Those signing up or renewing their membership by 5 p.m., Friday, May 3 are eligible for the drawing for one parking pass. Another pass will be issued to a current member who signs up the most new members by May 3.

Membership dues are $5 and cover the calendar year Jan. 1-Dec. 31, 1991. Membership is open to all hourly and classified employees. Checks should be made payable to HACE and sent to Linda Melochick, HACE treasurer, comptroller's office, Blow Hall.

For more information about membership or to receive a HACE membership brochure, call Jackie Smith, HACE membership chair, personnel department, ext. 13157.

Two Receive NEH Summer Awards For Research

Lynda L. Butler, professor of law, has been awarded an NEH Summer Stipend for her project "Political Theory, Property Rights and the Environment."

Lynda L. Butler

The purpose of this project, says Butler, "is to study how the relationship between political theory and constitutionally protected property rights impacts on environmental regulation. Under the takings or just compensation clause of the United States Constitution, environmental regulations can be a costly proposition.

"The confusing status of taking jurisprudence makes it difficult to predict the constitutional validity of environmental laws. One reason for this confusion is the relationship between political theory and property rights. The project will seek a more effective accommodation of political theory, property rights,

Committee On Sexual Harassment

In accordance with the new Procedures Governing Cases of Alleged Sexual Harassment, I hereby appoint, on behalf of the President, the following members to serve on the Sexual Harassment committee:

Affirmative Action Officer, Chair (to be announced); Carol Disque, dean of students (Chair, pro tempore); Loretta Early, president, HACE (3-year term, through 1993-94); John H. Willis, professor of English (3-year term, through 1993-94); Deanna L. Kraus-Zeilmann, clinical psychologist (2-year term, through 1992-93); Charles O. Matthews II, associate professor of education (2-year term through 1992-93); Terri Dispenziere, graduate student representative (1-year term, through 1991-92); and Deanne Kesack, Student Association representative (1-year term through 1991-92).

Melvyn D. Schiavelli

and environmental needs."

"Before the United States can effectively deal with environmental problems," says Butler, "it must resolve some of the tensions surrounding the interaction of political theory, property rights and environmental values. These tensions have heightened in recent years as government has become more aggressive about environmental regulation and has extended it into the area of land use control. Traditionally, government limited environmental regulation to common resources, such as air and water. Over the years support for this approach has eroded in response to growing scientific evidence of the link between environmental quality and land use and in response to greater appreciation of the ecological value of natural resources once considered to be relatively unimportant ..."

Butler plans to work in Williamsburg this summer.

Finn To Study In Rome

Thomas M. Finn, chair of the department of religion, has received a National Endowment for the Humanities-sponsored Summer Seminars for College Teachers grant. The sponsor is the American Academy in Rome.

The seminar will explore the Roman family and household in ancient Rome. Professors Richard Saller of the history department at the University of Chicago and John Bodel of the history department at Harvard, will direct the seminar. Both are well-known scholars in ancient social and cultural history, specializing in the family from a variety of perspectives. Full use will be made of the Italian setting.

"My project will be the impact of Christianity on the Roman family and household," said Finn who is currently on sabbatical, working on a book about conversion in early Christianity. He plans to approach the question of impact from the standpoint of conversion.

"Guidance from both Saller and Bodel as well as from the 11 other members of the seminar this summer will be invaluable," said Finn. "First-hand experience of the archaeological sites like Pompei and Herculaneum, Ostia Antica, and those in Rome itself will be of much interest."

Thomas M. Finn

This is the sixth NEH summer grant Finn has received. Three have been seminars, two have been for summer institutes, and one for summer research. In June, Finn plans to go to the Pontifical Institute for Medieval Studies on an NEH Travel to Collections grant for work on the 12th-century author of the theological textbook of the medieval schools, Peter the Lombard, The Four Books on the Sentences.

Collegewide Faculty Meeting

To: All members of the Faculty and Administration

Before the school year ends, I wanted you to place on your calendar the Annual Collegewide Faculty Meeting to be held at 3:30 p.m., Thursday, Sept. 12 in Millington.

On that occasion we shall do the following:

Introduce new members of the faculty of the College to their colleagues. (Background information will be distributed in advance of the meeting in order to keep introductions by the Provost brief.)

The academic deans will report on the highlights of the past year and expectations for the coming year.

