WILLIAM & MARY

A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER FOR FACULTY, STUDENTS AND STAFF

NEWS

VOLUME XXII, NUMBER 15 • WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1992

Tercentenary Update

The Coat of Arms of the College's patrons, King William III and Queen Mary II will serve as a banner for Tercentenary news in coming editions of the William & Mary News.

A complete calendar of events will be printed in The News in the Jan. 20 issue. The events of Charter Week which is the first major event on the calendar are included on p. 8.

Inquiries concerning Tercentenary events should be directed to the Tercentenary Office, ext. 11005.

Volunteers Needed

The Tercentenary office is seeking volunteers. If you are interested in becoming a Tercentenary volunteer, contact Meg Thomas, ext. 12157. According to Thomas, student chairpersons of each committee of volunteers will be contacting volunteers after the first of the year and will be responsible for training. Volunteers may indicate their preference for working in any of the following areas:

- Event Work: ushering concerts, lectures, conference registration, etc.
- Publicity: ads, flyers, table tents, etc.
- Campus tour guide
- Wren Information Center
- VIP Assistance—handling logistics for VIP guests
- Handicapped Access—making sure that handicapped guests are taken care of, etc.
- Last-Minute Response Team—volunteers agree to be recruited at the last minute for any kind of assistance.

Calendars Available

Copies of the Tercentenary Calendar, published by the Office of University Relations, are being distributed over the next two weeks to all employees of the College.

Mailing labels for each employee are being attached to the calendars, which will then be distributed to the various departments through the Post Office. If you do not get your copy of your calendar, please contact the person in your department responsible for distributing the mail.

SCHEV Draft Report Raises Important Issues For Higher Education And College

A draft report from the State Council for Higher Education in Virginia (SCHEV) raises many serious public policy issues for higher education in general and for the College in particular, said President Timothy Sullivan.

Recent news reports have quoted a SCHEV working draft that focuses on ways to accommodate the estimated 65,000 additional Virginians who will seek admission to public colleges and universities in the state by the year 2001.

At the same time, members of the Virginia General Assembly will be facing an increasing number of financial demands that will compete with higher education for tax revenues.

The 1992 General Assembly directed

SCHEV to determine the most cost-effective ways to handle the anticipated growth. In its working draft, SCHEV proposed a broad spectrum of measures, including increasing student enrollment, ending duplication in courses, establishing new campuses and off-campus sites, contracting with private colleges and other cost-saving measures.

SCHEV has emphasized that the report is a working draft and that the issues will be fully analyzed before a final report is made. College and university presidents have been consulted by SCHEV and are being updated as the draft evolves.

"The many complex issues in the report will not be resolved by mid-January when SCHEV must present its preliminary recommendations to the General Assembly," he said. "In fact, we may only be in the early stages of public policy debate that will define the future of Virginia's higher education in very uncertain times."

Until these issues are analyzed, it will be difficult to determine exactly how the changing demands on Virginia's higher education system will impact William and Mary, said Sullivan.

"As a state institution, William and Mary will respond constructively to the priorities and needs of the Commonwealth. But we will do so in ways that preserve the unique excellence and character of our College," said Sullivan.

Sepulveda Wins Marshall Award

Danielle C. Sepulveda, who has already won three major awards this year, adds the crowning touch with a Marshall Scholarship and membership in Phi Beta Kappa. She was also a semi-finalist from Virginia for the Rhodes Scholarship.

This is the second Marshall award to a William and Mary student; John Pagan received one in 1973. Pagan who went on to earn a J.D. from Harvard and came back to teach at the Marshall-Wythe School of law, attended Oxford University under the Marshall.

Sepulveda is currently weighing Cambridge University and the University of East Anglia at Norwich. Both schools have strong programs in sociology and

HOLIDAY GREETINGS TO THE COLLEGE COMMUNITY

Please accept our warm and heartfelt greetings for a joyous holiday season and a successful and rewarding new year to you and your families. In lieu of Christmas cards this year to members of the faculty and staff, we plan to give a donation to the Gore Child Care Center on campus.

We hope we see many of you at the traditional Yule Log Ceremony at the Wren Building on December 12 at 6 p.m., to deliver our greetings in person.

Christopher MacGowan Edits New Edition Of Williams' Paterson

A new edition of William Carlos Williams' 240-page poem, Paterson, edited by Christopher MacGowan, associate professor of English, has been published by New Directions. This edition completes MacGowan's work of editing the poetry of this important American modernist.

Working initially with Professor A. Walton Litz of Princeton University, MacGowan published Volume I of Williams' Collected Poems in 1986, and was the sole editor of Volume II (1988), and Paterson.

