Guidelines Drafted For Institutional Planning

A set of guidelines has been drafted to help guide the Strategic Planning Committee through its examination of the College, said Provost Gillian Cell. Comments on the guidelines by members of the College community are now being sought.

The guidelines were developed with the Institutional Purpose Committee of the 1994 Self-Study and have been modified in response to comments by committee members.

Cell said both committees have agreed to the principles.

The Strategic Planning Committee, chaired by Cell, was established by the president to make sure the College makes the best possible use of its resources. There are 25 members of the Strategic Planning Committee, which plans to have a report ready for the College Board of Visitors by the fall of 1994.

The 1994 Self-Study is being conducted through a Steering Committee and the work of 14 committees for a comprehensive examination to be reviewed by the Southern Association of College and Schools, the College's accrediting agency. The Self-Study's first draft will be ready in the summer of 1994 and a final report will be completed in the spring of 1995.

The groups are working together in their reviews. In particular, Cell said the Strategic Planning Committee and the Institutional Purpose Committee of the Self-Study hope to define the distinctive characteristics of the College.

The Institutional Purpose Committee is at work on a fully developed mission

Visitors Get Lake Matoaka Update

The Board of Visitors received an update on Lake Matoaka during its recent meeting, and learned of an enhanced cooperative program between the College and the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation.

William F. Merck II, vice president for administration and finance, said a major recommendation of the Matoaka Task Force was that the College Woods be protected as a preserve.

The College Woods is roughly bordered by Monticello Avenue, Compton Drive, the area behind William and Mary Hall to Jamestown Road, and the wood surrounding the tributaries behind Ironbound Road and Berkeley Middle School.

A practical system of controlled access for the use of the lake and the woods is also recommended. Merck said use of both areas for classes and laboratories are a primary concern, followed by the recreational use by the College faculty, students and staff.

Unregulated use by the general public should be limited, the task force report said.

Among other task force recommendations are:

- Renovating the Matoaka Amphitheatre to reflect current uses and needs. Merck said this could include eliminating the asphalt in the amphitheatre seating area in favor of a grassed seating area.
- Enhanced cooperation with private land owners and local jurisdictions to prevent pollution from the 1,400-acre watershed from damaging the 45-acre lake. This effort should also focus on reducing sediment flow to keep the lake from filling up.
- If funds allow, creating a full-time College naturalist-conservationist position.
- Limiting recreational uses of the lake

Helfrich Gives Old Symbol a New Twist

A new interpretation of the William and Mary cypher by Paul Helfrich was hung recently in George P. Blow Memorial Hall. Shown are Helfrich, associate professor of art and art history, and Valerie Hardy, curator of the President's Collection of Faculty and Student Art. For more about the collection, see the story on page 2.

Holiday Leave Schedule

The College of William and Mary will observe the following Christmas holiday leave schedule:

Wednesday, Dec. 22	Tuesday, Dec. 28
Thursday, Dec. 23	Wednesday, Dec. 29
Friday, Dec. 24	Thursday, Dec. 30
Monday, Dec. 27	Friday, Dec. 31 (applied to 1994)

Most of the administrative offices and the plant department (except for those employees required to maintain essential services as determined by management) will be closed. The decision to require employees to work should be made by the dean, director or department head, as appropriate, and should be communicated to the employee(s) as soon as possible. The Campus Police Department will maintain its regular schedule.

The names of permanent classified employees who are required to work must be reported in writing to the Office of Personnel Services no later than Jan. 7, 1994, in order that those employees may be credited with compensatory leave. Hourly employees who are required to work during the holiday will be paid their regular hourly rates.

With the approval of management, compensatory leave should be taken as soon as possible after the holiday on which it was earned. Compensatory time not taken within 12 months will be lost.

On behalf of the administration of the university, I wish each member of the College community a safe and enjoyable holiday.

Gillian T. Cell, Provost

Faculty Artwork By Helfrich, Cohen, Hardy Hung In Blow Hall

A colorful contemporary collage of the William and Mary cypher was hung Nov. 19 in the Board of Visitors dining room in George P. Blow Memorial Hall.

The distinctive new artwork by Paul Helfrich, associate professor of art and art history, was commissioned this year by the President's Collection of Faculty and Student Art in recognition of the tercentenary.

"It's a new interpretation of a traditional form that we all relate so closely to this institution," said Valerie Hardy, curator of the President's Collection and an adjunct professor of art. "There's a lot of fun and humor in Paul's work but it also honors the symbol."

Helfrich's cypher piece, a 42-inch by 70-inch collage made of tempera paint, gold leaf and paper on plywood, "makes a strong impression on the observer from a distance and continues to engage interest up to the smallest surface detail," Hardy observed.

