Conference On Mental Health Begins Today

Mental health professionals from around the world will meet at the College today through Saturday to discuss the prevention of mental illness and the promotion of mental health.

The Fourth Biennial Conference on Community Research and Action, co-sponsored by the College and the Virginia Department of Mental Health, Mental Retardation and Substance Abuse Services, will be a true conversation between mental health researchers and front-line practitioners, according to conference organizer Joseph Galano, associate professor of psychology.

The conference focuses on what Galano calls the prevention perspective.

"Rather than passively accept the onset of problems as inevitable, psychologists would better use their talents proactively to prevent mental illness, violence and substance abuse and to promote mental health," he said. "In many areas of their lives people have already accepted the concept of prevention. They'd rather floss their teeth than pay for root canals."

Mental health workers and educators from the United States, Hong Kong, India, Portugal, Japan, Germany, New Zealand and other nations will confront some of the most important issues facing society—issues such as violence, substance abuse and AIDS—and will have opportunities to receive training in prevention techniques.

"When participants take this knowledge back and apply it in their communities, they will be helping the College realize its goal of transforming research findings into applied programs," Galano said. "Prevention is not only possible, it may be the best contribution mental health professionals can make to our society."

The conference, organized in association with the American Psychological Association, is one of many special events being held on campus this year to celebrate the 300th anniversary of the College.

Nagle Appointed Dean for College of Education, UNC-Charlotte

John M. Nagle, dean of the School of Education, was approved Friday as the new dean for the College of Education and Allied Professions at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

The appointment was approved by the University of North Carolina Board of Governors. Nagle will begin his new duties Aug. 1.

A national search committee will be formed at William and Mary to find Nagle's replacement. An interim dean should be appointed by July 1.

Nagle has been dean of the School of Education at William and Mary since 1983.

During his 10-year tenure, he was coordinator of a partnership program between the College and Charles City County Public Schools. He has also been involved in other regional and statewide initiatives to improve schools in the state, including the creation of the Virginia Urban Schools Association, and co-director of the summer programs for gifted children.

He was influential in overseeing the Commonwealth of Virginia Seminars, which encouraged global awareness by bringing students, school teachers and business leaders to the College for an intensive orientation program on regions of the world.

Philip L. Dubois, vice chancellor for academic affairs at UNC-Charlotte, said, "Jack Nagle's decade of experience as dean at an institution the quality of William and Mary will serve our college of education extremely well. It is also significant for us that he has been a successful bridge builder to the schools of the communities around him."

Before coming to William and Mary, Nagle was a professor, assistant dean and assistant department chair of the College of Education at Northern Illinois University. He has also taught at the University of Oregon.

Alumnus Writes Animated Feature Film

By Poul Olson
Graduate Assistant

"Once Upon a Forest," an animated $12 million feature film co-written by William and Mary alumnus and screen writer Mark Young '74, will be released Friday.

The 89-minute film, produced by Hanna-Barbera, centers around the adventures of three animal-like friends known as Furlings: Abigail, a wood mouse; Edgar, a mole; and Russell, a hedgehog, living in an unspoiled forest home, Dapplewood.

Their carefree existence is threatened one afternoon while the Furlings are on a ramble through the woods. When they return, they discover that a chemical spill has destroyed their home and seriously injured their friend, Michelle.

To save their friend, the Furlings embark on a journey in search of medicine. Using their skills and ingenuity, the Furlings survive their sometimes-humorous, sometimes-dangerous journey and save Michelle's life. Their experience provides them not only with wisdom and maturity, but the new-knowledge that the search for happiness begins in one's own backyard.

Although the movie has a pervasive environmental message, Young says the overriding themes are coming of age and the importance of working together to overcome adversity. Songs and comedy

Anthropology

Mario D. Zamora, professor of anthropology, recently wrote Perspectives on Cultural Change and Development: Focus on the Philippines. Published by Reliance Publishing House, New Delhi, the book deals with eight essays on various dimensions of cultural change and development in the Philippines. Among the topics are: ethics of change, meaning and measurement of change and "cultural progress;" the Hispanization of the Philippines through the introduction of Catholicism; Philippine village government; credit cooperatives; language change; religious change through the Iglesia Ni Kristo sect; and the anthropology of higher education. The book also includes four review essays on the Philippines, Japan, India, and Brazil.

English

Terry Meyers, associate professor of English, has an article in the Spring 1993 issue of Victorian Poetry, "Swinburne Reshapes His Grand Passion: A Version by 'Ashford Owen.'" Meyers identifies a novel by Ashford Owen as having been shaped by Swinburne to depict once more the blighted love as the heart of many of his works.

