Alumni Society Publishes 300th Anniversary Book

The Society of the Alumni has published a commemorative book marking the College's 300th anniversary.

Traditions, Myths & Memories: Celebrating the Tercentenary of The College of William and Mary in Virginia is a full-color, 84-page hardback that reflects the College's history through its many traditions and through reminiscences supplied by numerous College alumni.

The book is highlighted by dramatic contemporary photographs of College life and archival photographs dating back to the 1920s. Included is a photograph, taken especially for the book, of William and Mary's current president, Timothy J. Sullivan, and three former presidents: Paul R. Verkuil, Thomas A. Graves Jr. and Davis Y. Paschall. The photo marks the first time in William and Mary's history that a current president and three past presidents have been together.

Traditions, Myths & Memories has a personal quality that sets it apart from most other college picture books," said Barry Adams, executive vice president of the society. "This book is not just for alumni—it's by alumni. And that makes it distinctive."

"The book is also unprecedented in that it was conceived and produced totally in house," said Adams. "For the Society, it represents a unique way to involve alumni in the College's 300th anniversary."

The first half of the book recounts William and Mary's traditions and some of its myths. For example, the book recounts who is buried in the crypts beneath the Sir Christopher Wren Building and the story behind the founding of Phi Beta Kappa at the College in 1776.

The second half of Traditions, Myths and Memories contains the memories of 49 alumni and spans the decades from the 1920s to the 1990s. Included in the reminiscences are stories of the early days of coeducation in the '20s, Winston Churchill's visit to campus in the '40s and the upheavals of the '60s, as well as memories shared by students—of cantankerous professors, harmless pranks and young romance.

The narrative for the book was written by Wilford Kale, an alumnus of William and Mary and reporter for the Richmond Times-Dispatch. Greta Matus of Richmond designed the book; principal photography was supplied by Jim Gleason of Williamsburg. Dean Olson, director of publications at the College, supervised the production, and Virginia Carter Collins, director of alumni communications at the Society, assisted with editing and research. The book was published under the name of King and Queen Press, the publishing component of the Society.

Traditions, Myths & Memories is available through the gift shop at the Alumni House and at the College Bookstore. The cost is $35.

Employee Discount

William and Mary faculty and staff may purchase Traditions, Myths & Memories at a discounted price of $30 at the gift shop in the Alumni House. The Society of the Alumni regularly extends a 10 percent discount on items.

Employees Invited To Participate In Inauguration

Employees, as well as faculty and students, will have an opportunity to participate in the inauguration of President Timothy J. Sullivan, according to a memo to vice presidents, deans and department heads, from Gretna Y. Smith, director of personnel services. Provost Melvyn D. Schiavelli has already announced the cancellation of classes in order to provide faculty and students with the opportunity to participate in the inaugural ceremony and reception.

Classified and hourly wage employees who wish to attend the celebration will be afforded the opportunity also and released from work between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. on Oct. 16. As always, essential services need to be maintained and coverage provided.

Employees will not be required to submit leave slips for attending the ceremony and/or reception. Also, the time provided to the wage/hourly employees should be considered as "productive time."

October Is Open Period For Election Of Reimbursement Accounts

You should have already received a brochure about the flexible reimbursement accounts. If you are interested in these benefits, please make sure you complete the card and send it to Rita Metcalfe, benefits administrator, as soon as possible. Upon receipt, you will receive your flexible reimbursement accounts enrollment kit.

The upcoming October 1992 election period for the flexible reimbursement accounts will be for a short plan year.

The coverage period for the short plan year will be for the six-month period Jan. 1 through June 30, 1993. This will allow the flexible reimbursement accounts election period to be brought into the same enrollment cycle as the open enrollment period for health benefits.

Because the upcoming short plan year will encompass a six-month period of coverage, the plan's maximum allowable total contributions by a participant will be adjusted accordingly. The new limits are as follows:

Medical Reimbursement Account—The maximum allowable total contribution is $1,000 per six-month period.

Dependent Care Reimbursement Account—The maximum allowable total contribution for the six-month period is the lesser of the following:

a) the employee's earned income

Physics Department Members Design Courses For Area Science Teachers

Members of the physics department are conducting a series of short courses in physics and physical science at night to assist area science teachers.

