PBK Award

Chappell Prize Given To Granger

Alpha of Virginia Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa has created the Ann Callahan Chappell Award for Outstanding Achievement and has made the first award to Cheryl Lynn Granger, a senior who has a double major in physics and biology. Granger is also the recipient of the Barry Goldwater Award for Science Research.

The award derives from an endowment created by former member of the Board of Visitors and Rector of the College R. Harvey Chappell, in honor of his wife. Both are members of Phi Beta Kappa, class of 1948, and both continue their ties with the College.

Michael Mann To Launch Reves Lecture Series

The first of five Wendy and Emery Reves Lectures to be delivered this spring will be offered by historical sociologist Michael Mann. Anticipating some unpublished conclusions of his widely lauded, multi-volume work-in-progress reconstructing the history of social power, Mann will address the topic, "The End of the Nation-State? Prospects for Europe and for the World." The lecture, which is open to the public, will be presented in the Campus Center ballroom at 6:30 p.m., Monday, Feb. 15.

Mann's research seeks to place contemporary politics in its deepest historical context, not to identify recurring patterns, but to locate the determining factors in a sequence of developments. In the first volume of his History of Social Power, he writes "some of the most important characteristics of our world today can be appreciated more clearly by historical comparison. It is not that history repeats itself. Precisely the opposite: World history develops. Through historical comparison we can see that the most significant problems of our own time are novel."

The Reves lecture series is the centerpiece of a 24-month program, including workshops, specially commissioned lectures, an international symposium, faculty study and publications. The series is designed to celebrate the contribution of Emery Reves to world peace. In his internationally best-selling The Anatomy of Peace (1945), Reves criticized the post-World War II projects that sought to reconcile world order with the nation-state system. He called for a Copernican revolution in the way men and women view their own nations' relations to the rest of the world. The Reves lectures are intended to make an important step in this direction by challenging received notions of the role of nation-states in shaping human society.

Gross Receives NEH Grant For Program On Jefferson

Robert Gross, the Forrest D. Murden professor of American Studies and director of the American Studies program, will administer a $170,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities for a summer institute "Educating a Citizenry: School and Society in the World of Thomas Jefferson."

The NEH named the award a Chairman's Initiative, a designation given to the top two grants of the year.

The NEH awarded 28 Higher Education in the Humanities grants this year totaling $4,368,027 to strengthen humanities teaching and broaden curricula at colleges and universities throughout the United States. Grant projects include summer institutes and multiyear series of workshops and seminars.

Money from the grant will be used to fund an institute this summer at the College to explore the relevance of Jefferson's ideas of education to today's world.

This program is being offered in collaboration with the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation, the University of Virginia and the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation.

The grant is specifically designed for college and university faculty at all levels of their careers, whose teaching and/or scholarship relates to the cultural, social, political and material context of Jefferson's age (1743-1826) and the cul-

Donald Stokes To Give PBK Lecture

Professor Donald E. Stokes, University Professor of Politics and Public Affairs at Princeton University, will present a public lecture titled "How Could We So Misunderstand the Goals of Science?" at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 18 in Andrews 101 as part of the Phi Beta Kappa Visiting Scholar Lecture Series.

Stokes came to Princeton in 1974 as dean of the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs after teaching at Yale, Oxford, Michigan, the University of the West Indies and the Australian National University. A fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and the National Academy of Public Administration, Stokes has been a Guggenheim Fellow and a Senior Fulbright Research Scholar.

Stokes' recent research involves the relationship between the several goals of science, particularly the goals of basic understanding and applied use, and the relationship between the derived categories of basic and applied research.

He is co-author of two seminal works, The American Voter and Elections and The Political Order. Stokes also co-authored Political Change in Britain and is currently at work on a comparative study of basic and applied science policy in Europe, Japan and the U.S.

Mechal Sobel To Begin Harrison Lectures Feb. 16

Mechal Sobel, professor of history at the University of Haifa and this year's James Pinckney Harrison Professor of History at the College, will give a series of three lectures on the overall topic, "Blacks and Whites/North and South/Free and Slave: Interaction and Mutual Influence in the Slave Period."

All lectures will be given at 7:30 p.m. in the Dodge Room of Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

The first lecture, "What If Enslaved Africans Had Not Been Brought to North America?" will be presented Tuesday, Feb. 16.

"Awash in African Culture: The Black Impact on Southern White Lives," will be presented Tuesday, Feb. 23, and the final in the series, "Filtering Through: The Black Impact on Northern Whites," will be given Tuesday, March 2.

Sobel's lecture series will expand on the main theme of her books and articles—that African culture has had a very wide and deep impact on American culture. Her research has concentrated on the colonial period. In her lectures she will extend the time period under consideration from the colonial era down to the Civil War "with a postscript," says Sobel, "that suggests that Africans have played a central role in the development of American culture and in the 'defining' crises of the American past."

