Convocation And CW Party Renew Traditions

Maya Angelou To Speak At Opening Convocation Aug. 24

President Sullivan will bring back the tradition of an opening convocation Aug. 24 with noted poet and writer Maya Angelou as the principal speaker. Gillian Cell, the College's new provost, will preside.

The 1993 convocation will be held at 3 p.m., Tuesday, Aug. 24, in William and Mary Hall. Undergraduate classes for the 1993-94 academic year begin Wednesday, Aug. 25.

The convocation is open to all members of the William and Mary community and to the public. Admission is free and no tickets are needed.

Opening convocations were a tradition at William and Mary until the late 1960s. Last spring, while being interviewed for the position of president, President Sullivan said he would bring back the event as a way of enhancing the sense of community at the College.

Angelou has been a respected poet and writer since the appearance of her first book, I Know Why the Caged Bird Sings, in 1970. Since 1981, she has been Reynolds Professor at Wake Forest University, a lifetime appointment.

The hour-long ceremony will include an academic procession and remarks from the faculty by David L. Holmes, professor of religion and 1993 recipient of the Thomas Ashley Graves Jr. Award for Excellence in Teaching. After the event, refreshments will be served in the Wren Yard.

Deans and department heads have been asked to allow staff members to attend the ceremony and reception where possible. Essential College personnel will remain on duty.

A Colonial Williamsburg Welcome

Colonial Williamsburg is also reviving a tradition with a royal welcome for members of the freshman class. Members of the class of 1997 will be feted at a welcoming ceremony on Saturday, Aug. 21, in the Historic Area.

Students will be welcomed by the Royal Governor, who will invite them to enjoy the sights, sounds and hospitality of Colonial Williamsburg. At 7:45 p.m. the Fife and Drum Corps will escort students to Merchants Square for an evening of discounted shopping and a jazz concert.

President's Party

This year President and Mrs. Sullivan will welcome faculty back for the 1993-94 school session with a Garden Party from 5 to 7 p.m., Friday, Sept. 10 in the Wren Yard. William and Mary Hall will be used in the event of rain.

Williamsburg Jazz, an ensemble that features members of the W&M community, including Gene Tracy and Herbert Funsten, physics; Peter Kushnik, CEBAF; Jay Chambers, former director of the counseling center; senior Scott Hirsch; and Williamsburg dentist Tom Bowe, will provide music for the occasion. Light food and beverages will be served.

If the weather looks questionable on the day of the party, faculty members may call ext. 13868 for a recorded message concerning rain plans.

Botetourts on CBS Morning Show Aug. 27

The Botetourt Chamber Singers of the William and Mary Choir will sing the theme song of the CBS morning show on Aug. 27. The show airs from 7 to 9 a.m. over Channel 3.

Campaign Reaches Goal, But Drive Will Continue

As of June 30, the end of the 1993 fiscal year, the $150 million goal of the Campaign for the Fourth Century has been surpassed, according to Edward T. Allenby, vice president for university advancement, but the campaign will continue to raise funds for the College's priorities into the fall.

According to Allenby, fiscal year 1993 campaign totals, when coupled with prior commitments, bring the campaign to $150,270,000. He cautions, however, that the campaign is far from over.

"Any dollar goal for a campaign is secondary to the needs the campaign is addressing," he explained. "This campaign was conceived as a vehicle to help the College tackle fundamental needs in the areas of faculty support, student support, program enrichment and capital needs. While we have made tremendous strides in these areas, significant challenges remain."

Allenby said he anticipates a formal announcement and celebration of the campaign's conclusion during the College's October Homecoming event. He said this timing is compelling for several reasons.

"First, this will allow us an opportunity to focus on those areas in the campaign which remain undersubscribed, such as acquisition funds for the Library. Second, it will give those who have not participated in the drive a chance to do so. Finally, the timing of a celebration in October will enable students, faculty and alumni to share in the celebration."

