Anstee To Get First Reves Peace Prize

International Symposium Sept. 24-25 Seeks 'Genuine Peace'

By Peggy Shaw
University Relations

When the Wendy and Emery Reves Center for International Studies was dedicated in 1989, keynote speaker Bill Moyers told the audience what Emery Reves, who had lost members of his own family to Nazi violence, had to say about peace: "We shall never have it if we do not have the courage to understand what it is and pay the price it costs."

The current Palestinian-Israeli peace breakthrough indicates that this courage can sometimes be found in a world torn by incoherent violence, according to James A. Bill, director of the Reves Center.

Helping each other to understand the nature of peace is at the heart of the Reves Center's Sept. 24-25 symposium, "Beyond the Nation-State: Transforming Visions of Human Society." The symposium will bring together some 50 distinguished scholars, jurists and policy-makers from around the world to discuss changes taking place in this post-Cold War era.

William and Mary, which has a long and venerable history in the study of foreign languages, cultures and societies, is a particularly appropriate place for such an unprecedented discussion.

"Here on the campus of the College of William and Mary is a peace front," Moyers said. "It is the place where if we listen attentively we can hear those faint fluttering wings, the gentle stirrings of life and hope which Camus said were the harbingers of peace."

William and Mary is also well positioned to host this symposium because of the existence of Reves Center itself, according to Bill. "The core of our faculty members' research touches on this subject," he said.

Plans for the symposium evolved last year when 20 William and Mary faculty members banded together to begin an ambitious 24-month program of public lectures, faculty workshops and international debate on the possibilities of genuine peace. According to Michael Clark, assistant director of the Reves Center and coordinator of the symposium, the intention of the debate is to "propose a new vision of human society."

"This work is being done by single individuals scattered all over the world—in Algeria, England, France, Mexico, Thailand and America," said Bill. "We've sought to find these people and bring them together to brainstorm the future."

According to Clark, the result will be an international dialogue that should help define William and Mary's future contribution to international education and research. Participants will include: John Dunn and Michael Mann of Great Britain; Algerian jurist Mohammed Bedjaoui; Jorge Castaneda of Mexico; and Americans Stephen Toulmin and Manfred Halpern.

If the symposium participants have one thing in common, it is most likely the belief that everyone must give up old ways of seeing the world in order to achieve world peace. In his 1945 best-selling book, The Anatomy of Peace, Reves suggested that the nation-state system made violence and war inevitable. Achieving lasting international peace, he said, could only be accomplished by reaching beyond narrow, national self-interests.

Board Of Visitors Gets Report On Decline In Faculty Salaries

By Ray Betzner
University Relations

William and Mary's faculty salaries are losing ground when compared to peer institutions, the College Board of Visitors learned last week.

In a report to the board Friday morning, Vice President for Budget and Planning Samuel E. Jones said the Commonwealth of Virginia's commitment to higher faculty salaries during the period 1986-90 had brought faculty salaries up when compared with two different groups of peers.

By 1989-90, College faculty ranked above the 70th percentile among a group of state peers and approached the 50th percentile among alternate peers, taking into account all public and private funding sources.

The state peer group is used as a benchmark by the state to establish the College's faculty salary average. The alternate peer group was established by a William and Mary committee in 1989 while examining undergraduate enrollments.

However, since 1990, comparisons with both groups show the College's faculty have lost ground, said Jones. By 1992-93, College salaries had fallen from the 70th percentile to the 43rd in the state peers comparison, and from the 50th to the 24th in the alternate peers. Essentially, in three years the College lost all the advantage gained during the 1986-1990 period.

With a potential $500 million budget shortfall during the 1994-96 biennium, the Commonwealth's ability to address faculty salaries may be limited. However, the State Council of Higher Education has recommended increased support for faculty salaries as their highest priority in any allocation of state funds.

The report was the second dose of bad economic news for the board. The day before, they were guests at a faculty gathering in Millington Hall where President Timothy J. Sullivan discussed the possible budget cuts.

"If I was (a faculty member) in the audience yesterday, I would want to hear this board say it wants to solve the salary problem," said James B. Murray Jr., vice rector of the board.

Aside from the state's general fund appropriation and nongeneral funds such as tuition, alternative sources for faculty salaries are private support or the reprogramming of base funds among College operations.

Murray estimated it would take $10 million to $15 million in private money to build an endowment large enough to bring faculty salaries into a competitive range. He said that a plan to improve faculty salaries through private sources should be developed.

College Preparing Plan To Cope With Proposed Budget Cuts

By Ray Betzner
University Relations

William and Mary—like all state colleges and universities—is working under a tight deadline to submit alternative budget plans that include a 10 and 15 percent reduction for each year in the 1994-96 biennium.

The potential reductions are being examined after Gov. L. Douglas Wilder announced earlier this month that a $500 million deficit is possible during the 1994-96 period.

