NOTES

Va. Symphony and Chorus Perform "Messiah" At PBK

The Virginia Symphony and Virginia Symphony Chorus will perform Handel's "Messiah" at 8 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 16, in Phi Beta Kappa Memorial Hall. Four world-class soloists will be featured during this traditional piece conducted by Chorus Master Donald McCullough.

Special ticket rates are available for the William and Mary community: $10 for staff and faculty; $5 for students. Tickets are available from any Ticketmaster location and at the door.

Retirement Seminar Jan. 13

Wayne Miller from John Hancock will conduct a one-hour retirement seminar on Thursday, Jan. 13, in the Campus Center. Sessions will be held at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. in rooms A and B.

For more information, contact Rita Metcalfe at ext. 13158 or Brenda Johnson at ext. 13151 in the benefits office.

Law Library Tours

Reference librarians will conduct tours of the Marshall-Wythe Law Library collection to help non-law faculty become acquainted with the information and services that are available.

The program will be held 2 to 4 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 13. All College faculty are invited to attend. Call Martha Rush at ext. 13253 for more information.

Ash Lawn-Highland Wins Preservation Award

Ash Lawn-Highland is the winner of the Historic Preservation Award, given by the Thomas Jefferson Branch of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities.

The award recognizes the achievements of the property, which is located near Charlottesville and was given to the College in 1974 by Jay Winston Johns. The property was the home of U.S. President James Monroe, an alumnus of the College.

Over the last 18 years, attention has been focused on the restoration of the historic house and grounds, reconstruction of outbuildings and interpretation of early 19th-century plantation life in Central Virginia.

News Publication Schedule

The next issue of the William & Mary News will be published Jan. 12. Deadline for submission of material is 5 p.m. on Friday, Jan. 7.

Zawacki Chosen Second Rhodes Scholar In College's History

By Peggy Shaw

After being told on Dec. 4 that he had been chosen for a Rhodes Scholarship, William and Mary senior Andrew Zawacki felt relieved that the intensive competition was over. But attention from members of the media, and others, was just beginning.

A friend from Notre Dame called to tell Zawacki that his name was in The New York Times. Zawacki's telephone voice-mail quickly filled up with messages from friends, family and newspaper reporters on deadline. And former U.S. Poet Laureate Mark Strand, with whom Zawacki studied last summer, sent the young scholar a signed copy of rare early poems by Strand that Zawacki had been wanting for his collection.

"President Clinton could call and I wouldn't think it was as big a deal as this," said Zawacki, gingerly handling the Strand packet.

Zawacki is the second student in William and Mary's history to win one of the prestigious scholarships to study at Oxford University in England. He and 31 others were selected for the honor from a field of 1,200 applicants on qualifications that include academic excellence, integrity, leadership ability and athletic prowess.

The scholarship will provide Zawacki with tuition, room and board at Oxford for two years. He will use the plum academic prize to pursue a master's degree in the field of English literature from 1880 to 1980, concentrating on T.S. Eliot and the relationship between poetry and prayer.

"I hope to look at how 20th-century British and American poets

Swem Library Plans Addition And Renovation

Preliminary plans for a major addition to, and renovation of, Earl Gregg Swem Library have been prepared and are currently under review by the state.

The plans call for a two-phase project which would include a 98,600-square-foot addition and renovation of about 35 percent of the current 166,700 square feet in the library in Phase I.

Total cost of Phase I is estimated at $18 million and Phase II at $8.7 million.

The project has already been reviewed by the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia, said Nancy H. Marshall, dean of university libraries. "SCHEV said the project is 100 percent justified," she said.

The need for the addition and renovation became apparent to both library administrators and users in recent years as the library's collection and services have grown.

The library now houses 982,125 books and bound periodicals; another 5,576 periodical and serial subscriptions; more than 1 million units of microforms like microfiche and microfilm; 530,924 government documents; 32,300 rare books and more than 1 million manuscripts.

All of these documents, plus computer-use spaces, all library services and communications. Langholtz also hopes to involve members of the William and Mary community in the process.