"The success of this campaign reflects the tireless efforts of many dedicated people," said President Timothy J. Sullivan. "The College has benefited greatly from the generosity of its alumni and friends. By concentrating on an October celebration we will have the opportunity to direct our attention toward satisfying all our campaign goals, thereby completing a campaign which is truly worthy of a tercentenary."

One area of continued special focus is program enrichment, which includes funding for academic programs, the library and the Muscarelle Museum. Enhancement of the College's libraries has been a major objective of the campaign, and support for the College's collection of rare books and manuscripts remains a high priority.

Capital construction is another area that will receive additional attention. Meeting the needs of an expanding academic program requires construction of additional facilities, Allenby said. These projects include the private funding component of Tercentenary Hall, which will add a new science facility, and the expansion of the Alumni House. In addition to new construction, the College must maintain its historic buildings to preserve its architectural legacy.

HACE Members Tour New University Center

Members of the Hourly and Classified Employees Association recently toured the new University Center. The 95,000-square-foot structure will serve as the link between the old and new campuses. The building includes structural elements found in old campus buildings, but also incorporates new architectural features, including large window areas and courtyards. The center will house a bookstore/convenience store, a rathskeller/cafe, a post office with 6,000 boxes, a game room, a 450-seat auditorium, a 350-seat dining facility, a ballroom, conference rooms, a student lounge and a main lobby with a three-story circular staircase.

Professor Mario Zamora Dies In Richmond

Mario D. Zamora, 58, professor of anthropology and president-elect of the International Union of Anthropological and Ethnological Sciences, died of cancer, Thursday, Aug. 12, at the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond.

Throughout his 20-year tenure at the College, Dr. Zamora was tireless in his efforts to promote on campus the international aspects of his chosen field of study—anthropology.

He studied in the Philippines and India, and received his Ph.D. from Cornell University. Former professor of anthropology and dean of the University of the Philippines at Baguio, Dr. Zamora was also director general of the Philippine government's National Research Center for Ethnic Minorities and head of the Museum and Institute of Ethnology and Archaeology.

A specialist on India and the Philippines, he published extensively and was one of the founding editors of the international and interdisciplinary journal Studies in Third World Societies, which began publication in 1974. He served on the editorial boards of several international journals. Dr. Zamora was editor of the International Journal of Asian and African Studies and founding editor of The Association of Third World Anthropologist Research Bulletin. His most recent book, The Indigenes of the Islands of the Philippines, was published in Spain in 1992.

Dr. Zamora was the first Adlai Stevenson Research Fellow to the United States from the Philippines and was honored by his alma mater in 1980 as one of 10 recipients of the Outstanding Filipino Overseas Award in 1979 in the field of education. He taught at the University in Trondheim, Norway, as a Fulbright Professor.

He brought international speakers, who were playing an active role in the affairs of their countries, to the campus for lectures. Senator Benigno Aquino Jr. of the Philippines was brought here by Dr. Zamora to inaugurate a lecture series, which was later named the Benigno Aquino Memorial Lecture Series in honor of the assassinated statesman. Dr. Zamora also actively supported the Mahatma Gandhi Freedom lecture series. He was an adviser to student international organizations on campus.

His ties with international organizations took him to many parts of the world. Most recently he was in Mexico to finalize plans for the 14th World Congress of the International Union of Anthropological and Ethnological Sciences, which will be held at the College in the summer of 1998. Professor Tomoko Hamada of the anthropology department has been named executive secretary for the Congress and will carry on Dr. Zamora's work for the meeting.

In a letter to the College community Thursday, President Timothy J. Sullivan described Dr. Zamora as "an excellent scholar and a great teacher who inspired many students to pursue careers in anthropology. Everywhere he went he brought warm friendship and joy to so many people. His goal was to promote understanding among people through anthropological diplomacy."

His ability to communicate was reiterated by his colleague Nathan Altshuler, professor of anthropology emeritus, who said, "Mario Zamora had the gift of making close friends wherever he went. His contributions to the department and the College are immeasurable. He had the ability to bring together students, faculty and world leaders and to create real multicultural dialogue."