Hans von Baeyer, professor of physics, who suggested the program, says that the department was looking for ways to extend its regular program of training students who may become teachers to assist teachers already in the classroom. Courses have been tailored to fit the working schedules of teachers. Acknowledging that extra classroom work added to the teacher's work load, the length of the courses does not extend beyond four weeks. The courses also offer one graduate credit.

We are not suggesting that we are experts in teaching, said von Baeyer, but rather we feel that we can assist teachers through our knowledge of physics and in return learn from them about the specific needs of classroom teachers. von Baeyer hopes that enrollment will increase as word of the courses spreads. There are no area restrictions. Current enrollment includes a teacher from Virginia Beach and another from west of Richmond.

Teachers pay in-state graduate tuition. Funds are available in the school systems through the Department of Education's professional enhancement program. The physicists have had the assistance of Ron Giese, professor of education, who has served as an adviser for the program. The series has been approved by the graduate committee.

Six courses are being offered, including a refresher in calculus and vector arithmetic taught by von Baeyer who is also scheduled to teach a course on "Waves and Quantum Physics" next spring.

Robert Welsh is teaching a four-session course on "The Universe: Its First 100,000 Years."

Roy Champion is teaching a course on electricity and magnetism which begins Oct. 29.

"Quarks, Grand Unification, and Theories of Everything" is a four-session course which will be taught by Marc Sher, professor of physics, beginning March 4.

"The Big Machines of Physics" will be taught by W. J. Kossler, Thursday, April 8 through 29.

Registration is held during the first class.

Those interested in more information about the series can reach von Baeyer by phone at ext. 13529, or by fax at 221-3540.

New Book By Eric Ayisi Details History Of St. Eustatius

Eric O. Ayisi, assistant to the provost for off-campus program development, is author of a new book, St. Eustatius: The Treasure Island of the Caribbean.

Ayisi has been instrumental in the establishment of the College's anthropological studies and summer field school on St. Eustatius. Last year he led a study tour group to South Africa. He is currently working on a new edition of his book, An Introduction to the Study of African Culture, originally published by Heinemann in 1972 and reprinted in 1978 and 1980. He is also author of "Kingship and Local Community of the Akapims" which appeared in the Family Seminar Papers, edited by Christing Opong, a publication of the Institute of African Studies.

An ethnographic and historical study of the small Dutch-administered territory of St. Eustatius, the book deals with the "past glories of the small island," with particular emphasis on the important role it played in the American War of Independence. Although little is known about the island, it was the super-market of the world in the 18th and 19th centuries and was the bone of diplomatic contention between England and other European nations with commercial ambition in the New World.

The study also details the island's current social, political, economic and environmental condition in the context of its development over the past two centuries.

Published by Africa World Press, Inc., the book is available for $45 in cloth cover and $12.95 paperback.

Harris Authors New Book On Relativism

James F. Harris, Haserot Professor of Philosophy, is the author of a new book Against Relativism: A Philosophical Defense of Method.

"When the Catholic Inquisitors persecuted Galileo for teaching that the Earth moves through space, they did so because Galileo insisted that this was the truth. The Church was quite prepared to tolerate the notion of a moving Earth, so long as it was regarded as an instrument useful for calculation, as true merely within a particular framework which might be adopted or discarded for reasons of convenience," explains Harris

"For centuries Galileo has been seen as a heroic fighter for enlightenment against benighted tyranny, but strangely enough, recent years have seen the rise, with Western philosophy, of a wave of relativism, according to which Galileo was wrong and his persecutors were correct.

"In the view of this new relativism, which has roots in both the continental and analytic traditions, there are no universal or trans-cultural standards of rationality. Among the sources of the new relativism are the failure of logical positivism and the shift within anthropology from a single evolutionary model to several models for understanding human culture."

In this detailed critique of relativism, Harris turns the techniques of relativism against relativism, showing that it is ultimately self-refuting or ineffectual.

Harris, current president of the Southern Society for Philosophy and Psychology, edited Analyticity (1970) and Logic, God and Metaphysics (1992) and has authored numerous articles.