President Timothy Sullivan last week said he is relying heavily on the advice of Provost Gillian Cell in preparing the recommendations, which must be sent to state Secretary of Education Karen J. Peterson by Sept. 20. Cell, in turn, is working with the academic deans and the University Policy Advisory Committee in preparing information for the president.

"Secretary Peterson's letter is a little like the recurrence of a wasting disease we had thought we had overcome," said Sullivan during a speech to faculty on Thursday.

"The Commonwealth of Virginia has abandoned its commitment to higher education, and has pursued the 'politics of convenience' when making tough economic decisions," said the president.

"The truth is, the Commonwealth of Virginia has no higher education policy," he told the faculty.

Statistically, Virginia has fallen from 11th to 43rd over the last four years in support to higher education, when compared with other states in the nation.

In addition, the amount of state general fund revenue going to higher education has dropped from 15.3 percent to about 12 percent in

Five Faculty Receive
Alumni Fellowships

NEWSMAKERS

Five Faculty Members Receive Alumni Awards

Recipients of the Alumni Fellowship awards this year are Eugene M. Burreson, professor of marine science; C. Lawrence Evans, associate professor of government; Katherine M. Kulick, associate professor of modern languages and literatures; Marc Sher, assistant professor of physics; and Ilya Spitkovsky, professor of mathematics.

Burreson joined the faculty in 1979. He was honored with the Outstanding Teacher Award in 1989. His many research grants include a 1993 grant from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration to study the revitalization of the Chesapeake Bay's oyster industry.

Evans is currently on leave working in Washington, D.C., for the Joint Committee on the Organization of Congress. He is the author of the recent book Leadership in Committee: A Comparative Analysis of Leadership Behavior in the U.S. Senate. Evans has been a member of the faculty since 1987.

Kulick serves as the coordinator of the French section within the department of modern languages and literatures, which she joined in 1987. She is the co-author of seven French textbooks and has conducted numerous language education workshops in the U.S. and abroad. Kulick joined the faculty in 1987.

Sher is the author of 65 published articles and has presented papers at physics conferences in the U.S. and abroad. His article, "Long-lived Charged Heavy Leptons," will appear in the conference proceedings of the 16th International Workshop on High Energy Physics held in Kazimierz, Poland. He came to the College in 1989.

Spitkovsky joined the faculty in 1990. He was formerly a professor at Odessa University in the Soviet Union. He received a National Science Foundation grant for work on matrices, operators and factorization. A native of Odessa, Spitkovsky received his doctoral degree at the Institute of Mathematics at the Georgia Academy of Sciences.

The Alumni Fellowship Awards program was established by the Society in 1968 to recognize younger members of the faculty who have distinguished themselves as teachers in the classroom. Recipients are awarded a $1,000 honorarium, which this year was presented at a dinner hosted by the Society's board of directors on Sept. 9.

Fritts on WHRO-FM

Robert E. Fritts, a senior fellow with the Thomas Jefferson Program in Public Policy, will discuss American foreign policy as it relates to Africa and Third World nations on Friday, Sept. 24, at 1 p.m. on WHRO-FM, 89.5 in Norfolk.

Organ Concerts Part Of Constitution Week

James S. Darling, organist at Bruton Parish Church and a member of the music faculty, will give two candlelight organ concerts at Bruton Parish Church this week as part of the DAR Constitution Week program. The first will be at 8 p.m., Thursday, Sept. 16, and the second at 8 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 18. Frank T. Lendrim, professor of music, will present a special concert at noon, Saturday, Sept. 18, at the Wren Building.

Departments & Schools

Chemistry

Gary C. DeFotis, Garrett-Robb-Guy Professor of Chemistry, presented three papers at the 206th national meeting of the American Chemical Society held in Chicago, Aug. 22-27. "Ferromagnetic  $Fe[S_2CN(C_2D_5)_2]_2Cl$  and Comparison with Undeuterated Material" was co-authored by former undergraduates William Brubaker and Sarat Chandralapaty. "Magnetic Behavior of Single Crystal  $Fe[S_2CN(C_2H_5)_2]_2I$ " was co-authored by former Dreyfus Fellow Edgar Harlan and former undergraduates Amy Padden, Kevin Dell, Steve Terranova and Chandralapaty. "Magnetic Properties of  $Fe[S_2CNC_4H_8O]_2X$  Compounds,  $X=Cl, Bv, I$ , Solvated and Unsolvated" was co-authored by Harlan, and former undergraduates William Jarvis, Steve Terranova, Vincent Pugh, Jennie Marmorino and Brian Hogg.

Classical Studies

Visiting Assistant Professor Marie C. Marianetti (now of Lehman College, City University of New York) has published "Socratic Mystery-Parody and the Issue of asebeia in Aristophanes' 'Clouds' in Symbolae Osloenses Vol. LXVIII 5-31 Scandinavian University Press.