This is the first time the poetry of Williams, who died in 1963, has appeared in a scholarly edition. Interest in the project is keen. The new edition of the Collected Poems was the subject of an international conference at the University of Rome last year.

Williams was an active physician in Rutherford, N.J., and sometimes was rushed enough to be careless in reading galley and page proofs of his books. In addition, Williams began to have severe vision problems in the 1950s when he suffered from a series of strokes. "This makes for some difficult editing decisions," says MacGowan. "The problem is that just because Williams looked over a version of his work that went into print does not necessarily mean that this is the version that reflects his full intentions. In such cases, editors have to go back to all the manuscript and printed versions of a work to look for clues and patterns to help in making decisions.

"As far as Paterson is concerned, the version in print for the past 30 years is full of changes from the versions Williams looked over, but the changes are really only well-intentioned guesses, for no careful study of the poem's composition and printing has been undertaken."

In addition to offering a more accurate text, and notes on the various changes, the new edition also contains many pages of background notes and annotations. The poem is a collage-like mixture of poetry and prose, and built into it are documents from Williams'

New Jersey life and interest—including letters from such correspondents as Ezra Pound and Allen Ginsberg, historical accounts from old newspapers, the recorded speech of friends, case histories from medical journals and even an interview with Mike Wallace. ("He provided some helpful background for the edition as did Ginsburg," says MacGowan.)

To work on the text and the background sources, MacGowan received a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities and research support from the College.

Endesha Ida Mae Holland Thanks Braxton

"From the Mississippi Delta," currently being presented by the Virginia Stage Company at the Wells Theatre in Norfolk, is enjoying critical and audience success and the playwright, in her script, acknowledges people who have helped her, including Joanne M. Braxton, Francis L. and Edwin L. Cummings Professor of American Studies and professor of English.

Braxton recalls her first meeting with Endesha Ida Mae Holland at a conference when the latter, as a graduate student at the University of Minnesota, asked Braxton to critique a play script for her. Braxton says she offered suggestions, changes and was generally "as mean as I could be."

Braxton was surprised to hear from Holland, inviting her to to the show. Not many of her students, she concedes, write plays that end up off-Broadway with Oprah Winfree in the cast. When Holland was in Virginia for a one-woman show at Old Dominion University, she visited with Braxton, who hopes to be able to have Holland back on campus for a program.

"From the Mississippi Delta" is autobiographical and traces Holland's life from childhood poverty in Mississippi through her doctoral studies at the University of Minnesota. It is her sixth play and is part one of a trilogy. She won the Lorraine Hansberry Award for best play in 1981 for a play about her mother.

Leslie Cheek Jr.

Leslie Cheek Jr., who achieved national prominence for the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts and established the first full-fledged department of fine arts in Virginia at the College, died Sunday, Dec. 6 at his home in Richmond.

Cheek, who earned a baccalaureate from Harvard and a graduate degree in architecture from Yale, was asked in 1935 by College President John Stewart Bryan to organize a fine arts department, one of the first at a southern university. Cheek remodeled an old dormitory into classrooms and brought colleagues from Yale to teach painting, sculpture and theatre techniques. During his tenure, exhibitions were organized bringing to the College the work of prominent artists such as Frank Lloyd Wright and Georgia O'Keeffe.

The Leslie Cheek Award for "outstanding presentation of the arts," was established in 1986 and is given annually. The first award was made in 1987 to Gaillard F. Ravenel II and Mark A. Leithauer, chief and deputy chief of the department of design and installation at the National Gallery of Art.

Director of the Virginia Museum from 1948 until his retirement in 1968, he is credited with many innovations at the museum. He established the first artmobile in 1953 and in 1955 opened the Virginia Museum Theater. He received many awards during his career. In 1977 the Virginia Museum awarded him a honorary Patron of the Arts Award and, in 1979, he was among the first 12 winners of the Governor's Awards for the Arts.

He is survived by his wife, two sons, Leslie Cheek III of Arlington County and Richard Warfield Cheek of Belmont, Mass.; a daughter, Elizabeth Cheek Morgan of Belmont, Mass.; a sister, Mrs. Hudah Cheek Sharp of Brentwood, Tenn.; and seven grandchildren.

A memorial service was scheduled for today at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Richmond. Burial will be private.

Swem Adds Dalton Papers To 20th-Century Political Holdings

Earl Gregg Swem Library has acquired the personal papers of former Governor John Dalton.