When Helfrich was commissioned for the piece he was asked to consider imagery with a William and Mary connection.

"I was trying to think of something appropriate to William and Mary and I've always found that cypher image to be interesting in its design," said Helfrich, an art professor at the College since 1971. "The interlocking W&M has existed for a long time. It's actually a complicated design. I did some drawings until I understood it and then I drew it on plywood."

In bringing his own artistic touches to the controlled outline of the design, Helfrich found himself going beyond the conventional William and Mary green and gold color scheme.

"I wanted there to be some yellow for the golden color and there's some green along the edge, but then I departed from that," he said. "I wanted to use a structure people could identify with but then I wanted to become more playful with the image."

It was the first time that Helfrich, a graduate of Ohio University, had been commissioned to produce artwork for a particular space, and he liked the experience. "I'm part of this institution and have been for a long time, and it's appropriate for people who are here to celebrate the College in whatever they do," he explained.

Three working drawings of the tercentenary statue of James Blair by William and Mary art professor and sculptor Lewis Cohen—all part of the President's Collection—have been mounted in the Blow Hall dining room. Also on temporary loan there is a portrait Hardy painted of President Sullivan in his office.

The President's Collection was formally established earlier this year, when Timothy and Anne Sullivan and other alumni and friends of the College, created an endowment in support of the visual arts. It is hoped that as the collection grows, artworks will be displayed in many gathering places on campus, including the Wendy and Emery Reves Center for International Studies and the new University Center.

"We have had a very positive response to the collection by the College community, by the artists and by the public," Hardy said. "The purchased artworks and those on loan not only enhance the beauty of this 300-year-old campus but also express to visitors the diversity of talents at William and Mary in 1993."

President's House To Be Open For Special Christmas Tour Dec. 11

The President's House, decorated in its Christmas finery, will be open to the public from 5-6 p.m. on Dec. 11, the day of the campus Yule Log Ceremony. The Yule Log Ceremony will be held from 6-8 p.m. in the Sir Christopher Wren Building.

Guests will tour the first floor of the President's House.

Many holiday decorations on display in the house this year were photographed last Christmas for the new Colonial Williamsburg book, Entertaining Ideas from Williamsburg, by Susan Hight Rountree. These special decorations include: a garland of natural materials fashioned in the style of English sculptor Grinling Gibbons and placed over the front parlor mantel; hand-carved cherubs holding greenery and holiday candles and boxwood topiary trees.

Traditionally, the President's House is also decorated with a large garland of fresh greens on the archway between the front and back parlors and a beribboned boxwood kissing ball. The house Christmas tree showcases a collection of ornaments from students, alumni and College staff members.

During the College's Yule Log Ceremony students bring a log into the Great Hall of the Sir Christopher Wren Building and toss sprigs of holly on the fire for good luck.

New Honor Society Created

Alpha Delta Gamma, the new undergraduate honorary society for medieval and renaissance studies, will hold its inaugural ceremony at 4 p.m. Dec. 5 in the chapel of the Sir Christopher Wren Building.

Members of the College are invited to the candlelight ceremony.

Created by the faculty of the program in medieval and renaissance studies, the society will share the founding date of Dec. 5 with Phi Beta Kappa, the national honor society founded in Williamsburg in 1776.

The inaugural ceremonies will include medieval music performed by the Cinque-Pace Consort led by Dan Jackson, presentation of the scallop shell insignia of the society and signing of the Great Book of Names by faculty and student inductees.

President Timothy J. Sullivan will give an address welcoming the society as part of the William and Mary community.

The society is an offshoot of the Program in medieval and renaissance studies, founded by College faculty four years ago. There are currently about 30 professors in 10 departments participating in the program, which has its own major and minor.

An annual summer apprenticeship in archival skills for medieval and renaissance studies held at St. John's University in Collegeville, Minn., is a feature of the program, as are faculty-led study trips to Europe.

George Greenia, director of the program, said the new honorary society is destined to become a national organization, authorizing new chapters on other campuses, and advertising through the Medieval Academy of America.

For more information about the society, contact Greenia at ext. 13676.

Martha Hamilton-Phillips Receives Award

A model of the new James Blair statue was given to Martha Hamilton-Phillips, director of tercentenary events, in recognition of her work in overseeing the College's 300th anniversary celebration. Making the presentation Nov. 19 was Rector James Brinkley. The model was made by Lewis Cohen, associate professor of art and art history from his designs for the statue.

Comments Sought On Guidelines For Institutional Planning

statement which it will submit for broad community discussion next semester, she said.