The Rector of the College and I will make brief remarks to introduce the new College year.

The meeting, which should be over about 4:30 p.m., will be followed by an informal reception in the Muscarelle Museum, to which you are all invited.

Have a wonderful summer. I look forward to seeing you in the fall.

Paul R. Verkuil
President

P.S. Please mark your calendar for Sunday, Sept. 15 at 4 p.m. when Mrs. Verkuil and I look forward to visiting with you at a faculty barbecue.

Verkuil, Burger Are Named To NCAA Review Committee

President Paul R. Verkuil and Chancellor Warren E. Burger, former chief justice of the United States, have been named to a committee that will review the National Collegiate Athletic Association, NCAA, rules enforcement and infractions process.

No date has been set for the committee's first meeting, but the goal is to have preliminary recommendations ready for the Council's July 31-Aug. 2 meeting.

Brigham Young University President

Rex E. Lee will chair the 10-member committee, which was appointed by the NCAA Administrative Committee.

Verkuil On Kent State

President Verkuil spoke Tuesday evening in Tyler Hall on the 1970 confrontation between Kent State University students and National Guardsmen as a special guest lecturer for the new American studies course on the 1960s.

As a professor of law at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Verkuil represented the student body at Kent State in a suit before the U.S. Supreme Court. The suit sought damages from the state of Ohio for the actions of its National Guard on the Kent State campus on May 4, 1970.

Guard members dispatched to the university by the governor to control anti-war demonstrations fired on a crowd of students, killing four.

Ohio officials, invoking the doctrine of sovereign immunity, claimed exemption from the suit for the actions of its agents. Verkuil's brief successfully maintained that the state's denial of responsibility for the actions of its agents jeopardized the exercise of free speech by students at Kent State. The argument against sovereign immunity as a violation of due process was adopted by the Supreme Court in Krause v. Ohio.

Verkuil went on to be a consultant to broadcaster Bill Moyers for a special television documentary about Kent State which was shown as part of the presentation Tuesday evening.

VIMS Graduate Student Writes New Book On Peace Corps Adventures

Susan Lowerre poses with a family in a Senegalese village near the Mauretania border, who befriended her during her work in the Peace Corps.

Susan Lowerre, a graduate student at the School of Marine Science, is the author of a just published book, Under the Neem Tree.

It is the story of a young American woman who finds herself in a desolate scrap of Moslem Africa—a Pulaar village along the river that marks the border between Senegal and Mauretania. It is a stark reality she is totally unprepared for, with a job she is equally ill-equipped to handle, to teach the Senegalese how to grow fish in a Sahel, a land dying of thirst.

Slowly, the author becomes a part of the village, is adopted by a family and asked to take their last name. One of the women wants her to be there while she gives birth; another villager asks her to drive his mother's corpse to the village graveyard. She has to prove to the men who work at the fish station her right to be their boss. It becomes a showdown between herself and the Senegalese foreman, Dabo. If he wins, she will have wasted two years; if she wins, he will hate her. Her biggest war is with her body, which is continuously attacked by parasites.

The book records the Africa of one woman's daily life and the understanding that comes when it is no longer an adventure or a study of another culture, but simply a reality. It is not air-brushed or quaint, neither is it a stereotypical American picture of Africa. It is full of dust, death, heat and flies, and also Pulaar laughter and the brightness of desert stars.

Born and raised in upstate New York, Lowerre received a B.A. in biology and English from the University of Virginia. After her two years in Senegal, she lived in Mississippi, working for the National Marine Fisheries Service.

Under the Neem Tree has received several favorable reviews: "In a guileless narrative filled with affection and anger, Lowerre tells of the ill health and bureaucratic failings that beset her; she acknowledges the Pulaar people's love and good humor, and offers an unpretentious closeup of daily life in an African village" (Publishers Weekly); "An emotional, honest, and deeply human tale." (Kirkus Reviews).

Departments

English

Carl Dolmetsch, professor of English emeritus, presented a paper on "Courage and Cowardice: Mark Twain, Stephen Crane and the Civil War," at a conference of scholars on "Les Ecrivains americains face a la Guerre de Secession," at Université Paul Valéry in Montpellier, France, March 23. His paper explored the uses Crane made of Mark Twain's burlesque memoir, "The Private History of a Campaign That Failed," in writing his novella The Red Badge of Courage.

