Bookstore Has New Tercentenary Poster

A poster featuring a previously unknown illustration of Williamsburg drawn during the American Revolution was unveiled Friday in the chapel of the Wren Building.

The illustration was drawn by George Daniel Flohr, a German soldier serving in the French Regiment Royal-Deux-Ponts from 1780 to 1783. Flohr's illustrated account is the only known journal written by an enlisted man in General Rochambeau's army.

Robert Selig, visiting assistant professor of history at Hope College, Holland, Mich., who is translating Flohr's journal, will give a slide lecture on Flohr and his journal at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 29, in Washington 201. This lecture is free and open to the public.

Martha Hamilton-Phillips, the College's Tercentenary director, became aware of Selig's find during an academic conference in 1991. She approached Selig about reproducing the Williamsburg image and received the consent from the city of Strasbourg for the College to publish it.

The poster is part of a series celebrating the 300th anniversary of the College's charter in 1693. Copies are available in the College Bookstore on Jamestown Road. The posters are 20" X 30" and sell for $10.

Selig's annotated translation of the journal will be the first major treatment of the work, and the first to recognize the historical importance of the illustrations. Selig has written an article for the July 1993 issue of The William and Mary Quarterly.

During the autumn of 1781, Flohr fought under Rochambeau in the Battle of Yorktown, a decisive battle that led to the surrender of British General Cornwallis to George Washington. After the surrender, Flohr, the son of a Bavarian butcher, spent the winter in Williamsburg.

Flohr's journal, completed after his return to Germany,

Five Professors Named 1992 Alumni Fellows

The Society of the Alumni has selected five faculty members as this year's Alumni Fellows: Francie Cate-Arries, associate professor of Spanish; Clayton Clemens '80, associate professor of government; William DeFotis, associate professor of music; Neal Devins, associate professor of law and lecturer in government; and David M. Nicol, associate professor of computer science.

The fellowships are awarded annually to younger members of the College faculty who have demonstrated outstanding achievement in their academic fields. The award winners will be honored at the annual Alumni Fellows Dinner, to be held Sept. 10 in conjunction with the Society's Board of Directors meeting.

Professor Cate-Arries received her bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Georgia, and her doctorate from the University of Wisconsin. She joined the faculty in 1986.

American Studies Seminar Draws International Participants

For the third year, the American Studies program, with the United States Information Agency and the Academy of Educational Development, are hosting part of a program for teacher trainers in English language and American literature from a variety of countries around the world.

The overall theme of the program, "Regionalism and American Culture," will be interpreted for the visitors at a number of universities in different parts of the country. Here at William and Mary the program Sept. 6 to 13, will focus on southern regionalism. A $7,000 grant was received from USIA/AED to fund the conference.

In addition to a full program of lectures, the participants will sample a southern barbecue at the Alumni House, attend a Chesapeake Bay fish fry at the Virginia Institute of Marine Science, and tour Colonial Williamsburg and Jamestown Historic Site and Jamestown Settlement. The visitors will get a view of campus life from a meeting with undergraduates at the Reves Center Thursday evening.

President Timothy J. Sullivan will meet with participants and welcome them to campus Monday afternoon at a reception at the Wendy and Emery Reves Center for International Studies, planned by Craig N. Canning, associate professor of history and associate director of the Reves Center.

Robert A. Gross, Forrest D. Murden Jr. Professor of American Studies and director of the American Studies program, is coordinator for the seminar program on campus. He is the author of The Minutemen and Their World (1976), a social history of Concord, Mass., during the Revolutionary era, and editor of In Debt to Shays: The Bicentennial of an Agrarian Rebellion (1992). His more recent essays treat the social and cultural history of New England and of the Transcendentalist writers, especially Ralph Waldo Emerson and Henry David Thoreau, during the 19th century.

Gross will lecture on "Reviving the Revolution: Emerson, Thoreau and 19th-Century New England," Wednesday afternoon.

After the barbecue Sunday evening and a tour of the campus, participants will begin their program Monday morning, Sept. 7 with a talk "The Clash of Cultures: Europeans and Indians in the Settlement of Virginia" by James Axtell, Kenan Professor of Humanities and Chair of the American Historical Association's Committee on the Columbian Quincentenary. Axtell will portray the encounter of English and Indian cultures during the colonization of Virginia and will place the story of the settlement in the larger context of the European expansion into the Americas.

