Physics Olympiad Held Here

By Kelley Daspit
University Relations

The 24th International Physics Olympiad, the first ever in the United States, was held on campus, July 10 to 18.

The College was host to 200 students from 40 nations, who were chosen to represent their countries in this prestigious event. A colorful opening ceremony was held Sunday, July 11, in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall.

To the music of the Colonial Williamsburg Fifes and Drums, a delegate from each of the 42 nations represented placed a national flag on the stage to open the ceremony.

Eric Miller of San Raphael, Calif., gold medalist in the XXIII Olympiad as a member of the U.S. team that competed last year in Finland, told olympians they were to be commended for just being here. "Don't focus too much on the competition," he advised the students. "The opportunity to forge friendships with other students was invaluable," he said.

"You are heroes of our world, we are honored to have you here," said Arthur Eisenkraft, executive director of the XXIV Olympiad.

Acting Provost David Lutzer thanked those who had worked for the Olympiad program and especially commended professors Hans vonBaeyer and Roy Champion for their energy and commitment to the success of the program on campus.

Lutzer told his audience that William and Mary had been founded to provide education in "good arts and sciences" and had taken its mission seriously. He recalled the 18th-century teacher, William Small, who was credited by his pupil Thomas Jefferson with setting the destinies of his life.

1988 Nobel Laureate Leon Lederman, chair of the XXIV Physics Olympiad, said he was deeply moved and proud to be a part of the program.

He said he hoped the students would continue in the long tradition of physics, but added on a lighter note, "I'll forgive your drift into the lesser sciences, chemistry and biology, unless you become lawyers."

Reuben E. Alley, president of the American Association of Physics Teachers, and John Riggin, of the American Institute of Physics, brought greetings from their organizations. Riggin also brought greetings from the National Science Foundation and read a letter of greeting from President Bill Clinton and portions of a letter from Secretary of Education Richard Riley.

Competitions in theoretical and experimental physics began early in the week. Exams were given in two parts with each exam being a five-hour mind-bender. In addition to the academic competition, students relaxed and had fun throughout the week at Busch Gardens, Water Country USA, Virginia Beach and Colonial Williamsburg. They also visited the scientific facilities of NASA Langley Research Center and the Continuous Electron Beam Accelerator Facility, CEBAF.

The week ended with a closing ceremony, where gold, silver and bronze medals were presented by Nobel laureates Val Fitch, Leon Lederman and Jerome I. Friedman. Medals were

Yankovich Named Acting Dean

James M. Yankovich

James M. Yankovich, professor of education and former dean of the School of Education, has been named to serve as acting dean of the School of Education, effective Aug. 1.

Dean John M. Nagle, who succeeded Yankovich as dean of the School of Education in 1983, has been named dean of the College of Education and Allied Professions at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte. He will leave the College at the end of July.

In a memo to members of the School of Education faculty on July 2, David Lutzer, acting provost, said that Yankovich had agreed to serve as acting dean and that his name would be forwarded to the Board of Visitors for confirmation at the board's September meeting.

Lutzer said a search committee will be appointed by the end of August.

Next issue of the News will be Aug. 18.

College Mourns Loss of Medieval Historian; A.Z. Freeman Dies In Williamsburg, June 22

A.Z. Freeman

A. Z. Freeman, 70, professor emeritus of history died at home on June 22.

Mr. Freeman was born in Boston, Mass., and spent his growing-up years in Rhode Island. He earned his bachelor's degree in civil engineering at Virginia Military Institute and his advanced degrees in history at Brown University and the University of Toronto. Before coming to William and Mary, he taught briefly at Black Mountain College in North Carolina and for 11 years at Allegheny College, in Meadville, Pa. His special interest was in medieval constitutional and military history, and in recent years in more contemporary military history, especially the relationship of logistics and military operations. His scholarly articles and his frequent book reviews appeared in a variety of journals. Before his death, he completed a book manuscript analyzing the contributions of a wide variety of men who conducted the wars of Edward I against the Scots, from military leaders to paymasters. Most recently, his interests focused on the provisioning and transporting of troops in wars ranging from those earlier wars to the Falklands and Persian Gulf campaigns.

He was elected on three occasions to a By-Fellowship at Robinson College, Cambridge University, and cherished this association.

