WILLIAM & MARY

A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER FOR FACULTY, STUDENTS AND STAFF

NEWS

VOLUME XXII, NUMBER 21 • WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1993

St. David's Day

Get out your leeks and daffodils. Monday, March 1, is St. David's Day when the patron saint of Wales is honored.

A modest celebration will be convened in the President's Gallery of the Wren Building at 11 a.m. The public is invited to attend.

Frank T. Lendrim, choir director and professor of music, will play Welsh airs on the virginal, a rectangular harpsichord popular in the 16th and 17th centuries.

The historic connection between the College and Wales in the person of Goronwy Owen, the 18th century bard who was master of Natural Philosophy at William and Mary, will also be commemorated in this tercentenary year.

For more details, call Bob Jeffrey at ext. 14084.

Bloodmobile Feb. 26

William and Mary community members are being asked to take part in a blood drive this week, co-sponsored by the Williamsburg Area Chamber of Commerce and Virginia Power.

The Red Cross bloodmobile will be at the Virginia Power activities building, 4059 Ironbound Road, from noon to 6 p.m., Friday, Feb. 26.

Blood donors may call 253-2396 to make an appointment.

March 1 Show To Aid Bosnia

"The Multi-Cultural Celebration Show," which will be presented at 8 p.m. Monday, March 1 in PBK as a Tercentenary event, has been organized by Aziza Baccouche of the Student Association Cultural Affairs Committee. Campus styles through the years and the cultural diversity on campus will be celebrated by fashions and music from many countries of the world.

Tickets are $5 for the general public; $3 for faculty, staff and students. The price of admission includes refreshments in the Dodge Room following the program.

Proceeds from the show will be used for relief efforts in Bosnia.

JMU Singers

The Madison Singers of James Madison University will give a free concert Thursday, Feb. 25 at 7:30 p.m. in the Great Hall of the Wren Building.

Reves Center Series

Toulmin To Speak Monday March 1

Distinguished philosopher and historian of science Stephen Toulmin will offer the second of five Wendy and Emery Reves Lectures on Monday, March 1.

He will address the topic, "The Posture of Modernity: Idealization and Practice in Politics and Science," at 6:30 p.m., March 1 in the Campus Center ballroom. This lecture is open to the general public as well as the campus community.

Toulmin's lecture will extend the argument of Cosmopolis: The Hidden Agenda of Modernity (1991), his widely praised study of the impact of the general European crisis of the early 17th century on Western philosophy and politics. The "quest for certainty" that provided the impetus for Rene Descartes' radical new vision of philosophy, Toulmin argues, had its roots in the looming political conflicts of the era. The solution proffered by Descartes in philosophy, and followed by Galileo and Newton in science and Hobbes in political theory, was a new form of argument, based on abstraction and motivated by a search for universal laws and truth.

A Tercentenary year event, the Reves lecture series is the centerpiece of a 24-month program designed to celebrate the contribution of Emery Reves to world peace. Other activities include faculty workshops, specially commissioned lectures, an international symposium, curriculum review and publications. In his international best-seller, The Anatomy of Peace (1945), Reves criticized post-World War II projects that sought to reconcile world order with the nation-state system. He called for a Copernican revolution in the way men and women view their own nations' relation to the rest of the world.

Edwin Meese

Nadine Strossen

Meese, Strossen To Debate March 3

Former U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese III and Nadine Strossen, president of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) will square off in a debate on a variety of issues at 8 p.m. Wednesday, March 3 in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall as part of the Tercentenary Lecture Series.

This program is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

Meese and Strossen are expected to take up such issues as what curbs on personal expression are appropriate under The Constitution, individual rights vs. community values — what is the correct balance? — and what qualities should President Clinton look for in judicial appointees.

Meese, a Distinguished Fellow at the Heritage Foundation and the Hoover Institution, is the author of a nationally syndicated column. He is also the author of With Reagan, an insiders view.

Meese was chief assistant to Governor Ronald Reagan in California and in 1985 became the nation's 75th Attorney General, a post he held for three and a half years.

