WILLIAM & MARY

A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER FOR FACULTY, STUDENTS AND STAFF

NEWS

VOLUME XXIII, NUMBER 4 • WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1993

Open Enrollment

The annual Open Enrollment period for the Optional Retirement Plans (ORPs) begins Friday, Oct. 1 and continues until 5 p.m., Oct. 31. Anyone currently enrolled in TIAA/CREF, Fidelity, Great West, T. Rowe Price or VALIC ORP is eligible.

Any changes made in October will become effective Jan. 1, 1994.

Those who would like further information are asked to contact Rita Metcalfe, Office of Personnel Services, ext. 13158.

Plant Sale

Greenhouse volunteers will hold a plant sale in the Millington Hall auditorium lobby from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., Friday, Oct. 1.

HACE Meeting

The Rita Welsh Adult Skills Program on campus will be the topic of the program at the next meeting of the Hourly and Classified Employees Association, HACE at 1 p.m., Tuesday, Oct. 12 in the Campus Center room E.

At this meeting there will be an election of officers and the announcement of the Tercentenary Employee of the Year.

HACE Award

Sept. 30 is the deadline for nominations for the HACE Tercentenary Employee of the Year.

Application forms are available from Jim Dickey, department of facilities management.

Pre-Registration For Spring 1994

Spring 1994 pre-registration materials for currently enrolled undergraduates may be picked up in the lobby area of Blow Hall from Oct. 18-22.

Course request forms must be returned to the Office of the University Registrar no later than Oct. 22.

Parking Reminder

Members of the campus community who are parking in the Presbyterian Church lot are reminded that the church has exclusive use of the parking behind the church on Sundays from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The church will begin to tow from this lot each Sunday by 8 a.m. Vehicles will be towed at the owner's expense.

Two Doctoral Students Named Commonwealth Fellows

Two doctoral students have been selected 1993-94 Commonwealth Fellows by the State Council of Higher Education.

The fellowships include an award of $5,000 to assist Fellows in their academic pursuits. Presentation of the awards will be made at a luncheon Oct. 12 at the Virginia Historical Society in Richmond.

For Bertram D. Ashe, a graduate student in American Studies, the Commonwealth Fellowship is the second major award he has received while undertaking graduate study. Ashe recently completed his second year as a Commonwealth Graduate Fellow, also offered by the Council of Higher Education.

Ashe will take his oral examinations this fall, with concentrations in African-American literature, American literature and race, and American history. His dissertation, which is tentatively titled "From Within the Frame": 'Embedded' Narratives in African-American Short Fiction from Charles Chesnutt to Reginald McKnight," will trace the African-American story-within-a-story literary convention from its late 19th-century origins with Chesnutt and Paul Laurence Dunbar to contemporary frame stories by McKnight and John Edgar Wideman.

Ashe has published articles on satirist Ishmael Reed and writing across the curriculum. He also won "honorable mention" in the Best Student Paper competition for "One Nation Under a Groove: The Black Nationalist Rhetoric of Parliament/Funkadelic," presented at the Popular Culture Association in the South meeting in Norfolk in October 1991.

Ashe makes his home in Richmond with his wife, Valerie, and daughter, Jordan. He received a B.A. in speech com-

Michael Powell To Moderate Forums On Campus Climate

Michael Powell, assistant to the president and director of affirmative action, will moderate a series of forums for faculty, staff and students to assess the campus climate for members of the campus community from underrepresented groups. All forums will be held in the Campus Center. Inquiries should be directed to Donna Beard at ext. 12615.

In a letter accompanying the forum schedule, Powell explains that his office has scheduled these opportunities for members of the campus community to discuss their concerns relative to campus climate issues.

In requesting assistance and encouraging participation, Powell said, "Specifically, I am asking that you share with me your thoughts concerning your assessment of the climate at the College of William and Mary and any recommendations for programs and initiatives which you think are needed to improve the climate for all members of our community.

Forum schedule:

Faculty

Oct. 12, Rooms A&B, 2-4 p.m.
Oct. 13, Room E, 10 a.m.-noon.

Oct. 14, Room E, 2-4p.m.

Persons with disabilities who require special accommodations should call ext. 12615 (TDD804-221-2613) at least 10 days prior to the forum they plan to attend.

To the William and Mary Community:

Ed Allenby, vice president for university advancement, has informed me of his decision to accept appointment as vice president for institutional advancement at the University of Connecticut, effective Nov. 1.

Ed Allenby's leadership for the past seven years has been critical to the successful completion of the Campaign for the Fourth Century and to our wonderful celebration of William and Mary's Tercentenary.

When the modern history of William and Mary is written, Ed Allenby will deserve particular mention as a special leader who created the vital foundation for the College's efforts to secure—for the first time—a firm base of private support.

I know all of you join me in thanking him for a job exceptionally well done and in wishing him great success as he begins a new and different challenge.

I am grateful that Dennis Slon, director of development, has agreed to accept appointment as acting vice president for university advancement until Ed's permanent replacement has arrived.

Timothy J. Sullivan
President

Braxton Edits Poetry Of Dunbar

The Collected Poetry of Paul Laurence Dunbar, edited by Joanne M. Braxton, Cummings Professor of American Studies and English, has been published by the University Press of Virginia.

Braxton

This new "most complete" edition of the collected poems of Paul Laurence Dunbar, the virtual father of black American poetry, includes 60 poems not included in the previous—and now out of print—Complete Poems. Sixteen of these were found in manuscript form.

Dunbar's work achieved wide recognition in the first part of this century. The author of six volumes of poetry, as well as novels, librettos, songs and essays, he was nationally known and accepted by black and white readers alike.

