Art Lecture

Painter Lynn Curtis will give a slide talk on her recent work at 5 p.m., Tuesday, April 2 in Andrews 201. The public is invited to attend. There will be refreshments following the talk and a chance to meet and talk with the artist.

Curtis received her M.F.A. in painting in 1988 from the University of Iowa. She also studied at the Slade School of Fine Art in London and at Dartmouth College. She has taught at Rhode Island School of Design, Brown University and Wheaton College, and was artist-in-residence at Dartmouth last semester.

Area Teachers Win School of Education Awards

Several area classroom teachers who are doing graduate work in education at the College of William and Mary are among recipients of School of Education annual awards. Three awards for excellence, established by the dean and faculty to recognize academic and professional excellence as well as outstanding citizenship are made possible by contributions of alumni and friends of the School of Education. Karen O. Kolet of Poquoson, Stephanie M. McConachie of Williamsburg and Mary T. Wallen of Hampton have received awards given by the faculty to recognize academic excellence.

Kolet, who is currently enrolled in the educational administration program, is director of guidance at Kecoughtan High School. She is the past president of the Virginia Counselors' Association. In 1989-90 she was selected as Chapter Member of the Year. Kolet and her family reside in Poquoson.

McConachie, a full-time doctoral student, has been English/language arts curriculum coordinator for the Williamsburg-James City County Schools and most recently was an assistant principal at Lafayette High School. She has been affiliated with the College as an adjunct professor for three summers for the Eastern Virginia Writing Project and for one semester as supervisor of student teachers. She received her master's in English education from William and Mary in 1980.

Wallen teaches gifted fourth- and fifth-grade students for the Hampton City Schools. She is past vice-president of the American Businesswomen's Association

Laura Flippin Wins National Truman Award In Virginia

Laura Flippin has been awarded the prestigious Truman Award which offers

gaged in the life of the college as a member of the Student/Alumni Liaison Council, the Student Concerns Committee and the Residence Life Committee. She served as executive vice president of the Student Association during the fall semester. Flippin entered William and Mary with the Lee-Jackson Scholarship awarded by the Virginia Department of Education.

The first semester she also participated in an internship with the Office of Career Services' Shared Experience program. As a research associate at the National Center for State Courts, Flippin responded to inquiries about the court system at both the state and national levels.

Before entering William and Mary Flippin worked on Capitol Hill in the office of Congressman Frank Wolf from the 10th district of Virginia. She hopes this summer to work in Washington. Her career goals include working in the field of public policy as it affects economic trade with the European Community. Flippin says her interests also include education reform and health care.

Barricelli To Give 1991 Bellini Lecture

Jean-Pierre Barricelli, professor of humanities and comparative literature at the University of California at Riverside, will give the 1991 Bellini Lecture at 8 p.m., Thursday, April 4 in the Campus Center ballroom. Barricelli will give an illustrated lecture titled "Four Modern Illustrators of Dante's Commedia."

A reception following the lecture will be held at the Italian House on Armistead Avenue. The public is invited to both the lecture and the reception. There is no admission charge.

Barricelli works primarily in the areas of Romanticism and the Renaissance and has made a specialty of the interrelations between literature and music, literature and the visual arts and literature and law. He is the author of 16 books including collections of short stories and poetry. He is also a professional musician and has taught music and composed orchestral and choral works and art songs. A former concert pianist, he now accompanies many of his lectures with piano selections.

Barricelli has taught at a number of universities including Harvard, Western Reserve, New York University and Brandeis. He will be a visiting scholar at the University of California in San Diego next year.

The Bellini Lecture Series, first launched in 1976, is named for Carlo Bellini of Florence, Italy, who was appointed by Jefferson to the first American chair of modern languages at the College in 1779.

Jean-Pierre Barricelli

Easter Service

The Williamsburg Clergy Fellowship in cooperation with the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities, APVA, will sponsor the traditional Easter sunrise service on Jamestown Island at 7 a.m., Sunday, March 31.

Seder Invitation

Balfour-Hillel, the Jewish student organization, has issued an invitation to members of the campus community to participate in the traditional Passover Seder to be held at 6 p.m., Friday, March 29 in the Campus Center ballroom.

Admission is $6 payable at the door. Reservations should be made with David Moldavsky, ext. 14198 by Thursday, March 28.