Dalton, class of 1953, succeeded Mills E. Godwin, class of 1935, as Republican Governor of Virginia, 1978-82.

Dalton's papers constitute nonofficial correspondence, speeches, General Assembly bills, photographs, memoranda and clippings from his gubernatorial years. They are the gift of his widow, Edwina Dalton Phillips, and are closed at the family's request until 2017.

They join the papers of the Governor's uncle, Ted Dalton, former U.S. District Judge for Western Virginia and Republican candidate for governor in 1953 and 1957.

In addition to the papers of the Daltons, Swem Library numbers among its 20th-century political holdings the collections of Governor William M. Tuck, Governor John Garland Pollard and U.S. Senator A. Willis Robertson.

C. Lawrence Evans Appointed To Staff Of Congressional Committee

C. Lawrence Evans, assistant professor of government, has been appointed senior professional staff member to the Joint Committee on the Organization of Congress, which was created by an act of Congress on Aug. 6. Evans is currently on leave as an American Political Science Association Congressional Fellow.

The Joint Committee is to conduct an in-depth examination of the internal operations of the House and Senate and make recommendations for congressional reform by the end of 1993. Evans was appointed to the staff by the panel's co-chairman, Rep. Lee Hamilton of Indiana, and he will serve as the lead staff person for House Democrats on the Joint Committee.

The 28-member committee will hold a number of public hearings during the next six months which will be televised on CSPAN. The Joint Committee will be assisted by several outside groups including the American Bar Association, the Brookings Institution and the National Academy of Public Administration.

Departments & Schools

Several members of the College community, including Donald Messier, School of Business; Sondra Walker, Commonwealth Center for the Study of American Culture; Jack Edwards, government; Esterine Moyler, post services; and Virginia L. McLaughlin, assistant to the president, attended the Leadership for the Future Through Collaboration conference held earlier this fall and the work sessions that have followed and will continue every two months.

Philosophy

"Posthumous Satisfactions and the Concept of Individual Welfare" by Professor Alan Fuchs is reprinted in John Heil, ed. Rationality, Morality, and Self-Interest. The anthology was published by Rowman & Littlefield in November.

Psychology

Edward C. Carterette, adjunct professor of psychology, gave the keynote lecture at the first international symposium on "Human engineering for the Quality of Life" held in Osaka Nov. 5-6., sponsored by the Ministry of International Trade and Industry of Japan.

Carterette, who is also professor of cognitive psychology, emeritus, UCLA, and research professor of psychology, University of Virginia, spoke on "Problems of Environmental Comfort from the Viewpoint of Perceptual Studies." He dedicated his speech to the memory of Ryo Arai. (The complete text is available from The W&M News Office, ext. 12639.)

Marshall-Wythe School of Law

Free Speech in an Open Society, authored by Rod Smolla, professor of law and director of the Institute of Bill of Rights Law, has been selected for the William O. Douglas Prize for the most distinguished monograph on freedom of expression by the Speech Communication Association.

John Barleycorn Must Pay by Professor Paul LeBel was recently reviewed in The Bottom Line on Alcohol in Society. LeBel was the subject of a recent article in the University of Florida Lawyer.

Professor Trotter Hardy's article, "The Policy, Law and Facts of Copyrighting Computer Screen Displays: An Essay," was recently published in the Computer Law Journal. In the essay, Trotter demonstrates that the recent controversy concerning the "look and feel" of a computer program is the result of the failure of courts and commentators to distinguish between the distinct questions of policy, law and fact.

Hardy's most recent article, "Electronic Conferences: The Report of an Experiment," has been accepted for publication by the Harvard Journal of Law and Technology.

School of Business

Wanda A. Wallace, the John N. Dalton Professor of Business Administration and Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, presented a research paper co-authored with Karen Cravens on "Corporate Governance: Methodological Implications," at a workshop at Florida State University in Tallahassee Nov. 20.

Wallace's "Commentary on Auditing Education" was published in The Auditor's Report, Vol. 16, No. 1, Fall 1992, pp. 59.

VIMS

Rob Hale, assistant professor of marine science, department of environmental science, and John Greaves, research scientist, department of chemistry at the University of California at Irvine, recently published an invited review article titled "Methods for the Analysis of Persistent Chlorinated Hydrocarbons in Tissues" in Journal of Chromatography: Biomedical Applications 580:257-278.

NOTES

Carol Service

The annual Festival of Lessons and Carols, sponsored by the Christian campus ministers, will be held at 7 p.m., Friday, Dec. 11 at the Williamsburg Presbyterian Church, 215 Richmond Rd.