Also Monday morning, Michal Sobel, Harrison Professor of History and a leading scholar of race relations in 18th-century Virginia, will speak on "The World They Made Together: Blacks and Whites in Colonial Virginia." He will focus on the slave society created in 18th-century Virginia, which forced Africans to adapt to a novel setting and a new culture. But these unwilling immigrants to the New World altered the customs and beliefs of their masters substantially. He will show how the preindustrial cultures of African and English settlers converged to fashion common forms of work, worship and play.

Ronald D. Hoffman, director of the Institute of Early American History and Culture, will give the first lecture on Tuesday, "A Spirit of Dissension: Division and Disorder in the American Revolution."

Hoffman will show that taking form in different regional cultures, the American Revolution nonetheless succeeded in drawing together diverse groups around the goals of liberty and independence. This presentation will examine the differing circumstances and meanings of the Revolution to people in the colonies and probe how the patriots managed to come together in a common cause.

Thad Tate, director emeritus of the Commonwealth Center for the Study of American Culture, will follow with a lecture, "Thomas Jefferson, The Declaration of Independence, and 18th-Century Liberalism."

Tate will discuss how Jefferson as author of the Declaration of Independence and influential architect of the new nation's experiment in republicanism, developed his ideas on politics and society out of his experiences in Virginia and his readings in history, philosophy and law. Jefferson was a student at the College 1760-62. He remained in Williamsburg to study law under George Wythe. In 1779, under the leadership of Jefferson, then Governor of Virginia, William and Mary became a university.

Chandos Brown, director of the Commonwealth Center for the Study of American Culture and associate professor of history and American studies will discuss "Race and Slavery in Antebellum America." Brown will describe the "peculiar institution" of the 19th-century South, exploring the diverse ways the people of the region, black and white, coped with realities of a society based upon human bondage. His presentation will give particular attention to ideas about race in North and South and will compare the social circumstances of blacks above and below the Mason-Dixon line.

Margaretta Lovell, Dittman Professor of American Studies, will talk on "New World Landscapes: Interpreting Nature for the 19th-Century Metropolis," Thursday morning.

Lovell, a specialist on art and material culture, will describe the growth and popularity of American landscape paintings in the 19th century and will explore how the genre represented the grandeur of American nature for a largely urban audience in the East.

Richard Lowry, assistant professor of English will take as his topic, "Visions of the West: Mark Twain and Pioneer America." A specialist on Twain, Lowry will examine how this writer developed out of his early experiences in Missouri and on Mississippi River steamboats.

John H. Stanfield II, Cummings Professor of Sociology and American Studies will talk Thursday afternoon on "America after Rodney King." The spring riots in South Central Los Angeles have renewed concern about the state of race relations in the United States today. Stanfield, who focuses on the sociology of race and racism in the U.S. and the Western World, will analyze the social and economic circumstances of minority peoples in urban America and set forth his view of the prospects for social change and racial justice in the pluralistic society of the future.

"How Americans See the World: American Culture and Foreign Policy" will be the topic of a talk Friday morning by Edward Crapol, professor of history. Crapol is a specialist on U.S. diplomatic history and will examine how American culture shapes the ways foreign policy is conducted.

Dale Cockrell, David N. and Margaret C. Bottoms Professor of Music, will trace the emergence of rock and roll in the 1950s and 1960s back to its roots in the country music of southern whites and blacks in his talk, "Truckin' to Graceland: Southern Culture and the Roots of Rock and Roll."

Rodney Smolla, director of the Institute of Bill of Rights Law and professor of law at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, will speak on "The Bill of Rights: A Bicentennial View."

A leading scholar of the First Amendment, Smolla will discuss the making and significance of the Bill of Rights at its Bicentennial and will interpret current debates over the relevance of the 10 amendments to private and public life. Smolla is the author of several books. His latest is Free Speech in an Open Society.