Professor, Alumna, Student Win Top Mathematics Awards

The Virginia Council of Teachers of Mathematics annually awards four prizes to recognize outstanding teachers and students in the field of mathematics. This year, three of those awards went to William and Mary. Stuart Flanagan, professor of mathematics education won the William C. Lowry Outstanding Mathematics Teacher in the collegiate division; June Baird Edwards '76, won the award for the elementary division; and Carol Hoferkamp, a junior from Virginia Beach, won a $1,000 scholarship to further her education in mathematics.

Stuart Flanagan and June Edwards

There is also a link between the three award winners. Edwards was taught by Flanagan, and Flanagan is faculty adviser to Hoferkamp.

Flanagan joined the faculty in 1968. He was appointed in 1989 to serve on a blue ribbon planning committee of the Association of State Supervisors of Mathematics for the project "Leading Mathematics into the Twenty-First Century," underwritten by the National Science Foundation.

An energetic proponent of the metric system, Flanagan received a grant from the U.S. Department of Education and the NSF to help teachers "think metric."

Flanagan taught in both the mathematics department and the School of Education when he first came to William and Mary. After two years he became a faculty member of the School of Education. Flanagan spends a great deal of his time assisting schools with the Literacy Passport Program in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades. Students in these grades must pass a competency test in writing, mathematics and reading before they may enroll in a diploma program in high school. Students are first given the test in the sixth grade and have two more chances to pass the test in succeeding grades. Those who do not pass the test may attend high school but will receive a certificate of attendance rather than a diploma.

The program, Flanagan explains, is aimed at eliminating illiteracy in the state and is a shared responsibility that holds students and schools accountable.

Not all students enjoy mathematics, says Flanagan. Many find the subject most difficult in the eighth grade, and few study the subject at the 12th-grade level. Curriculum decisions, he feels should be made to fit the needs of students after they leave school, but he acknowledges that changes are often driven by economic or political motivations rather than educational ones.

Flanagan helped establish the Virginia Council of Teachers of Mathematics and was its first president. He holds degrees from Washington and Lee University and the University of Virginia.

In citing Flanagan for his contributions to mathematics, education the selection committee said, "It is hard to find an area of mathematics education where he has not worked hard to further quality leadership. As math has gone from modern math to back-to-basics to the Agenda for Action to the Standards, he has gained the information and perspective necessary to properly and professionally prepare future mathematics teachers while writing and conducting in-services. Professor Flanagan's students consistently evaluate him as an outstanding professor in all areas. He remains very knowledgeable of subject matter, open to diverse opinion, available for consultation and very effective in overall teaching. Their comments make it evident that he is a master teacher of teachers."

Elementary Mathematics Teacher of the Year June Edwards, teaches grades three, four and five in the gifted program at J. G. Hening Elementary School in Chesterfield County. She taught in Newport News at Sanford Elementary School before joining the faculty in Chesterfield 11 years ago.

Edwards was selected Teacher of the Year at Beulah Elementary School in Chesterfield County in 1983, and is currently a nominee for a Presidential Award in mathematics awarded by the NSF. Last year she was selected as a teacher-editor for a textbook in social studies.

Certified for Talents Unlimited and to train teachers for the Comprehensive School Mathematics Program, Edwards enjoys a career as a teacher that she planned long before she received her college diploma. Her goal, she says, is to plan in exciting ways to make math "fun and real" for students. She prizes a note from a mother who warned her at the beginning of the year that her son did not like math but wrote later to say, "He loves it."

Edwards is an active member of Alpha Delta Kappa teaching sorority for women educators.

Carol Hoferkamp is preparing to teach mathematics at the high-school level. Like Edwards, she made a career choice early. She tutored students in mathematics in high school and entered William and Mary with the Virginia Congress of Parents and Teachers scholarship in recognition of her academic record in high school and her plans to pursue a career in mathematics.

Armand J. And Mary Faust Galfo Award Presented To Martha Smith Of Norfolk

and since 1984 has been a consultant with the Mariner's Museum. In 1977 she was the Hampton City Schools' Teacher of the Year. She is completing a master's degree program in educational administration.

Martha A. Smith of Norfolk, associate director, Office of Institutional Research and Planning at Old Dominion University, won the Armand J. and Mary Faust Galfo Education Research Award. This award was established in 1988 by Heritage Professor Armand J. Galfo and his wife. In 1990 Smith was elected to Kappa Delta Pi, the education honor society. In April of that year she received the Paschall Higher Education Award from the School of Education for academic excellence and professional promise. She represented Old Dominion University in 1988 at the Summer Institute for Women in Higher Education Administration sponsored by Bryn Mawr College.