As Professor Braxton points out in her substantive introduction, a reconsideration of Dunbar's work and influence is long overdue. "We reclaim, in Paul Laurence Dunbar, a significant American author, whose career transcends race and locality even while he makes use of racialized and regional cultural materials to create an African-American aesthetic and a unique black poetic diction."

Rex Ellis, former head of African-American programs at the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation and now director of museum programs for the Smithsonian, will join Professor Braxton in a reading of Dunbar's poetry on Oct. 22 as part of the College's Tercentenary program.

Supreme Court Preview

Every day, all year, reporters on the Supreme Court beat for the nation's top newspapers such as The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, and The Chicago Tribune, vie for stories. On Sept. 17 and 18 those reporters met in Williamsburg with leading legal scholars for the sixth annual Supreme Court Preview sponsored by the Marshall-Wythe School of Law and its Institute of Bill of Rights Law. Discussion centered on key cases and timely issues before the court this term. Pictured above, law professors Suzanna Sherry of the University of Minnesota and Neal Devins of the College debate underlying constitutional issues in religion cases on the upcoming docket with reporters Joan Biskupic of The Washington Post, Aaron Epstein of Knight-Ridder Newspapers, and Bruce Fein of The Washington Times.

Dolmetsch Work Receives Austrian Prize

"Our Famous Guest": Mark Twain in Vienna by Carl Dolmetsch, emeritus professor of English, has won the 1992 Austria Prize.

Dolmetsch

This annual award, funded by the Ministry of Culture of the Federal Republic of Austria, is the equivalent in Austrian schillings of $2,000 for travel and living expenses for research projects in Austria. It is given for the best book on an Austrian or Austrian-related subject published during the year. Dolmetsch's book was published by the University of Georgia Press in December 1992.

Announcement of the award was made by David F. Good, director of the Center for Austrian Studies at the University of Minnesota, which administers the prize in this country on behalf of the Austrian Cultural Institute.

According to Good's announcement, "Our Famous Guest" was the unanimous choice of the ACI Book Prize Committee. Dolmetsch will receive the award at an official ceremony in Minneapolis on Oct. 29.

"Our Famous Guest": Mark Twain in Vienna is the first detailed account of the nearly two years, Sept. 1879 to May 1899, that Mark Twain spent in Vienna, capital of what was then the Habsburg empire known as Austria-Hungary. Dolmetsch demonstrates how Twain's experiences in Vienna decisively influenced his thinking and writing during the final phase of his long literary career.

College Cited For Erosion Control Project

The College received a Model Erosion and Sediment Control Project award at the Virginia Soil and Water Conservation Board's bi-monthly meeting in September. The award for excellence in adhering to the state's erosion and sediment control law is presented by the Virginia Department of Conservation and Recreation.

Paul Morris, director of facilities management, accepted the award from DCR Director J. Robert Hicks Jr. for the College's Tercentenary Hall project. Funded as part of the $472 million bond referendum for higher education facilities passed in November 1992, the building will provide additional space for science classes.

The project was chosen from more than 120 nominations submitted between Jan. 1 and June 30 this year.

"The Tercentenary Hall project was chosen as a winner for successfully demonstrating control of soil loss and sediment movement during site preparation," said Mike Flagg, manager of DCR's Urban Programs Bureau. He cited a weir, or low dam, made of sheet piling as one of the project's unique features. Built to keep sediment from washing into a nearby pond, the dam will be left in place after construction is completed as a continued aid to stormwater management.

Departments & Schools

Chemistry

Professor Melvin D. Schiavelli was promoted to the rank of Chancellor Professor by the Board of Visitors at a Sept. 9-10 meeting.

English

Susan V. Donaldson, associate professor, was an invited speaker in August at the annual Faulkner conference in Oxford, Miss. She spoke on "Cracked Urns: Faulkner, Gender and Art in the South." The presentation she gave at the 1990 Faulkner conference, "Contending Narratives: Go Down, Moses and the Short Story Cycle," has been published in Faulkner and the Short Story, edited by Evans Harrington and Ann J. Abadie and issued by the University Press of Mississippi.

Two other recent essays by Donaldson were included in edited collections of essays on southern literature and culture issued this year. "Songs with a Difference: Beatrice Ravenel and the Detritus of Southern History" appeared in The Female Tradition in Southern Literature, edited by Carol S. Manning and published by the University of Illinois Press. "Gender and the Profession of Letters in the South" is included in Rewriting the South: History and Fiction, edited by Lothar Honninghausen and Valeria Gennaro Lerda, and published by Francke Verlag.

In addition, Donaldson delivered a paper in May, "Women and the Invention of the White South in Literature and Painting," at the inaugural Symposium on Teaching Women's Studies at the University of Lodz in Poland.

The Summer 1993 issue of Victorian Poetry includes two contributions by Professor Terry Meyers, "Two Poems by Swinburne: 'Milton' and On the Effect of Wagner's Music" and "Swinburne's Copyright: Gone Missing." The first essay adds two previously unknown poems to Swinburne's canon, including one in the British Library that had been overlooked by scholars for almost 60 years. The second contribution documents the curious status of Swinburne's copyright, apparently now abandoned by the British publishing firm that acquired it in 1917.

Meyers has recently been invited to edit the Swinburne entry for the next edition of the New Cambridge Bibliography of English Literature, an important reference work in English studies.

Government

Professor James A. Bill has just published the fourth edition of his co-authored study, Politics of the Middle East (Harper Collins). In July, he attended a conference in Teheran, Iran, where he read a paper titled "Regional Security and Domestic Stability in the Persian Gulf." In August, he lectured on Iran at the Foreign Service Institute. In September, he presented a paper titled "Middle East Politics in Guest of Theory," at the annual meetings of the American Political Science Association held in Washington, D.C.