Students, faculty and staff will join campus ministers in reading biblical passages appropriate to the season; carols and hymns will be interspersed among the readings and sung by the congregation.

Part of the English traditions of Advent and Christmas, the service of nine lessons and carols was first used in Truro Cathedral in the late 19th century.

For more information, call 229-6832.

No Parking Notice

There will be no parking along the Barksdale Field side of PBK Circle and along the sidewalk in front of PBK (total of 23 spaces) on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Dec. 16-18 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. The Chamber Ballet is presenting the "The Nutcracker" and this area is needed for the safe unloading and loading of school buses.

Black Faculty and Staff Forum Luncheon Dec. 16

The Black Faculty and Staff Forum is sponsoring a luncheon at noon on Wednesday, Dec. 16, at Sakura's, 601 Prince George St. The cost will be $4.95 per person plus tax and gratuity.

Featured speaker will be Dr. Robert Watson, director of the Department of African-American interpretation and presentation at the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation.

Please RSVP to Sheila Brown by Dec. 10 at ext. 13073.

Furniture Show Today

Virginia Correctional Enterprises will hold its annual furniture show in Trinkle Hall on today from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and tomorrow from 8 a.m. to noon. Among the furnishings that will be for sale include office systems, complete office settings, seating, computer furniture, signage, filing systems, and more. A door prize consisting of a chair of your choice will be given away. For more information, call Mil Brown at 1-674-3760.

Deadlines Set For Student Applications

Applications To Live In Language Houses Due Jan. 29

Applications are due Friday, Jan. 29 for students wishing to live in the French, German, Spanish or Italian houses.

Application forms are available in the department of modern languages and literatures.

The Spanish, German and French houses will hold open houses from 4 to 6 p.m., Sunday, Jan. 24. The Language Houses are located in Giles in the Randolph Complex.

Spring Study Abroad Applications Due Feb. 1

Students planning to study abroad during the spring semester must notify the Reves Center of overseas addresses by Feb. 1 in order to be sure of receiving pre-registration materials in time.

In addition to registering with the Reves Center, students must also sign a form in the Office of the Dean of Students, concerning their study plans.

For further information, contact the Study Abroad Office at ext. 13594.

Dec. 18 Ceremony To Mark Wren Yard Plantings

Twenty trees have been planted in the Wren Yard, and members of the College community are invited to a ceremony at 12:30 p.m., Friday, Dec. 18 in celebration of the event. In case of rain the ceremony will be held in the Wren Portico. Refreshments will be served following the program.

"The planting of these trees on the old campus on the eve of the College's tercentenary recognizes the community's intention to preserve the beauty of this environment for our institution and our city," said President Sullivan.

Roy Williams, associate director of facilities management, who supervised the planting, said the trees had been placed where others have been lost and others placed in anticipation of the loss of trees that show distress or disease. The large maple near the front of the President's House, he said, was one tree that was distressed. He also pointed out oaks near the Richmond Road side of the Yard that are in decline. Care was taken, said Williams, to maintain the open vistas so familiar landmarks are not obscured.

The size of the trees planted was also taken into consideration so early growth would be expected. Colonial Williamsburg archaeologist Andy Edwards was on hand to make sure no buried artifacts were disturbed by the plantings. None were, which didn't surprise Edwards, but he was there just in case.

The ceremony Dec. 18 will be an opportunity for the College to acknowledge the Williamsburg Garden Club's gift to the project and the cooperation of Colonial Williamsburg in choosing the sites and assisting in the selection of the trees.

Elderhostel Invites Commuters

There are several openings for commuter students in Elderhostels planned for 1993.

The Physiology of Exercise and Nutrition" will be the topic for two sessions, one Jan. 3-8, the other Jan. 10-15.

This program, taught by faculty from the department of kinesiology, will include lectures, discussion sessions and testing in the exercise physiology laboratory on campus.

Three topics, "Stress in Cross-Cultural Perspective," "Medieval Britain: A Literary Panorama" and "Music of Colonial Virginia," are planned for a session Jan. 10-15.

"Music in Virginia and the British Colonies," "The American Circus on its 200th Birthday" and "Today's Germany" will be discussed in class sessions Jan. 24-29.

The topics under discussion Feb. 14-19 will include "Physiology and Perception" and "Music of Colonial Williamsburg." The session March 7-12 will also include "Virginia in the American Revolution: 1775-1783."

The price for commuters is $100 for classes only or $310 for lodging, food and classes. For details, call ext. 13644 or 12824.

