

I love little Walde
Her heart is so warm
Her nature so sweet
So tireless her arm -

She scrubs and she rubs me -

A perfect delight -

She's busy and cheerful
From mornning till night.

If you would be happy
Although you are sick
Just let Walde nurse you
And she'll turn the trick.

LANDS SAFELY IN FRANCE

Captain Nathaniel R. Potter Now with Ordnance Department.

CAPT. NATHANIEL R. POTTER

Word has been received in Rochester of the safe arrival in France of Captain Nathaniel R. Potter, one of the original members of the Rochester National Defense Contingent. More than 125 officers and men of that organization are now in national service in addition to those members who have been drafted. Captain Potter was given a commission in the Ordnance Department the first of March and he has been on active duty since the middle of May.

POTTER—FURMAN.

Miss Fannie Furman, daughter of Mrs. Charles Edward Furman, 254 Alexander street, was married to Nathaniel Restcome Potter, of South Washington street, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barton Potter, on the evening of 6:30 o'clock at the home of her mother, Rev. Warren S. Stone, at the First Presbyterian Church, officiated by Rev. Samuel Tyler, of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, performed the ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her mother.

The maid of honor was Miss Markham, of Avon, and the following four nephews of the bride were attendants: Charles Furman Bridgman, of Rochester, and John Furman Carter, of McAden Carter, Jr., and Samuel L. Carter, all of Buffalo. Alonzo Bridgman of New York was best man.

The bride wore white satin and brocade and carried white lilies and orchids. Miss Markham was dressed in pink taffeta and carried pink snapdragons. The gown of the bride's mother was lavender satin with white lace.

The house decorations were of pink roses and greens, and the bride's room was decorated with pink roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Potter left on a wedding trip to California. After May 1st they will be at home at No. 254 Alexander street.

The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. James M. Carter and children, and Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Fernow, of Buffalo; Mrs. Fannie Potter Eaton and Mrs. Carleton Briggs, of Lancaster, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Poyntell Staley, Geneva; Miss Lessie Savage, of Oswego; and Leroy C. Bridgman, of Buenos Aires, Argentina.

Though love be studded with paths of woe

Yet still I think if we incline,
We'll find the path where roses
grow

If you will be My Valentine.

TO NURSE IN CAMPS.

Ten Young Women of Base Hospital 19
Will Respond to Call.

Miss Jessica Noyes, chief nurse of Rochester Base Hospital, No. 19, has had a request from Washington for the names of ten nurses enrolled in the hospital unit who will do service in cantonments while awaiting orders to go abroad. These young women will answer the call: Miss Elizabeth Weber, Miss Louise M. Kramer, Miss Jessie Burton, Miss Marion Flint, Miss Katharine D. Lindner, all graduates of the Homeopathic Hospital; Miss Mary E. Fagan, Miss Muriel Thomas, Miss Olive Smith, all of the General Hospital Training School; Miss Mary Savage, of the Thompson Memorial Hospital, Canandaigua, and Miss Emma H. Kehrig, Hahnemann Hospital, Rochester.

Miss Bessie I. Clendenney, graduate of the Rochester State Hospital, has been assigned to the Army General Hospital at Lakewood, N. J. Miss Hazel Bartlett, of the Lee Hospital Training School, will go soon, she has been notified, but has not received her assignment.

Base Hospital at Camp McClellan

ON the southwest side of Camp McClellan, almost hidden among the pines that surround it, is a place that most of the men have never seen, except perhaps at a distance—the Base Hospital. Bill Smith, buck private, may get his first intimate knowledge of the hospital system and its workings some day when he reports at sick call. If he passes the scrutiny of his sergeant—who very likely is keeping a sharp lookout for fakers—he is escorted with others like him to the regimental infirmary. If the doctor there finds that Bill is not in a serious condition he is given treatment and sent back to his company street. But if he is really in a bad way he gets a ride to the Base Hospital in one of Uncle Sam's rear-door Pullmans, bearing with him a ticket showing the diagnosis of his case made at the regimental infirmary.

He enters the Base Hospital by way of the receiving station, where a hospital physician checks up the diagnosis and assigns him to a ward. Now he exchanges his khaki for a uniform consisting of blue and white pajamas and a lounging robe, and finds himself an occupant of one of the many wards that line the miles of board walk. He is now one of that body of 500 or so patients who make up the ever-changing population of the place.