"It is too early to determine exactly what resources will be needed," Langholtz said, "but this program is likely to grow and many different talents will be required."

Langholtz' appointment as director of the Programme of Correspondence Instruction carries with it the title of Special Fellow of the United Nations Institute for Training and Research. Langholtz has served as a member of the U.S. delegation to the United Nations specializing in peacekeeping issues, and previously was the commanding officer of the U.S. Coast Guard Institute, which is responsible for the development of self-paced training manuals for U.S. Coast Guard personnel.

During his U.N. appointment, Langholtz will continue his teaching responsibilities at William and Mary. His area of specialty is decision theory, which he teaches in both the Department of Psychology and the School of

Bill McGough

Bill McGough, a junior student in history, died Dec. 1 at his home in Newport News after a two-and-a-half year battle with cancer.

McGough was a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity and the Reserve Officers Training Corps, the Surfing Club, the Catholic Students Association, and Intervarsity.

The family has asked that expressions of sympathy be sent to either the Peninsula Catholic High School Building Fund at 332 34th Street, Newport News, VA 23607; or Camp Fantastic at 117 Youth Development Court, Winchester, VA 22602.

Search Begins For New Vice President For Advancement An 11-member committee has been libraries; Clifford Mayhall, executive diers is keen, and Steven T. Ast of the university

appointed to search for a new vice president for university advancement.

President Timothy J. Sullivan, in appointing the search committee, asked that the committee send him the names of three unranked candidates by March 31, so that he can make a recommendation at the spring Board of Visitors meeting, now set for April 28-29.

W. Samuel Sadler, vice president for student affairs, will chair the committee. In addition to Sadler, committee members are W. Barry Adams, executive vice president of the Society of the Alumni; James C. Livingston, Walter G. Mason Professor of Religion; Henry E. Mallue Ir., professor of business administration; Nancy H. Marshall, dean of university rector of the Student Advancement Association; Teresa L. Munford, director of advancement systems; James B. Murray Jr., secretary of the Board of Visitors; James M. Patton, associate dean of the School of Education; Spencer L. Timm, president of the Endowment Association; and F. Roger Thaler, vice president and associate counsel, External Affairs Division of the Colonial Williamsburg Foun-

In appointing the committee, Sullivan noted that-like all public institutions—the College faces reduced support for higher education, making the position of vice president for university advancement "more critical than ever."

Competition for advancement officers is keen, and Steven T. Ast of the national firm of Ast/Bryant has been selected as a search consultant.

The position of vice president for university advancement came open after Edward Allenby left at the end of October to take a similar post at the University of Connecticut.

Edwards Wins Award

Jack D. Edwards, professor of government since 1962, was presented with the Distinguished Public Servant Award at a luncheon meeting of the Virginia Alliance for the Public Service in Trinkle Hall Nov. 30. Edwards represents Berkeley District on the James City County Board of Supervisors, and is the author of the recently published book on annexation, Neighbors and Sometimes Friends. He holds a law degree from Harvard University and a doctorate in political science from Vanderbilt University.

Grayson To Discuss NAFTA on WHRV

George W. Grayson, professor of government, is one of two panelists on the first episode of "With Good Reason," set for 11 a.m., Jan. 4, on WHRV-FM.

Grayson and Christopher Newport University marketing professor Lisa Spiller discuss what Virginians stand to gain or lose from increased American trade and economic cooperation with Mexico and Canada.

Grayson and Spiller were recently interviewed by producer Laura Womack on the after effects of the North American Free Trade Agreement.

With Good Reason" is a production of Virginia's Public Radio Stations and the Virginia Higher Education Broadcasting Consortium.

Future programs in January include "Folk Remedies: Finding Answers to Virginia's Rural Health Care Crisis," "Life Science: New Breakthroughs in Medical Research" and "Feather Vanes: How Birds Indicate the Direction of Virginia's Environmental Health."

have played with the idea that poetry can be a form of prayer," he explained. Eliot calls it more than an order of words.'