Mr. Freeman served in World War II in the Pacific theater, participating in the Battle for Okinawa from beginning to end. He was a member of the 3rd Armored Amphibian Battalion. He returned to active duty in the Korean War in September of 1950, serving as combat historian with the 1st Marine Division. He served for two years, as well, in a civilian post as scientific historian for the Air Research and Development Command for the U.S. Air Force. In recent years, he was elected to membership on the board of directors of the Marine Corps Historian Foundation.

Mr. Freeman was deeply interested in the art of Japanese swords and sword fittings, an interest dating back to the mid-1960s. He served for six years as chairman of the Japanese Sword Society of the United States. Most recently, the Bowdoin College Walker Art Museum mounted a two-month-long exhibition of his collection. Earlier, he had given an exhibition in the Zollinger Museum of Swem Library and in the Williamsburg Regional Library. He catalogued collections at the MacArthur Memorial in Norfolk, the V.M.I. Museum and several other museums.

Mr. Freeman was a rifleman in his earlier years, winning two state championships, serving on the Marine Corps rifle team, and being invited to the final tryouts of the 1966 Olympics.

He is survived by his wife, Margaret, and son, John, both of Williamsburg; his daughter, Sally Thompson of Bowling Green, Virginia; and three grandchildren.

A memorial service was held in the Wren Chapel on June 25.

The family has suggested that memorials be made to the Hospice Support Care, 109 Cary Street, or to the A. Z. Freeman Book Fund, department of history.

Elizabeth J. Clarke

Elizabeth Jarvies Clarke, 90, of Norfolk, died July 10 in her home.

Mrs. Clarke was the wife of T. C. Clarke, a member of the Board of Visitors from 1974 to 1984.

Mrs. Clarke was born in Norfolk. She was a member of Epworth United Methodist Church.

Survivors, in addition to her husband, include a niece, Lucille M. Pearson of Charlottesville.

A graveside service was held July 12 in Forest Lawn Cemetery in Norfolk by Dr. Harris Kessler.

Memorial contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society or the Epworth Foundation, 124 W. Freemason St., Norfolk, VA 23510.

Elizabeth B. Dickens

Elizabeth Brooks Dickens, 86, of Fairfax, formerly of Williamsburg, died June 30 at her home.

Mrs. Dickens retired in 1972 as reserve librarian at the Earl Gregg Swem Library after 21 years of service. She was a native of Southampton and moved to the Williamsburg area in 1941. She was active in the foster grandparents program at Eastern State Hospital and was a member of Williamsburg Baptist Church.

She is survived by a daughter, Ellen D. Bielaski of Annandale; one sister, Helen B. Nixon of Courtland; one brother, Davis L. Brooks of Danville; two grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews.

A funeral service was held July 3 at the Williamsburg Baptist Church by the Rev. Wayne Price. Burial was in Williamsburg Memorial Park.

Departments & Schools

Anthropology

Mario D. Zamora, professor of anthropology, has been elected by the national and international membership to the office of vice president/president-elect of the Association of Third World Studies. He will be formally installed at the Conference banquet to be held in conjunction with the Association's 11th annual meeting, Oct. 7-9 at Pacific Lutheran University, Tacoma, Wash.

School of Business Administration

John N. Dalton Professor Wanda A. Wallace gave the keynote address on "Program Effectiveness and Privatization" to the National Association of Local Government Auditors' fifth annual conference in Orlando, Fla., June 17.

Wallace and co-author James J. Wallace have had their Examinations book published (1993) by South-Western Publishing Co., to accompany Financial Accounting, Second Edition. It is 492 pages in length.

School of Education

James M. Patton, associate dean and associate professor of education has recently received a commissioned appointment by Governor L. Douglas Wilder to serve on the State's Interagency Coordinating Council. This commission was effective on March 18 and he serves at the pleasure of the governor.

Marshall-Wythe School of Law

Rod Smolla, Arthur B. Hanson Professor of Law, recently participated in the AALS Conference on Constitutional Law at the University of Michigan Law School.

Smolla was the chair of the planning

Librarian Wins Award

John Haskell (l), associate dean of university libraries, receives the Award of Distinction from the president of The Manuscript Society, Robert K. O'Neill. The presentation was made at the 45th annual conference of the society in Santa Fe in May. The society is an international organization of 1,600 manuscript collectors, dealers and librarians.