Government

Jack D. Edwards, professor of government, recently wrote Neighbors and Sometimes Friends: Municipal Annexation in Modern Virginia, published by the Center for Public Service, University of Virginia, 1992. The book concerns the interplay of legislative, administrative and judicial forces in dealing with the municipal annexation problem.

Psychology

E. Rae Harcum, professor emeritus of psychology, recently received a contract from Praeger to publish a book, A Psychology of Freedom and Dignity: The Last Train to Survival.

School of Business

Wanda A. Wallace, the John N. Dalton Professor of Business Administration and associate dean for academic affairs, spoke on "The Impact of Technology on Audit Practices and Education" at the "Auditing Education Conference: Restructuring for the Twenty-first Century." The conference held on May 21-22 at Lehigh University was sponsored by Arthur Andersen, Coopers and Lybrand, Deloitte and Touche, Ernst and Young, KPMG Peat Marwick, Merck and Company and Price Waterhouse.

School of Education

James M. Patton, associate dean and associate professor of education, wrote a chapter in the recently published book Race and Ethnicity in Research Methods, which John H. Stanfield II, Cummings Professor of American Studies and professor of sociology, and Rutledge M. Dennis edited and Sage Publications, Inc. published. The chapter contributed by Patton is titled "Psychoeducational Assessment of Gifted and Talented African Americans."

School of Marine Science

Maurice P. Lynch, professor of marine science, was recently elected to the board of directors of the Coastal Society, an international professional society interested in management of coastal regions. He served as the president of the society from 1985-87 and has edited three of the society's proceedings.

Marshall-Wythe School of Law

Neal Devins, associate professor of law, recently wrote "The Stuff of Constitutional Law" for the Iowa Law Review (Vol. 77). Responding to an article written by Professors Baker and Viator, Devins contends that the basic course in constitutional law needs more than a shot of constitutional history. Instead, Devins argues that the inadequacies of contemporary constitutional law courses can be remedied only by including excerpts from constitutional politics, empirical studies, policy analyses and editorial commentary.

Devins recently wrote "Reagan Redux: Civil Rights Under Bush" for the Notre Dame Law Review. This piece examines the failed civil rights policies and strategies of the Reagan and Bush administrations, with particular focus on President Bush's handling of the 1991 Civil Rights Act. Devins concludes with some lessons President Clinton might learn from the policies of his predecessors, including this admonition: "Stand for something."

In addition, Devins had an article titled "Fundamentalist Christian Educators v. State: An Inevitable Compromise" recently appeared in the George Washington Law Review. The Michigan Supreme Court relied heavily on the article to decide that a state law requiring parents to use state-certified teachers in their home school violated the first amendment's free exercise clause.

Davison M. Douglas, assistant professor of law, received his Ph.D. from Yale at commencement exercises last month.

The June 2 edition of the Wall Street Journal quoted extensively from Constitutional Theory, a book by Michael J. Gerhardt, associate professor of law. Discussing the confirmation of Lani Guinier, the author uses Gerhardt's explanation of "critical race theory."

The Washington Post recently featured "listserv," a creation of I. Trotter Hardy Jr., associate professor of law. Although Hardy is not mentioned by name (he is the "moderator"), the article describes how approximately 30 lawyers, including Hardy, communicate on the system. His article about the Internet Computer Network will be published shortly in the Harvard Law and Technology Journal.

Fredric Lederer, professor of law, has been asked to participate as a member of a panel discussion, A Few Good Men, at this year's ABA meeting. The panel will consider the current state of military criminal law, using the recent movie of the same name as its point of departure. The other panel members will be the Chief Judge of the Army Court of Military Review, the recently retired Chief Judge of the Court of Military Appeals, and General Brahm, the technical adviser to the movie.

John W. Lee, professor of law, is quoted extensively in a recent Tax Notes news article titled "Does the IRS Need to Clean Up Its Ruling on Cleanup Costs." Lee defends and explains a recent Technical Advice Memorandum (TAM) that denies a current tax deduction for the costs to clean up PCB-contaminated soil.

Lee also recently had an article titled "President Clinton's Capital Gains Proposal" appear in the June 7 edition of Tax Notes. Lee found that although those persons with taxable incomes above $250,000 will pay a marginal effective rate of 41 percent (there is a hidden five percent tax) if the President's proposals are adopted, they will continue to pay only a 28 percent generic capital gains tax. Lee analyzes and critiques not only the President's specific capital gain proposals, but also puts the proposals in their historic and political contexts.