Assistant Professor Christopher Howard has co-authored, "Women's Association and the Enactment of Mothers' Pensions in the United States," in American Political Science Review, v. 87, no. 3.

Marshall-Wythe School of Law

James S. Heller, law librarian and associate professor of law, has been promoted by the Board of Visitors to the rank of professor of law.

Acting Dean Paul Marcus has been appointed for the upcoming year to the American Bar Association's Committee on White-Collar Crime. The Committee is based in Washington, D.C., and includes judges, practicing lawyers and law professors from across the country. The committee studies the prosecution and defense of criminal actions including fraud, money laundering, securities violations and international finance offenses.

Ball Professor of Law John Donaldson recently made a presentation at the Estate Planning and Charitable Giving Seminar. Donaldson gave an update on estate and gift taxes. The program was sponsored by the Virginia Beach Foundation and co-sponsored by several associations of lawyers and accountants.

Professor Mike Gerhardt taught health law policy at Fordham Law School this summer. He gave a talk to the faculty at Rutgers-Newark Law School on the Ginsburg confirmation proceedings and on his role last winter as the principal author of the Clinton-Gore presidential transition's policy study of judicial and U.S. Attorney selection.

During the past few weeks Gerhardt gave talks to the faculties at Fordham Law School on the impeachment process, and Columbia Law School on his recently completed article comparing and contrasting the textualism of Supreme Court Justices Black and Scalia.

He will wind up September by participating in a symposium at Fordham on Cass Sunstein's new book, with Sunstein and Fordham law professor James Fleming.

Professor Trotter Hardy recently had his article dealing with electronic conferences published as the lead piece in the Harvard Journal of Law and Technology Symposium; it is titled "Electronic Communications and Legal Change." Hardy has compiled a complete transcript of the conference and edited it into topic order. It has been accepted for hardback publication from the William S. Hein Company.

Professor John Lee's "Death and Taxes and Hypocrisy" recently appeared in the September issue of Tax Notes. Lee focuses on the debate concerning progressive and regressive taxes under the President's tax plan.

Associate Professor Alemante Selassie is a contributor to Constitutions of the Countries of the World, published by Oceana Publication. In it he discusses constitutional development in Ethiopia between 1988 and 1993. The interim constitution of Ethiopia contains a number of interesting provisions pertaining to the establishment of a transitional government and regional self-governments aimed at decentralizing national power.

Chancellor Professor of Law Dick Williamson's article, "The Virtues (and Limits) of Shared Values: The Fourth Amendment and Miranda's Concept of Custody," has been published in the University of Illinois Law Review. In it

Workspace Needed For Homecoming Floats

In anticipation of a gala homecoming parade this year in celebration of the tercentenary year, students are working with a homecoming parade resource guide prepared by Joseph R. Price '93 and the Society of the Alumni.

Students are currently seeking work space to build and decorate floats. Anyone with an available garage, shed or covered workspace, who would be willing to loan it out until homecoming weekend, Oct. 20-24, is asked to contact Nancy Dutro, ext. 11268.

Introduction To Biomedical Research

The National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases in Bethesda, Md., is offering an Introduction to Biomedical Research program to acquaint academically talented minority students with career opportunities in biomedical research.

Approximately 55 students will be selected for the 1994 pro team, scheduled for Feb. 6-10. Students will attend a series of lectures by NIH scientists and tour the NIH Clinical Center, one of the world's largest research hospitals. All participants will be provided with expenses and round-trip transportation to the Bethesda campus.

Applicants must have a 3.0 or better GPA and be recommended by the deans and faculty members of their schools. Selection is based on these recommendations and the students' personal and academic achievements.

For an application packet, contact NIAID, 9000 Rockville Pike, Bldg. 31, room 7A19, Bethesda, MD 20892 or call (301)496-4846. Deadline for applications is Dec. 3.

Greyson Daughtrey 5K Run/1-Mile Fun Run

All members of the College community are invited to participate in the annual Greyson Daughtrey 5K run/1 mile fun run, sponsored by the Kinesiology Majors Club on Sunday, Oct. 3 at 1 p.m.

Entry fee is $8 for students, $10 for adults and $12 for all on race day.

T-shirts are guaranteed to all participants. Door prizes will be given out at the conclusion of the race.

Men's and women's age group trophies will be awarded in the 5K race. Top finisher trophies will be awarded in both races. Both races will begin at Adair gym on Campus Drive.

Entry forms may be picked up at Adair gym of the Rec Center.

Study Abroad Fair

The annual William and Mary Study Abroad Fair will be held at 7 p.m., Monday, Oct. 4 in Trinkle Hall.

Information will be available for all William and Mary official summer and academic year programs for which financial aid applies.

Language programs are available in China, France, Germany, Italy, Japan and Spain.

Students may study a wide variety of liberal arts subjects on other programs in Australia, Canada, Denmark, England and Scotland.

Internships and other special opportunities are available in China and Japan.

Summer special topics programs are offered in Mexico, the Caribbean, Italy and the Czech Republic.

Some information about scholarship opportunities will also be available.

For program details call ext. 23594.

Alumnus Typifies Spirit Of Giving As CVC Volunteer

By Kelley Daspit
University Relations

When Robert Bryant '34, a United Way volunteer for the Retired Senior Volunteer Program, R.S.V.P., in Williamsburg, began visiting two patients at Eastern State Hospital, he had no idea of the effect it would have on all of their lives.

Now he knows. His visits to patients Theodore Warsjenski and William Abbott have become an important part of their lives. "I can see a difference in each of them. They get so excited when I come to visit. There has been a definite change," said Bryant. Neither patient had any visitors until Bryant began visiting each for an hour every Saturday morning.

