New Graduate Housing Dedicated

"Great institutions like William and Mary are built slowly and with the inspired help of far-sighted friends," said President Tim Sullivan at the dedication of the Lettie Pate Whitehead Evans Residences and the Spalding Courtyard and Gardens, the new student housing complex beside the Marshall-Wythe School of Law.

"Today, we honor three such friends—Lettie Pate Whitehead Evans, Hughes Spalding Sr. and Hughes Spalding Jr.

"Gifts to William and Mary through foundations established by Mrs. Evans, or in her honor, have been used to build an institution unique in American higher education.

"But we honor these three today for reasons which transcend our gratitude for the inspired use of great wealth. We honor them for the values which shaped their lives and have caused others to emulate their examples.

A Collegewide Faculty Meeting

At the opening faculty meeting of the year Thursday in Millington Hall, deans gave progress reports detailing accomplishments and upcoming and ongoing projects. A video presentation introduced new faculty. The meeting, however, will probably be best remembered for two sets of remarks; one by the acting dean of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, Richard A. Williamson; the other by President Timothy Sullivan.

Opting to take an alternate tack from the detailed reports of other deans on the grounds that he was an "acting," rather than appointed, dean, Williamson gave brief inspirational remarks that were greeted with enthusiastic applause.

"These remarks," said Williamson "are directed primarily to those of you who, like me, occupy a form of senior status around here ... who are wearing these (glasses) and are getting a little long in the tooth. The rest of you can listen in if you either achieved that status long ago or will be there before you know it.

"I don't think I'm giving away any secrets, or betraying any trust, when I tell you that last spring after Tim was named president of William and Mary, we had several conversations that began with 'Now what? You're the President of William and Mary, now what are you going to do?'

"Well, I'm reasonably confident Tim knows what he is going to do. What I'm not so confident about is whether the rest of us who really matter do—and I intend no adverse reflection on the office of university president—that is simply a recognition that the faculties, not the president, are daily about the important work of the university, that is teaching and research.

"I'm not sure the rest of us know what we are going to do. All of us, I hope, have a few good years left; each of us has helped make this a better university than when we arrived. All of us want to see it continue to excel. If that's the case, and I am confident that it is, what should we be doing? When you think about that for a second, perhaps you have the answer. It is fairly easy.

"In the year 2000 this will not be a better university than it was in 1992 simply because Tim Sullivan was president, although obviously I can see that that will help greatly. It will be a better university in the year 2000 only if we continue to do what we have done for the past 25 years. I am sure I have you all on the edge of your seats waiting for me to tell you what that should be. I'm going to do that.

"It will be a better university in the year 2000 if we continue to believe and act on that belief that students come first and if we continue to believe and act on the belief that the best education for those students comes from a faculty fully engaged in the world of new ideas and knowledge.

"If we continue to believe and act on the belief that all of us have a vested interest in the work and success of every department and school in the university.

"If we continue to believe and act on the belief that we owe an obligation to our colleagues, especially our younger colleagues, to help them succeed and excel.

"So in response to the question 'What now for us?' I think the answer is fairly easy—just keep on doing what we've been doing all these years and do it even better."

Acting Dean Williamson

"If we continue to believe and act on the belief that change is inevitable—of course, when you get to be our age that's not easy—and most of all, if we continue to believe and act on the belief that the primary responsibility for determining the running of this university, the primary responsibility for determining its course, rests in the faculty's hands. So in response to the question 'What now for us?' I think the answer is fairly easy—just keep on doing what we've been doing all these years and do it even better."

President's Remarks

President Sullivan opened his informal remarks with a personal confession. "I have been asked in the last few months to talk altogether too much. I should expect to speak from time to time on the purpose of the university, but the truth is I don't know enough yet about this institution to speak with the kind of authority a president of long standing can use. And as my colleague Dick Williamson told me out front 'you aren't all that important anyway.'

"I feel a little lonely about that. As some of you know I went to a school for new presidents at Harvard this summer. A six-day experience, which, if you find yourself in a position like mine, I highly recommend. Among the faculty were some very experienced and successful presidents. I took some notes from one: 'When you are a presidential candidate you must act as if you know everything. When you get the job you must act as though you know nothing. That isn't hard, you actually do know nothing.' I have spent the past few months learning about William and Mary. I've been here for 20 years and if you want to apply when I started here as a student, I have been here 30 years. I fancied I knew a great deal about the place. I know something but not nearly as much as I thought.