Menus Of Christmas Past

Bibliophile Mary Haskell, automation and technical services librarian of the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation Library, will serve up a cornucopia of old-time Christmas menus found in cookbooks of the past for the annual Christmas program, Sunday, Dec. 13 at 2 p.m. in the Botetourt Theatre, Swem Library.

Magazine Seeks Contributors

The new women's art magazine Winged Nation wants art (8" X 11" or slides) and writing (all genres). All women in the College community are invited to submit items by Jan. 25. Boxes are located in Swem Library and the office at Tucker Hall. For details call Liz at ext. 14405.

Concert To Benefit Child Care Center

The Botetourt Chamber Singers of the William and Mary Choir, under the direction of Frank T. Lendrim, will give a benefit holiday concert and sing-a-long for the Williamsburg Campus Child Care Center at 1:15 p.m., Sunday, Dec. 13 in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

Proceeds from the concert will be used to purchase equipment for the Gore Center on campus and for scholarship funds.

Admission is $5 for adults; $2.50 for students; and $1 for children under 10. For tickets contact the WCCC at ext. 12121.

The recent Brunswick Stew sale was very successful and netted the center $1,800. This is the largest return yet on that benefit, and it will be repeated again next year on the Saturday of the last home football game in 1993, with the hope that the 8th annual sale, which will be held will result in an even greater return.

One of the reasons for the success, said Dorsey, was the generosity of local donors who contributed a large amount of the materials used in the stew. Donors included Alumni Services, Bassett's restaurant, Berret's restaurant, The Cheese Shop, the College Deli, Downtown Short-stop, Family & Friends restaurant, Food Lion, Friends of Appalachian Music, The Greener Side Produce Center, Greenleaf Cafe, Ground Effects, Indian Springs Bed & Breakfast, James City Farmers Market, Kinko Copies, La Yaca restaurant, Marriott Corporation, Monarch Foods, Muscarelle Museum Ensembles, Sakura Japanese Steak House, Williamsburg Quartet, Paul's Deli and Psychological Associates of Williamsburg.

Libraries Sponsor Demonstrations Of Electronic Resources Jan. 13

William and Mary Libraries invites you to a day of demonstrations of electronic resources. "Access the World II: Discovering the Library of the Fourth Century" will be held on Wednesday, Jan. 13, and will focus on the many databases which are available throughout the Internet. The Internet is an interconnected "supernetwork" which is made up of numerous local and campus computer networks. It is accessible from most faculty offices with a computer and an ADI (data line). The databases feature library catalogs, association bulletin boards and other useful services such as weather information and electronic discussion lists on a variety of subjects. Continuous demonstrations of several types of online databases will be held in the computer lab on the first floor of Swem Library from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and from 2 until 4 p.m.

Special demonstrations of some databases will also be offered:

- Teammate and Hytelnet—Teammate is a computer "gateway" which allows access to Hytelnet, FirstSearch and to the Internet. Hytelnet is a computerized list of Internet accessible databases, most of which are free. Demonstrations will be in the computer lab on the ground floor of Swem at 9:30, 10:30, 2:30 and 3:30.
- FirstSearch—FirstSearch allows subject searching of a variety of bibliographic databases at very low cost. Demonstrations will be in the classroom on the ground floor of Swem at 10:00, 11:00, 2:00 and 3:00.

For more information, contact the Reference Department at Swem Library at ext. 13068, e-mail LIBREF@WMVM1.

New Books At Swem Library

By Carol McAllister, bibliographer
Michael Poteet '94

The Story of the Carol by Edmondstone Duncan (Omnigraphics). ML 2880 D 1992.

The History of the Christmas Card by George Buday (Omnigraphics). NC 1866 C5B8 1992.

Two reprints of rare books join the Swem collection just in time for the holidays. The Story of the Carol, originally published in 1911, traces carols from their origins through the 19th century. Duncan peppers his narrative with legend, historical anecdotes and carols, often complete with musical score. Few of the carols he cites will strike modern readers as familiar—who recalls the "Christmas Mummies' Carol" or "Christmas Lamentation"?—but Duncan's ancient and esoteric selections illustrate the development of this popular musical form.

The History of the Christmas Card, which first appeared in 1954, attempts, in its author's words, "to piece together the story and to rescue the fading colours and vanishing sentiments of the Victorian and Edwardian Christmas card." More than 200 illustrations accompany Buday's nostalgic text, including the first Christmas card from 1843, military cards from World War I, mechanical "trick" cards and even cards made by Queen Elizabeth II as a child.

Readers will find these companion volumes fascinating browsing—and great sources of trivia with which to astound friends at holiday parties!