Bryant first began visiting Warsjenski, and later was asked to visit Abbott as part of the hospital's Focus on Friendship program, which is designed to promote patient interaction with volunteers like Bryant from the R.S.V.P., who have a friendly smile and conversation to offer.

R.S.V.P. is one of the many programs sponsored by the United Way and is part of the Combined Virginia Campaign, CVC. The program is made up of 750,000 retired seniors nationwide, who find volunteering in their communities to be rewarding.

President Sullivan and Ruth Graff, president of HACE, turn over their contributions to the Combined Virginia Campaign to campus chairman William N. Walker, director of university relations.

One at a time, the patients are wheeled into the lobby to spend an hour just visiting. When Bryant has spent an hour with one, the other is brought out for a visit.

Commonwealth Seminar

Judylyn S. Ryan, department of English, Rutgers University, will present a seminar on "Spirituality and/as Ideology in Black Women's Fiction and Film," at 5 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 7 in the Botetourt Theatre of Swem Library.

This seminar is sponsored by the Commonwealth Center for the Study of American Culture.

This talk will focus on Julie Dash's film, "Daughters of the Dust" and the many texts by black women in literary artists—including Hurston's Dust Tracks on the Road, Marshall's Praisesong for the Widow, Lorde's Zami, Shange's Sassafras, Cypress & Indigo and Morrison's Beloved—through which the film journeys.

"Daughters of the Dust" will be shown in the Botetourt Theatre at 3 p.m., Thursday, Sept. 30. This showing is free and open to the community.

Student Concert

Tercentenary Observances is sponsoring a student concert by The Ocean Blue at 8 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 13, in Trinkle Hall.

Tickets are $5 and may be purchased at the Campus Center main desk, the Tercentenary office, James Blair 112 or at the door.

For further information, call ext. 11030.

Federal Employment

A representative from the Office of Personnel Management in Norfolk will discuss federal application procedures at 4 p.m., Thursday, Sept. 30, in Blow Hall 311.

This program is sponsored by the Office of Career Services. Advanced registration is not required.

Open Enrollment Offered For Prepaid Legal Services

The College is offering another open enrollment period for prepaid legal services for all full-time faculty and classified employees.

Employees may pay premiums of $14 per month through payroll deduction to participate in this optional program. There are no deductibles, claim forms, waiting periods or fee schedules.

Legal services will cover the following situations: traffic violations, including

Auditions Set For "Night Sky"

Auditions for the William and Mary Theatre's mainstage production of "Night Sky" will be held Oct. 4 and 5 from 5 to 7 p.m. in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. The production is scheduled for Nov. 18-21.

Assistant Professor Susan Chast will cast five women and four men, one of whom must be able to sing baritone.

Those planning to audition should prepare a one-minute modern dramatic monologue. In addition, those trying out for the part of the male singer should prepare a song (accompanist available, but you may bring your own).

A sign-up sheet is on the call board in the lobby of PBK Hall. The script is on reserve under THEA 204 in Swem Library.

Interpreters Sought

Chast is looking for students, staff or faculty interested in translating a short segment of the play's finale into American sign, French, Japanese, German and other languages.

If you are a sign-language interpreter interested in participating in the production, or a translator or a native speaker interested in creating an audio-tape for inclusion in the production, contact Chast at ext. 12654 before Oct. 5.

Institute Speaker To Discuss Berkeley Papers

Warren M. Billings, professor of history, University of New Orleans, will present a paper, "Sir William Berkeley and his Papers," at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Oct. 5 at the Institute of Early American History and Culture in Swem Library.

Billings is editing the papers of Sir William Berkeley for the Virginia Historical Society. The edition amounts to upwards of 1,500 items, a significant number of which were previously unknown or inaccessible to early Americanists.

Copies of the paper are available for reading at the Institute, the history department and the Commonwealth Center.

Teleconferences Set For Sept. 30, Nov. 3

Franklin Robeson, vice provost for information technology, and the technology services department will host two interactive satellite teleconferences, which are open to the College community free of charge. Both will be held in Washington 201. No reservations are required.

"Exploring the World of Computer Networks," will be the topic discussed on Thursday, Sept. 30 from 1 to 3 p.m.

This session is designed for faculty, administrators, policy makers, computer center staff, librarians, and higher-education students interested in the implications of computer networking.

"Computer Networks: New Faculty Resources," will be the topic of the session at 2:30 p.m., Wednesday, Nov. 3. An amazing amount of information is currently available to college faculty through the major computer information networks. Starting with THENET and INTERNET, experts will show and discuss how to access the major computer networks and obtain the available information.

For agendas or additional information, call Loretta Early at ext. 13002.

Tuesday, Oct. 5, in the Campus Center rooms A&B.

A 13-minute audio visual presentation will be held at that location on the hour beginning at 9 a.m., 10 a.m., noon, 1 p.m., 2 p.m., 3 p.m., and concluding at 4 p.m.

Hourly sessions will be held at VIMS in Watermen's Hall auditorium Tuesday, Oct. 12 beginning at 10 a.m. The final session will be held from 1 to 2 p.m.

Theatre To Open Season With Musical 'Guys And Dolls'

By Jennifer A. Shaw '94

Every year the first production of the season at the William and Mary Theatre offers the greater College community a first chance to see the work of some of the fresh new faces at William and Mary.

This year's first production, "Guys and Dolls" (to be performed Oct. 7, 8, 9, 14, 15 and 16 at 8 p.m., and Oct. 17 at 2 p.m.) is no exception. The cast and various crews have filled their ranks with many newcomers to William and Mary. What is exceptional about this year is the diversity found among the newcomers, including new faculty, freshmen and transfer students.