He is survived by his wife, Dr. Maria Luz Mercado; four daughters, Nerissa Guensch of Northern Virginia; Lili Zamora and Sarah Zamora of Newport News and Grace Zamora of Williamsburg; three sons, Greg Zamora of Virginia Beach, Morris Zamora of Northern Virginia and Jovi Zamora of Williamsburg; his father, Leon Zamora; brothers and sisters; and three grandchildren.

A funeral mass was held at 10 a.m. Saturday at St. Bede's Catholic Church by the Rev. William H. Carr. Burial was private Memorials may be sent to the Mario D. Zamora Memorial Fund, c/o Dept. of Anthropology, College of William and Mary, P.O. Box 8795, Williamsburg, VA 23187-8795.

Memorial Service for Richard Fiske

A service of remembrance and celebration of the life of Richard Fiske will be held at noon on Friday, Aug. 27, in the Wren Chapel.

Richard E. Fiske, 41, of Temple, N.H., was enrolled in the master's computer science program at the College last year. He died July 13 at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center in Worcester from injuries sustained in an automobile accident in Peterborough earlier the same day.

Fiske was a highly accomplished guitarist and vocalist and for the past nine years had been employed as assistant director of student financial management at Keene State College.

Mr. Fiske was a founder of the Monadnock Area Housing Coalition of Keene and had served as the first resident manager of the home and later on the board of directors for several years.

In addition to his parents, three brothers and nine sisters, Mr. Fiske is survived by his daughter Michaela in Keene; and his fiancee, Laura Brown of Williamsburg.

Memorial donations may be made to the Monadnock Area Housing Coalition, c/o James Sitham, P.O. Box 003, Keene, NH 03431.

Parking Restrictions On Aug. 20

There will be no parking in several areas on Friday. Aug. 20. The restrictions, explains Sandra Scott of parking services, are to facilitate the moving-in process for members of the Class of 1997 and their families.

James Blair Drive from Blow Hall to Richmond Road, Landrum Hall to Jamestown Road (dorm side), Hunt Circle, Campus Drive from Yates Drive to Landrum Drive, Wake Drive and the Yates Lot will be reserved Aug. 20 for use by incoming students only.

McConachie To Spend Year In Poland On Fulbright Grant

Bruce McConachie leaves Friday for Warsaw, Poland, where he will spend next year as a professor at the University of Warsaw under a Fulbright grant. This is an especially exciting assignment for McConachie, because of his interest in Polish theatre, especially the successful avant garde movement there. He hopes to produce a Polish play for William and Mary Theatre when he returns.

McConachie plans to seek the help of his Polish students next year to gain more insight into contemporary Polish theatre. He plans to invite his students to join him at performances and learn from their reactions to what's on stage. McConachie will teach three courses in American Studies. All his classes will be seminars of 10 to 25 students. Classes begin Oct. 1 and do not meet as often as those on American campuses. His students will be fourth- and fifth-year students completing master's degrees, which he explains are about the equivalent of a William and Mary B.A. with an honors thesis.

From former exchange professors and orientation sessions, McConachie has learned that Polish students will be well schooled in English, intense in their desire to learn and be very polite. Poland only sends about 5 percent of its population to a university. The Polish system, which is not very popular, gives placement exams to all students at age 14. The results of these examinations, like the old English 12 plus system, determine whether a student will be permitted to pursue an academic track leading to a university education or whether he or she will be assigned to trade schools and apprenticeships. The system is not popular, said McConachie. But, he explains, since teachers have seen very few raises recently and are often pushed to work more than one job to make ends meet, they are in no mood to give time to educational reforms.

Enroute to Poland, he will present two papers at a theatre conference in Helsinki, Finland. His topics focus on theatre historiography and an analysis of performance.