Elizabeth L. Wikfors, a fifth-grade teacher in the Manassas Public Schools, was awarded the Frances H. and Robert O. Nelson Memorial Scholarship. Frances Nelson, an accomplished teacher educator who was affiliated with the School of Education for more than two decades. Robert Nelson was a recognized educational leader throughout his career in the public schools of the Tidewater area.

The scholarship fund was established by Mrs. Nancy Nelson Diggs, in memory of her parents.

Nancy G. Ochs received the Helen C. Hopper Memorial Scholarship, awarded to a student who is pursuing a master's degree in counseling and has demonstrated a special interest and commitment to family counseling and family life education. Ochs is a full-time doctoral student in the counseling program. Since she earned her master's degree at William and Mary in 1989, she has worked as a counselor for the Peninsula Area Cooperative Educational Services (PACES) Family Counseling Center. This award is funded by a bequest from the estate of Helen C. Hopper of Claremont, Va., who graduated from William and Mary in 1926 and was a former teacher and high school principal. From 1947 until she retired in 1966, she was assistant superintendent of home economics education for the Virginia Department of Education.

Shane Eddy and Stephanie Weaver Hautz received the Fred Hill Mathematics Teaching Scholarship of $1,000. Both winners who are completing their student teaching at Bruton High School in York County, are seniors, financing their own college educations. Hautz is a graduate of Denbigh High School. Eddy, a graduate of Herndon High School in Fairfax County, is currently a member of the W&M gymnastics team.

Each year since 1984 Fred Hill, a resident of Williamsburg, has contributed $1,000 to fund an annual scholarship for aspiring teachers of mathematics. Hill was motivated to establish the scholarship because of his own experience as a student of mathematics and his desire to encourage outstanding students who are majoring in mathematics to pursue careers in teaching. Hill's contribution is matched by his employer the Anheuser-Busch Corporation.

Former Marshall-Wythe Dean Gene Nichol To Give This Year's Cutler Lecture

The dean of the University of Colorado School of Law, Gene R. Nichol Jr., will present the 1990-1991 Cutler Lecture at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law at 3:30 p.m., Wednesday, March 27 in room 127. Nichol will take as his topic, "The Left, The Right, and Certainty in Constitutional Law."

Dean Nichol began his teaching career at the University of West Virginia. He was a member of the William and Mary Law faculty as a visiting associate professor in the academic year 1983-84, and returned from 1985 until 1988 as the James Gould Cutler Professor of Law and director of the Institute of Bill of Rights Law. He assumed the position of dean at the University of Colorado School of Law in 1988. He is the author of numerous law review articles and is a leading scholar of constitutional law.

Welcoming remarks will be made by Timothy J. Sullivan, dean, executive director of the Institute of Bill of Rights Law and John Stewart Bryan Professor of Jurisprudence.

The Cutler Lectures were established in 1927 by James Gould Cutler of Rochester, N.Y., to provide for an annual lecture at the College by "an outstanding authority of the Constitution of the United States."

The first series of 16 lectures, which ran from 1927 to 1944, included lectures by outstanding figures from both public life and the academic world, including Harold Laski, Max Lerner and Charles Warren. After 37 years, the lecture series was revived in 1980-81.

The Institute of Bill of Rights Law, a co-sponsor with the law school of the lecture, was established to support scholarly research on the Bill of Rights. Established in 1982 by bequest of Laura Lee, who held a lifelong interest in a free press and its role in our society, in memory of her parents, Alfred Wilson Lee and Mary I. W. Lee, the Institute's central focus is scholarship and education on freedom of speech and the press. It is an academic foundation with a mission of quality research and public education.

NOTES

Permission Needed To Credit Summer Courses Off-Campus

Students wishing to take courses in summer school at another institution must have the credit transfer approved prior to enrolling in these courses, and are advised to obtain permission before they leave for the summer. Retroactive permission will not be granted.

The Committee on Degrees will meet on April 11 and April 25. These will be the only regular meetings before fall semester 1991. All undergraduates who plan to petition for waiver of or changes in degree requirements must do so no later than April 4 for the April 11 meeting or April 18 for the April 25 meeting.

Petition forms are available from Mrs. Pearson in the Office of the Dean of Undergraduate Studies, James Blair 112.