A letter to the editor by law student Sean Sell concerning the Reginald Denny beating during the Los Angeles riots appeared in Newsweek in May. A passage of the letter reads, "Newsweek noted that the videotape of the Denny beating 'is a disturbing reminder that there were no good guys in the L.A. riots.' What about the four black strangers who rescued Denny from his attackers? It is understandable that the media must report on negative aspects of the news, but neglecting positive ones does a disservice to humanity."

Richard A. Williamson, acting dean of the law school and Chancellor Professor of Law, has been invited to participate next month in a panel discussion at the Utah State Bar Annual Meeting on the subject of Supreme Court justice selection. Joining Williamson on the panel are Justice Byron White, Senator Orrin Hatch of Utah, Professor Charles Ogletree and incoming American Bar Association President, Bill Idle.

Professional Actor Stephen Culp Featured in Two Plays

Virginia Shakespeare Festival Opens 15th Season With 'Julius Caesar' and 'All's Well That Ends Well'

Professional actor and William and Mary alumnus Stephen Culp '78 is the featured actor at this year's Virginia Shakespeare Festival.

Now in its 15th season, the Festival will open July 2 with "Julius Caesar" followed by "All's Well That Ends Well" on July 9.

Equity actor Culp, who has starred in plays, films, and television in Los Angeles, will play Marcus Brutus in "Julius Caesar" and the King of France in "All's Well That Ends Well."

The movies in which he has appeared include "Dead Again" for Paramount Pictures, directed by Kenneth Branagh of "Henry V" fame; and "Gross Anatomy" for Touchstone Pictures. Culp will also appear in the most recent Friday the 13th movie, scheduled for release this fall. His numerous television credits include guest appearances on "Murphy Brown," "L.A. Law," "Newhart" and "The Cosby Show." He was featured as John Jay, Lincoln's secretary, in Gore Vidal's "Lincoln," an acclaimed NBC miniseries filmed in Richmond several seasons ago. He has played major roles for the Champlain and New York Shakespeare

Stephen Culp '78

Festival and recently appeared in the HBO series, "Dream On."

Culp was originally scheduled to appear as last season's Macbeth, but could not come to Williamsburg because of a summer film commitment.

Two veterans of the Festival will direct the plays. Jim Luse who has played various roles over the years, including Launce in last season's "Two Gentlemen of Verona," will be directing "All's Well That Ends Well."

Festival director J. H. Bledsoe of the department of theatre and speech, who last season directed the "Two Gentlemen of Verona," will direct "Julius Caesar."

Several actors from previous seasons will also be in this year's performances. Returning for a second season, Francis Gerke will play Cassius in "Caesar" and Parolles in "All's Well." David Evans, who participated in two previous Festivals, will assume the title role of Julius Caesar. Michael Harding will play the role of Caesar's most trusted friend, Marcus Antonius. Supporting actors in "Julius Caesar" include Lawrence Williams as Cicero, Charles Mercer as Octavius Caesar, Kristianne Kurner as Calpurnia, Lisa Rowland as Portia, and Robert A. Goddard as Casca. This is Goddard's third year with the company.

College Gears Up For International Physics Olympiad

Future physicists and Nobel laureates from around the world will arrive on campus Saturday, July 10 to compete in the International Physics Olympiad. Five of the brightest high school physics students from 40 different countries will compete for gold, silver, and bronze medals in the first Physics Olympiad held in the United States.

Members of the U.S. Physics Team trained rigorously last month during a week-long training camp at the University of Maryland. As a result, the following five U.S. team members were chosen to be the U.S. Physics Team Representatives: Hal J. Burch, a senior from Ponca City, Okla.; Chang Shih Chan, a senior from Philadelphia, Penn.; Dean Jens, a senior from Ankeny, Iowa; Dmitri Linde, a senior from Stanford, Calif.; and Daniel K. Schepler, a junior from Beavercreek, Ohio.

The opening ceremony will be held on July 11 in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall, with theoretical exams on July 12 and experimental exams on July 14. In addition to the academic competition, students will also have the opportunity to relax and have fun during visits planned throughout the week. Among the places to tour are Colonial Williamsburg, Busch Gardens, Water Country USA, Virginia Beach, the Continuous Electron Beam Acceleration Unit (CEBAF) and the National Aeronautic and Space Administration (NASA) Langley Research Center.

The first International Physics Olympiad took place in Warsaw, Poland, in 1967 with five Eastern European countries competing. The United States first competed in the Olympiad in 1986 and turned in the best first-time showing ever by any team in the Olympiad.