Bill finds his ward a pretty comfortable place to be in—a lot better than a tent on a cold, windy night. For these buildings are built in permanent style, with double walls to keep out the cold, and in addition they are all being ceiled with beaverboard to increase their comfort and neatness. Besides, in each ward there are two big coal stoves, regular furnaces for size, which easily take care of the job of furnishing heat.

Bill now learns the luxury of having his breakfast in bed. And he has his meals brought to him from a very clean and up-to-date kitchen, a place where the potato peeling, the dish washing and other odd jobs are done by electricity.

In addition to these comforts, he may have the good fortune to be assigned to a ward where one of the 26 fair Red Cross nurses will look after him. This is not the only feminine touch that comes into his life at the hospital, either. Before a week is past Bill finds that some of the ladies of Anniston or Jacksonville or another of the neighboring towns have adopted his ward—which means that they come around every week to visit him and the other fellows there, to talk with him and cheer him up, and perhaps leave some good things for him to eat. Then some fine Tuesday afternoon, when he is getting better, along come a crowd of good folks who call themselves the "Convalescents League," who put him and other patients into automobiles and take them for a ride, in the course of which they all stop somewhere and able to stroll on the board walk a little, to get nearer to the band that he has have afternoon tea.

With such good encouragement, and the care of the doctors and nurses, Bill just can't help getting well. Soon he is heard playing for him every afternoon, and to go to the frequent evening entertainments that are given by people from nearby towns for his benefit. And all the time he has been in the hospital he has been using the same Y. M. C. A. stationery that he got when he was back in the regiment, he has been reading magazines that were brought by the Y truck, and he has often had a call from one or another of the Y secretaries. When he is ready to return to his regiment, he goes back by the same way he came—via the receiving station, and the ambulance ride to his regimental infirmary, being receipted for at each transfer, so that he is never lost track of.

You see, this Base Hospital where Bill has been is some place! It is a thing that will remain, too, having a well-made sewer system, and buildings of the most permanent type in the camp, connected by broad board walks which are all roofed and electrically lighted. It contains 22 regular wards of 24 beds each, besides four isolation wards of the same size, and has a staff of over 50 physicians and surgeons, and more than 400 men who serve as orderlies and nurses.

The records of the hospital show that McClellan is about as healthy a camp as can be found anywhere in the United States. It is notable that there have been only five deaths in the three months that the camp has been in existence, with an average of 30,000 men here, coming from all walks of life and most of them unaccustomed to outdoor life or to this climate.

FRENCH WOMAN TO TEACH BASE HOSPITAL FRENCH

Offers Services Through Rochester Red Cross.

D.C. 7/15/17
ON CARE OF DEPENDENTS

National Red Cross Chairman Says
Society Will Not Undertake General Relief, Which Is Function of Government — Finished Work

Physicians and nurses of Base Hospital No. 19 and army officers who will go out from this city will be taught French without cost by Madame Severin Pelouquin, a native French woman. The Red Cross Chapter has made the necessary arrangements but the instruction is to be given by Madame Pelouquin without compensation.

From now on the classes will meet in Catharine Strong Hall at University avenue and Prince street, on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings at 8 o'clock, beginning to-morrow night. The class now meeting at the Nurses' Central Directory, No. 45 South Union street, will be transferred and merged with the new classes.

Members of the classes will be given such instructions as will enable them to give and receive "first aid." No attempt will be made to teach grammar any more than is absolutely necessary, nor to go into the niceties of the language.

Membership in these classes can be had only by application at Red Cross headquarters, No. 330 Main street east. Persons entitled to the lessons there will receive proper credentials.

Captain Nathaniel Potter, of South Washington Street, who has been in the Ordnance Department at Watervliet Arsenal and recently at Wrightstown, N. J., has been spending a brief time in town. Captain Potter left this week for New York and will soon sail for France.

Away Down in South Carolina Nights Are So Cool Soldiers in Camp Need Extra Blankets

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO THE DEMOCRAT AND CHRONICLE.
Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, S. C., Sept. 23.—The Second New York Ambulance Company after two weeks at Spartanburg, S. C., is comfortably settled. The weather has been fine and warm during the days, but cool at night, so cool, in fact, that a few fortunate men who have blankets sent from home are the envy of the others. The government furnishes two blankets for each man.