Participants will include Christa Kochuyt from Hoger Pedagogisch Instituut Van Het Gemeenschapsonderwijs, Brugge, Belgium; Maria Da Conceicao Magalhaes Vaz De Mello, Federal University of Minas Gerais, Belo Horizonte, Brazil; Antoaneta Doncheva Doncheva, Stara Zagora In-Service Training Institute, Stara Zagora, Bulgaria; Berta Lucia San Martin Alvarez, University of La Serena, Chile; Michael Barton Cain, Royal Danish School of Educational Studies, Esbjerg, Denmark; Yehia Mohammed El-Sadek, Ministry of Education, Zagazig, Egypt; and Michael Boucher, National Teacher Training University, Libreville, Gabon.

Also Bernd Dieter Lasar, National Association for Teaching Material in American Studies, Hamburg, Germany; Untung Waluyo, University of Mataram, Lombok, Indonesia; Victorino Guila, Instituto Superior Pedagogico, Maputo, Mozambique; Eva D. Bonilla, National Autonomous University of Nicaragua; Krystyna Pytlik, National Teacher Training Center, Warsaw, Poland; Armed Babiker El-Tahir, University of Khartoum, Sudan; Gilberto Fernando Valera Mendoza, Venezuelan-American Binational Center, Caracas, Venezuela; and Mahir M. A. Fattash, An Najhah University Community College, West Bank.

Eileen Maloy and Minnie Battle are traveling with the visitors as guides. Darlene O'Dell, a doctoral candidate in American studies is serving as administrative assistant for the program. Many local groups have contributed to preparations for the seminar including the Jamestown Settlement, the National Park Service, the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation, the Wendy and Emery Reves Center, the Virginia Institute of Marine Science, the Society of the Alumni and the Commonwealth Center.

Travel Regulations

Out-of-state conventions, conferences, seminars, workshops or similar functions attended by more than five (5) employees from the same agency are limited to travel within 300 miles (one-way) of state borders unless prior written approval is given by the head of the agency or institution, or his or her designee.

Out-of-country travel must receive prior written approval of the head of the agency or institution, or his or her designee, and such approval must be submitted with the travel voucher. At their option, Governor's secretaries may request co-approval of out-of-country travel.

Please note that approval by the Secretary of Education for travel outside the boundaries of the United States is no longer necessary. New forms are available in the academic deans' offices of the office of the provost.

NOTES

Keep Ramps Clear

The Dean of Students office has asked that bicycle and scooter riders on campus be reminded of the importance of ramps for disabled persons.

Please keep all building ramps clear. Do not park bicycles, scooters or other vehicles on handicapped-accessible ramps.

Ramps must be clear at all times for use by persons with disabilities. Vehicles found on these ramps will be impounded by the campus police; chains or locks which secure them will of necessity be cut.

Grant Application Deadlines

Application forms for faculty Summer Research Grants, Semester Research Grants, and Minor Research Grants (NOTE: undergraduate and graduate students are also eligible for Minor Research Grants, which normally do not exceed $500) are available from the Grants Office, James Blair 201, or call Anne Womack at ext. 13967 to receive one in campus mail.

Applicants should read the policy and principles statement attached to the applications before submitting a proposal.

Deadlines will be strictly enforced. The deadlines are:

Minor Research Grants—Sept. 17 and Jan. 30, 1993

Semester Research Grants—Oct. 1.

Summer Research Grants—Oct. 22

Libraries Want Your Number

For the automated circulation system, the libraries of the College need to identify each borrower with a numerical code, preferably the borrower's social security number.

With a person's permission, the College can provide a tape of social security numbers that can be loaded into the database where they will be protected from unauthorized use.

In compliance with Virginia Code, Section 2.1-285, permission is sought to use social security numbers within the database. If this is not acceptable to any borrower, please notify the libraries by Sept. 30 by writing Linda F. Adams, circulation coordinator at Swem Library. The request must be made in writing. The libraries will assume permission from borrowers they do not hear from by Sept. 30.

Children's Festival At Jamestown Sept. 5

A 17th-century children's festival will be held at Jamestown Settlement 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 5.

"The Magical Duke of Windsor," Lou Osborne, will present rope and card tricks, illusions and other magical acts at 1 p.m., and "Juggling Jay" Casper will juggle rings, balls, fire and other objects at 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. Seventeenth-century music and dancing will be performed at noon and 2 p.m., and Shirley "Little Dove" McGowan will tell native American stories at 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. in the Powhatan Indian Village. Admission to Jamestown Settlement is $7 for adults; $3.50 for children 6 through 12. Children must be accompanied by an adult during the festival.