Haskell has been a member since 1981 and currently serves as a member of the board of trustees and as the national program chair. He was recognized for his service to the society, whose primary purpose is promoting the collecting, use and preservation of manuscripts.

Porter Driscoll

Porter Driscoll, former director of the architecture division of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, who taught an architecture course for the Christopher Wren Association at the College, died July 9. He was 72.

During his tenure as architecture director of HUD, he led U.S. rebuilding missions to Europe, Brazil and Canada.

A graduate of Georgia Tech, Mr. Driscoll had lived in Williamsburg since 1988. A consulting architect, he was recently appointed to the Williamsburg Architectural Review Board. His memberships included the Society of Colonial Wars in Georgia, the St. Andrew's Society in Virginia, the National Trust for Historic Preservation, the Engineers Club of Richmond, the Muscarelle Museum and the Friends of the Library in Williamsburg.

He is survived by his wife, Emily Powers Driscoll; two daughters, Susan Verell of Lithonia, Ga.; and Cynthia Brandon of Annapolis, Md.; a sister, Jeanne F. Driscoll of Wilmington Island, Ga.; and three grandchildren.

Funeral services were private.

Memorial donations may be made to the Williamsburg Regional Library, 515 Scotland St., Williamsburg, 23185.

Dorothy Turnage

Dorothy Turnage, former dispatcher for the Campus Police, died July 2 in the Williamsburg Community Hospital. She was 65.

Mrs. Turnage was a dispatcher for the police office for 22 years, retiring in 1990.

A graveside service was held July 4, at Williamsburg Memorial Park by the Rev. Marvin Kersey.

Mrs. Turnage is survived by one daughter, Glenna E. Martin of Lanexa; three sons, Richard C. Turnage of Hampton, and Robin L. Turnage and Michael C. Turnage, both of Williamsburg; one sister, Edna B. Baker of Hampton; a half-sister, Virginia Cannon of Pennsylvania; one brother, Ernest Clarke of Seaford; a half-brother, Walter S. Luther of Pennsylvania; and eight grandchildren.

The family has suggested that expressions of sympathy may be made in the form of contributions to the York County Rescue Squad, 114 Hubbard Lane, Williamsburg, VA 23185.

Goodwin Islands Cleanup

Members of the Seaford Yacht Club picked up 1,162 pieces of trash weighing a total of 714 pounds when they volunteered for the cleanup at the Goodwin Islands.

As usual, much of the garbage was recycled, including 55 pounds of glass and 140 pounds of metal. The rest was taken to the Gloucester County landfill: 81 pounds of plastic, 16 pounds of plastic foam, 73 pounds of paper, 339 pounds of wood, six pounds of cloth and four pounds of rubber.

The Goodwin Islands, owned by the College, are one of four sites of the Chesapeake Bay National Estuarine Research Reserve in Virginia.

Volunteer clean-up teams are always welcome. To learn more about volunteering to help the Reserve call Bland Crowder at 642-7135.

Muscarelle Museum American Drawing Biennial IV

The Muscarelle Museum of Art is inviting artists to enter the American Drawing Biennial IV, a competitive juried exhibition to be held Jan. 15-March 6.

The juror will be Peter Plagens, art critic for Newsweek magazine.

Museum purchase and cash awards totaling $3,000 will be offered.

Deadline for slide submission is Oct. 15.

For required prospectus, send #10 SASE to Muscarelle Museum of Art.

Questions concerning the competition should be addressed to Ann C. Madonia, ext. 12702.

New Leave-Sharing Program Allows Employees To Help Co-Workers With Long-Term Medical Problems

A leave-sharing program is in effect on campus to assist classified employees who have exhausted their own leave but still are not ready to return to work.

The recipient must be an employee who has a medical condition, as certified by a physician, which requires medical attention and absence from work. A recipient, to be eligible, has to have exhausted all leave balances and has been on leave without pay for 10 consecutive work days.

Once the recipient has met these criteria, he/she must complete a recipient request available from the Personnel Office.

When a request is received, a call will be made for a donor who may donate annual leave in increments of eight hours. A minimum of 40 hours in a 365-day period may be donated by a donor but the donor must have a minimum of 40 hours of annual and/or sick leave in his/her account after donations are made. A donor form, available from the personnel office, must be completed before leave may be transferred.