McConachie will leave with his 16-year old son, who will enroll in an American school in Warsaw. His wife, a public school principal in the area, hopes to join her husband in the spring for a vacation and a trip to explore her family roots in the Ukraine. The family will be together for Christmas in Europe.

With the permission of patrons, social security numbers can be loaded into the data base, where they will be protected from unauthorized use.

In compliance with Virginia Code, Section 2.1-285, the libraries are requesting permission to use patrons' social security numbers within their data base.

If this is not acceptable, patrons are asked to notify Linda Adams, circulation coordinator, Swem Library, in writing, by Sept. 30.

Failure to respond will register as permission.

Michael A. Powell, Affirmative Action Director, Doesn't Intend To Be Office-Bound Executive

Michael A. Powell, newly appointed assistant to the president and director of affirmative action, will become a familiar face on campus. He doesn't plan to be an office-bound administrator.

"My M.O. is to be very visible on campus," he said. "I think it is important for administrators to get from behind their desks and have contact with faculty and students. If you stay surrounded by individuals with similar jobs, you are apt to have a skewed view of things. You need to get out regularly and get a reality

As director of affirmative action, Powell will be the principal adviser for developing programs and policies that enhance racial, cultural and gender diversity. In addition, he will ensure that the College's programs are accessible to persons with disabilities and will direct the Office of Affirmative Action and Equal Employment Opportunity.

The hallmark of my work is that I am very pro-active. I'd rather anticipate a problem and seek a solution than respond to crises," he said.

Higher education, in general, he feels has lingering problems—the old issue of diversity and the perception that there is an inverse relationship between diversity and academic standards. Powell also would like to see higher education undertake a broader perspective on curriculums and not be solely Eurocentric.

Michael A. Powell

In his new position, Powell plans to work for diversity and inclusion of under-represented groups among the faculty, staff and student population and to make sure that the climate on campus is conducive to fostering affirmative action and equal employment opportunity goals.

A lawyer by training, Powell said he is delighted with the opportunity to work on a university campus. He says he enjoys the opportunity to interact with students and hopes he can make a positive impact on the institution.

Powell had plans to become a Marine Corps attorney and eventually move into public life. When his bar exam results were released too late for him to enter Officer Training School, he took a job at the University of Maryland, College Park, as an interim position until he could reapply for OCS. Then when he broke his toe, he began thinking that lady luck or fate was trying to point him away from the Marines. He enjoyed his work at the University of Maryland, especially the vitality of a university campus. Maryland was an active campus, he recalls, "there was never a dull moment."

Powell, former assistant to the president for equal employment opportunity and affirmative action at the University of Tulsa, began his duties here on Aug. 1. His appointment was approved July 30 by the College Board of Visitors.

Powell has a bachelor's degree and a law degree from the University of Maryland. From 1986 to 1991, he was a campus compliance officer at the University of Maryland. He had been at the University of Tulsa since 1991

Powell's office is in Apt. 3 of College Apartments on North Boundary Street at Prince George St. His extension is

Classes Canceled on Oct. 22 to Accommodate 'Academic Festival'

Many classes will be canceled from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 22, to accommodate special seminars for the thousands of alumni who will be returning to campus for Homecoming '93.

The seminars are part of an "Academic Festival," organized by Jayne Barnard, associate professor of law, as part of the Tercentenary celebration during an expanded Homecoming celebration. More than 75 special seminars have been scheduled over three days, with most set for Oct. 22.

"Arranging faculty and room schedules for the special seminars proved to be difficult," said David Lutzer, dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences and acting provost while the planning took place. Faculty and student groups, including the Arts and Sciences Educational Policy Committee, were consulted. The committee recommended canceling classes on Oct. 22 to accommodate the seminars.

All classes in Arts and Sciences, and the schools of Business, Education, Law and Marine Science will be canceled for the six-hour period. The exception will be regularly scheduled science laboratories. Faculty in charge of the labs may choose to cancel those sessions on an individual basis.

duPont Fund Gives $60,000 For Public Service Initiative

The Jessie Ball duPont Fund has given $60,000, payable over two years, to the College to support a campuswide public service initiative.