Zawacki, a Catholic, said he did some prayerful preparation for the three intensive interviews he underwent for the Rhodes Scholarship, but other than that. he concentrated on being himself.

"A lot of students try to impress people," he said. "The best thing is to be honest. Be yourself, try to be articulate. intelligent and polite. I psyched myself up for it but I told myself, 'Basically this is about a life's worth of learning and if you don't know the answers, tell them."

Zawacki also credited much of his success to faculty and staff workers at the Roy R. Charles Center on campus, particularly Lisa Grimes, assistant director. "I'd like to thank her for throwing the opportunities my way and for helping me with some of the legwork," said Zawacki. "She encouraged me to apply for the Wilson and Monroe Scholarships, and she helped me put this whole thing together. She's a good coach, and a good friend."

Some of his good fortune can also be attributed to chance, Zawacki said. "All of the (competing) students are intelligent, have good grades and paperwork in top-flight order," he explained. really think it comes down to those 30minute grilling sessions. Fortunately, I didn't stumble a whole lot."

Zawacki rarely stumbles. His freshman vear, he was inducted into Phi Eta Sigma and Alpha Lambda Delta freshman national honor societies, and later was invited to join the Omicron Delta Kappa and Mortar Board national honor societies, which recognize outstanding scholarship, character, leadership and service. A member of the William and Mary varsity track and field team his first two years, Zawacki was also named a Colonial Scholar Athlete.

He won a James Monroe Scholarship for the years 1990-1994, for which he traveled to London to write an unpublished book of poetry and prose pieces, and in 1992 was awarded a Wilson Scholarship, for which he completed the research project: "The Influence of showed me a level of sophistication that Malcolm X on America, 1965 to the Present."

Along with winning an impressive array of literary awards, including runnerup in the 1992 Academy of America Poetry Prize competition, Zawacki has also been active in a lengthy list of campus organizations: The Gentlemen of the College singing group, the service-oriented Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity and The William and Mary Review, to name a Zawacki, who considers himself "an athlete as much as anything," said he would have continued with sports, as well, if his interest in writing had not begun to consume so much time and energy.

I'm a true believer that if you're meant to write, you can't stop," Zawacki explained. "So I couldn't justify being out on the track three hours a day, five days a week."

Apparently, it was time well spent. "He's an extraordinarily bright young man," Terry Meyers, associate professor of English, told a Daily Press reporter just days after the announcement. "He made him stand out right away."

During the two years at Oxford, Zawacki said he plans to spend much of his time writing. He also intends to take advantage of lectures at the university that are outside his field. "All the lectures are open to everyone," Zawacki said. "Oxford is there for the taking and I won't limit myself to my own course of

The Oxford term begins Oct. 9, 1994, after a going-away party for Rhodes Scholars in New York City. When Zawacki completes his course of study, his degree will be a master's of philosophy in English.

After that, he's considering going on to Harvard for a doctorate. Teaching is a possibility for the future, as is writing professionally. But for now, the senior is just relieved that the exhaustive application process and suspense surrounding the Rhodes Scholarships have ended and that he doesn't have to begin applying to graduate schools again.

'It's nice to just know where you're going."

Alpha Of Virginia Chapter Of Phi Beta Kappa Inducts 1994 Members

The Alpha of Virginia Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, the nation's premier academic honor society, has inducted 40 new seniors from the College's class of 1994 as members.

Traditionally, a new group of students is initiated each December in recognition of their outstanding academic achievements as undergraduates. These students are degree candidates who have demonstrated outstanding scholarship, breadth of intellectual interests and good character.

Phi Beta Kappa was founded on Dec. 5, 1776, by a small group of William and Mary students, including William Short, later a distinguished diplomat and close associate of Thomas Jefferson, and John Marshall, subsequently Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. Its founders named friendship, morality and literature as essential characteristics for membership.

Chapters of Phi Beta Kappa were soon established at Yale and Harvard universities. Today, Phi Beta Kappa is the leading academic honor society at colleges and universities throughout the nation.