Recipients will receive pay for the number of hours donated, but will not receive annual or sick leave accruals. The recipient must relinquish donated leave if compensation is received for the same period of time from another source, such as workers compensation, or if the Office of Personnel Services determines abuse has occurred.

Although the program is in place, no requests have yet been received. Because this is a direct-share rather than a leave bank program, donors will not be solicited until a recipient is identified. Notices will be put in The News and memos circulated when a donor is needed.

The plan concludes several years of planning and testing by state agencies of different types of model programs.

For donor or recipient request forms, please contact the Office of Personnel Services.

For questions concerning the program, contact Lois T. Parker, leave sharing administrator in personnel data services at ext. 13163.

Lintz Wins Fulbright Award

Eileen Lintz '92, has been awarded a Fulbright Teaching Assistantship in Germany. This will be the first step for her in her career path to be a German language, literature and philosophy educator, scholar and translator.

As an undergraduate, she completed a double major in philosophy and German. Last summer she attended the University of Regensburg under a scholarship from the German Academic Exchange Service.

When not teaching or preparing for instruction, Lintz plans to use her free time to take classes in German language, literature and philosophy at a German university.

Distribution Of Tickets For 300th Anniversary Party Is Planned For Mid-September

Faculty and staff members concerned about getting tickets for the College's 300th anniversary party at Busch Gardens Oct. 23 should rest assured: a block of tickets for the event has been reserved.

Faculty and staff may receive two tickets per family for the celebration. The free tickets will be distributed on a first-come, first-served basis to faculty and staff members with valid William and Mary ID cards.

Alumni will also receive two tickets per household. Faculty and staff who are also alumni of the College will be limited to two tickets per household.

Distribution will take place in mid-September. Members of the campus community will be notified of the exact date and time of this ticket distribution through campus mailings and announcements in the William and Mary News.

Alumni, faculty, staff, students and special friends of the College are being invited to this grand finale to Homecoming '93 at Busch Gardens Saturday, Oct. 23, from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. The party is being hosted by Busch Gardens Williamsburg and sponsored by Anheuser-Busch Inc., St. Louis.

Anna Agbe-Davies Wins $5,000 NCAA Scholarship

Anna Agbe-Davies

The NCAA has awarded Anna Agbe-Davies '93 a $5,000 scholarship for post-graduate study.

Agbe-Davies competed on the volleyball squad for four years. An anthropology major, she was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and made the GTE-CoSIDA Academic All-American team. She holds school records for game, season and career blocks. Agbe-Davies is also a member of Mortar Board and Omicron Delta Kappa leadership/honor society and served as a docent at the Muscarelle Museum and as a volunteer at the Andrews Gallery. This summer she is working on an archeology dig with the Jamestown Project, sponsored by the National Parks Service and the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation.

Winner of many honors, Agbe-Davies was recipient of the Martha Barksdale Award the beginning of her senior year. She has also won the Dean's Prize in Women's Studies for an essay on "Paper

In June she was recognized as W&M's candidate for the NCAA Woman of the Year.

RBC Travel Programs For 1994 Announced

Richard Bland College will sponsor several educational travel tours from eight to 12 days each, during 1994 as follows: London Theatre (four plays) and Santo Domingo in March; Greece and Italy in May; Russia and Paris/Lucerne/Venice in June; and Germany in July.

A deposit of $85 before Aug. 1 guarantees no increase in costs.

Price of tours, including airfare, hotels, meals, etc., range from $1,000 to $1,900.

For more information, call 862-6220.

Keeping Up With HACE

Plans for Employee Of The Year, Membership Drive Announced

As part of the Tercentenary celebration, HACE will award special recognition to the Employee of the Year.

Nominations must be received by Sept. 30 for the person who has made the most outstanding contributions to the College community. Anyone may nominate an employee. These nominations are not restricted to supervisors, but may also be made by co-workers. Members of the Executive Board of HACE are not eligible for this award.

All nominations must be received by Sept. 30.

The winner will be presented with a United States Savings Bond and William and Mary Tercentenary memorabilia. In addition, the Employee of the Year will be honored at a luncheon hosted by President Sullivan at the President's House.

A mailing to all HACE members and a copy of the nomination form will go out next week, President Ruth Graff said at the HACE meeting on Tuesday.

