A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER FOR FACULTY, STUDENTS AND STAFF

NEWS

VOLUME XXII, NUMBER 32 • WEDNESDAY, MAY 19, 1993

Daves To Address 'Friends of Wales'

Dr. Hywel Daves of the University of Wales will speak to "Friends of Wales" in the Friends room of Swem Library from 3:30 to 5 p.m., Monday, May 24. The title of his talk is "The Welsh Muse Transported to America." The public is invited to attend and Welsh tea will be served.

REMINDERS

Annual Faculty Meeting Scheduled for September

Dear Colleagues:

The annual Collegewide faculty meeting will be held on Thursday, Sept. 9, at 3:30 p.m. in Millington Auditorium.

Our new Rector, James W. Brinkley, will bring words of welcome. It will also provide an opportunity for our new Provost, Gillian Cell, to speak to the assembled faculties. I will offer some thoughts about critical issues facing our College over the next few years. The Board of Visitors will be meeting at this time, and I expect many of them will attend as well.

I will provide further details about the meeting in August. In the meantime, I hope you will mark your calendars for this important event.

Most cordially,
Timothy J. Sullivan
President

Surplus Equipment Auction Tomorrow

The College and Eastern State Hospital will conduct an auction of surplus equipment tomorrow.

Some of the surplus equipment to be auctioned are miscellaneous office items, commercial equipment, bikes and a mixture of other items.

Viewing for the auction will be from 8 to 9 a.m.

If you would like additional information about the auction, call Property Control at ext. 12052.

Honorary degree recipients William Styron and Bill Cosby share a light moment at Commencement Sunday in Zable Stadium.

1,845 Graduate At Tercentenary Commencement

More than 15,000 people—including 1,845 graduates—packed Walter J. Zable Stadium on Sunday to witness one of the more entertaining commencement ceremonies in recent history.

Comedian Bill Cosby delivered a whimsical 18-minute address that combined one-liners with pointed advice.

"And so today is your day. Pressure like never before. The cards are in your hand and you've got to show them. You've got to get a job," Cosby said.

Cosby urged the 1,273 undergraduates and nearly 600 advanced degree recipients to recognize the empowerment that their education has provided them, and to understand the importance of dignity to their success.

"Focus on dignity," he said, "Give it to yourself. Take the word dignity and place it in the middle of your sternum and let it spread throughout your body. From dignity comes respect, automatically. From dignity comes honesty and awareness."

Cosby warned graduates of the dan-

Thatcher Selected As 21st Chancellor

Lady Margaret Thatcher

Margaret Thatcher, former prime minister of Great Britain, has been elected by the College of William and Mary Board of Visitors to serve as the 21st Chancellor of the College. The announcement was made Saturday in a brief ceremony in the Sir Christopher Wren Building's Blue Room.

Lady Thatcher will succeed Warren E. Burger, retired Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, who will conclude his seven-year term in the ceremonial post on June 30, 1993. Lady Thatcher's term begins July 1, and she will be installed formally during the 1993-94 academic year.

"It is truly fitting to have as the College's next chancellor an international leader like Lady Thatcher who has had a dramatic impact on the course of world events," said President Timothy

Thatcher Appointment Announced

J. Sullivan. "Her selection is in the tradition of chancellors like George Washington and Warren Burger, each of whom has left a mark on the College and on the world. Without question, Lady Thatcher is one of the most important figures of the 20th century."

At the announcement, Burger echoed Sullivan's sentiments.

"I think it's one of the great steps in the history of the College," Burger said. "This woman is one of the remarkable statesmen of the 20th century. I don't know that she is fully appreciated yet."

Although she was not able to attend the announcement, Lady Thatcher wrote to Sullivan that, "I am both honoured and delighted to accept the invitation to become the 21st Chancellor of The College of William and Mary in Virginia. I very much look forward to being with you and seeing the work of this historic university."

The appointment marks the first time a woman has served as William and Mary's chancellor and the first time a British subject has held the post since the American Revolution. During the pre-Revolutionary period, the chancellorship was held alternately by the Bishop of London and the Archbishop of Canterbury as the College's representatives to the crown. The first American chancellor was George Washington, who served from 1788 until his death in 1799.