"Perhaps it is the isolation of the law school or perhaps my own mindset, who knows. But I have spent the last three months in discovery. It has been a happy and stimulating time. I have had the opportunity to talk with many of you and I expect I will continue to talk with many of you as I go through the course of my presidency however long or short that may be, because I expect to be first of all and always a student, learning and listening because it is only in that way, I think, that I can fulfill the functions this community has a right to expect from me, which is to articulate and express what it is we are and what it is we want to be."

Sullivan said a biography of Disraeli he read recently, in which the English parliamentarian was asked to describe the motivations for his career choice, caused him to ponder the same question.

"It caused me to think about the 400th anniversary of William and Mary, which none of us will be here to observe, enough I think to be here and observe the 300th, but to ask myself, what will those charged with writing the College history a hundred years from now, what will they say about the purposes of those of us who were in control of university life and shaped William and Mary at the beginning of the 21st century. Each of us, I think, would have his or her own answer. I give you mine.

"It is that I would like it to be said that those who worked and helped to shape the quality of William and Mary at the beginning of the 21st century—they aimed for greatness. Greatness is a word that I do not use easily. Greatness is a word I know has many definitions and each of us will contribute our own sense of what that word means to William and Mary in this place at this time.

"For me it means an institution in which everyone of us, students, faculty and staff have the full and complete opportunity, without obstacle, to realize the full measure of our ambition and our hopes and our talents. It is a place with a rich and vibrant intellectual life and one that is not leaden and can laugh at itself. It is a place defined by a sense of community, commitment and concern, caring of each other.

"We need to address in a constructive, orderly and serious way, the whole question of faculty development, not only for the careers of younger faculty but for everyone of us.

"For students we need to push forward when it seems prudent and even when it seems marginally prudent or worth the risk for the changes that David Lutzer suggested, Al Page mentioned and which others talked about.

"But it means more than working on intellectual experiences for our students. It means remembering that we have been entrusted with their education, not only the education of their minds but the education of their spirits. We need to be sure that what we do at William and Mary for our students is worthy of this place and its particular and special history?

"And how are we going to achieve that goal? First we are going to hope that there will be resources to achieve it all. We know, if we have lived here as I have, that it is unlikely, although I think there will be improvement, we will ever have all the money that we need to do all that we hope.

"We need to be willing as a community to engage in a process of collective decision making and choice making that will allow us to make decisions that produce for our faculty, for our students, the best possible results with the resources available."

Sullivan stressed that the upcoming self-study the university is required to undertake should be viewed as an opportunity rather than a burden. "We should begin to use it as a means to think strategically, to face the hard choices, to face the uncertainties but have the courage to think critically and together and make the choices that will make William and Mary all that we want it to be "A great hero of my youth, Adlai Stevenson, said faith and enthusiasm are the conditions for acting greatly. He was right. We must have those but there is this one other thing we need and that is a sense of community. What I mean by community is a commitment certainly to the development of our own careers, our professions, but a commitment also to

"... an institution in which everyone of us, students, faculty and staff have the full and complete opportunity, without obstacle, to realize the full measure of our ambition and our hopes and our talents."

the larger purposes of the institution, which cannot be defined wholly in terms of our own individual success.

"Finally it means caring about each other not just as professional colleagues but as fellow human beings. Can't we agree today, at this time, to go forward together in faith and enthusiasm and concern for each other, knowing that even if we muster all those qualities in the abundance we need them and even if we maintain them in the difficult days, that the results are uncertain?

"But," concluded Sullivan, "we will have maximized our chance to allow the historian 100 years from now to write of William and Mary, of those of us who were here. [They] worked to build a great institution, and they built a great institution; and thus acted in a manner worthy of the professional lives we have chosen and the great institution which we have chosen to join."

Auction Of Handmade Quilt To Benefit Estuarine Research Programs

If you appreciate the value of our estuaries and if you're into quilts, you won't want to miss the chance to bid on a beauty: a 20-square masterpiece depicting plants and animals you'd see on a visit to a freshwater marsh in the spring.

The quilt, a volunteer project of the Chesapeake Bay National Estuarine Research Reserve System in Virginia, will be auctioned at 1 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 19 as part of Estuaries Day 1992 at York River State Park. The park is also the site of Taskinas Creek National Estuarine Research Reserve. Proceeds will support educational activities within the Research Reserves.