For more information, call 229-1607.

includes watercolors of Williamsburg, Yorktown and other American communities. The illustrations are drawn with a tiny quill pen and sepia ink, and brushed with watercolors in blue, ochre, terracotta and green.

Modern residents of Williamsburg will instantly recognize the main features of the watercolor, including the Wren Building, the President's House and the Brafterton, in the foreground of the poster. The drawing shows the President's House before it was accidentally burned on Dec. 22, 1781, while being used as a hospital for wounded French soldiers.

Flohr's journal consists of about 250 pages with 30 colored illustrations and is now owned by the Bibliotheque Municipales of the city of Strasbourg, France.

Flohr's journal includes a detailed description of the Yorktown battle. He also made several observations on the College and the city of Williamsburg.

"The city of Williamsburg is situated on a plain in a beautiful area; it is also of a considerable size. It is also adorned with some splendid buildings, which are: the College with two beautiful additional buildings."

Registration For Children's Art Classes Set Sept. 19

Registration for the fall session of the Muscarelle Museum of Art's Gallery/Studio program, Oct. 3 through Nov. 21, will be held from 10 a.m. to noon on Saturday, Sept. 19. In-person registration will continue until classes are filled.

Classes are arranged according to 1991-92 school grade level, pre-school through 10th grade, and use works of art on display in the museum as learning material and inspiration for creative art projects.

The cost is $20 per student; however, scholarships are available in cases of financial need. For further information, call the education office of the museum at ext. 12703. This program is sponsored, in part, by the Williamsburg Arts Commission.

The following classes will be offered:

Art Together, ages 3-4, 9 to 10:30 a.m.; Ages 5-6, 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The fundamentals of creating visually. Parents and children will work together on art projects based on museum exhibitions.

Long Ago and Far Away, grades 1-2, 9 to 10:30 a.m. or 1:30 to 3 p.m. Children recreate myths and legends with a variety of materials.

Artful Costumes, grades 3-4, 11 a.m.

to 12:30 p.m., or 1:20 to 3 p.m. Children make helmets, masks or robes and dress themselves as works of art found in the galleries.

Living Legends, grades 5-6, 9 to 10:30 a.m., or 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Students explore legends associated with the museum's portraits and figures on display and create portraits of their own legends.

Sculpting an Image, grades 7-10, 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Portrait sculpture on exhibit is the inspiration for learning sculpting techniques and styles from the 19th century to present day.

CommonHealth Fitness Classes Begin Sept. 8

There will be a two-week break in CommonHealth fitness classes from Aug. 24-Sept. 7. Classes will resume with the following schedule beginning Sept. 8.

Project Mandala Begins Final Sessions Sept. 19

The final session of Project Mandala for gifted learners ages 4-14, begins Sept. 19 with an enrollment of approximately 100 children.

Enrichment classes will be held on campus on Saturday morning for eight weeks. Course offerings in mathematics, multicultural humanities and computer technology will be available to students.

Joy Baytops

Those who have worked with the program over the last two years and have seen how it has expanded the horizons of youngsters, hope that additional funding can be found to keep the program going until June. Friends of Mandala are also hopeful that "bridge" funding can be obtained. They want to see the momentum that has been generated, sustained until school divisions can include Mandala-type programs in their own curricula.

Summer Session

A summer session of Saturday programs from June 22 to July 2 was held at D. J. Montague Elementary School on Centerville Road. Sessions are usually held on campus, but the summer session was moved off campus because of spacing conflicts. The program focused on Multicultural Humanities and Explorations in Science. Students were introduced to Filipino, Hispanic and Native American cultures. Staff, students and family members also went on a one-day field trip to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C.

The Mandala program, federally funded by a $850,000 grant from The Jacob Javits Gifted and Talented Students Act, operates through the Office of Educational Research and Improvement of the Department of Education. It has started youngsters thinking about careers they formerly thought were beyond their reach. Five-year-old Cherl once thought her education would only equip her to be a salesgirl in a department store. Now, after Mandala, her sights have been raised; she is planning to become a doctor or lawyer. Rick, a 14-year-old dropout who was a problem at home and in school because of aggressive behavior, has found a more positive avenue for his energies through Mandala.