In its resolution, the board of visitors said Lady Thatcher has "demonstrated by her distinguished service to her nation and humanity as Prime Minister, and by the esteem in which she is held by the nations of the world, that she is qualified in every respect" to serve as chancellor.

Hays T. Watkins, rector of the College, said Lady Thatcher's selection is an example of the increasingly international focus at the College.

"Our students will one day become leaders in their fields and will be faced with the growing importance of looking at problems from a global perspective. Lady Thatcher has that perspective," Watkins said.

Lady Thatcher became Britain's first woman Prime Minister on May 4, 1979, following the success of the Conservative Party. When the Conservative Party subsequently won the general elections in 1983 and 1987, she became the first Prime Minister this century to contest successfully three consecutive general elections. She resigned as prime minister on Nov. 28, 1990.

In Dec. 1990, she was awarded the Order of Merit by Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth. On June 30, 1992, she was elevated to the House of Lords to become Baroness Thatcher of Kesteven.

Margaret Thatcher was born Oct. 13, 1925, the daughter of a grocer who was active in local politics as borough councillor, alderman and mayor of Grantham. She was educated at Kesteven and Grantham Girls' High School, and won a bursary or scholarship to Somerville College, Oxford, where she obtained a degree in natural science. She is also a master of arts of Oxford University. In June 1983, she was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society.

On leaving Oxford, she worked for four years as a research chemist for an industrial firm, reading for the Bar in her spare time. She was called to the Bar by Lincoln's Inn in 1954, and practiced as a barrister, specializing in taxation law.

Lady Thatcher was first elected to the House of Commons in 1959. Her first ministerial appointment came in 1961, when she became a parliamentary secretary. She became a front-bench spokesman for the Conservative Party in 1964 and was appointed secretary of state for education and science and a privy councillor after the Conservatives returned to office in 1970.

She became leader of the Conservative Party in 1975.

Fascell Fellowship Program For 1994-95

The Department of State has announced the 1994-95 Fascell Fellowship Program. This program awards a limited number of one-year fellowship opportunities to undergraduate and graduate students, or others who have expertise in language and/or area studies in Eastern Europe, Germany or Russia.

Deadline for receipt of applications is July 5.

For information, call the Office of Career Services, ext. 13231.

Sandler To Speak May 25

"The Classroom Climate: A Chilly One For Women," will be the topic of a lecture by Bernice Sandler at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 25, in rooms A and B of the Campus Center. The lecture is free and open to the campus community.

Edward Earl Jones

A funeral was held Sunday at Bruton Parish Church for Edward Earl "Ed" Jones, former associate professor of kinesiology, who died May 13 at the age of 58.

Jones, former baseball coach and alumnus of the College (class of '57), was inducted into the William and Mary Athletic Hall of Fame in April.

In eight seasons as head coach, Jones collected the most wins ever in William and Mary baseball history with 122 victories. According to local papers, it was Jones who "produced a rags-to-riches saga with the William and Mary baseball team."

In coaching the team to 20 consecutive winning seasons, Jones helped the Indians to a school record-setting 24-15 record and its only NCAA playoff appearance, back in 1983. A tireless, selfless worker, Jones personally laid the azure grass on the baseball field on his hands and knees. Similarly, he was responsible for construction of the racquetball courts in old Blow gymnasium.

The athletic department recently established an endowment totaling more than $50,000 honoring Jones. The scholarship will be awarded annually, with first preference to a kinesiology major.

Jones directed the intramural program and amassed more than 30 years of service with the College. At the 1980 commencement, Jones received the Algernon Sydney Sullivan Award, a medallion in "recognition of influence for good, taking into consideration such characteristics of heart, mind and conduct as evince a spirit of love and helpfulness to other men and women."

In his undergraduate days, Jones played fullback for the College and was catcher for the baseball team.