Seventeen volunteers created squares for the "Marsh Into Spring" quilt: Lila Roberts, Gloucester; Mickey Sears and Mildred Firle, Saluda; Carroll Curtis, King William; Evelyn Becker, Jody Crowder, Kate Diehl and Stephanie Turner, Williamsburg; Gloria Diggs and Carolyn Gardner, Newport News; Bernice Carr, Jeannie Baldwin and Leda Ansbro, Richmond; Ann Regan, Palmyra; and Donna Parkins, Rockville.

The project had its in-house component. Three Research Reserve staff members volunteered their work. Crowder, education and communications coordinator, and Rob Breeding, monitoring coordinator, designed the squares. Gardner, administrative assistant, created three squares and assembled the quilt. In addition to purchasing the materials and preparing the kits, Turner is manager of York River State Park. Curtis is a former director of the Research Reserve program. Baker is a graduate student at VIMS.

Estuaries Day is an annual celebration of estuaries sponsored on the York River by the Chesapeake Bay Research Reserve program, based at the Virginia Institute of Marine Science and York River State Park. Festivities begin at 10 a.m. and last until 5 p.m.

The program will include three performances of "Secret Lives of the Estuary," a colorful, educational puppet show.

With text, music and staging by Claudia Stevens, the program is a musical monodrama based on the relationship of Felice Bauer and Franz Kafka.

Claudia Stevens

The original text is a reconstruction of Felice Bauer's letters to Kafka and draws upon Kafka's Letters to Felice by permission of Schocken-Pantheon.

In 1912 Kafka met Bauer, a career woman visiting from Berlin, at the home of his friend Max Brod in Prague. The meeting was brief and seemingly uneventful; Bauer resumed her travels the next day. But Kafka soon initiated a correspondence over a five-year period that was published in Letters to Felice. Kafka's involvement with Bauer is believed to have had a significant impact on his literary output. Stevens suggests in Felice to Franz that Bauer's letters also may have influenced several short stories by Kafka.

Stevens' creative development of this work is supported by a 1992 residency/fellowship at the MacDowell Colony.

Kelly To Open IEAHC Colloquium Series

Kevin Kelly, research department at the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation, will present a paper "Does Local History Have a Future? Some Personal Thoughts," at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 22 at the Institute of Early American History and Culture located in Swem Library.

Kelly's talk is the first of a series of colloquia scheduled throughout the semester.

Copies of the paper are available for reading at the Institute, the history department and at the Commonwealth Center.

Kelly argues that explorations of the kinds of questions local history can answer will suggest the vitality of community studies as an avenue to understanding the past. The history of everyday lives is particularly relevant in comprehending the social impact of the political and economic transformation that occurred during the early American period.

Procedures Governing Cases of Alleged Sexual Harassment

These are the internal procedures to be used by any member of the College of William and Mary community to process complaints alleging sexual harassment where a member of the instructional, administrative or professional faculty is a party as complainant or accused.

A member of the university community who believes that he or she is or has been the victim of sexual harassment, as defined by university policy, and who wishes to seek a remedy by using the informal or formal procedures discussed below must contact a member of the Sexual Harassment Committee within 30 days from the end of the semester or term during which the alleged sexual harassment occurred.

These procedures are not intended to impair or to limit the right of anyone to seek remedies available under state or federal law. Since federal and state procedures require that complaints be filed within specific deadlines from the onset of the behavior construed as sexual harassment, individuals who pursue the internal complaint procedures described below, may fail to meet state and federal guidelines for filing a complaint. A complaint may be filed with an external agency in order to meet state and federal agency deadlines without jeopardizing one's right to a university hearing. However, if relief is sought outside the university, the university is not obliged to continue processing a grievance while the case is being considered by an outside agency or civil or criminal court.

Committee on Sexual Harassment

A committee on Sexual Harassment consisting of individuals with professional training and/or experience, or special awareness of the issues in question is appointed by the Provost. The committee is charged with advising the President and Provost on matters covered by the policies and procedures governing adjudication of cases of alleged sexual harassment and with assisting both alleged victims of sexual harassment and those accused to deal with university procedures and to locate appropriate resources, while protecting the rights of the individual alleged to have violated the university policy. Members of the committee receive training regarding the university's sexual harassment policy and complaint procedures to enable them to carry out their duties and responsibilities.