The following are the Phi Beta Kappa members-elect from the class of 1994:

Green And Gold Christmas

A check for $450 was presented by the Hourly and Classified Employees group to Lori Berman, a student co-chair of the Green and Gold Christmas Party. Joyce Jackson, HACE treasurer, made the presentation with Ruth Graff, HACE president. Violet Chalkley and Sandy Wilms represented HACE on the Special Projects Committee.

Cashier's Office Operations On Holiday Schedule

Due to the holiday schedule, the cashier's office will be closed from Dec. 22 to Jan. 2. The last day to accept deposit transmittals will be Tuesday, Dec. 21. Those areas that have collected funds for deposit are required to submit their transmittal to the cashier by noon on Tuesday, Dec. 21, to ensure that College funds are properly deposited and safeguarded. The cashier's office will close early Tuesday to process all deposits and ensure delivery to the bank.

The last day to submit travel and cash advance requests to the bursar's office for approval will be Thursday, Dec. 16 at 5 p.m. Requests cannot be processed after that date.

Normal operations will resume Monday, Jan. 3. Questions may be directed to the bursar's office, ext. 11219.

Patty Lindsey Leaving College

Patty Lindsey, director of College Postal Services, has accepted the position of vice president of international marketing and promotion for the Postal Services International in Washington D.C.

"Patty's dedication to improving the College's postal department has earned her numerous awards and prominent recognition through the country," said Paul H. Morris, director of Facilities Management.

A farewell reception will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 13, in Facilities Management. All are welcome.

Marshall Says Expansion Needed To Meet Growing Enrollment

staff, along with study and reading rooms are housed in a building constructed in 1966. While the 1987 addition helped alleviate the immediate space crunch at the time, it did not add enough space to meet future needs or modernize the existing building.

"William and Mary's library does not have the space it is entitled to, based on the size of its enrollment and its faculty," said Marshall. "Beyond that, we have a 1960s building that is trying to deal with the technology of the 1990s and beyond."

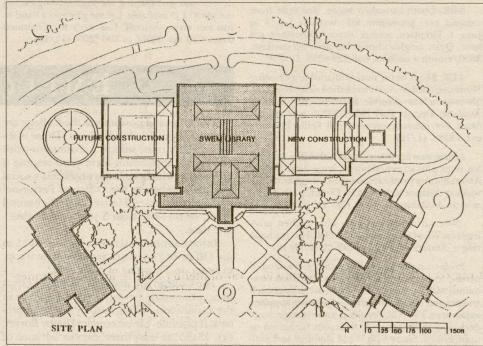

Marshall estimates that, to meet the growing needs of an increasingly diverse university, the collection will need to grow by at least 22,000 volumes each year.

Students have also told her the library must have better study areas, both for individual and small group study sessions.

To plan for the future demands, the College hired the architectural firm of Hanbury Evans Newill Vlattas & Co. of Norfolk to examine the potential for the project as part of a preplanning process. Their associate firm was Shepley Bullfinch & Abbott of Boston.

The architects reviewed the needs of the College through the year 2025, and suggested a combination of addition and renovation. Their plans show an addition on the east, or Millington Hall, side of the library. The main entrance will remain facing the sundial courtyard.

Although sketches for the addition are preliminary, the architects said their goals include "softening" the library's appearance by making it appear less institutional and more user friendly, while at the same time adding natural light and other guideposts to help patrons orient themselves more easily.

The architectural recommendations along with preliminary budget and timetable information are currently under review by the state Department of Planning and Budget.

Originally, Marshall had hoped that the project could be done all at once. However, the Department of Planning and Budget asked for a plan that broke the project into two phases.

Library officials are now waiting to see if the project is part of the proposed budget submitted by Gov. L. Douglas Wilder to the General Assembly in December. So far, funding for the project has not been identified.

If the project could win General Assembly approval for construction in one phase, a tentative schedule estimates the building could be ready for occupancy as soon as April 1998.

If the project is funded into two phases, then Phase I (which includes the addition and some renovation) could be ready for occupancy by July 1997. Phase II, which would complete the renovation, would be finished by April 1999.