Visiting Assistant Professor William T. Wehrle has published "Gurgullio at Persius 4.38" in Symbolae Osloenses Vol. LXVIII 69-71 Scandinavian University Press.

English

Assistant Professor Adam Potkay has published an essay in the latest issue of Raritan Quarterly 13:1 (Summer 1993): 73-86, titled "Beckford's Heaven of Boys." The essay addresses the origins of the so-called "Peter Pan syndrome" in 18th- and early 19th-century British literature.

Government

"Mexico Revitalizes Its Economy" by Professor George W. Grayson is included in the summer issue of The Lamp, a magazine published by Exxon Corporation.

J. Alan Ward, Class of 1935 Professor of Government, and his publisher, the Catholic University Press of America, have received a $7,000 publication grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities to underwrite the publication of his book, The Irish Constitutional Tradition: Responsible Government and Ireland Since 1782.

The book combines constitutional theory, political history and political science in an interpretive study of the many attempts to solve Ireland's political problems by constitutional means between 1782 and 1993. The NEH makes awards to books it judges will make a substantial contribution to the study of humanities. Ward's book will be published early in 1994.

Sociology

Professor Gary Kreps recently presented a paper, "The Contributions of Sociology to Disaster Research," at an international symposium on disaster research in Moscow sponsored jointly by the National Science Foundation and the Russian Academy of Sciences. The paper will be published in a Proceedings from the Symposium.

Kreps presented "Disaster as Systemic Event and Social Catalyst: A Clarification of Subject Matter," at the 31st Congress of the International Institute of Sociology in Paris. This paper will be published in a forthcoming volume of the International Journal of Mass Emergencies and Disasters.

School of Business Administration

Robert M. Fulmer, professor of business administration, has been named a Visiting Scholar at the Center for Organizational Learning at MIT.

During the fall term, Fulmer will be spending approximately half time at the Sloan School of Management and working with Professor Peter Senge, author of The Fifth Discipline, on a research project relating to anticipatory learning.

Two articles by Fulmer have been selected for publication in the Journal of Management Development. "The Tools of Anticipatory Learning" and "The Merlin Exercise," which he co-authored with Dr. Solange Perret of the London Perret Roche Group, will be part of a special issue on anticipatory learning.

Fulmer attended the Academy of Management meetings in Atlanta, Aug. 8-11. He also attended the Fellows of the Academy of Management meeting on Aug. 10. The Fellows is a group of approximately 100 out of a membership of over 5,000, who have been honored for their contributions to the discipline and service to the Academy.

Professor Ronald K. Sims has published "The Enhancement of Learning in Public Sector Training: In Public Personnel Management," and "These Changing Times and the New Psychological Contract," in a special issue of Human Resource Management. Sims is also author of two new books published by Quorum Books: Training Enhancement in Government Organizations and Diversity and Differences in Organizations: An Agenda for Answers and Questions, co-edited with Robert Dennehy.

This summer J. Leon Zhao, assistant professor, served as the first visiting scholar to Beijing Normal University from the College. While in China he gave two talks in the Workshop on Technology Innovation: Strategies and Management, sponsored by the Chinese National Natural Science Foundation, the Chinese National Research Center for Science and Technology Development and George Washington University.

Director of the MBA Program Hector Guerrero had an article, "A General Search Algorithm for Cell Formation in Group Technology" (Chen and Guerrero), accepted for publication in the International Journal of Production Research.

This summer Professor Sam Jelinek and co-author (and husband) Joseph Litterer presented their work on entrepreneurial organizations and cognitive organization theory at two international conferences, the Eastern Academy of Management's sixth international conference in Berlin, and the EGOS meetings in Paris.

Assistant Professors Todd Mooradian and Jim Olver were visiting professors at Aoyama Gakuin University in Tokyo, Japan, in May and June. Their paper, "Neuroticism, Affect and Post Purchase Processes," has been accepted for publication in Advances in Consumer Research, Vol. XXI.

Associate Professor Don Rahtz presented two papers at the sixth Bi-Annual World Marketing Congress in Istanbul, Turkey, July 15-19: "The Value of Time in International Commercial Air Travel: An Exploratory Examination Using a Scenario-Based Methodology" (co-authored with John Strong and Paul Rikter-Svendsen), and "Life Satisfaction in the Elderly Population: Cultural and Subcultural Congruity Dimensions of Evaluation," (co-authored with Ann Balazs, Oklahoma University).

Professor Lawrence B. Pulley's paper "The Role of Fixed Costs and Cost Complementarities in Determining Scope Economies and the Cost of Narrow Banking Proposals" (co-authored with David B. Humphrey) appeared in the July issue of The Journal of Business.

Wanda A. Wallace, the John N. Dalton Professor of Business Administration, has had her article, "Practical Experiences with Regression Analysis," published by The University of Kansas School of Business, in its Auditing Symposium XI: Auditing Problems, sponsored by Deloitte & Touche, 1993, 141-169. The article was co-authored co-authored with David A. Scott, a partner with Price Waterhouse in Canada.