"Guys and Dolls" is a musical fable of Broadway based on a story and characters by Damon Runyon. Music and lyrics are by Frank Loesser; the book is by Jo Swerling and Abe Burrows. Director for the William and Mary production is Louis E. Catron, professor of theatre and speech. For tickets and information call the box office at ext. 12674. The box office is open Monday through Friday from 1 to 6 p.m. and Saturdays from 1 to 4 p.m.

One of the new people seen around W&M Theatre is faculty member Charles Houghton. He has an impressive list of credits, including an internship with Minnesota's prestigious Guthrie Theatre, undergraduate study at San Diego State University and a graduate degree in design from Temple University. As a freelance artist, Houghton has designed the lights for national tours of "Anything Goes" (1990) and "Ziegfeld: A Night At The Follies" (1991).

It is always a challenge to light a new space, and Houghton has chosen to make "Guys and Dolls," his first challenge for the William and Mary Theatre main stage. In Houghton's own words, "the lighting designer is the glue that puts all the elements [of the show] together." His light design will create a cohesive look for the different elements of costumes, scenery and actors in "Guys and Dolls."

One of the actors Houghton will be lighting is Suzannah Ancell '97. Ancell hoped to receive any role in the musical, but hardly expected to land the role of Miss Sarah Brown, a missionary worker and one of the four major leads in the show. An extremely energetic woman from St. Louis, Ancell has been active in musical theatre at the community level. She is enjoying her "Guys and Dolls" experience, in part because of the cast and the ensemble feeling that has been cultivated during the weeks of rehearsal.

Her favorite scene in the show is the Havana scene because "I finally get to let loose and have fun... [Sarah Brown's] rather rigid in the beginning," Ancell explains that part of her character's rigidity comes from the fact that her father and brother were financially ruined by gambling. "Sarah Brown feels she must save as many men as she can from the evils of gambling."

One of the gamblers who could benefit from being "saved" is Big Jule, played by Will Guild '95. Guild is a junior transfer student in a 24-month degree completion program with the U.S. Navy. Guild has spent almost 14 years in the Navy, 12 as a member of the prestigious SEAL teams. In order to receive the two-year leave from the Navy, Guild had to have his plan to pursue a theatre concentration approved. When colleagues found out about his decision to receive a degree in theatre, the idea raised a few eyebrows; but, Guild says, those who know him best are 100 percent supportive and plan to attend his stage debut in October. Not sure what to expect as a transfer student, Guild has been pleasantly surprised by the ease with which he has been accepted by students and faculty. The support he has received has helped him run with the character of Big Jule. It is a character Guild enjoys playing, and audiences should enjoy watching.

"Greater Tuna"

William and Mary's Second Season opens "Greater Tuna," a comedy by Jason Williams, Joe Sears and Ed Howard, tomorrow evening in the Studio Theatre.

Performances are scheduled for Sept. 30, Oct. 1, 2 at 8 p.m. There is no admission charge.

M-W Approves Women's Journal

The Marshall-Wythe School of Law faculty Thursday approved the creation of a new student-edited journal, The William & Mary Journal of Women in the Law.

Scheduled to be published annually beginning in the summer of 1994, the Journal of Women in the Law will feature professional articles by legal scholars and others concerned with the interactions between women and the legal system. It will also feature student commentaries on new laws and court decisions impacting on women.

"This new journal goes a long way in filling a 'topical gap' in the law school's publications," said Paul Marcus, acting dean of the law school.

"While we have achieved national recognition with both the William & Mary Law Review and the Administrative Law Review, and the William & Mary Bill of Rights Journal has made great strides in the last two years in becoming a national voice on constitutional issues, until now, we have had no real mechanism for focusing on women's issues," said Marcus. "The Journal of Women in the Law also puts us in the company of a number of our peer schools that have created similar journals—Berkeley, Southern California, Wisconsin, Harvard and Yale," he said. "We know this journal will find an eager market and, over time, will become an important medium for intellectual exchange."

"The Journal of Women in the Law already has an editorial board ready to begin screening articles," said Linda Jackson, the 1993-94 editor-in-chief. More than 50 students have signed up to do editorial work as articles and commentaries are selected.

Deborah Ventis, coordinator of women's studies and psychology professor, has committed to work with the journal's editors to identify and solicit professional authors.

"Initiating the Journal of Women in the Law is an important step in recognizing the growing body of legal research on women's issues," said Ventis. "It will provide students with an opportunity to learn more about an area that is under-represented in the curriculum."

Publications Council Bylaws To Be Reviewed

Seven members were appointed last week to a president's committee to study the bylaws of the Publications Council. The Publications Bylaws Review Committee was established by President Timothy J. Sullivan after a controversy last spring over a cartoon published by The Pillory, a student satire magazine.

The committee members include: Ray Betzner, director of public information; Jack D. Edwards, government professor and committee chair; Kerri J. Gilmore, a law student; Richard Lowry, assistant English professor; Melinda Jo Seeds, an undergraduate student; Rodney A. Smolla, law professor and director of the Institute of Bill of Rights Law; and Andrew J. Zawacki, an undergraduate student.

Ken Smith, associate vice president for student affairs, will staff the committee.

In his letter to committee members, Sullivan asked that they review College policies "mindful of our obligation to protect First Amendment values to their fullest extent and our responsibility as an institution of higher education to foster free and open discussion of ideas."

The committee's report is due by Feb. 15.

GALA Establishes Library Fund

William and Mary Gay and Lesbian Alumni/ae Inc. (William and Mary GALA) has raised the minimum $25,000 required to establish a named endowment fund at Swem Library as a dedicated financial resource for the purchase of gay and lesbian materials. With the success of the campaign, the endowment has been formally established by the College's endowment association.