John Strong Receives Dean's Award

James F. Harris

Associate Professor John Strong received the Dean's Award for Superior Teaching in the Executive M.B.A. Program at the E.M.B.A. graduation ceremony Sept. 20. The presentation was made by Dean of the School of Business Administration Al Page.

Dean's Awards for Superior Teaching are made possible by a gift from Peterson Consulting Limited Partnership. Alan Peterson, founder, chairman and chief executive officer of Peterson, is a member of the School of Business Sponsors Board.

The gift funds three teaching awards, one each in the B.B.A., the M.B.A. and the E.M.B.A. programs. The awards will be presented annually for the next three years. The B.B.A. and M.B.A. awards are presented at graduation ceremonies in May.

Miles Chappell Works On Two Major Exhibits in Florence

Miles Chappell, Chancellor Professor of Fine Arts, currently has exhibitions on both sides of the Arno in Florence.

Chappell authored the catalog, Disegni di Lodovico Cigoli (1559-1623), for the exhibition of drawings by Cigoli at the Uffizi Gallery. In addition, he wrote the introduction for the catalog and was one of the organizers of the exhibition of paintings by the artist, Cigoli tra Manierismo e Barocco, at the Pitti Palace.

The projects represent close collaboration with numerous Italian colleagues, particularly Annamaria Petrioli, director of the Uffizi Gallery; Gianvittorio Dillon, director of the Gabinetto Disegni; and Marco Chiarini, director of the Pitti Palace.

Cigoli is considered one of the most important creators of the Baroque in Florence and Rome and one of the most significant draughtsmen of the Tuscan school. He was one of the leaders of the Baroque reforms in art, inspired in part by the Counter Reformation, and his career paralleled those of Annibale Carracci, with whom he collaborated on one occasion, and of Caravaggio. Although active as an architect and as a designer of pageants and scenography, he was foremost a very scientific painter dedicated to the accurate imitation of nature achieved through the careful study of anatomy and through perspective on which he wrote a treatise. Among his closest friends was Galileo, whom he assisted with drawings of sunspots seen with the newly developed telescope and whom he both defended and commemorated with the painting of the first "moon-scape" in the dome of the Pauline Chapel in St. Mary Major in Rome, a fresco finished in 1612.

The majority of Cigoli's drawings are in the Uffizi Gallery, and the majority of his paintings are in public collections and churches in Tuscany. The exhibition at the Uffizi Gallery includes 128 drawings.

The exhibition at the Pitti Palace, consisting of 28 newly restored and cleaned paintings, documents the role of Cigoli in the development from Mannerism to the Baroque in Italian art.

Principal paintings in the exhibition are the Martyrdom of St. Stephen (1597) which is considered his masterwork, the Adoration of the Kings (1605), the Charity and the Christ Shown to the People (1607), which was done as a companion to a painting by Caravaggio. Preparatory studies for these and many other works are to be seen in the drawing exhibition.

Chappell has taught the history of art at the College since 1971. His fields of interest include Italian Renaissance and Baroque Art, old master drawings and prints, and portraiture in the 17th to 19th centuries in Europe and America.

An author on diverse aspects of art, Chappell is currently collaborating on a book for Cambridge University Press on Cigoli's treatise on perspective. He wrote the monograph catalog Cristofano Allori (1577-1621) for the exhibition of paintings at the Pitti Palace in 1984. He was one of the authors of Disegni dei Toscani a Roma 1580-1620 for the Uffizi Gallery in 1979. He was invited to contribute to the catalog of the Age of Caravaggio exhibition (1985) at the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Capodimonte Museum in Naples.

He was a member of the international organizational committee and an author of the catalog for the extensive exhibition of 17th-century Florentine art, II

E. Laurence Libelo

Libelo Wins NOAA Award

E. Laurence Libelo, a doctoral student in marine science, is one of five U.S. graduate students honored by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration for excellence in coastal, marine and estuarine management.

Libelo received his award last night in ceremonies at the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of Natural History. The awards were instituted this year as part of NOAA's observance of the 20th anniversary of the Coastal Zone Management Act of 1972. They will be presented annually.