The company is fortunate in having excellent cooks. Robert J. O'Leary, Harold S. Knowlton and Lavern W. Richmond. Private Charles P. F. Emler is the company barber and he has rigged up a "ton-sorial parlor" that would make even the Rochester barbers jealous. Another busy man is private John M. Masucci, the company tailor.

Last Friday seven of the men who have been for the last three months at the Fort Benjamin Harrison training camp, Indiana, returned to take up duties with this command. They are Sergeants Andrew W. Nixon, James H. Fowle, Harold M. Fitch and George Zimmerman, and Privates (first class) Lemuel R. Gale, Stewart C. Brown and Raymond W. Blank.

Sergeant Nixon was a Rochester pharmacist, and Sergeant Fowle was physical instructor at East High School. All the seven men saw six months' service on the Mexican border last year.

Private Howard C. Smith, who was a member of the office force of the Eastman Kodak Company and has served in the United States navy, has been detailed to detached service with Division Headquarters of the Medical Department under the chief surgeon. Smith is an expert accountant.

With all the military work the boys find time to develop the athletic side of the company. First Lieutenant Clarence C. Nesbitt has been appointed chairman of the Athletic Committee and is making plans for all forms of sports while the company is in camp. Baseball is in the lead at present. Private George M. Clancy, a well-known Rochester ball player, is the hustling manager of the company team. Private Charles C. Hindt, known as "Red" Hindt, who was the star second baseman of the Rochester Athletics, is one of the players.

City to Equip All Fifty Nurses of Hospital Unit

D.C. 7/15/17
It was decided yesterday by the Executive Committee that the Rochester Chapter of the American Red Cross would provide the entire outfit for the fifty nurses who will go to France with Base Hospital No. 19. This was suggested by a letter which came to the chapter from Elliot Wadsworth, of Washington, acting head of the National Red Cross, in which he asked if the Rochester members would do this. The committee held a meeting, and it was agreed that clothing, steamer rugs, cloaks—everything needed by the young women for their journey and service—should be furnished by this city's chapter. The cost will be about $4,000. These things would be furnished by the national society if the Rochester chapter did not provide them, but the committee was willing to undertake the task, one member said, believing that it was only a duty, and altogether in order for the members who live in the home of the base hospital.

The headquarters at No. 330 Main street east will be closed on July 4th.

MOTHERS OF TEMPLE HEAR MISS SLATTERY

D.C. 7/15/17
Miss Margaret Slattery, speaking at the Century Club yesterday afternoon to members of the Mothers of the Temple, said that American women were becoming "fussed" and while they were experiencing fine inspirations and were filled with good intentions, they were not hitting the bullseye and were failing to get the best returns from their efforts, because these efforts were not adequately controlled and directed.

She recommended that the women attend first to the conservation of their own families and devote only the time left beyond these activities to war work. For the young, healthy and well-to-do women Miss Slattery recommended work in the factories which would enable some young, undeveloped girl to return to school. One instance of such work as this was mentioned where a young woman had taken the place of a girl who had fallen ill, and whom she was supporting at a tuberculosis hospital.

A number of Red Cross nurses were the honor guests at the meeting and their work was spoken of appreciatively by Miss Slattery and Rev. C. Waldo Cherry.

FIRST RED CROSS NURSES ARE CALLED

u.a. 7/15/17
Four Will Leave City
Monday for Plattsburg
Barracks.

Emma H. Kehrig of 45 South Union street, secretary of the Red Cross nurses, this morning received a communication from the War Department calling for four Red Cross nurses to immediate duty. After taking their oath of office on Monday they will proceed to Plattsburg Barracks, Plattsburg, N. Y., to report for duty.

Those who will go are Jennie Gomme of 85 Cameron street, at Ida M. Johnson of the General Hospital, both graduates of 41 1/2 Pestal; Ruth F. Trimby of 41 1/2 Pestal; a graduate of the Homeopathic Hospital, and Louise A. Smith of 1 Selye terrace, a graduate of Samaritan Hospital, Troy, N. Y. Elizabeth Carlton of Geneva, a graduate of Geneva City Hospital, will be sent to Plattsburg later.

These are the first Red Cross nurses to be called from Rochester although 130 are enrolled here.

Mothers of the Temple meet at the Century Club 566 1st Ave 3 P.M. Friday, September 28th. You are cordially invited with the Nurses B.H. as a guest Mrs. Pharellus V. Crittenden