Sobel will initially give her audience an introduction to beginnings of cultural interaction in the religious practices of the early colonial era, when there was a joint religious life in which blacks and whites shared. "Evidence seems to indicate that early Baptist and Methodist congregations and churches were tural history of education and the humanities.

This year is the 250th anniversary of Jefferson's birth. To commemorate this, the Institute will study the career of Thomas Jefferson as student, revolutionary, republican theorist and educational reformer, and will consider the continuing relevance of his political thought and intellectual practice to college teachers at the close of the 20th century.

Invitations have been sent out to prospective participants. Each will receive a stipend of $1,250, plus an allowance for room, board and travel.

Gross and Peter S. Onuf of the University of Virginia, will be directors of the Institute.

Lecturers will include William L. Beiswanger, Lucia C. Stanton and Susan R. Stein, Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation; Cary Carson, J. K. Fried,

Robert Watson and Mark R. Wenger, Colonial Williamsburg Foundation; Charles E. Brownell, E. D. Hirsch Jr. and Merrill D. Peterson, University of Virginia; Richard D. Brown, University of Connecticut; Mary Kelley, Dartmouth College; David T. Konig, Washington University; Jan E. Lewis, Rutgers University, Newark; Michael Nicholls, Utah State University; and Chandos M. Brown, John E. Selby and Thaddeus W. Tate, College of William and Mary.

Last fall Gross was coordinator of an international seminar for teacher trainers in English language and American literature which the United States Information Agency and the Academy of Educational Development sponsored.

Anyone who would like more details on the program or an application form should call Director Gross' office at ext. 11275.

Wallace, White Awarded Grant By Institute Of Internal Auditors Research Foundation

Wanda A. Wallace, the John N. Dalton Professor of Business Administration and associate dean for academic affairs, and G. Thomas White, director, the Executive MBA program, have been awarded a grant by The Institute of Internal Auditors Research Foundation to study "The Internal Auditor's Role in Management Reporting on Internal Control."

The goal of the research is to gain an understanding of the current activities of internal auditors as they relate to aggregating information to form an assessment of control. In particular, the manner in which the internal auditors have to date affected management's decision to issue management reports and the wording used to address internal controls, internal accounting controls, or other dimensions of the control system will be explored.

Based on this empirical information, as well as available literature, the researchers will propose a prescriptive framework intended to provide guidance to internal auditors regarding what steps need to be taken as they become in-involved in the management reporting process. Particular attention will be directed to the needs of boards and audit committees in this area.

The project team from the Foundation includes: Vic Jarvis, BellSouth Corporation; Charles LeGrand, director of research; Dick McLaughlin, IBM Corporation; Wayne Moore, E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co.; Steve Root, Northrop Corporation; Bob Roussey, formerly Arthur Andersen and now USC; Roy Salmon, auditor general, Province of Nova Scotia; and Tom Warga, New York Life Insurance Co.

Busch Subsidiaries Receive Prentis Award

The College has named Anheuser-Busch Brewery, Busch Gardens Williamsburg, and the Kingsmill Resort and Conference Center, all three local subsidiaries of the Anheuser-Busch Companies, Inc., as the recipients of the 1992 Prentis Award.

The award is presented each year to a company in the business community "which best exemplifies the standards of good business, community service and strong support of the College."

The Anheuser-Busch subsidiaries were recently honored at a reception for the Friends of the College at William and Mary Hall. J. B. Hickman, chairman of the Friends of the College since 1975, and his wife, Mildred, were the first recipients of the Prentis Award. During the Hickmans' successful retailing career, they owned Binn's Fashion Shop in Merchant's Square and later J. B. Hickman, Ltd., in Newport News. They have established the Mildred and J. B. Hickman Professorship of English, and are lifetime members of the President's Council.

Anheuser-Busch Companies, Inc. began operations in St. Louis, Mo. in 1852 and is today the world's largest brewing organization. Today it is a diversified corporation with a variety of subsidiaries, three of which are in Williamsburg.

"We share the company's commitment to quality in all pursuits and value the unique and positive relationship that we have with the Anheuser-Busch Companies, Inc.," said President Timothy J. Sullivan.

The award is named for an 18th century business, the Prentis Store, a retail shop on the Duke of Gloucester Street that became widely known for its fair wages, good merchandise and sound innovative business practices in the community and throughout the colonies. The Prentis family was noted for service to the town and to "Their Majesties' Royall Colledge of William and Mary in Virginia."

Regalia Day At Bookstore

Faculty Regalia Day will be held at the College bookstore Feb. 18 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Knowledgeable staff from Oak Hall Cap and Gown will be present to assist. Commencement delivery cannot be assured for orders placed after this date.

Alexander I. Kurtz

Alexander I. Kurtz, professor of modern languages emeritus, died at his home in Williamsburg on Thursday, Feb. 4. He was 83.

Professor Kurtz was a member of the department of modern languages from 1962 to 1975. He was known as an accomplished teacher and scholar.