In Jan. 1991, the ACLU elected Strossen its first female president in the organization's 71-year history. A dynamic spokeswoman, an astute constitutional scholar with a keen interest in the First Amendment and a strong advocate of involving young people in the process of protecting civil liberties, Strossen helped found a student ACLU chapter at New York Law School where she teaches and more recently at Duke University and the University of Virginia. Strossen has

To: The William and Mary Community

The events leading up to Charter Day—and the ceremony itself—were a spectacular success. William and Mary showed the world what a special place it is.

This great success reflects the quality and the values of our community. Faculty, students, staff and alumni all contributed to a remarkable week that will remain—for all of us—a vivid and happy memory.

I cannot thank personally the hundreds—even thousands—of people who contributed to such a great occasion. I do want each of you to know that what you did was noticed and is deeply appreciated. You have made a critical difference at a critical time in the life of our College. Together we have all written a bright, new chapter in William and Mary's long history.

Thank you.

Most cordially,

Timothy J. Sullivan
President

Donna Haygood Named Outstanding Young Professional

Donna Haygood

Donna Haygood, counseling psychologist with the Counseling Center, has been selected as the Virginia Association of Student Personnel Administrators' Outstanding Young Professional.

The award is given annually to a student affairs professional in the Commonwealth who has less than five years of full-time experience.

Haygood was cited for her commitment to the profession and for the leadership she has given to the issue of sexual assault on the College campus. Her work as sexual assault response coordinator was particularly noted as were her presentations on the subject at the state, regional and national level.

Haygood sees the coordinating aspects of her role as Sexual Assault Response Coordinator of prime importance to students. She is on call 24 hours a day to respond to a victim. This may mean a reassuring voice on the other end of a phone in the middle of the night, and it also means someone who knows the appropriate response.

Haygood's role also includes that of a teacher to inform students of measures to be taken to prevent the risks of being assaulted. More students, she says, are coming forward to talk about problems they have incurred.

Overlapping her duties as Sexual Assault Coordinator is her commitment to students as a counselor at the Counseling Center with training to help them cope with a wide range of problems, some small, some enormous.

A native of Alabama, Haygood received undergraduate and graduate degrees from the University of Alabama. With Jay Chambers, former director of the Counseling Center, and Vice President Sam Sadler as her mentors, Haygood earned a doctorate in 1988.

A dedicated care-giver, Haygood treasures the notes and phone calls she gets from students, often several years after graduation, to remind her that they have not forgotten the time she took to help them or just to update them on their lives.

Three Meeting/Concert Facilities Get Upgraded Video Equipment

Three meeting/concert facilities on campus—Small 113, Rogers 100 and Ewell Recital Hall—have been equipped for large-screen video and computer image projection. Video signals can include videotape players, laser disc players, still-video cameras, photo CD players and video cameras. Students will find it easier to see the images on the large screen than was possible with a video monitor, and instructors will find it easier to convey information to their classes.

Myron Hayslett of Instructional Technology Services monitored the installation. Contractors spent several days installing pipes and wiring, and College electricians ran electrical wires to the sources where needed. Jeff Herrick of Instruction Technology Services finished the project by installing a state-of-the-art sound system in Small. Ewell and Rogers already have sound systems to serve the projectors.

Computer Center Announces Multiterm Menu Changes, New Multiterm Options For Focus/MSO

A new capability for using Focus/MSO became available to Multiterm users on Monday, Feb. 22. The Multiterm menu has a new order of selection lines and a new choice of Focus/MSO. The new MSO selection provides access to Focus/MSO, using the userid entered for Multiterm without signing on to CICS.

Because of the new selections on the Multiterm, the menu does not fit on one screen. It is possible to page through the Multiterm menu using function keys. The PC keys F7 and F8 display the next and previous pages of the menu.

In order to make the Multiterm menu easy for most users, the selection lines have been rearranged. The LOGOFF selection is not the last entry on the menu with this new arrangement. Be sure to watch the descriptions on the Multiterm menu selection lines.

If you encounter problems with the new Focus facility, please report them to the Computer Center Focus coordinator, Tim Callahan.

agreed to meet with Marshall-Wythe School of Law students who have formed a new chapter of the ACLU here.

Although as a youngster she had planned on a "traditional" woman's career like teaching, her involvement in debating and feminist groups while at Radcliffe College sparked an interest in law. She graduated magna cum laude from Harvard Law School in 1975.