Speaker for that meeting was James S. Kelly, assistant to the president, who gave a lively, informal talk on the College, past, present and future, including anecdotal information on the administrations of Presidents Tyler to Sullivan.

Judy Hodges was designated Employee of the Month. She was unable to attend the meeting and will be recognized at the next meeting Thursday, Aug. 12, which will include a tour of the new University Center. The usual Tuesday meeting date for HACE has been changed because of the annual Service Awards program which will be held Tuesday, Aug. 10.

President Graff recalled the successes of HACE trips to VIMS and a baseball game, and said plans were being made for a trip to either CEBAF or Ash Lawn.

Anyone wishing to help with the Green and Gold Christmas for needy children was asked to contact the chair of the program, Sandy Wilms, in the President's Office. Graff said that plans were being made earlier this year to ensure success of the program, and volunteers were needed.

Graff also asked members for their input into the feasibility of another HACE cookbook. Anyone with ideas or suggestions is asked to call her at ext. 11993.

HACE will be represented at the Benefits Fair, Aug. 17, it was announced.

The Hourly and Classified Employees Association (HACE) opened its membership drive this week.

The HACE member who recruits the greatest number of new members by the end of the drive Friday, Aug. 6, will win a free 1993-94 parking decal valued at $50.

All members are eligible to participate. Each new member must note on their application the name of the person to whom their membership should be credited.

For details contact Jacqueline Smith at Personnel Services, ext. 13157.

Students Shine As Goodwill Ambassadors on European Choir Tour VI

Fifty-four students invested more than $200,000 in the trip of a lifetime this summer. Along the way they had a good time and garnered for their alma mater, priceless goodwill, praise and publicity.

The William and Mary Choir left the day after Commencement for a 44-day tour of Europe and England. The singers were received with applause for the quality of their programs. They also came home with the well wishes of hosts who took them into their hearts as well as their homes. This was the choir's sixth European tour. They spent 30 of the 44 nights of the tour with host families.

In the town of Staines, outside of London, a host family had a special welcome. They had copies of the posters from two previous tours autographed by their guests and pens ready for the 1993 students to continue the tradition. Many congratulatory letters and requests to "come again" to Director Frank T. Lendrim have followed him home.

Between Ascension Mass at Chartres Cathedral on May 19 and an evening concert at St. Peter's Church in Staines, near London, on June 28, the choir sang 34 scheduled concerts and half a dozen unscheduled concerts.

The opportunity to sing for Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth at the Drapers' Hall was certainly the high point of the stay in London. Choir Director Lendrim and Mrs. Lendrim were among those presented to the Queen, as was the president of the choir, Kathryn P. Valenta. Three choir members—James Newton, Kimberly McInnis and Jonathan Spangler—were selected by their peers for that honor. What did the Queen say? What did you say to the Queen? The answer was always the same. "I was so nervous I can't remember. It all happened so quickly." Kate Valenta said she remembers the Queen saying that they had a strenuous schedule, and turning to the whole choir, remarked that they would certainly be tired by the time they got through it all.

Former Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, the College's new Chancellor, was also at the concert and sought out the choir before the performance to chat informally with several members. Mrs. Thatcher said that as Chancellor she would like to have a copy of the music and words of the Alma Mater so she can participate. She was, she told Director Lendrim, a contralto in the Bach choir at Oxford University during her student days. Mrs. Thatcher wrote a letter of congratulation to the choir and wished them success on the rest of their tour.

One of the most elegant concert settings for the choir was the Madeleine church in Paris. The choir also sang in the New Palace in Stuttgart, Germany, as guests of the city, and in Westminster Abbey. The choir visited Geneva and Lucerne before leaving for England via The Netherlands.

In England, many concerts by the choir were part of a musical festival or a fund-raising event for a local charity.

In West Horsley the choir concert was a black-tie affair, tickets $50 each, for the church organ fund. Following the first half of the concert there was a two-hour intermission for an elegant buffet din-

Sugar Masterpiece Is Centerpiece for Employee Picnic

Centerpiece for the employee picnic on July 2 was a fantasy in sugar, a model of the ancient campus, including the Wren Building, the President's House and The Brafferton.