Jones is a native of Lee Hall and a Williamsburg resident for most of his life. He served in the Marine reserves for 20 years, attaining the rank of major. He is survived by his wife, Anne Callis Jones; two sons, Mark A. Jones of Chicago and Michael A. Jones of Williamsburg; a brother, A. Gilbert Jones of Portsmouth; and two grandsons.

Contributions may be made to the Ed Jones Endowment Fund, P.O. Box 399, Williamsburg, 23187.

Virginia Galliford Spong

Virginia Galliford Spong, wife of William B. Spong Jr., member of the Board of Visitors, professor emeritus of law and former dean of the law school, died May 15 at the age of 67.

A native of San Diego and former Williamsburg resident, Spong was a former social worker with the Portsmouth Social Services Bureau.

She was a graduate of Cornell University and studied urban planning at the University of London and the University of Virginia.

A member of the Garden Club of Virginia, she had been active with the Williamsburg Garden Club and the Elizabeth River Garden Club.

Mrs. Spong was also a member of Court Street Baptist Church in Portsmouth.

She is survived by her husband, William B. Spong Jr., also former U.S. Senator from 1966 to 1973; a daughter, Martha Spong Bauer of Portland, Maine; a son, Thomas Nichols Spong of Williamsburg; a brother, Walter T. Galliford of Virginia Beach; and three grandchildren.

A graveside service will be held Wednesday in Oak Grove Cemetery in Portsmouth.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Children's Museum of Virginia, 420 High St., Portsmouth, VA 23704.

Beamans Honored For Volunteer Contributions

Don and Barbara Beaman, volunteers extraordinaire, were among those feted recently by University Advancement for their many contributions to the College.

At a reception held on the back portico of the Wren Building, the Beamans were presented with a Tercentenary poster by Vice President for Advancement Ed Allenby.

Barbara Beaman has been coordinator of the volunteer program of the Christopher Wren Association, which has welcomed more than 13,000 visitors at the information center at the Wren Building. CWA volunteers will continue to staff the information center throughout the tercentenary.

Several members at the reception also remember Barbara Beaman as an interpreter and master teacher for the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation.

Don Beaman started working at the College in the spring of 1983 as a research assistant for development. Beaman did such a good job that, when an opening became available, he was hired as a part-time staff member.

Mr. and Mrs. Beaman have sold their home in Williamsburg and are returning to Texas, where they began their married life and have many family ties.

Graduating From William And Mary Is Tradition For Prueher Family

By Peggy Shaw
University Relations

When Brooks Prueher decided to attend William and Mary four years ago, it was not a difficult decision. It was a family tradition.

Brooks, who graduated with the tercentenary class this Sunday, followed in the footsteps of her mother, Suzanne Prueher '68, and her grandmother, Anne Pearce '40, when she decided to spend her college years at William and Mary.

When, exactly, this decision came about, Brooks is not certain. It could have been during one of the many green and gold homecomings that she attended at William and Mary when she was a little girl, or while being lulled to sleep at nap time by her grandmother's recollections of dramatic club plays and Saturday night dances in the gym.

"My grandmother told me stories about writing freshman papers and how once on an English test the professor called her in and told her she'd gotten a 99 only because he didn't give 100s. She was very proud of that," said Brooks, a 21-year-old history major from San Diego.

Her grandmother, Anne, who lives in Virginia Beach, described her college years as "absolutely marvelous." Anne fondly recalls living in Brown Hall, going on debate team trips and "learning to love learning," as she once wrote in a reunion booklet.

Brooks Prueher

"William and Mary has greatly enriched our lives," she said. "The sense of history that one gets from William and Mary and Williamsburg stays with you. People you meet there endure in your life and are very important."

In her 1940 Colonial Echo yearbook picture, Anne Pearce is a determined-looking young woman with long dark hair. The photograph evokes images of her daughter, Suzanne, who would graduate in 1968, and her granddaughter, Brooks, class of 1993.

The three women also led similar lives at William and Mary. Each was a scholar, and all were active leaders on campus.