The gift will establish an office of public service and coordinator of public and community service within the division of student affairs. The remaining funds will be used for promotional and informational materials to advance public service activities on campus.

The new office will match students with volunteer service opportunities, act as a liaison with community agencies, publicize and promote service activities, and recognize achievements in public service through the annual President's Public Service Awards.

In addition, the office will train service volunteers, coordinate transportation, evaluate public service experiences and act as a troubleshooter between students and clients.

"The culture of service is certainly not new to William and Mary. We regard public service as one of the College's noblest of traditions, one that we will carry forward into the College's fourth century," said President Timothy J. Sullivan.

In his inaugural speech last October, Sullivan called for the College community to seize the moment and move the theme of public service into greater prominence. As a first step, the president appointed a study group that defined objectives for creating a culture of service at the College and recommended strategies for meeting those objectives. Among the strategies recommended were the creation of a full-time coordinator of public and community service and the development of new publications and other promotional materials.

VIMS Executive Secretary Sees Discs Replace Carbons

When Alice Tillage came to work at VIMS on Oct. 16, 1962, there were about eople working at the facility on the York River—everyone in the organization could gather in one room for a coffee break. Not so any more. Many things have changed at VIMS. The small operation of 30 years ago has grown into a graduate school with an international reputation with about 450 working there.

It used to be, she recalled, she would spend a good portion of her time filing. With computers, many filing cabinets now stand idle while material is retained on computer discs. When she started work, Tillage did a lot of manuscript work. The memory of producing an error-free original with five carbon copies is still vivid, she said. "You had to be so precise, then. I'm not sure I could do it now." The self-correcting electric typewriters, once thought to be the secretary's friend, have now been re-said Tillage. The time that used to be placed by computers. If typewriters do spent typing and filing has enabled the exist in offices now, their only use is for addressing envelopes or filling in forms.

Despite the advances in technology the pressure of work has not diminished, workload to increase.

Alice Tillage

Tillage went to work for the AMOCO refinery after graduation and worked four years until her son was born. She planned to stay home, but a year later opportunity of a job close by was tempting; she applied and was hired.

Although Tillage has retained her title of executive secretary to the director for biological sciences, reorganizations and five different bosses have kept the job interesting. With bosses whose specialties have varied from plankton, seagrasses and fishes, Tillage's work has not lacked Tillage has also enjoyed the international aspects of her work. She has developed freindships with faculty and students from Australia, England, Alaska, Venezuela, India and China.

A widow, Tillage lives in Gloucester. She enjoys cooking and likes to have dinner parties with her friends. Not one to be idle for long, she does, however, slow down long enough to enjoy boating on the York River. She doesn't fish, she just likes to cruise on the river and enjoy an onboard picnic on Sundays. On Saturdays she likes to shop for antiques.

Personnel Services Details Latest Health Care Benefits

School Leave Policy Expanded

The policy on Leave to Assist Schools and Students may now be used for activities and events that take place in preschool programs. This policy modification is effective June 1, 1993, and will allow parents and guardians to take leave for any early-childhood program that serves children from birth to school-age as long as they are in the program a minimum of nine (9) hours per week. All eligible preschool programs, including home-based ones, must be registered or licensed with the Virginia Department of Social Services. The maximum amount of leave that can be taken under this policy has not changed. Eight (8) hours may be taken in a calendar year, and should be reported in the "Comments" section of the leave form.

The number of hours taken, as well as the name of the day care provider must be included on the leave form. If you have questions regarding the school leave policy, contact Lois Parker, in the Office of Personnel Services at ext. 13163.

Employee Benefits Under Family and Medical Leave Act of 1993

FMLA requires covered employers to provide up to 12 weeks of unpaid, job-protected leave to "eligible" employees for certain family and medical reasons. Employees are eligible if they have worked for a covered employer for at least one year, and for 1,250 hours over the previous 12 months, and if there are at least 50 employees within 75 miles.

