Wren Courtyard.

The Society of the Alumni will hold its annual meeting Friday from 6:30 to 7 p.m. at the Williamsburg Lodge, followed by an alumni cocktail party (cash bar) and the Alumni Society's annual awards dinner and dance. Among the honored guests will be this year's Alumni Medallion recipients, President Paul R. Verkuil '61; Stewart Hamilton Gamage of Alexandria '72; and John A. Mapp of Richmond '35.

The registration tent on the Alumni House front lawn will be open from 12 noon to 7:30 p.m. on Friday, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday and 8 a.m. to 12 noon on Sunday for alumni to pick up or purchase tickets for reserved events, receive information and copies of the weekend schedule, and shop for William and Mary merchandise.

Important Book Presentations Made At Thursday Reception

The reception Thursday afternoon at which the sixth volume of the Papers of John Marshall was presented to President Paul Verkuil and Chief Justice William Rehnquist was also the occasion for the presentation of another note-worthy volume, The History of the Ancient and Honorable Tuesday Club by Dr. Alexander Hamilton.

Written in the 1750s, this work has never before been in print. Edited from the original manuscript by Professor Robert Micklus of SUNY-Binghamton, it was published for the Institute of Early American History and Culture by the University of North Carolina Press.

Publication of the Tuesday Club was a major project of Micklus and the Institute, consuming much of a decade in preparing the final 1,400 pages, 1,087 illustrations, and musical scores for press. Grants from a fund established by DeWitt

Wallace, founder of the Reader's Digest, and from the National Endowment for the Humanities help support the editorial and production work.

EMPLOYMENT

School of EducationDirector of the Learning Resource Center

We invite applications for the position of Director of the Learning Resource Center in the School of Education of the College of William and Mary.

Responsibilities: The individual is responsible for the day-to-day operation of the Center, which includes a curriculum library, an extensive collection of psychological and educational tests, an inventory of instructional media and computer software, a media preparation laboratory two videotaping classrooms, and a 13-station Apple computer laboratory. In addition, the individual is responsible for:

1. Defining an appropriate balance among the diverse functions of the LRC in light of faculty and students needs, the College context, and state-of-the-art technology (media and computers) in curriculum and instruction.
2. Developing a plan for acquiring, reviewing, and culling print materials in the LRC
3. Developing and implementing a plan for acquisition and use of instructional media, computers, and related software.

Preferred Qualifications: A master's degree or training and work experience that equates to an advanced degree; appropriate training and work experience as a librarian, instructional media specialist, and/or administrator of a learning resource center in an educational institution; some prior experience in using and teaching others to use instructional technology, including computer hardware and software; the ability to develop and manage a fiscal year budget, including ordering and purchasing equipment and materials; exemplary interpersonal skills for working in a primarily service role with diverse groups of students, faculty, and staff. Salary is competitive and will be based on experience and background.

Setting: The School of Education has 35 full-time faculty members and a staff of eight, and it enrolls approximately 150 undergraduate students and 800 full-time and part-time graduate students in academic programs for prospective and experienced teachers, administrators, counselors, school psychologists, and other educational personnel.

Application materials should include (1) a brief letter which explains professional education, experience, and suitability for the position; (2) a concise current resume; and (3) the names, addresses and telephone numbers of three references. The review of applications will begin on November 6, 1990, and continue until the position is filled. Application materials should be addressed to Ms. Byrd G. Latham, Search Committee Chair, School of Education, College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, VA 23185.

The College of William and Mary is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Applications from women and minorities are encouraged.

Rowers For Rent

Crew Holds Annual Fundraiser

Crew is a popular sport. It is a real team sport, and it is a sport with no prerequisites; rowers do not have to have any previous experience to participate. After graduation rowers can continue their enjoyment of the sport through a active master's program offered by the United States Rowing Association.

William and Mary Crew has a membership of 65 men and women. Membership this year is ahead of last year at this time. Practice sessions currently are in anticipation of the Head of the Schuylkill competition, Oct. 27, and the Head of the Occoquan competition on Nov. 3. Boats with four and eight rowers will be entered in both events. Men and women compete in separate events.

Crew members practice six days a week from the Jamestown Yacht Basin adjacent to Jamestown Festival Park. Rowers train year-round for the three-mile winter races and the one-and-a-quarter mile sprints that begin in March.

The crew operates as a club on a two-tier system, entering teams in both the novice and varsity divisions. Fee for membership is $80 per semester for novices; $145 for varsity members. The club recently bought two new boats and oars at a cost of $9,500. The rent-a-rower campaign is the one big fundraiser for the club.

The enthusiasm of club members is matched by the dedication of their coaches, Tom and Heidi Martell, both former champions, who coach varsity rowers. Tom is a master silversmith for the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation. Heidi is a speech pathologist with the local school division.

Coaches for novice rowers are Glen Grossman and Sean Hart. Grossman was the first president of William and Mary Crew; and Hart, who works in the chemistry department, helped get the sport established on campus.

Rent a Rower

You provide the tools, we provide the labor.
For just $70 two rowers will provide three hours of labor.