Anne won the Most Outstanding Freshman award and became Mortar Board historian, president of the Executive Council of Women's Student Government and a member of Phi Beta Kappa, the premier academic honor society in America. Suzanne, a member of William and Mary's 25th reunion class this year, left her mark as a freshman cheerleader, a President's Aide and member of the Women's Honor Council. Brooks has been a member of the Honor Council, the Student Liaison Council and also a President's Aide.

"It gives me an awfully good feeling of tradition, of continuance and some security, too," said Suzanne about her daughter's decision to attend her alma mater and join the same sorority. "And with all her moves, that's something Brooks has not had a lot of in her life. William and Mary has been a part of home."

In fact, Brooks considers the College her second home—a place to return to year after year to renew friendships and strengthen family ties. "I really feel at home and connected to the school," said the senior who is already active in the Young Guard Council, a group composed of alumni from the five most recent classes.

Next fall, Brooks will move to Charlottesville to study urban planning and historic preservation at the University of Virginia.

"I love the idea that Suzanne and Brooks chose William and Mary," Anne said. "It brings a great feeling of continuity among the generations.

"William and Mary has been good to the three of us."

Hammond, Powell, Ostertag Win Awards

Maude Lee Etheredge Fellowship

Jennifer Jo Hammond has been awarded the $3,000 Maude Lee Etheredge Fellowship given by Alpha Lambda Delta academic honor society for freshmen.

This is one of 15 fellowships awarded annually by Alpha Lambda Delta to members for graduate study. Hammond will pursue a master's degree in history/museum studies this fall.

The fellowship is named after a former head of the Women's Health Service at the University of Illinois. A colleague and close friend of the founder of Alpha Lambda Delta, Maria Leonard, Dr. Etheredge was an honorary Alpha Lambda Delta member and several years ago wrote the story of her life. She died in 1983 at her home in California at the age of 96.

Cecil M. McCulley Humanities Award

Bonnie Lynn Powell, the Tercentenary Scholarship winner, has been awarded the Cecil M. McCulley Humanities Award for 1992-93. The award, established by the Alpha of Virginia chapter of Phi Beta Kappa to honor the late Professor McCulley, a longtime member of the English department and drama critic for the Virginia Gazette, goes annually to a student who has demonstrated dedication and excellence in any area of the humanities.

Powell received her award, which carries a stipend of $250, at Phi Beta Kappa's spring celebration on May 14.

Awards in Women's Studies

Jason Jones and Genny Ostertag have been awarded the Dean's Prize in Women's Studies. This award includes a stipend of $100.

Prizes are awarded for work completed during the current school year, which is judged by the selection committee as most successful in advancing the community's knowledge of women. Students may submit term papers or other class assignments, independent study projects, honors or thesis research.

Class Of '43 Presents Gift To College

Robert Faulconer '43, chair of the 50th Reunion Committee, presents a check for $128,657 to President Timothy J. Sullivan Saturday of Commencement weekend.

Society of the Alumni Presents Student Literary And Science Awards

Seven students were recognized by the Society of the Alumni as this year's winners of the Student Literary and Science Awards. The awards were given April 8 at a reception hosted by the Society's board of directors and staff members. Winners of the science awards were recognized for their undergraduate research work in biology, chemistry, physics and geology, and literary awards were presented in conjunction with the annual Patrick Hayes Writers Festival at the College.

Each winner received a $100 check.

Recipients of the four science awards included: William Ridgely Hall '93, Gloucester, physics; Brian Kipp '93 of Bradfordwoods, Pa., chemistry; Andrew Stefaniak '93 of Prince George, geology; and Catherine Malooly '93 of Green Bay, Wis., biology.

Literary award winners were: Adrien Ardoin '93 of New Orleans, La., Academy of American Poets; Hope W. Johnson '95 of Vienna, Tiberius Gracchus Jones Prize; Bonnie Powell '93 of Arlington, G. Glenwood Clark Fiction Prize; and Andrew Zawacki '94 of Warren, Pa., Goronwy Owens Poetry Prize. In addition, Karen Hardcastle '93, Columbia, Md., was awarded the Howard Scammon Drama Prize.