"Whose Power Prevails in Disclosure Practices?" by Wallace and the accompanying "Reply to Discussants" have been published in Auditing: A Journal of Practice & Theory (Volume II, 1992), pp. 79-105, and 116-122).

School of Education

"Defining the Principals: Instructional Leader or Middle Manager" by Associate Professor James Stronge, has been published in the May 1993 issue of the National Association of Secondary School Principals Bulletin.

In June Stronge presented a paper on "The Evaluation of Educational Support Personnel" at the second annual National Evaluation Institute held in Kalamazoo, Mich., and sponsored by the Center for Research on Educational Accountability and Teacher Evaluation and Phi Delta Kappa.

Marshall-Wythe School of Law

Joan Pearlstein, evening supervisor and interlibrary loan coordinator, has had an article titled "Law Review Citation Checking: Procedures to Improve Interlibrary Borrowing" published in the Journal of Interlibrary Loan & Information Supply (v.3, p. 91 plus).

School of Marine Science

Professor John D. Boon III gave an invited presentation titled "Coastal Zone Development: Drawing the Line Between Land and Sea," at a seminar sponsored by Reef Care Curaçao held at the University of The Netherlands Antilles on June 13. He was one of six invited speakers presenting on the seminar's theme of "Coastal Development—Construction or Destruction."

Professor William D. DuPaul was an invited participant in a program by the Department of Fish and Game in Alaska to review its Observer Training Program for the Alaskan scallop fisheries and to discuss research and data collection for improving management of this fishery. He spent a week in mid-July participating in at-sea observations aboard various fishing vessels, including several based in Virginia, and meeting with faculty from the University of Alaska and state resource management officials.

Assessment Office

Susan L. Bosworth, instructor of sociology, presented a summary of findings from the College's 1992 senior and 1993 sophomore surveys at the national meetings of the American Association for Higher Education (Chicago, June 9-12), "Curricular Experiences and Outcomes at the College of William and Mary."

Society of the Alumni

Elizabeth MacLeish, administrative assistant, has attained the accreditation of certified professional secretary from Professional Secretaries International. MacLeish completed her exam for accreditation in May. She has been an active member of the Colonial Chapter of Professional Secretaries International since it was chartered in 1989.

NOTES

Writing Resources Center Workshop Tonight

The Writing Resources Center in Tucker 115A will present a workshop on "Writing to Learn" at 7 p.m. tonight.

This workshop is designed to help students better understand difficult material and develop critical thinking skills.

A "Fellowships and Grants" workshop will be held at 7 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 21. This session will deal with timelines, sample essays and tips for focusing and targeting specific audiences for Fulbright, Rhodes and other fellowships and grants.

The "Writing Anxiety" workshop at 7 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 22, will focus on working through writer's block, fears about writing at the college level and discomfort with writing in general.

The Writing Resources Center offers one-on-one consultations, free to students at all stages of the writing process. The Center, staffed by graduate and undergraduate writing consultants, is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday, and from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday.

Students may call ext. 13925 to make an appointment or stop by the center in Tucker during regular hours.

Voter Registration

Voter Registration will be held at the Campus Center, Monday, Sept. 20, through Friday, Sept. 24, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Voter registration is available daily during office hours at the Office of Residence Life, second floor of James Blair Hall.

Any qualified resident of the state of Virginia can register to vote in any Virginia locality at the above times and places.

Documentary Video Sought

McAdoo Bruington, father of the late Patricia Bruington Rudeseal '70, is anxiously trying to locate a copy of a syndicated television documentary titled "The Time of Their Lives," which Patricia appeared in, representing the College.

If you have any information that could help Mr. Bruington locate the tape, please contact him at 1711 Bellevue Ave., Apt. P-14, Richmond, VA 23227, 804/226-2661.

Williams First Speaker On Food for Thought Series

"Islam and the Modern World" will be the focus of remarks by John A. Williams, William R. Kenan Jr. Visiting Professor of Humanities, and a member of the religion faculty, when the fall "Food for Thought" series begins Monday, Sept. 20 at the Wesley Foundation, the United Methodist campus ministry at the College.

Faculty, staff and students are welcome to the gathering at noon at the Foundation building, 526 Jamestown Road, across from Barksdale field. Participants are asked to bring their lunch; Wesley Foundation will provide beverages.

Deadline For Student Conference Assistance

Sept. 20 is the deadline for applications for financial assistance from the Board of Student Affairs for conferences from Oct. 1 to Jan. 31.

Deadline for conferences Feb. 1 to April 30 is Jan. 21. Assistance applications for summer conferences must be submitted by April 18.

For application information call ext. 13270.

Cissy Patterson Lecture Sept. 29

Victor Klee, professor of mathematics, university of Washington, will give the 1993 Cissy Patterson Lecture in undergraduate mathematics at 2 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 29, in Millington 150.