Reasons for Taking Leave: Unpaid leave must be granted for any of the following reasons:

- to care for the employee's child after birth, or placement for adoption or foster care;
- to care for the employee's spouse, son or daughter, or parent, who has a serious health condition; or
- for a serious health condition that makes the employee unable to perform the employee's job.

At the employee's or employer's option, certain kinds of paid leave may be substituted for unpaid leave.

Advance Notice and Medical Certification: The employee may be required to provide advance leave notice and medical certification. Taking of leave may be denied if requirements are not met.

• The employee ordinarily must provide 30 days advance notice when the leave is "foreseeable."

• An employer may require medical certification to support a request for leave because of a serious health condition, and may require second or third opinions (at the employer's expense) and a fitness for duty report to return to work.

Job Benefits and Protection:

- For the duration of FMLA leave, the employer must maintain the employee's health coverage under any "group health plan."
- Upon return from FMLA leave, most employees must be restored to their original or equivalent positions with equivalent pay, benefits and other employment terms
- The use of FMLA leave cannot result in the loss of any employment benefit that accrued prior to the start of an employee's leave.

Unlawful Acts by Employers: FMLA makes it unlawful for any employer to:

- interfere with, restrain or deny the exercise of any right provided under FMLA;
- discharge or discriminate against any person for opposing any practice made unlawful by FMLA or for involvement in any proceeding under or relating to FMLA.

Enforcement:

- The U.S. Department of Labor is authorized to investigate and resolve complaints of violations.
- An eligible employee may bring a civil action against an employer for violations.

FMLA does not affect any federal or state law prohibiting discrimination, or supersede any state or local law or collective bargaining agreement which provides greater family or medical leave rights.

For Additional Information: Contact the nearest office of the Wage and Hour Division, listed in most telephone directories under U.S. Government, Department of Labor, or Lois Parker, Office of Personnel Services, ext. 13163.

Until the classified leave form is modified, unpaid family and medical leave should be reported as "425-Parental Leave Without Pay." Contact Becky Kinnison at ext. 15159 or Lois Parker, ext. 13163.

Reimbursement Filing Period Ends Sept. 30, 1993

The 1993 flexible reimbursement accounts short plan year ended June 30, 1993. All funds that were set aside in the flexible benefits accounts must be used for expenses incurred during the participant's coverage period. According to the Internal Revenue Service's tax code, any money left in the accounts after a "three-month timely filing period" will be forfeited. This three-month period ends Sept. 30, 1993. Participants in the flexible reimbursements programs should file any outstanding claims as soon as possible to make full use of funds remaining in the accounts before the Sept. 30 deadline. If you have any questions about individual reimbursement accounts or IRS rules contact Rita Metcalfe, Office of Personnel Services at ext.

Key Advantage Now Includes Coverage For Hepatitis B Immunizations

In the past, coverage for Hepatitis B immunizations was not covered in the Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Virginia plans. The Key Advantage plan, however, now covers immunizations that are recommended by the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP). Because the AAP recommends that children be immunized against Hepatitis B, Key Advantage now includes coverage for this immunization.

Coverage for Hepatitis B immunizations is provided for immunizations received since Aug. 1, 1992. Any employees with children eligible for well-baby benefits under the Key Advantage program, and who received Hepatitis B immunizations since Aug. 1, 1992, will receive benefits. If you or your provider submitted a claim to BCBSVA for the immunizations, BCBSVA will re-process the claim and make the appropriate payment. If no claim was submitted to BCBSVA, you or your provider must submit a claim to receive payment.

If you have questions about Hepatitis B immunizations, call BCBSVA's customer service unit at 1-800-552-2682 or Rita Metcalfe at 221-3158.

Key Advantage Out-of-Network Referrals

In order for you to receive the full benefits of the Key Advantage plan, your primary care physicians must refer you to a provider who participates in the BCBSVA referral network for the Key Advantage Plan.