The established fund has been named the Richard Cornish Endowment Fund in honor of a 17th-century shipmaster, who was hanged in Jamestown in 1624 or 1625 for an alleged homosexual encounter with one of his stewards. The incident is the earliest known execution for homosexuality in British North America. "We are delighted that we met our goal of $25,000 from charter contributors within our projected 12-month schedule for establishing the fund," said Stephen H. Snell, fundraising chair for the endowment campaign.

GALA President Michael J. Rogan of Boston, Mass., said "The Cornish Endowment Fund has been GALA's most important and ambitious project to date, and will provide the College's library with badly needed gay and lesbian materials. It will also provide support for the College's gay and lesbian studies courses inaugurated during the past academic year." Rogan said the campaign is continuing, and GALA will continue to seek financial contributions to expand the fund.

GALA will hold a special program during Homecoming weekend on Friday, Oct. 22, in the Dodge Room of Phi Beta Kappa to honor alumnus and noted author Chris Braum with its first Director's Cup award. Braum is the author of several successful books, among them, In Memory of Angel Clare.

Minority Career Day, Nov. 2

Students planning to attend the Nov. 2 Minority Career Day at the University of Virginia are asked to sign up by Oct. 15.

It is anticipated that 140 employers representing a wide variety of career fields will attend the Nov. 2 program. In addition, there will be two presentations, at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m., which will focus on issues relating to the minority student job search. Registrations for the meeting close at 5 p.m., Oct. 15, in the Office of Career Services, Blow Hall 123.

A bus will leave from the front of Blow Hall at 8 a.m. on Nov. 2 and return around 5 p.m.

Futures editor Chris Avellone, in announcing the Career Day, urged all minority students interested in career information as well as internships and summer employment information to attend. "Now is the time to be involved in career planning and job searching," wrote Avellone.

before our weekly visits developed into mutual friendships," said Bryant.

According to Bryant, the two patients were not always so responsive and eager for his visits. "When I first started coming to the hospital, Mr. Warsjenski and Mr. Abbott seemed a little unsure of me," explained Bryant. But with each visit, they became less withdrawn and more comfortable with his visits. "It wasn't long

As a volunteer, Bryant says, "It's all rather rewarding because you feel like you're doing something to help people and you can see the result of what you're doing."

Bryant also keeps busy as a member of the Board of Governors of the Senior Lawyers Section of the Virginia State Bar Association, and on the liaison committee between the A.A.R.P. and the Senior Lawyers Section of the American Bar Association. Bryant says he is most interested in laws that effect the elderly.

R.S.V.P. volunteers donate their time to be caretakers, tutors, reading instructors, drivers, messengers and visitors in area hospitals, nursing homes, libraries, museums and government agencies.

The 1993 Combined Virginia Campaign began at the College on Wednesday, Sept. 22, with a $60,000 goal.

Symposium and Gala Highlight Reves Celebration

Many events have been described as "highlights" of the tercentenary year on campus. Few can match the weekend of Sept. 24-25. The Reves Center's symposium "Beyond the Nation-State: Transforming Visions of Human Society" brought scholars from many countries of the world to discuss issues of the post-Cold War world. A gala celebration of the life and contribution of Emery Reves to the cause of world peace in William and Mary Hall was capped by an address by Oscar Arias Sanchez, former president of Costa Rica and Nobel laureate. Saturday evening was also the occasion for the presentation of the first Reves Peace Prize. Margaret Joan Anstee was honored for 40 years of service to the United Nations.

The efforts of Senator J. William Fulbright for world peace through education, with the establishment of the exchange program that bears his name, was also honored. Introduced by Anne Elizabeth Barrett '93, a Fulbright Scholar in New Zealand, Mrs. Fulbright received the award for her husband who was not able to attend.

Exuberant as always, Wendy Reves, widow of Emery Reves who donated funds for the establishment of the Wendy and Emery Reves Center for International Studies, was on hand for the celebration and also received an award for her contributions.

A video presentation about the life of Emery Reves was produced for the gala. JoAnn Falletta conducted the Virginia Symphony and the Rainbow Connection in Marvin Hamlisch's "The Anatomy of Peace," commemorating Emery Reves' book. The Symphony and the William and Mary Choir opened the program with a performance of "Te Deum" by Franz Joseph Haydn. A rousing cheer that went up from behind the stage after the rehearsal was the choir's way of thanking Conductor Falletta, who said she hopes to work with the choir again.

The symposium was part of a full calendar of events; Sept. 24-25 was also Family Weekend. On Saturday afternoon there was a break after the morning's weighty discussions for a celebration of the 100th anniversary of football at the College. The Tribe delighted their supporters with a resounding win over Harvard.

Clydesdales To Strut Their Stuff In Tercentenary Homecoming Parade, Oct. 23

By Peggy Shaw
University Relations

The Anheuser-Busch Clydesdales will anchor the tercentenary homecoming parade Oct. 23. The world-famous horses will pull a colorful four-ton antique wagon along the parade route from the Capitol building up Duke of Gloucester St. to Zable Stadium beginning at 9:30 a.m.

Leading the 64th annual homecoming parade will be a team of black Percheron horses pulling an 18th-century reproduction carriage from the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation. The dark blue and gilt open-style carriage will transport this year's grand marshals—William and Mary's oldest alumna, Catherine Teackle Dennis '21; the oldest alumnus, E. Ralph James '16; and the alumnus who has attended the most homecomings over the years, Rolfe E. Kennard '24.

The parade, "A Timeline Celebrating 300 Years of William and Mary History," will also include Colonial Williamsburg's Fife and Drum Corps, the William and Mary Marching Band, the Alumni Band and the Strath James Pipe Band bagpipers, according to parade coordinator Nancy Dutro.

The Class of 1958 will do a bow to Lord Botetourt, the Class of 1963 plans to salute 1693, and members of the ROTC unit plan to dress in various military uniforms that William and Mary students have worn throughout the centuries.