This annual lecture is sponsored by the faculty of the department of mathematics and is funded through the generosity of the Cissy Patterson Trust.

Klee will take as his topic "Shapes of the Future: Unsolved Problems in Intuitive Geometry."

A reception will be held in Jones 306 following the lecture.

Orchestra Needs Players

The William and Mary Orchestra needs the following instruments to complete its instrumentation this fall: bassoons, tuba; harp, cellos and basses.

If you play any of these instruments, are free for rehearsals on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 4 to 6 p.m. and would like to join the orchestra, please call Edgar Williams, director of the William and Mary Orchestra, or leave a message at ext. 11089. Rehearsals are held in Ewell 207.

The orchestra's fall concert will be Nov. 4 at 8 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. The program will include four works: Biber's "Pasagaglia," arranged for string orchestra by Virginia composer Alan Black; Edward McDowell's tone poem "Hamlet and Ophelia"; Cherubini's overture to his opera "Anacreon"; and Tchaikovsky's fantasy-overture, "Romeo & Juliet."

Free Films

The following films are offered free of charge to members of the College community and the general public:

Sept. 29- "The Name of the Rose" (Sean Connery)

Oct. 13- "Henry V" (Kenneth Branagh)

Nov. 10- "The Return of Martin Guerre" (Gerard Depardieu)

Films are shown at 7 p.m. in Ewell Recital Hall.

This series, which has been introduced by Katherine Preston of the music faculty, is sponsored by the faculty and students of music of the Medieval and Renaissance Periods, Europe in the Middle Ages and The Program in Medieval and Renaissance Studies.

Physics Speaker

R. R. Jones of the University of Virginia will speak on "Atomic Physics with Strong Pulsed Lasers," at the Sept. 23 physics colloquium. The speaker for the Oct. 8 session will be Lou Clavelli, University of Alabama, whose topic will be "Low Energy Windows for Supersymmetry."

Speaker for the Oct. 1 meeting has not been announced.

Colloquia are held on Fridays at 4 p.m. in Small 199. Coffee is served at 3:30 p.m. in the conference room, Small 123.

Ebony Expressions Sponsor Concert

The Accidentals, The Intonations and a Hampton group, Three Days Later, will be among the musical guests at a concert at 7 p.m., Thursday, Sept. 30 in the Campus Center ballroom, sponsored by The Ebony Expressions

There is no admission charge, but a donation of $2 is requested.

For details, call ext. 14687.

Faculty Art To Be Displayed At Trellis

Two new portraits of the College's patrons, King William III and Queen Mary II, by Paul Helfrich, will be included in the show of faculty art which will be hung in the Trellis restaurant on Merchants Square as a tercentenary salute.

The exhibition will open Sept. 21 for the Trellis' traditional fete to introduce its fall cuisine. Earlier The Trellis sponsored an event for the College, featuring its famous chocolate dessert recipes.

Those who attended the Supreme Court Fall Preview at the Marshall-Wythe

School of Law got a sneak preview of Helfrich's portraits which will be installed at The Trellis this weekend.

The exhibition will also include still-life paintings by William Barnes; landscape paintings by Henry Coleman; sculpture and watercolors by Mark Iwinski; terracotta sculpture by Marlene Jack; and interior and still-life paintings by Valerie Hardy.

For more information on the exhibit contact Valerie Hardy, curator, President's Collection of Faculty and Student Art, ext. 123268.

Admission Office Plans Saturday Workshop

The Admission Office will hold a workshop, "Let's Talk About College," for faculty, staff and their children from 1 to 4 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 18, in Washington 201.

Admission and financial aid staff will cover a variety of topics of interest to the college-bound student and his/her family, including choosing a college, the campus visit and interview, the new SAT and "other" tests out there, essay writing for the college application, how selective admission works, an inside view and financing a college education: options for 1993-94 and beyond.

A flyer was distributed recently for signing up for the workshop. Those who did not receive it and wish to attend and those with questions about the program are asked to contact Bill Davis at ext. 13996.

Information On Study Abroad Offered

A representative for the Advanced Studies in England, the W&M Program in Bath, will be on campus Thursday and Friday, Sept. 16 and 17 to talk with students interested in the program.

A Study Abroad Fair will be held at 7 p.m., Oct. 4 in Trinkle Hall.

An information session and video on the St. Andrews Program in Scotland will be held from 2 to 4 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 6, in the Reves Center conference room. This program will discuss both undergraduate and graduate study in Scotland.

For details on any of the programs listed above, call the Programs Abroad office at ext. 13594.

Early Response Urged For Busch Party

A letter and response card for the Tercentenary Party at Busch Gardens during Homecoming Weekend will be in the mail to the campus community by Friday, according to the Special Events Office.

A quick response is encouraged. Response cards may be sent back via campus mail or hand-delivered to the events office at James Blair 111. For details call ext. 12636.