The committee is chaired by the affirmative action officer for the university. Its membership includes: two faculty members recommended by the Faculty Assembly; one classified employee recommended by the Hourly and Classified Employees Association; the Dean of Students; one member of the professional counseling staff of the university; and two students (one graduate, one undergraduate) recommended by the Student Association. Members of the committee serve staggered three-year terms as appropriate and may be reappointed. The student member does not participate in the complaint resolution procedures described below, but may refer individuals to other members of the committee and the member participates in discussions about the effectiveness of the policy and related resolution procedures.

The names of the members of the committee are published at least once each semester in the Flat Hat and the William and Mary News. The committee meets at least twice each semester to discuss issues related to the policy and complaint procedures, and to discuss complaints received and actions taken to resolve them.

Informal Complaint and Resolution Procedures

A member of the university community who believes that she or he is or has been the victim of sexual harassment, as defined by university policy, and who elects to seek an informal remedy must contact a member of the Sexual Harassment Committee within 30 days from the end of the semester or term during which the incident or behavior occurred.

The purpose of this informal procedure is to provide assistance and guidance to both the individual complaining of sexual harassment and the accused in the functioning of the university's procedures. It provides an opportunity for the complainant and the individual accused of harassment to resolve the problem in an informal manner, without the necessity of disciplinary action or of the more formal procedure for processing a complaint. However, use of the informal procedure shall not impair the right of a complainant not satisfied by this procedure to utilize the formal procedure described below.

When a complaint has been initiated, the Chair of the Sexual Harassment Committee or a committee member designated by the chair meets with the complainant to discuss that individual's concerns, to clarify the university's policy and internal complaint procedures, and, if appropriate, to remind the individual that professional counseling is available inside and outside the university. The committee member also provides the complainant with sources of information regarding federal and state sexual harassment complaint procedures. Additional information about federal and state complaint procedures is available from the Chair of the Sexual Harassment Committee.

The committee member prepares a brief summary of the meeting, identifying neither complainant nor accused. The summary is forwarded to the chair of the committee in order for the chair to assess the effectiveness of the policy and complaint procedures to this point in the case.

The resolution procedure followed from this point depends upon the complainant's willingness to have her or his identity disclosed to the individual alleged to have committed the unwelcome behavior covered by these procedures.

A. If the complainant does not agree to the disclosure of her or his identity, the committee member, within a two week period and with the consent of the complainant, meets with the individual alleged to have harassed the complainant. The committee member advises the accused of the university's sexual harassment policy and complaint procedures, and affords the accused an opportunity to respond to the allegation. The committee member subsequently contacts the complainant to confirm that the meeting was held, and to describe the response of the individual accused of violating university policy. The committee member prepares a written summary report of the complaint procedure followed, without disclosing the identities of the parties involved, and files the report with the chair of the committee within 10 working days after the meeting with the individual accused of violating university policy.

B. If the complainant agrees to the disclosure of her or his identity, the committee member, within a two week period and with the consent of the complainant, meets with the accused to discuss the allegations raised by the complaint. The committee member advises the accused of the university's sexual harassment policy and complaint procedures. Based on the information obtained from the complainant and the accused, the committee member prepares a written resolution agreement believed to be acceptable to both parties. The resolution agreement releases the university and all parties from any claims arising from the specific incident or behavior which prompted the initiation of the complaint procedure. Each party receives a copy of the resolution agreement. A copy is also filed with the chair of the committee not later than three working days after the resolution agreement has been signed by both parties.

If the resolution agreement proposed by the committee member is unacceptable to the complainant or to the accused, each is advised in writing of that fact by the committee member and of the formal internal procedure for addressing sexual harassment complaints. A copy of this letter is sent also to the chair of the committee. Upon request, the committee member may assist the complainant in drafting a formal complaint as provided for in the following section.

The written reports and resolution agreements described in this section are not released to any individual or administrative authority at the university, other than the complainant, the accused and the Chair of the Sexual Harassment Committee. In the event that formal litigation or external complaint procedures require disclosure, however, it may be necessary for the university to comply with formal requests for such records under subpoena.