The Fire-Eaters by Eric H. Walther (Louisiana State University Press). E459 W25 1992.

Originating in the 1850's, the term fire-eater was applied to those individuals who most vocally defended slavery and advocated secession as a means of preserving southern independence. In this series of biographical sketches, Walther reviews the personal lives and careers of nine fire-eaters and shows how their efforts shaped the secession movement.

Instead of the similarities he expected, the researcher discovered a group of diverse individuals with contrasting backgrounds, whose emphases on different issues, ideas and goals added to their political appeal and ultimate success. Among the secessionists profiled are two prominent Virginians, both W&M alumni, Nathaniel Beverly Tucker, a proselytizing law professor at the College, and Edmund Ruffin, a seventh generation Virginian who committed suicide shortly after the Confederate defeat.

With its meticulous scrutiny of personal papers and other primary sources, this collection provides new insights into the contradictory thinking of Americans who "truly believed that African slavery was essential to the maintenance of a republican society."

Blowing the Whistle: The Organizational and Legal Implications for Companies and Employees by Marcia P. Miceli and Janet P. Near (Lexington Books/Macmillan). HD 60 M54 1992.

Whistle-blowing is no longer restricted to playing field officials who observe fouls. Miceli and Near provide this definition: "The disclosure by organizational members (former or current) or illegal, immoral, or illegitimate practices under the control of their employers, to persons or organizations that may be able to effect action." The authors then proceed with a methodical, research-oriented investigation of the phenomenon of whistle-blowing.

They present a model of whistle-blowing and discuss variables that may affect the process and the individuals involved. Are the whistle-blowers disloyal "rats" or are they heroes? What are their personality traits?

In the final chapters, the consequences and responses to whistle-blowing, including legal ramifications, are reviewed. The book provides recommendations for managing whistle-blowing in organizations and advice for would-be whistle-blowers. Blowing the Whistle should prove useful to practitioners in personnel management, organizational behavior, communications, ethics, and law.

The Private Lives of Winston Churchill by John Pearson (Simon and Schuster). DA 566.9 C5 P365 1991.

In the tradition of the "intimate biography," John Pearson, a British journalist and popular writer, takes the reader on a gossipy excursion through the soap opera lives of one of Britain's most notable families. The present-day royals appear lackluster when compared with the troubled and tragic Churchills. Episodes of alcoholism, adultery, divorce, depression, insanity, and suicide are played out repeatedly in this dysfunctional family. Its patriarch, whose iron will and decisiveness helped to sustain England during World War II, is shown as ineffectual when faced with domestic crises.

Despite his tabloid approach and style, Pearson succeeds in getting the reader to care about the people who live rich and famous lives. Among the many notables involved with the Churchills, William and Mary readers will recognize the "millionaire connoisseur and businessman Emery Reves" and "a lavender-eyed former model from New York named Wendy Russell."

Sex in China: Studies in Sexology in Chinese Culture by Fang Fu Ruan (Plenum Press). HQ 60 J83 1991

Ruan, a physician and medical historian who left China in 1985, surveys sexual practices in a nation that presents an "erotic paradox." Some of the world's oldest sex handbooks are in Chinese, yet, today, materials dealing with sexuality are censored and banned.

The author's intent is two-fold. While outlining Chinese contributions to the literature and philosophy of sexology, he traces the processes by which "an open, sex-positive culture became negative and repressive." His story moves from descriptions of classical erotica and ancient sexual practices to present-day attitudes toward prostitution, homosexuality and transsexuality. The final chapters link the need for a liberation of sexual expression to the broader struggle for social and personal freedom.

Sex in China combines pornographic excerpts with political advocacy and provides the Western reader with information that would be forbidden to the Chinese themselves.

The Superpollsters: How They Measure and Manipulate Public Opinion in America by David W. Moore (Four Walls Eight Windows). HN 90 P8M66 1992.

Developed by George Gallup in the 1930s to measure "the pulse of democracy," the modern public opinion poll has become, for better or worse, a staple of present-day politics, as seen in the recent presidential election. In The Superpollsters David Moore reviews the history of this American institution.

Moore provides detailed analysis of different polling methods and techniques, from focus groups to representative sampling to the proper phrasing of a question. He includes biographies of major pollsters—such as Gallup, Lou Harris and Pat Caddell—written in a readable, novelistic style. And fans of political drama will find plenty as Moore illustrates the effects of polls on John Kennedy's 1960 election, Walter Mondale's 1984 run for the White House and the confirmation hearings of Robert Bork.