A native of Brod, Yugoslavia, Professor Kurtz taught high school in Hungary from 1935 to 1949. He was a teacher of German at the Haverford School from 1959 until he joined the faculty in 1962.

He received a diploma from the Teacher College of Budapest. He became a licentiate from Leopold Francis University, Innsbruck, Austria, in 1931 and received his Th.D. in 1935 from that institution. He also attended the Hubay Academy of Music in Miskolc, and received an M.A. from Rutgers University in 1959.

Professor Kurtz was a specialist in German culture, literature and music. His special interests were the literary aspects of Gustav Mahler's works and the history of the Budapest Opera House.

Professor Kurtz is survived by his wife, Maria Spacsek of Williamsburg; a brother, Robert F. Kurtz of White Salmon, Wash.; a niece and a nephew.

A Christian Wake Service was held Friday evening at Bucktrout Funeral Home. A funeral mass was celebrated Saturday at St. Bede's Catholic Church. Burial will be at his home in Hungary.

Memorials may be sent to the James City County Rescue Squad, 5077 John Tyler Highway.

Departments & Schools

Anthropology

Professor Mario D. Zamora has co-authored two new books. Los Indigenas De Las Islas Filipinas is one of the 270 books published by Fundacion Mapfre America in Madrid, Spain, in commemoration of Columbus' discovery in 1492. The "Collections 1492" highlights the impact of Spain on her colonies. Professor Zamora was invited by Spain's eminent anthropologist, Professor Claudio Esteva Fabregat, to write on the role of the Filipino indigenous peoples in Philippine history and their encounter with Spanish colonialism.

The Anthropology of Peace: Essays in Honor of E. Adamson Hoebel is a two-volume work honoring one of America's leading legal anthropologists E. Adamson Hoebel, professor emeritus, University of Minnesota. The papers in these volumes were presented at the 12th International Congress of Anthropological and Ethnological Sciences in Zagreb, Croatia, organized by Professor Zamora. Besides serving as co-editor of the two books, Zamora contributed a chapter jointly with J. M. Bradshaw titled "The People's Power Revolution in the Philippines: A Holistic View." He also wrote the foreword and co-authored the introduction. The two volumes were published by Studies in Third World Societies, an international journal on Asia, Africa and Latin America, edited by Professors Vinson Sutlive, Zamora, and Tomoko Hamada of the anthropology faculty

Biology

Professor Bruce Grant's invited review of L. M. Cook's book, Genetic and Ecological Diversity: The Sport of Nature (Chapman & Hall), was published in the December issue of The Quarterly Review of Biology 67:524.

Professor Laurence Wiseman attended the annual meeting of the American Council on Education (ACE) in San Diego, Jan. 24-27, which marked the ACE's 75th anniversary. The Council is the major representative association in higher education, representing all accredited, degree-granting institutions and national and regional higher education associations. The theme of this year's conference was "Reality and Regeneration: Today's Problems, Tomorrow's Solutions."

Wiseman is a member of the ACE's Council of Fellows Policy and Implementation Committee, which planned and sponsored a special session on "Crisis in Urban America: The Role of Community and Urban Colleges in Rebuilding Public Trust."

English

The Samuel H. Kress Foundation has awarded a $10,000 grant to the Johns Hopkins University Press toward the publication of the volume of Eighteenth-Century Life on "Art and Architecture of Versailles." Professor Robert Maccubbin, editor, has informed the Foundation that the anticipated publication date for this issue is May 1993. This brings to $20,000 the amount of grant awards obtained for this special issue.

School of Education

Chancellor Professor John R. Thelin is one of 180 historians who were contributing authors to Encyclopedia of U.S. Social History published by Charles Scribner's Sons of New York, which was championed as a major contribution to the field of social history in the Jan. 20 issue of The Chronicle of Higher Education.

Marshall-Wythe School of Law

The latest issue of the American Bar Association Journal contains a story about sexual harassment in the military by Henry J. Reske and includes quotes from Professor Fred Lederer, a colonel in the Judge Advocate General's Corps. He is quoted as saying he believes that there is adequate authority in the military code to handle the problem of sexual harassment, and that basically the problem is not in the statute, but is behavioral.

"As in civilian life, some officers have made errors in judgment in investigating sexual harassment complaints. He believes education and understanding are needed to deal with the problem."

Asked whether other changes are appropriate, Lederer said this question needs further study.

On the suggestion that sexual harassment victims should be allowed to sue for damages, Lederer said "the threat of such suits would have a chilling, if not immobilizing, effect on normal operations."

Professor Kay Kindred's article, "When First Amendment Values and Competition Policy Collide: Resolving the Dilemma of Mixed-Motive Boycotts," was recently published in the Arizona Law Review. Kindred focuses on the problem of economic boycotts undertaken, at least in part, for political ends.