Formal Complaint and Resolution Procedures

The purpose of this formal procedure is to provide assistance and guidance to individuals complaining of sexual harassment regarding the formal complaint and resolution procedures governing cases of alleged sexual harassment where a member of the instructional, administrative or professional faculty is a party.

Any member of the university community who believes that she or he is or has been the victim of sexual harassment, as defined by university policy, and who elects to seek a remedy through formal university procedures must file a written statement with the Chair of the Sexual Harassment Committee within 30 days after the end of the semester of term during which the incident or behavior occurred, or within 30 days after the unsatisfactory outcome of the informal resolution procedure described above, whichever is later.

Within two weeks of receipt of the complaint, the Chair or a committee member designated by the chair meets separately with the complainant and the accused to advise them of the university's policy on sexual harassment and the complaint procedures, and to determine the facts relevant to the complaint. The committee member then presents a written statement of findings to the Chair, together with a recommendation, within 10 working days after the meeting with the individual accused of violating university policy. A copy of the committee member's report is sent by the chair to the complainant and to the accused with an invitation to comment in writing within 5 days on the committee member's statement of findings.

Within 10 working days after receipt of the designated member's statement, the Chair convenes a meeting of the Committee on Sexual Harassment, except for the student member, to consider the report of the investigator and any written comments offered by the complainant or the accused. The committee may supplement the substance or procedures of the initial investigation to insure adequate consideration of the matter, and adequate protection of the legal rights of the accused. A written summary report of the committee's deliberations, together with the investigator's initial report, is then transmitted by the chair of the accused's dean or other appropriate senior level administrative authority superior to the accused for consideration, and, if appropriate, for resolution under the relevant faculty or administrative procedures for sanctions or dismissal. At the same time, a copy of the summary report of the committee's deliberations is sent to the complainant and to the accused.

When the matter has been resolved, the accused's dean or other senior level administrator informs the chair of the final outcome of the complaint. The chair advises the complainant and the accused.

The written complaint and the statement of findings and recommendations are maintained by the dean or other senior level administrator involved for a period of five years from the date received. These records may be considered in the event that other formal complaints are filed against the same individual during that period.

Policy Statement on Sexual Harassment

The College of William and Mary desires to provide a positive, discrimination-free educational and working environment. In this spirit, sexual harassment in the educational setting or work place is unacceptable and will not be tolerated. This policy applies to all members of the university community including students, classified employees and members of the instructional, administrative and professional faculty.

Sexual harassment is a form of sex discrimination prohibited by Title IX of the Educational Amendments of 1972 and Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. For purposes of this policy, sexual harassment is defined as unwelcome conduct of a sexual nature, physical or verbal, by a member of the university community when:

- submission to such conduct is made explicitly or implicitly a term or condition of work or academic performance, or,
- submission to or rejection of such conduct is used as a basis for an employment decision, performance evaluation, or academic performance evaluation concerning a member of the university community, or,

- such conduct is known or should have been known to interfere with an individual's work or academic performance, or to create an intimidating, hostile or offensive working or educational environment.

It is a violation of university policy for any faculty member, administrator, student or staff employee, hereafter referred to as members of the university community, to seek or offer gain, advancement or consideration in return for sexual favors.

It is a violation of university policy for any member of the university community to make an intentionally false accusation of sexual harassment.

It is a violation of university policy for any member of the university community to initiate a negative personnel or academic action against an individual in retaliation for reporting an incident or allegation of sexual harassment, except in cases of intentionally false accusations of sexual harassment.

In determining whether the alleged conduct constitutes sexual harassment, those charged with such determinations will consider all relevant information including the nature of the alleged sexual conduct and the context in which the alleged conduct occurred. Such determinations will be based on fact and will be made on a case-by-case basis.

Students who believe that they have been subjected to harassment by other students are advised to use the procedures described in the Student Handbook.

Classified employees of the university who believe they have been harassed by other classified employees and who wish to pursue their complaints through formal internal resolution procedures are advised to use the Grievance Procedure for State Employees, administered by the Office of Personnel Services. Such grievances must be filed within 30 days from the onset of the behavior construed as sexual harassment.

Incidents alleged to be sexual harassment which involve a member of the instructional, administrative or professional faculty as a party are subject to the procedures described in the Faculty Handbook.

