The History of The College of William & Mary

1617—King James I. authorized bishops and clergy of England to make a collection for a college in the colony of Virginia to educate Indian youths.

1618—London Company gave orders to lay out grounds for a university of Henrico, of which the Indian college was to be a branch, and endowed it with 10,000 acres of land.

1619—Sir Edwin Sandys reported to London Company that £1,500 had been collected for the proposed college.

1619—Resolutions were passed by the first legislative assembly in America in regard to the establishment of a college at the "City of Henricus."

1620, May 11—George Thorpe was sent out as deputy to govern the college lands and servants.

1622, March 22—Indian massacre, in which George Thorpe was killed and Henrico was annihilated.

1660—House of Burgesses took steps toward establishment of a college in Virginia.

1690—Commissary James Blair held a meeting of the clergy at Jamestown to discuss plans for a college and free school.

1691—Virginia Assembly elected Dr. Blair agent for the college and sent him to England to obtain the charter and endowment.

1693, February 8—Charter granted the college by King William and Queen Mary.

1694—Coat-of-arms was granted William and Mary by the Herald's College in London.

1694—Work was begun on the college building, designed by Sir Christopher Wren. Grammar school was opened.

1700—College was headquarters of the government and meeting-place of General Assembly. First commencement exercises of the college were held.

1705—College building was accidentally burned.

1710-11—Restoration of the building.

1723—The Brafferton building was erected, the first Indian school in America, from proceeds of the estate of Hon. Robert Boyle.

1729, February 27—All departments of college were established. Transfer from trustees to faculty occurred.

1732—College chapel was opened and president's house was erected.

1749—George Washington was appointed surveyor for Fairfax County by William and Mary College.

1756—Benjamin Franklin was given honorary Master of Arts.

1776, December 5—The Phi Beta

Pageant Cast Has Been Completed

Fourth of July Celebration Will Be Held On the College Campus

The cast for the Fourth of July pageant which will be held on the college campus has been completed, and frequent rehearsals are now the order of the day. The first three acts, greatly curtailed to suit the occasion from the drama, the "Constitutionalist," written by Edward J. White, of St. Louis, vice-president of the Missouri-Pacific Railway Company, will be presented by a local cast. The author has signified his intention of being present to witness it. There will be more than 100 people in the cast, including the Culpeper Minute men, and the dances that will follow the pageant.

The most beautiful part of the program, perhaps, will be the marriage scene in which Mary Ambler becomes the wife of John Marshall. Miss Lucile Foster, as Mary Ambler, and about 50 ladies of Williamsburg, in the costumes of the period, will compose the bridal party and guests. Mrs. E. Etheridge will take the part of Mrs. Rebecca Ambler; Miss Carra Garrett will impersonate Eliza Ambler; and Miss Inger Scheie will play the part of Nancy Ambler. The

Fourth of July Celebration Here

The plans for the Community Fourth of July Celebration on the William and Mary Campus are beginning to materialize.

From now on the pageant committee will have frequent rehearsals. The programs, in charge of F. H. Ball, have been distributed. The responses to the requests for advertisements have been very generous.

There are still not quite enough funds to defray the cost of music for the day. The committee, consisting of Rev. D. J. Blocker, F. R. Savage, and D. D. Peachy, Jr., will appreciate it, if persons reading this item will send one dollar to any member of the music committee. This money has to be in hand prior to the fourth.

The ladies of the dinner and refreshment committees are busily engaged in maturing their plans.

WILLIAM AND MARY CO-ED HONORED AT CONFEDERATE REUNION

Miss Mary Phillips Godwin, of the class of '25, was maid of honor for the Norfolk Sons of the Confederate Veterans at the reunion held in Richmond this week.