Program Philosophy

The idea behind the program is to reach out to children and their parents and meet the unique learning needs of gifted youngsters. The program's name "Mandala" is taken from the concept of the universality of mankind which, in many different cultures, recognizes the value of individuality as well as the uniqueness of the group.

Parents play an important role in the Mandala Program. They are required to attend training/workshop sessions three or four times during each semester. These sessions focus on parenting skills, advice and advocacy support with local school division personnel, and obtaining access to resources in the community to enhance the learning opportunities of their children. Parents are also invited to the Mandala classrooms to see what their children are learning and are encouraged by the staff to provide support in learning experiences at home.

Children in the program are also encouraged by collegians from William and Mary, Hampton University and Virginia Commonwealth University who serve as assistant instructors and big brothers and big sisters. They not only work with children in the program but also visit with them in their homes. Their aim is to reinforce the support and encouragement the children receive from the Mandala curriculum and to encourage parent involvement. These college students also serve as assistant instructors to Project Mandala teachers.

The groundwork for the program, the research that was used in preparing a proposal for funding, was done by School of Education faculty including Joyce vanTassel Baska, Jody and Layton Smith Professor of Education and Director of the Center for Gifted Education, and professors Alan Patton and Douglas Prillaman. These faculty members and Virginia Laycock McLaughlin, associate professor of education and now special assistant to President Timothy Sullivan, were co-authors of the project proposal. Their goal was to make a case for the underserved, or in many cases unserved needs of gifted children who were economically disadvantaged, culturally diverse and with certain learning and physical disabilities.

A total of 28 grants were funded nationwide. Mandala is the only one operating in Virginia. It serves 14 school divisions including Williamsburg and James City County, Norfolk, Petersburg, Northumberland, Henrico, King William, Portsmouth, Newport News, Virginia Beach, Hampton, King and Queen, Charles City, Surry and York County.

Joy Baytops

Coordinator Baytops has a special enthusiasm for the program because of her experiences as a student in the public schools in Newark, N.J., and King and Queen County, Va. She clearly identifies with "life themes" associated with gifted learners. As a young artist in a rural high school, she missed the art program she had enjoyed in Newark. Because of her experience, she vowed to change the fact that there were many gifted artists and academic students whose talents had not been discovered and challenged in the schools.

She attended VCU and graduated with a fine arts degree in art education and made good on her promise to start an art program in the King and Queen County Schools.

Baytops will finish requirements for a Master of Arts in Education Degree in Gifted Education in December. Prior to coming to William and Mary, she worked as a local gifted program coordinator in the Northern Neck and also served as a regional Governor's School director. Her interest in programs for the underserved populations was also sparked by her positions on several state committees for Gifted Education over a period of 10 years. Other Project Mandala staff members are Beverly Laws, secretary; Victoria Damiani, project assistant and school psychologist; and graduate assistants Lisa Bowman, Katie Hammett and Susan Ruby.

For more information about Project Mandala call ext. 14813.

A presentation on Mandala will be given at the national meeting of the Council on Exceptional Children, which will be held this winter in Minneapolis.

The College of William and Mary Rights of Students Under Family Education Rights And Privacy Act

Under the terms of the Family Education Rights and Privacy Act of 1974, the College is to inform enrolled students annually of their rights under the law. The act does not apply to students admitted to the College who have not officially enrolled.

The College hereby affirms that its policies and procedures are in full compliance with the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974, whereby each student's right to the privacy of his or her official College records and access to the same is assured.

Enrolled students should have the following rights under the Law:

1. The right of access to his or her official College records. Under the terms of the Act, the College is not required to make available to students the following materials:
 - a. Confidential letters of recommendation placed in student's files before January 1, 1975, and those letters for which the student has signed a waiver of his or her right of access.
 - b. Parent's confidential financial statements.
 - c. Medical, psychiatric, or similar records "which are created, maintained, or used only in connection with the provision of treatment to the student and are not available to anyone other than persons providing such treatment; provided, however, that such records can be personally reviewed by a physician or other appropriate professional of the student's choice."
 - d. Personal files and records of members of faculty or administrative personnel, which are in the sole possession of the maker thereof and which are not accessible or revealed to any person except a substitute.
 - e. Records of the Admission Office concerning students admitted but not yet enrolled at the College. Letters of recommendation are removed from the admission files before the files are forwarded to the Registrar's Office.
2. The right to inspect and review his or her official College records.
3. The right to a response from the College to reasonable requests for explanations and interpretations of his or her official records.
4. The right to an opportunity for a hearing to challenge the accuracy or appropriateness of his or her official records.
5. The right to have disclosure of his or her official records limited to College officials or other persons authorized under the Act, for legitimate purposes, unless permission for release of such information to other parties is given in writing.