Policy and Procedures Affecting Consensual Amorous Relationships

Policy

The appearance of a compromising conflict of interest, or of coercion, favoritism or bias in educational or academic evaluation is prejudicial to the interests of the College of William and Mary, its members, and the public interest which it serves. Amorous relations between faculty members and students with whom they also have an academic evaluative role create such an appearance, even where the relationship is genuinely consensual. Such relationships are particularly susceptible to exploitation. The respect and trust accorded a professor by a student, as well as the power exercised by the professor in an academic or evaluative role, make voluntary consent by the student suspect. Even when both parties initially have consented, the development of such a relationship renders both the faculty member and the institution vulnerable to possible later allegations of sexual harassment in light of the significant power differential that exists between faculty and students.

Therefore, faculty members are advised against participating in amorous relationships with students enrolled in their classes or with students whom they otherwise evaluate, grade, or supervise. Similarly, faculty members should avoid situations requiring them to evaluate, grade, or supervise students with whom they currently have an amorous relationship. Whenever such a situation arises or is foreseen, the faculty member shall report the situation promptly and seek advice and counsel from an appropriate administrative superior. That superior shall take effective steps to insure unbiased supervision or evaluation of the student.

For purposes of this policy, "faculty" shall include all full- or part-time college personnel who teach or carry out research, including graduate students and administrators with faculty status. Evaluative situations may include, but are not limited to, supervising instruction; evaluating academic performance; or serving on committees for awards, prizes, or thesis supervision.

Procedures

Members of the university community who believe themselves to be afected adversely by a violation of this policy may initiate a complaint with the appropriate dean. A complaint alleging that a dean or other academic administrator has violated this policy may be filed with the provost or other appropriate administrative authority. Complaints must be filed within 10 calendar days of the time at which the complainant becomes aware of the adverse effect of an alleged violation of this policy, but not more than four years after the alleged violation.

Failure to comply with the foregoing policy shall be handled in accordance with the provisions for handling allegations of misconduct described in the Faculty Handbook, including the procedural guarantees therein outlined.

Lettie Pate Whitehead Evans Residences And Spalding Courtyard And Gardens Are Dedicated

"Mrs. Evans believed in the transforming power of education and sought particularly to help young southern women of great ability but limited means.

"Hughes Spalding Sr., her trusted counselor and friend, shared Mrs. Evans's commitment to the kind of education to which William and Mary has remained firmly committed since our founding nearly 300 years ago. His life in law combined in equal measure the highest standards of professional achievement with a zeal for civic service which the students in our law school who will live here would do well to mark and follow.

"Hughes Spalding's commitment to service was certainly an example to his son. Hughes Spalding Jr.'s work in his native city of Atlanta, and his commitment to quality higher education, reflect his father's faith in the power of learning and the importance of civic service.

"As handsome as it is, the buildings around us are also a significant statement in the history of this institution—which, in three months, will begin the celebration of its Tercentenary year.

"For most of its 300 years, William and Mary focused almost solely on the needs of undergraduates. Advanced degrees were offered, but they were not a major focus here until this century. In fact, it was not until 1964 that we offered our first doctoral degree.

"But the William and Mary of 1992 is a distinctly different institution: almost one-third of our student body is enrolled here to pursue graduate or professional degrees. These programs have enhanced the William and Mary experience, building a stronger university. Our graduate programs have also been a critical factor in our ability to attract a significant number of teacher-scholars. As our graduate and professional programs have matured, their strengths have served to deepen and enrich—rather than to diminish—the quality of the undergraduate experience.

"The truth is, that we have been a bit slow in recognizing the importance and the standing of our graduate and professional programs. While a majority of our undergraduate students live on our campus, it has not been until today that we offered appropriate housing to a fair proportion of our graduate and professional students. Beginning this year, the 85 colonial-style apartments you see around us have become home to some of the best graduate and professional students in Virginia and the nation.

Actions By Board Of Visitors

one element to be examined will be student life. Earlier in the board meeting, visitors heard from undergraduate and graduate students who had concerns about a variety of matters, from the athletics fee and the incomplete emergency telephone system to a funding disparity for graduate student needs.

"We want those student life and student government concerns to be addressed in a comprehensive way. We'll be looking at things from the bottom up, without believing that they way we are doing things now is right," said Sullivan.

"At the end of the process, we won't have unanimous agreement on what needs to be done, but we will have agreement on what's critical, what's important and what's not so important," Sullivan said.