The Marshall Papers Receive Cromwell Grant

The William Nelson Cromwell Foundation of New York City has made a grant of $15,000 to "The Papers of John Marshall," an editorial project co-sponsored by the College and the Institute of Early American History and Culture.

The Cromwell Foundation, which sponsors research in early American legal history, has been a generous supporter of the project over the last 10 years, awarding four grants totalling $60,000.

According to Charles F. Hobson, editor of The Marshall Papers, the most recent Cromwell grant will generate an equivalent amount in federal matching funds, which have been offered as part of a major grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Volume Seven of the edition will be published this spring by the University of North Carolina Press. The volume presents Chief Justice Marshall's correspondence, selected judicial opinions and other papers covering the years 1807 through 1813.

The editorial staff, which also includes Laura Gwilliam, editorial associate, and Suzanne Cooper, research assistant, is now preparing Volume Eight (1814-19) for publication. The completed edition will comprise approximately 12 volumes.

Yvonne Shepard lectures to business students.

Marshall Wishnack chats with two students, James Collie and Patty Haines.

Executives Lecture At Business School

Marshall Wishnack, president and CEO of Wheat, First Securities, Inc., and its parent company, WGFS Financial Corporation, and AT&T Puerto Rico President Yvonne Shepard were recent speakers at the School of Business Administration.

Wishnack, a self-described "baby boomer," joined Wheat, First Securities in 1968 as a research analyst. In 1984, he was promoted to president and chief operating officer and in July 1992 was promoted to his present position.

"Wheat, First is a niche player," Wishnack told his audience. "Our Private Client Group is the motherlode of our business and we focus on high net-worth individuals as our market niche." Wheat, First ranks among the top regional investment consulting houses on the basis of performance.

"To succeed in business in a foreign country, it is essential to understand the cultural, political and regulatory environment of that country," said Shepard. "The local relationships and political alignments you develop are so important in positioning your business to succeed. ... You have to demonstrate a commitment to invest in that country."

Shepard also touched on the importance of competition in the marketplace and specifically what happened to AT&T following the 1981 breakup of that company's monopoly.

AT&T stock has nearly doubled in price, long-distance telephone charges have dropped 43 percent and technological advances now offer consumers many more choices of services and products, she said.

Center To Host History Of Science Society Dibner Visiting Historian

David Kohn, director of the graduate program in 19th century studies at Drew University as Robert Fisher Oxnam Professor of Science and Society, will give a public lecture at 5 p.m., Thursday, March 4, in the Botetourt Theatre of Swem Library as part of a three-day visit to campus.

The History of Science Society has selected the Commonwealth Center for the Study of American Culture to host distinguished lecturer Kohn, a participant in the Society's Dibner Visiting Historians of Science Program. He will be on campus March 3 to 5.

During his visit Kohn will also meet with classes and talk with students, faculty members, deans and program directors about the many roles that the history of science can play in the liberal arts curriculum.

Kohn previously served as associate editor of The Correspondence of Charles Darwin, taught in the department of the History of Science at Harvard and edited The Darwinian Heritage, The Corre- spondence of Charles Darwin (vols. 1-3) and Charles Darwin's Notebooks, 1836-1844. Kohn's work combines interest in the relations between science and religion and science and art with a specialty in the early development of Darwin's theory. He is currently writing a book on Darwin and Romanticism, which will address the significance for Darwin of his aesthetic experience of nature during the Beagle voyages.

The Dibner program is designed to bring leading scholars in the history of science to audiences at colleges and universities interested in learning more about this growing discipline. The History of Science Society provides matching support for Kohn's visit from its endowment in memory of Bern Dibner (1897-1988), an eminent historian of science and a distinguished engineer and entrepreneur whose Burndy Corporation revolutionized the electrical connector industry.

Redgrave won Best Actress Award from the New York Film Critics, a Golden Globe Award and an Academy Award nomination for her performance in the title role in the film "Georgy Girl." She also won a Golden Globe nomination for her role in the CBS-TV series "House Calls," and also starred in an ABC series "Chicken Soup."