Fast-Pitch Softball

The Women's fast-pitch softball club will hold an organizational meeting at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 22, in Milington 117.

For more information call Sabrina at ext. 14947 or Tracey at ext. 16240.

Career Fair Sept. 23

The Office of Career Services will sponsor a Career Fair from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., Thursday, Sept. 23 in William and Mary Hall.

Representatives from business, government and nonprofit organizations will be present to give information on career positions, internships and summer employment.

All students are invited to attend. Students are encouraged to bring resumes for potential employers as appropriate.

Further details on the program may be obtained from the Office of Career Services, Blow Hall 123, ext. 13240.

Giovanni To Be SA Speaker Sept. 30

Poet and author Nikki Giovanni will open the Student Association Speakers Series with a program at 8 p.m., Thursday, Sept. 30.

General admission is $3.

A reception, sponsored by Delta Sigma Theta sorority and open to holders of Speaker Series passes, will be held at 6 p.m., location to be announced.

This is a return visit for Giovanni, who attended the Black Student Leadership Conference held in January and arranged by the Office of Multi-Cultural Student Affairs. She has also taken part in several other campus programs.

Known for many years as the "Princess of Black Poetry," Giovanni is the author of Black Feeling, Black Talk; Recreation; My House; Ego Tripping and Other Poems for Young Readers; The Women and the Men; Cotton Candy on a Rainy Day and Sacred Cows ... and Other Edibles.

For details concerning the Sept. 30 program, call the SA office at ext. 13302.

James Walvin

James Walvin To Lecture Sept. 27

James Walvin, professor of history at York University, will speak on "The Changing Face of Slavery," at 5 p.m., Monday, Sept. 27 in the Botetourt Theatre of Swem Library.

Walvin, former Kenan Professor of Humanities, is editor of Slavery and Abolition, and author of numerous books on the history of slavery in England and the English colonies of North America and the West Indies.

His lecture is sponsored by the Department of History and the Institute of Early American History and Culture.

New Books At Swem Library

By Carol McAllister, Bibliographer and Michael Poteet '94

The Process of Counseling and Therapy, by Janet Moursund (Prentice-Hall). RC 480 M677 1993.

Readers currently involved in, or considering entry into, the field of psychotherapy will welcome this third edition of Janet Moursund's lively book about "out there, in-the-trenches working with real clients in real situations."

Informally but authoritatively, Moursund discusses a variety of issues important to counselors and therapists.

Above all, this book stresses the special nature of its subject. In Moursund's words, "Only in psychotherapy is a personal relationship with another human being the primary vehicle through which changes in feeling, thinking, and behaving are expected to occur. It is the use of a relationship to effect positive change and growth that makes our work unique."

Men's Friendships, edited by Peter M. Nardi. (Sage Publications) HQ 1090 M47 1992

Men's relationships continue to be a focus of investigation in the social sciences. Rather than noting variations between the genders, as most studies do, these articles explore the diverse types of friendships that exist among males. The authors investigate how men's friendships with other men are developed and maintained.

After reviewing the issue from a philosophical and historical perspective, the researchers illustrate the influence of the social structure on male friendship.

Men's Friendships is the second volume in the Sage series. "Research on Men and Masculinities" which is devoted to the latest findings on the experiences of men in contemporary society.

Sport in Contemporary Society: An Anthropology 4th edition, edited by D. Stanley Eitzen (St. Martin's Press) GV 706.5 S733 1993

Challenging what he considers to be false assumptions about the positive consequences of sports participation, Stanley Eitzen presents a collection of articles that "critically examine the role of sport in society." His aim is to transcend existing "myths" and to provide his readers with insights into the nature of both sport and American society.

The contributions, journalists and academics, analyze sport in the context of numerous social issues including values development, violent behavior, collegian ethics, the culture of mass media, racial inequality and sex-role stereotyping. These timely essays, most of which have accompanying bibliographies, should stimulate critical thinking about sport as both a beneficial and damaging component of American social life.

The Art of Hiring in America's Colleges and Universities, edited by Ronald H. Stein & Stephen Joel Trachtenberg. (Prometheus Books) LB 2332.72 A78 1993

A shrinking candidate pool, reduced recruitment funds, and a changing political and cultural environment have all intensified the problem of hiring at academic institutions. To cope with the challenge, Stein, vice-president for university relations at State University of New York, and Trachtenberg, president of George Washington University, have asked fellow administrators to provide insights and advice on the hiring process.

The book's contributors begin by defining the pivotal roles played by the president, the dean and the search committee. The experts then focus on the candidate and provide guidelines for recognizing the best applicants, recruiting minorities and women, and accommodating dual-career couples. What makes this book useful is the fact that it is written by successful administrators in higher education who speak with conviction about the urgency of becoming skilled at finding "the best man or woman possible" for the job.

A Plantation Mistress on the Eve of the Civil War, edited by John Hammond Moore. (University of South Carolina Press) F279 C7B74 1993.