"Laurence's doctoral studies are on the cutting edge of research relevant to pressing issues in coastal management," said Professor Maurice P. Lynch, who nominated Libelo for the award. Lynch is also the director of the Chesapeake Bay National Estuarine Research Reserve System in Virginia, based at VIMS. "Further, he has looked beyond the research needed for his degree to help establish a monitoring network within the sites of the Research Reserve system. This will contribute to coastal management after he has graduated."

Libelo has a bachelor's degree in geology from the University of Maryland and a master's degree in environmental science and engineering from Virginia Tech. He received a fellowship from the National Science Foundation to study Japanese and is collaborating on a study of the roles of groundwater and surface water in the chemistry of Tokyo Bay. He is a former president of William and Mary's Marine Science Graduate Student Association.

Anthro Students To Mark Anniversary Of 1492

In recognition of the 500th anniversary of the encounter of Native Americans and Christopher Columbus in October 1492, the following program will be presented by students at 11 a.m., Wednesday, Oct. 7, in Tyler 336, as part of the anthropology course "Indians of North America" (Anthro. 314): "Columbus and the Native Americans" by James Brothers; "Native Americans and the Invasion of America," Shannon Dawdy; "Disease and the Columbian Exchange," Terri Hudgins, and "European Beliefs About the Native American," Margaret Tamulonis.

Following the presentations will be a discussion by the class on "The Modern Legacy of the Columbian Encounter."

Fall Break Hours At Swem Library

Swem Library will be open on the following schedule during fall break:

Friday, Oct. 9, 8 a.m.-5 p.m.
Saturday, Oct. 10, 9 a.m.-5 p.m.
Sunday, Oct. 11, 1-5 p.m.
Monday, Oct. 12, 8 a.m.-5 p.m.
Tuesday, Oct. 13, 8 a.m.-Midnight

Human Rights Lobbyist Kamm To Visit Oct. 8-9

John Kamm, a prominent American businessman in Hong Kong, who gave up the luxuries of a corporate executive to vigorously lobby for human rights in China, will visit the campus on Oct. 8-9. He will speak at the Town & Gown luncheon at 12:15 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 8 and at an informal brown bag lunch at the Wendy and Emery Reves Center for International Studies at noon on Friday, Oct. 9.

Reservations are required for the Thursday luncheon and may be made by calling ext. 12640. Reservations should be made by Monday, Oct. 5. The fee is $6. No reservations are necessary for the Friday session.

On Thursday, Kamm will take as his topic "The Human Rights Revolution in China: The Role of American Business and Government."

On Friday, Kamm has indicated he will be willing to discuss a range of issues including the return of Hong Kong to direct control by Beijing in 1997.

Kamm is active in humanitarian and charitable works. He has worked with the Chinese government to resolve a number of cases of imprisoned dissidents and is a participant in the dialogue with Beijing on human rights issues.

Pre-Registration Set For Oct. 19-23

Spring 1993 pre-registration materials for currently enrolled undergraduates may be picked up in the lobby area of Blow Hall from Oct. 19 to 23.

Course request forms must be returned to the Office of the University Registrar no later than Oct. 23.

Registrar's Office To Forgo Gift Exchange For FISH

In conjunction with pre-registration, the Office of the University Registrar is conducting a "Food for Thought:" drive for FISH, a non-denominational organization that feeds and clothes needy people in the Williamsburg area.

When students pick up a registration bulletin or submit their registration forms they are invited to bring a non-perishable food item to contribute to the FISH drive. Faculty are also invited to participate.

"Members of the registrar's office had been sharing small Christmas gift annually and, while we enjoyed the practice, we decided that the small things we were giving one another were difficult to find and that they were sometimes a financial burden. We decided at our annual staff retreat that we would help others through this project instead of the gift exchange at Christmas," said Mary Swartz, associate university registrar.

Sinfonicron Sponsors Design Contest

The prize is $25 in the Sinfonicron Design Contest being held in conjunction with the production of "The Yeomen of the Guard," Jan. 21, 22, 23.

All entries must be submitted by Oct. 10 to Jim McKeon at 154 Madison House in the Bryan complex, ext. 15152.

Biennial Publishing Seminar To Be Held Oct. 29-30

The biennial Seminar on Publishing, which will be held this year on Oct. 29-30, introduces students to book publishing as a career.