Specifically Kindred analyzes the Supreme Court's decision in FTC v. Superior Court Trial Lawyers Association, a case involving a boycott by court-appointed criminal defense lawyers in the District of Columbia. Kindred argues convincingly that the Supreme Court failed in SCTLA to consider the expressive dimensions of the boycott.

NOTES

PCP Update

Debra Boyer M5930 Hampton, Family Practice, has been added to the list of available Primary Care Physicians in the area. Reinstated is Gonzalo Toti, M3725 Newport News, Family Practice.

Retirement Seminar Filled, Others Planned

All spaces for the retirement seminar on Tuesday, Feb. 23 are full.

The benefits office will offer other retirement seminars in the future at dates to be announced.

Libraries Need IDs

For the automated circulation system, the libraries of the College need to identify each borrower with a numerical code, preferably the borrower's social security number.

With your permission the College can provide a tape of social security numbers which can be loaded into the database where they will be protected from unauthorized use.

In compliance with Virginia Code, Section 2.1 385, we request permission to use your social security number within our data base. If this is not acceptable to you, please notify the libraries in writing by March 12

If we do not hear from you by March 12, we will assume that we have your permission.

Linda Adams
Circulation Coordinator
Swem Library

Library Patrons Ask For Help

Staff members at Swem Library are asking patrons to help cut the length of time it takes to reshelve books.

Library users are being asked to take the books they have been using to newly established collection areas on the second and third floors instead of leaving them on study tables.

The initial collection of books to be reshelved will save librarians time and get books back on the shelves faster.

Self-Defense Course

A nine-hour self-defense course is being offered to all female students, faculty and staff.

Classes will meet on Tuesdays, March 16, 23 and 30 from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the Rec Center classroom.

The cost for the course (including a manual) is $20 for students and $30 for faculty and staff.

For further information, please contact Grace at ext. 13177 by Friday, March 12.

AVALON To Train Volunteers

AVALON: A Center for Women and Children, will hold a volunteer training session in February. This training is open to the public and is free. Volunteers at AVALON answer a 24-hour Helpline, work with women and children at the shelter, and assist the staff in the office.

For more information, and to receive an application, call 258-5022.

Two Seniors Share Harrison Award In Physics

The 1993 Don Edward Harrison Jr. Award for Excellence in Physics has been awarded jointly to senior physics concentrators Sridhar Charagundla and David Lange.

The award, in the amount of $300 split between the winners, recognizes the highest demonstrated achievement in physics, including both academic performance and the quality of the senior research project underway this year.

It is made in memory of Don Edward Harrison, Jr., class of 1949, who, as professor at the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey, Calif., made pioneering contributions to the study of computer models of molecular interactions.

Charagundla's project, supervised by Professor Henry Krakauer and titled "The Computer Modeling of Molecular Structure and Dynamics," is singularly appropriate for the Harrison Award. Charagundla uses massive computer programs to construct mathematical models of complicated molecules, such as the sugar variants glucose and fructose. The flourishing field of dynamical modeling has the eventual goal of building designer molecules for use in material science, biochemistry and medicine. Charagundla plans to attend medical school with a view to pursuing an M.D.-Ph.D. program in biomedical research.

The title of Lange's project, conducted under the guidance of Professor Carl Carlson, is "Charming Decays of Beautiful Mesons." It reflects the whimsical nomenclature physicists use to classify the exotic particles that are produced by powerful nuclear accelerators. One particle property is called "charm," and another "beauty," but neither of those attributes can be understood or visualized in the conventional sense of the words. Lange is completing a mathematical calculation based on the latest theory of elementary particles, and his predictions will help guide experimentalists who actually measure these properties in the laboratory. He hopes to attend graduate school in physics at Stanford or the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Student Works Stolen From Andrews

Sometime last Friday night four student works of art on display in the foyer of Andrews Hall were stolen. Soapstone sculptures in the form of an elephant and a woman holding an object and two sets of ceramic hands were taken.

The pieces were completed by students in the Fine Arts 317 and 112 in the fall semester. The remaining works on display have been removed for safekeeping and faculty will no longer display student class work in Andrews unless the pieces taken last weekend are returned.

The department and Dean of the Faculty deplore this barbarous act. It strikes at the very meaning of a liberal education and the university by denying students the opportunity to view, discuss and critique their peers' work. Such acts cannot be tolerated in a community dedicated to learning.

Stealing is a violation of the Honor Code. Anyone having information regarding the missing works is asked to contact the Campus Police, the Department of Fine Arts, or the Office of the Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences.

Clyde A. Haulman
Dean, Undergraduate Studies
Faculty of Arts and Sciences

Career Information

Summer Employment Fair

The Office of Career Services will sponsor a Summer Employment Fair from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 17 in the Campus Center ballroom.

Representatives from more than 13 summer camps and the following organizations will discuss summer positions: Busch Gardens-Water Country U.S.A., Canon Virginia, Inc., James City County, Paramount, Kings Dominion, University Directories, Virginia Water Control Board, and the Williamsburg Hotel/Motel Association.