"Shakespeare for My Father" will be presented at 8 p.m., March 16 in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. Tickets are $25 for the general public; $20 for William and Mary faculty and staff with current IDs; and $15 for W&M students with current IDs and may be reserved by calling ext. 13276 or stopping by Ken Smith's office on the second floor of the Campus Center.

Lynn Redgrave

worlds, but also the poignant dramas of her own life and family. The show is produced by her husband, John Clark, a former child actor in his native England.

"Shakespeare for My Father" is my living memorial to my late father, Sir Michael Redgrave. He was one of our greatest classical actors, particularly in the theatre and was knighted by the Queen.

Charter Week Postscripts

Jane Goodall Meets With Students During Charter Week

Her hosts had planned a welcoming luncheon and a quiet visit with a few students Friday afternoon, Feb. 12, for Jane Goodall, who received an honorary degree at Charter Day ceremonies, but there was a communication breakdown; she was plucked from her hotel lobby as soon as she arrived and whisked to a gathering arranged by the anthropology department.

"At least you didn't have to wait as long as I have had to see some of my chimps in Gombe, Tanzania," where she first began her field studies, said world famous anthropologist Jane Goodall as she responded to the burst of applause which she sees as a way for her to pay back for her years of success.

A slim woman with her grey hair pulled back in a simple pony tail, she wore a black coat, embroidered especially for her with animals of Africa, chino pants and a white sweater with a silver and turquoise necklace.

She spoke quietly, but earnestly, about her life's work with animals. It was not hard to imagine the impact of her persuasive message as she recalled her visit with a duPont executive. He had heard her talk and was going to put the weight of his office behind an inquiry into alternatives to pharmaceutical research with animals.

Although she speaks passionately about her concern for animals, she said that animal rights activists must get their facts correct. She spoke quietly, but earnestly, about her life's work with animals. It was not hard to imagine the impact of her per-

Garden Club Volunteers

Among the many behind-the-scenes workers who helped make the Charter Day celebration a success, were garden club members who assisted floral designer Claude Jones with table arrangements for the Saturday luncheon for the Prince of Wales and 200 guests. In the atrium of the Campus Center, volunteers watched as Jones assembled a prototype of the table arrangements for helpers to duplicate.

Twenty-eight arrangements were made for the luncheon tables. Above Marian Abbutt; Ann Salamonski; Betty Babb; Ann Galloway; Doris Killion; Jane Johnson, president of the Williamsburg Area Council of Garden Clubs and coordinator of volunteers; Jan Price and Betty Taylor are pictured with Jones.

Pulley, associate professor and chairman of the Faculty Affairs committee at the School of Business Administration; and Barbara L. Rambo, executive vice president, Bank of America, and president, School of Business Sponsors, Inc., Board.

William And Mary Theatre Opens 'Twelfth Night' On Thursday

By Jennifer Klein

William and Mary Theatre will present Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," Feb. 25, 26 and 27 at 8:15 p.m., and on Feb. 28 at 2 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

This production, according to director Richard Palmer, was selected from a list that the Student Theater Association provided of plays they would like to put on.

"Besides that," said Palmer, "the play is simple, charming and a lot of fun. A major theme of the play is of puritanism versus revelry. It has some relevance in an age of Jesse Helms. A leitmotif of the play is the celebration of Saturnalia; laughter for the sheer enjoyment of it," said Palmer.

Palmer praised the cast for their skill in handling Shakespeare's verse and preparing the show for the stage.

"My approach to directing has been very hands off," said Palmer. "The cast is rich in comic resources. I give them a lot of latitude and just provide a skeletal framework."

Huntington, who plays Malvolio, says he is approaching the part in a very physical way to show his character's change from a stiff-necked puritan to a frolicking wretch.

"Sir Andrew Aguecheek is the personification of a fifth wheel," says Axtell, who will play the role. "I'm dependent on the other characters. Aguecheek is a puppet; others control his movements."

The scenery is all fabric. Palmer explained that fabric was chosen to emphasize the "otherworldly" quality of Illyria, a land of magic where everyone seems crazy. The simple staging does not distract the audience from the actors.

Palmer promises audiences a play without much directorial tinkering. "This play is meant to be great fun, not profound education."