Attendance is open to about 100 students. Applicants may register until Oct. 23 at the Office of Career Services, Blow Hall 123. Registration begins Oct. 1.

Admission is on a first-come, first-served basis; juniors and seniors receive priority. Registration is $5 and includes a Friday luncheon. With the exception of the opening reception in the Great Hall, all sessions will be held in the Campus Center.

The seminar addresses topics such as careers in publishing, differing varieties of publishing and the process by which an author's manuscript becomes a book.

Cross-Ferguson Scholarships

Two William Cross Ferguson-Harry L. Blair Graduate Scholarships in publishing will be offered this spring.

Scholarship applications will be available in the office of Career Services, Blow Hall 123.

Full Program Set For Family Weekend

Participants who come to Family Weekend will need lots of energy, a pair of running shoes and clear skies.

The Oct. 2-3 program is packed with activities that include lectures, discussion groups, special exhibitions, a football game, Saturday evening with "The Capitol Steps" and on Sunday, "An Occasion for the Arts."

Registration begins at 8 a.m. Friday in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall lobby.

Classes will be open to family members throughout the day from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The special exhibitions at the Muscarelle Museum which include late Medieval and early Renaissance illuminated manuscripts and Islamic ceramics from the James L. Greaves Collection will be open from 10 a.m. to 4:45 p.m.

Faculty and staff members will participate in a discussion with freshman parents at 3 p.m. This program will be repeated with Carol S. Disque, dean of students presiding, Saturday at 9 a.m. in Andrews Hall. President and Mrs. Timothy J. Sullivan will entertain visitors with a reception in the courtyard of the Wren Building.

The William and Mary Choir and Concert Band and the College Orchestra will combine their talents for a concert in Trinkle Hall Friday evening at 8 p.m. in Trinkle Hall.

Lantern Tours of the old campus and Wren Building will begin at 9:15 p.m.

The following faculty members will participate in the lecture panel series which begins at 9 a.m. Saturday morning at various locations around campus:

"Can We beat the Stock Market?" Lawrence B. Pulley, associate professor of business administration, Rogers auditorium; "The Bible as Literature," Adam S. Potkay, assistant professor of English, Millington auditorium; "Thinking About Politics in an Election Year," Ronald B. Rapoport, professor of government, Small 113.

Panels slated for 10 a.m. are as follows: "The Big Bang," Marc Sher, assistant professor of physics; "Beating the College Blues," Philip W. Meilman, director, The Counseling Center, Small 109; "It's Amazing What You Notice When You Only Have One Year Left," a student-produced slide show. (This program will be repeated at 2 p.m. in the Campus Center ballroom.) "What Is the Blues?" Daniel Gutwein, assistant professor of music and department chair, Rogers auditorium.

"The Economics of European Unifi-

Uhrkov To Discuss Danish Study Program

Anders Uhrskov, director of Denmark's International Study Program, DIS, will visit the College, Monday, Oct. 5.

He will be available to meet with students from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in the Campus Center Room D.

Uhrskov will speak at 7:30 p.m., Monday in the Reves Room on "The Danish Referendum and the Future of the European Community." His talk is particularly timely in the aftermath of the narrow margin by which French voters approved the Maastricht Treaty on Sept. 20.

There will be an opportunity for questions and a discussion of the outlook for European unity following his talk. Uhrskov has served in the Danish parliament and was a member of the Danish delegation to the UN General Assembly in 1975. From 1972 to 1983 he was editor of the political scene magazine Tidens Stemme.

DIS provides an English-language curriculum in liberal arts, international business studies and architecture and design. All faculty are Danish and hold positions in government, on university faculties, or in research institutes. The program includes an intensive introductory course in "survival Danish."

The DIS program also includes study tours to European centers and homestays with Danish families. As the DIS program is an affiliated William and Mary program, participants may apply their financial aid to the program.

For further information about the study abroad program or Uhrskov's talk, call Ann M. Moore at ext. 13594.

To be eligible applicants must be receiving or have received a baccalaureate degree from William and Mary within the last three years.

Awards are also contingent upon the recipient presenting a letter of admission as a student or intern in one of the publishing programs offered by Howard University, New York University, Radcliffe College, Stanford University or the University of Denver.