Post Office Holiday Hours

Thursday, Dec. 23, open from 7 a.m. to noon.

Friday, Dec. 24, closed for Christmas Eve.

Monday, Dec. 27, to Thursday, Dec. 30, open from 7 a.m. to noon.

Friday, Dec. 31, closed for New Year's Eve.

Regular hours will resume Monday, Jan. 3.,

Please contact Patty Lindsey, director of College Postal Services, ext. 14491, with questions.

School of Education Applications Available

Undergraduate students with second semester sophomore status or higher, who are planning to concentrate in an arts and sciences field, are eligible to apply to elementary or secondary education certification programs in the School of Education. Interested students may pick up applications in Jones 305 from now until Jan. 28.

Completed applications must be returned no later than Friday, Jan. 29 at noon. Transfer students must also provide a transcript of course work taken at their previous institution(s) and a copy of their "evaluation of transfer credit" form.

All applicants will be required to interview with a faculty member between Feb. 4 and Feb. 18, and will be notified of decisions by March 5.

Christmas at Ash Lawn-Highland

In addition to decorating the home of James Monroe in the style of the early 19th century, Ash Lawn-Highland sponsors events and activities for holiday fun.

As an alternative to "store-bought" Christmas trees, visitors are invited to cut their own trees from Ash Lawn-Highland's fields Dec. 18 through 24, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. A donation to the museum is requested for these natural growth cedar trees, but there are no set fees. Visitors are asked to bring their own tools for chopping or sawing.

During Christmas week, Dec. 27 through 29, Ash Lawn-Highland presents "Sounds of the Season: A Holiday Concert," beginning at 4:30 p.m. each day. Peformances are followed by a candlelight opening of the Monroe house. Refreshments are served. Ticket information is available by calling 1-293-9539.

17th-Century Christmas Recalled At Jamestown Settlement

Through the end of December, visitors to Jamestown Settlement will see English Yuletide traditions as observed in 17th-century Virginia. The museum's recreated fort is decorated in holly, ivy, mistletoe and greenery and visitors will be invited to participate in traditional English games, try their hands at fine stitchery and watch holiday food preparation. While at the fort, visitors may encounter the "Lord of Misrule" and his band of merrymakers or a musician playing English carols.

Aboard the replicas of the ships that sailed to Virginia, costumed interpreters will recall the Christmas shared by the colonists as they left London Dec. 20, 1606, and in the recreated Powhatan Indian village, visitors will hear of the hospitality shown to the colonists in the winter of 1608-9, as recorded by Captain John Smith.

Jamestown Settlement is open daily, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., except Christmas and New Year's days. Admission is free to residents of Williamsburg, James City and York counties.

Christmas In Colonial Williamsburg

"Christmas at the Folk Art Center," a favorite with visitors to the Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Folk Art Center since it opened in 1957, continues through Jan. 9. Other events scheduled in the Historic area are tours to view the decorations, musical events, 18th-century dancing, colonial comedies, candlelight evening visits with 18th-century families and unbounded feasts. A complete schedule of events is available by calling 221-8950.

Colonial Williamsburg Winter Discovery Series

Programs scheduled for the Winter Discovery Series in Colonial Williamsburg, beginning Jan. 11 include: "Toil and Trouble: Keeping the House is Never Done!" (Jan. 11-15), "From Lafayette's Ride to Clinton's Jog: Williamsburg After the Revolution," (Jan. 18-22) and "Bestowing a Good Shape: 18th-Century Fashion at Colonial Williamsburg" (Jan. 25-29).

Additional programs are scheduled throughout February. For a complete listing, call 1-800-HISTORY.

Having arrived Tuesday afternoon, The William and Mary Cook Book is now available at the Alumni House to members of the College community at the discounted price of $15.24. Contact the Gift Shop between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, through noon, Dec. 23, or call ext. 11168 for information.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

Classified ads are included as a service to members of the College community and will be accepted from faculty, staff, students and alumni only.