Patricia Wesp Dressing Actors And Stage

By Jennifer Shaw

Patricia Wesp usually concentrates on dressing actors, but for the William and Mary Theatre production of Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," she is dressing something much larger: the entire main stage of Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

Usually the William and Mary Theatre costume designer, for this production of Shakespeare's enchanted comedy Wesp is trying her hand at the role of scenic designer with her own attitude and personal flair.

In designing the set, Wesp has chosen to stick to a formula she knows well; fabric, lace, paints and dyes have been largely incorporated into the designs to create a translucent, fantastic environment for the characters.

The choice of translucent fabrics over more traditional opaque materials has created some interesting challenges for Wesp and lighting designer Chris Boll, with whom Wesp first worked in 1976 when she did a main stage costume design as a senior theatre major at the College. Now Wesp, as an associate professor, is excited to work with Boll with a different set of design challenges than her usual costume ones. Wesp and Boll are working through the challenges to create a locale and mood of enchantment and madness.

Despite the added workload of creating the main stage scenic design, Wesp is enjoying the change from her ordinary routine immensely, and a sense of the fun she is having is bound to pass through her designs to the audience of "Twelfth Night."

Clockwise from top: Amanda Rogers, Jamie Axtell, Elizabeth Zins and Joseph Whitmore.

Opportunities For Study Abroad

Rotary Scholarship

Students wishing to continue studies abroad for an academic year after graduation should consider applying for the Rotary Foundation Ambassadorial Scholarships.

Delta Omicron Donates To Music For Inner City Children In Washington, D.C.

Delta Omicron music fraternity has made a donation of $1,000 to the Levine School of Music in Washington, D.C.

The money will be used in the Partners and Levine (PAL), a developmental program that enables inner city children to receive intensive private and small group lessons after school, supplemented by concerts, master classes and participation in recitals and juries. The students are chosen from public schools on the basis of their determination and commitment, as well as musical ability. The goal of PAL is to use music to help build pride and self-discipline as well as to provide a positive alternative for inner city children.

This year the program has expanded to 27 students. Over a third of the students have chosen to participate in the school's chamber orchestra and small chamber groups, and many are taking theory classes.

The funds donated by Delta Omicron came from the profits of the Sinfonicon Light Opera Company's successful production of "Yeomen of the Guard" earlier this year. Delta Omicron and Phi Mu Alpha combine the talents of their memberships to form the opera company, which has gained a reputation for lively productions. Although the company does not limit its show selections to Gilbert and Sullivan operettas, its greatest successes have come from operettas, which have included "The Mikado," "Pirates of Penzance" and "H.M.S. Pinafore."

Cudahy Gallery Displays Giles Paintings

Currently on exhibit at the Cudahy Gallery in Richmond is the work of Anderson Giles '71, professor of art at the University of Maine at Presque Isle.

Much of Giles' recent painting work is influenced by his ongoing documentary work on the Pacific Islands of Saipan and Tinian in the Mariana Islands.

Giles is also working on a documentary film studying the World War II era on these islands. Both his father and uncle participated in actions on these islands in World War II.

In addition to the personal aspects of his interest in the South Pacific, Giles is also intrigued by the parallels with the Inca and Aztec constructions that now only exist as ruins, as do the wartime constructions built by U.S. forces and earlier by the Japanese.

Last fall Giles was invited to design artwork for "The House That Portfolio Built," a project developed by Virginia Natural Gas Co. and Portfolio magazine.

Over the last 10 years, Giles has held 15 one-man shows, participated in numerous group shows and has judged several important art shows. He has won more than 50 awards for his work and has been involved in numerous group and solo exhibitions, ranging from the East Coast to California and also Europe. After leaving William and Mary, Giles studied at the New York Institute of Photography and received a Master in Fine Arts degree from East Carolina University School of Art.

Jane Goodall Visits During Charter Week

straight and give credit to laboratories that have made improvements. You can't just be angry, she said, you have to be rational and believe that some of the acts of cruelty are being done by people who do not understand their impact. But, she admitted, being charitable was tough.

In research on AIDS and hepatitis, Goodall said there was no consensus in the medical field about the importance of using chimpanzees. "I don't think they should ethically use them," she said, and added that medical research may also be inflicting inhumane treatment on terminally ill patients, which needs looking into.