Fraser Neiman

A memorial service was held in the Wren Chapel Friday for Fraser Neiman, professor of English emeritus, who died June 7.

Professor Neiman received his B.A. from Amherst College and his M.A. and Ph.D. from Harvard. He became an instructor of English at the College in 1938. He was appointed assistant professor in 1946, associate professor in 1947, and full professor in 1958. He was chair of the English Department from 1964 to 1970 and retired in 1976.

He served in the U.S. Army Intelligence during World War II and was the commanding officer of a German prisoner of war interrogation team. After the war he served in the Army Reserve. From 1976 to 1978 he was a visiting professor at the University of Hawaii and was visiting distinguished lecturer at Doshisha University in Kyoto, Japan. Neiman was a John Woodruff Simpson Fellow at Cambridge University and a member of Phi Beta Kappa. He held a Ford Foundation Fellowship from the Fund for the Advancement of Learning.

He was a member of the Modern Language Association of America, the Dante Society of America, the International House of Japan in Tokyo and the United Oxford and Cambridge in London. He served as a member of the advisory board of the The Arnoldian and the Victorians Institute Journal for the past 15 years.

During his years at the College he earned a wide reputation as a scholar and as a dedicated teacher. In his period as department chair, he proved himself to be an efficient and humane administrator. Both in the faculty and in his department he served on many major committees, where he was held in high esteem. Throughout his career his colleagues and students sought him out professionally and personally as a man of discretion, sympathy and good counsel.

Neiman was a former member of the board of directors of the Colonial Virginia Chapter of the American Red Cross, the Williamsburg Day Care Center and the Williamsburg Community Hospital. He was also a director of the Chamber Music Society, the University Press and Williamsburg Regional Library. He was a faculty member of the Christopher Wren Association since its inception in Jan. 1991.

He is survived by his wife, Stella Neiman; a son, Fraser D. Neiman of New Haven, Conn.; and a daughter, Christina F. Neiman of South Hadley, Mass.; and two grandchildren.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Williamsburg Regional Library, Scotland Street, Williamsburg, 23185.

HACE Celebrates Employees of the Month

Joyce Jackson (at right), payroll fiscal technician, received the December 1992 Employee of the Month Award.

Jackson, who has been with the College for nine years, was cited for her dedication and loyalty to her job.

She lives with her husband James and their three children in Williamsburg.

Outside the College, Jackson is a freelance tax preparer and is involved with her church and activities with her children. She also likes to read and do crossword puzzles.

At HACE's June meeting held last week at VIMS, Campus Police Officer Jan Barrymore received the June Employee of the Month award.

In the recommendation from her department, Barrymore was cited for her positive actions in investigating one case of sexual assault and five complaints of simple assault against females, involving the same individual. "Officer Barrymore was able to bring all five victims together to insure strength in numbers," the citation said.

Above, Campus Police Lieutenant Ron Lacasse presents Officer Barrymore (r) with the June Employee of the Month Award.

Peggy Riggler (far left), office services assistant in the Admission Office, received the March Employee of the Month Award.

She was cited for her compassion, friendliness, reliability, work ethic and dedication to her job.

Riggler has been with the College and the Admission Office since Oct. 1981.

In her free time she loves to read, sew and take care of her many pets. She has six children and five grandchildren, and lives in Hayes.

Lena Jefferson (left) of the housekeeping department received the May Employee of the Month Award.

She has been employed at the College for 24 years and is currently assigned to Washington Hall, first floor. Describing Jefferson as an "asset" to the department, her supervisor, Mary Stukes, said "she is a dedicated and conscientious employee to her peers, supervisors and her subordinates. She is very pleasant and often goes out of her way to accommodate or assist me in many instances."

Jefferson lives in Charles City and has two sons and four grandchildren. In her spare time, she cooks and reads medical journals.

Diane Gallagher (at left) in the Tercenary office received the April Employee of the Month Award.

In presenting her with the award, the director of the office, Martha Hamilton-Phillips, praised Gallagher for her devotion to a demanding assignment, her attention to detail and her graciousness under pressure.

In June 1987, Gallagher also received the Employee of the Month Award.

Gallagher has been at the College since April 1985 when she was hired in the Development Office. She assumed her current position in the Tercenary office when it started in July 1992.

Gallagher lives in Toano with her husband, Ron, and son, Blake. She is an active member of the Williamsburg Community Chapel.

Following the presentation of the June Employee of the Month Award to Officer Jan Barrymore of the Campus Police Department, HACE members toured a blue crab experimental lab and the coastal mapping department at VIMS.