Meanwhile, the Strategic Planning Committee has focused more narrowly on specific principles around which goals and objectives will be set in a strategic plan to be implemented over the next five to 10 years, the provost explained.

The preliminary planning principles state that:

- William and Mary will remain a small public university with undergraduate, graduate and professional programs designed to preserve, transmit and expand knowledge.

- William and Mary will blend the best features of an undergraduate college with those of a research university by continuing its tradition of excellence in undergraduate education and in selected graduate and professional programs.

- William and Mary will maintain the scale necessary for close personal living experiences.

- William and Mary will foster integration of its instructional, research and service programs.

- William and Mary's undergraduate program will emphasize a broad liberal education for its students.

- William and Mary's undergraduate program will remain predominantly residential.

- William and Mary will foster intellectual and cultural diversity in an environment that enhances individual growth and development.

- William and Mary, recognizing its special responsibility to the citizens of Virginia, will serve as a resource to the local, state, national and global communities and enhance its own programs by interactions with these communities.

- William and Mary will seek and allocate resources in a manner consistent with its commitment to quality and national or international stature in selected programs.

The two committees are inviting comments on the draft principles from the College community. Comments should be sent by Dec. 15. Written comments can go through campus mail to Provost

Gillian Cell, chair of the Strategic Planning Committee, The Brafferton or by e-mail at gcell@mail.wm.edu.

Comments can also be sent by campus mail to Professor Edward Crapol, Chair of the Institutional Purpose Committee, Department of History, Morton Hall, or through e-mail at epcrap@mail.wm.edu.

"The committee members will value the advice they receive as they continue their work," Cell commented.

and woods to less sensitive areas or seasons. For example, the task force expressed concern about declaring certain areas off limits when used by nesting pairs of waterfowl.

Also during the two-day sessions, board members:

- Heard a status report on the improved cooperative initiatives between the College and the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation. Both President Timothy Sullivan and Colonial Williamsburg President Robert Wilburn said the time was right to increase academic and social ties between the two agencies.

Plans for future study include a James Blair Lecture Series, enhanced interpretation of the Sir Christopher Wren Building and yard, improved academic initiatives and more student initiatives.

- Approved the hiring of Edwin A. Cowell as assistant to the associate vice president for student affairs for multicultural affairs; Peter B. Daub, as head coach for men's tennis; and Edgar Letriz, as assistant dean of admission.

In addition, two appointments were made to the School of Marine Science: Maurice P. Lynch as professor and Beverly A. Weeks-Perkins as associate professor.

- Honored Martha Hamilton-Phillips, director of tercentenary observances, with a resolution. Board members commended her for her "unparalleled dedication, energy, and enthusiasm" in planning the events of the 300th anniversary year.

Along with the resolution, Hamilton-Phillips received a model of the James Blair statue. The original statue was dedicated during Homecoming.

Answers To Questions On Dec. 1 Pay Raises

A few questions have been raised in response to the "Pay Raises Allocated to Exceptional College Employees" article in the Nov. 17 edition of the William & Mary News. Here are some answers to those most frequently asked questions.

- A. All classified employees will receive a 2 percent, across-the-board, general salary adjustment. Merit increases are in addition to the 2 percent increase.
- Q. Why was I not chosen as one of the individuals provided with a three-step increase?
- A. The senior administrator of the competitive groups ranked each employee who received an exceptional rating. The administrators used comparative information from the performance evaluations to make those decisions.

New Book Series Begun Through Institute Of Bill Of Rights Law

Constitutional Literacy: A Core Curriculum for a Multicultural Nation is the first title in the new law book series by the Institute of Bill of Rights Law at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law.

The series, "Constitutional Conflicts," is being published by Duke University Press. The series editors are Rodney A. Smolla, director of the Institute of Bill of Rights Law, and Neal Devins, law professor.

The first book in the series is by Toni Marie Massaro, a 1980 graduate of the Marshall-Wythe School of Law, who is now a law professor at the University of Arizona College of Law.

Massaro's book analyzes the debate over a national education curriculum from a constitutional point of view.

"Any national curriculum proposal that fails to recognize our pluralism and conflicts along with our common commitments surely will be rejected by many Americans as a distorted portrayal of the national character and experience," said Massaro in her introduction.

The book is already winning praise from experts in the field of higher education. For example, E. D. Hirsch called Massaro's book, "A thoughtful and accurate work of scholarship that eschews ideology in discussing pressing needs of American education."

Hirsch is the author of a number of books, including Cultural Literacy: What Every American Needs to Know and A Dictionary of Cultural Literacy.

Tax Conference Dec. 3-4 At Law School

The Marshall-Wythe School of Law will sponsor the 39th William and Mary Tax Conference on Friday and Saturday, Dec. 3 and 4.