Chautauqua Opens in Williamsburg July 8

The Chautauqua will open in Williamsburg on Saturday, July 8, for a seven-day stay. It will be the largest and best ever in Williamsburg, costing more money than ever before and requiring a greater ticket sale to meet the cost. The rate will remain the same, however, $2.50 for the entire series. Children's tickets will be $1.00. The chairmen of the committees are as follows:

Advertising, W. C. Johnston; tickets, S. L. Graham; ground, H. K. Graves; hospitality, M. T. Shipman; junior, Mrs. R. M. Crawford. S. L. Graham is general chairman of the guarantor's association, and H. E. Warren, is secretary.

The ticket selling campaign has already begun. Those wanting tickets should secure them at once, through any of the officers, or chairmen of committees. The adult tickets are only $2.50, and the junior tickets are $1.00. By purchasing season tickets there will be a big saving, besides it will assist the guarantors in meeting their obligation. No money paid for tickets at the gate will go to the guarantors. Therefore, all should purchase their tickets in advance, helping pay the expense of the Chautauqua as well as saving money to the individual.

There is going to be a change in this year's Chautauqua program that will be welcome to its patrons. The daily lecture by the superintendent will be delivered at a morning hour instead of in the afternoon. There will be three programs daily.

Dr. Pollard Purchases John Blair House

The sale of the old John Blair house to Hon. J. G. Pollard was confirmed by Judge Tyler, Tuesday 16th. The purchase price was $6,000. The original owner, John Blair, was the nephew of James Blair, the founder of the College of William and Mary.

Mr. Pollard bought this historic land-mark for the purpose of preservation.

Prof. Bennett Author Of New Book

Professor H. E. Bennett, head of the Education Department of the College, has recently written a new education book, "Psychology and Self Development." This book, which has become very popular with educational teachers, was published by Ginn and Company. It is the second book Professor Bennett has published. He is the author of "School Efficiency," which is used at the college in the Education Department.

A TRIBUTE TO THE CONFEDERATE VETERANS

We take this occasion to pay in our feeble way a tribute to the veterans of the Lost Cause who are enjoying the thirty-second reunion of the Confederate Veterans in Richmond. The memorable struggle of the boys in Gray flashes back with brilliancy, which the passing years serve only to enhance. Would that our lips had been stung with the Attic bees with such intensity and power that we could eloquently frame in vivid description and brilliant metaphor a speaking picture of the great struggle in which our fathers so bravely participated. We can almost recall the defenders of the Southland hurling the invaders back on the Potomac, time after time snatching victory out of the jaws of defeat, with a courage and bravery that has since been the wonder of an awe-stricken world. Later, when hungry, privation, and disease had reduced their ranks to a mere shadow of an army, we see a valiant handful of men furnish a living wall against which the flower of the Federal Army battered itself for more than six months. Death and starvation alone could subjugate that heroic little band.

Undismayed by their seeming irretrievable disaster, the ragged and broken survivors went back to the ruins that were once lovely homes, and there, with the aid of the Southern woman, and a spirit that was not born to die, these battle-scarred veterans fought through the throes of reconstruction, bringing the South back to its position of leadership and prosperity. It is to the memory of these warriors that the entire South is joined in solemn reverence. Within another score of years, there will remain scarcely a survivor of the struggle for the Lost Cause. But we of the present day must show our appreciation by perpetuating their deeds in the minds of men, and in keeping unsullied the social order and ideals for which they gave their all.

Outside the Class Room

The summer session is now on. Classes are organized, and the machinery of the college is running smoothly. The class room will furnish learning, and credits will be accumulated. But what of the student body outside the class room and study hall?

In a very brief time the summer students will be gone; yet the College of William and Mary should leave its stamp upon the heart as well as upon the mind of the body. There must be a college community spirit based upon social and personal contacts. To meet these inevitable requirements, the music department proposes to call for chorus and minstrels.

Now the chorus is not conceived as a body slaving to produce a work before the summer school. The time is too short, and the results attained are unbalanced. The chorus is to be an organization, the double purpose of which is to bring the men and women together in social and musical contact. No musical prerequisites are required. The rehearsals are to be pleasant, not irksome. The goal is in the present, not the future. The rehearsals are the moments of social and musical contact.