Marcia Berman, marine scientist senior, is shown here explaining to HACE members the intricacies of its Comprehensive Coastal Inventory Information System. Employing a computer system known as the Geographic Information System or G.I.S., this division of VIMS serves to map and catalog the various natural resources within the coastal plain of Virginia. The State of Virginia uses the information to assist localities in its resource management agenda.

President Timothy Sullivan will accompany HACE members to a Tidewater Tides baseball game Sunday, June 27. HACE has scheduled its employee picnic for July 2 for all hourly classified employees at the College.

Record Number Set to Participate in Alumni College on Jefferson

Nearly double last year's attendance, over 138 alumni and their families will participate in this year's Alumni College, June 24 to 27, titled "Thomas Jefferson: His World and Ours."

In recognition of the 250th anniversary of Thomas Jefferson's birth, the four-day program, which has been sold out for several weeks, includes for the first time an excursion out of Williamsburg. On Saturday, June 26 participants will travel to Charlottesville for a private tour of Monticello and dinner in the Rotunda at the University of Virginia.

Of special interest this year is the wide range of alumni attending Alumni College and the participation of six children in a specially designed program that parallels the adult's experience.

Throughout the four days of lectures, tours and special events, Jefferson scholars and members of the College faculty will share insights on Jefferson's world and his impact on our own time, focusing on his ideas, actions, and especially his words.

Participants will trace Jefferson's footsteps, from his student days in Williamsburg to his years as governor in Richmond to his final days in Charlottesville, illuminating his many roles as student, statesman, architect, inventor and visionary.

The program opens Thursday, June 24 with "Jefferson in Williamsburg," a special tour of Colonial Williamsburg led by historical interpreters. The evening will feature a special screening of the video Thomas Jefferson: The Pursuit of Liberty.

On Friday, June 25, Alf Mapp '45, scholar emeritus and Louis I. Jaffe Professor Emeritus at Old Dominion University, will present an overview of Jefferson's life titled "Thomas Jefferson: A Strange Case of Mistaken Identity." Mapp, author of two bestsellers on Jefferson, will give a state address in Richmond on Jefferson's birthday this year.

The same day, Thad Tate, Murden Professor of Humanities Emeritus, will discuss Jefferson's education while a student at the College. His lecture, "Jefferson's Williamsburg Years," will also explore Jefferson's relationship to the College, especially his influence in the remaking of the curriculum.

James Kornwolf, professor of fine arts, will give a graduate in history from William and Mary.

The evening's program begins with music from Jefferson's era in the Wren Chapel, performed by organist Tom Marshall. The day's events conclude with "A Jeffersonian Culinary Experience" with specially prepared foods of the 18th century served at King's Arms Tavern.

After breakfast in Williamsburg on Saturday, June 26, the group will travel to Richmond for a tour of the Virginia State Capitol, which Jefferson designed, followed by a trip to Jefferson's home in Charlottesville.

In the afternoon, David Holmes Jr., professor of religion, will present "The Religion of Jefferson and His Contemporaries." In Jefferson's own opinion, one of his greatest accomplishments was the drafting of a bill to establish religious freedom in Virginia.

Robert Gross, Murden Professor of American Studies and History and director of the American Studies Program, will discuss Jefferson's philosophy of education in a talk titled "Educating a Citizenry: School and Society in the World of Thomas Jefferson."

In the evening, participants will journey to Monticello for an after-hours, private tour—including the upstairs chambers and other parts of Jefferson's home never seen on public tours.

The day culminates with a dinner in U.Va.'s Rotunda with a special guest appearing during dinner.

The program concludes Sunday at Ash-Lawn, home of President James Monroe, Jefferson's friend and neighbor. Participants will tour the house and grounds, which are owned and maintained by the College, and have brunch on the lawn. The closing address will be delivered by Merrill Peterson, Thomas Jefferson Professor of History Emeritus at U.Va. and a world-renowned Jefferson scholar. Peterson will take a final look at Jefferson's legacy in a talk titled "The Jefferson Image in the American Mind. Revisited."

The group will then board buses for the return trip to Williamsburg.

talk Friday on "A History of William and Mary's Architecture and Landscape and Its First Century." Included is a slide presentation of the archaeological dig of the Wren Building, uncovering the foundations of an unfinished final wing designed by Jefferson.

Mick Nicholls '72, associate professor of history at Utah State University, will give a presentation titled "Wolf by the Ears," an exploration of slavery and free blacks in Jefferson's Virginia. Nicholls is the first Ph.D.