This year's theme is "The Clinton Tax Agenda." More than 250 lawyers and accountants from Virginia and the surrounding area are expected to attend.

"Tax law is a very dynamic field—perhaps excessively so," said Glenn E. Coven, Mills E. Godwin Professor of Law and director of the conference.

"For nearly four decades, the William and Mary Tax Conference has traced tax policy changes ranging from massive revisions to the Internal Revenue Code, to specific court cases and state law developments. Many Virginia and North Carolina tax advisers now come to the conference on an annual basis, just to keep abreast of developments in the field."

Sixteen nationally prominent tax experts, representing law firms, law schools, business schools and accounting firms from across the country, will be featured at the conference.

The keynote speaker will be Harry L. Gutman, chief of staff of the Joint Committee on Taxation of the U.S. Congress, and former professor of law at the University of Virginia.

Explore The Internet

The conference is free to the College community and no reservations are required.

With more than 5 million users spanning more than 110 countries, Internet is the largest and fastest-growing information network in the world. This video teleconference is designed for librarians, university faculty, administrators and information specialists.

Viewers will be introduced to Internet, its technology and its applications. Leading information experts will answer questions for new and experienced users and will help assemble a reference collection about Internet.

Military Science Awards Ceremony

Cadet Regina Flango, a senior, received the Byron M. Spear Memorial Award on Nov. 22 during The Revolutionary Guard Battalion's fall award ceremony. Presenting the award was John W. Bane. The ceremony included an address by Col. Philip E. Brou Jr., director of current logistics operations, automation and exercises division for the U.S. Atlantic Command at Norfolk.

Michael Faia Authors Book

Sociology Professor Michael A. Faia is the author of the new book, What's Wrong with the Social Sciences?

The book, published by the University Press of America, explores what Faia called a vociferous anti-science movement that has developed in recent years among students of society.

"It is an argument against several schools of thought operating in the last 15 years by people who call themselves things like post modernists," Faia explained. "What they try to do is to affect positivism."

"Recent critics of the positive perspective are pretty much moving away from the scientific method and undermining sociology," he said.

The book tackles such topics as feminist theory, the nature and extent of bias in scientific research and sex discrimination in faculty salaries.

Law School Ranks Among Top 20 In New Book

The Marshall-Wythe School of Law has been named among one of the nation's top 20 in this year's edition of The Best Law Schools.

The annual guide, written by Thomas H. Martinson, ranked Marshall-Wythe as 18th in the country, based on measures of student selectivity, educational effectiveness and "placement power."

"This recognition is particularly valuable to us, because it is based on actual performance measures, rather than on the law school's financial condition. Rankings based on resources always work to our disadvantage," said Paul Marcus, acting law dean.

Martinson measured student selectivity by taking into account the entering class's median LSAT score and median GPA and the school's acceptance-to-applications ratio. Educational effectiveness was measured by the percent of recent graduates selected for prestigious judicial clerkships.

A third criteria, "placement power," was measured by the percent of graduates reporting jobs as of graduation, together with their median starting salary.

Marcus noted that "academic rankings often fail to capture the essential strengths of an institution by focusing too much on numbers. In this survey, Marshall-Wythe's numbers are very competitive, and we are proud of that fact; but in the end what makes this an outstanding law school is the wonderful educational experience our students enjoy here."

"The energy and diversity of our faculty, the challenge of our Legal Skills Program and the devotion to the school of our students and alumni all go into making Marshall-Wythe one of the best law school options available," said Marcus.

Mystery Of Sherlock Holmes' Popularity To Be Solved In Friends Of The Library Lecture On Dec. 2

"Sherlock Holmes: Fact or Fiction" is the topic of the next lecture sponsored by the Friends of the Library.

The talk—which is free and open to the public—will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 2, in the Botetourt Theatre of Earl Gregg Swem Library. A reception will follow.

The speaker will be Raymond L. Betzner, director of public information at the College and a literary member of the Baker Street Irregulars, a Sherlock Holmes society.

In his talk, Betzner will trace the 106-year history of Sherlock Holmes, a creation of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. From modest beginnings in the magazine Beeton's Christmas Annual for 1887, Holmes has become one of the most recognizable characters in fiction and an enduring part of the popular culture.

The original 60 stories by Conan Doyle have inspired thousands of imitations, parodies and adaptations to film, television and radio. Holmes is also the center of a large body of tongue-in-cheek literary criticism and the focal point for hundreds of Holmes organizations around the world.

In conjunction with the talk, a small display of Holmes' materials from Betzner's collection will be in the Swem Library lobby from Dec. 1 to Jan. 31.