Careers And The Disabled Expo Set In D.C.

The first Careers and the Disabled Exposition will take place Feb. 25-26 at the Washington Hilton and Towers in Washington, D.C. A diversified host of companies and government agencies have already reserved exhibit space. The Expo will be attended by highly qualified entry-level and professional people with disabilities from top universities, industries, government agencies, and hospitals. For more information write or call CMC, 200 Connecticut Ave., Norwalk, CT 06856-4990 or call 203-852-0500.

Scholarships

Sons Of Italy

The Virginia Order of the Sons of Italy in America: $500 scholarship to a student interested in Italian culture. Contact or write Kathy Drummond, Chair, Scholarship Committee, 9211 Placid Street, Manassas, VA 22110-4230 or call 703-368-5039.

Accounting Scholarship

The Government Finance Officers Association's Government Accounting Scholarship: $2,000. Deadline: Feb. 15. Contact Scholarship Committee, Government Finance Officers Association, 180 North Michigan Ave., Suite 800, Chicago, IL 60601-7476 or call 312-977-9700.

St. Andrew's Society

The Washington Scots Charity and Education Fund of the St. Andrew's Society of Washington, D.C. Deadline: March 5. Contact James S. McLeod, chairman, Charity and Education Committee, St. Andrew's Society of Washington, D.C., 7012 Arandale Road, Bethesda, MD 20817, telephone 301-229-6140.

Financial Aid For 1992-93

Any student still wishing to apply for a loan for the 1992-93 school year needs to submit an application to the Financial Aid Office by March 15.

Only students who have already submitted a Financial Aid Form (FAF) can be considered.

LSAT Exam Moved To Hilton

Due to Charter Day activities on campus and the expressed concern of several students, the Feb. 13 LSAT examination site has been moved to the Williamsburg Hilton, on Route 60 at the Kingsmill entrance.

There will be bus transportation to and from the Hilton leaving at 7:45 a.m. from the parking lot behind Trinkle Hall, near the Campus Police office.

Board Of Visitors Meets Feb. 11-12

The Board of Visitors will meet Thursday, Feb. 11, and Friday, Feb. 12, for a special series of meetings and celebrations relating to the 300th anniversary of the College. The board's activities during the three days are divided between business and ceremonial sessions.

The business sessions begin at 3 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 11, in the Board Room of George P. Blow Memorial Hall. A closed session will be held, if necessary, under provisions of the state Freedom of Information Act. Once the board convenes in open session, committee meetings will be convened and should be completed by 4:45 p.m.

At 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, board members will go to William and Mary Hall to attend a premiere of a 16-minute visual history of the College produced by the National Geographic Society and a debate on the future of liberal education.

Board members will reconvene for business sessions at 8 a.m. Friday, Feb. 12, in the Board Room of Blow Hall. A closed session will be held, if necessary, under provisions of the state Freedom of Information Act. Committee meetings will conclude at 11:30 a.m. After lunch, the full board will convene at 1:30 p.m. and the meeting should conclude at 3 p.m.

Although not a meeting of the board, many board members will attend the Charter Day convocation at 10:30 a.m., Saturday, Feb. 13, in William and Mary Hall.

Deadline For May Graduates

A Notice of Candidacy must be filed with the University Registrar by students planning to graduate and receive a diploma in May.

Feb. 15 is the last day to file and to assure a diploma and inclusion in the list of graduates in the commencement program.

For further information, contact Carol A. Goins, assistant registrar at ext. 12818.

Monday's Events A Lively Beginning To Year-Long Tercentenary Celebration

This Week's Calendar

Tonight, Feb. 10 at 7 p.m.

"Japan and Virginia in the 21st Century" is the topic for a discussion program in which former Virginia Governor Gerald L. Baliles and Henry Rosovsky, chairman of the tercentenary planning group, will participate. A reception will follow. This program is open to the public.

Thursday, Feb. 11

The day-long conference on "America's Investment in Liberal Education: What, How Much, and for Whom?" will culminate in an evening debate in William and Mary Hall, moderated by TV journalist Roger Mudd. The program Thursday evening will open at 7:30 p.m. with the premiere of a multi-image visual history the College by the National Geographic Society magazine. This program is free and open to the general public.

Feb. 12-14

Sweethearts Weekend sponsored by the Society of the Alumni. Judy C. Pearson, author of Lasting Love, What Keeps Couples Together will speak at a brunch at the Williamsburg Lodge at 10 a.m., Feb. 14.

Saturday, Feb. 13

TV channels 8, 12 and 3 will broadcast the Tercentenary Charter Day convocation on Saturday morning beginning at 10:30 a.m. Colonial Williamsburg Productions will be at William and Mary Hall and will cover the event with seven cameras, providing a live broadcast for the stations, which they will augment with their own anchor reports on the scene.

There are no longer tickets available for the event.