Government

Professor Roger W. Smith participated in a one-day conference in Boston on "Teaching at the University Level about Genocide." The conference, held April 19, was sponsored by Facing History and Ourselves (Brookline) and the Institute for the Study of Genocide (City University of New York). On April 18 he presented a talk at the University of Massachusetts/Boston on "Genocide and Denial."

His reviews of Lifton and Markusen, The Genocidal Mentality, and Chalf and Jonassohn, The History and Sociology of Genocide, appear in the March 1991 issue of the American Political Science Review. His review of Shahmuradian, ed., The Sumgait Tragedy: Pogroms against Armenians in Soviet Azerbaijan, will appear in the Institute for the Study of Genocide Newsletter in the summer. His review of Reinman, Justice and Modern Moral Philosophy appears in the Winter 1991 issue of Perspectives on Political Science.

Smith has recently become a consultant for the film, "Who Remembers the Armenians," which is being prepared by the Armenian Heritage Project, Inc. (New York) and the Alvin Perlmutter organization of New York.

Psychology

Professor Kelly G. Shaver recently served as chairman of a social science review panel for the Louisiana Educational Quality Support Fund, administered by the Board of Regents of the state. This program is designed to provide the support that in-state faculty members need to become nationally competitive in a variety of disciplines. The social science panel reviewed applications in economics, law, political science, psychology, sociology and urban studies. The panel included Dr. Claire B. Kopp, University of California, Los Angeles; and Dr. Susan Welch, University of Nebraska.

Shaver also served on two federal review panels. During early April he was a member of a Small Business Innovation Research review panel conducted by the National Institutes of Health, and later in the month he was a member of a National Science Foundation advisory panel considering proposals for research training groups in the biological, behavioral and social sciences.

Shaver, who serves as chairman of the Hampton Roads Innovation and Technological Education Consortium (HITEC) recently described the activities of HITEC at a meeting of the Virginia Peninsula chapter of the National Association of Accountants. HITEC consists of representatives from all Peninsula and Southside educational institutions and the regional economic development organizations. It exists to promote economic development through technology transfer and commercialization.

Shaver was co-author of two papers presented at the meeting of the Eastern Psychological Association.

The first, with 1990 graduates Sanford L. Williams and Linda R. Scott, was titled "Personality or Situation: Can Entrepreneurs be Created?" The second, with 1989 graduate Michael W. Kilgore, was titled "Equity, Equality, Effort, and Performance," and was based on Kilgore's honors research in psychology.

Shaver presented a paper titled "Attributions for New Venture Creation: An Experimental Comparison" at the 1991 Babson Entrepreneurship Research Conference co-sponsored by the University of Pittsburgh. Co-authors on this paper were Elizabeth J. Gatewood, University of Houston, and William B. Gartner, Georgetown University.

Melissa K. Welch, currently a student in the psychology M.A. program, presented a paper at the Eastern Psychological Association meeting titled "The Effect of Developmental Frameworks on Children's Memory for Gender-related Story Content," and co-authored by Constance R. Schmidt, of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University.

Sociology

John Mahoney, assistant professor, presented a paper titled "Ethnic Marriage Patterns in a Rural Czech-American Community," in the "Family Issues: Class, Race, and Ethnicity," session of the Southern Sociological Society meeting in Atlanta. Mahoney presided over the session on "Marriage and Family in the Next Century."

School of Education

Stuart Flanagan, professor of mathematics education, co-authored with Elizabeth Perkins, "Some Conjectures about Japanese Achievement," which appeared in the Virginia Mathematics Teacher this spring. In February, Flanagan also presented a paper, "Help Your Students Pass Literacy Passport Mathematics," at the Peninsula Council of Mathematics of Virginia winter conference in Hampton.

Joyce VanTassel-Baska, Jody and Layton Smith Professor of Education, authored a textbook, Planning Curriculum for the Gifted, which was published in March by Love Publishing Company.

Sandra Ward, assistant professor, presented a paper "Classification Congruence Among School Psychologists," during the National Association of School Psychologists' conference in Dallas, March 20-23. Ward also received a grant from William and Mary to pursue work this summer on "The Impact of Educational Level on Comprehension Monitoring and Illusion of Knowing."

Marshall-Wythe School of Law

Professor John Donaldson has been selected as a Fellow of the Virginia Law Foundation. This is a high honor awarded to Virginia lawyers whose leadership in the private bar, in government or in public service is deemed to be outstanding.