Art Work By 1993 Graduates Added To President's Collection

Tercentenary Commencement Weekend – May 15-16 1993

Baccalaureate Service Held Saturday

At left, the baccalaureate speaker, the Rt. Rev. John M. Allin, former presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church, told his audience to remember three alliterations: appreciation, analysis and action; reason, responsibility and relationships; and grace, God and glory.

A jovial visitor to campus, Bishop Allin opened his talk by putting himself at the bottom of the roster of suggested speakers. He said that since the bishop of London, the archbishop of Canterbury and the bishop of Virginia had declined, he had been summoned.

Allin was elected to a 12-year term as the 23rd presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church in 1973. He is now chaplain of Christ Memorial Chapel in Hobe Sound, Fla.

MCI Executive Addresses Business Graduates

Daniel F. Akerson, president and chief operating officer of MCI Communications Corporation and member of MCI's Board of Directors, was the guest speaker at the School of Business Diploma Presentation Ceremony held in the Wren front yard. He spoke to the graduating class about change, and encouraged the graduates to rise to the challenges that this ongoing worldwide change presents.

At left, the MBA Alumni Association celebrated graduation and welcomed the class of '93 at a Graduation Day Brunch. Graduates, families, and friends gathered on the lawn between Tyler and James Blair Hall for this annual event.

President Sullivan Honored At ROTC Commissioning Ceremony In PBK

Sullivan recalled that when he received his commission 24 years ago, "it was the greatest honor of my life. I could not foresee my future as you cannot foresee yours, but the privilege of serving as an officer in the U.S. Army and standing in a long line of soldiers going back 200 years, who were prepared to defend, with their lives, if necessary, the values, traditions and virtues of our country is a privilege like none other I have ever had and none that I can ever have ... and since taking off that uniform, the pride still remains and also the important lessons I learned as an Army officer. I share with you what I am sure you will always consider one of the special days of your life."

Jouett L. Powell, dean of art and sciences at Christopher Newport University was the main speaker at the ROTC commissioning ceremony held Saturday morning in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. He gave incoming officers a short list of suggestions to help them in their commands: keep an open mind to change; focus on the quality of your product whether it is loading bombs or moving food; have a vision of mission and be able to communicate that vision; be committed yourself; foster shared roles; be ethical, open and honest; create an atmosphere of trust and candor; empower others.

ger of complacency and advised them to take chances.

"Stop sitting around people who are stroking you and making you feel good so you can do nothing. You're worth more than that. ... It is time for you now to do something crazy. Go ahead—challenge yourself," he said.

Although stressing the need for students to find employment, Cosby said he recognized that many students will likely put off getting a job.

"Some of you found graduate school as a place to hide," he said, sparking cheers and laughter from many in the audience. "But all of us old people know that sooner or later, you've got to come out of there. You've got to come out of that hole."

Referring to the inevitable solicitations for money that graduates will receive, Cosby warned graduates that their days of giving to the College are just beginning: "Send money to your school. Even if it's a dollar. They'll know you have a job."

Cosby Receives Honorary Master's

Following his speech, Cosby received an honorary master of arts degree. Cosby, a native of Philadelphia, specifically requested the honorary master's degree because it is the same type which Benjamin Franklin received from William and Mary in 1756.

Cosby's humor was infectious. Rector Hays T. Watkins, when presenting the honorary diploma to the television star, ended his presentation with, "I hereby confer upon you the degree of master of arts, honoris Cosby" instead of the traditional honoris causa.

Cosby responded with, "I'm outta here."

Throughout the ceremony, Cosby often paid homage to the graduates and the award recipients, standing up frequently to congratulate various persons who walked on stage, and helping to collect certificates blown around by the brisk wind.

Although the strong breeze prevailed, the temperature rose to the upper 80s. Several persons were treated by medical personnel for heat exhaustion and lines for water were also swamped.

President Timothy J. Sullivan served as master of ceremonies for the afternoon ceremony, acknowledging new graduates in the various degree programs and commending the class of 1993 for pledging more than $110,000 to the College.