While Moore concludes that "Gallup's vision of polling as an instrument for improving the practice of democracy seems largely vindicated," he also notes the pitfalls of polling. His book offers a balanced and accessible study of the craft of measuring public opinion.

The Language of the Night: Essays on Fantasy and Science Fiction by Ursula K. LeGuin (HarperCollins). PN 3435 L4 1992.

In this volume, revised from its original 1979 appearance, LeGuin (The Dispossessed, The Left Hand of Darkness, A Wizard of Earthsea) celebrates "science fiction as one of the central fictional modes of our century." LeGuin urges readers to rediscover their imaginations and to trust their unconscious as the "guide of the journey of self-knowledge." She illustrates how mythic motifs and Jungian archetypes, both in her own fantasy and that of other authors, facilitate this process of psychic exploration.

While these subjects sound daunting in summary, LeGuin conveys her insights with grace, clarity, and wit. Strong on literary theory and practical application, this anthology will delight all who understand that "fantasy is true," and who still believe in unicorns, hobbits and dragons.

The Changing Face of Jewish and Christian Worship in North America edited by Paul F. Bradshaw and Lawrence A. Hoffman (University of Notre Dame). BV 193 U5C42 1991.

The liturgy of a church or synagogue represents more than an order of worship; as Lawrence A. Hoffman notes, it stands "as a reflection of the self-image of a religious community." This anthology analyzes the self-images American Jewish and Christian traditions express in the act of worship. Detailed essays survey various responses to the liturgical questions posed by such issues as inclusive language, lay leadership in services, accessible and relevant prayers and rituals, and ecumenical concern.

The book also focuses on the interrelatedness of Jewish and Christian worship, illustrating the methods some faith communities use to recognize that relationship—for example, Christian churches' incorporation of the Jewish Days of Remembrance into their own liturgical calendar.

More than a theoretical discourse, this volume raises serious questions for Jews and Christians alike who seek to profess their faith honestly and responsibly in worship. Most important, it also offers steps toward some practical answers.

Student Health Center Seeking Nurse For Night Hours

Since late August, the Student Health Center has operated with a vacancy in one of its three night-time nursing positions.

Repeated efforts to fill the position have been unsuccessful and the evening/night shift has had to be staffed in part by temporary nurses employed through a local agency. The high cost of this arrangement is draining important resources.

Further, we cannot be sure that students are receiving a consistent level of care when temporary nurses, unfamiliar with the Health Service, are providing the only nursing care available during the night-time hours.

The work schedules of the two remaining evening/night duty nurses have already been adjusted to insure needed coverage.

Given these regrettable circumstances, a decision has been made to discontinue nursing coverage at the Student Health Care Center from 11 p.m. to 8 a.m. effective with the beginning of the second semester, unless suitable registered nurses can be found to staff this shift on a regular basis. Efforts to recruit a qualified nurse will continue.

The Student Health Center in the meantime will be open between 8 a.m. and 11 p.m. daily. Doctors' hours will continue to be 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and the center will be staffed by registered nurses from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. Physicians will remain on call on a 24-hour basis and will be available to College emergency and residence hall staff in the event their consultation is needed. Special instructions about options for health care between 11 p.m. and 8 a.m. will be distributed to students and staff at the start of the semester if it is necessary to temporarily eliminate the early morning nursing coverage.

This step is being taken with great reluctance. While every effort has been made to sustain 24-hour coverage through the current semester, it would not be prudent to continue it further without a solution to the current nursing shortage.

Even though efforts to fund such a solution are continuing, the possibility that the hours of operation at the health center might change the possibility remains that the traditional level of service at the health center might change. It therefore deserves advance notice and explanation. An update on this situation will be provided when the College reopens for the second term.

Cashier's Office To Close Early Dec. 23

Due to the holiday schedule, the cashier's office will be closed from Dec. 23 through Jan. 3.

The last day to accept deposit transmittals will be Tuesday, Dec. 22.

Those areas that have collected funds for deposit are required to submit their transmittal to the cashier by noon on Tuesday, Dec. 22. This will ensure that College funds are properly deposited and safeguarded.

The cashier's office will close early Tuesday to process all deposits and ensure delivery to the Bank.

The last day to submit travel and cash advance requests to the bursar's office for approval will be 5 p.m., Thursday, Dec. 17. Requests cannot be processed after that date.

Normal operations will resume Monday, Jan. 4.

Please direct questions to the bursar's office ext. 11219.

NOTES

Drivers Reckless Or Limit Too Low?

Christina Goodwin, in Roberto Refinetti's psychology class in experimental methods, recently studied traffic on Jamestown Road west of Phi Beta Kappa Hall. She found that most drivers disregard the 25 mph signs, although they are clearly visible to motorists.