Parking for those who will attend is available in the William and Mary Hall parking lot. Parking is also available in the lots by the Common Glory grounds and Morton Hall. Shuttle buses will be available beginning at 9 a.m.

Those coming to the convocation are advised to arrive early. The hall will be open at 9:30 a.m.

Still and video cameras will be permitted but must undergo a security check at the door.

Faculty and seniors who have tickets to join the processional are reminded that these tickets are not transferable to general seating and are good only for the processional.

William and Mary's resident baroque chamber ensemble Capriole will perform theatrical music of Henry Purcell, court composer to William III and Mary II, with singers and dancers at 3 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. Tickets are $12; $8 for students. For more information call 220-1248.

Judy Collins in Concert

Judy Collins in concert is a celebration event in which the entire community is invited to participate. The concert begins at 8:30 p.m. in William and Mary Hall. There are no tickets, no admission charge.

Sunday, Feb. 14

Winter Tea at the Muscarelle Museum of Art, 3-5 p.m. Tickets $5; students $2.

Monday, Feb. 15

The series titled Beyond The Nation-State: Transforming Visions of Human

Students enjoy the welcomed sunshine as they wait for the ceremony in the Wren Yard to begin.

Patty L. Hogge, director of College postal services, and Gary Farmer, Williamsburg Postmaster, unveil the new postcard.

Joseph J. Rein III, district manager, customer services, U.S. Postal Service (at the podium), and platform speakers Anne M. Lambert '35, Jerry A. Van Voorhis '65 and Joseph R. Price '93 applaud the postcard designer, Pierre Mion.

Sales of first-day covers were brisk. Those at the ceremony received a commemorative booklet with a handsome picture of the Wren in winter by Williamsburg photographer C. J. Gleason.

The president meets the press. President Timothy J. Sullivan is interviewed by Chanel 13's Cathy Barnstorf.

Hans Meesman, Netherlands Ambassador to the United States, gave the principal address at a tercentenary luncheon Monday. The ambassador spoke of the importance of the United States as an ally of Europe and traced some of the early steps in international relations initiated by the College's patron, the Dutch stadholder-king William III.

Poet Amy Clampitt is pictured with University Librarian Nancy H. Marshall. Clampitt read her poem "Matoaka," which she wrote for the tercentenary, to a standing-room-only audience in Swem Library. The afternoon program also marked the opening of special tercentary exhibits in Swem.

Henry Rosovsky '49, who heads the tercentenary planning commission, chats with Martha Hamilton-Phillips, director of the tercentenary events office, and Robert Maccubbin, professor of English.

One of the exhibits in the Zollinger Museum at Swem that received special attention was a tercentenary quilt. The quilt, made by Karen Haff '63 of Chester, Va., has been donated to the Society of the Alumni.

Sepulveda Named To USA Today's All-USA Academic First Team

Danielle Sepulveda, Phi Beta Kappa, winner of a Marshall and Beinecke Scholarship, is getting used to being in the spotlight. But she says she wasn't prepared for the red carpet treatment she received in Washington on Friday, chosen by U.S.A. Today as one of the top 20 undergraduates in the nation and a member of its All-USA College Academic First Team.

Flown to Washington for the event, Sepulveda received a handsome trophy as two of her nominators, Vice President Sam Sadler and Philip Johnston, president of CARE, looked on. Other nominators included Dean of Arts and Sciences David Lutzer and her faculty advisor, Elaine Themo, associate professor of sociology.

For the next couple of weeks Sepulveda plans to conduct a number of informational sessions around campus, urging students to apply for such scholarships as the Marshall and encourage juniors to consider summer service programs which will enhance their chances of success.

Sepulveda said that a great deal of emphasis by judges was put on the outreach programs students undertake outside the campus and the essay they write explaining their work. (Sepulveda's essay on her summer in Bangladesh with CARE is carried on p. 7.)

As a top scholar, Sepulveda was given a $2,500 check, no strings attached. Her award will help fund her graduate studies at the Cambridge University in England. Sepulveda recently visited universities in England, and settled on Cambridge, which in 1989 established a Global Security program which interests her. The first year in England, she explained, she will take general courses in political and social science, before beginning the M.Phil. program in social and political theory. She plans to use funds from the Beinecke award to pursue a Ph.D. at Cambridge.

Sepulveda describes the other scholars she met as exciting innovators who were really making a significant difference. "Beyond GPAs and activity lists," said Sepulveda "what joined us together was a commitment to make a difference." She added that the group of scholars included a Rhodes and three Marshall winners. All, she said, made a pact to keep in contact and meet again.

Sepulveda's mother was not able to see her daughter receive her award in Washington, but she plans to be on hand for commencement which will cap a year that Sepulveda says has included "a lot of joy."

Hagedorn To Present Institute Colloquium On Indian Interpreters

Nancy L. Hagedorn, curatorial fellow and research associate at the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation, will present a paper at the Institute of Early American History and Culture on Monday, Feb. 15 titled "At Home in Their Manners and Modes of Expression: The Education and Training of Interpreters." The talk begins at 7:30 p.m. at the Institute located in the basement of Swem Library.