As their senior class gift, 480 seniors contributed to a fund to create the Crim Dell walkway. "Your gift will be a very visible reminder of your affection for William and Mary and it is one we will all greatly enjoy," Sullivan said.

Reflecting on his first year as president, Sullivan told graduates of his honor to serve as their president. The text of these remarks appears on page 6.

In addition to Cosby, the College conferred an honorary doctor of laws degree to former College Rector Herbert V. Kelly and a doctor of humane letters degree to William Styron.

Kelly, who has both a bachelor's and law degree from the College, has served as a member of the Commonwealth Transportation Board, the Virginia Independent Development Services Advisory Board, the Virginia State Bar Council and the Governor's Commission on Efficiency in Government. He currently serves as chairman of the board of Riverside Regional Medical Center.

Long admired for his mastery of prose, his brilliance in evoking character and for narrative drive, Styron has won the Pulitzer Prize, the American Book Award, and the Legion of Honor. One of his most famous books, Darkness Visible, stands as moving memoir of the anguish and despair of Styron's own personal struggle with clinical depression.

Members Of College Community Honored

Sullivan also awarded four prizes and awards to members of the College community.

Francis Joseph Probst III received the Lord Botetourt Medal. Established in 1773 by Norborne Berkeley, Baron De Botetourt, governor of Virginia, the award is given to the student who has attained the greatest distinction in scholarship.

A double major in biology and chemistry, Probst graduated with highest honors in biology and has also been awarded the Guy Prize in chemistry, the highest award that department bestows on an undergraduate. A member of Phi Beta Kappa, Probst was recently named a recipient of the prestigious Medical Scientist Training Fellowship from the National Institutes of Health. He will use the award to pursue a combined M.D. and Ph.D. at the University of Michigan.

The James Frederic Carr Memorial Cup was awarded to Danielle Cristina Sepulveda. Established in honor of James Frederic Carr, who entered William and Mary in 1914 and lost his life in World War I before finishing, the cup is awarded to the graduating senior student "who best combines the qualities of character, scholarship and leadership."

A recipient of a prestigious Marshall Scholarship that she will use next year to study at Cambridge University, Sepulveda was named a Beinecke Scholar at the end of her junior year and this year was named a USA Today Academic All American. A sociology major and member of Phi Beta Kappa, Sepulveda competed on the varsity track and cross country team. She was selected for All-Eastern honors in outdoor track and was a member of two record-setting relay teams.

Three Algernon Sydney Sullivan awards were given to graduating students Anne Michele Turner and Stephen Baldwin Watts, and Joseph S. Agee, professor emeritus of kinesiology.

In selection of recipients, "nothing is considered except the possession of characteristics of heart, mind, and conduct as evince a spirit of love for and helpfulness to others."

For three years, Turner has tutored area youngsters through the College Partnership for Kids, has been active in the Alpha Chi Omega Service Fraternity, has chaired the William and Mary Hunger Task Force, and has worked at the Women's Shelter in Williamsburg. A Renick Scholar, she majored in both English and religion. Turner is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Mortar Board and Omicron Delta Kappa and graduated with high honors in English.

Watts chaired the Hunger Task Force, worked in the William and Mary Recywas the varsity baseball coach and the coach of the men's varsity gold team for nearly 30 years. After 34 years, Agee retired from teaching last spring. He is currently active in Williamsburg's annual "Toys for Tots" campaign, the Kiwanis Club and the Order of the White Jacket.

The Thomas Ashley Graves Jr. award was bestowed on David L. Holmes Jr., professor of religion. Named in honor of the former College president who retired in 1985 after almost 14 years of service, the award has been established to recognize sustained excellence in teaching.

One of the country's most distinguished historians of religion in colonial America and perhaps its most distinguished historian of the Episcopal Church, Holmes is the author of three books, numerous articles and reviews, and is associate editor of the scholarly journal, Anglican and Episcopal History. He has regularly mentored students in pursuit of competitive national scholarships and provided invaluable aid to Earl Gregg Swem Library in its attempt to build a distinguished collection in Americana.