Key advantage will pay a reduced benefit of 75 percent to those who do not receive a referral, or who are referred to a non-participating provider. If there is no network provider for the services needed, or if there is a life-threatening or urgent situation, then BCBSVA will authorize full benefits (100% of the allowable charge) from any licensed provider. BCBSVA also will authorize full benefits for care received from a nonparticipating provider when there is no network participant within 50 miles. Individual consideration and exceptions are granted when it is in the best interest of the patient and the Commonwealth for the patient to be cared for by a nonparticipating provider.

To avoid a reduction in payment, authorization of all benefits for services received from a non-participating provider must be received in advance unless the services are directly related to a medical emergency.

In medical emergencies, authorization must be requested within 48 hours of receiving emergency services. Authorization may be requested from BCBSVA by dialing CALL ONE, 1-800-242-7277.

All employees in Key Advantage need to remember that even with an authorization, they may be billed by non-participating providers for charges in excess of BCBSVA's allowable charge. Non-participating providers are not required to accept BCBSVA's allowance as payment in full, and may bill employees separately for excess charges.

You should be cautious when receiving services from a non-participating hospital. If you wish to receive in-patient services in a non-participating hospital, and any portion of the stay is denied because the stay was not pre-certified or the services are determined not to be medically necessary, then the employee is responsible for the cost of these services. In contrast, if you are admitted to a participating hospital by a participating primary care physician, then you would not be held responsible for the costs of the denied services unless notice is given in advance that the services are not considered medically necessary.

End-Of-Campaign Celebration May Be Held In October

The campaign has exceeded financial expectations in the areas of faculty support, unrestricted endowment and current operational needs. Strong progress has also been made in the area of student support. New professorships, faculty chairs, artists-in-residence, graduate fellowships, and scholarships based on need and merit have been developed.

Dennis Slon, director of development, said that perhaps the single most successful aspect of the campaign has been the increase in annual cash flow at a time when state support to the College has been declining. "The campaign has provided a valuable source of restricted and unrestricted funding during very tight times," Slon said.

Yearly cashflow increased from $14.4 million in fiscal year 1992 to $16.9 million in the 1993 fiscal year, establishing a new record for William and Mary. The campaign began in 1986 with a private phase as the largest fund-raising effort in the College's history. The goal was to triple the College's permanent endowment of $48 million, providing ongoing funding to build its status among the nation's leading small public universities. As of June 30, the endowment exceeds $121 million, and commitments to be paid during the next few years will enable this goal to be achieved, Allenby

Other goals of the campaign were to introduce an awareness of the importance of private support to the College and to encourage participation from alumni and friends in William and Mary's volunteer and fund-raising programs. More than 40,000 gifts have been made to the campaign, and private support of the College has grown from about $5 million to $17 million annually.

"The campaign is an unqualified success in meeting these goals," President Sullivan said.

Public Meeting Slated For Community Playground Project

A public meeting has been called for 7 p.m., Thursday, Aug. 19, at the Human Services Building, 5249 Old Towne Rd. to discuss plans for a new community-built playground for area children to be built on land donated by James City County at Mid-County Park on Ironbound Road.

The "Create-A-Playground" committee of local parents is seeking citizen support for a project, which will bring to the area a facility similar to "Fort Fun" in Newport News and "Kid's Cove" in Virginia Beach. The Williamsburg facility will also cater to the needs of special children in the community.

Thursday night's meeting is the first step in the process, which will include the presentation of ideas from the children who will use the program. A contest to name the new playground will also be held.

Learning Structures, Inc., of Portsmouth, N.H., the company that has been retained by the committee to oversee the design and construction of the playground, has been involved in the creation of more than 300 playgrounds in more than 17 states. It is hoped that the building of the playground, which will mirror a New England barn-raising, can be accomplished by community volunteers in the spring of 1994,

For additional information on the playground project, call Geri Smith-Benjamin at 565-4452, or write "Create-A-Playground," P.O. Box 1613, Williamsburg, VA 23187-1613.