Indian interpreters required a variety of linguistic skills and cultural knowledge to perform their role as cultural mediators efficiently and effectively. Training in Iroquois affairs took many different forms during the 17th and 18th centuries—and achieved varied results. Still, although Indians, métis, and Europeans followed many different routes in becoming interpreters, certain trends are apparent.

As colonial concerns shifted from trade to the more complex and delicate areas of intercultural diplomacy, interpretive training became more sophisticated and systematic. This paper, the second chapter of Hagedorn's dissertation, "Mediating the Exchange of Cultures: Indian Interpreters Among the Iroquois, 1764-1774," examines the methods by which interpreters acquired their special skills and knowledge and explores trends in interpretive education through the 18th century.

Copies of the paper are available for reading at the Institute, the History Department, the Commonwealth Center, and the Colonial Williamsburg Library.

Music of Court Composers Featured In Capriole Concert

Capriole, the musical ensemble in residence at the College, will present a multiple concert festival of music by Henry Purcell and John Blow, court composers to the College's patrons, King William III and Queen Mary II, in celebration of the tercentenary of the College.

Henry Purcell's theatrical music from "King Arthur" and "The Fairy Queen" will be presented at 3 p.m., Saturday, Feb. 13, in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall, and at 8 p.m., Monday, Feb. 15 in Chandler Recital Hall at Old Dominion University's Fine & Performing Arts Center in Norfolk.

Singers for these concerts will be Susanne Peck and Christine Brandes, sopranos, and James Weaver, bass-baritone. The singers will be joined by baroque dancers Paige Whitley-Bauguess and Tom Baird.

The music of Blow and Purcell will be featured in a performance at 8 p.m., March 1 in Chandler Recital Hall and at 8 p.m., March 2 in The Great Hall.

These two concerts will feature the voices of countertenors Derek Lee Ragin and Steven Rickards singing Purcell's 1692 "Birthday Ode to Queen Mary" and Blow's "Ode to the Death of Henry Purcell"

Single admissions are $12 general admission and $8 for students.

Tickets are available at Discovery in Lynnhaven Mall North, Virginia Beach, and in Williamsburg at Echoes Tapes and Compact Discs and at the Theatre Connection, or by calling 220-1248.

Food For Thought Series Opens Monday

"Persons of Faith and Teachers in a Post-Modern Academic Community" will be the focus of remarks by William Losito of the School of Education when the spring semester Food for Thought series begins Monday, Feb. 15 at the Wesley Foundation, the United Methodist campus ministry at the College.

Faculty, staff and students are welcome from noon to 12:50 p.m. at the Foundation building, 526 Jamestown Road (across from Barksdale Field). Participants are asked to bring their lunch; Wesley will provide beverages.

Other scheduled speakers and topics include: Judy Ewell, Newton Professor of History, speaking March 15 on "Lope de Aguirre: Demagogue or Democrat?"; and members of the Class of 1993 reflecting on their experiences of life and learning at William and Mary on April 19.

Food for Thought began last semester as a program of the Wesley Foundation to build community and bring together faculty and staff for food, fellowship and informal learning across disciplinary and departmental lines. For more information, contact David Hindman, United Methodist campus minister, at 229-6832.

Chappell Award

The award is to be made annually at the December PBK initiation to "the most outstanding undergraduate newly elected member of Alpha of Virginia."

Granger is a member of Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity and Sigma Pi Sigma physics society. She is a member of the Presbyterian Handbell Choir.

Granger is currently researching variable stars for an astronomy project. She plans to continue some aspect of biology in graduate school next year and would like to teach. Her double major, she explains, resulted from a sequence of interesting and challenging physics courses that broadened her initial interest in science and biology.

Chalkley To Cater Saturday Luncheon

It takes nerves of steel for a bride to cater her own wedding reception, especially when the menu is elaborate and includes lobster, French braised ham, steamed shrimp and mussels, sliced tenderloin, pasta salads and champagne.

Annie Chalkley did this with aplomb and 12 years later is taking in stride the months of preparation that have gone into the luncheon on Saturday she is catering for 200 guests, including The Prince of Wales. Chalkley is Special Events Chef for Marriott, the food service on campus and owner of the catering service Pfoods.

The menu will include a four-mushroom soup, corn and crab salad with sautéed shrimp, and fresh fruit with Zabaglione creme. A variety of Virginia wines, furnished by the Wine Growers Advisory Board of Virginia will be served at the reception preceding the luncheon.

The meal is a flexible one, says Chalkley, a practical chef, who has taken into consideration the possibility of last-minute hitches in the schedule. Even if the guests are a few minutes off schedule everything will be fine. The menu is flavorful but light and fits the time allotted for the meal. Following the luncheon, The Prince of Wales will leave for Washington to continue a heavily scheduled day.