Keziah Brevard was a wealthy, middle-aged widow living on a plantation near Columbia, S.C. Between July 22, 1860, and April 15, 1861, she kept a written account of her daily activities and thoughts. Her concerns ranged from domestic matters to the dramatic national events that were leading to Southern secession and war.

One unique aspect of this childless woman's existence was the fact that she lived alone. Her household slaves were both servants and companions, and her writings reflect her dilemma in managing this dual role. According to the editor, this rendering of her diary provide "a remarkable glimpse of day-to-day life in the 'big house' as the war clouds gather."

The Rolling Stone Index: Twenty-Five Years of Popular Culture, 1967-1991 compiled by Jeffrey N. Gatten. (Popular Culture, Ink.) REF ML I R65 Index 1993

The first issue of Rolling Stone magazine appeared in 1967 and featured John Lennon. Today, Rolling Stone continues to be a cultural icon and is a primary source of information about the last 25 years of American popular culture.

Gatten's detailed index provides access to the thousands of articles, columns, book reviews, movie and music reviews and letters that have been published in "pop culture's magazine of record."

Swem has a complete collection of Rolling Stone magazines (on microfilm) and this new reference volume will serve as a gateway to this extraordinary contemporary archive.

Couples, by Barry Dym, Ph.D. and Michael L. Glenn, M.D. (HarperCollins). HQ 734 D985 1993.

Noting that the "romantically engaged couple is the icon of our time," Barry Dym and Michael Glenn present a study of the life cycle of couple relationships. Drawing extensively on a variety of case studies, Dym and Glenn trace relationships through a continually repeating three-stage cycle of expansion, contraction and resolution, describing each stage in detail. The authors also address such issues facing couples as cultural expectations, character forms, and patterns of interaction.

Dym and Glenn adopt an informal tone, addressing their book to a wide, popular audience. While couples will certainly appreciate this book, so will any reader interested in a realistic, psychological examination of the "ups" and "downs" of human relationships.

Storytellers to the Nation, by Tom Stempel (Continuum). PN 1992.7 S74 1992

Tom Stempel fills a gap in the history of American writing with this volume and presents a concise, entertaining, and scholarly account of television writing, from the early days of "The Texaco Star Theatre" and "Burns and Allen" to the more recent ones of "thirtysomething" and "Murphy Brown."

Serious critics of television will note the overall trends in writing Stempel traces, while casual fans will enjoy writers' anecdotes about their favorite shows. The concluding chapters prove especially noteworthy; in examining programs such as "Hill Street Blues" and "China Beach," they offer an insightful analysis of the potential, fulfilled and unfulfilled, of television.

Stempel proves that, despite its reputation as a "waste land," television can produce "work of quality and substance ... when the writers (yes, and actors and directors) are given the chance to do it, and when the audiences are given the chance to appreciate it."

Swem Purchases Boucher Papers

The Department of Manuscripts and Rare Books at Swem Library has purchased a significant archive, the Papers of Jonathan Boucher (1738-1804), Virginia and Maryland loyalist.

Boucher, one of the most important American loyalists, resided in Virginia as a teacher and an Anglican minister from 1759-1770, a sojourn which included tutoring George Washington's stepson. In 1775 he was exiled to England where he published A View of the Causes and Consequences of The American Revolution (1797).

His papers from 1759 to 1803 constitute one of the Library's most important recent acquisitions for the 18th century. Numbering 200 items, the collection includes a number of letters by Boucher as well as letters from the Rev. James Maury who taught Jefferson. A large percentage of the collection is British and includes correspondence with Sir Frederick Morton Eden, author of The State of the Poor (1797); Rev. Charles Daubeny, author of works on the Anglican Church; and William Stevens, biographer.

Margaret Cook, curator of manuscripts and rare books, expects the collection to lend support to thesis topics on Anglicanism in America, Church of England history, loyalism, and Virginia colonial history.

The collection was purchased from a London dealer from private funds, the Friends of the Library Endowment, and a gift from Spencer Timm '66.

Donors Sought For Leave Sharing

The Office of Personnel Services has received a request for donated leave.

Due to medical conditions, Laura Turner at Swem Library will be on medical leave beginning mid- to late September. In accordance with the program, Laura meets the recipient eligibility criteria for the leave-share program, as she will exhaust all leave balances during her absences and be placed on leave without pay for 10 working days.

Under the leave share program, the following applies to those employees who wish to donate leave:

- You may donate only earned annual leave.
- Donations must be in eight-hour increments, and may not exceed 40 hours.

- You must have a minimum balance of 40 hours annual and/or sick leave after the donations are made
- Donations may not be reclaimed unless the "donor" form has not yet been processed.

Those wishing to participate in the leave share program by donating annual leave for Turner are asked to call Jennifer Sandusky at ext. 13161, or Becky Kinnison at ext. 13159, for a donor form.