On the subject of zoos, specifically for chimpanzees, Goodall said that she believes chimpanzees who are allowed to live in communities in large enclosures probably live more pleasant lives than some in the wild, who are prey to hunters and poachers.

Although she graciously answered all the questions posed to her, it was obvious that Goodall's current passion is "Roots and Shoots." "It is worth it," she tells youngsters, "to bring one extra smile, one extra wag to a dog's tail and ask yourself the question when you wake up: 'Am I going to make the world a better place or won't I bother?'"

Just back from East Berlin, Goodall is recruiting children in Poland and other countries of the former Eastern Bloc. She said she also has a passion for pigs and has a book about them in the works.

Virginia Credit Union Offers Many Services

The Virginia Credit Union offers a variety of services to members. Credit Unions are America's only not-for-profit, member-owned financial institutions. Members share the money-saving benefits. Every member has a say in their Credit Union through the elected, volunteer board of directors.

Buying a House—If you're like most people, buying a home may be the biggest deal you'll make. It is, therefore, financially smart to shop for the lowest mortgage rate available. Over the years a lower-rate loan adds up to big savings. Call 804-323-6000 or toll free 1-800-285-5051.

Home Equity Loan—A valuable source of credit may be the equity in your home. The interest rate on an equity line is usually lower than on most types of loans. Rates are especially low at Virginia Credit Union. This type of loan offers possible tax advantages, so consult your tax adviser. For information call 804-323-6000 or toll free 1-800-285-5051.

Car Loans—For an application and current rates on car loans, call 804-323-6800 or toll free 1-800-285-6609 or visit a branch. For bargaining power with the dealer, ask a credit union representative about Computerized Auto Pricing. With this program you get the manufacturer's list price and suggested retail price of the vehicle of your choice. Finance with VACU and you get one free printout. Also ask about a preapproved loan. It too, helps drive a better bargain with the dealer. Repayment of your credit union loan is easier with payroll deduction. Another payment option is an automatic transfer from your credit union checking or savings account. Call 804-323-6800 or toll free 1-800-285-6609 or visit a branch.

Lifetime Benefits—The Credit Union offers members lifetime benefits. If members move, change jobs or retire, they don't have to give up credit union benefits. They simply keep their accounts active. VACU services are offered nationwide through toll-free phone numbers. For information call 804-323-6800 or toll free 1-800-285-6609.

Family Membership—When you are a member of the Virginia Credit Union your family can join also. Members often open accounts for children as soon as the children have social security numbers. Parents often make paying for college easier by automatically putting money in their child's account each payday. Call 804-323-6800 or toll-free 1-800-285-6609.

Automatic Deposit—In a survey Virginia Credit Union members voted automatic deposit of their paycheck a favorite service. This is an easy and safe way to deposit your paycheck, social security or retirement check.

Interest-Bearing Account—Make your automatic deposit to an interest-bearing account and you immediately earn interest. You end unnecessary worries of mail delays and lost and stolen paychecks. Another option is the automatic transfer program. Sign up and make loan payments and transfers to any credit union account from checking or savings. Choose the 5th and/or the 20th of the month as transfer dates. For information call 804-323-6800 or toll free 1-800-285-6609.

Paying Bills—Writing checks for several monthly bills can be time-consuming. Each payment requires a separate check or money order, envelope, stamp or a visit to your creditor. Make life easier and save money with a bill consolidation loan from VACU. Call 804-323-6800 or toll free 1-800-285-6609 (V/TDD also available).

Credit Line—With a preapproved line of credit, Virginia Credit Union members have money available for whatever they need. A line of credit offers one of the lowest loan rates available. You pay interest on the money only when you use it. Call 804-323-6800 or toll free 1-800-285-6609. (V/TDD available).

Traveling Branch—It is easy to open new accounts and have loans processed at the VACU Traveling Branch. The branch is in Williamsburg the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. in the lobby of the Administration Building, Eastern State Hospital. Also make deposits (checks), transfers and savings withdrawals by check or money order. For security reasons VACU cannot accept or issue cash at Traveling Branch locations. (Travelers checks, counter checks, cashier's checks or theme park tickets are not available through the Traveling Branch.) Call 1-800-285-6609.
