

are in his power to make you so - but you must be more comforted at Elrington than the dear child is any where else & other dear Bee will also lonely without
you. I know that Grand Mother & John are both in love & I hope you will soon conclude to remain. At I will be in the cold all day about us in this, one time of great trial and I should have written sooner, but I waited till I should get to Fanny's & feel more quiet & settled. Yes dear Mother this is a deep sorrow indeed. Our last, our only one is gone & not heir seems to have gone all the brightness of this present life for us & for their sisters.

My precious darling Charlie - He was so young, so full of spirits & of fresh hopeful life!
So anxious to do his duty, so delighted that he had at last got into the army.

Getty McQuine wrote Harry that Doctor Hunter said he was talking with him about an hour before he fell & that he looked so much & so bright and that he was so delighted with the branch of the service he had chosen & so pleased with his Captain & his company & he wrote to Hunter that he had not been so much satisfied since he came to Virginia. Dear little education. He has 15 boys besides Chap - & had not time feller! he had not time to serve his country much - he had not time to get none out & broken down, but I think he would have stood ready for College. We all felt convinced that Mr Powell it well, for he had such a fund of animal could not continue this office life but at the sac-spirit & would have laughed at what rifice of his life. He is very thin & weak - indeed others would have complained. Does it not I think this last years trials have been enough seem strange, dear Mother, that they should to have killed him & I am sure he would have fallen but have been taken so soon, but just a sacrifice if he had continued in Richmond.

month after they entered the service - but I hope that this winter in the County with the in their second battle - but on Sunday - occupation of mind which the study necessary to while so many have gone through the whole conduct Chap's education, will give him, will war unharmed. But you must not think restore him. Mr Gordon & Fanny are as kind as me unmum, dear Mother, No, God has most as it is possible to be - I hope Mr G. will let me know fully supported us, giving us such bright & as I should feel much more comfortable - but at realizing views of their happiness in Heaven as any rate I felt it my duty to meet their kindness reconciles us, in a degree, to their absence from in the spirit in what it was extended & be us for a time. I feel as if my home were with my Husband now that he requires a gradually being transposed and having no wife's tender care to soothe & strengthen his home now on earth, I realize more that spirit as well as care for his bodily wants.
one home is in Heaven.
It was a trial to us both to leave the

Mr Gordon persuaded Mr Powell to give up his office in Richmond & to come here to live this winter. He offered him his board & $250 if he would come & take charge of Chapman's to give him the attention he required, as he is a great deal more advanced than any of the others & is nearly <sup>or quite</sup> ready for College. We all felt convinced that Mr Powell it well, for he had such a fund of animal could not continue this office life but at the sac-

spirit & would have laughed at what rifice of his life. He is very thin & weak - indeed
others would have complained. Does it not I think this last years trials have been enough seem strange, dear Mother, that they should to have killed him & I am sure he would have fallen
but have been taken so soon, but just a sacrifice if he had continued in Richmond.
in their second battle - but on Sunday - occupation of mind which the study necessary to
while so many have gone through the whole conduct Chap's education, will give him, will
war unharmed. But you must not think restore him. Mr Gordon & Fanny are as kind as
me unmum, dear Mother, No, God has most as it is possible to be - I hope Mr G. will let me know
fully supported us, giving us such bright & as I should feel much more comfortable - but at
realizing views of their happiness in Heaven as any rate I felt it my duty to meet their kindness
reconciles us, in a degree, to their absence from in the spirit in what it was extended & be
us for a time. I feel as if my home were with my Husband now that he requires a gradually being transposed and having no wife's tender care to soothe & strengthen his
home now on earth, I realize more that spirit as well as care for his bodily wants.
one home is in Heaven.
It was a trial to us both to leave the girls & especially dear Fannie - but then are times of trial & each one must be willing to take their share. They have all comfortable homes where they are useful & beloved & every body is kind to them. I do feel so sorry for them Mother, that they should have no brothers.

My brothers have been so dear to me & such a comfort to me all my life, that it seems such a pity to me that having known & felt the comfort of such loving brothers as theirs were, they should be bereft of both & should have to live, through perhaps a long life, without any brother. Rebecca & Hattie both look delicate & not very strong, though they are well. Dear Anna is the picture of blooming health.
They all try to bear up under this heavy trial for their Father's sake & mine.

Give my love to all my dear sisters & tell Rebecca that I went to see Maude as I passed through Richmond. I was only there a part of one day & only saw her for a few minutes late in the evening. She was delighted to see me & seems to be very warm-hearted & affectionate.
She looked at me as if she felt very sorry for me & asked me to write to her, which I shall try to do as soon as I can write a cheap letter.
I am sorry dear Mother that you think of leaving Rebecca this winter - Richmond is so expensive a place that I fear you will not have many comforts there, though I know dear Frank will.