"Another group has talked to me about doing the Indian School at the Brafferton, and one sorority and fraternity are doing the Roaring '20s, depicting the first homecoming parade (in 1929)," Dutro said.

Riding in classic convertibles will be the Alumni Medallion recipients: William and Mary President Timothy J. Sullivan '66, A. Marshall Acuff, Jr. '66, John Entwisle '44 and Howard M. Smith Jr. '43.

Also riding in style will be: Joseph W. Montgomery '74, president of the Society of the Alumni; Robert C. Wilburn, president of the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation; W. Samuel Sadler, William and Mary's vice president for student affairs; members of the homecoming court; and parade marshal Wilford Kale '66.

The homecoming parade gathers a variety of participants from within the College community. It has been canceled only twice, and was postponed once (in 1976) because of inclement weather.

Open to all College-sanctioned groups, the homecoming parade is hosted by the Society of the Alumni.

Black Faculty And Staff Honored

W. Barry Adams, executive vice president of the Society of the Alumni, chats with (l) Michael A. Powell, assistant to the president and director of affirmative action, and Ronald R. Sims, professor of business administration and president of the Black Faculty and Staff Caucus. The occasion was a reception for black faculty and staff, sponsored by the Hulon Willis Association, an organization of African-American alumni at the College. The association is named for the first African-American to receive a degree from the College.

Crestar Gives $75,000 To Business School

The Crestar Financial Corporation of Richmond has made a gift of $75,000, payable over a five-year period, to fund the School of Business Administration as part of the Campaign for the Fourth Century.

"The College has enjoyed a long relationship with Crestar, dating back to 1978 when the bank established a fellowship at the school of business," said Alfred N. Page, dean of the school of business administration. "We are very pleased to receive Crestar's generous gift to be used for the most pressing needs of the school of business."

This is the most recent gift from Crestar, which also provides $3,000 in financial assistance very year through the Crestar Fellowship program.

The Crestar Fellowship consists of a cash award, an offer of part-time employment during the final three semesters of the student's program and the possibility of full-time employment during the summer.

munications from San Jose State University and an M.A. in English from Virginia Commonwealth University. He plans to teach at the university level.

Brudvig

Jon L. Brudvig also has received a Commonwealth Fellowship Award. Brudvig, a doctoral student in history will use the fellowship award to continue his research of the American Indian education program at Hampton University, 1878-1923, a unique educational experiment, which became a model for others.

When Capt. Richard Henry Pratt tried to find educational opportunities for Indian captives who were languishing in jail in Florida, Hampton Institute was the only school to agree to take the Indians. The program sought to give the Indians skills with which they could return home to lead and serve. Until 1923, when the program was closed because of lack of funding, 1,400 Indians had taken part.

The records at Hampton University, says Brudvig provide detailed information on the program and its participants. Because of the wealth of material Brudvig hopes to write some biographies of American Indians after he has completed his doctoral studies.

Brudvig received both a B.A. in history and philosophy and an M.A. in United States history from Marquette University. He wrote his master's thesis on "The Continental Congress and the Indians: The Evolution of Federal Indian Policy, 1774-1783. His dissertation is titled "Bridging the Cultural Divide: Hampton Institute's Experiment in Native American Education."

While finishing his degree requirements, Brudvig is an adjunct history instructor at both Hampton University and Thomas Nelson Community College. He has also been a history instructor at William and Mary. He has done historical research and writing for the Jamestown-Yorktown Foundation and the department of archaeological research at the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation.

Brudvig co-authored "The Search for the Palisade of 1634" (co-authored with Dave Muraca) which appeared in the Quarterly Bulletin of the Archaeological Society of Virginia, September 1993. He also prepared a research report on "Native Americans and the American Revolution," this year for the Jamestown-Yorktown Foundation.

Brudvig is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and received the 1991-92 and Bicknell Scholarship awarded by the Sons and Daughters of the Pilgrims.

Williamson explores the application of Miranda's custody requirements under the Fifth Amendment to Fourth Amendment cases involving stop-and-frisk. Williamson has also finished the 1993 supplement to his Defending Criminal Cases in Virginia, and his materials for the 1993 Recent Developments in the Law Seminar and the 1993 Judges' School in Charlottesville. He also spoke to the Newport News Bar Association on problems confronting legal education.

A Federal District Judge in New York recently quoted extensively from Acting Associate Dean Jayne Barnard's 1992 North Carolina article suggesting a reasonable way for courts to approach a new provision of the federal securities law. The judge used Barnard's work as a "framework" for resolving the case and followed the factors Barnard put forth in the piece. The case, handed down in July is SEC v. Shah.

Northwestern Law Review will publish Professor David Douglas' article "The Rhetoric of Moderation: Desegregating the South During the Decade After Brown."

The University of North Carolina Press has agreed to publish Douglas' book, Changing Times: The Desegregation of the Charlotte Schools. Publication is expected in the fall of 1994. Next year Garland Press will publish as part of its "Controversies in Constitutional Law" series Douglas' two-volume work, a collection of edited documents with an introductory essay.

Professor Fred Lederer received the Army War College Foundation Writing Award earlier this summer for his most recent article, "Rethinking 'Disciplinary Punishment': A Proposed Adoption of Unit Punishments."

Professor John Levy has been appointed to several groups recently, including the State Advisory Council to the National Legal Services Corporation (by the Governor), the Special Committee to Study the Code of Professional Responsibility (by the President of the Virginia State Bar), and the Virginia State Bar course on professionalism.

Associate Dean Rick Overy was recently selected to participate in the Leadership Historical Triangle, which is a special leadership development program of the Chamber of Commerce.