All petitions must be typed and must be accompanied by a letter from the appropriate department chairperson.

Breast Cancer Screening

The Chesapeake Mobile Imaging Service unit will be on campus tomorrow, March 28 from 8:15 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. to give breast self-exam training and mammographic exams.

The unit will be located in the Thiemes House parking lot with entrance on Scotland Street.

For an appointment, call ext. 13158 or ext. 13151. Appointments are not required but are encouraged. The interpretation of the mammographic exam will be done by a board-certified radiologist and individual reports will be sent to patient and physician.

The mammogram and breast self-exam training take approximately 15 minutes. Payment of $50 must be made at the time of the exam by cash, personal check, or VISA/MasterCard. An insurance form will be provided with the results. If you have not visited CMIS before, but have had a prior mammogram, please bring the name and address of the facility you visited to your appointment. Please also bring your doctor's name, address and telephone number with you to your appointment for reporting purposes.

Sailing Club Seeks Adviser

The Sailing Club is seeking an adviser. Any faculty member who would like to serve in this capacity is asked to call Meghan McCartan at ext. 14593.

Physics Colloquium

Robert Siegel and Marc Sher of the physics faculty will speak on "Does a 17 keV Neutrino Exist?" at the next physics colloquium at 4 p.m., Friday, March 29 in William Small Physical Laboratory 109. Coffee will be served in the conference room at 3:30 p.m.

John Finn of the University of Maryland will speak at the April 5 colloquium on "Three Dimensional Magnetic Reconnection and the Geometry of Magnetic Field Lines."

Fire Dept. Open House

The Williamsburg Fire Department will host its annual open house for the Williamsburg community from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., Saturday, April 13.

There will be CPR and first aid demonstrations, blood pressure screenings, fingerprinting identification for children, tours of the fire and rescue units, a mock car accident and free refreshments.

The Williamsburg Fire Department is located at the corner of Lafayette and North Boundary streets.

For further information call 220-3110.

Strand, Ackerman Open Writers Festival April 3

Mark Strand, poet laureate of the United States and poetry consultant for the Library of Congress, and Diane Ackerman, poet and essayist, will read from their work at 8 p.m., Wednesday, April 3, to open the 14th annual William and Mary Writers Festival.

All sessions are open to the public without charge.

Elizabeth Alexander and Robert Hershon will read from their work at 4 p.m., Thursday, April 4 in the Great Hall of the Wren Building.

Henry Hart and Jay Parini will read at 8 p.m., Thursday, April 4 in the Great Hall.

The two sessions on Friday will include readings by Sheila Roberts at 4 p.m. in the Great Hall of the Wren Building and a program by Allan Gurganus at 8 p.m. in Ewell Recital Hall.

Winners of student literary awards will read from their work at 4 p.m., Thursday, April 3 in the Great Hall.

A recent gift from Patrick Hayes of Interlachen, Fla., who announced his intention to provide annual support for the festival, assured this year's program. Other supporters include the English department, the Marstand Foundation, the Virginia Center for the Creative Arts and The William and Mary Review.

Orchestra To Play Schubert's 'Great C-major' Symphony

Schubert's Symphony in C, D. 944, the "Great C-major" symphony, will be featured by the William and Mary Orchestra in its spring concert at 8:15 p.m., Thursday, April 4 in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

Tickets are $3 and will be available at the door.

"This work is known as the 'Great C-major' symphony because Schubert also wrote an earlier symphony in the same key. 'The Great' is nearly an hour long, and was one of Schubert's last completed works," explains conductor Joe Suben.

The orchestra will open its program with "DIVERSIONS" by American composer Irving Fine, who taught for many years at Tanglewood in Massachusetts and was, during the 1950s, director of the Institute of Performing Arts at Brandeis University. The work was first performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra for a children's concert. Horn soloist in the third movement will be Janel Hansen, a senior from Norwell, Mass.

The program will also include Concerto Grosso op. 6 no. 4 in a-minor, by Handel, with student soloists Beth Jakob, Beth Jakob, violin; Robert Lowry, cello; and Sean Forschler, violin.

a senior from Dale City, Va.; Sean Forschler, a sophomore from Alexandria, Va.; and Robert Lowry, a sophomore from Olympia, Wash.

Orchestra alumnus Bill Sisson '90, a four-year member of the orchestra, will return as timpanist for this concert.