James Moliterno, assistant professor, has a development note, "The Legal Skills Program at the College of William and Mary: An Early Report," published in the December number 4 of the Journal of Legal Education.

VIMS

Marilyn Lewis of the library led a discussion on Cooperative Sharing of Serials at the Delmarva Marine and Aquatic Sciences Libraries and Information Centers Workshop at the Smithsonian on April 12.

Society of the Alumni

W. Barry Adams, executive vice president, chaired a national conference on alumni programs in capital campaigns sponsored by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education on April 29 and 30 in Boston. The program focused on enhancing and maintaining the alumni office's role throughout the stages of a major campaign. This was the second consecutive year that Adams chaired the conference.

vonBaeyer Wins National Recognition For Essays In The Sciences

Hans C. vonBaeyer, professor of physics, was in New York last week to accept the National Magazine Award for a series of three essays in The Sciences, the journal of the New York Academy of Sciences.

Analogous to the National Book Awards, these yearly honors were presented at a luncheon, April 23 at the Waldorf Astoria attended by 1,200 editors and publishers. VonBaeyer said he was very pleased and proud to have won the award, especially in light of the stiff competition.

This award is the latest recognition of vonBaeyer's extraordinary ability to translate the intricacies of science for the lay reader. In 1989 he won the American Association for the Advancement of Science-Westinghouse Science Journalism Award, again for articles in The Sciences. His book, Rainbows, Snowflakes, and Quarks, published by McGraw-Hill in 1984, was well received. He is currently at work on a new book about atoms for Random House which he says will be out in a year or so.

The judges' citation for his latest award noted vonBaeyer's "uncommon literary grace," which draws the reader beyond the literal meaning of computation, experiment and formula to discover the mysterious beauty of science, to find poetry in reason." His winning essays were "The Aesthetic Equation," about beauty in physics; "A Ripple in Gravity's Lens," an article that discussed the bending of light by gravity; and "Dead Ringer," an essay about the unsuccessful quest for the magnetic monopole, a magnet that has one pole instead of two.

In an interview with Daily Press writer Kirk Saville, vonBaeyer explained "I'm not trying to teach anybody quantum mechanics. I'm trying to teach the meaning of physics." In his speech at the awards ceremony vonBaeyer thanked his editors at The Sciences, whom he likened to midwives. "Editors are the midwives of ideas," vonBaeyer said.

A member of the faculty since 1968, vonBaeyer has received the Thomas Ashley Graves Award for Sustained Excellence in Teaching and the Thomas Jefferson Teaching Award. Last year he was selected an outstanding faculty member for 1990 by the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia. For this award, he was particularly cited for his course "Physics for Non-Scientists," which reflects vonBaeyer's approach to physics with a broad, humanistic flavor.

AAUP To Sponsor Kreiser Lecture

The William and Mary Chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) and the School of Marine Science Faculty Assembly Delegation are sponsoring a talk on faculty rights and responsibilities by B. Robert Kreiser, associate secretary of the national AAUP office, at 3 p.m., Thursday, May 9 in Watermen's Hall auditorium on the Gloucester Point campus of the School of Marine Science.

Kreiser received a B.A. in history from Rutgers University and an M.A. and Ph.D.

in history from the University of Chicago. He has served as associate secretary for the AAUP since 1982, and in this capacity mediates cases and complaints involving issues of academic freedom, tenure and academic due process; advises and assists administrators, standing committees, faculty representatives and others in the higher education community on faculty personnel matters; assists governing boards, administrators and faculty members in implementing the principles of shared authority.

Summer Classes For Gifted Learners Set For July 8-19

The Center for Gifted Education will hold summer classes for gifted learners July 8-19.

Registration is now open for the classes, which will be held at the College and at Matthew Whaley School. Two sessions of courses will be held for children who will be entering preschool through grade 10.

The morning session will be from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., with the afternoon session from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. A supervised lunch period for students in both sessions is included.

Courses are open to students who score at the 95th percentile or above on a nationally normed aptitude or achievement test. A recommendation from school personnel (teacher, principal or counselor) is also required.

Eligibility screening, conducted by the gifted center's staff, is available for preschool children and students for whom no documented scores are available. Evaluation appointments can be made by calling ext. 12362 and a $50 fee is due at the time of the appointment.