For details contact the Office of Career Services, ext. 13240.

Weintraubs To Speak At Psychology Colloquium

The psychology department has scheduled several colloquia.

Irwin Weintraub '49 of Wilmington, Del., and his son Dan Weintraub '80 of Newark, Del., will present a colloquium on "Changes in Private Practice: 1940s to 1990s."

Speaker for the Oct. 9 colloquium will be Roberto Refinetti, an alumnus who will speak on "Psychophysics of Warmth Sensations."

Colloquia are held at 4 p.m. in Millington 211. Refreshments are served at 3:30 p.m. in Millington 232.

Commonwealth Center Seminar

"The Mixed Motives of Eudora Welty" will be the subject of a Commonwealth Center for the Study of American Culture seminar at 5 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 8, in the Botetourt Theatre of Swem Library. The speaker will be Peggy Whitman Preshaw, professor of Southern studies, department of English, Louisiana State University.

Emily Bell Spitz '80 Enjoys Role As Pianist For The Capitol Steps

When the Capitol Steps perform Saturday night in William and Mary Hall as part of Family Weekend, at least one member will feel right at home. Pianist for the group will be Emily Bell Spitz '80.

Emily has been a member of the group for a year-and-a-half. She travels four days out of each week and is anticipating a particularly heavy schedule in October when the group is booked for more than 300 appearances.

When on campus Emily was actively involved with theatre and music. She was a psychology major and a talented pianist. She played for rehearsals and helped paint sets for "Carousel" as her introduction to musical theatre. When Howard Scammon, former theatre department chairman, was looking for a musical director for a production of "Godspell," Emily was suggested by two friends, Chris Hux and Maggie Vincent.

Emily's meeting with Scammon was the beginning of a lasting friendship. She worked with him on "Godspell" and became a regular with his Showtuners group, which performed at the Hospitality House. "It was such a blast," she said. "I learned so much about musical theatre. Howard is a walking encyclopedia of American musical theatre and I absorbed a lot from him. I really enjoyed that job with the Showtuners. We went through scores and scores of music. Every night there was new music, new singers, I learned how to sight read working in Williamsburg."

After graduation and a year working in Williamsburg, Emily went to Maryland to look for work. She found that on every interview she had added "and I can play the piano." She knew playing the piano was a dimension of her life she couldn't deny, so she went back to school at the University of Maryland and got music credits in arranging and conducting. Then she went to Arizona State University in Tempe and earned a master's in musical theatre direction.

In Washington Emily played accompaniment for dinner theatre shows and the Washington Ballet and developed an interest in computers. When she wasn't playing the piano she was working on computers, teaching software packages and preparing training manuals for corporate clients.

The Capitol Steps is a troupe of current and former Congressional staffers who monitor events and personalities on Capitol Hill, in the Oval Office and in other centers of power and prestige around the world and then take a humorous look at serious issues. They will give a performance at 8 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 3 in William & Mary Hall. Tickets are $5 for the general public; $3 for faculty and staff. Admission is free to students with current IDs. There are no advance sales. Tickets will be available at the door.

When she answered an ad in The Washington Post for a pianist for the Capitol Steps she did so just as a lark; she didn't expect to be chosen. In fact, she says, she thought the group probably had a candidate in the wings and had just placed an obligatory ad. She played three numbers for an audition and was asked when she could start. She was thrilled and amazed; the audition process, Emily explained, is usually multi-tiered, slow and painful.

The Capitol Steps takes on politicians without any particular bias against any party. "The Democrats think we bash the Democrats and the Republicans think we bash the Republicans, but we are equal opportunity bashers," quips Emily.

Like most young musicians she remembers times when she wanted to rebel against parental authority and not practice. When she was a teenager her family bought a Steinway grand piano as a family Christmas present and the joy of playing on that instrument melted any thoughts of rebellion.

Emily is married to Jerry Spitz, an attorney with the D.C. Lottery. They bought an old house in Chevy Chase about eight months ago and Emily says they have become fixer-uppers and good customers of Hechingers' supply store.

Emily recalls that actor friends during her college days would get their families in to see the show and applaud vigorously. Saturday night she is expecting a cheering section led by her parents, Mr and Mrs. Ed Bell of Williamsburg.