"Schubert is believed to have realized that he was dying when he worked on the 'Great C-major' symphony," says Suben. "Like Mozart, Schubert betrayed no morbidity in the music of his final months, and the result in this case is a work of triumphal, heroic grandeur. This is a seminal work of gothic symphonic structure, and its influence can be heard in the work of a number of later composers: Schumann, Brahms (who in the 1880s helped prepare the first scholarly edition of Schubert's symphonies), Bruckner and Mahler."

Suben's inclusion of "DIVERSIONS" is due in part to a hearty endorsement of the music by the late Leonard Bernstein who wrote, "In these four brief pieces we can behold a personality: tender without being coy, witty without being vulgar, appealing without being banal, and utterly sweet without ever being cloying."

Covenant Players Opens 'Kiss Me Kate' April 4

The Covenant Players, a company composed of members of the Canterbury Association and the Catholic Student Association, will present "Kiss Me Kate," music and lyrics by Cole Porter, at 8:15 p.m., April 4, 5, 6 and at 2 p.m., April 7, in Newman auditorium of Andrews Hall.

Tickets are $4 and available at St. Bede's Catholic Church, Bruton Parish Church, the Campus Center desk and at the door before each performance.

Wendi Gerth, a senior from Brentwood, Tenn., and Joe Wajszczuk, a junior from Madison, N.J., play the major roles of Kate and Petruccio.

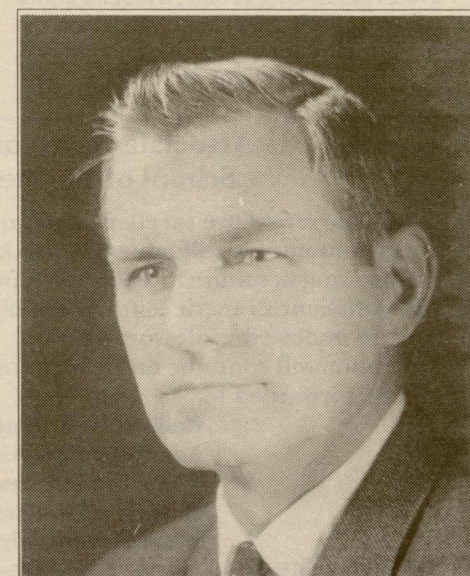

The Covenant Players is a shared activity of the Canterbury Association of Bruton Parish Church and the Catholic Student Association of St. Bede's Church. The company evolved from a covenant signed by students in 1977 to bring a ministry of drama to the College and community by offering plays with an inspirational message, to strengthen the covenant relationship between Catholics and Episcopalians and to raise money for charitable organizations.

The director is Karen Hardcastle and the vocal director, Peter Colohan. The cast also includes David Cardon, Heather Conrad, Danielle Curitore, Jennifer Downs, Nancy Griffith, Mike Harding, Jim Leonard, Virginia Long, Heather Mahaley, Kerith Martin, T. K. McLaughlin, Heather Miller, Jonathon Spangler, Betsy Torresson, Jamie Troy and Joe Whitmore. Production of "Kiss Me Kate" is being made by special arrangement with Tams-Whitmark, Inc.

Winslow To Lecture On History Of Polymers

Field H. Winslow, a scientist who helped shape the role that polymers play

Field H. Winslow

in many aspects of life today, will speak on "The History of Polyethylene: An Iconoclastic Plastic" at 3:30 p.m., Friday, April 5 in the Botetourt Theatre of Swem Library.

His talk is sponsored by the Applied Science Program and will serve to focus attention on the exhibit "Polymers and People," which will be in the Zollinger Museum of Swem Library, April 1-24. Winslow will be introduced by William H. Starnes Jr., Gottwald Professor of Chemistry and former chairman of the chemistry department at the Polytechnic University in Brooklyn, N.Y.

A former head of the organic chemistry research department at Bell Laboratories, Winslow in 1960 founded Polymer Preprints, the world's most widely circulated polymer journal. In 1967 he launched Macromolecules, a prestigious international journal, which he continues to serve as editor-in-chief.

Rec Center Offers Rentals

The rec sports department is now renting camping and outdoor sports equipment.

Golf clubs, bull horns, tug of war ropes, earthballs, starter pistols, stop watches, canoes, tents, sleeping bags, backpacks, wood stoves, mess kits, tarps, compasses and water bottles are available on a rental basis.

There is a charge for use of the equipment and a deposit which will be returned when the equipment is returned in good condition.