For questions regarding the program or eligibility criteria inquiries, contact Lois T. Parker, manager, personnel data services, ext. 13163.

Degree Committee Seeks Nominations For Honorary Degree Recipients

The Honorary Degrees Advisory Committee invites and encourages all members of the faculty, administration and staff to suggest names of possible honorary degree recipients for upcoming Charter Days and Commencements.

Nominations may be submitted at any time. However, the committee will meet in early October and would like to have submission of names prior to that time.

Nominations should be submitted to the chair of the committee, Nancy H. Marshall, Swem Library.

The committee is especially interested in recognizing Virginians, alumni, women, minorities, scholars (particularly Southern scholars), Southern writers and heads of universities who have a specific tie to William and Mary.

When considering candidates for honorary degrees, the Board of Visitors bears in mind the following guidelines. Since the committee is especially interested in imaginative nominations, no name should be withheld simply because an otherwise deserving candidate does not precisely fit every guideline.

Candidates are considered without regard to sex, race, color, age, religion, national origin, sexual orientation or disability.

Since they will always be associated with the College of William and Mary, honorary degree recipients must be of sufficient eminence and character to honor the College.

Candidates should have qualities and records of achievements that make it particularly appropriate for an institution of higher education to recognize them.

Ideally, but not invariably, something about them should make it especially fitting that this honor should come from the College of William and Mary in Virginia.

Finally, candidates should not include benefactors or prospective benefactors of the College unless they clearly meet the other criteria and are evaluated on those criteria only. In awarding honorary degrees, William and Mary should give no suggestion that it is recognizing past or prospective financial contributions.

In addition to these guidelines, the committee has recently sought nominations of: persons who unquestionably deserve honorary degrees but who somehow have been overlooked; younger persons of great promise who have only recently arrived at the point where an honorary degree is appropriate; persons who would deliver a stimulating address at Commencement or Charter Day.

It is helpful for nominations to be accompanied by a brief memo explaining why the nominee is well-suited for an honorary degree. When questions arise or additional information is required, the committee will contact nominators.

Alternatives to nation-states include a "more meaningful" United Nations, a worldwide legal authority, or the formation of international regional groupings, Bill said.

"Every American is uncomfortable with the way we live," he explained. "People are living desperate lives. Basic institutions such as the family are shattered; violence is unprecedented and universal in scope. We can't live forever amid this chaos. Fundamentally new relationships must be created.

"Such 'transformation for survival' requires new and creative ideas."

Bill said he hopes that the William and Mary symposium can help people confront the fundamental problems facing mankind, particularly the issues of war and peace.

"All we can hope," he explained, "is that the conference will help develop a sensitivity, consciousness and deeper understanding of the incoherent world in which we live, and that it will stimulate people to think of what can be done to reform and improve this situation.

"The dramatic peace initiatives underway in the Middle East teach us that we must learn to anticipate and avoid crises, not only to manage them."

The two-day symposium, which includes the awarding of the first Reves Peace Prize and a performance by the Virginia Symphony Orchestra, is free and open to the public. Tickets are not required.

First Reves Peace Prize To Be Awarded

Margaret Joan Anstee, former undersecretary general of the United Nations, will be the first recipient of the Reves Peace Prize.

The award, which will be presented Sept. 25 during a special ceremony honoring publisher and writer Emery Reves, recognizes outstanding individual contributions to world peace. The ceremony is the culmination of a two-day symposium of international scholars and policymakers titled "Beyond the Nation-State: Transforming Visions of Human Society."

During her career, Anstee, who recently resigned as the special representative of the secretary general of the United Nations for Angola, has been assigned to many of the United Nations' most challenging posts. A British subject educated at Cambridge and London University, Anstee served as a special deputy to the undersecretary general in U.N. relief operations to Bangladesh and Zambia in 1973. In the mid-1980s, she was the secretary general's special representative to Mexico, where she coordinated earthquake assistance, and in the late '80s and early '90s, she served as coordinator of all U.N. drug control activities. Anstee also served as a special U.N. representative following the Chernobyl nuclear disaster.

Also honored Sept. 25 will be Senator J. William Fulbright, the recipient of a special award for contributions to international education and global understanding. Fulbright is the former chair of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and creator of the Fulbright International Scholarship Program. More than 80,000 American Fulbright students and scholars have studied abroad since the program's inception in 1946, while another 123,000 Fulbright grants have gone to foreign nationals.

Because of ill health, Fulbright will be unable to attend the ceremony. His wife, Harriet Mayor Fulbright, will accept the award honoring her husband.

Keynote speaker at the Sept. 25 event will be Oscar Arias Sanchez, former president of Costa Rica and a Nobel Peace Prize recipient. Arias rose to prominence in Costa Rican politics in the 1970s and became president in 1986.

The ceremony, which includes a performance by the Virginia Symphony Orchestra, begins at 8:30 p.m. in William and Mary Hall. The event is free and open to the public. Tickets are not required.