This remarkable work was a labor of love by Linda Tuck, manager of payroll accounting, who wanted to do something special for the College during the Tercentenary year. Earlier Tuck had made a birthday cake when the Hourly and Classified Employees Association, HACE, invited members of the campus community to the Campus Center for a cake cutting in February. (The College celebrates its birthday each year at Charter Day, Feb. 9.)

Tuck talked to HACE President Ruth Graff about ideas for something special for the July event and offered to make the sugar sculpture. Tuck says she learned her skills from her mother and for two years operated a cake decorating business from her home. It was a lot of work for little profit, she said, so she decided to close up shop and get a better job.

Tuck formed the foundation of the buildings with blocks of sugar made from cubes, mixed with egg whites. There were 18 blocks glued together for the Wren Building alone. Tuck then chipped away with a knife to carve the architectural highlights of the buildings. The roofs are made of icing tinted black. The back portion of the Wren Building roof, she said, gave her the most trouble. There aren't many pictures of that portion of the building, so she went to the archives staff at Swem Library for help.

Did it all go together smoothly? Not exactly, recalled Tuck, who said that when she was putting the finishing touch on one chimney, it suddenly cracked and crumbled.

Tuck says she has devoted a month-and-a-half of nights and weekends to the project. "But something like the Tercentenary only comes around once," she said.

While the work of making the model was exacting and time-consuming, she also had some nervous moments the day of the picnic. Tuck's husband, Steve, made three trips from their home in Providence Forge to get all parts of the masterpiece to campus. Because rain threatened, Tuck did not know whether the picnic would held in the Wren Yard or at William and Mary Hall. She made contingencies for both venues.

The rain held off and the sugar masterpiece was the center of attraction on display on the Wren portico. It is hoped that the model can be used again during the year for other College events, but Tuck is philosophical about its lifespan. It could last 20 years, but if it doesn't, Tuck says she's still glad she made it and glad she was able to have HACE prominently represented at the annual picnic.

Summer Programs On Campus

Above, students in CHAMP, Creating Higher Aspirations and Motivation Program, posed for a class picture before leaving campus July 9. Minority students who have completed the eighth grade were on campus from June 27 to July 9 for "a touch of intellectual excitement, social enrichment."

Over 400 students from Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, Ohio and Georgia applied for the program; 68 were chosen.

Currently on campus are students in the Summer Transition and Enrichment Program, STEP. This program for high school students to help them, make a positive transition from secondary education to college began July 5 and will continue until July 31.

This is the ninth year for the Virginia Student Transition Program (VSTP) which offers six weeks of academic experience for high school graduates who plan to matriculate at William and Mary in the fall. This program began June 26 and will run until August 6.

All three programs are directed by Carroll Hardy, associate vice president for student affairs.

Direct Mail To CW

Beginning Aug. 2, the College will begin regular mail collections and deliveries with the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation. This will eliminate the need to affix postage to all correspondence going to the Foundation.

The College Postal Services employees will collect and deliver mail for Colonial Williamsburg each day at approximately noon. If inter-office envelopes are used, please clearly make the recipient's name, department/location (if known) and Colonial Williamsburg Foundation as the address.

Questions concerning this new service should be directed to Patty L. Lindsey, director of postal services.

Students In Alumni College Trace Footsteps Of Jefferson

Alumni College participants visited the kitchen of the George Wythe House in Colonial Williamsburg as part of a tour retracing Thomas Jefferson's Williamsburg years. From June 24-27, the Society of the Alumni welcomed more than 120 alumni and friends back to campus for the largest-ever Alumni College program. "Thomas Jefferson: His World and Ours" celebrated the College's Tercentenary, as well as the 250th anniversary of William and Mary's most distinguished alumnus.

The program included lectures and events in Williamsburg, and special tours of the state capitol in Richmond, Monticello and Ash Lawn-Highland in Charlottesville.

Faculty members Robert Gross, David Holmes, James Kornwolf, James McCord and Thad Tate participated in the program along with Jefferson scholar Merrill Peterson and alumni Alf Mapp '45 and Mick Nicholls '72 Ph.D.

ner. As part of a three-day visit, the choir also sang at a Sunday evensong service. One of the concerns of planners was that Frank Lendrim's spirited playing of the organ of St. Mary's Church might lead parishioners to doubt the need for a new organ.