The College has designated the following information as "Directory Information," which may be released to the public:

1. Student's name, address (permanent and local), telephone number (permanent and local).
2. Student's birthdate.
3. Dates of attendance at the College, field of concentration, current classification, current enrollment status (full or part time), degrees awarded.
4. Previous schools attended and degrees awarded.
5. Honors or special recognition.
6. Height and weight of members of athletic teams.

A student who does not want the above information made public must file notice in writing of his request in the Registrar's Office, Blow Memorial Hall, by Sept. 4, 1992.

She has taught a number of Spanish language and literature courses, as well as a course in women's studies. Her scholarly research, for which she has been awarded several research grants, is currently focused on the writings of surrealist painter Salvador Dali. Cate-Arries has served as a freshman adviser, an adviser to the Hispanic house and a director of senior honors thesis students in Spanish.

Nicol

Professor Clemens has taught courses on European political systems, U.S. foreign policy, arms control and international relations. He is the author of Reluctant Realists: West Germany's CDU/CSU and Ostpolitik, published by Duke University Press in 1989.

Clemens is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of William and Mary, and received his M.A. and Ph.D. from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University. During the 1990-91 academic year, he served as a Council on Foreign Relations International Affairs Fellow at the United States Embassy in Bonn, Germany.

Professor DeFotis received his bachelor's and master's degrees in music composition from the University of Illinois, and his doctorate in orchestral conducting from the University of Iowa. In 1977, he was awarded a Fulbright Commission Grant to study composition with Wolf Rosenberg in Munich, Germany.

DeFotis' compositions — instrumental, vocal and electronic — have been performed throughout the United States and in Europe, and a number of recordings have been made of his works. His orchestration of J. S. Bach's Prelude and Fugue in C-Sharp Minor was premiered in Jan. 1992 by the Cincinnati Philharmonic. DeFotis, who joined the faculty in 1986, teaches courses in composition and music theory.

Professor Devins serves as a consultant to the American Bar Association's Central and Eastern European Law Initiative and as a research fellow at the Institute of Bill of Rights Law at the College. Prior to joining the faculty, he served as assistant general counsel of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights.

Devins is the author of several books, including Abortion Politics: The Role of Elected Government in Shaping Constitutional Values to be published by Johns Hopkins University Press. His many articles on constitutional law, civil rights and education topics have been published in prominent legal publications: his op-ed pieces have appeared in The Wall Street Journal, The Washington Post and the Christian Science Monitor. Devins received his A.B. from Georgetown University and his J.D. from Vanderbilt Law School.

Professor Nicol is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Carleton College and received his master's and doctoral degrees in computer science from the University of Virginia. His research interests include parallel processing, performance analysis, parallel simulation and static and dynamic mapping algorithms. He has written many articles and has been awarded numerous research grants from the National Science Foundation, NASA and other agencies.

In addition to his scholarly duties, Nicol serves as a consultant to NASA Langley Research Center, AT&T Bell Labs and IBM Research. He is the associate editor of two journals on computing.

Department Of Chemistry Announces Fall Seminar Series

Outside and Overload Employment Policies and Procedures

Contract provisions state that additional employment undertaken for remuneration by members of the instructional, administrative and professional faculty on full-time appointments must be approved in writing by the President or, as has been the customary delegation, by the Provost. Such work undertaken by faculty on academic year contracts during the summer vacation is not included; but anything done during the academic year, or during the contract year for those on 12-month contracts, which implies more than a single and comparatively small honorarium, should properly be reported.