Outgoing Chancellor of the College and former Supreme Court Justice Warren E. Burger also reflected on his tenure and commented on the distinction of incoming Chancellor Lady Margaret Thatcher will bring to the ceremonial office.

Following student remarks from James H. Wildman, Jr. and the conferral of degrees, the ceremony concluded with the passing of the symbolic chain of office to Pete Snyder, the president of the class of 1994.

Law Degree Bicentennial

In addition to the graduation of the College's "Tercentenary Class," this year marks the 200th anniversary of the first bachelor of law degree in the United States.

In 1793, William and Mary awarded the degree to William H. Cabell, a Cumberland County native who went on to become governor of Virginia at the age of 33. After serving three years as governor, Cabell became a General Court judge, and then served the longest term ever held as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Appeals. He died at the age of 81 in 1853.

Following the main commencement ceremony, the Marshall-Wythe School of Law recognized this milestone by awarding a replica of the 1793 degree to Roy E. Cabell Jr., on behalf of all descendants of William H. Cabell.

Roy Cabell is founder and the secretary of the Robert G. Cabell III and Maude Morgan Cabell Foundation, which has been a benefactor of the College and the law school. Robert G. Cabell was the great-grandson of William H. Cabell.

cling Organization and has served this year as the assistant director of Help Unlimited, helping to organize and coordinate student volunteer service in the Williamsburg area. He has been a member of the Williamsburg Youth Task Force and worked last summer with Housing Partnerships, the community agency that improves substandard housing in the area. A double concentrator in English and government, he is a member of Mortar Board and Omicron Delta Kappa and the recipient of highest honors in government.

A 1952 graduate of the College, Agee also holds a graduate degree from the College. He began teaching and coaching at his alma mater in 1958, first serving as coach of freshman basketball. He

Excerpt from President's Remarks

We have now nearly reached the end—not the end of this ceremony only—but an important chapter in your lives. For me—and I know for you—this is a moment of strong emotions, filled with powerful memories and those rich fragments of feeling, which taken together, form the bond that makes us all proud members of this community.

For most of you, today marks your first passage into the company of educated men and women; for others, who have earned advanced degrees, this day moves you closer to attaining important professional goals by which you have chosen to measure personal success.

What will we remember when we think of this year? Of one thing I am quite certain, none of us will ever forget the extraordinary experience of having seen and celebrated William and Mary's tercentenary. Together we were there for that magnificent moment in William and Mary Hall on Charter Day with The Prince of Wales, or for that more intimate, but no less moving ceremony on the steps of the Wren Building, which opened Charter Week—or the King and Queen's ball when nearly 1,200 of us danced for hours and then under a soggy tent sang the Alma Mater as it had not been sung before, while we all sank slowly but cheerfully in the deepening mud.

These are the memories which we share; each of you has private memories which are yours alone: of quiet walks on this beautiful campus, of friends whose love for you, and yours for them, is so intense that it makes you ache to think of it and is so strong that it will warm you still in the dim distance of old age. Of teachers who asked for your best, who prodded, who challenged, who laughed with you but never at you, who did you the greatest honor of not flattering second-class work with first-class compliments, who cared for you not just as able intellects but as whole men and women with the capacity, indeed the duty, to use your talents in a cause far larger than yourselves—in the cause of mankind.

As a new president, I began in the year you finished—and I owe you more than you will ever know. In a thousand ways, and in 10,000 encounters, your decency, your exuberance, your faith in me and your love of our College, helped me see as I had not seen what a profound privilege it is to be William and Mary's 25th president.

As you prepare to leave us today, surely you must know that you can never really leave. A part of you remains, and always will. What you leave is not a history of heroic acts or of fabulous deeds, but rather the gift of yourselves, complete, unique and pure. The long shadow of that gift will be hard to see, but it is very real, for it has touched our hearts and changed our lives, and will continue so to do for as long as there is a College of William and Mary and a company of friends like you, united by memories of your time together in this special place, when all of you were young and beautiful and full of hope.

Godspeed and good luck.