Will you come? Will you help to make this summer course at the College of William and Mary memorable?

Will you let the college spirit pervade the whole student body? Will you do your bit?

The chorus will meet Mr. Howe in Chapel on Wednesday and Friday at 7 o'clock in the evening. The minstrels will practice on Tuesday and Thursday at the same hour and place.

Try it out. If you don't enjoy it, say so, and you will be excused.

W. E. HOWE,

Director of Music at the Summer School.

ENROLLMENT REACHES 626

Today the enrollment for the first term of the Summer Quarter has reached the high water mark of 626. This large enrollment has far surpassed the expectation of the Director of the Summer Quarter. It is 202 greater than the enrollment in the first term of the last Summer Quarter.

BLIND MUSICIAN TO BE HEARD AT COLLEGE

J. Harold Lawrence, assisted by several members of his family, will give a concert in the college chapel on Thursday evening, June 29. A part of the proceeds from this concert will go to the community celebration, and part of it to the Pipe Organ Fund of the Methodist church.

Mr. Lawrence is a splendid entertainer, and the program he will present will be both helpful and entertaining. It is hoped that there will be a large number of persons to attend this musical concert.

The following William and Mary students will compose the company of Culpeper Minute men: A. J. Winder, F. C. Lawford, J. C. Farrar, B. L. Tucker, S. S. Driscoll, D. J. Keister, F. L. Anderson, T. R. Witten, Richard Moncure, J. M. Kyle, Fay Wallace, J. H. Binder, C. R. Addington, H. T. Halbrook, F. H. Russell, J. D. Carter.

Besides the above named students, there will be thirty members of the convention represented by Williamsburg and William and Mary men, all of whom will be attired in appropriate costumes. The pageant this year will take place in front of the main college building which will assure a better view and freedom from the glare of the sun in the afternoon when it will be staged. There will be reserved seats at a nominal cost.

Indications are that hundreds of people from all over the peninsula, and many from Richmond and Norfolk will be here to attend the celebration on July 4, the main attraction, of course, being the historical pageant. However, there will be athletic exercises, band concerts, and many other attractions during the day. At 8:15 P. M. there will be a humorous address by Miss Bessie May Dudley, of Richmond. There will also be an address by Rev. T. R. Reeves, of Portsmouth.

SPICE OF LIFE

AN OLD MAID'S AWAKENING

Memories play a heavenly part
In the life that's spent and done
When realizations begin to start
To dawn on her one by one.

The things she burned down and crushed

When youth in her cheek did glow,
When each night beside her wished
Every description of a beau.

When the maid each morn and night
Brought tidings of a love,
And each evening in her sight
Sat whispering turtle dove.

But now the scene has changed and faded:

She does not seem to be
Quite so cute and animated,
As she was at twenty-three.

No longer do the flowers come
On every chance occasion—
No longer does the phone bell hum
To warn of man's invasion.

She sits alone and reflects
Of days that use to be
Of the girl who now rejects
The men she use to see.

Her hair is not quite so straight,
Her hose has changed to cotton,
Her figure, alas! we must relate
Has been entirely forgotten.

Her eyes don't seem quite so blue,
Her shoes are broad and flat,
Her beaux are so very few,
Mostly 'cause she's fat.

So, gentle reader, if you be
Among the young and fair,
Look about you and you will see
An answer to your prayer.

For chances come when you are young.

Don't pass the last one by.
"I had my chance," is often sung
By old maids when they die.
—H. T. M.

"I read a very absorbing story recently."

"Where?"

"Printed on a blotter."

"What part of the body is the fray,
'fessor?"

"Fray? What are you talking about?"

"This book says Ivanhoe was wounded in the fray."

"How worn-out that clock looks!"

"Yes. It's panting."

"Fair Customer: 'I'd like to get a lip-stick.'"

Green Salesman: "Sorry, we're out of lip-sticks, but we have some toothpicks."

"I've just had my hat blocked."

"Ought to fit your head well."