Approval for outside and overload employment must be sought in advance of the beginning date of the commitment, with enough time allowed so that the petition may be transmitted through the various stages of the process described below. A separate petition must be submitted for each identifiably distinct outside assignment. In the case of assignments with an open duration, a new petition for approval must be submitted at least annually. Also, if the nature of the assignment significantly changes or increases after an approval is given, another petition should be submitted.

The form used to seek the approvals required is available in the deans' offices or the Office of the Provost. Endorsement signatures should be sought from the department chair (in Arts & Sciences); from the dean; or, for administrative positions, from the appropriate supervisor(s), before the form is sent to the Office of the Provost for approval. Copies of approved petition forms are sent to the petitioner and to those who have endorsed the request.

Approval of a petition for outside employment is given with the understanding that such an additional commitment will not impair the primary obligation of the faculty member to teaching and research, or to assigned duties in the case of administrators. It is understood also that the work to be undertaken will be professionally appropriate and not subject to any accusation of conflict of interest. Any doubt on any of these points should be carefully discussed with department chair and/or deans and supervisor(s) before the petition is submitted. Differences of opinion on the amount, the appropriateness, or the propriety of outside commitments should be referred to the Office of the Provost.

Revised 10/1/91.

College To Observe Constitution Week

The College will participate in Constitution Week, Sept. 17-23. The program has been arranged by Mrs. Reginald Beane, Williamsburg Chapter DAR Constitution Week chair.

The bell in the Wren Building will join others in Williamsburg and across the nation in the "Bells Across America" salute, at 4 p.m., Thursday, Sept. 17.

James Darling, organist at Bruton Parish Church and a member of the music faculty will present two organ concerts, a candlelight concert at 8 p.m., Thursday, Sept. 17 at Bruton Parish Church, and a program of 18th century colonial music in the Wren Chapel at 11 a.m., Saturday, Sept. 19.

Labor Day Holiday

The College and Virginia Institute of Marine Science will observe Labor day on Monday, Sept. 7.

Most of the administrative offices and the plant department (except for those employees required to maintain essential services as determined by management) will be closed. The decision to require employees to work should be made by the dean, director or department head, as appropriate, and should be communicated to the employee(s) as soon as possible. The Campus Police Department will maintain its regular schedule.

The names of permanent classified employees who are required to work must be reported in writing to the Office of Personnel Services by Sept. 18 in order that these employees may be credited with compensatory leave. Hourly employees who are required to work during the holiday will be paid at their regular hourly rates.

With the approval of management, compensatory leave should be taken as soon as possible after the holiday on which it was earned. Compensatory time not taken within 12 months will be lost.

On behalf of the administration of the university, I wish each member of the College community a safe and enjoyable holiday.

Public Policy

Robert E. Fritts, Senior Fellow in Foreign Policy with the Thomas Jefferson Program in Public Policy and a former U.S. Ambassador, visited the Republic of the Congo recently to assist in monitoring the initial phase of the nation's first free presidential elections in nearly 30 years. The international group of monitors came from a dozen nations and international organizations.

The four-person American team was provided under the auspices of the private International Foundation for Electoral Systems (IFES) and the United Nations Development Program (UNDP). The monitors concluded that the elections were free and fair, despite severe administrative constraints and the uncertainty engendered by an abortive military coup d'etat earlier this year.

Theatre and Speech

Professor Louis E. Catron, is the author of an article that appears in the September edition of Writer's Digest, a national monthly publication for writers. Titled "Hook Your Readers In Medias Res," his article describes a writing technique for poets, novelists, short story writers, and playwrights: starting the story "in the middle of things," or with an ongoing stream of action. A frequent contributor to Writer's Digest, Catron will have another article published in its December issue.

Professor Catron also was re-named to the advisory panel of the Virginia Commission for the Arts. The panel recommends approval or disapproval of requests from art organizations for state funding, and wrestles with the dilemma of severe budgetary cut-backs while trying to assist worthy groups. Due to the decrease in available state funds, approved organizations received approximately 33 percent of the amount the Commission's panel recommended.

A chapter titled "Using Foreshadowing to Keep Your Stories on Track," by Catron appears in The Handbook of Novel Writing, an anthology published by Writer's Digest Books.

School of Business Administration

Wanda A. Wallace, John N. Dalton Professor of Business Administration and associate dean for academic affairs, presented her paper (co-authored with Karen S. Cravens of the University of Tulsa) at the annual meeting of the American Accounting Association in Washington, D.C., Aug. 10.