Independence Day Holiday

The College and Virginia Institute of Marine Science will observe Independence Day on Monday, July 5.

Most of the administrative offices and plant department (except for those employees required to maintain essential services as determined by management), will be closed. The decision to require employees to work should be made by the dean, director or department head, as appropriate, and should be communicated to the employee(s) as soon as possible. The Campus Police Department will maintain its regular schedule.

The names of permanent classified employees who are required to work must be reported in writing to the Office of Personnel Services by July 9 in order that these employees may be credited with compensatory leave. Hourly employees who are required to work during the holiday will be paid their regular hourly rates.

With the approval of management, compensatory leave should be taken as soon as possible after the holiday on which it was earned. Compensatory time not taken within 12 months will be lost.

On behalf of the administration of the university, I wish each member of the College community a safe and enjoyable holiday.

Colorado Educators Award Van Tassel-Baska Honorary Membership To Academy

The Colorado Academy of Educators for the Gifted, Talented and Creative has awarded an honorary membership to Dr. Joyce Van Tassel-Baska, director for the Center of Gifted Education at the School of Education, due to her contributions to the education of gifted, talented and creative youth in the state of Colorado.

The honorary membership was presented at a banquet of the Academy in Westminster, Colo., on May 13.

The Academy is an organization of professional educators and researchers who work with gifted talented, and creative students. The Academy is dedicated to providing excellence in education for the state's youth.

Regular Membership in the Academy is active for a lifetime and by invitation. The Academy provides educators and researchers who work with gifted students with opportunities for networking with other professionals in the field. It requires its members to have demonstrated levels of high performance and competence and to exhibit a continuing commitment of professional excellence, time and service.

Honorary membership is awarded only after nomination by a Founding Member of the Academy and the unanimous vote of the Academy Membership.

Lady Margaret Thatcher Charms William And Mary Audience

Above, Margaret Thatcher, former prime minister of England and the newly named Chancellor of the College, is welcomed to the Drapers' Hall reception. Sponsored by the Society of the Alumni, the reception attracted 300 very excited guests, including 90 alumni and friends and the William and Mary Choir.

During her impromptu remarks, Lady Thatcher delighted the guests and members of the William and Mary Choir at Drapers' Hall with her warmth and wit. She apologized for the unpleasantness of 1776 and said, "If there had been a woman prime minister in No. 10 (Downing Street) at the time, it would have been handled very much better."

Annual Black Student Leadership Institute Held At College

Student Leaders Travel To Washington, Meet With Justice Thomas, Senator Robb

Twenty-seven black student leaders from 22 predominantly white colleges and universities across the nation attended the fourth annual Black Student Leadership Institute at the College May 30-June 12.

Highlighting the two-week program designed to enhance leadership skills was a three-day excursion to Washington, where participants met with Supreme Court Associate Justice Clarence Thomas for nearly an hour on Thursday, June 10.

In an informal question-and-answer session, Thomas described the factors that influenced him to become a leader and the obstacles that he encountered.

Voicing their opposition to President Clinton's decision to withdraw Lani Guinier's nomination, Institute students staged a protest on the steps of the Supreme Court.

While in Washington, students met with Barbara Reynolds, of USA Today, Amelia Parker and other members of the Congressional Black Caucus, Dr. Ramona Edelin, president and CEO of the National Urban Coalition, and Dr. Eddie Williams, president of Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies. Sen. Charles Robb of Virginia also met the group on the steps of the Capitol for a group picture.

Designed to expose participants to black role models in business, education, politics, journalism and the military, and facilitate their development as leaders, the Black Student Leadership Institute employs an intensive, in-depth skills-building curriculum with an African-American focus.

Among the workshops student leaders attended were sessions on values clarification, theories of leadership and leadership styles, communication, power and control, negotiating and coalition building, international relations, community service, ethics and leadership, and civility and first amendment rights.

Instructors used a variety of techniques including experiential learning activities, role playing, roundtable discussions, a ropes course designed to build confidence and trust, case studies and lectures.

Secretary of the Black Student Organization at the College, Jack Jones, was among the students to attend the Institute.

Founded by Carroll Hardy, associate vice president for student affairs at the College and director of the program, the Institute has been held at William and Mary since its beginning in the summer of 1990.

This year, Daryl Taylor '93 served as coordinator for the program.

To attend the Institute, black student leaders must be nominated by their own college or university.

Although the Dupont Foundation funded the Institute during its first year, recent funding limitations have required participants to either pay the $850 fee themselves or secure funding from their nominating institutions. According to Hardy, the high cost of organizing the program leaves the future of the Institute in question.