School of Business Administration

George Oldfield '60, former managing director and head of the Risk Management Group at PaineWebber in New York City, has returned to campus as Richard S. Reynolds Jr. Professor.

Oldfield oversaw the development systems, analytics and risk measures for all of PaineWebber's principal trading activities and helped monitor the firm's overall risk profile.

He graduated from William and Mary with an undergraduate degree in economics. This fall Oldfield is teaching finance classes.

Wanda A. Wallace, the John N. Dalton Professor of Business Administration was invited by the MBA students to contribute to the first edition of the William and Mary Review. Her article, "The Continuing Controversy Regarding the Accounting Treatment of Compensation Arrangements on Executive Compensation Issues," appears in the Spring 1993 issue, pp. 24-30.

Wallace, with her co-author Norvald Mosen of the Norwegian School of Economics and Business Administration, presented "Evolving Financial Reporting Practices: The Dilemma of Conflicting Standards in the Nordic Countries" at the Contemporary Accounting Research Conference at three University of Alberta, in Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, May 1-3.

Career Services

Mary Meade Saunders, associate director of career services, has been named to the position of College Director to the Board of the Virginia College Placement Association for the 1993-94 calendar year.

University Relations

William N. Walker, director of university relations, will assume the presidency of the Williamsburg Area Chamber of Commerce, Oct. 1. He was elected to the one-year post last May by the chamber board of directors.

A member of the chamber board since 1986, Walker has served for the past year as president-elect. He has been a member of the executive committee for the past four years, and has served as chair of the board's education division.

He succeeds William C. O'Donovan, publisher of the Virginia Gazette, as president.

Admission Review

President Sullivan has asked that the College conduct a careful review of the undergraduate admission office "to find a way to strengthen what is already a strong enterprise." As part of that review, we are identifying benchmark programs elsewhere from which we can learn.

Any member of the university community who has had experience with other admission offices (or with ours) and who can suggest other institutions we should study or ways in which we can improve our own activities is urged to call Jean Scott at ext. 11284.

International Student Job Fair Oct. 28

International students from William and Mary have been invited to participate in an International Student Job Fair at the American University on Thursday, Oct. 28.

Junior, senior, graduate or practical training international students may participate between 1 and 4 p.m.

The International Student Job Fair is an open forum where many companies seek candidates for positions available in their overseas operations. Candidates are expected to have work credentials for the specific country of employment.

In order to be eligible to participate, students must complete a registration form and have it signed by Bob Hunt, associate director of career services, by Oct. 15. MBA students should contact the Office of MBA Placement. Transportation will be provided.

For admission to the job fair, students must present five resumes and their copy of the registration form.

Those interested in attending should call ext. 13240. Additional information on the job fair can be found in the International Student Employment Information Notebook in the Career Library, Blow Hall 124.

CWA Outgrowing Facilities At W&M Hall

The Christopher Wren Association, an association for lifelong learning, is not yet four years old and is growing by leaps and bounds.

In January 1991, the organization, launched by co-directors Ruth and Wayne Kernodle, had a membership of 75. In September of that year, membership stood at 170, and Ruth Kernodle predicted it would reach 180.

Grant Olson, current CWA chairman, was delayed in his opening remarks at the fall convocation while extra chairs were brought in for the audience. CWA membership is now 300, with 127 registered as associate members.

The association meets in the Wightman Cup Room in William and Mary Hall, but is fast outgrowing its facilities.

William F. Merck II, vice president for administration and finance, was guest speaker for the convocation and gave a slide presentation on new construction.

For the slide show, the CWA unveiled special shades which have been purchased to darken the Wightman Cup room for similar programs and movies.

For information, call ext. 11079.

Editor's Note

When you give up what you know is the best job on campus it is hard to say goodbye. But, to quote one of William and Mary's former first ladies, Zoe Graves, everyone needs to be repotted periodically. I'm not sure what pot I'll find, I hope it will be as rewarding as this one has been.

To all the wonderful people on campus who have gently overlooked shortcomings, laughed with rather than at typographic glitches and allowed me to share some time with them, a heartfelt thank you.

We ended up in the Chronicle of Higher Education's marginalia for putting the "Shapely" rather than "Shaply" professor in a headline and recently received a compliment on solving the educational budget crunch by working with "dead" instead of "deaf" students. We broke the story on why Daniloff was wearing W&M sweats when he was released on spy charges in Moscow, but most of the time we had to be content to follow rather than lead. The News has been ribbed goodnaturedly by The Flat Hat and enjoyed several nicknames including "The W&M Snooze" and "Pravda" (for following the party line). To those who felt we could never do anything right and never enough—get a life.

The News will be different, and I hope the new editor will enjoy this window on the campus as much as I have.

—Barbara Ball ed.

P.S. I look forward to seeing many of you at the reception, 3-5 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 6, in the Dodge Room.

Food For Thought

John McKnight, professor of physics, will speak Monday, Oct. 18, on "The Heavens Are Telling the Glory of God" (Psalm 19); Cosmologies in Revealed Religion and in Science—An Historical Perspective," at noon at the Wesley Foundation, the United Methodist campus ministry at the College, as part of the "Food for Thought" series.

Faculty, staff and students are welcome. Participants are asked to bring their lunch; the Wesley Foundation will provide beverages. Programs last about 50 minutes.

"Food for Thought" is a monthly program of the Wesley Foundation, to build community and bring together faculty and staff for food, fellowship and informal learning across disciplinary and departmental lines," explains David Hindman, United Methodist campus minister.

On Monday, Nov. 15, "National Health Care: Ethical Issues," will be discussed by Hans Tiefel, professor of religion.

The Foundation is located at 526 Jamestown Road, across from Barksdale field. For more information on the "Food for Thought" programs, call Hindman at 229-6832.