Her co-author Norvald Monsen of the Norwegian School of Economics and Business Administration presented their paper titled: "Evolving Financial Reporting Practices: The Dilemma of Conflicting Standards in the Nordic Countries," on Aug. 12 at the same meeting. Abstracts of both papers were published in the Collected Abstracts of the American Accounting Association's Annual Meeting (pp.43-44 and 159-160, respectively).

Professor Wallace attended the Price Waterhouse Symposium, Aug 6-8, in Washington D.C. The symposium discussed international business issues, auditing and joint venture developments.

On July 28, Professor Wallace, a member of the Financial Accounting Standards Advisory Council, attended a meeting in Norwalk, Conn.

Charles E. Davis, who received his undergraduate degree from William and Mary, received the American Accounting Association, Auditing Section's Outstanding Dissertation Award at the August convention in Washington, D.C. Davis received his Ph.D. from the University of North Carolina in 1991 and is presently on the faculty at Baylor University, Waco, Texas.

School of Marine Science

Professor Robert Huggett, has been appointed to the Water Science and Technology Board of The National Academy of Science's National Research Council. The Board's objective is to improve the scientific and technological basis for resolving important questions and issues associated with the efficient management and use of water resources. The Board's scope covers the traditional scientific and engineering aspects of water resources and the economic, institutional, legal, educational and social aspects as well.

Beverly Anne Weeks-Perkins, associate professor, recently returned from a six-month sabbatical at the Scottish Office of Agriculture and Fisheries Department of Marine Laboratory in Aberdeen, Scotland. She worked in the laboratories of Dr. Anthony E. Ellis, a leading fish immunologist, on vaccines against furunculosis, a bacterial disease caused by Aeromonas salmonicida, which is fatal in Atlantic salmon.

Using new state-of-the-art techniques, she studied responses of cells to the immune system (macrophages and lymphocytes) to antigens used in vaccine preparations. Her research contributed to Dr. Ellis developing a new vaccine which is highly successful in preventing the disease in Scottish fish farms. She also presented seminars at the Aberdeen Marine Laboratory and the University of Aberdeen on her research at SMS/VIMS on "Effects of Xenobiotics on Cellular Immune Function in Fish."

Ms. Eilidh Williamson, a student from the University of Glasgow has been working in Dr. Weeks-Perkins lab this summer. She has been adapting techniques used in the Aberdeen lab to study the influence of toxic chemicals on immune cells in Chesapeake Bay fish.

Saturday, Sept. 5-Monday, Sept. 7

Labor Day Weekend at Colonial Williamsburg features Publick Times

"Publick Times" recreates the vitality of the capital city during General Court sessions when citizens came from across the Virginia colony to attend court, transact business and socialize. Horse racing and gaming, a public hanging, auctions, raffles, barbecues, dances, magic shows, militia reviews and a teeming marketplace selling 18th-century wares and food highlight the annual celebration Sept. 5-7.

In chains, two hapless "felons" will be escorted by oxcart from the Gaol to the gallows Saturday Sept. 5 at 10:45 a.m. Renactors wager on colonial-style horse races at 4 p.m. More than 500 military renactors live in the restored Historic Area during the weekend. They prepare meals, dress, drill and live as their 1770 counterparts did.

Evening programs begin at 7 p.m. Friday with a re-enactment program, "In the Line of Duty: A Military Inquiry."

The program Saturday evening will be highlighted by a performance of the 18th-century "She Stoops to Conquer." Vocal and instrumental music from 200 years ago in the Hall of Burgesses Sunday evening.

For program details call 220-7281.

Saturday, Sept. 5

17th-century Children's Festival: Jamestown Settlement, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Rope and card tricks, illusions and other magical acts by "The Magical Duke of Windsor," Lou Osborne, 1 p.m.; "Juggling Jay" Casper, 11 a.m. and 4 p.m.; 17th-century music and dancing performances, noon and 2 p.m.; storytelling by Shirley "Little Dove" McGowan, 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. in the Powhatan Indian Village. Admission to Jamestown Settlement is $7 for adults; $3.50 for children 6 through 12. Children must be accompanied by an adult during the festival. For more information, call 229-1607.