Warned by their hosts on the continent that English food was dull, choir members rallied to the defense of British cuisine in many instances and thought it quite good. There were exceptions. A lunch of steak and kidney pie at Hever Castle may have been a one-time experience for some who were wary of this British classic. One student, mishearing the menu asked if he could be excused from eating steak and "kitten" pie.

In Malvern, choir members were taken on a two-and-a-half-hour tour of the hills where composer Edward Elgar sought inspiration. Huffing and puffing, choir members came back, some wondering just how high a hill had to be before it could be called a mountain. It was no consolation to them to learn that their guide was 82-years-old.

As choir president Kathryn Valenta explained in the talk she gave at each concert about the choir and the College, "We're looking at everything that has something to do with William and Mary, as part of our special tercentenary tour." That included the palace at Het Loo, where William and Mary lived before they went to England in 1689, and the main building of the Royal Hospital at Chelsea, home to 400 service veterans. Started by Charles II, it was designed by Sir Christopher Wren and completed for William and Mary.

One of the hallmarks of the 1993 touring choir was the willingness of members to adapt cheerfully to a rigorous schedule, long days and unexpected changes.

After a concert at the fashionable girls school of Westonbirt the choir was scheduled to spend the night in nearby lodgings. It wasn't until just before the concert that Lendrim was informed of a change; the choir would go to Cheltenham, about an hour away, for lodging at a youth hostel there. There was a map; all would be fine, Lendrim was assured.

Everything wasn't fine. The map to the hostel was not adequate, and near midnight, choir members were out in the rain, walking on the sides of the road, using the headlights from the bus to find the elusive hostel sign. But the choir took the inconvenience in stride.

At a stop in Sherbourne, the tour itinerary included an evening concert in the Abbey. Into that day was also packed an outdoor afternoon concert at a nearby convalescent home as well as a mini-concert by the Botetourt Singers to a house-bound resident who was celebrating his birthday. The choir sang on the front lawn beneath a garland of American flags, which had been put up for the occasion. The students were rewarded for stretching their day with a traditional summer English tea of strawberries and cream.

The sumptuous tea laid on for the choir at Leeds Castle is part of choir legend and has, in the past, been the opportunity for a scone eating contest. This year's contest was thwarted because the size of the scones had doubled.

Despite long bus trips, luggage that never got lighter but heavier, minor aches and pains and the desire for a real American shower instead of European plumbing, students kept a sense of humor in the face of a demanding schedule. It was an exciting and an emotional trip. There was a real bond of friendship forged by the students and a heightened appreciation of the College they'd left behind in Williamsburg.

In the village of Backwell near Bristol, England, the minister of the church asked for the applause to die down and if the choir would sing "The Star Spangled Banner" as a finale. This was the first time on the trip that the students had sung their own national anthem. Memories of home flooded their thoughts and many tears were shed by the singers and members of the audience who shared their emotions.

One morning before the bus pulled out choir member Kimberly McGinnis got on the loudspeaker to express her thoughts on the past evening's performance. "I just wanted to tell you how proud I felt last night and how proud I am to be here with you."

First International Physics Olympiad In U.S. Is Held On Campus

awarded to individual students based on their scores on physics exams that tested both theory and experimentation.

The U.S. team won a gold medal a silver, two bronze and an honorable mention. Eastern European students dominated the event, collecting 12 gold medals. Students from China finished first and third in the competition.

Judy R. Franz, chair of the examination committee, said this year's Olympiad was the largest ever. She said she regretted there were so few girls and hoped there would be more at future Olympiads. There were five girls in the roster of 200 students here for the Olympiad.

Student delegates represented the following nations: Australia, Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Canada, China, Croatia, Colombia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Estonia, Finland, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Iceland, India, Indonesia, Italy, Republic of Korea, Kuwait, Lithuania, Mexico, The Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Romania, Russia, Singapore, Slovenia, Slovakia, Spain, Surinam, Sweden, Thailand, Turkey, Ukraine, Vietnam, United Kingdom and The United States of America.

The organizing committee included vonBaeyer, and Champion; Anthony P. French, M.I.T.; Bernard V. Khoury and Delores Mason, American Association of Physics Teachers; Patricia Allen Rourke, St. Stephen's and St. Agnes Schools, Virginia; Yvette Van Hise, High Technology High School, New Jersey; and Jack M. Wilson, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.