College, Council Of Garden Clubs Combine To Give Campus Tours

The College and the Williamsburg Council of Garden Clubs will begin a series of guided botanical walking tours of the campus Oct. 1 for groups from pre-school children to retirees. The tours are organized in conjunction with the Tercentenary Celebration of the College in 1993.

Mrs. W. T. Maruca is serving as coordinator for the Williamsburg Council of Garden Clubs. Guides will be Ann Gregory, Claire Stephan, Madelynn Watkinson, Amy Bennett, Ann Both Young, Lucy King and Roy Daniels. Additional guides may be added in the future.

Martin C. Mathes, professor of biology, is directing the program. Small groups wishing to take a tour are asked to call him at ext. 12238 or ext. 12208. The tours will be given on weekdays between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Tours of the greenhouse will be offered later, and in the spring the tours will be expanded to include the Wild Flower Refuge.

This summer an inventory of campus plantings was undertaken and included in a book by Heather Jones, a graduate student. The publication is available at the College Book Store.

Elderhostel Opens Courses To Commuters

For the first time this year William and Mary Elderhostel is able to offer spaces to commuting students for classes in the session that will be held the first two weeks in November.

The cost is $100 for the courses. It is possible to have meals with the resident students and a per-meal cost will be worked out. The sessions will be held at the Holiday Inn 1776 on By Pass Road.

Tom Heacox, associate professor of English, will teach "Virginia Woolf," a course that he has taught several times previously. Helen Phillips of Williamsburg, will teach a new course "How Should We Worship God? Religious Beliefs of Colonial Women in America." Martin Mathes, professor of biology, will teach "Plants and Plant Growth: A Practical Study."

For detailed information on registration and course content, call Nell Jones at ext. 13644.

College Well Represented At Occasion

The College will be well represented in the Occasion for the Arts, Williamsburg's Fall festival, which annually attracts thousands of visitors to tour the exhibits and extensive talent programs. This year's event is scheduled from noon to 7 p.m., Sunday, Oct. 4 in the Merchants Square area.

More than 100 artists have been invited to exhibit their paintings, prints, pottery, sculpture and jewelry in Merchants Square. The entertainment programs, which get underway at noon on stages around Merchants Square and on campus, will be capped by a concert at 5:30 p.m. in front of the Wren Building by the United States Continental Army Band and Jazz Ensemble from Fort Monroe, conducted by Sgt. First Class Curtis Hamilton. In honor of the Christopher Columbus anniversary, emphasis will be placed on Hispanic jazz. All entertainment, including the concert, is free and open to the public.

The Occasion will have special exhibits for children and a youth art show and youth stage.

The William and Mary Choir under the direction of Frank T. Lendrim, the Botetourt Chamber Singers, The Stairwells and the William and Mary Jazz Ensemble, are some of the groups who will entertain during the afternoon. F.O.A.M. (Friends of Appalachian Music), which draws much of its talent from campus, will also play. The total program includes more than 60 different entertainments throughout the afternoon.

An Occasion for the Arts is developed each year by volunteers. Because this is a labor of love, undertaken over and above their work schedules, there is no rain date.

Family Weekend Program Begins Friday

cation: An American View," David H. Feldman, associate professor of economics, Millington auditorium.

Amanda Hooke and Michelle Pratt, student chairs for Family Weekend will preside at the general session at 11 a.m. in PBK Hall. Mr. and Mrs. Carlton A. Stockton, chairs, Association of Parents, and President Sullivan, will also participate in the meeting.

After lunch on the lawn visitors may take their pick of a variety of events including the football game against Brown, tours, and a women's soccer match. At 5 p.m. the Botetourt Chamber Singers will give a concert in the Chapel of the Wren Building and at 5:30 p.m. the Sir Christopher Wren Singers will perform in the Great Hall. The Capitol Steps performance will begin at 8:30 p.m. in William and Mary Hall.

College To Participate In World Food Day

World Food Day will be observed on campus at noon on Friday, Oct. 16 in the Dodge Room of Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. The program will deal with the subject of food, hunger, the homeless and development, and will include a panel discussion of these issues.

Program coordinator is Ron Wheeler, School of Education.