"Despite the popularity and lasting impact of Black Student Leadership Institute," she says, "it is doubtful whether it will continue due to a lack of a funding source."

Jackie Jones '96 presents an Institute T-shirt commemorating the Tercentenary of the College to Senator Charles Robb of Virginia.

as Linda in "Death of a Salesman," will take the lead as Helena in "All's Well." Playing opposite her as Bertram will be Mike Kindle, a newcomer to the Festival stage. Jo Carpenter will play the Countess. John Goodlin, a five-year veteran of the Festival, will assume the role of Lafew. A variety of student and volunteer actors will be appearing in diverse roles from poets to murderers.

"Julius Caesar is the fateful tragedy of the Roman emperor and the personal tragedy of Marcus Brutus, who must face the conflict between state and self.

"All's Well That Ends Well" is the adventurous love story of Helena and Bertram. After being forced to wed Helena at the King's command, Bertram leaves her to fight in France. He vows not to return until she has accomplished two seemingly impossible tasks. Despite the hurdles set by Parolles and others, Helena sets forth to regain her lost love.

Performances of the two plays run from July 2 to July 25. "Julius Caesar" opens July 2 and "All's Well That Ends Well" opens July 9. Both shows will run in repertory July 13 through July 25. Tickets are $10 per person. Season tickets, which provide admission to both shows, are $18. Group discounts are also offered for parties of 20 or more. For tickets and more information, call the box office at ext. 12674.

'Once Upon A Forest' To Open Friday

provide the subliminal reassurance that Michelle will be saved.

According to Young, preliminary reviews and audience screenings give the film high marks. The movie, which has been in production for three years, is aimed at a three- to eight-year-old audience.

As a warm-hearted alternative to the violent fare of summer films, "Once Upon a Forest" was originally set to be developed for television. Because producers thought the "heavy-handed" environmental message was too depressing for this genre, Young says Hanna-Barbera instead decided to tone down the original theme and spend $12 million to develop the idea as a theatrical movie.

Leading actors, including Michael Crawford of "Phantom of the Opera" fame and Ben Vereen, serve as the voices for several of the film's characters. Although Glenn Close '74 was slated to play the voice of the character "Penny," her part was cut because the film was too long.

"Once Upon a Forest" is Young's first theatrical film. After graduating from the College, he worked in local television for 10 years before pursuing animation writing. At Hanna-Barbera, Young began as a writer, moved up to the position of story editor, later became vice-president for program development and then senior vice-president of program development.

The television cartoons that Young has worked on include "The Jetsons," "Johnny Quest," two Flintstones movies for ABC, and numerous syndicated cartoon series.

He is currently working at MGM studios as an executive producer and supervising story editor for the television cartoon adaptation of the "Pink Panther."

Reflecting on his experience at the College and how it influenced his career, Young says his constant ambition was to work in television production. Originally an English major, Young enrolled in an interdisciplinary program in television production in the theatre and speech department. From this vantage, he says that he was able to direct his goal more toward writing and behind-the-scenes production.

Young especially praises Louis Catron, professor of theatre and speech. "I owe a lot of my career to Lou Catron and his playwriting classes," he says.

Although Young has recently moved into production, he stresses that his first love is writing. "I am the jack of all trades and the master of none," he says. "Whatever I do, I always come back to writing."

Scheduled for release in 1,200 theaters nationwide, "Once Upon a Forest" will be playing at the Williamsburg Crossing theater.

NOTES

Swem Library Offers Unlimited Access To FirstSearch

Swem Library is making a change in the use of FirstSearch. Beginning July 1 the library will be supporting unlimited access to the following databases on FirstSearch:

- WorldCat—The OCLC Online Union Catalog, the world's most comprehensive bibliography with more than 25 million records describing materials owned by libraries throughout the world; does NOT include individual articles in journals or newspapers. Updated daily.
- ArticleFirst—Article citation database for the articles from 11,000 serial titles included in the ContentsFirst database. Updated daily.
- ContentsFirst—Complete table-of-contents pages of more than 11,000 serial titles, mostly in English, published since Jan. 1990. Updated daily.

The Reference Department in Swem Library will provide the authorization number and password to use the FirstSearch databases noted above. TEAMate will continue to be the computer used to connect to FirstSearch although a new computer and new software are scheduled to replace TEAMate in the fall of 1993.

All William and Mary students, faculty and staff can do an unlimited number of searches of these databases. There is, however, a very limited number of users who can search at the same time. Patrons are asked to notify the Reference Department if they have problems getting access to FirstSearch.