Trinkle Hall has been refurbished for Saturday's event with a new coat of paint and new curtains. Joyce Laughlin, coordinator of special events for the President's office sought the assistance of Carolina Furniture and its decorator, Robert Martin, in sprucing up the window treatment in the hall. The tables will be set with some rented finery, including stripped damask tablecloths in a soft rose color and comfortable cushioned chairs. The dinnerware is off-white with a gold rim. Floral decorations are being arranged by volunteers from the Williamsburg Area Council of Garden Clubs and Williamsburg florist Claude Jones.

Trained initially as a painter, Chalkley is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and the Pratt Institute. She hung out her catering shingle soon after her wedding in historic Westover Plantation. Because of her interest in food, Chalkley lists cookbooks as her favorite reading; she is constantly looking for new ones. She has traveled extensively and sought out new dishes and new ways of preparing familiar ones.

Crime Prevention Tip Of The Week:

If it sounds too good to be true, it probably is.

Always remember:

1. You don't get something for nothing.
2. Never buy any property sight unseen.
3. Be wary of home repair bargains.
4. Be alert when you shop by mail.
5. Don't trust strangers who offer you instant cash.
6. Don't give your credit card number to anyone who solicits you by phone.
7. If you think you've been conned, report it to the police.

MOST Trip

The Math Organization for Students will tour the Surry Nuclear Power facility Feb. 19. Students will meet in Jones lobby at 1 p.m. Interested persons should contact Allison Powell at ext. 14167 by Feb. 10. Participants must be 18. Space is limited to 15.

A Summer With CARE In Bangladesh

By Danielle C. Sepulveda

The early morning sun had barely edged over the horizon and already Fatema was in the fields. Fourteen women toiled beside her, each armed only with a woven basket and an iron hoe. Together they had laid 15 miles of earthen roads, created to transport jackfruit, peppers, and rice from Rajnagar to Dhaka. Two years ago, Fatema's husband abandoned her and their five children. As a destitute woman in a Muslim society, she had found herself immersed in poverty, poor health and subservience. Today, after participating in CARE's Rural Maintenance Project, she earns 20 taka per day and has 7,000 taka in her savings account. More valuable than the income, however, is the impact this project has had on her self-esteem.

I met Fatema in Bangladesh during the summer of 1992. An international scholarship enabled me to spend six weeks in Jessore and the surrounding districts. During this time, I observed many kinds of women's development assistance—from immunization clinics and nutrition workshops to food-for-work projects and refugee relief efforts. Beyond the widespread poverty and abject living conditions, gender inequalities confronted me as the most disturbing reality of village life. When I watched timid Muslim women shrink within their sharees, or listened to mothers recount stories of condolence gifts after giving birth to a girl, I realized that improving the country's health care system, curbing population growth, and redefining progress in environmental terms must coincide with efforts aimed at improving the status of women. While gender bias is a worldwide condition that afflicts every social institution from the family to bureaucracy, it is especially pernicious in the Third World. Development efforts that suppress the productive potential of women are also efforts that limit the potential of communities and nations. Therefore, integrating women into the development process is more than an issue of benevolence; it is a complex technical and analytical problem whose solution is critical to the success of any comprehensive development strategy.

Standing knee deep in water in the village of Kamul Pur as the monsoon rains came down in late June, I watched an elderly man struggle to move his rickshaw over the flooded, muddy roads. I gazed out at the merciless torrents and realized that the Western way of life did little to prepare one for this brand of human existence. Suddenly, the full weight of their affliction struck me, and I was overwhelmed by an awesome feeling of powerlessness. At that moment, I was also filled with a desire to lead the fight for the world's powerless in their struggle to achieve social and economic well-being. Since my stay in Bangladesh, this desire has only grown.

formed by groups of blacks and whites, and that religious exercises were held together by blacks and whites in churches that later became white Baptist and white Methodist congregations," said Sobel.

"Later, in the late 18th and in the 19th centuries," explains Sobel, "the classic setting of blacks sitting apart from whites was more the norm, but, in the earlier churches, baptisms, singing and religious experiences were shared. There were blacks and whites preaching to both blacks and whites; they were 'falling down' in rapture together. That is a part of history that has been essentially lost to view," she says.

"It is very difficult for a lot of people to believe this really happened and that society changed and both blacks and whites wanted separation for different reasons. ... I am trying to suggest," says Sobel, "that in the early period the interaction was so varied and so constant that there was a very deep impression of African values on American culture. That remained even when societal changes drew blacks and whites apart."

Author of two books, Travelin' On: The Slave Journey to an Afro-Baptist Faith, (Greenwood Press, Westport, Conn., 1979) and The World They Made Together: Black and White Values in Eighteenth-Century Virginia (Princeton University Press, 1988), she is currently working on a study of changes in self-perception and self-projection in America (1700-1865).

Sobel received her doctorate from Boston University and taught there and at Northeastern University before joining the faculty of the University of Haifa in 1969.