Results of the study raised the question, whether most drivers should be held accountable as reckless or whether the 25 mph limit is not a practical speed for the traffic flow.

Police Blotter

During the week of Nov. 28 through Dec. 4, the police received reports of eight annoying or obscene phone calls received by students, five acts of vandalism to vehicles, and three larcenies (a bicycle, blank checks, and an auto cassette player). Police are also investigating two assaults, and one breaking and entering that resulted in the larceny of two college-owned televisions. Police investigated and found two reported stolen vehicles. Both vehicles had been moved to another location on campus by unknown persons.

Crime Prevention Tip

Home security is something often overlooked when people have busy schedules. Take a few extra moments to lower the risk of a thief breaking into your home while you are gone (shopping or on vacation) for the holidays.

Make sure all doors and windows are locked. If you are going to be gone for a few hours at night, leave a light on in the house. Also, leaving a radio or television on may help deter a thief should he hear "voices" inside.

If you plan to be gone for a few days, have a trusted neighbor pick up your mail and newspapers or have delivery stopped while you are gone.

When you return, if you see something is "wrong," don't go inside to investigate, the thief may still be there. Instead, go to the safety of a neighbor's house, call the police and wait until they arrive.

Special Offer
For Faculty, Staff,
Students And Alumni

The following holiday offer has been received from an alumnus, John Jianhua Lee, M.A. 1990, School of Marine Science:

Your I.D. saves you big at Alumni Auto Center: 10% off any used cars you buy, 20% off on low priced auto repairs, and two gallons of free gas if you drive to the Center yourself for repairs over $39.

Students Continue Green And Gold Tradition For Area's Needy Children

Green and Gold Christmas, a student tradition for underprivileged children in the area, was a great success again this year.

More than 180 underprivileged children were given a special day of activities by students. Some 450 students and organizers helped assure the success of the holiday party, which was held Saturday in the Commons dining hall. Lunch was provided by the Marriott Food Service, and music for the party was provided by the Christopher Wren Singers, the Intonations, Gentlemen of the College and the Gallery Players.

"This event would not have been possible without the many people who donated their time, money and support," said Jeffrey Neal and Elyse Shuk who co-chaired the event. They were assisted by Susanna Baird, Meg Glenn, Jennifer Hammond, Allyson Mihalick, Ashley Rudden, Stephanie Saines, Christine Sullivan, Seema Sutarwala and Chrissy Watts.

Several staff and faculty members helped guide the children through the events, including Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hunt, Esther Lanigan, Ronald Sims, John Benschel and Ken Smith.

Donations and discounts were offered by Baskin Robbins, Wythe Candy Shop, Dunkin Donuts, Peoples Drug, Woolworths, Roses and Safeway.

Assistance from the campus included donations from HACE, Loretta Early, Beverly Boyers, Ruth Graff, the President's and Provost's offices, Bill Lacey, W&M bus drivers, Harold Bannister, Sam Sadler, Betty Adams and Hobert Blosser.

Green and Gold has included on its list for thank yous for time and services the James City County Social Services; Renee Henssley; from the Salvation Army, Carolyn Brooks and Lt. Wakely; Cheryl Ferreira of the York-Poquoson Social Services; and the Student Activities Office.

Charter Day Tickets

There have been many inquiries as to how to acquire tickets to the Charter Day ceremony since the announcement of The Prince of Wales as the keynote speaker. The ceremony guest list of the College constituents, leadership boards and the faculty will be receiving an invitation in mid-Dec. The alumni will be asked to return a ticket request coupon that will be published in the Dec. Alumni Gazette. The staff of the College will receive a letter of invitation in early Jan. The ceremony guests, faculty, alumni and staff are all requested to respond by Jan. 20. Tickets will be distributed after that time.

Students will have an invitation waiting for them upon their return to campus Jan. 20. They will be instructed to pick up tickets from the Office of Student Affairs, Feb. 1-5, between 2 and 7 p.m.

Community members who are interested in attending the ceremony are requested to call the Events office at ext. 13868 the week of Feb. 8. After all the above groups' ticket needs are met, community requests will be accommodated. Ticket availability and distribution information will be on this automated line beginning Feb. 8.

No one will be admitted to the ceremony without a ticket. Because of space limitations and security, no exceptions will be made. Tickets will be distributed on a first-come, first-served basis only. It is imperative that all groups respond promptly to enable their ticket requests to be met.

Any questions regarding the Charter Day week events should be directed to Advancement Events at ext. 12636.