As of July 1, FirstSearch cards previously distributed to faculty and students will be obsolete. There are a few authorization cards with a serial number beginning with B, ex. B002000001; these cards can continue to be used until all searches have been used.

FirstSearch includes several other databases. For those, the library will distribute search cards permitted 10 searches per card. These cards will be available from the Reference Department, ext. 13067, or from Berna Heyman, ext. 13059, beginning July 1.

Muscarella Children's Art Classes Begin July 6

Children's classes at the Muscaréll will be held on consecutive Tuesdays and Thursdays, from July 6 through 29.

Classes are arranged according to 1993-94 school grade levels, pre-school through 10th grade. Each class will use works of art on display in the museum as learning material and inspiration for creative art projects.

The following classes will be offered:

"Art Together," Ages 3-4, 9-10:30 a.m.; ages 5-6, 11 a.m.-12:30 p.m.

"Say Cheese," grades 1-2, 9-10:30 a.m. or 11 a.m.-12:30 p.m.

"Mirror Images," grades 3-4, 9-10:30 a.m., or 11 a.m.-12:30 p.m.

"Mind over Matter," grades 5-6, 9-10:30 a.m.

"Camera Action," grades 7-10, 11 a.m.-12:30 p.m.

The cost is $25 per student. Scholarships are available in cases of financial need. The enrollment fee covers the cost of all materials and supplies for the entire eight-class session.

Registration for all of the classes and workshops will begin in the museum tomorrow from 10 a.m. to noon. Enrollment will continue until classes are filled.

Calling All Volunteers!

The second half of the Tercentenary celebration is upon us, and the Tercentenary Office continues to need student and community volunteers. Volunteers will participate in all aspects of the celebration, from working at events and receptions, to helping publicize lectures and conferences on campus. The fall semester should prove to be an exciting and challenging end to the College's tercentenary, with a full range of activities and programs focusing on the theme of public service. So get involved! Please contact the Tercentenary Office (ext. 12157) or the following student chairpersons, if you are interested in participating:

1. Events: usher at lectures, help with conference registration, host receptions and dinners (Lily Chu and Melanie Coates, chairpersons).
2. VIP: take care of special needs or requests for guests of the College (Megan Owen and Scott Wilkinson, chairpersons).
3. Publicity: implement a basic publicity plan to advertise Tercentenary related events (Jennifer French and Gene Conley, chairpersons).
4. Tour guides: offer historical tours of the old and ancient campus (Elizabeth Powell, chairperson).
5. Last minute: provide volunteer assistance for all committees on short notice (Shannon Smith, Catherine Adams, chairpersons).

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

Classified ads are included as a service to members of the College community and will be accepted from faculty, staff, students and alumni only. Ads should be no longer than 40 words and must be submitted in writing to the William and Mary News office no later than 5 p.m. on the Friday preceding the first insertion.

Jamestown, Yorktown Schedule Children's Programs for July, August

A summer series of children's history programs, including a special five-day history adventure, will be offered at Jamestown Settlement and the Yorktown Victory Center in July and August. The programs, divided into three age groups, are designed to educate children about American history through "hands-on" activities, games, stories and take-home crafts.

"A Day in the Life ...," a five-day history program, is being offered July 12-16, from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., for children who have completed third or fourth grade. Participants will explore the daily lives of early Americans in the 17th and 18th centuries through activities such as games and crafts.

Programs for children who have completed first or second grade will be held on Thursdays from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Jamestown Settlement will present "Home Sweet Home," July 1, "Voyage to Virginia," July 15 and "A Pinch Here and a Pinch There," July 29. The Yorktown Victory Center will hold "A Grain of Truth," July 8 and "How Redoubt-ful," August 5.

Programs for children ages four through six are scheduled on Tuesdays. Jamestown Settlement will offer "Gingerbread House," June 29, "Jamestown Bound," July 13 and "Baubles, Bangles and Beads," July 27. The Yorktown Victory Center will present "Hoe Down," July 6, and "A Good Defense," August 3. Each program offers either a morning session from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. or an afternoon session from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.

In all programs, children will have the opportunity to make a project to take home. The one-day programs cost $4.50 and include all materials. Programs cost $4 for children and family members of the Jamestown-Yorktown museums. The five-day summer history program is $30 per child and $27 for children of family members of the Jamestown-Yorktown museums.

Advance registration by mail is required. To obtain more information, contact the Jamestown-Yorktown Foundation Education Office, P.O. Drawer JF, Williamsburg, VA, 23187, or call 253-4939.