Student representatives told visitors they believe the physical changes to campus are very important. Delays in restoring a bridge linking the old and new campus, in repairs to the fraternity complex and to the emergency telephone system were high on their list of concerns, said senior Nicole Bibbins.

Students also want the board to consider adding a non-voting student representative to the board of visitors. Terry Feely, a junior, said state law allows for a non-voting student member and that students would bring a formal proposal to the visitors at their next session.

the Japan Alumni Club.

A special tour extension will allow participants to spend four days and three nights in Hong Kong. Cost of the tour is $2,559 for the Japan portion, with an additional $450 charge for Hong Kong.

The price includes transfers, hotel room costs, airfare and daily breakfasts. Anyone may join the tour. Spaces will be allotted on a first-come, first-served basis.

For more information, contact the Society of the Alumni at ext. 11165.

We've not only built a housing complex, we've created an academic village, where 250 students will both live and learn.

"So you see, contrary to the suspicions of some, William and Mary has changed in the last 299 years and 7 months. We are not opposed to innovation; just reluctant to act with undue haste. In a historical context, then, the Lettie Pate Whitehead Evans Residences, and the Spalding Courtyard and Gardens, are important steps in our determined effort to create a distinctive university college of international stature."

Alumnae Assist With TV Program

Two alumnae, Barbara B. Duncan, Ed.S. '89, and Myra A. Smith, Ed.S. '90, had a special interest in the recently televised program on child abuse, "Scared Silent," hosted by Oprah Winfrey, a one-hour special profiling six true stories of sexual, physical and emotional abuse within families, told by the perpetrators and their families. Both are associated with The R.E.A.C.H. (Reach Every Adult and Child to Heal) Centre, Barbara B. Duncan, LPC & Associates.

Arnold Shapiro Productions advertised for families to come forward and be part of the program. A family in therapy at the R.E.A.C.H. Centre responded and was included on the show. R.E.A.C.H. was selected to assist with the production. The family also was interviewed on the Ophra Winfrey Show the day before "Scared Silent." Duncan and Smith did not get on the show but did get to meet Oprah Winfrey.

Duncan was complimented by the producer on the strength of her program and received an unsolicited second from an educator in Alabama who had read journal articles by Duncan and was impressed by her approach to the problems of abuse.

Smith said that WAVY-TV, NBC in Norfolk, had indicated an interest in airing a follow-up with Duncan and the family that volunteered for the Winfrey show.

Police Blotter

During the week of Sept. 6-11, there were four bicycles reported stolen (one was recovered), two reports of annoying phone calls, two larcenies, two incidents involving vehicles (one vehicle fire, one vehicle struck while parked), one report of destruction of state property, one trespass warning issued, and one arrest and one juvenile petition requested for possession of marijuana.

Also, on Sept. 4, after offering to sell cocaine to one of our students, three non-students were arrested for conspiracy to sell cocaine.

The Police Department requests that members of the College community, faculty, staff and students, help reduce crime at the College and offers the following suggestions:

- 1) Report person(s) who look like they don't belong here, especially if they are loitering near bicycle racks.
- 2) If you see a crime being committed, call the Campus Police on the emergency line (911) immediately.

Shared Experience

Applicants should read the policy and principles statement attached to the applications before submitting a proposal.

Rec Sports Offers "Fitness Walking" Monday, Wednesday and Friday

Rec Sports offers fitness walking Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 7 to 8 a.m. and 12:15 to 12:45 p.m.

Walkers will meet at the Rec Center and walk various routes around campus.

Walking shoes are not required. It is recommended that participants wear shoes that have good cushioning for the heel, a firm heel cup for stability and plenty of toe room.

"Fitness walking" is walking that maintains a fast enough pace of sufficient duration to produce beneficial cardiovascular changes in the body. Walking firms up the whole body, concentrating on the buttocks and backs of the legs, as well as the tibialis muscles on the front of the lower legs. Fitness walkers pump their arms as they walk, conditioning their upper bodies. Walking has also been found to strengthen bones, help fight bone loss due to osteoporosis, reduce stress, recharge the mind and energize the body.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

Classified ads are included as a service to members of the College community and will be accepted from faculty, staff, students and alumni only. Ads should be no longer than 40 words and must be submitted in writing to the William and Mary News office no later than 5 p.m. on the Friday preceding the first insertion.