Costs for each course will be $150, which includes a $120 non-refundable application fee. Need-based scholarship aid is available.

For applications or more information about the summer program, contact Jane Bailey at the School of Education, ext. 12351.

Corporate Leaders Will Discuss Business And The Environment

"Business and the Environment" will be the topic of a panel discussion sponsored by the Graduate School of Business from 3 to 5 p.m., Friday, May 3, in the Empire Room of the Williamsburg Hospitality House, Richmond Road.

The session, to be moderated by Alfred N. Page, dean of the business school, is an educational event designed to expose William and Mary MBA students and alumni to corporate leaders as they discuss this important topic.

Panelists are expected to address their business's or industry's basic strategy for dealing with environmental issues and relate what they feel will be the principal environmental concerns facing business during the next 10 years.

Panelists include: Walter C. Barber, president and CEO of Groundwater Technology, Inc., Norwood, Mass; Bruce C. Gottwald, president of Ethyl Corp.,

Richmond; James D. Lacy, vice president of communications, Ashland Oil, Inc., Ashland, Ky.; Richard M. Morrow, past chairman of Amoco Corp., Chicago; and Karen H. Rasmussen, manager of environmental programs, General Electric Co., Fairfield, Conn.

Following the discussion by panel members, questions will be welcomed from the audience.

FirstSearch: A New Computerized Reference System

What is FirstSearch? FirstSearch is a new, easy-to-use, online computerized reference system which provides access to the OCLC Online Union Catalog and ERIC (Educational Resources Information Center) database.

How much does it cost? Through June 1991 FirstSearch is FREE. After that time, we will determine whether to keep the system.

How can you access FirstSearch? FirstSearch is available from a terminal in the Reference Department of Swem Library or through the Internet computer network from a microcomputer or terminal connected to the campus telecommunications system. If you do not know how to access the College's VM computer or the Internet, we suggest that you contact Users Services in the Computer Center (ext. 13002).

When is FirstSearch available? FirstSearch is available Monday through Friday from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. and on Saturday from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

What if you need more help? Swem Library will hold some orientation sessions, if there is sufficient demand, to introduce the campus community to FirstSearch. If you are interested in a hands-on explanation, please call the reference department at ext. 13067.

Directions for Accessing FirstSearch Through the Internet

Following are directions for accessing FirstSearch through the Internet. The Computer Center and Swem Library are in the process of investigating some methods to simplify and improve access to FirstSearch through the Internet.

- Log on to the campus VM system with your User ID and password.
- At the Ready prompt, enter the following command: telnet 132.174.100.2.
- Press the <Clear> key when you see "MORE" at the bottom right corner of the screen
- You'll then get a screen message: "You are connected to OCLC Reference Services"
- At the prompt "Enter your authorization," type the following: 100-056-000
- At the prompt "Enter your password," type the following: first1
- You will then get the following response:

=>**

(You are now connected to FirstSearch)

- Follow the screen prompts to search either the OCLC Online Union Catalog or ERIC.

Note: the VM system requires that you press the <Clear> key whenever you see MORE or HOLDING on the bottom right corner of the screen.

To quit FirstSearch:

- Type q and press <ENTER> or <RETURN> to quit FirstSearch.
- Type y to indicate yes you wish to quit.
- You will then get a message: "Session ended. ENTER to return to CMS."
- Press <ENTER> or <RETURN> and you will be back at VM.
- At the prompt "Ready", type: logoff
- You will then be disconnected from your session.

SERVICES

CHILD CARE. Williamsburg Community Childcare, 126 Armistead Ave., has several openings through the summer for children, 2 to 6 years old. WCCC offers a warm and caring atmosphere of learning games, craft activities, outdoor playtime and frequent field trips, made possible by a low child/adult ratio. For example, on Valentine's Day, the children discussed friendship, made Valentine cards and took a field trip to the post office to mail them. WCCC is a parent co-operative day care center and welcomes parents to visit anytime. Tuition fees are on a sliding scale based on income, and include breakfast, lunch and two snacks daily, and all supplies and equipment. The WJCC school system bus transports kindergartners to and from Matthew Whaley School. For information on enrollment, call Fran Dorsey, 220-0225. (5/15)

Labor for hire. Two W&M students will do lawn work and other jobs around your home. Call Joe or Cam at 221-0578. (5/8)
